"Mr. Finlay's book is profusely and beautifully illustrated, and his photographs bear out his thesis that in Scotland artistic achievement is always closely related to practical skill and to daily use. . . There is nothing dead or mechanical in any of his examples, and they all bear out his contention that the 'basic and powerful' craft instinct has helped to keep the Scottish soul alive and that its decay would be a moral disaster to the nation. His own scholarly and readable book is likely to revive Scotland's interest in her plastic heritage. It is admirably produced; but when there is another edition it would be a good thing to rearrange the photographs so that, for instance, the section on fighting weapons was not largely illustrated by photographs of textiles and the section on textiles by silver and pewter vessels and by fighting weapons."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p68 Ja 29 '49 1100w

FIRBANK, ARTHUR ANNESLEY RONALD. Five novels; with an introd. by Osbert Sitwell. 472p $5 New directions

49-48966

Contents: Valmouth; The Flower Beneath the Foot; Prancing Nigger; Concerning the Eccentricities of Cardinal Pirelli; The Artificial Princess.

"Their esoteric qualities, the general effect of pointlessness will limit the appeal to today's audience but those with a taste for precious writing and sharp social comedy will have a pleasant discovery."
Kirkus 17:589 O 15 '49 130w

"No two of the reprinted novels are alike; the wit is different as is the style. All are rapturously gay—inconsequential and bewildering. Henry Green, Aldous Huxley and Ronald Firbank have much in common but Firbank is separated from them all by sparkling audacity. For sophisticated readers and large collections." K. T. Willis
Library J 74:1674 N 1 '49 150w

"A wonderful Christmas book for old and new readers of a short-lived, frail, and gilded young writer of genius who managed to condense enough travel and mixing into his thirty-nine years to be able to write infinitely subtle commentaries on nonsense almost everywhere but especially in exalted circles." Paul Bloomfield
+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 9 '49 360w

"Ronald Firbank is a better and more important writer than it has ever been fashionable to suppose. If only five of his works are to be in print, those in 'Five Novels of Firbank' are soundly chosen. . . One has only to read a page or so of Firbank at random to note the sense of mortality, of the transcience of all the earthly beauty he loved so well, which makes these novels, with their curious materialism, their praises of the rich and the exotic, poignant as well as comic." Ernest Jones
+ Nation 169:520 N 26 '49 1800w

"What Osbert Sitwell calls the 'exquisite inconsequence' of these books forces the attention where it is most rewarded—to the phrase. But this kind of writing is almost inevitably uneven, and Firbank at his incomparable best is too readily matched by Firbank at his arch and trivial worst."
New Repub 122:21 Ja 9 '50 310w

"To employ a serious responsible tone in speaking of Firbank would be false to him, but I am prepared to be bold and say that his books have as permanent an importance as, say, 'Alice in Wonderland.' An ideal Christmas present, but not a book for the guest room; it will 'get lost' very soon." W. H. Auden
+ N Y Times p5 N 20 '49 850w

"Firbank's 'impressionism' leaves me once more with only a tepid interest. The bright, shallow rivulets of dialogue, the inconsequent flutterings of aesthetic fancy, the absurd names, the bland and sometimes amusing

FIRBANK, A. A. R.—Continued
improprieties are still there, but they do not, I think, make up for the imaginative incoherence of these stories. Nor are the stories, it seems to me, really witty. What interested me in this volume was Sir Osbert Sitwell's very entertaining sketch of Firbank." R. D. Charques

— + Spec 183:900 D 23 '49 360w

Time 54:114 N 21 '49 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p824 D 16 '49 3300w

FIRTH, DOUGLAS, ed. Case of Augustus d'Esté. 57p pl $1.75 Macmillan

B or 92 d'Esté, Sir Augustus Frederick
48-11473

Letters, diaries, account books, and other manuscripts of Lady Augusta d'Ameland and her son, Sir Augustus d'Esté. Together they form an account of the man's battle with disseminated sclerosis during the later half of his life from 1824 to 1848.

"This small volume which can easily be read in one hour is recommended to all who are interested in disease from the patient's point of view and to those interested particularly in disseminated sclerosis." George Rosen

+ Am J Pub Health 39:803 Je '49 230w

"Though brief, this record, at times intimate and medical but always human and not without pathos, gives an interesting picture of the state of medicine which the layman can easily understand."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p399 Jl 17 '48 240w

FISCHER, BERNHARD. Radio and television mathematics; a handbook of problems and solutions. 484p il $6 Macmillan 621.384 Radio—Handbooks, manuals, etc.

49-9580

"A handbook to serve as a guide and reference book for the practical man, as a collection of problems for instructors, and as a review in preparation for radio license examinations. The first part of the book contains problems and solutions on circuit components, general, direct and alternating current circuits, vacuum tubes, oscillators, transmitters, receivers, antennas and transmission lines, and television. The rest of the book contains further problems, important tools for radio mathematics, and formulas and tables." (Library J) References. Index.

Booklist 46:8 S 1 '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 54:58 Jl '49

FISCHER, BRUNO. Restless hands. 245p $2.50 Dodd
49-10275

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 19 '49 230w

"'The Restless Hands' has depth and body and surprises other than those inherent in the plot. But one can't help asking: Is the obstacle race of changing pace and mood which Mr. Fischer has set up for the reader entirely intentional? Whether it is or not, it's a worthwhile course to follow." Elizabeth Bullock

N Y Times p14 S 4 '49 270w

"Solid tough stuff, with a better-than-average background."

+ New Yorker 25:68 Ag 20 '49 100w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 90w

FISCHER, ERIC. Passing of the European age. rev ed 228p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

901 Civilization—History. Europe—Civilization
48-8862

"Revised edition; first published in 1943 [Book Review Digest 1943, 1944]. Presents 'a study of the transfer of Western civilization and its renewal in other continents.'" School & Society

"This book is a revised edition of one first published in 1943, and events since then have certainly corroborated Mr. Fischer's views. It is a stimulating volume, and it brings out a highly significant factor in human history. Nevertheless, it raises certain questions which should be answered in another revision. If, as the author states, the rise of nationalism has played an important role in the shifting of cultural centers to new habitats, will not those forces also affect the new centers?" Emil Lengyel

+ — Ann Am Acad 261:186 Ja '49 440w

"Even apart from its solid documentation, this book would be valuable just for its tone of historical stoicism and sobriety." William Barrett

+ Atlantic 183:90 Mr '49 300w

"Mr Fischer contrives to crowd into the 200-odd pages of this work (which is a revised version of a book first published five years ago) a great deal of valuable and stimulating thinking on some of the most urgent world problems of the immediate future." Henry Sowerby

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 2 '48 800w

"Everyone will agree that the age when Europeans dominated, or could think they dominated, the culture and politics of the entire globe has passed. But does this mean that the peoples of western Europe must hereafter abandon all hope of political or even cultural leadership in a world community? Unless leadership means domination, and culture is a function of power, nothing proves Dr. Fischer's more sweeping conclusion." Garrett Mattingly

Pol Sci Q 64:151 Mr '49 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 28 '48 400w

School & Society 68:256 O 9 '48 30w

FISCHER, LOUIS, ed. Thirteen who fled; sub-editor, Boris A. Yakovlev; translators, Gloria and Victor Fischer. 244p $3 Harper

914.7 World war, 1939-1945—Russia. Russia—Social conditions. Refugees, Political 49-3934

"A volume of personal histories written by Russian displaced persons who were dragooned into Germany by the Nazis during the war and who, since the war's end, have stood off their government's every offer of free transportation back home." New Yorker

Booklist 45:374 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 30 '49 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '49

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 74:891 Je 1 '49 130w

Nation 169:66 Jl 16 '49 60w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Je 19 '49 750w

"Here are thirteen short autobiographies of 'little' people, none of them spectacular, who tell, in their own words and in their own way, what life was like in the 'paradise of the proletariat,' as Stalin's Russia so often is pictured by Communist sympathizers. This is different from most other now-it-can-be-told stories about the Soviet Union." W. H. Lawrence

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 10 '49 500w

"Recommended, with the full realization that from these virtually asyntactical compositions a vogue of the political primitive could conceivably spring."

+ New Yorker 25:87 Je 18 '49 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 11 '49 260w

"Fischer's thirteen tell their own stories, and, because they are small fry and a representative cross-section of the Russian people, their indictment is more forceful and believable than the recent sensationalized and too obviously ghosted reports from exiled bureaucrats and generals." H. W. Bigart

+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 Jl 2 '49 1250w

"Since all the people in 'Thirteen Who Fled' have not seen the Soviet Union since the war, the reader might ask if the pictures they paint are valid today. In this connection, a report just issued by 21 American experts of the American Academy of Political and Social Science is interesting, because it indicates that Moscow is now making solid concessions to win the respect and allegiance of its people. In any event, this book hardly does more than scratch the surface of a subject as intricate as it is important: Does communism as practiced in the USSR satisfy the rank and file?" Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 17 '49 800w

FISCHER, RUTH. Stalin and German communism; a study in the origins of the state party; with a pref. by Sidney B. Fay [maps by Robert Winslow]. 687p il $8 Harvard univ. press

335.4 Stalin, Iosif. Communism—Germany. Russia—Foreign relations—Germany 48-7950

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The history which Mrs. Fischer records, covering the period 1917-1929, is a notable addition to the contentious and multitudinous literature on the inner factional struggle for power of the Communist Parties in both Russia and Germany and for the early control of the Communist International. . . In presenting a systematic record of this sequence of events in its contemporary perspective, Mrs. Fischer offers valuable explanation that will help in understanding the dynamics of Soviet Russia's expansion." Charles Prince
+ Am Econ R 39:534 Mr '49 1000w

"Ruth Fischer has written an imposing contribution to the understanding not only of a significant chapter of recent history but also of problems which today gnaw at the vitals of the whole world. Indeed, any reader concerned for these problems is perforce thrown back and forth between the twenties and the forties as the major actors of the Communist drama embark upon their portentous roles. . . This hefty volume rests on a solid foundation of documentary citation." David Harris
+ Am Hist R 54:597 Ap '49 650w

Foreign Affairs 27:339 Ja '49 80w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 F 6 '49 1100w

"Miss Fischer is at her best when she describes the crosscurrents of German revolution in 1919-23, the impact of the Soviet N.E.P. upon German tactics, the Radek policy of promoting 'National Bolshevism,' the growth of central control within the German party, and the interplay of German and Soviet Communist struggles for power within the two parties and the Comintern. Unfortunately, many concrete situations which only Miss Fischer could have described have been passed over, to the loss of the student." P. E. Mosely
+ — Pol Sci Q 64:131 Mr '49 700w

"The book is not easy reading, but is excellently documented and full of information taken from a wide selection of the most authoritative contemporary sources. Throughout, Ruth Fischer leans heavily on Trotsky, whose recorded opinions on many aspects of internal Russian politics since the Revolution have been taken as gospel, perhaps for the lack of any better opinion, or, for that matter, of any authoritative opinion at all. It is in this respect that the main weakness of a book of this nature lies." Richard Chancellor
Spec 182:446 Ap 1 '49 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p577 S 9 '49 5000w

"As history the study does not give a balanced picture of the first years of the Weimar Republic, since the author was too closely identified with the partisan struggles of the period to write with detachment. When Ruth Fischer describes the important events in which she participated, she is able, however, to offer a wealth of new information on the Communist parties of both Germany and Russia."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:455 D '48 300w

FISHBEIN, MORRIS, ed. Your weight and how to control it. 276p $2.95 Doubleday

616.39 Corpulence. Diet 49-11050

"Fifteen leading medical authorities, scientists and associated experts bring complete, up-to-date, and reliable medical information on all aspects of weight control, the factors affecting overweight and underweight, and their relationship to your total health and your appearance. Includes practical diets and scientific methods of weight reduction." (Publisher's note) Index.

Chicago Sun p9X N 20 '49 30w

"An everpresent concern given complete coverage. This is a good job."
+ Kirkus 17:414 Ag 1 '49 110w

"Leading off with the adage that 'men dig their graves with their teeth,' Dr. Fishbein's guidebook tells the obese and the gaunt how to avoid doing just that. The advices, rules and regimens in 'Your Weight and How to Control It' are set forth in thorough scientific fashion and stem wholly from accepted clinical observations and tests." A. H. Weiler
+ N Y Times p60 N 20 '49 270w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 7 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul p7 D '49

FISHBEIN, MORRIS, and DE LEE, SOL THERON. Joseph Bolivar De Lee, crusading obstetrician. 313p $5 Dutton

B or 92 De Lee, Joseph Bolivar 49-1648

Biography of the famous Chicago obstetrician, who has written some standard textbooks on his subject. Contains more material on case histories and hospital administration, than actual biographical details, since Dr De Lee's work was his life. Index.

Booklist 45:280 Ap 15 '49

"The self-dedication and unswerving devotion to his ideals will make this highly readable biography by Dr. Morris Fishbein and Dr. Sol Theron DeLee a source of inspiration to many physicians and laymen." N. D. Fabricant
+ Chicago Sun Mr 24 '49 650w

"A sincere tribute to the man, which will appeal to that feminine market interested in doctors' books, through the illustrative casework, as well as the cause."
+ Kirkus 17:45 Ja 15 '49 190w

"Authoritative, factual biography. . . There is much medical detail and not enough about the man himself to give readers an intimate, human picture. Dr. Fishbein takes a few potshots at socialized medicine and the New Deal, otherwise it is a rather staid, ponderous book. Will be of interest to medical students and laymen seriously interested in medicine, but it is rather dull for popular reading. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:548 Ap 1 '49 140w

"This frank, brisk and well organized biography will be of interest to doctors and others, especially Chicagoans, as a record of the important developments Dr. De Lee led or in which he shared. In addition, it is, as the author is aware, a fascinating case record of the conflicts of a crusader who was personally ambitious and also a perfectionist."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 My 1 '49 550w

"All in all, this is a noteworthy addition to medical biography." L. J. Warshaw
+ N Y Times p13 Ap 17 '49 320w

FISHEL, RICHARD MARK, and HAY, KEN. Terry and Bunky play hockey; il. by L. D. Warren. 90p $1.75 Putnam 48-9317

"The two boys having mastered the fundamentals of football, basketball, and baseball in earlier books, now learn how to play ice hockey under the guidance of a professional player. . . Rules of ice hockey given at the end of the book. Grades 4-6." Booklist

Booklist 45:161 Ja 1 '49

"Recommended for libraries in regions where ice skating is popular. Third and fourth grades." Anne Izard
+ Library J 74:132 Ja 15 '49 60w

FISHER, MRS AILEEN LUCIA. Over the hills to Nugget; il. by Sandra James. 121p $1.75 Aladdin
49-11177

A story of Colorado territory in the year 1872 and a family that turned from gold mining to ranching. A fire destroyed their house, but love of their land kept them from going home to Michigan. For ages 8 to 12.

"Recommended." F. M. Hensey
+ Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 80w

"Aileen Fisher has made a story that fairly races along. Sandra James' drawings authentically call up the West of the Eighteen Seventies." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p20 D 11 '49 150w
Wis Lib Bul p13 D '49

FISHER, MRS ANNE (BENSON). It's a wise child; a disorderly comedy of fatherhood. 281p $2.75 Bobbs
49-10918

A story of rogues and harlots in Monterey. When Troya, the Mexican girl, died giving birth to a child, the baby becomes an object of interest to many and changes the way of life of some, notably Conchita. With the help of four men each of whom might have been Donna's father, Conchita raises the child and eventually arranges a happy marriage for her.

Booklist 46:97 N 15 '49

"This is a story which is robust and earthy, sometimes touching, consistently humorous. It is a novel which would give anyone a pleasant, untaxing evening's reading."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 16 '49 270w

"The author never attempts to analyze her characters very seriously. But the dialogue is brisk and earthy and the author manages a feeling of imminent turbulence which appropriately never erupts. Mrs. Fisher is writing about the land and people she knows so well. Her knowledge and her enthusiasm make the simple beings she portrays credible and charming." Ransom Turner
+ N Y Times p28 N 6 '49 200w

"All in all, 'It's A Wise Child' would have conceivably found its niche as a book to be read on a long train ride, or as an antidote for the headlines, had it not been for two faults: The first is the writing; while the dialogue is on the whole amusing and natural, the narrative line is extremely forced and reads badly. The second fault is the more grievous. The whole plot hinges on the fact that no one knows, and everyone wonders who Donna's father really is. The revelation of the secret on the last page should, therefore, have almost the impact of an O. Henry ending. Sadly enough, it does not." P. A. Sides
— + San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 13 '49 350w

"If you find the idea that Latins are lovable, amusing children, you may think this a very funny book. But on the whole the comedy seems contrived and the characters distressingly like the extras on some Hollywood set." Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ja 28 '50 320w

FISHER, MRS ANNE (BENSON). Oh glittering promise! a novel of the California gold rush. 294p $3 Bobbs
49-8019

Novel about the California gold rush days. It tells the story of a Pennsylvania coal miner of Welsh descent during the years 1849 to 1869. Charles Morgan is practically driven to California by his wife's love of money. In California he meets a beautiful Chilean girl whose love for him finally ends in happiness for both, after the death of Morgan's first wife.

"Without beauty or subtlety in the writing, without undertones or overtones in the treatment, this novel of the California Gold Rush acquires merit by the vigor of the narration and its effect of authenticity."
— + Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 150w

"Of interest only historically. Story pretty trite." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 80w

"The background details give evidence of careful research. But the author is far more successful with lively incidents than with the over-all handling of her theme." Andrea Parke
N Y Times p22 Mr 13 '49 120w

"Charles Morgan, his legal wife and his 'California wife' are all stock characters, easy for the reader to believe in, but duller than anyone in or out of fiction has a right to be. Miss Fisher has better success with the children but their part in the story is small." E. J.
— + San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 27 '49 140w

"All firmly tethered to the flat, the stale, and the unprofitable. Folksy forensics." C. M. Brown
— Sat R of Lit 32:32 Jl 16 '49 160w

FISHER, MRS DOROTHEA FRANCES (CANFIELD). Four-square. 236p $3 Harcourt
49-11288

A collection of seventeen short stories, many of them about Vermont and Vermonters, and a few of them about war.

Booklist 46:58; 82 O 15 '49; N 1 '49
Bookmark 9:55 D '49 30w

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 170:315 Ja '50 200w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun N 12 '49 250w

"Only a story-teller of consummate skill, with practiced artistry and creative imagination, could write stories so packed with moral energy (if the phrase is not misleading) and make them at the same time such delightful stories."
+ Christian Century 66:1393 N 23 '49 220w
Kirkus 17:483 S 1 '49 100w

"Will be an addition to any library collection of Americana. She reveals much of the spiritual valor of human nature and some of its frailties with simple anecdotes. 'As You Sow' alone is worth the price of the book. . . Recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 74:1320 S 15 '49 100w

"What all these simply and skillfully told stories have in common is Dorothy Canfield's respect and liking for human beings as they are, often cantankerous or stubborn or shortsighted but also often kind and generous and brave and wise. She will have no truck with cruelty or oppression or pretense, and she has found many of her neighbors in Vermont and elsewhere on her side. Reading this book makes you feel better about people and the world." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 6 '49 600w

"All of us who still are learning to write should mark, and envy, the transparent simplicity, the quiet fluency, of these tales. They read as though they had been easy to do, but I'll bet a hat they weren't. Even more than these inestimables, warm tenderness that doesn't grow mawkish and sentiment that never sugars-off into sentimentality make the pretty everyday raw substance of Miss Canfield's tales beautiful and memorable." F. F. Van de Water

+ N Y Times p4 O 23 '49 650w

New Yorker 25:113 O 29 '49 100w

"When one opens a book by Dorothy Canfield, one does not expect a lot of thunder, rather a slow, quiet thoughtfulness. Yet here, deep beneath the surface, is the tense drama that she has become famous for. Here, in this book of some 17 short stories, is represented the best of Miss Canfield's shorter works, re-evaluated, re-edited and at times completely rewritten." M. R.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 27 '49 350w

"Whatever the setting, they are good stories by a good story-teller. The accent is on character, not characters." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 32:22 D 3 '49 500w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 220w

"Recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:381 winter '50 100w

FISHER, MRS DOROTHEA FRANCES (CANFIELD). Something old, something new; stories of people who are America; il. by Mary D. Shipman. 191p $2.50 Scott, W.R.
49-10969

These nine stories retold for children are based on true stories told by members of the author's family about real people who lived in America from Colonial times to the present. Contents: Why the apple tree grew in the pine woods; How I rode the moose into Kennettown, Mass.; Indian witch-cure; Why Aunt Hannah took bigger stitches; Soldier of the Revolution; Of war and peace; Ann Story: Yankee pioneer; A new pioneer; Something old, something new.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

"The name of Dorothy Canfield on any book guarantees interesting and worthwhile content and Something Old, Something New does not disappoint." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:210 D '49 40w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 8 '49 170w

Commonweal 51:192 N 18 '49 20w

"An extraordinary collection of true stories, original in the telling, sometimes humorous, sometimes revealing in a picture of the past, written with verve and understanding."
+ Kirkus 17:554 O 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1544 O 15 '49 70w

"Excellent material for patriotic programs, the story hour, or background material for social studies classes. Recommended for all elementary school libraries." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:1680 N 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 22 '50 150w

"Each story makes its point—whether it be on tolerance, courage, generosity of spirit or cooperation, in a kind of off-hand manner which makes it doubly effective, and the sum of the whole is a greater breadth of vision. This is a book which will give 10-to-14-year-olds much to think about in this perplexing age." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p34 N 13 '49 180w

"This is a grand book. It will have a long and happy life." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 O 22 '49 290w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 220w

FISHER, GEORGE CLYDE. Life of Audubon; with a foreword by John Kieran, illustrated with paintings and drawings by John James Audubon from the permanent collection of the American museum of natural history. 75p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Audubon, John James 49-11967

The life story of the great American naturalist illustrated with more than 50 reproductions of his bird and animal studies. Of particular interest to young people.

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p17 D 10 '49 50w

"Dr. Fisher, himself a famous naturalist, has written a fascinating story and the book is beautifully illustrated with the famous prints, some of which have not appeared in book form before. An excellent choice for the young naturalist." Agatha Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 90w

"Visually, The Life of Audubon is a beautiful thing, since it is illustrated with 20 pages in full color and 53 reproductions of Audubon's work in black and white. These include a number of animal prints never before presented in book form, among them 'The Canada Lynx,' which is, for this reviewer's money, the most impressive single Audubon he has ever seen." J. C. C.
+ Commonweal 51:196 N 18 '49 260w
+ Kirkus 17:654 D 1 '49 160w

FISHER, M. F. K. See Parrish, M. F. K.

FITZ GIBBON, CONSTANTINE. Iron hoop. 268p $3 Knopf
49-10556

A story of conqueror and conquered in a city, unidentified as to time or place, tho the framework is that of modern life. The story is told thru the medium of the two love affairs of the girl, Anna, with one of the conquerors and with the "hero" of the defeated people.

"There are touches in Mr. Fitz Gibbon that are admirable. . . As a painter I knew used to say: 'Ah, if only I could carry out this part through the whole canvas.' " Harry Breit
— + Atlantic 184:82 O '49 1150w

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler
Chicago Sun O 5 '49 330w

Reviewed by Denham Sutcliffe
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 6 '49 420w

Kirkus 17:402 Ag 1 '49 180w

"Almost, but not quite, good." Anne Whitmore
Library J 74:1321 S 15 '49 90w

"The novel is a strange and sometimes awkward combination of realism and fantasy, a shotgun wedding of melodrama and satire with here and there an echo of Kafka. His characters are for the most part stereotypes—the two politicians seem to have come straight out of a vaudeville skit—and except for the captain, and at times Anna, they never come alive. Nevertheless the story moves along at an exciting pace, and while it does not achieve all of the ambitious things it set out to do, it is thoroughly readable." J. J. Maloney
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 18 '49 600w

"Born in this country, educated in England, France and Germany, Mr. FitzGibbon, while still under 30, has written what is probably the most brilliant, balanced and unbiased work of fiction yet published in English on the lasting evils, for the victors as well as the vanquished, of military occupation. . . A wise, well-conceived short novel, 'The Iron Hoop' is a work of art." James Stern
+ N Y Times p7 S 18 '49 1200w

New Yorker 25:105 O 8 '49 180w

" 'The Iron Hoop' is an altogether excellent novel. Its characters are well drawn individuals. It is written with great skill and simplicity, and it carries well its author's standpoint, which is that in the end the conquerors and the conquered each destroy themselves." R. R.

FITZ GIBBON, C.—Continued
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 20 '49 460w

"Mr. FitzGibbon has sought, I assume, to fashion a significant novel. He has created only one character worth a second thought, a girl named Anna. . . The rest are nothing; their smallness of both mind and spirit are unworthy of so fine a talent as Mr FitzGibbon possesses. The picayune and the shallow remain picayune and shallow. There is material here, I suppose, for a novel of breadth and vision but Constantine FitzGibbon's 'The Iron Hoop' is not that novel." V. P. Hass
— + Sat R of Lit 32:19 O 1 '49 550w

"At its best, The Iron Hoop reads like a somber farce. Otherwise it has the curious distinction of being readable and interesting without evoking the slightest sympathy for any of its characters."
Time 54:110 S 26 '49 220w

FLAGG, JOHN FERARD. Organic reagents used in gravimetric and volumetric analysis. (Chemical analysis, v 4) 300p $6 Interscience
544.11 Chemical tests and reagents. Chemistry, Organic 48-8308

"This volume deals essentially with those organic compounds which form insoluble organometallic salts when used for the detection or determination of organic or inorganic substances. The introductory chapters discuss the fundamental principles of organic chemistry, as relating to organic reagents, and describe the special techniques employed when using these reagents in gravimetric and volumetric analyses. The remainder and greater part of the volume is devoted to a detailed description of various organic precipitants as regards, behavior, characteristics of the complexes formed, reaction with various ions, types of analysis to which best suited, and finally the actual analytical procedures." N Y New Tech Bks

"Analysts who have access to the recently published comprehensive work by Welcher, Organic Analytical Reagents . . . will probably consider it unnecessary to acquire Flagg's book. This may also be true of those who own a copy of Prodinger, Organic Reagents Used In Quantitative Inorganic Analysis . . . supplemented by abstracts from later journal literature. However, for those analysts who have been waiting for a clearly written one-volume work on organic precipitants, this book is strongly recommended." M. E. Auerbach
+ Chem Eng 56:314 F '49 300w

"Well-written book. . . Many of the methods have been tested in author's laboratory." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:67 S '48
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:500 D '48 240w

FLAGG, MARION ELIZABETH. Musical learning; a guide to child growth. 195p $2.75 Birchard
780.7 Music—Instruction and study. Music—Psychology. Educational psychology 49-2652

"Miss Flagg, Director of Music Education in the Dallas Public Schools, has presented 'the basic learnings which underlie all the phases of educational planning.' The controlling thought behind music education must be to awaken in the child a sense of discrimination based upon that sensitive 'feeling' that responds to music. Miss Flagg speaking from the teacher's standpoint, puts it this way: 'As teachers, we must be sure that the enjoyment that comes from unthinking, unaware responsiveness to tonal ideas making no demands on the ear gives way to the different and higher kind of enjoyment that comes from looking on the music and finding it good, because its character and life are understood.' " Music Lib Assn Notes

"The author quotes from Mursell and a few other prominent music educators, but the work is chiefly a product of her own experiences, passed on for what they are worth in terms easily grasped and applied in broad principles. The appendices, dealing with questions of discipline and teaching techniques, will be found helpful by teachers for practical classroom work." G. R. Henderson
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:624 S '49 280w
School & Society 70:351 N 26 '49 40w

FLATTER, RICHARD. Hamlet's father. 206p $3.75 Yale univ. press
822.33 Shakespeare, William—Hamlet 49-11713

A study of the play Hamlet, in which the ghost is considered as the motive power. He is considered to have set the action moving, and to have achieved his revenge before he returned to his grave. Index.

Reviewed by H. B. Charlton
Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 9 '49 350w

"Dr. Flatter unites an up-to-date zest for interpreting Shakespeare's text as so much difficult 'old score' with an old-fashioned predilection for treating the play as the sole remaining original source for the study of a given period of Danish history. . . This is an able book, full of observation and arguments of both general and scholarly interest. But the main contention, conceivably, is injudicious—a product of that hazardous 'ambition of critical discovery' against which the greatest of Shakespeare's commentators has warned us." J. I. M. Stewart
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:105 Jl 23 '49 650w

"Mr. Flatter does give some valuable suggestions on staging and some interesting comments on German translations and productions, but that is hardly enough to save the book from being tediously flat and unprofitable." Robert Halsband
— + Sat R of Lit 33:25 Ja 7 '50 140w

"The author never explains his standpoint, and his Hamlet is sadly undocumented. His book is a symposium of accredited theories. . . Dr. Flatter's reading of the play-scene differs only in detail from Professor Dover Wilson's; and it can be refuted in detail or at a stroke. There are some valuable new ideas. The uses of a two-level stage are ably demonstrated, and the development of the belief that Hamlet went into the fencing-match with his eyes open transfigures Osric into the Angel of Death. These touches are incidental to Dr. Flatter's faith in his own solution. He is a stimulating guide over familiar ground; and as often as you disagree with him, he is a stimulating antagonist." John Whale
+ — Spec 183:336 S 9 '49 280w

"Dr. Flatter, who was so restrained and technical on Shakespeare the Producer, is as other men are when he turns to Hamlet, and cannot fly the feverish contact or resist the romantic infection of the critics' mental strife."
Times [London] Lit Sup p586 S 9 '49 480w

FLEISCHER, NATHANIEL S. The heavyweight championship. 303p il $4.50 Putnam
796.83 Boxing—History 49-4955

"An informal history of heavyweight boxing from 1719 to the present day." (Subtitle) Glossary. Index.

"Surely worth the price of admission to any fan who can take time off from televised second rate fights to read about fights that made history."
+ Kirkus 17:245 My 1 '49 130w

"Excellent survey of boxing in England and America." R. A. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 20w
Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 70w

"Tells the story with all the full-bodied flavor of Pierce Egan's 'Boxiana' and with a good deal more factual soundness. There are a few mistakes, especially in the chapter on Jack Johnson (both here and in standard record book, Mr. Fleischer gives 1913 instead of 1914 as the date of Johnson's grotesque fight with Frank Moran), but without those he wouldn't be human, and he is human as well as indispensable." John Lardner

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 10 '49 600w

"Handsomely prepared, with many quaint illustrations from the old days, it's an easy-reading book that fight fans will appreciate, handy for settling those arguments as to who beat whom when and where. If any fault is to be found it is with Mr. Fleischer's reticence to acknowledge the deceit, greed and general atmosphere of corruption that have at times beclouded the Manly Art." Budd Schulberg
+ — N Y Times p15 Jl 31 '49 650w

FLESCH, RUDOLF FRANZ. Art of readable writing; foreword by Alan J. Gould. 237p $3 Harper
808 Rhetoric 49-5435

"Complement to his The Art of Plain Talk [Book Review Digest 1946] and further extension, popularization and simplification of the readability formula. Really a book on rhetoric with the things put in which are usually left out. Such as—writing for a specific audience, having something to say, getting an angle, letting the unconscious cook, etc. Includes plenty of samples." (Library J) Reading list. Index.

Booklist 46:10 S 1 '49
Bookmark 9:3 O '49 30w

"Certainly not cultural, much of it seems pretty pat."
— Kirkus 17:248 My 1 '49 160w

"Recommended for general inclusion and duplication and promotion. And urged for the librarian's own reading." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 100w

"Dr. Flesch is word counselor for The Associated Press and has served as such for a number of newspapers. So this is, in effect, the language gospel of a ranking group in journalism. The book, as well as the theme, therefore, calls for full and critical examination. There is no doubt that Dr. Flesch has made a contribution, if only in directing attention to the spreading blight of loose and stilted writing. But there is much doubt that his countermeasures are either practical or desirable or that he recognizes some of the larger issues involved." Lester Markel
N Y Times p3 Ag 28 '49 1500w

"In the main, both book and author make sense. No doubt about it, there is far too much pomposity, far too much writing-for-writing's sake in this world; there are too many words used to say too little. Dr. Flesch is out to strike a blow for a Sixth Freedom, (or would it be more than that by now?), the Freedom From Guff. In this endeavor every sensible reader must be with him." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 11 '49 900w

Reviewed by Gorham Munson
Sat R of Lit 32:37 S 10 '49 750w

"A notable and practical volume on writing habits."
+ School & Society 70:95 Ag 6 '49 20w

"Dr. Flesch not only presents statistics and offers advice but actually practices what he preaches, making his own product no dull textbook but entertaining and a model of readability." D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B S 4 '49 700w

FLEXNER, JAMES THOMAS. John Singleton Copley. 139p 33pl $7.50 Houghton
B or 92 Copley, John Singleton 48-10262
For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"For those who have read and enjoyed America's Old Masters or First Flowers of Our Wilderness, this monograph on Copley will prove to be a great disappointment. It is written largely for the lay person with little knowledge of and a mild curiosity in American art. Its best features lie in its complete bibliography and its illustrations, which are beautifully reproduced. . . Although the author successfully creates a social, political and economic picture of Boston in Copley's day as a background for the portrait, one feels that he fails in his portrayal of the artist—largely because he saddles him with a series of twentieth century neuroses. The essence of any definitive biography of an artist lies in the artistic evaluation of his works. One feels that the author, feeling insecure in his artistic evaluation, takes refuge in banal remarks. . . The illustrations, by and large, are well selected, but one wishes that Copley's most typical American portrait—that of Paul Revere—had been included. It is not even mentioned in the text." J. M. Phillips
— + Am Hist R 54:938 Jl '49 400w

Reviewed by J. W. Lane
Cath World 169:399 Ag '49 350w

"To readers unacquainted with Mr. Flexner's interesting, and often exciting, style of treating American painting as a product of life and environment, there waits a pleasant surprise. The author has dramatized in an eminently readable fashion the beginning, telling of the strong impression made on Sir Joshua Reynolds by Copley's first painting in a London exhibit. And from the happy beginning to the sad ending, Mr. Flexner writes with great verve the fascinating story of how Copley's untutored genius for simple realism early flowered indigenously in Boston and how it later faded in the foreign sophistication of London, Rome, and other European cities." R. E. Amacher
+ New Eng Q 22:118 Mr '49 550w

"James Thomas Flexner's third book on eighteenth-century American art is by far his best to date. It is beautifully proportioned, extremely well written, and strikes an admirable balance between popularization and scholarship. It avoids minutiae, but it is thoroughly sound in its facts, and brilliant in its selection of them." Alfred Frankenstein
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 My 7 '49 750w

"With an imagination as lively as Mr. Flexner's, and a gift for energetic prose, the slightest historical data are transformed into matters of high excitement. In his life of Copley the most interesting pages recount the painter's scruples before the gathering Revolution, his attempt to interpose between the parties to the dispute over the tea, his distrust of the mob, and finally his decision to leave Boston for England. But there are also disadvantages in the method. Although through the letters exchanged with Henry Pelham, his step-brother, Copley's life is more fully documented than that of any other painter up to his time, we still know very little about him as an artist. To enliven the figure of the patient craftsman laboriously toiling over his easel Mr. Flexner resorts to conjectures which seem scarcely substantiated by the painted record." G. H. Hamilton
+ — Yale R n s 38:545 spring '49 650w

FLIESS, ROBERT, ed. Psychoanalytic reader; an anthology of essential papers with critical introductions. v 1 392p $7.50 Int. univs. press
131.34 Psychoanalysis (49-7774)

"This is a collection of representative papers on psychoanalysis and is the first of several such volumes to be published. It contains articles by Fenichel, Tausk, Brunswick, Reich, Helene Deutsch, Kimmel, six uncollected papers by Karl Abraham, and references by Freud to articles written by Alexander, Eisler, Erlenmeyer, Federn, and Reik. . . The articles have been arranged according to topics: Clinical, Theory, Miscellaneous. The selection has been made from the psychoanalytic literature of the past forty years; some have never been translated, many are out of print." Survey

"The most important papers are the six short contributions by the late Karl Abraham. . . Since the six papers were not included in the English edition of his collected writings,

FLIESS, ROBERT—Continued
the very fact that they are now accessible to the reader enhances the value of this book considerably. Since there is an unabridgeable chasm between values and science, one is not under obligation to accept the over-zealous efforts of the compiler, who presents the findings of the contributors of the 'orthodox' school as the only valuable and scientific findings. But for the purpose of directing the psychiatrist, as well as the intelligent layman, toward the real understanding of the methodology of psychoanalysis, and of widening his intellectual horizons and giving him constructive specimens of little known psychoanalytic writing, this book is essential." Jacob Shatzky
+ — N Y Times p14 Ap 3 '49 410w

"There is an excellent and erudite foreword by the editor; many of the papers are preceded by his illuminating comments, others by notes prepared by their authors. . . In the opinion of the reviewer, these are papers whose content should be part of the equipment of every student and practitioner of psychoanalysis and, consequently, this book is a 'must.' " Leonard Blumgart
+ Survey 85:206 My '49 200w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Five alarm; the story of fire fighting. 149p il $2.50 Lippincott
614.843 Fire extinction 49-11120

"Useful on the career shelf for its facts on the training of firemen, this book also provides general information on this country's most disastrous fires, fire fighting equipment, including the latest agents for fire control, and the special methods of combatting ship and forest fires. There is a chapter on the perennially interesting volunteer fire companies and a glossary of fire fighting terms. Occasionally repetitious; no index." Booklist

Booklist 46:84 N 1 '49

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1615 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 74:1919 D 15 '49 70w

"Boys always find fire fighting a fascinating business, and in 'Five Alarm' Mr. Floherty has just the book for them." Creighton Peet
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 29 '50 180w

"A fascinating record. . . Behind the fast-moving story is valuable information about preventing fires." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 12 '49 50w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Shooting the news; careers of the camera men. 150p il $2.50 Lippincott
778.53807 Photography, Journalistic 49-8333

"The author's tributes to the news photographer point out the ability required for detecting newsworthy pictures, necessity for speed, importance of timing, physical hazards, constant competition, and frequent cooperation. He includes the development of various media of communicating news in pictures up to the newsreel, the wire photo, and television." Booklist

"Although there are many career possibilities described, irrelevancies are apparent within chapters and the book seems padded."
Booklist 45:284 Ap 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:295 Jl '49 120w

"Readable book for the ninth and higher grades." M. B. Snow
+ Library J 74:828 My 15 '49 70w

"A book as fascinating to adults as to youth. . . This well written book suggests many problems in the news-reel field, but is properly content with covering the facts and the stories. . . Mr. Floherty's new book will not fall behind his earlier books in wide appeal." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 8 '49 230w

"The non-fiction career books by Mr. Floherty are tops. They are technically sound, filled with valuable advice and often more exciting than fiction. His latest, devoted to the careers of the camera men, is one of his best." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 24 '49 160w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 12 '49 40w

FLOOD, RICHARD THOMAS. Fighting southpaw; il. by Robert Candy. 180p $2.25 Houghton 49-10532

Another story about Radford Academy. A shy, sensitive boy learns to be a pitcher at the Academy, when the school's star pitcher is hurt. By so doing Specs not only helps out the team, but solves his own problems too. For grades six to eight.

"There are better stories as far as baseball action goes; the value of this one lies in the presentation of a bespectacled, piano-playing 'sissy' as hero."
Booklist 46:52 O 1 '49

"A ticklish subject, exceedingly well handled in a book that gains stature because of the value of presenting the case for the boy who does not conform. First rate reading."
+ Kirkus 17:325 Jl 1 '49 90w

"Good sports story for younger boys. Recommended for children's rooms." M. D. Read
+ Library J 74:1680 N 1 '49 50w

"Excellent baseball story." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 20w

FLOSDORF, EARL WILLIAM. Freeze-drying; drying by sublimation. 280p il $5 Reinhold
660.28 Drying apparatus 49-10735

"Though not a new technique, the drying of selected substances while they are in a frozen state has become important only recently. Certain biological materials such as blood plasma, vaccines, antibiotics, bacterial and viral cultures cannot be dried by ordinary methods, but they can be dried with little or no loss in potency by sublimation under vacuum. This book by one of the leading workers in the field, states the basic theories, describes the chief applications and some of the important 'know-how,' and provides other useful information. It is addressed to research workers, manufacturers and other persons with technical background." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliographies. Indexes.

"This book is recommended for all laboratories whose work involves freeze-drying in any of its many ramifications. It is also invaluable as a source of references to the scientific and patent literature." Peter Masucci
+ Chem & Eng N 27:3590 N 28 '49 240w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:67 S '49

FLOWERS; the flower piece in European painting; with an introd. by Margaretta Salinger; with 45 illustrations. 27p $5 Harper
758.42 Plants in art. Paintings 49-4905

"This book presents the important part that flowers have played in paintings produced by famous artists from the 14th century to the present day. . . The symbolic meaning of flowers is discussed in interesting detail by Margaretta Salinger in her introduction to the book. . . From this introduction we move on to a detailed study of the 40 color plates, discussing the symbolic usage of flowers in painting, details of composition, interesting biographical bits about the artists, as well as general artistic trends of the periods represented by the paintings." School Arts

Kirkus 17:291 Je 1 '49 120w

"Excellent explanation of symbolism, religious and romantic; many biographical details. Fine color effects; commercial seed catalogs pale in comparison. Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 74:1325 S 15 '49 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 14 '49 150w

"Miss Salinger, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, provides a comprehensive discussion of flowers in paintings. Her essay is well done, considering that she is an accessory after the fact, apparently having no hand in the selection of the forty full-color, page-sized plates." L. R. Sander
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 5 '49 100w

"The 40 color plates are reproduced with wonderful authenticity and in sizes large enough to study leaf shapes, insects that lend reality to the flower paintings, and the vivid contrasts as well as subtle blending of colors that artists have used throughout the centuries in capturing for lasting enjoyment the living poetry of flowers."
+ School Arts 49:adv S '49 180w
Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 210w

FLYNN, JOHN THOMAS. Road ahead; America's creeping revolution. 160p $2.50 Devin-Adair

335 Socialism in the U.S. U.S.—Politics and government 49-11422

"I wrote this book to answer a question that practically everybody is asking: Where are we heading? More people ask that question than any other. . . I thought it was about time for someone to answer it, candidly and with blunt facts." John T. Flynn

Booklist 46:136 D 15 '49
Christian Century 66:1425 N 30 '49 290w

"A thoroughly illiberal, individualistic approach to any attempt at governmental control or betterment, but Flynn has a following."
— Kirkus 17:598 O 15 '49 120w

"Mr. Flynn is most effective in analyzing the manner in which bits and pieces of welfare legislation, accumulating public debt and taxes, emergency controls and expedients, progressively narrow the field of free enterprise and individual choice. . . 'The Road Ahead' is less successful, however, in personalizing the problem and in ascribing motives to individuals, and specific groups, such as the A. D. A. . . Moreover, Mr. Flynn's hypothesis of a conspiracy of 'hooded Socialism' leads to some curious complications. . . The value of 'The Road Ahead' is that it shows dramatically and forcefully how Socialism can be advanced under a number of guises." H. W. Baehr
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 30 '49 1150w

Reviewed by Karl Schriftgiesser
— N Y Times p5 O 2 '49 300w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
Sat R of Lit 32:34 D 3 '49 750w
Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 330w

FOA, BRUNO. Monetary reconstruction in Italy; pub. for the Carnegie endowment for int. peace. 147p $2.25 King's Crown press

332.4945 Money—Italy. Reconstruction (1939-)—Italy 49-8018

"Describes the background of the problem of rehabilitating the Italian lira, explains the methods whereby significant recovery was brought about by 1948, and analyzes the outlook for Italian economic and financial policy with special reference to the European Recovery Program." (J Pol Econ) No index.

"Unlike its predecessors which were by European authors, this third book in the Carnegie Endowment series on European monetary policies was written by an American citizen, a consulting economist by profession and advisor of the Italian Economic Delegation in Washington. Yet, in reading this excellently written book, one is struck by the warmth of its author's feeling for his native Italy. While full of comprehension for Italy's 'truly formidable difficulties,' the author is on balance critical of Italy's economic and monetary policies during the period from 1945 until early 1947 when the wait-and-see policy was finally abandoned. He, however, greatly admires the policy since 1947." M. A. Kriz
+ Am Econ R 39:790 Je '49 1250w
Foreign Affairs 28:166 O '49 20w

"Foa's clear and forthright analysis should prove of interest to students of government, international finance, economic theory, and economic planning." C. R. Whittlesey
+ J Pol Econ 57:355 Ag '49 700w

"Dr. Bruno Foa has done every student of Italian economic problems a service by writing this valuable study which covers the war and post-war monetary experiences of Italy down to the middle of 1948. A succinct introductory chapter describes the economic poverty of Italy with respect to its limited natural resources which are contrasted with the intelligence, skills and adaptability of its people." H. S. Miller
+ Pol Sci Q 64:458 S '49 1000w

FOGG, ROBERT STEVENS, and others. Seaplane flying and operations [foreword by Richard E. Byrd]. 218p il $3.75 Pitman

629.133347 Seaplanes 49-8587

"This is an expansion of the volume by Dan Brimm, Seaplanes: Maneuvering, Maintaining, Operating, published in 1937. New techniques and developments have been incorporated. Covers the fundamentals of flying, design, construction, and maintenance of seaplanes and the building of seaplane bases, ramps, and docks." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:138 D 15 '49

"A practical book for the noncommercial flyer, and also for persons interested in going into the business of operating seaplane bases."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:46 My '49

FOGLE, RICHARD HARTER. Imagery of Keats and Shelley; a comparative study. 296p $4 Univ. of N.C. press

821 Keats, John. Shelley, Percy Bysshe. Figures of speech 49-11001

"Professor Fogle steps forward to champion Shelley against the new Critics, who have condemned Romantic poetry because it does not conform to their standards of what true poetry is. He uses one of their most frequent weapons, imagery, to prove that Shelley is not far inferior to Keats in the imagery of sensation, synaesthesia (transference of sensation), and empathy. His final chapter, cleverly entitled 'Romantic Bards and Metaphysical Reviewers,' is a frontal assault on the New Criticism's attitude toward Shelley." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"An absorbing if sometimes difficult book. But it does Shelley a great service by taking issue with 'New' critics—notably T. S. Eliot, F. R. Leavis, John Crowe Ransom, Allen Tate and Cleanth Brooks—who in their nice contempt for Romantic Poetry have worked to undermine Shelley's reputation." Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p53 D 5 '49 90w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 32:23 N 19 '49 220w

"Mr. Fogle is first-rate on Shelley: indeed for my money he is about the most satisfying critic now writing on that difficult and controversial poet. I shall, I think, not be unfair to the part of the book that deals with Keats if I say that it proves what nobody has ever doubted: that Keat's poetry is rich in sensuous imagery of a characteristically concrete and solid kind; furthermore, that Keats holds his sensory perceptions in a unity or balance that does not allow them to separate into antitheses of pleasant and unpleasant. What is novel and challenging in the book is Mr. Fogle's demonstration that the commonly held views with regard to Shelley's imagery are simply not true." F. A. Pottle
+ Yale R n s 39:347 winter '50 900w

FOLEY, MARTHA, ed. Best American short stories, 1949; and the Yearbook of the American short story. 334p $3.50 Houghton

Short stories—Collections (16-11387)

Contents: Mighty, mighty pretty, by George Albee; The vacation, by Livingston Biddle; The farmer's children, by Elizabeth Bishop;

FOLEY, MARTHA—Continued
Under the sky, by Paul Bowles; My father and the circus, by Frank Brookhouser; Exodus, by Borden Deal; Small miracle, by Adele Dolokhov; The white hound, by Ward Dorrance; Li Chang's million, by H. G. Felsen; Departure of Hubbard, by Robert Gibbons; In the flow of time, by Beatrice Griffith; Evenings at home, by Elizabeth Hardwick; Castle of snow, by Joseph Heller; A sound in the night, by Ruth Herschberger; Jerry, by Laura Hunter; Of the river and Uncle Pidcock, by Jim Kjelgaard; Footnote to American history, by Roderick Lull; The vault, by T. D. Mabry; Vacia, by Agnes Macdonald; The men, by Jane Mayhall; The heifer, by Patrick Morgan; All prisoners here, by Irving Pfeffer; Episode of a house remembered, by John Rogers; A girl I knew, by J. D. Salinger; Justice has no number, by Alfredo Segre; An island for my friends, by Madelon Shapiro; Children are bored on Sunday, by Jean Stafford; Road to the isles, by Jessamyn West.

Booklist 46:13 S 1 '49

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Commonweal 50:491 Ag 26 '49 750w

Kirkus 17:256 My 15 '49 170w

"The volume as a whole stands up best when it is judged as a book offering the work of new writers. A full half of the best stories in it are written by newcomers. Several of the stories, too, which are the worst—in this reader's opinion—are the work of newcomers. The worst stories, however, when rejudged in the light of the authors' respective ages, emerge as the very promising writing of very young authors. In general, leaving out of account age and newness, roughly some seven to eight of the twenty-eight stories seem outstanding. Some five or six others are very good indeed. Most of the remaining half of the book are stories which seem to be merely average, competent, rather unimaginative yarns." Blythe Morley
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 17 '49 800w

Reviewed by Nona Balakian
N Y Times p4 Jl 17 '49 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 15 '49 900w

"For perhaps the first year since Martha Foley undertook the editorship of 'The Best Short Stories' the tone of the new volume reflects that achieved by the originator of the annual series, the late Edward J. O'Brien. . . The remarkable fact about the volume this year is the number of inclusions of authors who virtually have been unheard of before. In some cases they are represented by first published stories; the average age of contributors probably wouldn't run above thirty. Nor does any magazine dominate the listing this year." Hollis Alpert
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Jl 16 '49 950w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 420w

"Here are 28 stories which Miss Martha Foley, an old hand at editing this sort of anthology, says are the best of the past year. Perhaps they are the best; they are still not very good. Yet it is probable that if another editor had chosen them they would be neither much better nor greatly different. For these stories accurately reflect the work of the younger and more 'serious' postwar writers."
Time 54:72 Ag 8 '49 500w

FOLEY, MARTHA, and ROTHBERG, ABRAHAM ALAN, eds. U. S. stories; regional stories from the forty-eight states; selected with a foreword by [the editors]. (Hendricks house bk) 683p $5; text ed $3.50 Farrar, Straus

Short stories—Collections 49-2904

A collection of forty-nine stories, one for each state in the Union, and the District of Columbia, and each by a writer from that region. Brief biographical notes on contributors.

Booklist 45:313 My 15 '49
Kirkus 17:13 Ja 1 '49 90w

"Useful biographical notes appear at the end. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:546 Ap 1 '49 140w

"Obviously, since some of the states have produced few good writers, the selections are uneven, but the average is of better than merely good quality."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ap 10 '49 150w

"Except for Pietro di Donato's 'Christ in Concrete,' the stories of the Northeastern Coast are comparatively frivolous and regional in another sense. . . The Middle Western section is interesting for another reason. There is variety here, not only of subject-matter but of approach. . . The only story worth mentioning in the Western and Southwestern group is John Steinbeck's quiet tale of a boy and a horse, 'The Red Pony'; a classic example of straightforward American prose, it is free of the sentimental vein of much of Steinbeck's recent work. The other stories of this region are interesting chiefly for their exotic, unfamiliar settings. There are some vivid glimpses of the cactus and white bean country, of Navaho and Apache, of ranch life, muskrat shooting and such, but no correspondingly vivid glimpses of human beings. But this a purely literary objection." Nona Balakian
+ — N Y Times p6 My 15 '49 800w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 1 '49 700w

"It is to Miss Foley's and Mr. Rothberg's credit that they have compiled a highly readable collection of stories. By the very nature of their scheme, however, they have from the outset ventured out rather far upon quite a shaky limb." William Peden
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:31 Je 11 '49 650w

FOLGER SHAKESPEARE LIBRARY, WASHINGTON, D.C. Joseph Quincy Adams. See McManaway, J. G., and others, eds.

FON EISEN, ANTHONY. Storm, dog of Newfoundland. 234p $2.50 Scribner

Dogs—Legends and stories 48-10784

A novel for older boys and girls telling a story of Newfoundland fifty years ago. The chief characters are three: Alan Eckhart, a young seaman, Martha Marvin, the girl he loves, and Storm, the huge Newfoundland dog who in the end gives up his life for Martha.

"This compelling story is filled with suspense and excitement from the first page to the last." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:136 Mr '49 90w

Kirkus 16:401 Ag 15 '48 90w

"Vigorous writing; can be used as a romance, sea tale, and dog story." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 74:316 F 15 '49 70w

"The characters are stock, the writing direct, the locale Newfoundland and Labrador. For boys and girls 14-16. Not recommended." E. W Turpin
— Library J 74:316 F 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 10 '49 190w

"Mr. Fon Eisen has developed his story around an exciting, fast-moving plot. The characterizations are, in general, well done; the descriptions, particularly of the storms and the sea and the ships, are excellent. At times the author becomes a bit too florid or unrealistic, overworks certain words and phrases, forces a point needlessly. This is, however, his first junior novel and the promise far outweighs the faults." R. A. Brown
+ — N Y Times p24 F 13 '49 150w

"Discriminating readers among the older boys and girls will probably be the first to say that this book is overwritten. . . It is only an over-emotional wording and an excess of adjectives that mar the story." M. G. Davis
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:44 F 12 '49 130w

FOOTE, ALEXANDER. Handbook for spies. 273p $3 Doubleday

940.548647 Secret service—Russia. Spies. World war, 1939-1945—Secret service 49-9024

The author is an Englishman who worked as a Communist spy in Switzerland during the war. After the war and a visit to Moscow he became disillusioned with the Russians and is now working for the British government.

Booklist 45:373 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 17 '49 360w

"Of definite current interest, and for those who want the real background of fictional thrillers."
+ Kirkus 17:169 Mr 15 '49 270w

"Since the work of a spy is essentially monotonous, and author (he says) has rigidly adhered to truth, the book is a valuable guide to espionage but far from being electrically thrilling. Foote believes that Russian spy nets are at work both in England and in America, and he should know. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 110w

Manchester Guardian p4 D 20 '49 450w

Reviewed by Walter Kerr
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Je 12 '49 410w

"'Handbook for Spies' lacks the fascinating documentation which made the report of the Canadian Royal Commission the best spy thriller of recent years. But it does provide a brisk, readable supplement to that report. And for those with more than a passing interest it tells how to devise a secret code, arrange a secret rendezvous and transmit messages by microphotography. With this kind of guidance and a little ingenuity, and capable guidance, any Boy Scout should be able to get the accolade from Radio Moscow or a Congressional committee." Wallace Carroll
+ N Y Times p6 My 22 '49 850w

New Yorker 25:114 My 21 '49 200w

Reviewed by H. C. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 32:12 Je 4 '49 750w

"Foote's Handbook for Spies is an unpretentious, understated account of the job he did for his Russian employers. Readers looking for cloak-&-dagger excitement will not find it here. But the lack of phony tension and climax gives the book its own quiet tone of truth."
+ Time 53:90 My 30 '49 550w

FOOTE, SHELBY. Tournament. 238p $3 Dial press
49-10678

"Mr. Foote, in this delicately shaded history of a delta planter and his family, isn't concerned so much with the region's abstruse social psychology as with the locale and with his central character, on both of which he does a nice job. The author contemplates the full, if not very purposeful, life of a man who successfully revives a plantation that has been blighted by the Reconstruction years and who loses interest in the place when his children turn out to have none of his vigor." New Yorker

"It makes a tragic tale of frustrated energy, ambition and pride, in which good seeds bear a strange crop of emptiness and loneliness, and an unsatisfactory family. The author implies that the decay is essentially in a way-of-living that took more than it gave, and in Bart's trying to be something other than he was meant to be. So closely does it concentrate on Bart that it reads less like a novel than a biography, and a strongly compelling one, which the author has chosen to write in the 'tell-everything' manner—once in a while impolitely, generally not."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 22 '49 240w

Kirkus 17:480 S 1 '49 130w

"Shelby Foote has drawn a difficult character with considerable force, but Hugh Bart is never fully illuminated from the inside. The novelist depends on floodlights—a melodramatic glare unrelieved by warmth or significant shadow. . . 'Tournament' has many scenes of raw and violent action, but there is a lack of orderly artistic progress in the writing. Mr. Foote has evident gifts, but he is not yet master of his medium."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 9 '49 290w

"In a novel of this sort, chronology and incident might well have gotten out of hand; but the writing is clear, the narrative well pruned. . . While it cannot be said that Mr. Foote has made use of any new or striking material, he has demonstrated that it is still possible to write of his region freshly and effectively." Michael Ravenna
+ N Y Times p30 S 25 '49 500w

"Mr. Foote suggests the tragedy of the landowner's ambition, as well as the South's postwar exhaustion, in a style that is neither overadorned nor too stark."
+ New Yorker 25:106 S 24 '49 120w

Reviewed by F. R. Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:44 N 19 '49 370w

FORBES-ROBERTSON, DIANA. Cat and a king. 216p $2.75 Random house
49-9269

Novel about a young English girl who comes to London to see her fiancé, meets a frustrated young actor in a pub, and takes him home where he passes out. His father, an aging matinee idol and famous Don Juan, captures the girl's fancy and she becomes his mistress. When she loses him the girl tries to return to her fiance, and is cold-shouldered by him, too.

"Briskly written with no depth of characterization and no underscoring of lessons learned. Unimportant light fiction, with a casual acceptance of extra-marital relations."
Booklist 45:336 Je 1 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 200w

"A blithe, smoothly tailored English story, along the Cinderella line."
+ Kirkus 17:155 Mr 15 '49 160w

"Will appeal to the sophisticated light fiction reader." H. R. Forbes
Library J 74:893 Je 1 '49 70w

"The book is remarkable not for the story, though that is good, or for the local colour, which is convincing no doubt for the best of reasons, but for the author's attitude to her characters. They are presented with an impartiality which makes them almost stereoscopic. The only danger that is apt to dog such a power of impersonal observation is a defect of passion. The girl's rapture is not, I think, communicated to the reader." Elizabeth Jenkins
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 F 11 '49 180w

Reviewed by Julia Strachey
New Statesman & Nation 37:159 F 12 '49 600w

"The timing of 'A Cat and a King' is skillfully managed. The story runs from the period of casting the play, rehearsals and on through the typically successful Luke Gregory first night. . . Miss Forbes-Robertson handles Gill's story extremely well. She is a naive and eager young thing at the beginning, but a girl of some potential character, which shapes and matures interestingly under the harsh buffeting of her emotional experiences with Gregory. The portrait of Luke, too, is right enough, I suppose. But the nature of him and his like has been so often and so thoroughly explored in past fiction, that Miss Forbes-Robertson can find little that is fresh to bring out. As a result considerable stretches of the novel have an atmosphere of the familiar." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Je 12 '49 500w

"In 'A Cat and a King' Miss Forbes-Robertson has merely strung together and reaffirmed every known cliché relating to the theatrical tribe. . . Since [she] comes of a great theatrical family, one hoped for some reality in these characters. There is none." Janet Schane
— N Y Times p40 Je 19 '49 270w

FORBES-ROBERTSON, D.—Continued

"The not so pretty offstage bickerings of a prominent British theatrical family are recorded here with thoroughness but with no impressively deep insight. . . Miss Forbes-Robertson seems quite conversant with the less attractive type of theatrical ego, but she has not done much to explain its evolution."

New Yorker 25:90 Je 4 '49 120w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:15 Jl 2 '49 190w

"The egotistical and attitudinizing actor-manager is amusingly satirized without being caricatured, and the atmosphere of his discreetly opulent house in a fashionable London square, where the careful counterfeit of patriarchal respectability is tempered by a dash of kind but self-conscious bohemianism, is cleverly described. . . This is a light-hearted unpretentious novel, in which the pain of disappointed love is unobtrusively but convincingly suggested."

Times [London] Lit Sup p101 F 12 '49 200w

FORD, ALICE ELIZABETH. Pictorial folk art, New England to California. 172p 250il $6.95 Studio

759.13 Painting, American. Folk art 49-48983

"This is the first complete history of primitive painting in America, from the portraits by itinerate limners of colonial times, the fractur of the Pennsylvania Dutch, and the Santos of New Mexico, to Grandma Moses. Many of the large collection of reproductions have never appeared elsewhere." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by P. L. Nothstein

Chicago Sunday Tribune p43 D 4 '49 50w

"A well-illustrated and produced brief survey." Lincoln Kirstein

+ New Repub 121:27 D 12 '49 50w

"The numerous illustrations are excellent examples of the art of reproduction." A. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p35 D 4 '49 60w

"Miss Ford's book brings renewed pleasure to folk art enthusiasts and will surely add new admirers to the field, for she has succeeded more than any other recent author on the subject in conveying the essence and the spirit of these men and women whose work constitutes such a rich heritage in our country's art history." Katherine Coffey

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ja 7 '50 700w

FORD, COREY, and MACBAIN, ALASTAIR. Man of his own, and other dog stories; il. by Robert Candy. (Whittlesey house publication) 196p $2.75 McGraw

Dogs—Legends and stories Agr49-454

Short stories about hunting dogs and their masters. Partial contents: A man of his own, by Corey Ford; Doll-baby, by Alastair MacBain; The making of a gentleman, by Alastair MacBain; My wife don't understand dogs, by Corey Ford; Autumn music, by Corey Ford and Alastair MacBain; True Belle, by Alastair MacBain.

"Good reading for every dog lover." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 30w

"For dog lovers everywhere."

+ Kirkus 17:481 S 1 '49 150w

+ Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 20w

"An exceptionally good book. Top-notch dog stories, mostly hunting, but just as good character sketches. Recommended for general readers as well as sporting collections."

+ Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 30w

"Here are fifteen dog stories, some of them hardly more than a canine character sketch, varied, slight but sure fire."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p51 D 4 '49 140w

FORD, LESLIE, pseud. See Brown, Z. J.

FORD, WALTER BURTON. Electrical projects for the school and home workshop. 168p il $3 Bruce pub.

621.3072 Electric engineering—Laboratory manuals. Electricity—Laboratory manuals 48-11594

"Directions for the construction in the school or home workshop of 34 interesting and useful electrical projects are given in this book. Included under each project are a good illustration of the finished product, detailed directions and diagrams, and a list of materials needed." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 45:173 Ja 15 '49

N Y New Tech Bks 33:85 N '48

FORMAN, HENRY CHANDLEE. Architecture of the old South; the medieval style, 1585-1850. 203p il $10 Harvard univ. press

720.975 Architecture—South. Architecture, Colonial. Architecture, Domestic 48-8948

History of the early architecture of the southern colonies and Bermuda, giving evidence that it was based on English and late Gothic models. The main part of the work is based on Virginia and Maryland architecture. Pictures and descriptive captions show specific features derived from English styles. The author is head of the department of art at Agnes Scott college. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is well indexed and has an extensive bibliography. With Dr. Forman's books on Maryland plantation houses and on Jamestown and St. Mary's City, it was anticipated that his new book would form a useful addition to works on American architecture. However, his study is too cursory, his material too scant, and his field too wide for the definitive work we would expect from one of his experience. . . This book has much interesting material in it, but the paucity of photographs will reduce its desirability both to the average purchaser and to the specialist, and, while the text may appeal to the former, it hardly qualifies as material to be included in research libraries." T. T. Waterman

— + Am Hist R 54:698 Ap '49 400w

Booklist 45:132 D 15 '48

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews

Commonweal 50:98 My 6 '49 270w

Current Hist 16:36 Ja '49 30w

"Important and recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:198 F 1 '49 100w

"Brief chapters on Bermuda and Georgia complete a survey of unusual richness and value. . . The author's experience as architect and as archaeologist in the excavations at St. Mary's City and at Jamestown has enabled him to reconstruct vividly the probable appearance of structures now vanished or ruined. Although some of these restorations are highly conjectural, they are of great interest."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:1 Mr '49 260w

FORRESTER, GERTRUDE. Occupational pamphlets; an annotated bibliography; a rev. and enl. ed. of Occupations: a selected list of pamphlets. 351p $2.50 Wilson, H.W.

016.371425 Occupations—Bibliography

"This is a revised and enlarged edition of Occupations: A Selected List of Pamphlets, published in February, 1946 [Book Review Digest 1946]. . . Approximately one thousand pamphlets and one hundred publishers' addresses have been added to the selected list of pamphlets annotated in the first edition. Publications that are no longer in stock have been deleted, with the exception of some that will be reprinted and some unusually good ones that are still available in libraries; the fact that they are out of print is, of course, noted in the descriptive entries." (Pref)

Reviewed by F. W. Racker

Am J Pub Health 39:246 F '49 350w

Booklist 45:34 S 15 '48

Management R 38:63 Ja '49 30w

"Through the careful collection and annotation of these many pamphlets, Miss Forrester has provided social studies teachers with the basic materials necessary for teaching an occupations course or unit. Librarians, also, will find the information contained in this book invaluable for building up a vocational file." M. R. Brown

+ Social Educ 13:96 F '49 170w

FORSTER, WILLIAM ARNOLD-. See Arnold-Forster, W.

FOSDICK, HARRY EMERSON. Man from Nazareth as his contemporaries saw him. 282p $3 Harper

232.9 Jesus Christ 49-10913

A study of Jesus' life, acts and teachings as, the author thinks, they must have affected the lives and thoughts of those who knew him. Contents: A real man, not a myth; As the crowds saw him; As the Scribes and Pharisees saw him; As the self-complacent saw him; As religious and moral outcasts saw him; As women and children saw him; As his first disciples saw him; As militant nationalists saw him; As Jews with a world-wide outlook saw him. Selected bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 46:77 N 1 '49

Bookmark 9:27 N '49 40w

Reviewed by J. L. McKenzie

Cath World 170:317 Ja '50 300w

Reviewed by Pierre Van Paassen

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 25 '49 70w

"Dr. Fosdick could not write a book that is not worth buying, reading and keeping to read again. This one is. But it may be doubted whether its approach to the understanding of Jesus is as new as the author seems to assume. . . The specific contribution of this volume is: first, the presentation of the reactions of the contemporaries of Jesus systematically; second, the deep human understanding and keen insight which Dr. Fosdick brings to the interpretation of each incident." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:1139 S 28 '49 320w

"Out of his rich experience as preacher and religious educator, Dr. Fosdick has now given us a long-planned book on Jesus the man. While it is a scholarly book—well documented, bibliographed, and indexed—it is never ponderous. Though it deals with the most controversial figure who ever lived, it is neither dogmatic nor polemic." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 13 '49 850w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 163:17 D 15 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

"Here again Dr. Fosdick displays his uncanny ability to take the results of scholarly research and make them meaningful to the ordinary reader."

+ Kirkus 17:542 O 1 '49 150w

"We know little that is direct about Jesus, but this indirect testimony is impressive. Mr. Fosdick's discussion, though repetitious at times, is constantly interesting." J. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p38 N 13 '49 230w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p21 S 25 '49 450w

Reviewed by E. M. Taintor

San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 23 '49 300w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

Sat R of Lit 33:22 Ja 21 '50 1050w

"'The Man from Nazareth' may prove to be the greatest success of all the score of books Dr. Fosdick has written, even including 'The Meaning of Prayer' which went into over 1,000,000 copies. It remains for the public to determine." J. W. Culver

+ Springf'd Republican p7C O 16 '49 900w

Wis Lib Bul p6 D '49

FOSTER, ELIZABETH. House at Noddy Cove; il. by Phyllis Coté. 168p $2.25 Houghton 49-7292

"A fishing village off the coast of Maine is the setting for this story of 10-year-old Cordelia's adventures during a summer spent with her grandparents. Joining in the escapades of the neighbors' children and learning to fish, swim and sail a boat provide good fun for the young visitor. A mystery concerning the deed to her grandfather's farm adds overtones of suspense." (N Y Times) For ages 8-12.

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p2 My 31 '49 240w

"Written with a genuine feeling of place and a discerning knowledge of children, this is pleasant reading for the middle age group." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:133 Mr '49 90w

"Lively, vivid adventure mystery. . . Good vocabulary level."

+ Kirkus 17:1 Ja 1 '49 130w

"Everyday adventures with the added excitement of a mystery make this more than ordinarily entertaining reading for children from nine to twelve. . . Line drawings by Phyllis Coté portray the period, 1896, and lend charm to this worthwhile addition to stories of vacation fun. Recommended." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 70w

"A gentle, pleasant, easyreading story." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 27 '49 70w

"Having a child save the family fortunes is a hackneyed device and unconvincing. Cordelia herself (for the most part a charmingly real little girl) has a propensity for lying and fighting which may prove confusing to the young reader's sense of values. These faults, along with an extremely careless use of pronouns, mar a lively story set against a colorful background." E. H.

— + N Y Times p30 F 27 '49 140w

Wis Lib Bul 45:50 Mr '49

FOSTER, MRS GENEVIEVE (STUMP). George Washington; an initial biography [il. by the author]. 93p $2 Scribner

B or 92 Washington, George—Juvenile literature 49-10127

A biography of Washington for ages 8-12.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun S 17 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 20 '49 180w

"Miss Foster's biography for older boys and girls is well established, but one is hard put to be sure that she has really boiled down, or picked quite the right bits for a child's first introduction to the father of his country. . . Recommended."

+ — Commonweal 51:191 N 18 '49 190w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:424 S '49 60w

"This is an inspiring and historically sound biography which achieves that almost impossible goal of simplifying without writing down."

+ Kirkus 17:325 Jl 1 '49 160w

"Historical background and customs are so cleverly woven into the story that the colonial period of our history becomes very real. Excellent format and beautiful illustrations should make this the most popular life of Washington for ten- and 11-year-old readers as well as providing a valuable aid for introductory material in social studies. Authentic. Recommended." Harriet Morrison

+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 80w

"This author has done another brilliant job: told the whole story of Washington in a biography brief yet dignified, easy reading yet

FOSTER, G. S.—Continued
fully informative, intended for younger children yet of interest to any one." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 6 '49 250w

"The story of Washington's life is told with finished style, keen historical judgment and absorbing drama. It is not rewritten from the earlier work, but is a wholly new 'Initial Biography' which will find its own permanent place." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 14 '49 180w

"An expert biography that manages, with a minimum of fictionalization, to be stirring and authoritative reading for seven-to-ten-year-olds."
+ New Yorker 25:184 D 3 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 12 '49 140w

FOSTER, JAMES RALPH. History of the pre-romantic novel in England. 294p il $4.50 Modern lang. assn.

823.09 English fiction. Literature, Comparative 49-5698

"Professor Foster has traced the history of the eighteenth-century novel of sensibility. . . His study is important for two reasons: he documents the stream of novels, so influential in its own time, which dealt with the 'man of feeling' and the heroine of tender heart. The heroines, if they are no longer extant, are clearly the literary ancestors of Little Nell and Amelia Sedley (and Ma Perkins). He also shows the great amount of mutual influence exerted by French and English fiction." Sat R of Lit

---

"He is as thorough as one could wish, exhuming dozens of novelists and giving post-mortem synopses of their works. His style, unfortunately, is singularly graceless—which makes his book one for the reference shelf instead of the reading table." Robert Halsband
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:62 D 3 '49 180w

"Professor Foster has been at work on this book for many years and must have a robust literary digestion. . . His book is interesting mainly because he is interested in the type of person who wrote those novels so full of benevolence, delicate sensibility, virtuous emotions and the desire to improve, and in the philosophical background that lies behind such fiction. The maturity of his scholarship is perhaps most clearly seen in his opening chapter, where he links sensibility with deism."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p645 O 7 '49 900w

FOSTER, MARIAN CURTIS (MARIANA, pseud). Miss Flora McFlimsey's Christmas eve [il. by the author]. [40p] $1 Lothrop

Christmas stories 49-48580

Miss Flora McFlimsey was a discarded doll living in an attic. On Christmas eve her joints loosened and she was able to walk downstairs to the Christmas tree. There Santa Claus found her and left her as a present for little Diana. And with the help of the Christmas angel she became the most popular doll under the tree. For girls 4-8.

"An excellent story." Jane Cobb
+ Atlantic 184:103 D '49 90w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun D 17 '49 30w

"The slight little story is enlivened by utterly enchanting illustrations. Young doll lovers will take to their hearts the little lady on the jacket, proud in blue velvet dress, feathered hat and ermine muff, perched on her little red rocker." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:525 N '49 80w

"Mariana has made lovely water colors and wash drawings for almost every page, and the book is just over stocking book size, and has an appealing somewhat old-fashioned look."
+ Kirkus 17:550 O 1 '49 110w

"There is charm and gentleness in the story of Miss Flora McFlimsey's Christmas Eve." A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 80w

"The artist-author has shown her paintings of dolls and children of the Victorian period at the F. A. R. Galleries, and now her clever illustrations and this story, beautiful for its simplicity, will be loved particularly at the Christmas season. . . Recommended." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 70w

"The same theme has been used for many a doll story; this one has not the perfect style of Margery Bianco's 'Little Wooden Doll,' but it has charm and warmth, and will do nicely to read aloud after Christmas to doll-loving little girls." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 11 '49 140w

N Y Times p14 N 13 '49 140w

"There is the proper amount of wonder and tenderness in the water-color illustrations and text to enchant little girls from four to eight."
+ New Yorker 25:186 D 3 '49 100w

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 D 10 '49 100w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 6 '49 70w

FOSTER, MICHAEL. Dusty godmother. 246p $2.75 Rinehart

49-10595

Story of Jim Kerry, disillusioned newspaperman, told from three angles—first his relationship, tender and secret, with his little daughter, child of an unhappy marriage; secondly, his life as a reporter covering the sordid tragedies of big city life; and finally his growing love for a young woman organist.

Reviewed by Feike Feikema
Chicago Sun p13X O 16 '49 270w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 230w

"There is good reading here and occasional poignancy."
Kirkus 17:373 Jl 15 '49 250w

"Distressingly truthful novel. Recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 70w

"This is the kind of story that Robert Nathan might have told more tenderly and James Cain more toughly; Mr. Foster drives a middle course, aware of his characters as symbols yet riding them hard to earth if they soar too metaphysically. The result does not make for as satisfying a novel as his last one 'The House on the River,' but it has moments of the same moody insight and sensitive feeling for words." James Hilton
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 16 '49 750w

"Michael Foster has expanded a slick-magazine short story into a light novel which disappoints largely because it has frequent and unfulfilled intimations and overtones of being far more than just that." A. C. Spectorsky
— N Y Times p36 O 16 '49 230w

"Julie is a rather likeable little girl, but between her father and her mother and Mr. Foster she hardly gets a chance to do anything except wring her hands."
— + New Yorker 25:86 O 1 '49 160w

"This highly readable novel is a study in contradictions; half fragile, Nathanesque fantasy, half vivid story of action and suspense. Its masculine characters, particularly Kerry and Vollard, are drawn with conviction, understanding, and adroit economy of detail, and its scenes, laid in newspaper offices and a shoddy hotel, are authentic. . . In his scenes with the two important women of his tale the author has been less successful." Pamela Taylor
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:32 D 31 '49 150w

FOUNTAIN, CLAYTON W. Union guy. 242p $2.75 Viking

331.881291 International union, United automobile aircraft and agricultural implement workers of America. Communism—U.S.
49-715

This autobiography of an American worker is chiefly the story of his relationships with the labor movement in the 1930s and 40s and of the growth and achievements of the UAW-CIO.

Booklist 45:205 F 15 '49

Canadian Forum 29:91 Jl '49 490w

Reviewed by James Peneff
Chicago Sun Mr 7 '49 360w

"This is an important and an illuminating book. It will be attacked and approved, it will be ignored and laughed at. But it cannot be laughed off. It gets down on paper facts and details that too few of us know about—or care about." M. H. Ley
+ Commonweal 49:522 Mr 4 '49 650w

"Human, anecdotal, dramatic, a moving personal story, an informative and worthwhile labor book, valuable to those readers to whom any phase of unionism is of concern."
+ Kirkus 16:641 D 1 '48 170w

"Simply written, with obvious sincerity and a cumulating fervor. Deserves wide reading." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 130w

Management R 38:585 O '49 80w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 168:308 Mr 12 '49 500w

"The objective reader, even if disagreeing in the specific objectives, cannot fail to be impressed with the high purpose that motivates Reuther and his associates. 'Putting democracy to work' is not just a phrase to them. Mr. Fountain's account of the work done by the union in race relations, in social services to the members reveals one of the main sources of the union's strength despite the seemingly unending bitter factionalism which plagued it for so many years." E. M. Herrick
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Mr 6 '49 850w

Reviewed by A. H. Raskin
N Y Times p10 F 20 '49 490w

"The best of the book is in short passages dealing with work in automobile factories. In these paragraphs Fountain has something to say about procedures with which he has had personal contact and he says it well. . . Here one gains an understanding of the reasons why nearly a million workers have placed their faith in the UAW as a way to better their living standard and conditions of work. It seems reasonable to say that on this level Mr. Fountain could have written a moving and important book. As it stands, this one might satisfy persons who take their class struggle straight; but, on the other hand, if one favors an objective approach to the union question and the rational statement rather than rationalization, it can be skipped without undue regret." Wellington Roe
— + Sat R of Lit 32:11 Ap 2 '49 750w

Springf'd Republican p9B Mr 6 '49 190w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:180 Je '49 350w

FOWLER, GENE. Beau James [the life & times of Jimmy Walker]. 389p pl $4 Viking

B or 92 Walker, James John 49-8418

Sympathetic biography of Jimmy Walker, who was a famous figure in New York politics and night life in the 1920s.

"The telling is done with skill, vitality, and feeling, occasionally with unabashed schmaltz. Fowler's memoir is packed with good anecdotes, Broadway lore, and samples of Walker's quick wit and gift for repartee." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 183:80 Ap '49 650w

Booklist 45:233; 280 Mr 15 '49; Ap 15 '49

"The reader may feel more ready to pass upon the propriety of Walker's official and private conduct than Fowler has been, perhaps because the reader will not have known Jimmy Walker as well as Gene Fowler." Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X Ap 10 '49 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

"His story is known by many but here are the intimate details, the little incidents, the pressures and tensions that round out his character, and Fowler makes this more than a standard recapitulation with his warm, sympathetic understanding of the man himself. He refutes too much of the scandal attached to Walker's name, handles the political angles as well as the domestic, and vividly revives interest in the little man. Of definite local interest and wide in its appeal."
+ — Kirkus 17:127 Mr 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 168:476 Ap 23 '49 1150w

"Gene Fowler was the logical man to chronicle this rococo tale. . . However, as a biographer, he has his defects. Sometimes he is too discursive, he is a bit unsteady and uneven, and occasionally given to preposterous, strained figures of speech. When Jimmy Walker died there were people who doubted that his career was worth a book, even if all the tangled facts could be straightened out. But Fowler's story of Walker, his re-creation of the great and gaudy and futile days, his painstaking study of our greatest political tightrope artist, who made his inevitable miscue, adds up to lively reading. It is moving, it is funny, and somehow it is as sad as clods falling on a coffin." Stanley Walker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 10 '49 1200w

"The author, like his hero, is a little careless about facts and conclusions. He is writing an affectionate tribute, not a definitive article for an encyclopedia, and obviously believes that if the mantle of your charity does not reach Jimmy Walker, it probably does not cover you either. In one respect, at least, Mr. Fowler did not take a leaf out of Jimmy Walker's own book, for Jimmy's brevity was the soul of his wit, and the book, in spite of its lightness, frankness and gaiety, could stand compression. A book may, however, be profoundly significant without being in the least profound, and this is a story with many repercussions and morals." Robert Moses
+ — N Y Times p1 Ap 10 '49 1750w

"In its genuine book-length form, it will stand for all time, I'm sure, as the definitive biography of Jimmy Walker, because it says not only everything there is to say about the late Mayor but somewhat more than there is to say. I think it is a better book than Mr. Fowler's last biography—the Barrymore life, 'Good Night, Sweet Prince'—but I would not like to mislead prospective readers into supposing, because of that observation, that it is a leaner, more orderly book, that it will give them fewer Fowler sideshows for their money. In both 'Beau James' and 'Good Night, Sweet Prince,' the author demonstrates himself to be a fine, thorough reporter in the treatment of his main theme, and a fine, self-detachable raconteur on any other subject." John Lardner
+ New Yorker 25:117 Ap 9 '49 1500w

"Mr. Fowler has seen Jimmy Walker's life as a symbol of an age and written it that way. He has also seen it as a legend, indeed as the essence of all legends of Man the Self-Destroyed. Best of all, he has seen Walker's story as the story of all human beings, each of whom has success and failure, strength and weakness, in his life, though in Walker's case both of these were dramatically emphasized. It is this approach that gives 'Beau James' its universal quality, making it much more than just a topical book about one man and one city. . . Done with the same kind of gayety and charm that was Jimmy Walker's own, yet with seriousness and genuinely warm affection for its subject, this is a book worth anyone's time. Indeed, I don't know but that it will

FOWLER, GENE—Continued
some day turn out to be the best book Gene Fowler ever wrote." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 8 '49 750w

"There are those who believe that Fowler's most urgent bid for fame lies in 'Good Night, Sweet Prince,' but 'Beau James' has qualities of characterization, background atmosphere, and research which are not available in comparable abundance in any of these. 'Beau James' is, in a word, a very elegant piece of reading." Lucius Beebe
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ap 9 '49 900w

"The spirit of the book is that of warmhearted friendship, the pace is gay, and the style is as gaudy as the sartorial ensembles that Jimmy wore. The question of good municipal administration is not argued, it is not even mentioned; but virtue appears ever dour and stuffy. . . 'Beau James' is amusing, and not for New Yorkers alone. If it were a serious political chronicle, its sugar-coating of the unworthy would be pernicious, but it is a saner attitude to recognize it as hammock-reading." George Britt
+ — Survey 85:337 Je '49 500w
Time 53:110 Ap 11 '49 950w

FOX, MRS ANNETTE (BAKER). Freedom and welfare in the Caribbean; a colonial dilemma. 272p $3.50 Harcourt
972.9 Caribbean sea. Colonies 49-10764

"A study of the two main problems faced by the West Indies, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, British Guiana and British Honduras, namely, poverty and a dependent status in government. Miss Fox examines all aspects of the topic: social, economic, constitutional, and comes to grips with such subjects as the extension of the franchise in Jamaica, American and British tariff preferences, and the weakness of the Caribbean Commission." Library J

"Easy reading and revealing."
+ Kirkus 17:536 S 15 '49 180w

"Admirably organized study. . . Highly recommended." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:1195 S 1 '49 130w

"Although Mrs. Fox has arrived at nearly all the right answers, her book is not a good introduction to the subject for the general reader. It is rather an academic problem-analysis of one segment of the regional difficulties, without color and without evidence of first-hand contact with West Indians. There are no maps or charts, no detailed physical descriptions of the area—not even a population table." Paul Blanshard
— Nation 169:330 O 1 '49 700w

Reviewed by M. S. Stewart
Yale R n s 39:354 winter '50 220w

FOX, GENEVIEVE MAY (MRS RAYMOND G. FULLER). Cynthia of Bee Tree hollow; il. by Forrest W. Orr. 212p $2.50 Little 48-4520

A story of the southern mountaineers and the reactions of some of them when their lives were changed by the building of a government dam. Cynthia's father was all for a private war against the government when he lost the "homeplace." But to Cynthia it was a change for the better. For grades seven to nine.

Booklist 45:182 Ja 15 '49

"Miss Fox has written other books about this region, and her sympathetic understanding of a girl's point of view is realistically widened in this modern story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:131 Mr '49 90w

"Interesting background material, simple writing that still conveys a feeling for the speech patterns of the area, this is a contribution to the field of regional literature. Schools and libraries will use it."
+ Kirkus 16:573 N 1 '48 160w

"Slight but good picture of the reactions of Southern Mountain people of many ages and temperaments to the building of dams and to the various people who try to turn them to more modern ways." E. W. Turpin
+ Library J 74:132 Ja 15 '49 70w

FOX SMITH, CICELY. See Smith, C. F.

FRAAS, ARTHUR P. Combustion engines. 439p il $5.50 McGraw 621.43 Gas and oil engines. Gas turbines
49-7172

"An engineering college textbook in which combustion theory, lubrication theory, etc., are discussed . . . and are immediately related to engine design and typical mechanisms of modern engines. . . Spark-ignition and compression-ignition engines, as well as gas turbines, are covered. The book is not intended for the average automobile mechanic, and even the chapter on maintenance is written from the viewpoint of planning and supervision. Problems to be solved and selected references accompany the individual chapters." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1517 O 15 '48 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:23 Mr '49

FRANCOIS-PONCET, ANDRE. Fateful years; memoirs of a French ambassador in Berlin, 1931-1938; tr. from the French by Jacques LeClercq. (Reynal & Hitchcock bk) 295p $4 Harcourt
943.086 Diplomatic memoirs. Germany—Nazi movement 49-8567

"Distinguished as scholar, soldier, member of the Chamber of Deputies, Under-secretary of State, the author was moreover a keen and deep student of German culture and politics. This book is a straightforward narrative by a trained observer in a reserved seat of the course of National Socialism as it established its power at home and developed its moves for expansion abroad. Permitted many conversations with Hitler as well as with his aides, he gives incisive explanations and judgments of both German and French official views, which often differed from his own, before and after the events described." (Library J) No index.

"Especially interesting and valuable are M. François-Poncet's brief but well-drawn sketches of the main actors of the period of his mission, particularly those of Chancellor Brüning, Neurath, Goering, Goebbels, Schacht, Ribbentrop, and his extended portrait of Hitler, which concludes the book." J. S. Beddie
+ Am Hist R 55:126 O '49 750w

Reviewed by Garlan Downum
Am Pol Sci R 43:854 Ag '49 340w
Booklist 45:311 My 15 '49

"If M. Francois-Poncet permits occasional departure from diplomacy proper, it is for the purpose of presenting thumbnail sketches of leading personalities, in which the ambassador proves himself an artist of pungency and wit. He regales us with a richly amusing description of successive meetings of the two dictators. The Duce (essentially cultured) begins by openly patronizing his disciple (essentially 'vulgar'), but ends in acknowledging the Führer as his master." Henry Sowerby
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 21 '49 650w
Foreign Affairs 28:162 O '49 70w

"It is very questionable if this period of past history—and known history—no matter how well recorded—will attract the attention of the general reader today. It will presumably serve however as amplifying, documentary material."
Kirkus 17:229 Ap 15 '49 180w

"A highly illuminating book, readily comprehensible to any interested reader. Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 140w

"There is in this book nothing of value to the student of history. . . The book is remarkable only as an object-lesson: that it is possible for a clever man to write a book of three hundred pages without making a single revelation or saying anything of interest." A. J. P. T.

— Manchester Guardian p4 O 21 '49 220w

"The book is the most lucid, the most impartial, the most convincing brief history of these stormy years that I have come across. It is free from vituperation and mere gossip. There are no sensational revelations, and there is no melodrama. . . The chief value of the book is found in the long gallery of masterly portraits." Albert Guerard

+ Nation 168:534 My 7 '49 900w

"If there is very little new or surprising in this book, there is a good deal worth reading. M. Francois-Poncet is by training a statistician and by disposition an observer of his fellowmen. He has had a wide experience of life, and he can write. . . Now, of course, this post-war book was written in part with the wisdom of hindsight." Crane Brinton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 24 '49 800w

"This is the kind of book one would expect its author to write: a succinct, lucid, detached, balanced, objective book, written with great grace and felicity of style and not infrequently with an irony which is all the more effective for being almost heroically restrained. In at least two respects, indeed, 'The Fateful Years' is an even better book than one might have anticipated it would be, for Francois-Poncet reveals a really remarkable gift for colorful descriptive writing, and his biographical sketches of the leading persons of the drama are among the best things of their kind I have ever read." W. R. Deuel

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 24 '49 850w

New Yorker 25:113 My 7 '49 160w

"Unquestionably the author writes with both urbanity and clarity. He is a fine stylist, worthy of being included within the great tradition of French prose. Despite these qualities, Mr. Francois-Poncet's book is disappointing to the discerning reader. In the first place, there are relatively few 'revelations.' Almost everything within these pages has already been made accessible to the public from other sources. Even more important, despite the author's vigorous attempts to stand over against the dominant appeasement policies of the 1930's by shifting the main responsibility for these policies onto the shoulders of the British, he remains hopelessly entangled within such discredited attitudes." D. H.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 8 '49 420w

"Perhaps one has expected too much. Here are no shocking revelations, no startling inside stories, no conversations with the average German, no confessions of human weakness or blunder. . . But the book gives many valuable facts, and it tells quite vividly the history of events in the Reich from the days of Chancellor Bruening to the Munich agreement, from the point of view of a man who professes that, although he knew Hitler would cheat, he believed that any agreement with him, even a mediocre one, was better than none." H. B. Kranz

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 My 21 '49 800w

"The translation is not a bad one, but it leaves out so much that at times it seems more like a summary than a translation. Meanwhile, the people who are permanently interested in the period will prefer to read the book in French." Elizabeth Wiskemann

Spec 183:542 O 21 '49 600w

"M. François-Poncet mentions hardly any unknown facts in his memoirs, nor does he proffer any startling thoughts. It is difficult to say whether this is due to the tactful reserve of a trained diplomat or to the measured restraint of an inborn moderation. Under these conditions the book presents a very readable record of seven critical years, intended more for the general reader than for the student." Hans Kohn

+ Yale R n s 39:184 autumn '49 1200w

FRANK, BERTRAND. Progressive sewing room. 240p il $5.50 Fairchild

687 Clothing trade 49-7631

"An analysis of the problems and needs of the sewing room operation of garment manufacturers. Includes a technical history of the industry, basic information needed to cope with the present problems of competitive low-cost production, the general scheme of the factory area, the current method of operation and, finally, the author's new plan." (Library J) The author is a production consultant specializing in the needle trades field. Bibliography. Glossary.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 30w

"Should be useful to designers, merchandisers, sales and office managers in the garment trades, as well as those engaged in sewing room production." Julian Sohon

+ Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 80w

Management R 38:403 Jl '49 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:22 Mr '49

FRANK, JEROME. Courts on trial; myth and reality in American justice. 441p $5 Princeton univ. press

347.9 Courts—U.S. Justice, Administration of 49-11391

"Distinguished judge and author describes judicial system as it actually is and not as it is believed to be. Destroying many traditional ideas about the judiciary system, he shows how much it is cloaked in mystery. He emphasizes his 'fundamental belief that trial-court fact-finding is the soft spot in the administration of justice.' While avoiding legal jargon, some chapters require an educated mind." Library J

"Although the specific means suggested by Judge Frank for improving the judiciary, such as discarding the traditional black robes and requiring psychoanalysis of every candidate for the bench, fall short of his Aristotelian goal, he has cogently and lucidly examined and explained the judging process." J. L. Fox

+ — Chicago Sun p55 D 21 '49 320w

Reviewed by E. McN. Burns

Christian Century 67:16 Ja 4 '50 1250w

Reviewed by A. A. Sommer

Commonweal 51:348 D 30 '49 450w

Current Hist 17:354 D '49 60w

"This delightfully written book should tempt anybody interested in improving our courts. It should be high on readers' adviser's list. Recommended for public, law and educational libraries." H. H. Bernt

+ Library J 74:1676 N 1 '49 110w

"One of those rare books on lawyers and courts which can be read with pleasure and profit by laymen." J. D. Hyman

+ New Repub 121:18 D 26 '49 800w

"Judge Frank has added another to his list of fine and provocative writings. . Few judges are articulate, for all the opinions they write. Judge Frank is not only articulate but concerned, and he dignifies himself in showing how the profession can dignify itself by improving its means of honest inquiry. This should never be called reform: it is a worthy exercise in discovery and maturity, and a contribution to honest legal thinking." Curtis Bok

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 N 20 '49 1250w

"This book comes from the pencils of one of the most erudite, provocative lawyers. . . Here we have a book which, until Kinsey's volume on 'Sex Laws' comes out in 1952 or thereabouts, will be one of the most discussed writings on matters legal. It isn't primarily a book for lawyers, no matter how much it will irritate law school professors, appellate court judges or most lawyers who were brought up on the case-system of legal education. It is truly a book for all people who believe that wise settlements of disputes between man and man, or between the state and man, are important for the comfort, dollar safety and individual liberties of all of us." M. L. Ernst

+ N Y Times p28 O 23 '49 1050w

FRANK, JEROME—Continued
"His book is not exactly a popular one, in tone or intent, but it should be very stimulating to laymen as well as lawyers."
+ New Yorker 25:159 N 12 '49 120w

"This book is an interesting, stimulating, and effective presentation by an author who knows all about his subject." A. G. Hays
+ Sat R of Lit 33:24 Ja 14 '50 800w

FRANK, JOHN PAUL. Mr Justice Black: the man and his opinions; introd. by Charles A. Beard. 357p $4 Knopf

B or 92 Black, Hugo Lafayette. U.S. Supreme court 49-7031

A biography of Hugo L. Black, justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The book is concerned more with his public life than with his private life. The last half of the volume is almost wholly about Black's opinions on the extent of Federal power, freedom of the press, religion, fairness of trial, divorce, etc. Index.

"Very able and well-written sketch." T. W. Cousens
+ Am Hist R 55:227 O '49 200w

Reviewed by A. L. Powell
Am Pol Sci R 43:1039 O '49 450w

Booklist 45:209 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Herman Pritchett
Chicago Sun Ja 20 '49 500w

"The book is a penetrating document of a man's career from humble beginning to national eminence." Roland Sawyer
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 20 '49 550w

"It is altogether fitting that John P. Frank, a professor of law at the University of Indiana and erstwhile Black law clerk, has assembled for both lay and professional consumption a collection of significant Black opinions. Coupled with a brief biographical sketch, they furnish the grist for a partial revaluation of Hugo Black. The hundred or so pages devoted to Black's life are interesting and, admittedly, necessary to an establishment of the proper perspective, but it is the opinions themselves that expose vividly his inestimable contributions to liberal thought." W. M. Kunstler
+ Columbia Law R 49:717 My '49 1400w

"The sampling of his more than three hundred opinions is good, and representative. This has appeal for both lawyers and laymen, who will find it revealing of the background of formal Supreme Court procedure and decisions."
+ Kirkus 16:587 N 1 '48 160w

"The treatment of his pre-senatorial life, and the Klan and Jackson-Black incidents is subordinated to his investigations and fights in the Senate, and his beliefs expressed in opinions as Supreme Court justice. Useful, however, in bringing together from published sources the facts in the career of this Southern liberal." Walter Hausdorfer
Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 110w

"To understand Hugo Black and his impact on our times a knowledge of his background and life history is essential. This excellent work gives us that knowledge." I. M. Engel
+ Nation 168:131 Ja 29 '49 1300w

"Mr. Frank has brought admiration and affection to his task of writing a biographical sketch of Hugo Black and selecting from his judicial opinions those which will give the layman an understanding of the justice's articles of political faith. The affection and the admiration serve to make the telling of the personal story effective and readable and have led Mr. Frank to uncover facts concerning Mr. Justice Black's early career at the Alabama bar and on the Birmingham City Court which are not generally familiar." M. D. Howe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ja 9 '49 900w

Discussion by Thurman Arnold
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 Ja 30 '49 600w

"For all those who want to know something of an interesting man, or who like to play with the game of discerning the ingredients that lie behind a jurist's words, this a worthwhile, readable book. It's a contribution toward solving the enigma of a person—one whom no one would lightly think of slapping on the back in jest or in praise, although I'm sure he would cherish such evidence of warmth." M. L. Ernst
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 9 '49 1000w
New Yorker 24:80 Ja 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by W. M. Kunstler
Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ja 15 '49 650w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:180 Je '49 320w

FRANK, PHILIPP. Modern science and its philosophy. 324p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

501 Science—Philosophy 49-10016

A study of the evolution of the present-day philosophy of science, presented from both the historical and critical aspects. The author is lecturer on physics and mathematics at Harvard University. "The total content of Frank's 1941 book, 'Between Physics and Philosophy' (now out of print) [Book Review Digest 1941] is incorporated into the present work, which altogether constitutes a vigorous and entertaining presentation of the view that man can, and should, stand on his own feet." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 46:174 Ja 15 '50
Current Hist 17:162 S '49 70w

"Dr. Frank sums up forty years of thinking and teaching in the fields of mathematical physics and the philosophy of science at Harvard. The result is a book that should help greatly to impart a sense of unity and integration to the serious students in both fields; but it requires too thorough a background, particularly in science, to be of help to the general reader."
+ Kirkus 17:288 Je 1 '49 130w

"An erudite study. . . The author is known internationally for his lectures and writings on the philosophy of science and on the relations between science and political and religious thought. . . It will appeal to graduate students in philosophy, general science, and physics, and to advanced lay readers." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 130w

Reviewed by Ernest Nagel
Nation 169:522 N 26 '49 1100w

"The book is very good, written in clear and very acceptable English. If it does not go so far as I should like to see it go in expounding some of the defects of its own intellectual conceptions . . . it is still so distinctly the best book on its subject that any complaint would be unjustified. . . The Harvard University Press is to be complimented on an excellent and not too conventional piece of book-making." Norbert Wiener
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 14 '49 550w

"Dr. Frank's exposition of his point of view is extremely persuasive, but one wonders if he isn't inclined to underestimate the appeal the academic grudge has for the two factions concerned."
New Yorker 25:63 Ag 6 '49 140w

"The principal difficulty for the reader of this book is that Frank has an unusually wide knowledge of both philosophy and natural science. Few persons will bring to the reading of the book the breadth of knowledge and understanding that went into the writing of it; certainly the present reviewer did not. But there are many delightful things in the book which can be appreciated by anyone." L. N. Ridenour
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 Jl 30 '49 1200w
School & Society 70:46 Jl 16 '49 40w

FRANKAU, PAMELA. The willow cabin. 341p $3 Harcourt

49-7916

Love story of a young English woman who at twenty-two threw away her chances of a brilliant career to become the mistress of a man twice her age. Their life is complicated by Caroline's jealousy of her lover's estranged wife. After the man's death Caroline had to seek out his wife before she could untangle her emotions sufficiently to return to her career.

Booklist 45:382; 46:13 Jl 15 '49; S 1 '49

"Scenes are swift and sharp; technical excellence high; passages devoted to Caro's adjustment to her loss tender in tone; but the book is more to be commended for burnished workmanship than for inner glow."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 25 '49 160w

"'The Willow Cabin' is a well-turned out piece of work, instead of a brilliant study of a profound truth." Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 50:515 S 2 '49 550w

"Neither emotionalism nor theatricalism mar the effect of this contemporary story."
+ Kirkus 17:308 Je 15 '49 180w

"Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 74:1023 Jl '49 70w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
— Nation 169:257 S 10 '49 220w

"'The Willow Cabin' is written with unusual competence and sensitivity. It is also written with great narrative skill that lends many unexpected and dramatic twists to the plot—twists which always have validity, and which always have the effect of removing one more of the veils that have originally separated the reader from the heart of the mystery, the mystery that is Caro and Michael. And the mystery is well worth penetrating." Blythe Morley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 21 '49 650w

"Miss Frankau is an Englishwoman now living in this country, and this is an English rather than an American novel. It has precision of phrase, unobtrusive economy of style and genuine passion. She has handled her difficult plot extremely well. As a love story, as a study of character and as a product of scrupulous craftsmanship, 'The Willow Cabin' is an outstanding novel." Anne Schakne
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 21 '49 400w

"No review of so good a book could be complete without noting Miss Frankau's complete control of her material, the clarity and warmth of her style, her genuine understanding of how character in the novel is developed. This is a love story, yes, and one in which the most casual reader will find genuine truth and feeling. But it is also—which is what the really good novel must be—a story in which the characters develop." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 5 '49 750w

"When I say that I think 'The Willow Cabin' is at once a charmingly written, excellently characterized, subtle and wise novel, I mean to say that I think it has a true distinction, gained without shock or oversimplicity. It succeeds because it presents love between a woman and a man as the most unique, eternally new and electric of all human experiences." M. S. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 S 10 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 180w

"Caroline, the heroine of The Willow Cabin, might well serve, in some future survey of the fiction of this age, as an illustration of the type most favoured by contemporary women novelists. . . Her story, it must be admitted, is extremely readable. . . This is a well-made, racy novel, which has little relation to real life but is a faithful reflection of a dream-world."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p361 Je 3 '49 260w

FRANKEL, CHARLES. Faith of reason. 165p $3 King's crown press

190 Reason. Progress 48-6716

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"It is greatly to be hoped that, following up this thought-provoking historical essay, Dr. Frankel will next turn his pen to a statement and defense of that position in the independently examinable formulation in which it deserves to be considered." Alan Gewirth
+ Ethics 59:152 Ja '49 200w

J Philos 46:137 Mr 3 '49 650w

"The topical method causes a lack of continuity, a going back and forth from Descartes to Condillac and back to Fontenelle which is somewhat disconcerting even to the reader who has the chronology firmly fixed in mind. The study presents, nevertheless, a good analysis of the very complex problem of the relation of the 'new' science to the history of thought, and a good account of the temper of a period. Perhaps the most valuable contribution of the study is the clear exposition made of the relationship between Descartes and the very 'philosophes' who thought they were rejecting him."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:281 S '48 200w

FRANKENBERG, LLOYD. Pleasure dome; on reading modern poetry. 372p $3.50 Houghton

811.09 American poetry. English poetry 49-50103

Essays in which the author "discusses in detail five poets—namely, James Stephens, T. S. Eliot, Marianne Moore, E. E. Cummings, and Wallace Stevens, and treats, more briefly, Ezra Pound, William Carlos Williams, W. H. Auden, Dylan Thomas, Robert Lowell, and Elizabeth Bishop." (Nation)

"An earnest and somewhat solemn attempt to 'provide a bridge to modern poetry for readers like myself brought up on prose.' . . The writer is intelligent, but has no gift to translate his knowledge into form escaping the pedantic, the unimaginative. Still, for the 'lay' poetry reader, the book provides a dependable guide."
+ — Kirkus 17:353 Jl 1 '49 140w

"Mr. Frankenberg pays his non-poetic reader the compliment of talking to him simply, yet without talking down, and to the subjects of his essays he is equally courteous. He respects them, admires and enjoys them, and interprets them; he does not exploit them by directing the reader's attention to himself, as sometimes happens when poets criticize poetry." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 169:649 D 31 '49 320w

"One of the most refreshing characteristics of Mr. Frankenberg's valuable book is its critical sanity, its sense of proportion. Refreshing and salutary." Dudley Fitts
+ N Y Times p34 N 20 '49 650w

"As Mr. Frankenberg makes abundantly clear, our best modern poets (the best we have) have perfected a marvelously sensitive instrument. But with some honorable exceptions, the question still remains unanswered: to what worthy end? . . The freshest and richest voice in the 'audible anthology' is probably that of Dylan Thomas, as befits a Welshman. He maintains a fine emotional tone. I regret that Auden's readings do not inspire a like enthusiasm. . . And Elizabeth Bishop's rhythms are so close to those of prose that, for this listener at least, their 'cumulative dramatic pace' (Mr Frankenberg's description) failed to register." G. P. Meyer
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ja 14 '50 950w

FRANKFURTER, FELIX. Constitutional world of Mr Justice Frankfurter; some representative opinions, selected and ed. by Samuel J. Konefsky. 325p $4.50 Macmillan

347.99 U.S.—Constitutional history. U.S. Supreme court 49-48979

A collection of excerpts from the opinions Mr Justice Frankfurter has written during his ten years in the United States Supreme Court. The excerpts are grouped under six heads: Judicial power has its limitations; Government and economic interests; Problems of federalism; Freedom and democracy; Criminal justice in America; Bureaucracy and judicial control. The editor has added brief historical notes for the excerpts. Table of cases. Index.

FRANKFURTER, FELIX—Continued

Reviewed by J. L. Fox
Chicago Sun p55 D 21 '49 200w

"Reading the collected opinions of a single justice is not the best way of studying the Supreme Court's decisions in cases on which the court was divided. A person with a passion for hearing both sides of a question wants to know what was said on the other side. That feeling becomes very strong while reading the opinions here collected, especially the dissenting opinions. Subject to that one limitation, this is a highly informative and important book." W. E. Garrison
+ — Christian Century 66:1516 D 21 '49 1400w

"I wonder about the utility of collections of judicial opinions. No doubt they often solve the problem of finding a gift for the lawyer in the family, but are they read? If any are, Professor Konefsky's collection of representative opinions of Justice Frankfurter should be. The opinions are well chosen and edited. Stylistically they are on a high level, with occasional passages of eloquence. But most of them are, inescapably, technical and difficult. There is little in them that one would read just for pleasure." J. D. Hyman
New Repub 121:19 D 26 '49 320w

"The opinions in this book will be rewarding to lawyers and laymen who seek an understanding of constitutional processes. But beyond that they give insight into the working of an urbane, erudite and liberal mind, a skilled technician and above all a conscientious jurist who is splendidly carrying on the great traditions of a great court." Newman Levy
+ N Y Times p39 N 27 '49 900w

FRANKL, LEE. Small house carpentry; framing, sheathing, insulation [produced through the efforts of Training-thru-sight associates, directed by the author]. 95p il $2.95; to schools $2.20 Prentice-Hall

694 Carpentry. Building 48-9574

Instructions on the building details of a small frame house, after the basement and foundation are ready. Folded blueprints.

Booklist 45:221 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 50w

FRANKL, LEE, and others. Home repairs made easy; the complete illustrated guide with 2056 easy-to-follow pictures by Training-thru-sight associates: Lee Frankl [director]. 438p $6.95 Doubleday

643.7 Repairing. Building—Repair and reconstruction 49-6036

Illustrated guide for the amateur at home repairs. Each chapter begins with an explanation of basic principles, then discusses the specific type of work. Partial contents: Woodworking, carpentry and cabinet-making; Interior work; Exterior work; Concrete; Masonry; Painting and paperhanging; Plumbing; Heating; Electricity. List of selected publications. Glossary. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '49

"On the credit side is the excellent quality of the numerous illustrations. Many of these apppear to have been re-drawn from other publications, but often they have been improved upon and made clearer. Others are, of course, original. In some parts, the text is quite adequate to the needs of any home mechanic; but in others, it is inadequate. No one without experience in stuccoing would be wise to attempt to stucco a house on the basis of the two pages of information furnished on this subject."
+ — N Y New Tech Bks 34:75 S '49

FRANKLIN, GEORGE CORY. Tricky, the adventures of a red fox; il. by L. D. Cram. 138p $2.25 Houghton

Foxes—Legends and stories 49-7632

The story of a red fox and his mate, and their adventures in the Five Rivers country of Colorado. For grades four to seven. Glossary.

Booklist 45:229 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun My 28 '49 40w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 12 '49 290w

"Occasionally, the author strays into philosophical bypaths that slow the story interest. But for the boy or girl who likes true nature material, this has much to recommend it."
+ — Kirkus 17:29 Ja 15 '49 210w

"Good supplementary reading for children. Recommended for nature shelves of schools and camps." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:556 Ap 1 '49 70w

"A good, straightforward nature story. . . Plenty of action, including a wonderful fight between the foxes and the eagle. The trapper and hunter are very decent folk. Tricky and the other creatures of the country of the Great Divide and the Five Rivers do not talk man talk nor understand it. . . The glossary takes you right out to the Rockies, explaining to effete Easterners words like aspen, buckbrush, bighorns. . . This is good for the 'easy-reading' audience for whom the book is intended. But fortunately the style is not over-simple; rather it has the brisk variety of the good reporter. Very good black-and-white pictures." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 8 '49 140w

Reviewed by Marjorie Burger
N Y Times p22 Je 26 '49 150w

"It is a well-told story, with Tricky himself always the central figure. The full-page drawings show the animals and the background of the mountain country." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:40 Je 11 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 45:49 Mr '49

FRAY, JACQUES, and SAPERTON, DAVID A. How to play the piano by the Jacques Fray speed method. 121p pa $2.95 Doubleday

786.3 Piano—Instruction and study 49-8855

"A presentation of the rudiments of notation which will enable a very determined student to play simple popular songs. Piano teachers should examine it for terminology. Not as basic to real piano technique as the McClintock method previously reviewed and not of use to libraries." Library J

"A hobby book that is certainly easy to follow and that should provide an answer for those who want to play the piano without the discomfort of the usual lessons."
+ Kirkus 17:103 F 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by George Hanson
Library J 74:498 Mr 15 '49 60w

"As usual, when reviewing an 'easy lesson' manual like this one, we find unnecessary complications. . . From the music teachers' angle the book looks like good business. It should bring around some new pupils. Its tantalizing promises should interest beginners, and they should have fun battling the 15 minute deadlines up to a point where they could read notes—though few will be able to beat the challenges in that short bit of time. The lessons follow smoothly with no snags in the subject matter, which is brightly condensed in the clever psychological style so common to the many other self-taught piano courses on the market." S. M.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 3 '49 400w

FRAYNE, JOHN GEORGE, and WOLFE, HALLEY. Elements of sound recording. 686p il $8.50 Wiley

681.843 Sound—Recording and reproducing 49-4503

"A comprehensive presentation of the principles and basic techniques of the recording of sound. It had its origin in material collected for presentation to students at the University of California at Los Angeles, but in its present form, it is intended for both students and practicing sound engineers. Although considerable space is given over to description of equipment, especially equipment used in commercial studios, the work is not in any sense a descriptive treatment. . . The chapters are supplemented by short lists of references. Both authors are associated with the Western Electric Company." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"A very good book. . . Despite its title, it is over the heads of most amateurs using home equipment." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 54:60 Jl '49

FRAZEE, IRVING AUGUSTUS, and others. Automotive fundamentals; co-ordination of il. by Arthur E. Burke. 538p il $4.90 Am. tech. soc.

629.23 Automobiles 49-1668

"The first volume published in a planned series whose purpose is practical vocational instruction in automobile repair and maintenance operations. The editors of the series are, in order, Assistant Manager of the Service Department of the Ford Motor Company and Divisional Director of Technical and Trade Schools and Vocational Education of the Detroit Public Schools; and the contributors also are men of prominence in either vocational education or the automotive industries." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 45:349 Je 15 '49

"The present volume is well organized and illustrated. The text is compact but clearly written. A feature of special usefulness is the inclusion of small instruments and accessories, such as speedometers and horns."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:18 Mr '49

FRAZIER, EDWARD FRANKLIN. The Negro in the United States. 767p maps $8; college ed $6 Macmillan

325.26 Negroes 49-2984

"In slightly more than seven hundred pages, Dr. Frazier, a distinguished Negro sociologist, has performed the miracle of presenting a complete survey of the Negro in America, from his African heritage and his slavery to his current hopes of civil-rights legislation. . . Dr. Frazier's sociological approach is institutional, functional, and dynamic; his book is thoroughly scholarly, with an enormous number of tables, maps, and diagrams, an exhaustive classified bibliography, a handful of footnotes on nearly every page, and two indexes." New Yorker

Reviewed by E. T. Thompson

Am Soc R 14:813 D '49 900w

"Professor Frazier has presented a widely discussed topic in a new manner and in a style that is highly readable. The book is unique in that it is not at all concerned with social policy, but rather with those processes whereby the Negro has taken on American culture, and has emerged as a racial minority or ethnic group." M. H. Diggs

+ Ann Am Acad 265:220 S '49 400w

Booklist 45:328 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by T. H. Wright

Chicago Sun Je 21 '49 410w

Reviewed by Harold Preece

Churchman 163:17 S 15 '49 240w

Current Hist 17:98 Ag '49 50w

"More up-to-date and factual than American Dilemma, far wider in scope than Black Metropolis and quite worthy to stand beside these two classics in the field. Essential to any library attempting any degree of inclusiveness in its collection on Negroes specifically or on racial minorities generally." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 74:893 Je 1 '49 90w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 25 '49 300w

"Professor Frazier has packed within 700-odd pages an overwhelming wealth of data, so varied and comprehensive that in the future this work will be turned to as an important sourcebook. However, in so far as his purpose was to make an original theoretical contribution to the sociology of race relations, he has fallen short of his goal. Perhaps the major reason for his failure lies in the adequate theoretical framework of his study." J. F. Wolpert

+ — Nation 168:639 Je 4 '49 1100w

"One does not need to be a social scientist to read and profit from the work; it is of importance to educators, administrators, government officials and the general public. Especially will it be of help to those who are interested in bringing about some form of social change. It is only through the knowledge of the forces which have created social problems that effective reform is possible." H. R. Cayton

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 31 '49 1900w

"The book makes fascinating, if somewhat sobering, reading. It would seem to be the definitive work on its subject, and is almost in the class of required homework for anyone who would pretend to speak with authority on the not yet emancipated tenth of our population."

+ New Yorker 25:94 Je 4 '49 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Je 12 '49 140w

"The sound scholarship of this book will contribute to the continued sober analysis of the position of minority groups in the United States. The increasing interest in the subject matter in turn stimulates the sort of literature which illuminates the problem." A. M. Rose

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Jl 2 '49 850w

FREEMAN, DON. Come one, come all! drawn from memory. 244p $3.50 Rinehart

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. New York (city)—Social life and customs 49-11554

Autobiography of a "young man with a horn," born in California, who came to New York to study art, paying his way at art school by playing in a jazz band. The illustrations are drawn by the author.

Booklist 46:123 D 1 '49

"Actually, the pictures carry a much more positive excitement than does the prose. They show a freshness and a humor and a general professional competence which do not appear in the writing. The illustrations suggest, indeed, that Mr. Freeman's first talent is grafic rather than literary." Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 20 '49 320w

"His book does more than affectionately chronicle life and amusing adventures in Manhattan. It traces the maturing of an artist. A riffle through its profusion of illustrations 'drawn from memory' establishes Mr. Freeman's claim to the name." Rod Nordell

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 10 '49 900w

"Delightful light reading. . . At times the story has bubbling humor, at times nostalgia. Nor does it lack for incident and interest, crisp and breezy in style, with something of the Benchley type of humor. Good fun."

+ Kirkus 17:530 S 15 '49 180w

"A warm and mellow book, one to cheer up any one who has lived to see the hopes of his youth realized." Richard Maney

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 11 '49 700w

"Mr. Freeman's talent is, of course, for drawing. One guesses that he writes better than he plays the trumpet and that he plays the trumpet pretty well for a man who probably does not these days keep in practice. His style is usually simple and unaffected. . . The book jacket states that Mr. Freeman now 'is busy drawing and painting in California.' Another book may be needed to explain why he left his beloved New York. Another book would be welcome. There cannot be too many Don Freeman books." R. L. Duffus

FREEMAN, DON—Continued
+ N Y Times p8 N 13 '49 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 9 '49 700w

"Delightful light reading. At times the story has bubbling humor, at times nostalgia, but it is good fun."
+ Wis Lib Bul p7 N '49

FREEMAN, DOUGLAS SOUTHALL. George Washington, a biography; 6v v 1-2 Young Washington. 549;464p il maps $15 Scribner

B or 92 Washington, George (48-8880)

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Acclimated to the ways of less careful biographers, the professional historian will welcome Freeman's employment of scholarly apparatus and techniques. His quest for facts and nothing but facts shames the most persistent diggers ever to come from a graduate school. Another writer would doubtless have omitted the often dull intricacies of the Fairfax grant, which Freeman, the first to unravel them, spreads out in an eighty-page appendix. And few authors would have deliberately almost lost sight of Washington in describing, in hitherto unapproached detail, Virginian society and institutions of the 1740's. This laborious patience in hounding a story to its lair is, after all, the hallmark of the good historian and good reporter both. Only a few errors, unavoidable in a work of this magnitude and of relative unimportance, have crept in." Stanley Pargellis
+ — Am Hist R 54:615 Ap '49 900w

"A new Washington evolves in this exhaustive and exhausting study, colloquially and simply written as it is. There is no muckraking or debunking but there is a getting down under the traditions and myths which have made of George Washington, boy and man, a distorted paragon of all known virtues. Doctor Freeman humanizes the youthful Washington. Not much new material has been found about George himself but a considerable amount has been brought to light about his ancestry and neighbors with an exactness pleasing to a Virginian genealogist. There is a superb account of Virginia." R. J. Purcell
+ Cath World 168:489 Mr '49 700w

"Dr. Freeman's magisterial biography will be a treat; one must wish him long life and health for its completion. His English publishers are to be congratulated in assuming that we deserve treats of this kind." M. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 26 '49 270w

"The only question that existed in anticipation of Mr. Freeman's George Washington was whether it would or could match his Lee. The first two volumes, subtitled Young Washington, prove that it can and does." Perry Miller
+ New Eng Q 22:253 Je '49 1700w

"Mr. Freeman has given us the first two volumes of what will clearly be, for many years to come, the standard life of the first American President. It is based on massive research. He examines a far greater range of material than any previous biographer has sought to do. If a little portentous in places, a little slow in narrative, he yet sets the portrait in a humanly intelligible background, without pose and without affectation. . . One may feel, as I do, that it is excessive to devote eight hundred pages to years when Washington was little more than a promising young man of high character, with all that made him important still to come; all the same, Mr. Freeman has managed, very skilfully, to maintain the reader's interest." H. J. Laski
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:154 Ag 6 '49 1150w

"Dr. Freeman is unquestionably writing a biography of lasting value. Its heroic scale is on the whole justified. It is difficult to draw the line between the historical and the antiquarian, although in a biography where personal details are important one must give the author the benefit of the doubt. Nevertheless one cannot help feeling that here and there the pages are over-loaded with detail." Frank Thistlethwaite
+ Spec 182:654 My 13 '49 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p211 Ap 2 '49 2050w

"If it may be judged by its first two volumes, Mr. Freeman's projected six-volume life of George Washington will be both scholarly and definitive . . . Young Washington is scholarly biography at its best, informative, complete, well written."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:43 Mr '49 340w

FREEMAN, GRAYDON LAVERNE. Energetics of human behavior. 344p $3.50 Cornell univ. press

150.72 Psychology, Physiological 48-9651

"Developing from its author's former work, this volume is a presentation of theory. In his first chapter, Dr. Freeman remarks, 'It will be the thesis of this book that objective descriptions of total neuromuscular homeostasis (in terms of the interaction of isolable overt and covert part-reaction systems) offer independent and direct measures of dynamic behavior wholes which in themselves will ultimately "outfield" the field theories of the gestaltist, psychoanalyst, and other exponents of psychic energetics and phenomenological description.' Homeostatic phenomena are discussed at some length in the first chapters of the book. Motivation, learning, discriminatory and non-discriminatory behavior, the personality, and behavior disorders are then considered." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

School & Society 69:287 Ap 16 '49 50w

"Dr. Freeman's book will be of interest primarily to those concerned with psycho-physiological theory."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:94 Mr '49 220w

FREEMAN, GRAYDON LAVERNE. Merry old mobiles; introd. by Romeyn Berry. 240p il $5 Century house

629.2 Automobiles 49-6461

"With text and scores of pictures of early cars and reproductions of the advertisements for them, Mr. Freeman tells the story of the automobile through its first half-century." Christian Century

"Old-timers will turn these pages with nostalgia, but with no desire to return to the cars and roads of the early 1900's. This reviewer, who got his first car in 1909 (and, of all places, in New Mexico), can speak feelingly on this subject." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:965 Ag 17 '49 240w

"The pictures are admirable; the old advertisements, cartoons and the like will put the reader smack into the mood, and the Roll Call of American cars made between 1895 and today, with live ones printed in boldface, is a good reference list. As for the text, Mr. Freeman high lights the decades, no more, omits much, and falls into egregious errors." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 28 '49 300w

"Rather rambling and haphazard sketch of automotive history, in which [the author] appears to regard such details as credit to 'a New York paper' as sufficient documentation. He includes an excellent selection of photographs, advertisements, cartoons, and sheet music, a good many of them unaccompanied by date or specification of source." J. T. W.
Sat R of Lit 32:23 S 10 '49 150w

FREEMAN, GWENDOLEN. Children never tell. 274p $2.50 Macmillan

136.74 Children—Management 49-9866

The first half of the book is made up of brief memories of the author's own childhood in an English home. The second half consists of sketches about other children, as they appeared to the author as an adult.

Reviewed by Ann Schakne
N Y Times p41 S 11 '49 320w

"While 'Children Never Tell' is a unique and interesting way to study the workings of the child's mind, thus giving a better insight into how the child views the world and the problems he has to face in it, it is not a book that can serve the purpose of guiding parents in meeting the different problems they face in bringing up their children. It does help those who are interested in understanding children better to recognize that a child's world is very different from that of an adult." E. B. Hurlock
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:39 S 10 '49 300w

"The quality of the book is sincerity, memory for what matters and an exquisite sensibility that shines out whenever she touches on what she loves. . . A tenderness of compassion for Susan and John and the others broods over the book, but there is lacking the sense of another world behind the one we see which is the main theme of Traherne and Forrest Reid. Nevertheless, Miss Freeman will take her place among that small band of writers who open for the rest of us the secret and complex world of childhood." Helen Fitzrandolph
+ Spec 182:620 My 6 '49 600w

"Among writers for or about children there are perhaps no more than half-a-dozen who can fuse past experience and current perception into a living unity; Denton Welch, Kenneth Grahame, E. Nesbit, Mrs Ewing, sometimes Rudyard Kipling. Though Miss Freeman is not one of them, both halves of her book are well worth reading; the first for its rekindling of the wavering flame of personal consciousness, the second for its delicate, accurate, exterior sketches."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p342 My 27 '49 650w

FREEMAN, LARRY. See Freeman, G. L.

FREMANTLE, MRS ANNE (JACKSON). Desert calling [biography of Charles de Foucauld]. 364p $4 Holt

B or 92 Foucauld, Charles Eugène, vicomte de, in religion Père Charles de Jésus 49-11197

"The remarkable life of Father Charles de Foucauld, who followed a strange and lonely vocation that led from the sophisticated salons of polite French society to a Trappist monastery, thence to an unconventional and mysterious missionary apostolate in the North African deserts. Father de Foucauld, whose cause for beatification has been introduced in Rome, was a challenging figure: priest, missionary, mystic, hero of the whole French nation." (Commonweal) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

"Charles Eugene, Vicomte de Foucauld, was an extraordinary person, and this biography of him is an extraordinary book. . . Observant readers will note the different kinds of concentrated effort that must have gone into [the author's] work; her skill in discovering and organizing widely scattered material. . . By way of minor reservations, we note that in one or two places there is a line which might well have been omitted, and also that the very helpful map would have been even more helpful had it been more closely coordinated with the text. But happily we note also that this first full length biography of De Foucauld in English, is a saint's life well worthy of being drawn to the attention of critical readers." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 170:236 D '49 500w

"Anne Fremantle, a discriminating and sensitive writer, was equal to [her] difficult task."
+ Commonweal 51:244 D 2 '49 90w

"I should think that Anne Fremantle's life of Charles de Foucauld should be a great success—in the good sense of the word. It is well written and makes fascinating reading throughout, applying no plaster nor saccharine to the personality of this strange, potential candidate for canonization. It will appeal to mature readers because it shows, as Thomas Merton did—but this time for a man of the last generation—how a complete worldling became one of the most austere and yet lovable religious figures of the Church. Anne Fremantle makes no attempt to file off rough edges to fit him into any devotional niches. I have never read his life before, and I don't know if there was a final biography; but I venture to say: this looks like one." H. A. Reinhold
+ Commonweal 51:297 D 16 '49 1050w

"Readers will have many questions about this complicated personality and his contradictory traits of character. But readers of all faiths will find this most interesting reading."
+ Kirkus 17:544 O 1 '49 340w

"Both Protestants and Catholics should find it rewarding reading. Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 74:1087 Ag '49 130w

"It would be hard to see why the detailed record of a career so exciting should make such hard going for the general reader were not the purpose of the work kept in mind. The Cause of De Foucauld's beatification was introduced in 1927; this book presents, in a sense, the documents in the case. It is a work of edification, not of literature. A biography must and should be selective; a case presents to the judge everything that bears on it. 'Desert Calling' resembles the latter, and brings in more than it can get into shape."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 15 '50 340w

"The character of Charles lacks, in a degree, identity. Perhaps the author's method, stimulating and enlightening, is too strictly analytic, too purely expository to create a fully unified and conveyable personality. There is a careful coolness in the prose, combined with an intensely intellectual approach. There is wonderful range of appreciation, but no identification." Philip Burnham
+ — N Y Times p22 N 27 '49 480w
+ New Yorker 25:169 N 19 '49 200w

FRENCH, THOMAS EWING, and SVENSEN, CARL LARS. Mechanical drawing; a text with problem layouts; 5th ed. rev. & enl. by Carl L. Svensen. 437p il $2.80 McGraw

744.4 Mechanical drawing 48-10054

"In the present edition, this long-established text for high-school and vocational-school courses has been practically rewritten. The number of pages has been increased by 138, many new illustrations have been added, and the chapters on pictorial drawing, production illustration, aircraft drawing, and welding drawing are new in this edition." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Booklist 45:179 Ja 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1824 D 15 '48 40w

"An exceptionally thorough introduction to the techniques of mechanical drawing."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:84 N '48

FREUD, SIGMUND. Outline of psychoanalysis; auth. tr. by James Strachey. 127p $2 Norton

131.34 Psychoanalysis 49-7946

"In a posthumous translation of his last written words, begun in London in July, 1938, and never finished, Freud has set down the theoretical basis of his life work—work started as a young man when he returned to Vienna from Paris in 1892 and continued unremittingly throughout his long life in the face of opposition, polemic, illness and finally political persecution. This is what he says in an introductory note to his last contribution: 'The aim of this brief work is to bring together the doctrines of psychoanalysis and to state them, as it were, dogmatically—in the most concise form and in the most positive terms. Its intention is naturally not to compel belief or to establish conviction.' " (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

FREUD, SIGMUND—Continued

"Freud's aim has been magistrally realized, and Freud's position unequivocally defined in little more than a hundred pages. A classic of psychoanalysis."
+ Atlantic 183:90 Je '49 100w

Booklist 45:306 My 15 '49

"Although this Outline of Psychoanalysis is a short book, deceptively simple in appearance, it is no primer. It is a concise crystallization of Freud's basic theories. Many churchmen reject these theories as disgusting and revolting, but if they can overcome their emotional reaction and read thoughtfully, they will find that Freud was working toward a goal in harmony with Christianity—the development of mature individuals, able to accept themselves and to love others." W. J. McKeachie
+ Christian Century 66:1295 N 2 '49 1000w

Nation 168:424 Ap 9 '49 80w

Reviewed by Patrick Mullahy
New Repub 120:23 Je 20 '49 1950w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Gorer
New Statesman & Nation 38:76 Jl 16 '49 480w

"If this small volume is saved, when the books are again burned, it will preserve for us the essence of Freud's genius." Carl Binger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 20 '49 1200w

" 'An Outline of Psychoanalysis' is to be read as a sort of intellectual last will and testament of its author. Read so, it can serve as the occasion of a great intellectual, moral and even esthetic experience." Lionel Trilling
+ N Y Times p1 F 27 '49 1200w

New Yorker 25:106 Mr 19 '49 100w

Reviewed by Patrick Mullahy
Sat R of Lit 32:34 O 15 '49 550w

"The layman enquiring about the nature of man will find here a concise statement of what Freud really contributed to our knowledge." Lettice Cooper
+ Spec 183:212 Ag 12 '49 600w

Survey 85:287 My '49 50w

Reviewed by Eugen Kahn
Yale R n s 38:747 summer '49 2000w

FREUDENTHAL, ELSBETH ESTELLE. Flight into history; the Wright brothers and the air age. 268p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

629.1309 Wright, Orville. Wright, Wilbur. Aeronautics—History 49-9110

An evaluation of the contributions of the Wright brothers to aviation, and an account of their association with the French enthusiast, Octave Chanute. Bibliography. Index.

"Elsbeth Freudenthal interviewed everybody, read everything, consulted many records, picked up gossip everywhere. Her dates and facts are right, there is much hitherto unpublished detail in the book, presented in a dull, pedestrian style. . . Miss Freudenthal simply should not have written the book. Yet the book is an addition to aeronautical archives. The illustrations, badly reproduced, are well selected as a memory of the early days. . . There are a few good quotations from their own writings, from those of Zahm, Brewer, and others. There is an honest attempt, but attempt only, at understanding the complex personalities of the two men." Alexander Klemin
— + Am Hist R 55:166 O '49 490w

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49

"Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 40w

"This is an interesting but an irritating book. . . In its economic phase, the book appears to make a valid contribution to aviation history. In this other phase, where the human and the engineering angles are so strangely intertwined, it remains irritating as an envelope which has poor glue on its flap and won't stick. . . The next historian of the Wrights should take a course in aeronautical engineering and a course in flying and at last really tell us what the Wrights did—not background and circumstance, but the mental operation which created the airplane. This book only makes us feel that the Wright Brothers, not understood in their own time are still not understood." Wolfgang Langewiesche
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 3 '49 1530w

"An analytical but sympathetic account of the Wrights' activities, and the result appears to be an eminently fairminded book. Everyone will not think so, for the Wright brothers have always been controversial figures. Miss Freudenthal has, however, given them great credit for their accomplishments and has considered with an apparently open mind the many points of argument about them. Without writing an argumentative book, she has indicated matters of difference." Ruth Teiser
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p11 My 29 '49 650w

"For persistent inaccuracy, basic misconceptions, and distortions, this book should set some kind of record. . . Besides major misinterpretations the book is crowded with minor errors too numerous to list here." F. C. Kelly
— Sat R of Lit 32:36 Jl 9 '49 550w

FREUND, PHILIP. Man of taste, and other stories. 357p $3.50 Beechhurst press 49-9705

Contents: A man of taste; My fellow immortal; The slow dusk; The little Cuban; Warsaw; Christmas in Wisconsin; Romance; The harpsichord; The goldhunter.

Reviewed by William Peden
Chicago Sun Ag 8 '49 180w

"Most of the stories lack any flavor of reality and the characters are two dimensional. For the limited market of Mr. Freund's admirers."
Kirkus 17:306 Je 15 '49 150w

"Mr. Freund's skill has been generously praised; this collection, though it may not appeal to a large audience, should maintain his reputation." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 74:1023 Jl '49 80w

"At least five of the nine stories in 'A Man of Taste' seem to be concerned in one dark way or another with the Role of the Artist in Society, with the Nature of the Love of Beauty, with the Wellsprings of the Creative Impulse, and so forth—in short, with the artistic sensibility. These are the weakest stories in the book. . . One story, however, the historical novella which closes the volume, called 'The Goldhunter,' is quite different from this pseudo-Mann. . . It is an achievement." Donald Barr
+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 14 '49 360w

New Yorker 25:62 Ag 6 '49 140w

"A curiously unsatisfying collection. A chill and cerebral quality pervades it. Carefully conceived, deliberately planned, and executed with a calculated and conscious finish, these stories are warmed by no emotion. No glitter of imagination lightens the dispassionate parade of characters which the author considers with a detachment which verges on indifference." Pamela Taylor
— Sat R of Lit 32:41 S 24 '49 310w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8B S 4 '49 330w

FRIED, HENRY B. Watch repairer's manual. 307p il $4.95 Van Nostrand

681.114 Clocks and watches—Repairing
49-7618

"Practical manual on the techniques of watch repairing with complete directions for cleaning and overhauling a watch movement and for casing a watch. Chapters on repair of the individual components. A trouble-shooting chart and comprehensive tables are useful items included." (Library J) Dictionary of trade terms. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:308 My 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1669 N 15 '48 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:87 N '49

"It releases many secrets of this closely guarded profession and constitutes a welcome addition to the all too limited horological literature." M. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 70w

FRIEDLANDER, GERHART, and KENNEDY, JOSEPH WILLIAM. Introduction to radiochemistry. 412p $5 Wiley
541.38 Radioactivity. Nuclear physics 49-9979

"Written for senior undergraduates or graduate chemistry students. The authors include in radiochemistry not only the reactions of nuclei and the properties of resultant nuclear species, but also chemical studies made with the use of isotopic tracers in all similar fields with the exception of radiation chemistry, which is defined as the chemical effects produced by nuclear and similar radiations. . . Has references at the ends of the chapters." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:78 N 1 '49
Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 130w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:75 S '49

FRIEDMAN, FRIEDA. Sundae with Judy; il. by Carolyn Haywood. 192p $2.50 Morrow 49-1197

Story of plump, friendly Judy who loved to help wait on customers in her father's New York candy store, and sample the sundaes when she was not too busy. She meets and conquers the problem of snobbery among her girl friends, and helps put on a show to help a neighbor family down on their luck. Ages eight to eleven.

Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 S 13 '49 250w

"Frieda Friedman has here drawn a humble city circle with humor and perception and has placed in its midst an unusually likable eleven-year-old." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:212 My '49 120w

"This is almost a very good book, but there's a slight aura of too well-intentioned, something good for you air that children are apt to spot for themselves. Don't sell it as a fast action story, but as a pleasant tale of a busy, full life."
+ Kirkus 17:1 Ja 1 '49 130w

"Though obvious in its purpose, story is fun to read, wholesome, and neighborly and presents a simple explanation of the American way of life." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 80w

"It is all very purposeful. However, Judy's shop-keeping family and their friends are realistic; so is jolly, fat, eager Judy, who suffers more than one healthy set-back. The good example of racial and neighborhood co-operation might well be followed anywhere." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Mr 6 '49 150w

"The story, full of Judy's activities, her plans and ideas, has form and climax, though it sometimes gives the impression of being a group of well-integrated incidents. It is unusual because it deals with the great American middle class, middle-low income community in big city life rather than with the glamorous aspect of New York." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Times p32 Mr 6 '49 110w

"A real and delightful story of a friendly New York community." R. H. Viguers
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Jl 9 '49 210w
Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 70w
Wis Lib Bul 45:67 Ap '49

FRIEDMAN, LEE MAX. Pilgrims in a new land. 471p il $4 Jewish pub.
296 Jews in the U.S. 49-7171

A collection of essays and biographical sketches on the achievements of the Jews in the United States. The book is divided into four main sections: Jews in American history; The process of adjustment; Jews and the American spirit; Jews in American economic life. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Friedman's style is in general attractive and frequently vivid and striking. The inclusion of historical introductions to some of the essays adds to the interest of the volume." N. P. Mead
+ Am Hist R 54:895 Jl '49 500w

"The book, written in a charming style and with scrupulous regard for facts, includes little that is entirely new or based on original research. However, by making the incidents and personalities described come to life and by clearing up some popular misconceptions regarding them, the author contributes considerably towards a better understanding of them." Samuel Koenig
+ — Ann Am Acad 264:174 Jl '49 340w
Booklist 45:235 Mr 15 '49

"It is perhaps kind to say that the author meant well but contributed little. A great deal could be said of the contribution of Jews of all classes and all times to the cultural, political and economic progress of the Colonies and the United States, but Mr. Friedman is either not the person, or he does not choose, to write of it." J. L. Cohen
Canadian Forum 29:22 Ap '49 420w

"Mr. Friedman's extensive researches give us a much more credible picture of the Revolutionary patriot Haym Salomon than that customarily drawn by historical romanticizers. . . The discussion of Cotton Mather's abortive attempt at publishing a history of the Jews is amusing and revealing. . . When, however, Mr. Friedman leaves the 18th century he does not fare so well. Some of the material chosen for the later essays in the book does not seem to be of sufficient import or importance to have been included." I. J. Rosenbaum
+ — Christian Century 66:1456 D '49 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

"Although this book is not, strictly speaking, a history of the Jew in America, it accounts in readable and telling style the high spots of the contributions made by the Jewish immigrants to their new country."
Kirkus 16:470 S 1 '48 190w

"One gets the impression that the author worked on these studies as release from more strenuous tasks. The reader should come to them in the same spirit and will be rewarded by them in the same way." A. L. Sachar
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 15 '49 230w
Reviewed by H. J. Bresler
N Y Times p12 Mr 6 '49 450w
Social Studies 40:288 O '49 10w

"There is much that is new in these essays, and old subjects are treated with freshness and vigor; not a little is added by the full chapter footnotes gathered at the end of the volume. The treatment balances sympathy with the historian's objectivity, and succeeds measurably in accomplishing the author's purpose of portraying the 'dualism of the Jew.' "
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:239 Je '49 160w

FRIEND, OSCAR JEROME (OWEN FOX JEROME, pseud). Kid from Mars. 270p $2.50 Fell 49-5792

A pseudo-scientific novel set forth in humorous satiric vein. The Kid from Mars comes to the Earth to discover what ingredient it is in Earthlings that gives them a sense of humor the Martians have lost. In pursuit of his mission he has a variety of adventures and finally abducts a group of cynical Americans and carries them back to Mars.

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p56 O 7 '49 30w

FRIEND, O. J.—Continued

"As a product of science-fiction this is not as worthy of the new status as others."
Kirkus 17:480 S 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
N Y Times p36 N 6 '49 370w

"'The Kid from Mars' is somewhat off the beaten track of science fiction by attempting a blend of space flight, other worlds, and satire, all of them sure-fire by themselves but rather risky in a mixture. It hasn't worked very well before, but this time it does under the genial sponsorship of Mr. Friend, who is an old hand at science fiction and apparently just bursting with unspent satire after a fling at script writing in Hollywood." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7C O 16 '49 180w

FRIES, ADELAIDE LISETTA, and others. Forsyth, a county on the march; sketches by Joe King. 248p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

975.667 Forsyth county, North Carolina
49-9062

History of Forsyth county in North Carolina. "Forsyth County is best known to the outer world by its tobacco industries and its county seat, Winston-Salem. The chief editor and contributor to the volume is Miss Adelaide L. Fries, who has done such notable work in editing and publishing the records of the Moravian community. It is with this group in Salem that the history of the county begins. . . The two urban communities, joined in 1913 in one city with a present population approaching 100,000 are given their central place in the story, but rural towns and the farming area are by no means slighted." (Am Hist R)

"The story is told clearly and concisely. Sentimentalism, local chauvinism, and antiquarianism have no part in it, and the Civil War is an incident." G. S. F.
+ Am Hist R 54:951 Jl '49 150w

"This is a book primarily of local interest, of course, but from such local studies, if they are numerous enough, may come in time, a better history of the United States than has yet been written; so they are not to be dismissed as negligible." G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 18 '49 450w

FRISBIE, ROBERT DEAN. Dawn sails north. 307p $2.95 Doubleday

49-7250

Sam Strickland, whose grandfather had been a New England sea captain, went out to the South Sea island of Farue-nui, to learn the truth of his grandfather's last letter. Murder and theft were part of his experiences in Farue-nui, but the trip back to San Francisco on the schooner Dawn is the high point of the novel.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 270w

"Highly readable entertainment."
+ Kirkus 16:605 N 15 '48 210w

"Description of the weary voyage from Farue-nui to the Fair-lee-owns light is one of the finest things in a good book. Recommended for all adult collections." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 150w

"The author is at his best in his thrilling narrative of the voyage and realism is strong enough to make one wonder why newspapers have not carried headlines of the island doings. Fascinating charts, island maps and even house plans add to the story's interest."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ja 30 '49 320w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward
— N Y Times p24 F 27 '49 70w

"A rather implausible framework of complicated story-telling, hung with a good deal worth saying about the things in which Frisbie had been interested for two decades and more. And in order to get these glimpses of truth you have to get through too much else that's a good deal less worth your time. It is too bad, but there it is." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 28 '49 550w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:30 Mr 26 '49 140w

FROMENTIN, EUGENE. Dominique; tr. from the French by Edward Marsh. 249p $2.75 Chanticleer

"Eugene Fromentin was a painter of the school of Delacroix, remembered now for the few books he found time to write, and particularly for his autobiographical novel, Dominique. The story of his first love is told by Dominique himself, looking back from long retirement on his estate in Brittany to his youth in the Paris of the Second Empire. This perspective is the triumph of the book: the contrast between Dominique's hectic, unhappy youth in the brilliant city and the present wise contentment of his country life (with beautiful descriptions of landscape and the sea) achieves the elegiac note of melancholy which is Dominique's peculiar charm." New Repub

"What is the uniqueness of Dominique? Unique does not mean rare, exceptional, unusual; it means, by the dictionary: 'of which there is only one; one and only; single, sole, solitary.' In that strict sense of the word Fromentin's novel is unique. There are greater novels, but there is none in the same kind with it." Charles Morgan
+ Atlantic 183:74 My '49 2900w

"It is a minor classic among French romantic novels, a recommendation merited by its perennial beauty and not with any condescension to a curiosity or a type." J. F.
+ New Repub 121:20 N 7 '49 180w

"'Dominique' is a fine novel, with many virtues and beauties, but I should hesitate to rank it with 'Adolphe' and 'Bovary,' as does the writer of the jacket note." B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:39 N 5 '49 40w

"Only the brilliance of the writing and the sincerity of the utterance makes tolerable this monologue of a soul more fearful than ardent. For this is not an analytical novel, but a pathetic, sentimental evocation by half-tones. . . Sir Edward Marsh's translation is a model of smoothness and intelligence." Douglas Cooper
+ Spec 182:52 Ja 14 '49 500w

FROMENTIN, EUGENE. Masters of past time; Dutch and Flemish painting from Van Eyck to Rembrandt. (Phaidon pocket ed) 389p 100 pl $2.50 Phaidon pubs, inc, 114 E. 32d St., N.Y. 16

759.9492 Painters, Dutch. Painters, Flemish
49-9926

A new edition of a work of art criticism first published in France in 1876. There is a biographical and critical introduction by the editor and one hundred author illustrations, reproductions of the works described by Fromentin. Selected bibliography. Indexes.

Kirkus 17:230 Ap 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 30w

"Almost seventy-five years after its original publication, this is still one of the most informative books about the Netherlandish painters from van Eyck to Rembrandt, and certainly one of the liveliest and easiest to read, though it is now somewhat out of line with contemporary tastes on a number of points."
+ New Yorker 25:119 My 14 '49 90w

"This is a volume which is always worth reading for the author's infectious enthusiasm and perspicacity." Douglas Cooper
+ Spec 182:52 Ja 14 '49 1000w

"The problems raised and discussed are usually such as to attract the layman, though this does not imply any lack of subtlety in the handling of them. For example, was Rubens good at likenesses? And Fromentin brilliantly avoided the use of artistic jargon. With his originality of thought and poetic phrasing he had no need of it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p277 Ap 30 '49 850w

FROST, BARBARA. The corpse said no. 218p $2.50 Coward-McCann 49-9867

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 12 '49 50w

"Miss Frost manages three murders with plenty of skill, working up to the surprises with a series of short chapters that hew to the line instead of jumping about every which way. This is a worthy successor to 'The Unwelcome Corpse,' herewith recommended to all and sundry." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 24 '49 200w

"Aside from some good gimmickry about Swiss clocks and tropical fish, the only interest lies in watching an agreeable Portia face death—as I hope she will again soon, in a better-constructed case with a few living characters in it." Anthony Boucher
— + N Y Times p13 Jl 24 '49 180w

"Besides three satisfactory baffling slayings story contains diverting data on art-gallery crookedness, fish diseases, and tricky legal points."
Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ag 20 '49 40w

FROST, FRANCES MARY. The little whistler [poems] il. by Roger Duvoisin. (Whittlesey house publication) 48p $2 McGraw 811 Children's poetry 49-10765

Brief poems about nature and things which interest children. Arranged by season thruout the year. For ages seven to ten.

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
Atlantic 184:103 D '49 50w

Booklist 46:69 O 15 '49

"The poems are rather uneven in merit, some of them being quite simple and natural and others too artificially contrived. All are readable, however, and the illustrations by Roger Duvoisin, 1948 Caldecott Prize winner, help to make an attractive gift book." B. J. Thompson
+ — Cath World 170:212 D '49 60w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 20 '49 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:540 N '49 90w

"Here's a group of original poems that have a thoroughly child-like quality, an expectancy, a matter-of-factness, that lend the charm and appeal sufficient to override the hurdle most such volumes face."
+ Kirkus 17:509 S 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 40w

"It is slight, but probably the best lot of new verse for children since the war." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 13 '49 260w

"In 'The Little Whistler,' Frances Frost takes us through the four seasons with a delicacy of precision in phrase and line which is often breath-taking. Her poems are deeply evocative of mood and of the significant moment in nature, but are not without their lighter moments." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 N 13 '49 150w

"The poems . . . all have feeling and melody and a sensitive perception of a child's concept of natural things." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 N 12 '49 220w

"Roger Duvoisin's excellent illustrations and the child-like quality and charm of these seasonal poems make a welcome addition to any library's poetry collection."
+ Wis Lib Bul p9 N '49

FROST, ROBERT. Complete poems, 1949. 642p $6 Holt
811 49-9497

"New collected edition of Robert Frost's poems. . . Frost was born seventy-four years ago and he was discovered as a poet in England, where his first volume of poems, 'A Boy's Will,' was published in 1913. His second volume, 'North of Boston,' also published in England the following year, established his fame in the United States, and he came home soon after to settle in New Hampshire and become the Poet Laureate of New England. In 1939, having already been awarded the Pulitzer Prize three times, he published his collected poems. This new collection includes all that was in the first collected edition, together with the contents of the volumes he has written since then." N Y Times

Reviewed by Peter Viereck
Atlantic 184:67 O '49 1600w

Booklist 45:396 Jl 15 '49

Bookmark 9:4 O '49 30w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun Je 20 '49 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"Frost's achievement in clean lyrical poetry is considerable; but if his songs are pressed (as all songs should be pressed) they often reveal a disturbing indetermination and shallowness." J. H. Johnston
+ — Commonweal 50:324 Jl 8 '49 350w

Kirkus 17:321 Je 15 '49 40w

Library J 74:1327 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 169:92 Jl 23 '49 1500w

Reviewed by Robert Fitzgerald
New Repub 121:18 Ag 8 '49 440w

"Isolation, the world forsworn, the pleasure of being misunderstood, the scorn of folk, and the resolution to understand oneself—these are the themes of modern poetry, and Robert Frost could not have missed them. But no one else has handled them as he has, with humor so that they seemed common, and with drama so that they became exciting. Every great poet has humor in him somewhere. It is the thing that tells him he is different from everybody else and like everybody else. The comedy of this contradiction never escapes him. . . Robert Frost's isolation is everybody's isolation. And lo, it is not isolation at all. It is terribly and laughably common. . . The present collection of Frost's poems, the third he has made, is of course the best because the latest. In it are the contents of his ten books from 'A Boy's Will' to 'A Masque of Mercy,' with three new poems added for good measure." Mark Van Doren
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 My 29 '49 1700w

"Many of Frost's poems are trivial or merely whimsical or 'folksy' or offensively didactic. But at his best he is in the tradition of Hesiod and, to a different degree, of Theocritus and Virgil, as well as of the English Georgians. The Latin strain in his poetry is very real: we do not need his 'Build Soil,' a Virgilian pastoral dialogue, to persuade us of his Latin affiliations. There is something of the Republican Roman about him—something of the elder Cato, who wrote the 'De Re Rustica' and spent much of his life attacking the luxury and refinement associated with Greek as opposed to Roman civilization (Cato's nationalism has its parallel in Frost's), and something, too, of Lucretius, who at the same time attacked the formal religion of his day and in the very opening lines of his great philosophical poem implied a faith in a God of nature that belied his professed skepticism. The Latin epigrammatists, too, helped to sharpen his pen, and he is not afraid to make a point with wit and neatness and let it go at that." David Daiches
+ N Y Times p1 My 29 '49 1800w

"This volume includes all Frost's work, from the exquisite early lyrics and the bitter knowledge of humanity in the middle years to the rather crabbed and gnomic later utterances. The lyric vein runs pure and unchallengeable throughout, but the thought, especially when it becomes thoroughly middle-class, as it often does, can be challenged at many points."

FROST, ROBERT—Continued

+ New Yorker 25:139 O 15 '49 100w

"It would seem complete, but, knowing Robert Frost, one suspects his kind of reservation in the date, 1949; complete for now, but the climax will be capped. It is in the nature of his master design that it will be. In 'The Figure a Poem Makes,' a compact prose preface to this book, he speaks of a poem's sources, mystery, and wildness; subject and pattern imposed. He says, 'Step by step the wonder of unexpected supply keeps growing.' Robert Frost's source of supply is so deep, and has been shaped from the ore so skilfully, that his poems will be unspent for a long time." John Holmes

+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 Jl 16 '49 900w

Time 53:94 Je 27 '49 1500w

FRY, CHRISTOPHER. The lady's not for burning; a comedy. 98p $1.50 Oxford

822 49-9260

"A comedy now being acted in London by John Gielgud to much acclaim. . . The time of the play is 1400. . . The hero is a returned soldier who tries to get himself hanged because he has no use for the human race. He confesses to a murder he hasn't committed. The heroine is a pretty creature condemned to be burned as a witch. But she bewitches everybody in the modern sense of the term, including the hero." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

Reviewed by Harold Hobson

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 8 '49 350w

"It was not an illusion that The Lady's Not For Burning as produced in London by the Arts Theatre was a breathless play. Even in the printed version the words hurry after one another on the page in a way which makes the text easy to read quickly. Mr. Christopher Fry has a facility with the sound of words which will be valuable when he uses it to write better plays, though this one is good enough to be going on with." G. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 8 '49 100w

"This ironic tale is told in a kind of free verse coruscated with imagery and full of neat wit." W. P. Eaton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 14 '49 200w

"The Lady's Not For Burning suggests that when [Mr Fry] wrote it he was without the comparatively pedestrian power of developing character and situation. It is surprising how rich a play may be in fine speeches and yet be a bad play because the speeches alter nothing. . . Mr. Fry is seemingly aware of something undramatic in the play, though he will not allow the lack to be a defect. In his foreword he envisages a producer who, hoping to help the author out, will step up 'the drama'; and the comedy, he thinks, is better left as it is."

Times [London] Lit Sup p214 Ap 2 '49 750w

FULFORD, ROGER. The Prince consort. 292p il $5.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Albert, consort of Victoria, queen of Great Britain [49-4453]

"A life of Prince Albert by an admirer of and apologist for constitutional monarchy. The author gives the Prince almost full credit for rescuing the British crown from the depths to which it had sunk during the reigns of Victoria's two uncles. . . Albert, he says, shaped the character of Victoria and was so positive a political, moral, and cultural force that his period could justifiably be known as the Albertian Age." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 45:391 Jl 15 '49

Current Hist 17:226 O '49 40w

"In one of the many lively passages of this eminently readable book the Prince Consort is described as reduced in Queen Victoria's 'golden haze of adoration' to a cross between King Arthur and an Admirable Crichton. Mr. Fulford sets out to destroy the antipathy roused by that figure. If he does not entirely succeed he does certainly make us ashamed of it. He has had the advantage of access to the royal archives, including the unpublished Queen's Journal." Barbara Hammond

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 8 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 37:328 Ap 2 '49 700w

"Mr. Fulford is . . . a little more serious, and (one must admit) a little more accurate and humane than his own admitted master, Lytton Strachey. Otherwise he is a worthy disciple of that suddenly unfashionable genius. The same industry . . . the same brilliance of characterization, the same love of clear, effective writing which made Lytton Strachey's 'Queen Victoria' at once so exciting, so controversial, and so good a book, have made this life of her husband a worthy companion to it." H. R. Trevor-Roper

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 24 '49 850w

"Mr. Fulford is a spirited writer, with strong likes and dislikes for the people he is dealing with. His portrait of the German princeling who could be no more than a backstage king, and who brought off his difficult role with distinction, is very well drawn and quite believable."

+ New Yorker 25:68 Jl 30 '49 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 28 '49 160w

"This is not a gossipy book, though there is a good deal of intimate domestic detail, much of it from the royal archives at Windsor. To devotees of Lytton Strachey, it will seem a rather dull book, somewhat too respectful of Victorian decencies. To old-fashioned democrats, it will seem unduly aware of whatever hedges royalty. Yet in common human terms it gives surely a more just view of the Prince consort than does Strachey's condescending wit." Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 32:21 Jl 30 '49 650w

"His book is serious, and, at times, scholarly. . . It would be an ungrateful over-statement to say that this newest study of the Prince Consort is a major disappointment. It will be much, and justifiably, read. But it is a pity that this sensitive, erudite German Prince, who did so much to encourage and stimulate the arts in mid-Victorian England, should once again be left without an enduring monument in English prose. For all its new material, its interest and its sagacity, Mr. Fulford's biography renders the Prince as unreal and as impersonal as the seated staring effigy under the canopy of the Albert Memorial." James Pope-Hennessy

+ — Spec 182:402 Mr 25 '49 950w

"Here he stands, human and noble: the old-fashioned word must stand. Mr. Fulford sets him down boldly for a generation that is shy of the heroic. . . Mr. Fulford brings to his subject none of the odious patronage common in modern biography. He has all the personal and historical documents in hand and a scrupulous regard for them. He is just but not afraid to admire. His Prince Consort is humanly as well as historically sound."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p216 Ap 2 '49 1600w

FULFORD, ROGER. Royal dukes; the father and uncles of Queen Victoria. 320p pl $2.50 Macmillan

923.2 Hanover, House of. Great Britain—Court and courtiers. Great Britain—Princes and princesses 49-11751

Biographical studies of six of the sons of George III of England, one of whom, Edward Augustus, Duke of Kent, was the father of Queen Victoria. List of authorities. Index. This work was first published in England in 1933, imported in America with the title: The Wicked Uncles (Book Review Digest 1933).

"The record of so much royalty may be of general interest in England. In this country its appeal will perhaps be confined to those who get a fillip from scandals in high places and to serious students of history who cannot afford to ignore the characters who were just off stage awaiting a cue that never came or, at best, were never in the center of the scene. . . His work is a careful and competent piece of historical writing based on thorough research." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:50 Ja 11 '50 340w

"In these admirably written studies, Mr. Fulford dwells sympathetically, and with exactly the right amount of levity, on the lives of six of George III's sons."
+ New Yorker 25:153 D 10 '49 160w

FULLER, MRS ALICE COOK. Gold for the Grahams; il. by Dorothy Bayley Morse. 194p $2.50 Messner
48-9036

Story of a Iowa farm family on their way to the gold fields of the Dakota Territory in 1878, and what they found in their new home. For grades five to eight.

Booklist 45:161 Ja 1 '49

"There's always room for a good family story of covered wagon days—and this is a good one."
+ Kirkus 16:441 S 1 '48 90w

"An especially good story of a pioneer family. . . If you can use another pioneer story, by all means have this one." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 74:133 Ja 15 '49 40w

"Colorful details and plenty of action add up to a lively story for 10-to-14-year-olds." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 F 13 '49 150w
Wis Lib Bul 45:30 F '49

FULLER, DOUGLAS RAYMOND. Government financing of private enterprise. 206p $3 Stanford univ. press 332.742 Business. Industry and state
49-7991

"The first half of this study is given to an historical review of domestic and foreign experience in the government financing of business. The last six of the eleven chapters attempt to find out whether or not there is a problem of this kind in the United States, what it is, and what should be done about it." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"This is a study of the financing problems of business, particularly small business, and the government's rôle in resolving them. Although readable and informative, it is repetitious, contains considerable background material not directly related to the main topic, and suffers from a few organizational and structural weaknesses. . . However, [it] fills a long-felt need for an examination of the necessary rôle of government in business financing." J. B. Eckert
— + Am Econ R 39:1330 D '49 1000w
Management R 38:591 O '49 70w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:193 Je '49 280w

FULLER, JOHN FREDERICK CHARLES. Second World war, 1939-45. 431p maps $5 Duell
940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Campaigns and battles
49-1089

A strategical and tactical history of World war II, by an English major general. "The most important point is that emphasis placed by General Fuller on the relationship between war and policy. He quotes with approval Clausewitz's dictum that 'the art of war in its highest point of view is policy,' and proceeds to criticise the Allies for their lack of clearly defined objectives in the conduct of the war." (Spec) Index.

Reviewed by R. E. Danielson
Atlantic 184:100 N '49 3600w

Reviewed by R. E. Merriam
Chicago Sun Ap 25 '49 200w

"Whether or not one agrees in toto with the author's deductions, 'The Second World War' is a book well worth serious consideration. For only by healthy controversy and open discussion can the lessons of history be effectively utilized in solving the problems of the future." R. E. Dupuy
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 900w
Foreign Affairs 28:160 O '49 20w

"With a new generation of retired major generals springing up around him he has scratched together a chronicle of hasty and waspish criticism which the reader should swallow with a liberal dose of salt. Much of this is not history in the accepted sense, and compared with Captain Falls's recent essay in a similar field it is poor analysis. . . To hold, and express such views is perfectly fair, but a wise general attacking a fortress uses sterner supporting weapons than the pea-shooter and the toy trumpet." R. G. J.
— Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 13 '48 180w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 120:22 Mr 14 '49 3550w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 36:56 Jl 17 '48 480w

"General Fuller has relied too greatly upon memoirs and biographies—and upon correspondents' reports, which may have been valid enough in the heat of battle but are now compromised in the light of later knowledge. Nevertheless, 'The Second World War' makes fascinating reading for the military historian, and provides invaluable background for those eager to understand some of the great military issues of our day." H. W. Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p1 Jl 3 '49 650w

"General Fuller, as is pretty well known, is a gifted English military historian of reactionary persuasion, and in this concise opinionated survey of the war he runs straight on course. . . The strategic and tactical phases of the war are brilliantly expounded, however; on that score, the book stands as probably the best comprehensive work on the war to appear so far."
+ — New Yorker 25:97 F 26 '49 180w
San Francisco Chronicle p29 My 1 '49 270w

"General Fuller is a most readable critic and his report has covered all the major campaigns of World War II wherever fought. His ideas are provocative and controversial. In reading his book keep in mind Voltaire's undying words—'Read, not to believe, but to consider.' " H. C. Butcher
Sat R of Lit 32:16 F 26 '49 800w

"The narrative, valuable as it is, is not the most important part of General Fuller's book. What really matters is the author's comments on the events he describes, and these provide us with a clear statement of what he thinks not only about particular operations but about the conduct of the war as a whole. The result is a hard-hitting politico-military pamphlet, in which none of the punches are pulled. General Fuller, whose narrative style is rather flat and occasionally clumsy, writes the controversial part of his book with great liveliness, and his arguments are easy to follow and logically developed." S. H. F. Johnston
+ Spec 181:150 Jl 30 '48 650w

"Major-General Fuller possesses most of the qualifications for such a survey of the late war as can be made by a private individual at this stage. He knows how to handle a narrative full of incident; he is thoroughly at home in a subject in which he has kept himself up to date; and he has a well-developed critical instinct which causes him to scan closely theories and even ostensible facts before he will accept them. Best of all, he is one of the very rare original students of warfare whom this country has produced. . . On the debit side a weakness which is not new reappears in his latest book. Major-General Fuller is intolerant and inclined to become reckless."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p536 S 25 '48 900w

"The book, in fact, can hardly be called history at all; it is a collection of observations and

FULLER, J. F. C.—Continued
aphorisms, sometimes acute, sometimes wrongheaded, usually presented with skill and often with a bland disregard of fact." Fletcher Pratt
— + Yale R n s 39:157 autumn '49 800w

FUNK & Wagnalls standard dictionary of folklore, mythology and legend; Maria Leach, ed; Jerome Fried, associate ed; 2v; v 1, A-I. 531p $7.50 Funk

398.03 Folklore—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. (49-48675)

Volume one of this reference work carries the subjects from A into I. It is composed of articles by 28 folklore specialists "each in alphabetical place, on specific cultures and subjects: American Indian lore, European folklore, the ballad, the dance (with analytical tables), gestures, adultery. Entries for individual songs and tales, mythological characters, riddles, charms, games, religious beliefs, and such hard-to-find topics as 'ages of the world.' Original articles signed, one alphabet. 4000 entries (when complete), cross references." (Library J)

"This [is a] richly authoritative, alphabetically arranged compendium."
+ Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 40w

"The alphabetical arrangement, the extensive use of cross references to amplify and interrelate allied subjects makes this a valuable reference tool."
+ Kirkus 17:643 N 15 '49 140w

"Absolutely essential for all libraries. Cannot sufficiently praise: 1) scope, which covers world folklore as known to scholars; 2) lucidity of long articles. . . Inevitable omissions, but all in all an amazingly uniform, balanced and fascinating achievement." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 74:1463 O 1 '49 130w

"Of its kind, this must certainly be the most complete analysis of primitive and folk dancing available anywhere. The answer to a reference work of this kind is use. I've tried the work out on that basis, as far as Volume I goes, and it comes through nobly." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 5 '49 450w

"Although the set will bear further review when completed . . . it is not too early to indicate that here is a reference book libraries will find useful." Louis Shores
+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 Ja 21 '50 180w
Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 80w

FURBANK, P. N. Samuel Butler (1835-1902). 113p $1.75 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

B or 92 Butler, Samuel

"This essay, which was awarded the Le Bas prize at Cambridge in 1946, attempts a reassessment of the author of Erewhon and The Way of All Flesh. In particular Mr. Furbank seeks to defend Butler against published attacks, such as The Earnest Atheist by Malcolm Muggeridge, and to substitute for what he considers to be false or partial accounts of his character a truer and more sympathetic interpretation." Publisher's note

"Mr. Furbank's book is for readers who know Butler well, who can bring the weight of their own knowledge to bear on the critic's ideas and assertions. It offers many valuable insights. . . However the sum of Mr. Furbank's study remains, for me at least, both muddled and obscure. Nor am I even sure of his intentions." B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Ja 29 '49 140w

"An acute and subtle study. . . Mr. Furbank is well qualified to write a full-length book on this fascinating author. Perhaps one day he may care to do this and silence a groaning ghost." E. M. Forster
+ Spec 181:634 N 12 '48 900w

"A revival of interest in Butler is perhaps scarcely to be expected. But at least to those who have read their Butler, Mr. Furbank's book is a reasoned and welcome assurance that they were not wasting their time."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p682 D 4 '48 1350w

"Free from the absurd idolatry of the cult and the sensationalism of the debunkers, Mr. Furbank's book marks the beginning of an objective estimate of Samuel Butler and his work." G. S. Haight
+ Yale R n s 38:746 summer '49 230w

FURMAN, ABRAHAM LOUIS (DAVID THOMAS, pseud.) ed. Teen-age sea stories; il. by Edgard Cirlin. 252p $2.50 Lantern press (N Y)

48-9926

Contents: The shores of Tripoli, by Hawthorne Daniel; Galley slave, by Charles Gilson; Mutineers be hanged, by J. F. Hinternhoff; Two chests of treasure, by M. P. Allen; Sailor's pay, by Robert Carse; Salvage, by P. N. Strong; An eye for an eye, by Robb White; Ensign Carson, USCGR, by G. C. Lane; Submarine jitters, by Arnold Bateman; Tanker man, by Millard Ward; Running dark, by P. N. Strong; Rig ship for diving, by Arnold Bateman; Shantyboat pirate, by P. N. Strong.

Kirkus 16:557 O 15 '48 90w

"The interest range is wide—from galley slaves and pirates to submarines and espionage. There are freshness and variety in these tales of seafaring men and ships and plenty of drama and excitement for young people who enjoy tales of the high seas. Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 74:205 F 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 F 13 '49 90w
Springf'd Republican p10C D 19 '48 100w

FURMAN, BESS. Washington by-line; the personal history of a newspaperwoman. 349p $3.50 Knopf

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Washington, D. C.—Social life and customs 49-7293

The author is the daughter of a Nebraska newspaper family. After years of work on a small-town paper, she went to Washington in 1929 and for twenty years has "covered Washington through the Hoover and Roosevelt Administrations and the succession of Harry S. Truman, right on through the election of 1948. Since 1943 she has represented The New York Times. Like most women correspondents in big bureaus, she was fated to cover 'the woman's angle.' . . Her book is a loosely organized mélange of how she covered stories and the people connected with them." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 45:185, 191 F 1 '49

Reviewed by Eleanor McNaught
Canadian Forum 29:46 My '49 280w

Reviewed by Gerry Robichaud
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 13 '49 310w

"An informal, fast-moving picture of an era that historians and biographers are now beginning to plumb to the depths. . . A news reporter's view of history is no more fair by itself than some other angled views. Too often reporters are apt to judge persons by the type of news sources they are. In Miss Furman's case, this was a special temptation since the type of reporting she was doing 'ran staccato and clock around,' as she puts it. That kind of news produces chiefly a book of recollections many of which seem a long way off now in a fast-changing world. Miss Furman records them warmly and animatedly." Mary Hornaday
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 7 '49 750w

Kirkus 16:639 D 1 '48 180w

"An interesting panorama of some very exciting years is painted in a style that is both smooth and sprightly. . . At times, as in most of these I-was-there-too books, it gets a bit tiring. Nonetheless, should be popular. Recommended." C. W. Roth

+ Library J 74:196 F 1 '49 170w

"An entertaining and reliable book. . . As a career book, this volume should be read by aspiring girl reporters as picturing just about the best any person has a right to expect of her profession. As a story it gives us Washington before, during and after the war as seen by a writer with alert eyes and a sense of history in the making." Emma Bugbee

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 6 '49 800w

"A warm-hearted and heart-warming book. Over all, we feel that Miss Furman is a generous woman, a journalist of ability and great ambition, who never forgets to be human, even charitable. Virtually all her criticisms are implicit rather than explicit: you can read into the text whatever you wish of the anger and disgust the author must now and then have felt." Delbert Clark

+ N Y Times p4 F 6 '49 500w

New Yorker 24:94 F 12 '49 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 1 '49 150w

"Many other names and faces appear in Miss Furman's pages. But her book is dominated by the personality of Eleanor Roosevelt. Bess Furman was a White House intimate to a greater extent than any other newspaperwoman except Ruby Black. Covering Mrs. Roosevelt was her top-priority assignment from 1933 through 1936, and she writes that in order to keep up with the President's wife she had to go into low-heeled shoes. Not only Mrs. Roosevelt's energetic public activities, but also her warm, generous, thoughtful private life is portrayed in detail. If Miss Furman's book is important chiefly as a footnote to Washington history of the past twenty years, on the subject of Mrs. Roosevelt it contains much valuable source material." Katherine Pringle

+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 F 5 '49 750w

Wis Lib Bul 45:65 Ap '49

FURST, BRUNO. Stop forgetting; how to develop your memory and put it to practical use. 308p il $2.95 Greenberg

154.1 Memory 49-8385

Basic principles with exercises and tests designed to help the average man to develop his memory—for names and faces, telephone numbers, isolated facts, etc. Indexes.

"Dr. Furst's regimen is not simple and it sometimes becomes amazingly involved, but it can serve as therapy for the absent-minded who find that a telephone number, a face, a name, a date or a fact are barriers to fruitful, everyday living." A. H. Weiler

N Y Times p19 Ag 28 '49 140w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 270w

G

GABLE, LUTHER S. H. Miracle of television [ed: Arthur Brogue]. 151p il $2.50 Wilcox & Follett

621.388 Television 49-3915

"A nontechnical résumé of current achievements in television is here combined with an enthusiastic forecast of future applications of this method of communication. Many vocational opportunities are pointed out and the author urges young people to get into the industry now. A table of fluorescent minerals is given." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:359 Je 15 '49

"Television is approached from the 'isn't science wonderful?' angle in this popularization and the result is breezy and readable, provided you are not looking for intelligible information on what television is and how it works. The many human interest bits . . . should interest teen-agers, but the technical passages, oversimplified as they are, will produce in the serious reader a sense of befuddlement, and in the casual reader a spurious sense of knowing more than he actually does."

— + Kirkus 17:304 Je 15 '49 130w

"An excellent brief book for older readers, high-school age and adult." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 13 '49 100w

GAINSBOROUGH, THOMAS. Thomas Gainsborough [by] Oliver Millar. Am ed 19p 40pl $2.50 Harper

759.2 Paintings, British 49-7749

Reproductions of the portraits and landscapes of Gainsborough, including eight in full color, with a critical and historical introduction by the editor. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:394 Jl 15 '49

"Useful for general perusal." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:894 Je 1 '49 70w

"A very well-written and illustrated (English) book." Lincoln Kirstein

+ New Repub 120:29 Ap 18 '49 70w

Reviewed by Robin Ironside

New Statesman & Nation 38:706 D 10 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. B. Louchheim

N Y Times p25 Mr 20 '49 200w

Reviewed by Alfred Frankenstein

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 13 '49 200w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p744 N 18 '49 180w

GAITHER, MRS FRANCES ORMOND (JONES). Double muscadine. 335p $3.50 Macmillan

49-1163

"In the mid-1800's in Mississippi, Syke Berry, son of a poor farmer, was conducting his first law case in defense of a young kitchen slave accused of poisoning the McLean family at Waverly Plantation. His lucky hunch had won an appeal, and in the six months between trials, the novelist reveals the whole fearsome background of life on the plantation to show up the real killer and the motive for the crime." Library J

Booklist 45:202; 225 F 15 '49; Mr 1 '49

"An extremely interesting and worthwhile novel." Moira Walsh

+ Cath World 169:237 Je '49 250w

"Here is a craftsman's volume, sharply phrased, told with unusual economy and perception, and yet one that will certainly draw the popular audience it so much deserves." H. T. Kane

+ Chicago Sun Mr 15 '49 550w

"If a reader should feel that in the eagerness with which he has devoured the story he may have missed some of the clues, he can double his appreciation by reading it again, slowly, absorbing clues, for they are not accidents, and savoring the complexities and development of character. Only an unthinking person can read it without perceiving—beyond the thrilling, compassionate, tragic, and even humorous story—the intent to show the effect of the special relation between white and black on each." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 8 '49 650w

"This Book-of-the-Month-Club selection has the smooth, professional polish of expert ladies-magazine fiction. It waves at the emotions without ever touching them, and it salutes, rather than greets, the inquiring intelligence. All the stock characters are in this story; we've met every one of them before, but this time they carry new aliases; which makes it all the more unusual that in the midst of these carefully coached carryings-on there is material for some very relevant reflection." M. H. Ley

GAITHER, F. O.—Continued
Commonweal 49:572 Mr 18 '49 260w

"Complicated in both cause and effect, and with much of the action centered in the court room, this still has moments of excitement and revelation and may draw a double market among mystery readers."
+ Kirkus 16:645 D 15 '48 180w

"Recommended." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 80w

"The anthropologist seeking an understanding of this peculiar culture need seek no further. The amateur novelist, wondering how to synchronize Freudian charts and living characters, will see the answer in action and old-fashioned soul-searching. And as for the mystery addict, he'll look a mighty long time before he'll find a whodunit to match this one." W. T. Hedden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 6 '49 700w

"From the beginning [Mrs. Gaither] has handled her chosen theme with impressive skill and her trilogy now stands alone for its honesty, its reality and the maturity with which the most delicate phases of the master-and-slave relationship have been explored. 'Double Muscadine' is not a notably better novel than 'Follow the Drinking Gourd' or 'The Red Cock Crows.' . . But it is by far her most exciting story. . . Of a whole gallery of superb portraits Mrs. Gaither has done none better, or more memorable, than this study of Miss Hat. A capable, loving, tragic figure, she is much more typical of the women of the times than many others who have wandered into ante-bellum fiction. . . This is a novel of unmistakable distinction." Herschel Brickell
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 6 '49 700w
New Yorker 25:105 Mr 19 '49 150w

"Mrs. Gaither creates struggling suffering human beings in the great tradition of literature. 'Double Muscadine' is a book of power and distinction." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 20 '49 700w

" 'Double Muscadine' might have been a better novel had not the author's objectivity been carried to such lengths. In her determination to condemn no one and to take no sides, she has lost strength by telling her story almost completely through the eyes of her white characters, so that her Negroes become mere props, players offstage so to speak. Thus readers, unsure until the final resolution by a skilful plot twist at the end, how to feel towards Aimee, the light-skinned and comely Negro slave girl, are likely to feel nothing. Mrs. Gaither's reasons for this, I'm sure, were to create suspense, yet the over-all loss is great and it is this, perhaps, which places 'Double Muscadine' in a category slightly below that of a wholly realized creative effort. In spite of this, however, it is a joy to read a decent piece of writing again." Bucklin Moon
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:13 Mr 26 '49 650w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 390w
Time 53:114 Mr 14 '49 290w
Times [London] Lit Sup p581 S 9 '49 120w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:162 Je '49 240w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:767 summer '49 390w

GALENSON, WALTER. Labor in Norway. 373p $5 Harvard univ. press

331.88 Trade unions. Labor and laboring classes—Norway 49-8524

"This examination of the trade union movement in Norway sketches the historic development and analyzes the position of labor with regard to employers and government. Occasional comparisons with U.S. practices." (Booklist) Selected bibliography. Index.

"Not only those who are interested in industrial relations but anyone with interest in problems of economic policy may read this book with profit and enjoy it." P. J. Bjerve
+ Am Econ R 39:1359 D '49 650w

"This book is a 'must' for all students of contemporary institutions and social change." Robert Dubin
+ Am J Soc 55:425 Ja '50 1050w
Booklist 45:368 Jl 1 '49

"For two years Walter Galenson was Labor Attaché to the American Embassy at Oslo. While he was in Norway this study was first conceived and it was eventually brough to birth with the aid of a Wertheim Research Fellowship. The labor has been worthwhile for the volume under review is complete, up-to-date, and it is likely to be the standard work in English on the subject for some years to come." A. M. S.
+ Canadian Forum 29:164 O '49 250w
Foreign Affairs 28:163 O '49 50w
Nation 168:690 Je 18 '49 30w

GALL, MRS. ALICE (CREW), and CREW, FLEMING H. Winter flight; pictures by Nils Hogner. 108p $2.50 Oxford

Birds—Legends and stories 49-8198

Story of a young crow who learns the facts about the winter flight of birds from his friends—the chickadee, woodpecker, muskrat, and other animals. For ages seven to ten.

Booklist 45:285 Ap 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 14 '49 160w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49
Kirkus 17:150 Mr 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 70w

"Although it will probably appeal to children from about 7 to 10, 'Winter Flight' lacks the individuality of the author's earlier books, and the warmth, resulting from acute personal observation, of Mary E. Cook's 'Blackie and His Family.' " A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p24 Je 12 '49 140w

"It is an entertaining story and it has the authentic quality that characterizes all the books that these two authors have written for boys and girls." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 90w

GALLAGHER, GALE, pseud. Chord in crimson. 213p $2.50 Coward-McCann 49-7228

Detective story.

Cath World 168:496 Mr '49 60w

"This matter of murder among the imported Verweide clan isn't quite busy enough to conceal its narrative disorders. Its manner, too, swerving from brassy bright to swimming melancholy, suggests that Miss Gallagher might be a ghost with style." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 21 '49 80w
Kirkus 16:583 N 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ja 16 '49 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 6 '49 60w

"Swift and baffing yarn. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 50w

GALLICO, PAUL WILLIAM. The lonely. 182p $2.50 Knopf
49-5592

Story of a wartime romance. Jerry, though engaged back home, took a girl with him when he was given a rest furlough in Scotland. Complications arose when Jerry fell in love with Patches. In settling his problem, after a quick trip home, Jerry grew from boyhood into manhood.

"Pleasant love story with emotional appeal."
+ Booklist 46:25; 34 S 15 '49

"This revelation of a war-weary young flyer's emotions in one hundred and eighty-two short pages is a 'one sitting' book, first, for its brevity and second, because you are fascinated and cannot put it down. And this, not because you see eye to eye with the author in his conclusions. But rather because of Gallico's gift for portraying the everyday scene, and his sensitive prose style."
+ Cath World 170:80 O '49 200w

"Though this novelette employs all the techniques of marketable magazine fiction, Gallico is successful in capturing both the emotion and attention of the reader. I don't think Jerry Wright makes the plausible choice as between Patches and Catherine, but I must admit Gallico had me wishing I did think it plausible." E. D.
Chicago Sun p8X O 2 '49 180w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 130w
Kirkus 17:403 Ag 1 '49 150w

Reviewed by Anne Whitmore
Library J 74:1321 S 15 '49 70w

"It does what it sets out to do with admirable co-ordination and no waste motion. The only trouble is that there is little in it to think over at the moment, or to recall at a later date."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 2 '49 140w

"The absence of anything resembling a real problem or conflict is regrettable." Joe McCarthy
— N Y Times p6 S 18 '49 280w

"The piece hinges on the flier's emotional immaturity, which is revealed when he has to make a choice between the Waaf and an American girl. . . Mr. Gallico's handling of this topic is pat and glossy in the extreme; he shows a good deal more warmth and familiarity in his descriptions of wartime England."
+ — New Yorker 25:106 O 8 '49 100w

Reviewed by John Cournos
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ja 7 '50 270w
Time 54:105 S 26 '49 410w

GALLINGER, MRS OSMA (PALMER) COUCH, and BENSON, OSCAR HERMAN. Hand weaving with reeds and fibers. 199p il $3 Pitman
745.58 Basket making 48-9553

Instructions for projects with reed, corn husks, pine needles, raffia, cord and twine. Also contains directions for simple hand weaving, braiding rugs, and chair caning. For camp programs. Index.

Booklist 45:153 Ja 1 '49
Bookmark 9:12 O '49 20w

"An interesting and useful book on weaving handicraft. Most of the projects are attractive and can be learned and executed in a short time. Instructions are clear, and are illustrated by line drawings. A variety of materials is suggested, including such unusual items as cornhusks and pine needles."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:16 Ja '49

GALLUP, GEORGE HORACE. Guide to public opinion polls. 2d ed 117p $2.50 Princeton univ. press
301.154 Public opinion polls 48-3517

"Completely revised edition of this survey of how to measure public opinion. There are some new questions raised and considered, in addition to the more important ones covered in the earlier edition." (Current Hist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1944.

"This little book is highly readable and covers a large amount of territory in its 115 pages." Claude Robinson
+ Ann Am Acad 261:195 Ja '49 200w
Current Hist 15:166 S '48 30w

"An up-to-date reissue of a 1944 book with a little material added, but not much." Duncan Aikman
Sat R of Lit 31:11 Jl 17 '48 270w

Reviewed by M. L. Walrath
Social Studies 40:279 O '49 1300w

GANDHI, MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND. Autobiography; the story of my experiments with truth; tr. from the original in Gujarati by Mahadev Desai. 640p $5 Public affairs press
B or 92 48-8187

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by L. C. Barret
Am Hist R 54:608 Ap '49 650w

"Americans will want to trace the gradual emergence of a timid nobody into a shaper of world history. They will be intrigued by this amazingly frank self-revelation of the greatest and humblest modern man." Mason Olcott
+ Ann Am Acad 261:191 Ja '49 370w
Booklist 45:213 F 15 '49

Reviewed by A. G. Widgery
Crozer Q 26:151 Ap '49 1050w
Foreign Affairs 27:342 Ja '49 30w

Reviewed by T. N. Carver
J Pol Econ 57:83 F '49 1050w

Reviewed by Richard Hocking
J Religion 29:243 Jl '49 600w

"It is to be hoped that other writings of Gandhi, properly edited and more adequately proofread than the autobiography, will be brought out in American editions to make possible a well-rounded, critical study of the man who became a movement and helped restore the dignity of an ancient people to which the world is indebted for much that is of permanent value in modern civilization." Elsie Weil
Nation 168:160 F 5 '49 900w

"The name of Mahatma Gandhi will always remain a part of the history of India's struggle for freedom from British rule. Therefore, every student of Indian history and Indian nationalism will have to consult Gandhi's Autobiography as a source material. But the present work, although very valuable and informative, does not contain a detailed explanation of any phase of the Indian nationalist movement. It is, however, extremely useful for interpretation of certain acts on the part of the Mahatma, especially those which seem to be somewhat peculiar." Taraknath Das
+ — Pol Sci Q 64:144 Mr '49 700w

Reviewed by R. M. Swartley
Social Studies 40:232 My '49 480w

"Perhaps because it is translated from Gujerati, the style of this book is simple and lucid; the reasoning is less involved than in some of Gandhi's later pronouncements. It deals mainly with his private life; his public life, he says, everyone knows about already. Not all English readers do, and a complete biography is still to be written. The translation is readable." Philip Woodruff
+ Spec 183:242 Ag 19 '49 850w

"The book is without literary distinction, but it is, nevertheless, great. It is great not because it throws important light on one of the significant chapters in recent history, although it does do this, but because of the supreme sincerity and humility with which Gandhi reveals his limitations and strength in his never-ending struggle to approach Absolute Truth or God." Merle Curti
+ — Yale R n s 38:563 spring '49 800w

GANNETT, LEWIS STILES. Cream hill; discoveries of a week-end countryman; with lithographs by Ruth Gannett. 191p $3.50 Viking
630.1 Country life 49-3055

Twenty-five years ago the author bought land and an old house in Connecticut. At first the family used it for summer vacations and week ends, but gradually it became the favorite family residence—in fact a home. These reminiscences are of the early years,

GANNETT, L. S.—Continued
they describe the discovery of an ancestor who once owned land in the town; town characters; and other subjects. There is even a chapter on the wearing of beards by various generations of American men.

"This book is as unpretentious and comfortable as an old shoe—easy to ramble along in." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 183:82 Je '49 280w

Booklist 45:253; 311 Ap 1 '49; My 15 '49

Reviewed by J. W. Lane
Cath World 170:74 O '49 180w

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun My 12 '49 200w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates
Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 1 '49 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

Kirkus 17:166 Mr 15 '49 260w

Reviewed by B. B. Libaire
+ Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 140w

"'Cream Hill' is good plain American fare, as unpretentious and indigenous as an ear of its author's beloved corn on the cob. Its humor is mild and its observations seldom memorable, but it has a limpid, artless, and engaging honesty that more than compensates. Irrationally, perhaps absurdly, one feels that so long as Cream Hill survives there is still hope for the world."
+ Nation 168:620 My 28 '49 230w

"'Cream Hill' has come out of modern Cornwall, a delightful book, a book for all who love country ways and country things to savor, and the most delicately appreciative record of the seasons in this corner of the world since William Hamilton Gibson drove his buggy upon the banks of the Housatonic and recorded his impressions with pen and pencil." W. P. Eaton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 15 '49 1000w

"Mr. Gannett is fascinated by history, and his book is a record of his own delving into the local past. But the substance of the book, the bulk of it, is about one man's living with one piece of ground which gives him satisfaction and a sense of continuity. The warmth of his feeling is contagious, for Mr. Gannett enjoys the country with all the pores of all his senses open." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p3 My 15 '49 300w

"A sentimentally reflective book about the author's Connecticut farm and weekend home, and one that has a lot more substance than is at first apparent."
+ New Yorker 25:100 Je 11 '49 160w

"The Gannetts love the big city but it exhausts them, and though hard work in the country is exhausting also, it 'tires different nerve ends, restoring what the city frazzles.' There's the whole point, as more and more people are discovering. Readers who have made or are making that discovery will understand his highly personal and delightful book and take it to their hearts." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 9 '49 900w

"Mr. Gannett writes easily, informally, and unpretentiously, as if conversing with a like-minded friend. He obviously does not regard the reader as a stranger, but makes him feel quite welcome at Cream Hill. I could easily believe I had been the Gannett's guest there in all seasons, that I had just come from another weekend, and that I ought to be writing a bread-and-butter letter instead of a review." L. J. Halle
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 My 21 '49 800w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 480w

Wis Lib Bul 45:104 Je '49

GANNETT, RUTH STILES (MRS PETER KAHN). Wonderful house-boat-train; il. by Fritz Eichenberg. 64p $2 Random house
49-11981

When their grandfather was considered too old to be a railroad engineer, the four Trolley children went to live in the country. Grandfather made them a new home out of six old sheds lined up in a row, which he fixed to resemble a train, from engine to caboose. The story tells what happened to the new home when their land was condemned for a road. For ages six to nine.

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

Bookmark 9:83 Ja '50 40w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p25 D 17 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 25 '49 130w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 10 '50 180w

"The idea of living in something other than the traditional house has endless appeal for children, and this fulfills all demands (except adult credulity, perhaps.)"
+ Kirkus 17:653 D 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 75:112 Ja 15 '50 80w

"The author of that little masterpiece of fantasy, 'My Father's Dragon,' now writes an utterly different but equally charming 'might-be-true' story. . . Mr. Eichenberg's pictures are just right; his children match those of the funny talk of the text, and he gives serious attention to all the various steps of construction." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 27 '49 230w

"The concept is amusing, and so are many of the details. The trouble is that there is more whimsy than substance, so that the story is thinner, less spontaneous than its predecessor. Ages 6 to 9." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p20 Ja 29 '50 180w

"Fresh and imaginative fun. . . Children from six to nine will find this all very sensible."
+ New Yorker 25:176 D 3 '49 80w

"A book that will probably be strongly approved by the younger boys and girls. It is a gay, funny tale."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 D 10 '49 230w

GANTENBEIN, JAMES WATSON, ed. Documentary background of World war II, 1931 to 1941. 1122p $10 Columbia univ. press

940.52 History, Modern—Sources. World war, 1939-1945—Documents, etc., sources. International relations 48-11573

"This collection of papers represents an effort to trace, through speeches of statesmen, diplomatic correspondence, and other documents, the story of the foreign policies that various of the leading countries of the world were following during that fateful decade [1931-1941]. . . It seemed that it might aid in an appreciation of the issues, including the political philosophies, at stake if there could be brought together in parallel form and as objectively as possible the pronouncements of those who were playing the leading roles in this world drama. The compilation makes no pretenses with respect to completeness. . . [There are] included more papers relating to United States foreign policy than documents from other countries. . . As to sources, the majority of the documents have been taken directly from official publications of the United States, British, and French Governments, and of the League of Nations." (Pref) Chronology. Index.

"The book is indispensable to the student of this decade." G. D. Harmon
Am Hist R 54:907 Jl '49 400w

Reviewed by A. T. Bonnell
Ann Am Acad 263:234 My '49 360w

Booklist 45:207 F 15 '49

"A useful source book."
+ Current Hist 16:34 Ja '49 40w

Foreign Affairs 27:682 Jl '49 20w

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 5 '49 100w

School & Society 69:214 Mr 19 '49 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p415 Je 24 '49 850w

"A completely symmetrical picture of the background of World War II could have been produced only by the inclusion of documents dealing at greater length with matters like Selective Service, the development of American war production, Lend-Lease, and the Inter-Defense arrangements with Canada. . . Introductions to the sections would have been helpful in orienting the student, and invaluable to the general reader. For a volume of this length, also, a fuller index is needed. But the book, as a one-volume compilation, is the best of its kind yet to appear, making accessible materials hitherto widely scattered."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:87 Mr '49 290w

GANZ, PAUL. Drawings of Henry Fuseli; with a foreword by John Piper [tr. by F. B. Aikin-Sneath]. 79p 106pl $8.50 Chanticleer

741.91 Fuseli, Henry 49-11674

"Fuseli, a Swiss-naturalized Englishman, was admired by Blake and belonged to his spiritual family. A grand eccentric, part Michaelangelesque, part Mannerist, part mystic and a little mad, his drawings are literally and directly inspired by Dante, Shakespeare, Goethe and anticipate Wagner in grandiose concepts of the Niebelung." (New Repub) This book contains over a hundred of his drawings and an introductory essay by the founder and president of the Swiss museum association.

"This magnificent book, all English-made, is perhaps the most exciting monograph of the year. . . The introduction is perceptive, both psychologically and historically." Lincoln Kirstein
+ New Repub 121:27 D 12 '49 130w

"Mr. Ganz provides a concise introduction which is a model of balanced critical appreciation and considered scholarship worthy of the vital, sensitive drawings by this neglected master." J. J. Sweeney
+ N Y Times p7 D 25 '49 650w

"Fuseli as an artist was a part of the English Gothic Revival; he was not a great artist, but an interesting one, some of whose work was very fine. To over-evaluate him as Professor Ganz does is of no service; but the book is primarily a book of reproductions and as such is well worth having." S. J. Woods
+ — Spec 183:900 D 23 '49 550w

GARBUTT, MRS KATHARINE (KENDIG), and GARBUTT, BERNARD. Hodie [il. by Bernard Garbutt]. [42p] $1.75 Aladdin

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-8669

A picture book for ages 4-8. A French poodle did not seem to be a valuable asset to a farm; but Hodie learned to herd. When the turkeys wandered away, Hodie drove them back and earned the right to stay with the farmer.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:285 Jl '49 80w

"Hodie is a most lovable personality, with his comic, fancy cut, and the pictures of him, by Bernard Garbutt, will endear him to children, for his capers are most expressive."
+ Kirkus 17:83 F 15 '49 100w

"A gay, amusing little story describing the natural antics of a friendly dog and, incidentally, much farm lore. . . Recommended for ages 7-9." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 80w

"Even work is really fun for Hodie, because he is just a truly happy dog. This is a rare explanation of dog nature to find in a small children's picture book. How Hodie stays so well-clipped on a farm, we shall not ask. He is very well drawn, and the contrast of his chic figure with those of the farm animals is most amusing." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 8 '49 180w

"Children from 3 to 6 will greet this book with enthusiasm and welcome Hodie into their circle of animal friends." M. R. Brown
+ N Y Times p22 My 15 '49 140w
Wis Lib Bul 45:107 Je '49

GARCEAU, OLIVER, and others. Public library in the political process; a report of the Public library inquiry. 254p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

027.473 Libraries 49-50082

"Many librarians will find this stimulating and provocative, regardless of agreement or disagreement with the general thesis and individual generalizations. The public library is a part of the government, and the author argues for more active participation of librarians in the political process. He analyzes the structure of the A.L.A., and discusses the unit of government for library service that promises the best results." (Booklist) A note on bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:135 D 15 '49
School & Society 70:351 N 26 '49 10w

GARCIA VILLA, JOSE. See Villa, J. G.

GARD, WAYNE. Frontier justice. 324p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

978 Frontier and pioneer life—West. Justice, Administration of 49-10511

"This book is an informal study of the rise of order and law west of the Mississippi, where order often came before law. With abundant use of illustrative incidents and a minimum of abstract discussion, it traces the progress made from the chaotic, almost anarchic relations between many pioneers and the Indians to a state of peaceful settlement." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:46 O 1 '49
Current Hist 17:286 N '49 60w

"Well done." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 74:1316 S 15 '49 140w

"Mr. Gard's history, into which has gone a vast amount of reading and research, is for the most part a roundup of fascinating and often gory chapters in the taming of the frontier. . . Most, if not all, of Mr. Gard's examples of frontier law enforcement have been dealt with at greater length by earlier writers. Mr. Gard's service has been to winnow out certain inaccuracies and windy improbabilities, to boil down this sprawling material into concise form, and to present it all as one more or less coherent story." Stanley Walker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p48 S 25 '49 850w

Reviewed by Hoffman Birney
N Y Times p38 O 23 '49 150w

"His book is both good history and good reading." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 14 '49 550w

GARDINER, DOROTHY. Great betrayal. 305p $3 Doubleday

49-7390

Historical novel based on an episode in the early history of Colorado. It tells the story of what happened at Sandy Creek, late in 1864, when a regiment of Colorado volunteer cavalry wiped out an encampment of friendly Indians, including women and children. Altho based on documents, imaginary characters are chosen to carry on part of the story.

Booklist 45:242 Mr 15 '49

"An absorbing historical-detective novel about a lamentable incident in the inglorious record of the white man's treatment of the Indian." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 270w

"Well worthwhile."
+ Kirkus 16:644 D 15 '48 190w

GARDINER, DOROTHY—Continued
"The themes are welded together by the very human cast of characters, some historical and some imaginary, but all well portrayed. Occasionally polish is lacking. Yet, definitely recommended." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 100w

"The novel is highly interesting, as a picture of Denver at the time. . . 'The Great Betrayal' is not a novel designed to enhance any reader's pride in the possession of territory so wantonly saturated in the blood of women and children." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 F 6 '49 220w
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 10 '49 160w

"Miss Gardiner went to the records, of which there are plenty, for her details, and this reader, who knew of the massacre only because of his lifelong interest in the Indian tragedy, put the book down convinced of its painstaking and painful accuracy. . . Miss Gardiner has brought her place, her time, and her people vividly to life, and with no word of preaching has told a story that contains its own moral lesson, quite as badly needed at this moment as it has been since pithecanthropus first decided to be erectus." Herschel Brickell
+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 F 5 '49 500w

GARDINER, HAROLD CHARLES, ed. Great books; a Christian appraisal; a symposium on the first year's program of the Great books foundation; with an introduction. 112p $2 Devin-Adair

804 Literature—History and criticism. Books and reading (49-7493)

"In this title, 'great books' means The Great Books of the Adler-Hutchins list, and specifically the 'first year's program of the Great Books Foundation,' which is doing an impressive job in adult education by encouraging the study of them; and 'Christian' means Roman Catholic. Among the books discussed are works by Plato, Aristotle, Augustine, Thomas Aquinas, Montaigne, Locke, Rousseau and Karl Marx." (Christian Century) Brief biographical notes on contributors. Selected bibliography at end of each chapter.

Booklist 45:275 Ap 15 '49
Christian Century 66:336 Mr 16 '49 220w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Bedrooms have windows, by A. A. Fair [pseud]. 250p $2.50 Morrow 48-9927

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:582 N 1 '48 60w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 9 '49 120w

"The mystery winds up, and then unwinds, in the typical, lively manner of A. A. Fair; but the pay-off is more complicated than convincing." B. S.
+ — N Y Times p32 F 27 '49 140w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ja 16 '49 60w

"For rapid-fire action and a hair-raising plot, slickly written to keep the mystery story fan bound to his arm chair for the duration of the book, today's chef's special is 'Bedrooms have Windows.'" D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 30 '49 150w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the cautious coquette. 275p $2.50 Morrow 49-8809

Detective story.

Booklist 45:337 Je 1 '49
Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 10 '49 40w
Kirkus 17:160 Mr 15 '49 60w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 My 8 '49 120w

"For incurable Perry Mason fans the Coquette will prove passable." A. B.
N Y Times p25 Je 5 '49 150w

"Fast, foolish, and ingenious."
New Yorker 25:116 My 7 '49 90w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 22 '49 120w

"Real baffler."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:43 My 7 '49 40w

"The Case of the Cautious Coquette, Erle Stanley Gardner's 61st crime novel, is a good example of the stream-of-action technique, the ingenious but credible situations and the direct, undecorated prose that have made him the best-selling author alive."
+ Time 53:108 My 9 '49 1400w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the dubious bridegroom. 267p $2.50 Morrow 49-8017

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 8 '49 80w
Kirkus 17:14 Ja 1 '49 70w

"Perry Mason gets right on the job, digs up surprises, staggers everybody with some fast ones in court, and generally performs above par in one of his speediest cases, trimmed with slick mystery stuff in every department." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 F 27 '49 130w

"For pace and intricacy, this is the Old Master at the top of his form. And it's a pleasure to announce that this is one of the finest of all Mason's investigations." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p14 Mr 13 '49 150w
New Yorker 25:96 Mr 5 '49 80w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 6 '49 200w
Sat R of Lit 32:33 Mr 5 '49 40w

"This is good Perry Mason and that ought to be a sufficient guarantee for whodunit fans." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Mr 13 '49 130w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. D.A. breaks an egg. 245p $2.50 Morrow 49-10309

Detective story.

Kirkus 17:374 Jl 15 '49 70w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 4 '49 150w

"Virtuous, hard-hitting and faintly smug D.A. Doug Selby, who proclaims in this book that he can use only two weapons—brains and two-fisted honesty—is the least appealing of Erle Stanley Gardner's multitudinous series characters. . . And since the 'D.A.' novels are coming to concentrate more and more on Selby's personal affairs and less on the crimes involved, the result is short of absorbing." A. B.
— N Y Times p22 Ag 28 '49 140w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 18 '49 90w
Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 150w

GARDNER, JAMES PETER. Peter Salt. 378p $3 Humphries 48-8772

"The scene is Scotland, London, and New York; the time is 1830, et seq; the central character is Scottish; and the whole book amounts to a laudation of the best qualities in the Scotch people. The merit of so old-fashioned, Alger-like a tale is that is gives a bird's-eye view of Scottish history and landscape, and something about New York local history and business conditions, as seen by Scottish eyes more than a century ago." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 26 '48 310w

"The author's factual style gives quite an authentic air to his descriptions of London and New York and to his details of Peter's journeys, as if they had been set down in old diaries by a contemporary. . . But the antiquarian in Mr. Gardner outshines the novelist. His plot doesn't thicken even with the help of a secret will, a priceless ruby, a beautiful descendant of the Schermerhorns and a meeting with Andrew Jackson." Catharine Brody
+ — N Y Times p23 D 12 '48 550w

GARDNER, WILLIAM EDWARD. Coffin saga: Nantucket's story, from settlement to summer visitors. (Nantucket Island, Mass. Whaling museum. Publications) 321p il maps $3.75 Houghton

974.497 Coffin family. Nantucket, Massachusetts

Describes the founding of the Coffin family dynasty on Nantucket, their course thru the years, and the history of the island. The author is a member of another old Nantucket family, and is director of the Nantucket Whaling Museum.

"It is rich material with which Will Gardner deals; he might have written his book as an entertainment alone, but he chose to make it also as sound as a Nantucket ship. His readability and lively sense of values are a projection of careful scholarship and research. He himself, clergyman, student and historian, is a thorough Nantucketer, and he contributes these annals of his island to the larger stream of American history where they have a solid, rightful place. A portfolio of fine and revealing pictures completes the book." H. B. Hough
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 3 '49 900w

"'The Coffin Saga' is genuine Americana, dealing as it does with settlement in a very young America, the establishment, growth and decline of the whaling industry, and the considerable part played by the whaling fleet in the Revolutionary War." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 31 '49 350w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 4 '49 180w

GARDNER, WILLIAM HENRY. Gerard Manley Hopkins (1844-1889) a study of poetic idiosyncrasy in relation to poetic tradition; with a foreword by Gerard Hopkins. 2v 304;415p v 1 $4; v2 $6 Yale univ. press

821 Hopkins, Gerard Manley (48-8109)

The first edition of the first volume of this work was originally published in England in 1944. "[The author's] main purpose is clearly indicated in the sub-title; it is, in effect, to show that Hopkins, at first sight so odd, eccentric, even revolutionary in the matters of style and rhythm, is actually and eminently as legitimate an offspring of the great European poetic tradition as any English poet before him; it is also to show that Hopkins, like the greater poet Shakespeare, appeals successfully to different levels of understanding." (Pref v1) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Though the objectives of the book are clear, the organizational plan is not always easy to follow. Sometimes it tends to break up into a series of essays dealing with the same subject but without the kind of integrated unity that would make one call it a 'book.' But a closer reading persuades one that this shortcoming is more apparent than real and that the author's scholarly and yet sensitive analysis brings one very close to the paradox of a great revolutionist who was at the same time a great traditionalist." John Pick
+ — Cath World 168:90 O '48 370w (Review of v 1)

"The most balanced and important work on Hopkins that has yet appeared." John Peck + Cath World 170:238 D '49 550w (Review of v2)

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun N 1 '48 230w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p53 D 5 '49 100w

"After the mis-readings of Hopkins by various cultists, who have been attracted simply by his brilliant word patterns or who have looked on him as a semi-intelligible neurotic, it is a pleasure to go through Gardner's imaginative and generally sensible evaluation. It would seem that all the discussion of Hopkins has had the merit finally to draw out this mature and balanced judgment." E. F. Meagher
+ Commonweal 48:505 S 3 '48 260w (Review of v 1)

"Dr. Gardner's aim is exegesis and criticism, not biography, but he throws new light upon the influence of the poet's father. His final estimate of Hopkins's stature as a poet hardly allows for the defects of his inimitable qualities, but no poet could wish for a more devoted elucidator or one more richly informed." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 31 '49 300w (Review of v2)

"Dr. Gardner has applied himself with so much care to his subject that every other Hopkins study seems scanty."
+ New Yorker 24:102 O 2 '48 100w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by John Conley
Poetry 74:293 Ag '49 1100w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by Gordon McKenzie
San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 26 '48 430w (Review of v 1)

"The titles of certain of Gardner's chapters are formidable: 'Sonnet Morphology,' 'Diction and Syntax,' 'Themes and Imagery.' But what emerges from his study is an understanding of Hopkins's creativity. And what remains in the mind of the reader is a sense of the vitality of Hopkins's verse. Gardner, too, has his chapter on the critics and reviewers of the poems, but it is not his most valuable contribution; which is only to say that ultimately, it is the poetry which counts and not the poet nor what has been said about his poems." N. H. Pearson
Sat R of Lit 31:26 O 30 '48 480w (Review of v 1)

"A skilled and intricate analysis of skilled and intricate verse, written for the initiate." N. H. Pearson
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 S 17 '49 750w (Review of v2)

"The materials for a judgment are spread richly, if not always tidily, across its ample floorage; but it cannot be said that the judgment itself is finally and convincingly made. Perhaps, indeed, Dr. Gardner is too much the disciple and the admirer to make it. He has sunk himself so long and so sympathetically in his subject that what were jarring flaws at a first glance have now become elusive beauties."

Times [London] Lit Sup p616 S 23 '49 3350w

"The book is good for the general reader who wishes not to be put off from, but to be led into, the poems as they were written." Josephine Miles
+ Yale R n s 39:368 winter '50 850w

GARFIELD, MRS VIOLA EDMUNDSON, and FORREST, LINN ARGYLE. The wolf and the raven. 160p il $3 Univ. of Wash.

970.4 Totems. Indians of North America—Northwest, Pacific 49-8492

"Since 1938 the U.S. Forest Service has been salvaging totem poles from deserted Indian villages in Alaska and collecting them in Saxman Totem Park, near Ketchikan, and at other points. Some have been repaired, others replaced by copies by Indian carvers. Skilled ethnologists have cooperated in this work, and in the preparation of this well illustrated book on the subject. Scores of totem poles are here pictured, described and interpreted." Christian Century

GARFIELD, V. E.—Continued

---

Booklist 45:332 Je 1 '49

Christian Century 66:593 My 11 '49 210w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein
New Repub 121:27 D 12 '49 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 7 '49 150w

"This book makes fascinating reading."
+ School & Society 69:254 Ap 2 '49 90w

GARLAND, JOSEPH. Story of medicine; il. by Erwin H. Austin. 259p $2.75 Houghton

610.9 Medicine—History 49-9015

History of medicine from the earliest times to the important discoveries of the present. Can be used with high school students and adults. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:318 My 15 '49

"Informative and widely interesting for young people." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:295 Jl '49 100w

"A competent, concise treatment."
+ Kirkus 17:129 Mr 1 '49 160w

"Dramatically written, in strict chronological order, it will be a rich source book in this field. . . Recommended for libraries needing quickly available authoritative materials." M. I. Ross
+ Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 100w

"Dr. Garland approaches his dramatic and useful task with the seriousness it deserves and writes in a style worthy to be read both by older high-school students and by adults. The large type and many, though very poor, illustrations may lure a few younger readers who already long to be doctors, and if so it will be more worth their attention than many an informational book written down for them. . . It is a valuable, readable short book, that will illuminate the work of the doctor for all who read it, setting him in a fascinating past as well as in a hopeful present." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 29 '49 240w

"Few stories hold more drama and excitement than a well-written account, which this happens to be, of the men and women who have devoted themselves to the health and healing of mankind. And few books on the history of medicine are as complete and detailed as this which Dr. Garland has written. . . Any reader of 12 and up who has ever thought he would like to become a doctor will find inspiration in this fine book." H. B. Lent
+ N Y Times p30 Je 19 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 40w

GARRETT, MRS EILEEN JEANETTE (LYTTLE). Adventures in the supernormal; a personal memoir. 252p $3.50 Creative age

B or 92 49-10628

Autobiography of an Irish woman who as a "sensitive" has worked with men and women interested in psychic research.

Booklist 46:41; 62 O 1 '49; O 15 '49

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun O 19 '49 450w

"A sincere and straightforward autobiographical account of a woman with the special gifts of prevision and precognition, this retraces many years of experience and interest in spiritualism and the occult."
+ Kirkus 17:417 Ag 1 '49 180w

"Unique, readable effort to describe exactly how clairvoyance, prevision, telepathy, etc., are experienced by one who is thoroughly normal and straightforward. No faerie magic, but on the one hand laboratory experiments, and on the other religious mysticism. Totals up to an extraordinarily alert, harmonious C. S. Lewis design of life." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 74:1195 S 1 '49 80w

Nation 169:355 O 8 '49 70w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 25 '49 650

"All this is told simply and swiftly. The result is an entertaining story and some excellent essays on clairvoyance, ghosts, poltergeists, the meaning of death and the color and form of life as it looks to one who sees beyond and through the spectrum." T. S.
+ N Y Times p51 O 23 '49 290w

GARRITY, DEVIN A., ed. New Irish poets; representative selections from the work of 37 contemporaries; with woodcuts by Harry Kernoff. 209p $3.50 Devin-Adair

821.08 Irish poetry—Collections 48-9432

"The thirty-seven modern Irish writers in this collection present little conflict and less drama; they are, for the most part, all too lyrical, though they make some show of Irish bitterness and realism. A gallery of photographs of contributors presents a range of types, mainly educated men and women from cities and towns. Northern Ireland is represented as well as Eire." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 163:15 Mr 1 '49 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '49

"Mr. Garrity is to be congratulated on an excellent job of editing. It would be difficult to think of any poet who has been unjustly excluded, with the possible exception of a man named Pearse Hutchinson, and I personally would quarrel with only two or three of the inclusions." Vivian Mercier + Commonweal 49:404 Ja 28 '49 450w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 80w

"While it does not come up to expectations, New Irish Poets is yet most welcome. There are a number of admirable lyrics in it, and more than one poet whose work should have greater recognition here." Babette Deutsch
+ — New Repub 120:23 Mr 21 '49 600w

New Yorker 24:86 Ja 22 '49 100w

"Very seldom does one come on a collection of verse that can be read on and on as one reads an interesting prose volume. . . 'New Irish Poets,' surprisingly, has a sort of harmony that permits us to read it on and on. That may be due to editorship or it may be due to the fact that the poets have the same country in their minds and the same sort of things. . . Devin A. Garrity has done a good job of editing these thirty-seven poets." Padraic Colum
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 My 21 '49 360w

GARSIDE, BETTIS ALSTON. One increasing purpose; the life of Henry Winters Luce; with an introd. by Henry P. Van Dusen. 271p il $3.75 Revell

B or 92 Luce, Henry Winters 49-7088

Biography of Henry Winters Luce, which shows how he was attracted to the Student Volunteer Movement in the 1890's, went to China as a missionary, and helped build Yenching University. The time covered is from his student days in 1892 to his death in 1941. Index.

"This is a book that can be highly recommended for any church's missionary library, or for reading by anyone interested or capable of becoming interested in missions." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:178 F 9 '49 150w

"An enthusiastically written biography."
+ Churchman 163:17 My 1 '49 360w

GARST, MRS DORIS (SHANNON). Silver spurs for cowboy boots; il. by Charles Hargens. 192p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury
49-6994

"A sequel to 'Cowboy Boots,' this story of a ranch in Wyoming is for younger boys and girls." (Sat R of Lit) Glossary.

Kirkus 17:466 S 1 '49 90w

"The author, Shannon Garst, who has lived on a Wyoming cattle ranch, is a skilled hand at exciting adventure and gives [her] book all the ingredients that will satisfy boys who are eager for this type of story. Charles Hargens' realistic black-and-white drawings effectively illustrate the book." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1539 O 15 '49 90w

"This is a lively adventure story that will have its readers demanding the author's earlier 'Cowboy Boots.'" Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 20w

GARST, SHANNON. See Garst, D. S.

GASSNER, JOHN, ed. Twenty-five best plays of the modern American theatre; early series. 756p $5 Crown
812.08 American drama—Collections 49-9571

"Selected from work produced from 1916 through 1929. The editor has represented most of the important dramatists who had established reputations before 1930 and has tried to give a cross-section of theatrical writing during those years. Includes The hairy ape, Desire under the elms, What price glory? Porgy, and The front page. The introduction gives a good, brief history of the period and there are biographical notes on the playwrights." Booklist

Booklist 45:372 Jl 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '49

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 74:1030 Jl '49 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 S 11 '49 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 21 '49 120w

School & Society 69:439 Je 18 '49 60w

GASTER, THEODOR HERZL. Passover, its history and traditions. (Great religious festivals ser) 102p il $2.50 Schuman
296 Passover 49-8641

"This book tries to tell the story of the festival not only in terms of the accepted tradition but also against the background of modern knowledge. It seeks to present to the inquiring layman the full story of what recent research has to say about the true origins of Passover, the parallels to it in various parts of the world, and the historical authenticity of the events which it commemorates." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

"Libraries having many Jewish readers may want this, although its interpretation of historical findings may offend the more orthodox. Too sketchy to serve as a reference book."
Booklist 45:347 Je 15 '49

"This remarkable little book is billed as a 'popular' exposition of the Passover festival. It is that in the best sense of the word, for it is written by a man who is a master both in the field of the history of ancient near-eastern religions and languages and also in the lore of Judaism. The clarity, simplicity, and completeness of the book remind us that one must be profoundly a master of one's subject to write a popular account of it that has charm." J. C. Rylaarsdam
+ J Religion 29:325 O '49 300w

"A book of careful scholarship."
+ Kirkus 17:143 Mr 15 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 240w

GATES, DORIS. River ranch; il. by Jacob Landau. 160p $2 Viking 49-11227

"Story of a cattle ranch in the West, of modern rustlers who used trucks and of Ben and his sister Ann, who exposed them with the help of a Federal agent disguised as a cattle hand." (Sat R of Lit) For teen age readers.

"Though concerned with the detection and capture of thieves on a cattle ranch, it is simply written, uncomplicated in action and satisfies, in its mood, the wish for a young western." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:530 N '49 80w

"The plot seems contrived; the characterization weak. Disappointing."
— Kirkus 17:473 S 1 '49 120w

"Exciting story, especially good for poor readers." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 75:51 Ja 1 '50 70w

"'River Ranch' is a good Western story by a Westerner who knows the country she writes about. The book should be enjoyed by boys and girls from eight to early teens."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 50w

GAUGUIN, PAUL. Letters to his wife and friends; ed. by Maurice Malingue; tr. by Henry J. Stenning. 255p il $3.50 World pub.
B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-9415

"The letters in this volume, written from France, Oceania, and Tahiti where he spent his last years, provide a background to the life of Gauguin. Many of them are published here for the first time, and they throw fresh light on the life of the man during his self-imposed exile and his years of poverty and struggle." (Publisher's note) Chronology of Gauguin's life. No index.

Booklist 46:32 S 15 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 80w

"I find M. Malingue's method as editor a little irritating: he does not tell us how many of these letters appear for the first time (I have certainly seen passages from a number of them in earlier biographies); he does tell us, with rather tiresome mysteriousness, that letters to Gauguin's friend Daniel de Monfreid cannot be included, 'for private reasons.' It is nevertheless very interesting to have this sequence of marital letters all collected together, if only because they show that Gauguin's relations with his wife were not abruptly severed, but deteriorated gradually." Giles Romilly
New Statesman & Nation 36:288 O 2 '48 1150w

"The English rendering of the letters is somewhat rough. No. 155, which has to do with the varnishing and restoring of pictures, is so strangely translated as to be incomprehensible. However, the original letters are themselves undoubtedly rough. Certainly they were not written for publication. They are only the documentation of a wretched and successful life—a warning to painters and an incentive to speculators in pictures." Maurice Grosser
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 17 '49 1350w

"It's not pleasant reading, for it shows him to have been pretty much a monster, but it serves very well as a case history of the ways in which a monster can also be a genius."
New Yorker 25:111 S 10 '49 120w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
Sat R of Lit 32:32 S 3 '49 650w

GAVER, JACK. Curtain calls. 310p $3.50 Dodd
792 Theater—New York (city) 49-11308

"An account of the Broadway theatre and allied phases of that closely knit world known

GAVER, JACK—Continued
as show business. . . [Includes] all of the elements that make up a Broadway season—stage, night clubs, radio, television." (Publisher's note) No index.

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

Reviewed by John Lardner
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 29 '50 550w

"'Curtain Calls' is frankly a sort of once-over lightly on the current stage, and its judgments, while sharp, are superficial. . . But [it] is not important for its critical judgments. Where it is at its best is in its account of the financial manipulations of that show business which is so tremendously inefficient as a business and only rarely puts on a good show." Richard Match
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:17 N 12 '49 550w

GAY, MRS LAVERNE. Wine of Satan; a tale of Bohemond, prince of Antioch. 308p $3 Scribner

Bohemond I, prince of Antioch—Fiction
49-7180

Romantic novel of the first crusade. The Norman prince, Bohemond, Prince of Antioch, is the central figure.

Booklist 45:192 F 1 '49

"The author of this tale writes vividly, boldly, interestingly of tremendous events and of world-dominating personages. What a movie the book would make! Unfortunately the author goes in for too much imaginative melodramatic detail, and her devotion to archaic words develops into a mannerism."
+ — Cath World 168:416 F '49 120w

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 140w

"Up to par as an historical novel, for which there is always an audience."
+ Kirkus 16:581 N 1 '48 190w

"'Wine of Satan' is colorful and learned, but it is considerably more than a tour de force of archaic spectacle. Miss Gay understands people, and she has contrived, amid all the cluttered wealth of her period detail and the great events of the time, to tell a love story whose characters emerge as human beings. . . To be sure there are minor flaws in the book: Conversational anachronisms, a feminine tendency to italicize and overembroider. But these are little things in a novel of coherent and compelling charm." Charles Lee
+ — N Y Times p16 Ja 16 '49 470w

"Mrs. Gay handles a lot of her historical material in a comparatively conscientious way, writing in a florid but not inexpert manner, but she now and then lurches into a bedroom scene that a boarding-school girl might have concocted. Still, the book is better than its title might indicate."
+ — New Yorker 24:80 Ja 15 '49 130w

"On the whole, it is a very good and pleasing book, though not without fault. Speaking as one who has some familiarity with boats, I doubt very much that a fleet including round ships could travel 'fully fifteen miles each hour of sunlight.' The very fastest clippers never surpassed eighteen knots. . . But these are small defects in a book that has color, background, descriptiveness, suspense, and an array of vivid characters." T. C. Chubb
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:30 F 5 '49 500w

GEHRING, MRS MABEL GREY (MACGLASHAN). On a Scottish island. 238p $2.50 World pub.
49-9135

Brief sketches and stories about the people living on one of the small islands off the west coast of Scotland. The author was born in Glasgow, and is married to an American. The stories were first published in the Christian Science Monitor. Glossary.

Reviewed by William Peden
Chicago Sun Ag 8 '49 50w

"Mrs. Gehring has the ability to make friends with people and to impart her friendships through clear gay words. High spirits run through the book, good fun and the richness of simple living." E. Y.
+ Christian Science Monitor p20 Jl 2 '49 450w

"Probably only one who was herself a Scot but also what she would call an off-islander could so fully have savored the quirks and humor as well as the sterling essential qualities of the people of whom Mrs. Gehring writes." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 3 '49 290w

GEIS, DARLENE. Design for Ann. 212p $2.25 Crowell
49-8502

Ann was plain, and lacked the social graces that her parents would have wished her to have. But at last when Ann was a Junior in high school, the way suddenly opened for her, thru her interest in designing, to get some of the things from life she and her parents wanted.

"Girls will like it, and if they are smart, they'll learn a lot."
+ Kirkus 17:60 F 1 '49 130w

"Will be popular." R. O. Bostwick
Library J 74:382 Mr 1 '49 40w

"This is a wise, well-written story, centered about a personality problem of interest to many girls 12-15." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 14 '49 240w

"Ann's career develops rapidly, perhaps too easily as is the pattern in career stories, but the story makes a design for living that will interest older girl readers."
Wis Lib Bul 45:91 My '49

GEISEL, THEODOR SEUSS (DR SEUSS, pseud). Bartholomew and the oobleck; il. by [the author]. [48p] $2 Random house
49-11423

A story about "the-year-the-king-got-angry-with-the-sky." King Derwin was tired of snow, fog, sunshine, and rain, and demanded that his magicians make something else fall from the skies. The result was oobleck, green drops of molasses-like matter that glued everything tight. This situation became very serious until page-boy Bartholomew Cubbins, hero of 500 Hats (Book Review Digest 1938), showed the king the error of his prideful ways.

Booklist 46:145 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:31 N '49 50w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 22 '49 160w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 13 '49 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

"A good tale, though funnier to children than to adults."
Kirkus 17:465 S 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 74:1828 D 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 150w

"The pictures of the king and his subjects stuck fast in the goo will delight the bubble-gum set."
+ New Yorker 25:168 D 3 '49 60w

"A fourth or fifth grader could read this book himself, but any youngster would love to hear it."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 13 '49 240w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul p12 D '49

GEISTER, EDNA. Fun-makers for small groups. 130p $1.75 Harper

793 Games. Entertaining 48-9334

Not designed for children, this book offers help to the leader or hostess of small parties in the form of suggestions for impromptu fun, active and quiet games, brain teasers, and special parties for each month. Index.

Booklist 45:174 Ja 15 '49

"All kinds for all tastes, wholesome rather than cerebral."
Kirkus 16:565 O 15 '48 70w

Wis Lib Bul 45:12 Ja '49

GEORGE, FATHER, pseud. God's underground; as told to Gretta Palmer [Eng title: Through God's underground]. 296p $3 Appleton

274.7 Russia—Religion. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, Yugoslavia 49-7196

"Most current books about the Soviet regime may be neatly bracketed within two categories —for and against. This work may be classified as 'against.' The author, a Slovakian priest writing under a pseudonym, vividly relates his war and postwar experiences in Eastern Europe and Soviet Russia. Travelling as a doctor with the Red Army, the priest discovered a spiritual underground in which the official Russian Orthodox Church is ignored, and the people keep their religion secretly. The reason for this covert practice of faith is that the official church is considered a puppet and the toleration of religion merely the current Communist 'line.'" Library J

"Unfortunately this highly original book is not as impressive as it would have been had the material been arranged more carefully." Joseph McSorley
Cath World 168:491 Mr '49 300w

"God's Underground is a disappointing treatment of good material . . . It fails to get beneath the surface of tremendous events. . . But the book is still valuable as an introduction to a remarkable man." J. O. Supple
— + Chicago Sun Mr 2 '49 110w

"Father George, a former physician from Croatia who became a professor of sociology and later a Catholic priest, tells this story with many fascinating and fiction-like details. The value of such a book is based on its authenticity. The reliability of Father George is attested to by Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen, who has been acquainted with him for years. But, unfortunately, the story is not told in Father George's original words, but rewritten by Gretta Palmer, a well-known contributor to popular American magazines. I don't see the need for such a ghost writer, however talented." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 49:474 F 18 '49 600w

"This is a book in which there is undoubtedly a mixture of truth and propaganda. But it is absorbingly interesting throughout and all who wish to understand the Russians should read it, but with discriminating judgment."
+ Kirkus 17:51 F 1 '49 340w

Reviewed by A. J. Gaines
Library J 74:124 Ja 15 '49 130w

"'Startling' is the publishers' word for these war and post-war experiences of a courageous Roman Catholic priest—'Father George,' for reasons of safety as set down by the well known journalist, Gretta Palmer. This is understatement. For if one is to credit these revelations—and eminent Catholic clerics vouch for Father George's integrity—what is here reported of the Soviet world is nothing other than astounding. . . Despite much of interest and of beauty in this book, Father George's program seems calculated to increase East-West hostility and to bring that Third War we all so dread by that much nearer." Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 13 '49 850w

Reviewed by E. M. Tainton
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 24 '49 850w

Reviewed by I. D. W. Talmadge
Sat R of Lit 32:30 F 19 '49 600w

GEORGE, ERIC. Life and death of Benjamin Robert Haydon, 1786-1846. 324p il $6 Oxford

B or 92 Haydon, Benjamin Robert [49-2400]

"To most of the English-speaking world Haydon's name is known today—if it is known at all—as the painter to whom Keats, Leigh Hunt, Charles Lamb, William Wordsworth and Elizabeth Barrett Browning addressed poems. It evokes in the memory no vivid recognition of a particular style. . . Haydon vainly sought pre-eminence [in the field of] the painting of history. Benjamin Robert Haydon's whole life was a tireless, dramatic and fruitless struggle for fame. . . To assure it he wrote not only an autobiography but twenty-six folio volumes of a manuscript journal. . . Mr. George brings the life and death into sharp and dramatic focus. . . He supplements the biography with a six-page list of the authorities he has consulted, arranged conveniently under chapter headings." N Y Times

Reviewed by Stephen Bone
Manchester Guardian p3 D 23 '48 250w

Reviewed by K. John
New Statesman & Nation 37:60 Ja 15 '49 1200w

"In Eric George's careful and compassionate book, Haydon, with all his exasperating qualities, his imagined slights, his bland borrowings and his lack of vision, both actual and metaphysical, continues to be a fascinating and tragic figure of really heroic proportions." Agnes Mongan
+ N Y Times p5 F 27 '49 600w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 32:21 Jl 30 '49 230w

"Mr. Eric George's book, which was unfortunately written without access to the manuscript of the journals, is a valuable and entertaining companion to the indispensable autobiography. He has, as must have seemed to him both necessary and agreeable, quoted extensively from Tom Taylor's printed text, but he has also studied his subject from a variety of sources less peculiarly prejudiced than Haydon's personal narrative; in doing so he has established the broad truth of that transparent self-description—a feat that could only be performed by demonstrating how delusive in fact are the painter's less convincing assertions." Robin Ironside
+ Spec 181:742 D 3 '48 1000w

"Mr. George's Life is based firmly on the journals and correspondence, although in particular instances he has had recourse to other material. His task was not easy; the biographer of Haydon, like the anthologist, has difficulty in providing for the tastes of all readers. . . Mr. George too seldom allows himself to do more than tell the story of the journals, with quotations, in his own words. What was required was a study of Haydon. His was apparently so simple and obvious a character that it is only in retrospect that we realize its complications and subtleties. Mr. George has given us Haydon plain—and that we already possessed in the journals."
Times [London] Lit Sup p8 Ja 1 '49 2700w

GEORGE, JOHN LOTHAR, and GEORGE, JEAN CRAIGHEAD. Vison, the mink; il. by Jean George. (American woodland tales) 184p $2.50 Dutton

Minks—Legends and stories 49-2067

The life story of a mink who made himself the overlord of the section near the Potomac river bank where he was born. For six years his aggressiveness and craft kept him alive, against all comers, human or animal, until he was beaten by one of his own sons.

Booklist 45:360 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun My 28 '49 90w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 8 '49 130w

"If you like animal stories you will follow the adventures of Vison with unflagging interest as he pursues the dangerous career of a

GEORGE, J. L.—Continued
hunted creature. Mrs. George's beautiful illustrations intensify the beauty of the writing of these keen students of wild animal life." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:288 Jl '49 100w

"Well-written, rich in the lore of the woods, this book is recommended for libraries where there is a demand for stories of the out-of-doors." J. M. Smith

+ Library J 74:1208 S 1 '49 60w

"The Maryland country is vividly described throughout the seasons. We come to know well the sly, fierce, clever Vison from babyhood to the day he goes forth to his last battle with a young mink, in which he knows he will lose his leadership of his part of the wilds. The book-making is superb, living up to the rarely beautiful pictures." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 29 '49 150w

"A slow-paced story, this lacks the drama and suspense demanded by most readers of 11 to 15. 'Vison, the Mink' is, nevertheless, a fine account of life along the river bank, with a wealth of nature lore set down in graphic and unsentimental style and with many superb wash drawings." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p24 My 1 '49 180w

"As in the story of Vulpes the life of a wild creature with its dangers and its rewards is vividly depicted. The wash drawings that illustrate it are as lovely and as revealing as those that illustrated the first story." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:40 Je 11 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

GEORGE, ROBERT ESMONDE GORDON (ROBERT SENCOURT, pseud). Saint Paul: envoy of grace. (Great writers of the world ser) 378p il $3.50 Sheed

225.92 Paul, Saint 49-7216

A life of St Paul, with a study of the meaning of his epistles. Bibliography. Index.

"Robert Sencourt is to be heralded for his majestic recital of majestic events. The Paul he gives us must be ever so close to the Paul Christ gave us. I know of no higher compliment. . . For the scholarly-inclined there are copious footnotes, thoughtfully placed at the rear of the book to be of service and yet unobtrusive. There is an index (how important to such a book) but no map to fill the vacuum of unlearned geography." J. T. Clune

+ Cath World 169:74 Ap '49 350w

"There is not a dull sentence in the book, but there are quite a number of questionable ones. . . Mr. Sencourt brings to life the Greco-Roman world, but he fails in his evaluation of the statements by Roman writers on the Jews. . . This book is the third of a series called 'Great Writers of the World,' the other two of which are on Horace and Boccaccio. No doubt, St. Paul wrote well, very well, because the love of Christ compelled him, but he is not one of the 'great writers.'" J. M. Oesterreicher

Commonweal 49:640 Ap 8 '49 650w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 4 '49 120w

Reviewed by R. I. Gannon

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ap 10 '49 600w

Reviewed by J. W. Chase

N Y Times p18 F 27 '49 470w

"This is a well-written and often vividly written book, giving an account of all that is known and all that may reasonably be imagined about St. Paul. Mr. Sencourt's reading has been comprehensive; the list of his authorities is impressive. All St Paul's great commentators are there, and the many quotations from them are a valuable addition to the book." Edith Hamilton

+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 My 21 '49 500w

"Mr Sencourt's style displays an excessive amount of Technicolor. . . The general point of view from which it is written is one which accepts the authenticity of the Pastoral Epistles and the Pauline inspiration, although not the actual composition, of Hebrews. Such critical issues are scarcely discussed in the body of the book, which is intended to be a popular exposition, but they are briefly justified in a series of appendices, which are unfortunately, printed in a type so small that the number of applicants for Mr. Bevan's optical bounty is likely to be increased. We should like to know, but are not told, why Mr. Sencourt takes so very harsh a view of the Jewish Christian community in Jerusalem and of their attitude towards St. Paul. The notes and references are printed together at the end of the volume. There is much to be said against this contemporary fashion, but, when it is followed, the notes should surely be numbered continuously throughout. . . The ten illustrations include some excellent photographs and an impressive El Greco."

Times [London] Lit Sup p45 Ja 15 '49 700w

GERAHTY, DIGBY GEORGE (ROBERT STANDISH, pseud). Elephant walk. 278p $3 Macmillan

49-9454

Tom Carey, an English tea planter in Ceylon, built a huge house on a beautiful site, defying the native tradition and the elephants who had crossed the spot for centuries. In Tom Carey's day the house was known as a bachelor's paradise, where hospitality was lavishly dispensed. When Tom's son returned from England with his bride, things changed. After a few years the elephants, quiet for a time, took their revenge and the house went up in flames. To Ruth Carey and her husband and son it was the beginning of a new life.

Booklist 45:202; 355 F 15 '49; Je 15 '49

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 169:395 Ag '49 290w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun Je 28 '49 450w

"The chief interest and merit in Robert Standish's story of a Ceylonese tea-plantation lie in its portrayal of tea-growing routine and the way Englishmen lived in a place like Ratnagalla Valley. . . Character-drawing is not quite persuasive, but the style, though lacking a sharp emotional edge, has warmth when it is applied to the scene, and a fluid clarity."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 30 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

Kirkus 17:218 Ap 15 '49 240w

"Competent writer, in story of well built up suspense and sense of impending tragedy, disappoints by unlikely happy ending, poor characterization." R. W. Henderson

+ — Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 100w

"The very detachment of the characters in 'Elephant Walk' from the Ceylon in which they live and the arbitrary way in which their author 'manages' them are probably the major weaknesses of Standish's new novel, which would appear on the surface to have everything needed for a tale of adventure. Only when cholera comes to the plantation is there real tautness of narrative and a sense of genuine involvement." J. J. Espey

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 3 '49 600w

"That Ruth's conflict is played out on a Ceylon tea estate is not of prime importance. The novel is written against that backdrop with the props of bull elephants and rampant planters, but it is not a novel of Ceylon. It is a novel about a house, and Elephant Walk is one of the most fascinating houses in recent fiction." M. H. Tweedy

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 3 '49 420w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso

New Yorker 25:58 Jl 2 '49 220w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 3 '49 900w

"Robert Standish has himself engaged in tea planting in Ceylon, and spent many of his years as a journalist in the Far East. . . In this new novel he displays rare understanding of the Englishman in the tropics, and with nostalgic vividness, paints an existence more spacious than any we shall see again." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Jl 16 '49 550w

"Honest if weighty going. Mr. Standish at least can recognise an elephant." L. A. G. Strong
Spec 181:252 Ag 20 '48 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p453 Ag 14 '48 250w

GERALD, JAMES EDWARD. The press and the Constitution, 1931-1947. 173p $3.50; text ed $3 Univ. of Minn.
323.445 Liberty of the press 48-3804

"This work is a brief summary of decisions, chiefly of the Supreme Court of the United States, rendered between 1931 and 1947, which are concerned with freedom of the press. It is primarily a case by case development of the trends of decisions in the following phases of the subject: punishment of contempt by the judiciary; control of the picketing weapon—as an instrument of the press—in labor disputes by employers, legislatures, law enforcement officials and courts; application of labor legislation to publishing firms by executive administrative agencies; taxation of press enterprises by legislatures; enforcement of federal antitrust legislation by executive and judicial branches of government; and censorship through licensing." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The political scientist should take notice when a journalist invades the hallowed precincts of the constitutional lawyer and explores the terrain with insight, imagination, thoroughness, and objectivity. Professor Gerald, who is on the journalism staff of the University of Minnesota, has done exactly that in [this book]." W. O. Farber
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:999 O '48 700w

"An able study." C. H. Pritchett
+ Ann Am Acad 261:185 Ja '49 380w
Chicago Sun p8X Ag 8 '48 110w

"Sixteen turbulent years of American legal history . . . are sketched in readable, non-technical style by this journalist-author."
+ Columbia Law R 48:982 S '48 110w

Reviewed by Samuel Abrahams
Social Studies 40:333 N '49 330w

"The analysis of the voting records of members of the Old and the New Courts in key cases is interesting. In addition, the discussion of the development of the 'clear and present danger doctrine,' limiting the use of coercive and repressive forces of government on the agencies of the press, is very helpful. The value of the work is limited, however, by the absence of discussion of the responsibilities of the press in the fields of regulation which are examined."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:338 S '48 240w

GEREN, PAUL FRANCIS. Pilgrimage of Peter Strong; drawings by Cyrus LeRoy Baldridge. 229p $2.75 Harper
48-10241

"Paul Geren traveled extensively in the Far East before joining an ambulance unit in Burma, and this volume—a successor to his 'Burma Diary' [Book Review Digest 1944]—is a miscellany of war experiences and impressionistic sketches of people and places. From them he has evolved a sequence of parables and a mystic philosophy of sacrifices and faith. The book traces the growth of spiritual awareness in the midst of suffering, cruelty and senseless destruction." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"The fact that this volume was written by the author of Burma Diary recommends it immediately to all who have read the latter book. Any one who has enjoyed the unusual flavor of Burma Diary will be anxious to travel here and there with the somewhat whimsical Peter Strong." J. H. Franklin
+ Crozer Q 26:181 Ap '49 700w

"Whimsy, humor and a sensitiveness to beauty in nature and man help to make this book pleasant to read."
+ Kirkus 16:507 O 1 '48 150w

"Mr. Geren's intent is admirable, but he is not at ease in allegory, and his message is somewhat clouded."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 O 10 '48 100w

GERTSCH, WILLIS JOHN. American spiders. (New illustrated naturalist) 285p il $6.95 Van Nostrand
595.44 Spiders 49-11600

"This book treats of the spiders of the United States and Canada and is concerned almost wholly with their habits and life histories, their morphology and peculiarities, and also with their numbers and kinds." (p.1) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:116 D 1 '49
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 27 '49 180w

GERVASI, FRANK. Big government; the meaning and purpose of the Hoover commission report. (Whittlesey house publication) 366p $4 McGraw 353 U.S. Commission on organization of the executive branch of government. U.S. —Executive departments 49-10899

"A volume which looks into the report of the Hoover Commission and assesses both its merits and demerits in non-arid language and compact form. Author, who enriches his book by drawing upon reports of other investigating bodies, stresses what the Hoover Commission discovered during its life span and how the proposals it made, relative to efficient and economic functioning of the executive branch of the government, vitally concern the American taxpayer and citizen." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:91 N 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49
Current Hist 17:286 N '49 30w

"Primarily for those active in or students of government, but important for informed citizens."
+ Kirkus 17:416 Ag 1 '49 160w

"Especially recommended for public and college libraries." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:1462 O 1 '49 130w

"He has brought to the job the conciseness of a good reporter and the technique for simplification of the experienced magazine writer. It still doesn't make fast reading: it couldn't. But if you have a steadfast though non-professional interest in finding out what the commission had to say, you can get it here in easy words and without too much labor." Cabell Phillips
+ N Y Times p30 O 23 '49 270w

"Mr. Gervasi is strongly convinced that the report should be acted upon, and he does a competent job of presenting and dramatizing the facts it contains."
+ New Yorker 25:136 O 15 '49 50w

"Any serious student of the problems would be far better advised to consult the Hoover Report itself, which is neither academic nor unreadable enough to require simplified paraphrasing, at least not as soon as six months after its appearance." C. W. W.
— San Francisco Chronicle p34 D 4 '49 200w

GEYL, PIETER. Napoleon: for and against; tr. from the Dutch by Olive Renier. 477p maps $5 Yale univ. press
B or 92 Napoleon I, emperor of the French A49-9829

This is not a biography of Napoleon. The author, professor of modern history in the University of Utrecht, states that his aim

GEYL, PIETER—Continued
"is to set forth and compare a number of representations of Napoleon as given by leading French historians." He divides the historians into two groups, those who were "for" Napoleon, and those who were "against" him. Chronological table. Indexes.

"His is a historian's book for historians. While it may prove too complex for the general reading public, it deserves to take its place as the best single volume on Napoleon in the English language." H. S. Hughes
+ Am Hist R 55:121 O '49 900w

"The book as a whole is a very interesting contribution to our knowledge of the history and historiography of the Napoleonic era. It is to be regretted that the author omitted the two volumes by Eugene Tarlé, the Russian historian who has given us the first substantial interpretation of Napoleon and his age from a moderate Marxian point of view. Tarlé's volumes are about the only basically novel contribution to the Napoleonic literature in the last quarter of a century." H. E. Barnes
+ — Ann Am Acad 265:196 S '49 600w

Discussion by the author
Ann Am Acad 266:246 N '49 390w

Christian Century 66:942 Ag 10 '49 280w

"Whole libraries of learned works have dealt with the strange manifestation of Napoleon Bonaparte, but it would be difficult to find any that is more accurate in its delineation, more universal in its outlook, or more helpful amid the complex political and social problems of today, than this original work of Professor Geyl." Henry Sowerby
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 8 '49 700w

"The book is far from dull, with brisk comment of his own."
+ Current Hist 16:343 Je '49 50w

"Professor Geyl has achieved the rare feat of writing a book which is satisfying and stimulating both to the professional historian and to the general reader. For a reviewer generally captious it is a high pleasure to welcome a book without reservation." A. J. P. Taylor
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 1 '49 550w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor
New Statesman & Nation 37:207 F 26 '49 1900w

"This is not a new life of Napoleon, but a survey of the French historians on that inexhaustible and entrancing theme. That survey is faultlessly clear, eminently sane, and tolerably complete." Albert Guerard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 21 '49 1350w

"The underlying idea seems to us a most fertile one. Great figures in history are judged differently by different generations. A history of the various interpretations of Caesar or Cromwell or Frederick II or Peter I might not solve the riddle of their personalities, but it would throw much light on the later generations and help us to understand them. That is the very thing Professor Geyl does successfully in the case of Napoleon. Clearly he is fascinated by his subject—by Napoleon as well as by the French historians—and he is able to make his readers share his fascination. His attitude, on the whole, is hostile to Napoleon and the Napoleonic legend." Hans Kohn
+ N Y Times p21 My 22 '49 1000w

New Yorker 25:93 Je 4 '49 120w

"The book is delightfully written and makes an important contribution to the literature on Napoleon." D. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 11 '49 110w

"The magic of Napoleon's name is such that even dull books about him win attention. When they are written, as this one is, with insight, scholarship, and charm, a circle of readers is assured. The English translation by Olive Renier is fluent and animated." Geoffrey Bruun
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Jl 16 '49 650w

"A book of great originality full of often unexpected interest. To begin with, it is a first-class discussion of Napoleon and his achievement, with every point of view represented from Taine to Bainville. The book is planned with skill, and the chapters on the different historians and their views are diversified by introducing discussions of the different facets of Napoleon. . . All the time Dr. Geyl represents the discussion, not as flat and finished, but as a living and continuing argument. No one will be able to grumble that history, presented in this fashion, is either dull or remote. But Professor Geyl's book provides a good deal more than one of the best accounts of Napoleon in English. It is an illuminating chapter in the intellectual history of France in the past hundred and fifty years." Alan Bullock
+ Spec 182:262 F 25 '49 650w

"A lively and readable book which combines scientific method and entertainment."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p163 Mr 12 '49 1000w

"From Chateaubriand and Mme. de Staël to Madelin and Lefebvre, Professor Geyl examines the extraordinary variety of judgments historians—most of them serious, hard-working, trained historians—have delivered on Napoleon. He follows them into the concrete details on which they base their judgments, into their own lives, into their politics, their literary styles, their sources. All this he does with the skill of the literary critic, and with his own quiet, unembittered, barely ironic detachment and uncommon sense." Crane Brinton
+ Yale R n s 39:160 autumn '49 800w

GHOSE, SUDHINDRA NATH. And gazelles leaping; with il. by Shrimati Arnakali E. Carlile. 238p $3.50 Macmillan

915.4 India—Social life and customs. Children in India 49-11601

"Fictionalized autobiography of a Hindu child. . . The story deals with a group of fabulous children and their pets who attend Svenska Bibi's kindergarten on the outskirts of Calcutta. Too, this is the story of one boy's search for Urvashi—Divine Beauty—and his feeling that he found it when he heard the Negro spiritual Deep River sung." Library J

Booklist 46:98 N 15 '49

Reviewed by P. M. Buck
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 20 '49 550w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 8 '49 650w

Kirkus 17:442 Ag 15 '49 160w

"A rare combination of the charm of childhood and the mystery and awesomeness of India." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 80w

Library J 74:1560 O 15 '49 50w

"The book is not a smug moral tale. The children are presented without sentimentalism. Part of the charm of the book lies in its picture of old-fashioned India. It is a child's-eye view of a radiant world of colour, turbans, peacocks, tame elephants, with an amiable older generation of village elders from whom the children gain their knowledge of the world. Mr. Ghose writes in a peculiar and effective way, using the paragraph skillfully as a means for stress and emphasis." G. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 29 '49 300w

Reviewed by P. H. Newby
New Statesman & Nation 37:283 Mr 19 '49 600w

"An astonishingly truthful book. . . This is a book, conceived, not for a purpose, but with love and it opens avenues of approach in intimate details that, in a long sojourn in India, our alien eyes would never have seen for themselves. Sudhin Ghose is a Bengali, and though he has written for years, this is the first book he has translated into English. He has translated more than a book: he has translated a country." Rumer Godden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 27 '49 1000w

"In the simplicity of 'And Gazelles Leaping' there is wisdom, and in its humor, mature restraint." Louis Collins
+ N Y Times p46 N 13 '49 140w

"A splendidly written and rather wistful story about some Bengal children."
+ New Yorker 25:154 N 12 '49 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 27 '49 330w

"His writing is artless and episodic, but permeated with a lively sense of the droll. He has loved his childhood and does not wish to clutter it with 'psychology' at this late stage. He does not pose or justify. There is in his memories the light touch, the cheerful disregard for the norms of perspective and composition that lie on a Rajput water color, and also its charming literalness. At their best these reminiscences are limpid refractions of an experience that every grown-up will in some degree recognize as his own, shimmer though they may in the unaccustomed light of a quaint setting." J. G. Hitrec
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 D 10 '49 650w

"A remarkable and delightful book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p276 Ap 30 '49 550w

GIBB, HAMILTON ALEXANDER ROSSKEEN. Mohammedanism; an historical survey. (Home univ. lib) 206p $2 Oxford

297 Mohammedanism [49-9255]

"Beginning with its origins as a practical religion in the Koran and the preaching of Mohammed, the writer traces the growth of Islamic theology and the expansion of the Moslem social order, and the rise of the mystical Sufi movement. The concluding chapter analyses the problems which confront Mohammedanism in the modern world and its reactions to them." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:356 Je 15 '49

"This is probably as scientifically accurate and objective an account of the rise and spread of Islam, and of its sects and systems of thought, as could be written by any Occidental, and much more objective than any that would be written by one whose interest was either to propagate or to confute the Mohammedan religion." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1014 Ag 31 '49 350w

GIBBINGS, ROBERT. Over the reefs and far away. 240p il $3.50 Dutton

919.6 South Sea islands 49-8129

Anecdotes of the author's travels among the South Pacific islands, illustrated with reproductions of his wood-engravings.

Booklist 45:279 Ap 15 '49

"Mr. Gibbings offers a pleasant and relaxing journey. He doesn't ridicule. He doesn't rail. And finely worked wood-engravings add to the interest and the fun." R. N.
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 31 '49 420w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"Robert Gibbings has health of mind, and to read him is to have a holiday and a reassurance. . . He writes without romantic sentiment. His search has not been for Utopian, so much as for everyday things, seen with Beauty in the eye of the Beholder." Ernestine Evans
+ Commonweal 49:616 Ap 1 '49 650w

"Just the book for really leisured armchair relaxation—journeying to distant places with a delightful guide. The wood engravings are familiar technique for all who know and love his earlier books."
+ Kirkus 17:25 Ja 1 '49 140w

"Enthusiastically recommended." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 74:492 Mr 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by Richardson Wright
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 27 '49 900w

Reviewed by M. J. Tweedy
N Y Times p6 Ap 10 '49 900w

"Another individualistic and delightful book by the Irish naturalist and engraver who wrote 'Lovely is the Lee.' "
+ New Yorker 25:113 My 7 '49 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 19 '49 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p669 N 27 '48 600w

Wis Lib Bul 45:86 My '49

GIBBS, LEWIS, pseud. See Cove, J. W.

GIBBS, SIR PHILIP HAMILTON. Both your houses. 320p $3 McBride

[49-11697]

A novel dealing with present-day political problems in England. The story is personalized in the account of the unhappy marriage of the daughter of a Conservative peer, and the son of a Labor M.P.

"One can believe in the politics but not in the people. That a fine, decent girl like Pam would have married a shifty cad like Julian is unbelievable. Gibbs doesn't make either her passion or Julian's charm convincing. Nowhere is there conviction of reality strong enough to give the sentences rhythm and momentum. The prose is flaccid, the dialogue wooden, the similitudes worn." Horace Reynolds
— + N Y Times p32 D 11 '49 260w

"Sir Philip does not so much interpret life as project a picture, nostalgic, gentle, dignified, of a lost world. He can record the gestures of the present, but his understanding and his love are with the past." L. A. G. Strong
Spec 182:304 Mr 4 '49 190w

GIBRAN, KAHLIL. Tears and laughter; tr. from the Arabic by Anthony Rizcallah Ferris; ed. by Martin L. Wolf. new rev & enl ed 127p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

892.78 49-3948

A new and enlarged edition of a volume containing both prose and poetry, the early writings of the Eastern mystic, author of The Prophet.

Booklist 45:357 Je 15 '49

"The delicate and yet rugged beauty of both his prose and poetry, his ability to express the 'inexpressible' make him a mystic in the best sense of that oft mis-used word. The editor, Martin L. Wolf, has chosen well: we can only hope he will give us more." J. H. Titus
+ Churchman 163:16 Jl '49 150w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 26:286 Jl '49 100w

"Gibran's writings have gained him a wide following among those sensitive, emotional readers who find their chief pleasure in moods, mysterious and indefinite, which bear them through a cosmic landscape beyond the frets of everyday. No Western writer dealing with such large abstractions would sound natural. But from an oriental source they seem as appropriate as they are exotic. It is an easy magic, too vague to be lasting, but not harmful." Robert Hillyer
N Y Times p7 Ap 3 '49 850w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 18 '49 50w

"Gibran has the slow-paced mystic symbolism of an ancient which combined with his experience of the problems of more recent times gives him an undeniable universality not only in approach but also in stature. For his philosophy is of simplicity and kindness and centers on his one important theme—love in all its phases. Anyone who has read him knows his soothing tenderness as they know his forceful, sometimes terse descriptions, both sides being present in the works of this volume." J. W. Bogan
+ Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 210w

GIBSON, CHARLES EDMUND. Story of the ship. (Life of science lib) 272p il $4 Schuman

623.8 Ships 48-9316

A history of transport by water from the dugouts of the Stone Age to the present age of superships. Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:308 My 15 '49

Reviewed by John Bunker
Christian Science Monitor p14 F 16 '49 440w

"Rather sparingly illustrated, it is solid yet entertaining reading. . . Recommended for the general reader and senior high school." F. L. Morrison
+ Library J 74:315 F 15 '49 130w

"From a definite British viewpoint, he succeeds in a distinguished high-lighting of water transportation between the stone and atomic ages." Felix Riesenberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p31 N 28 '48 450w

"Mr. Gibson has made a searching study of the development of the ship. . . The 'Story of the Ship' does not explore future possibilities to any great extent, but every line suggests them, chronicling today's commonplace reality and accomplishments as the dream of some venture of yesterday." George Horne
+ N Y Times p29 F 6 '49 650w

GIBSON, ROLAND. Cotton textile wages in the United States and Great Britain; a comparison of trends, 1860-1945. 137p pa $2.50 King's Crown press

331.287721 Textile industry. Wages 48-9414

"Traces the movement of cotton textile wages in Great Britain and the United States from 1860 to 1945, and the effect of labor union restrictions and factory modernization on wages and the welfare of the worker." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"There is much interest just now in international comparisons, and Mr. Gibson's book has valuable information, especially for recent decades. The long road he travels has many pitfalls, however, and he has not always avoided them." Witt Bowden
+ — Ann Am Acad 262:229 Mr '49 240w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 40w

GIBSON, WILLIAM MERRIAM, and ARMS, GEORGE WARREN, comps. Bibliography of William Dean Howells. 182p il pa $2.25 N.Y. public lib.

012 Howells, William Dean—Bibliography A48-6028

"Reprinted with additions and revisions from The Bulletin of the New York Public Library. . . The bibliographical materials are grouped under six divisions. First is a check list of works and partial works arranged chronologically. There is, next, an alphabetical check list of periodicals, newspapers, and 'departments' giving the dates of Howells materials. Collation of works and partial works follows, in chronological arrangement, some of the works being annotated in considerable bibliographical detail. Fourth is the Annual Register, a chronological list of periodical publications. These include Howell's articles, book reviews, essays, and the like, a number of which were subsequently reprinted in books. Cross references to the latter are provided. The fifth list is a relatively brief one culled from 'about eight hundred items' of critical writing about Howells. Most of the literature cited here comes from periodicals. Concluding the bibliography is a name index of the illustrators of Howell's books and of all the literary figures discussed in his critical articles and books." U S Quarterly Bkl

Reviewed by Walter Blair
Library Q 19:213 Jl '49 600w

"Messrs. Gibson and Arms have worked long and faithfully in locating and ordering this vast accumulation. A few gaps probably exist; some of Howells' occasional writings, anonymously published and as yet unidentified, will very likely be discovered and added to future editions of the bibliography. But the great bulk of the author's achievement is here competently listed and described, offering a substantial and reliable aid to scholars in American literature. The organization shows editorial skill and sound critical judgment. . . The New York Public Library is to be felicitated for publishing neatly and compactly a work which many will find indispensable. It is an important contribution to American scholarship and provides a model for bibliographies of difficult and extensive subjects." C. T. Miller
+ New Eng Q 21:558 D '48 550w

"To the student of Howells's whole output these lists will be of great service. To the collector of his best and most enduring work—that is, his books, and more particularly the novels of his middle period—the bibliographical treatment accorded to those books can only come as a disappointment. Because of the war the bibliographers could not study the British editions, and these they propose to cover in a 'check-list' later. But the British editions are crucial."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p575 O 9 '48 310w

"Extraordinarily complete and competently edited. . . Besides listing in convenient form the writings of an important and influential American author, this bibliography offers a mine of information to those who are interested in the social and cultural life of the United States during the period 1852-1920."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:512 D '48 320w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Fruits of the earth; tr. from the French by Dorothy Bussy. 293p $3 Knopf

848 49-10557

"The present volume combines in a first American edition two of Gide's books: The Fruits of the Earth, written in 1897, and The New Fruits, in 1935. The two really form a whole, complementing each other as their author's testaments of youth and age, and display the same structure (or lack of it) as collections of pensées, aphorisms, prayers, exhortations and poems, as records of daily experiences, observations of nature, and travel in Europe, Africa and the Near East. Each is addressed to an imaginary young man—a possible pupil, or companion, or, in the later book, a younger second self who shall relive his experiences." New Repub

Atlantic 184:100 N '49 130w

Reviewed by W. S. Rogers
+ Canadian Forum 29:142 S '49 290w

Kirkus 17:414 Ag 1 '49 130w

"A famous book which exercised a profound influence on French writers of the first quarter of our century. . . There can be no better initiation into the author's thought than the reading of these two fragments of lyrical prose divided by 38 years of reflection." Eugène Vinaver
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 2 '49 120w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 121:20 S 19 '49 800w

Reviewed by Lloyd Morris
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 2 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Stephen Spender
N Y Times p3 S 25 '49 800w

"I fear that this reader, who is no longer young, must report that the book has aged badly. . . The translation, by Dorothy Bussy, is superb. I admire especially her metrical translation in 'The New Fruits.'" Morris Bishop
— + Sat R of Lit 32:16 S 24 '49 750w

"It is because the surface smoothness of his style hides such rich confusions and such living contradictions that Gide is a great writer. Fruits of the Earth is one of his most concentrated, ambiguous and disturbing works. To the wrong reader it might be dangerous. The right reader will, at a certain stage, obey Gide's own injunction: 'And now, Nathaniel, throw away my book.' "

Times [London] Lit Sup p382 Je 10 '49 800w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Journals; v3: 1928-1939; tr. from the French and annotated by Justin O'Brien. 450p $6 Knopf

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (47-30956)

"The final volume of Gide's remarkable day-to-day record of the places he visited, the people he met, and the thoughts that rent him during the years 1889 to 1939. In this volume, which covers the last decade of that period, the entries range from ideological and aesthetic speculations to angry refutations of derogatory small talk about the author." (New Yorker) Glossary of persons. List of works of Andre Gide. Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 183:85 Je '49 300w

Booklist 45:294 My 1 '49

Reviewed by William Peden
Chicago Sun My 5 '49 550w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 D 4 '49 90w

"Surely this volume, and the two which have preceded it, are among the books of our time which posterity may well call great." Horace Reynolds

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 30 '49 1250w

"The matter of Gide is the matter of his principle, the guiding motive implementing all his writing, and nowhere more explicitly than in the Journals. The value of this third volume of Justin O'Brien's careful translation, which contains the notebooks written between Gide's fifty-ninth and sixtieth years, during the decade preceding 1939, is that the principle receives the most mature exposition." Florence Codman

Commonweal 50:18 Ap 15 '49 900w

Kirkus 17:98 F 15 '49 110w

"Taken together, the journals clearly form a basic document in literary history. Superbly translated and annotated by Justin O'Brien. . . Recommended." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 74:492 Mr 15 '49 100w

"It is not only Gide that one discovers in the Journals. Other great writers, dead and living, appear in clear outline, each thrown into relief by a brief but penetrating flash of light. Professor O'Brien's admirable index will henceforth enable critics to profit by this immense store of literary wisdom; and it will no longer be possible to venture a judgment on any great problem of European literature without first discovering what Gide thought about it. Altogether there is so much to be thankful for that one is willing to forget the occasional clumsiness of the translation—a contrast to Gide's own incisive style—and a few inevitable Americanisms." Eugène Vinaver

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 2 '49 550w

Reviewed by Albert Guérard, jr.
Nation 168:689 Je 18 '49 1350w

Reviewed by Giles Romilly
New Statesman & Nation 38:389 O 8 '49 1100w

"The English version by Justin O'Brien is a masterpiece of felicitous translation, which reproduces all the qualities of Gide's personal style. And readers will have reason to be grateful for his expert editorial annotation of the text which makes it possible to identify every person and book mentioned by Gide." Lloyd Morris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 27 '49 1200w

"This is the last installment of Justin O'Brien's excellent translation of Gide's journals, and it is the richest." Francis Steegmuller

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 3 '49 600w

"It is, of course, in the speculative passages that Gide makes his greatest impression, but even the trivial items have their interest."

+ New Yorker 25:114 Mr 26 '49 140w

"Only against the total background of Gide's work do the 'Journals' assume their proper place and function. Started as exercises in stylistic economy, they are by definition discursive and occasional. Always honest, incisive and stimulating, they are nevertheless organically uncomposed variations upon multiple themes: Christianity, literature, Communism, travel, music, sex. . . Because they trace the lines of his life-long development, the 'Journals' both augment and illuminate the artistic creation. Measured against their times, they partially document the major intellectual interests of Europe throughout half a century." Kenneth Scholes

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 10 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Maxwell Geismar
Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ap 16 '49 700w

Reviewed by Goronwy Rees
Spec 183:56 Jl 8 '49 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p446 Jl 8 '49 1450w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Notes on Chopin; tr. from the French by Bernard Frechtman. 126p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

780.81 Chopin, Frederic François 49-10766

An essay setting forth the author's delight in the music of Chopin. The book also includes Fragments from the "Journal," having a bearing on music; and some hitherto unpublished miscellanea.

Reviewed by Felix Borowski
Chicago Sun O 27 '49 120w

Reviewed by L. A. Sloper
Christian Science Monitor p15 N 10 '49 150w

Reviewed by Gilbert Chase
Music Lib Assn Notes 7:99 D '49 650w

"Just what does one find in these loosely tied fragments? Nothing about Chopin the man, about Chopin the artist, Chopin the lover. Instead Mr. Gide treats us in parts of his book to a long and pretentious music lesson, apparently written by a frustrated and embittered amateur pianist who has tried in vain to dominate the difficult keyboard for the last sixty years. . . To be sure, one finds here and there in Mr. Gide's book a few sentences of fine sensibility, with a poet's iridescent light on them, but they soon get lost in a maze of dilettante chatter about musical matters of little consequence." Artur Rubinstein

— + N Y Times p1 O 16 '49 1100w

"In the original French no doubt Gide gives the reader a literary pleasure compensating, perhaps more than compensating, for the lack of substance in his criticism; but he reaches us here through the filter of a translation which frequently deprives his style not only of charm but of sense." Gerald Abraham

Sat R of Lit 32:34 O 29 '49 650w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Oscar Wilde: In memoriam (reminiscences) [and] De profundis; tr. from the French by Bernard Frechtman. 50p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Wilde, Oscar 49-8466

"Personal memories of the author's friendship with Wilde, written early in this century. The sketches first picture Wilde in the days when he was enjoying his enormous success and consciously acting—or so Gide suggests—in such an outré manner as to force society to crack down on him. The latter part of the book shows Wilde in the harsh years of his exile." (New Yorker) Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 183:85 Je '49 300w

GIDE, A. P. G.—Continued

"Well translated by Bernard Frechtman, this is a macabre brochure which has both literary and esoteric interest but is only recommended to the largest libraries." George Freedley
Library J 74:664 Ap 15 '49 30w
Nation 169:44 Jl 9 '49 90w

"The essays are two of the numerous French tributes to Wilde that appeared during and after the years of his trial and imprisonment. They contain Gide's memories of his acquaintance with Wilde both before and after his fall, and a sympathetic critique of 'De Profundis.' The memoirs give as dramatic and tragic a picture as Gide knows how to paint of the breaking of a human being, but one badly blurred by the overinsistent intrusion of the narrator." Francis Steegmuller
N Y Times p19 My 15 '49 270w
New Yorker 25:114 My 14 '49 140w

"If this sensitive translation does not add much to our comprehension of Wilde, it serves to remind us that Gide shared some of his ideas; that Gide is, in fact, the only living writer of importance whose roots are in the same soil of the fin de siecle that nourished the author of 'Dorian Gray.' " Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ap 30 '49 170w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 240w

GIES, JOSEPH. They never had it so good. 243p $2.75 Harper
49-7367

"Anatomizes the species familiar to everyone who has been in Service: the gold brick, both officer and enlisted man, who made a good thing out of the war. Mainly the story of Harvey Bull, a composite of all the men who dodge details, break rules and still manage to land the soft jobs in rear echelon and collect the appropriate chevrons and decorations, this saga is played against a backdrop of blackmarketing of Army matériel and the looting of Europe." N Y Times

Kirkus 16:628 D 1 '48 130w

"An acidulous account, transcribed with the subtlety of a pile-driver. . . Servicemen will recognize the types, but it will be a bitter draught for others." A. J. Gaines
Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 100w

"With the charitable exception of Private Bull himself, Gies presents us merely with a set of names and ranks. And even the mercurial Harvey Bull is sketched so carelessly that this reader was startled to find Harvey involved in a series of arrangements with complacent French, German and Polish ladies who often double as business partners. Harvey seemed altogether too neuter a creation for such fleshly goings on. This is the kind of idea that offers obvious possibilities for burlesque and Mr. Gies has not hesitated to embrace them all." Budd Schulberg
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 6 '49 500w

"Slight but effective novel. . . Although it is Bull who has Mr. Gies' special love, there is enough left over in his smoking typewriter to demolish a photo-hungry commanding general, officers who take credit for work done by subordinates, war correspondents who send front line dispatches from rear echelon divisions, and civilian draft-dodgers." Vincent Elefante
+ N Y Times p21 Ja 30 '49 150w

"Lacking both humanity and timeliness, this book affects one like a highly colored but slightly out-of-date newspaper exposé, with cartoon characters thrown in for the sake of illustration."
— New Yorker 24:93 F 5 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 F 6 '49 500w

"Gies's information about Army operators is impressively complete. Its merits as literature, however, do not come up to its qualifications as a handbook for the unscrupulous. Gies has taken one small segment of the total experience of the war and examined it intently, but even this examination turns out to be a superficial one." Lee Rogow
— + Sat R of Lit 32:37 My 7 '49 750w

Reviewed by W. R. Manchester
Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 300w

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, EDWIN. Damion's daughter. 308p $3 Doubleday
49-10244

A behind-the-scenes story of New York theatre life. Ira Damion is an old-fashioned but superficially successful play producer. When he tries to take his daughter into partnership with him, the results are disastrous.

"Characters and action seem held in a kind of sypnosis produced by Damion's bondage to his obsessions, but the author's keen realization of 'theatre' comes through to the reader and holds the interest. Significant is Mr. Gilbert's praise of all things modern—playwriting, staging, scenery, acting, art and music." W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 S 15 '49 220w
Kirkus 17:367 Jl 15 '49 180w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 21 '49 90w

"Mr. Gilbert has made a brave attempt to penetrate that dazzling country behind the curtain where broken spirits and heady raptures are the order of the day. But while his props are credible—the casting, the backstage flirtation, the rehearsal fiasco and the out-of-town first night success all sound authentic and manage to entertain—the characters (with perhaps the exception of Damion) somehow remain detached from the theatrical atmosphere, involved in psychological problems which are too much for their essentially lean souls." Nona Balakian
N Y Times p20 Ag 21 '49 300w

"All the theatrical detail is interesting, kept in neat balance but authentic and essential to the story itself." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 32:57 O 8 '49 650w

GILBERT, FRANK ALBERT. Mineral nutrition of plants and animals. 131p il $2.75 Univ. of Okla. press
581.13 Plants—Nutrition. Nutrition
48-11835

"This is a summary of more than three hundred books and articles. It has a history of plant nutrition, a classification of chemical elements used in nutrition, and a discussion of the metals and nonmetals that are involved. Numbers in the text refer to a bibliography." Library J

"The importance of more attention to the mineral content of soil is well established. While further knowledge is accumulating it is also important to apply the knowledge we now have to useful purposes. This book should be helpful in stimulating such action." O. A. Bessey + Am J Pub Health 39:1188 S '49 190w
Booklist 45:188 F 1 '49

"Should be useful text for reference." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 60w

GILBERT, KENNETH. Challenge of the wild. 240p $3 Superior pub.
49-9076

Episodes in the wilderness experiences of Jeff Croy, who had fled from the burden of despair, brought about by his own financial ruin, and the death of his wife. The chapters deal with elks, bears, cougars, and other wild animals met in the woods which he had made his refuge.

"Good yarns, not of the most distinguished style, but closely observant of wild ways and full of action."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 30 '49 180w

Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 40w

"Mr. Gilbert is not exactly a prose stylist, but 'Challenge of the Wild' is for those who still remember the joy which they first explored the wilderness with Ernest Thompson Seton."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ag 7 '49 110w

"Despite some spotty writing in the transitional sections, nature lovers will thrill to the amazing courage of Lutra, the dog-otter, in his death struggle with a king beaver; to the frightful revenge taken by the wolf, Black Ruff, for the murder of his mate and pups, and to the penalty paid by Gotch-Ear, the gangster cougar, who defied the laws of nature." L. A. P.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 31 '49 170w

"As entertainment 'Challenge of the Wild' is to be highly recommended and as natural history it is by no means to be deplored. It is packed with most interesting facts, most of which are probably first-hand observations. But there is something wrong with the book, a negative rather than a positive wrong, which does not materially detract from the work as a whole. . . This is a character named Jeff Croy, ostensibly a woodsman who failed as a businessman, and, having failed, returned to being a woodsman. . . Mr. Gilbert himself is at fault in dragging this unsubstantial alter ego into his delightful book at all." J. T. Sanderson
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 S 3 '49 500w

GILBERT, MICHAEL FRANCIS. He didn't mind danger [Eng title: They never looked inside]. 245p $2.50 Harper 49-9450

Detective story.

Booklist 46:35 S 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 1 '49 110w

Kirkus 17:219 Ap 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 3 '49 270w

"A convincing and warmly realistic modern suspense story. . . This is a first novel to make you look forward hopefully to more Michael Gilbert." A. B.
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 10 '49 230w

"Very lively stuff."
+ New Yorker 25:87 Je 25 '49 90w

"Good grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Jl 9 '49 40w

GILBRETH, FRANK BUNKER, and CAREY, MRS ERNESTINE MOLLER (GILBRETH). Cheaper by the dozen; il. by Donald McKay. 237p $3 Crowell

B or 92 Gilbreth, Frank Bunker, 1868-1924. Gilbreth, Mrs Lillian Evelyn (Moller)
49-7122

In this "Life with Father and Mother" father was the famous industrial engineer who invented time and motion study. In collaboration with mother father had twelve children and this is the story, by two of them, of what it was like to be raised in an "efficiency run" household.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 183:84 F '49 360w

Booklist 45:149; 177 Ja 1 '49; Ja 15 '49

"The doings are all pretty funny with only a few spots overwrought." M. P. Corcoran
+ — Cath World 169:155 My '49 200w

"'Cheaper by the Dozen' is a gay and lighthearted book, with some serious overtones. Cast in the mold of 'Life With Father,' it stands up very well on its own as one of the most amusing books of the season." Ben Kartman
+ Chicago Sun p8X Ja 2 '49 270w

"At a time such as this, when parent delinquency is so rightly being screamed at us from our radios and newspapers, it is a breath of fresh air to read of at least two undelinquent parents. Twelve children, to most people today, would be an unbearable burden; but to the Gilbreths they came 'cheaper by the dozen' and they loved and enjoyed all dozen of them." Ruth Baker
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 10 '49 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '49

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 49:355 Ja 14 '49 350w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 25:160 Mr '49 80w

Kirkus 16:584 N 1 '48 270w

"Instructive, funny and very readable." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 100w

Library J 74:1560 O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by Michael Swan
New Statesman & Nation 38:434 O 15 '49 70w

"'Cheaper by the Dozen' is such an entertaining account of the growing Gilbreths that you wish it could have been written before 1924. The father of the Dozen would have enjoyed it." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 2 '49 550w

Reviewed by Hilda Lake
N Y Times p18 Ja 9 '49 320w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ja 9 '49 1500w

"As story—as true story—'Cheaper by the Dozen' is always entertaining, occasionally hilarious, occasionally touching. Geographically, it covers a lot of ground—Nantucket to California, with the main accent on Montclair, New Jersey. It is sound Americana. It has a hero and a heroine. The heroine is worth knowing more about, and her author children hint that they are going to do something about it. Donald McKay's drawings supplement the text with his customary competence." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ja 8 '49 410w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p14A Ja 23 '49 450w

Time 53:108 Je 13 '49 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p755 N 18 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:28 F '49

GILBY, THOMAS. Barbara celarent; a description of scholastic dialectic. 303p $4 Longmans
160 Logic. Scholasticism

"This book has a double purpose. First, it is a study of the dialectic of St. Thomas, of the structure of the Summa Theologica, in which the philosophy of St. Thomas is presented as an intellectual adventure and not (as it too often appears in the manuals) as a kind of staff-college doctrine. And Father Gilby's success here springs from his sure and easy grasp of his subject. Secondly, it is an account of the principles of scholastic logic and dialectic which, deriving from Aristotle, were so deeply reflected upon by medieval thinkers and transmitted by them to the modern world." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

"No mnemonics (other than in the two words of the title), no dry bones, and the absolute minimum of gobbledegook. . . Here, obviously, there is no divorce of contemplation and action, but there is besides a rare combination of urbanity and warmth, erudition and humor, piety and good sense. If it isn't logic without tears, it's dialectic with many a hearty chuckle." R. J. McCall
+ Commonweal 50:440 Ag 12 '49 550w

"The history of scholasticism is littered with handbooks on logic, many of which are dry and trivial; what we are given here is a treatment of the subject which is so humane and businesslike that the result is a book on logic that can be read with genuine pleasure as well as with profit. The logic it deals with is, of course, the traditional logic; but the view taken is that while the more modern technique of mathematical or symbolic logic has opened up new fields, a place still remains for the older study—a view which few will wish to combat."

GILBY, THOMAS—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p369 Je 3 '49 900w

GILES, RAY. How to retire—and enjoy it. (Whittlesey house publication) 268p $3 McGraw 179 Retirement (from work) 49-2920

"Encourages working people to look ahead to retirement and to plan for it systematically, both by saving toward economic security and by cultivating an avocation for leisure time. Explains methods of saving through insurance and investment and suggests many hobbies, some for pleasure, some for profit. Actual experiences are cited." Booklist

Booklist 45:217; 384 Mr 1 '49; Jl 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '49

"The advice is sound and wise. Sane too is the advice on preparation for using present spare time for future best purpose in cultivating hobbies, developing skills, building new interests, providing a second string to the bow. He discusses the values of early retirement—of partial retirement—of financial considerations at each level."
+ Kirkus 17:127 Mr 1 '49 190w
Management R 38:584 O '49 60w

"By and large, the author's advice is sound. But rules and regulations and codes of conduct might easily make life in retirement an unmitigated bore. This reviewer believes that the retired man must work out his own problem." W. B. Hayward
+ N Y Times p23 My 8 '49 500w

GILLESPIE, NORVELL. Pacific Coast gardening guide. 306p $3 Doubleday
635 Gardening 49-7548

Practical information on gardening on the Pacific coast, especially flower gardening. Partial contents: Blueprint for better gardens; How to build good soil; How to propagate plants; Bulbs for western gardens; How to grow roses; How to grow tuberous begonias; How to grow rhododendrons; How to grow fuchsias; Successful subtropicals in the North; How to build a rock garden. Recommended reading at end of each chapter. Index.

Booklist 45:257 Ap 1 '49

"An excellent, but special sort of garden book."
+ Kirkus 16:639 D 1 '48 190w
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p26 My 8 '49 110w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 2 '49 170w

GILLIES, MRS MARY (DAVIS). How to keep house; il. by Cobean. 278p $3.50 Harper
640 Home economics 49-9020

"An unusual book to help the homemaker in every phase of her work from acquiring and moving to a house, through a program for getting acquainted with the neighbors. Efficient modern methods of cleaning, scrubbing, dish washing, doing the laundry and ironing, shopping and entertaining are all included." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 45:329 Je 1 '49
Wis Lib Bul 45:104 Je '49

GILLMOR, FRANCES. Flute of the Smoking Mirror [a portrait of Nezahualcoyotl, poet-king of the Aztecs]. 183p il $4 Univ. of N.Mex. press
970.2 Nezahualcoyotl. Mexico—History 49-9523

Life story of an Aztec king of the fifteenth century, Nezahualcoyotl, who was known as a scholar, soldier, and lawgiver. The book contains a bibliography, reproductions of Aztec decorations, and an index.

Booklist 45:373 Jl 1 '49

"This attractively printed volume represents so intricate a combination of high but quarrelsome qualities that it is at once both praise and literal fact to call it a one-woman achievement. Who could have done it save Frances Gillmor? . . Professor Gillmore is just the happy duet of anthropologist and littérateur who can undertake such a task without presumption and discharge it with a piety all-embracing." T. V. Smith
+ Ethics 60:67 O '49 1650w

"A conscientious fictional venture into the pre-Columbian history of the Aztecs. Miss Gillmor approaches her topic with more scholarship than literary guile."
New Yorker 25:84 Je 18 '49 140w

"Miss Gillmor has tried to include as many facts as possible in her text, and these tend to obscure the narrative line. . . Miss Gillmor must be complimented, however, on the fact that she kept her head as well as she did. The product of her labors, while not exactly marked for warmly human prose or crystalline structure is much more than a textbook. Nezhualcoyotl, or 'Hungry Coyote' as he was known to his contemporaries, emerges as quite a human figure, and the tracings of Aztec codicies by Ola Apenes add a good deal in the way of interest and sprightliness." P. A. S.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 11 '49 270w

"This is a lively and painstaking piece of interpretation." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ag 13 '49 100w

GILPIN, LAURA. Rio Grande, river of destiny. 243p il maps $6 Duell
917.64 Rio Grande valley 49-11505

"An interpretation of the river, the land, and the people" in a long series of photographs accompanied by rather full explanatory text. The work is divided into three sections corresponding to divsions of the river: the Source, from southern Colorado to the southern end of San Luis valley in northern New Mexico; Midstream, lying chiefly in New Mexico; and the Border, where the river forms the boundary between Texas and Mexico.

Booklist 46:122 D 1 '49

"Miss Gilpin's reputation as a photographer is well established. In this book she shows that she is also a fine reporter. Wide, panoramic sweeps, sensitively seen details, thoughtful portraits, alike attest her dual ability. This reviewer is no expert on photography. He can say no more than that the pictures are to him deeply satisfying and illuminating. The text is effective on the whole." Oliver La Farge
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 N 13 '49 500w

"There is only need to say that Miss Gilpin knows her section of the country, her people and her camera. It is an interesting excursion through 1800 miles of wide rivers and wide-brimmed hats. You will want to go along." A. K.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 27 '49 90w

"Laura Gilpin, whose camera afield is sheer magic, has registered this river in over 200 splendid photographs supplemented by chatty text. The combination is proof of three years' survey of the river's features. . . To achieve these pictures required infinite pains as well as the sense of an artist. The best season for her purpose, the most effective composition, had to be studied by repeated visits to a scene. The text further emphasizes the river's physical, historical, industrial, and social importance as a national heritage." E. L. Sabin

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ja 21 '50 700w

"To make this book, the photographer traveled the full 1800-mile length of the river three times, once on horseback. It was definitely a labor of love, and the result is most certainly a lovely thing. The United States has many rivers on whose banks history was made, but which have since their salad days become a part of the American scene. The Rio Grande still is history." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 240w

GILSON, ETIENNE HENRY. Dante the philosopher; tr. by David Moore. 338p $4 Sheed

851.15 Dante Alighieri 49-48019

"The latecomer [in writing on Dante] must have a justification. This is M. Gilson's: 'The object of this book, is to define Dante's attitude, or, if need be, his successive attitudes towards philosophy.' . . But his real object is somewhat different. It is to attain truth by clearing away error. Certain Dante scholars . . . have attempted to demonstrate that Beatrice was merely a symbol. . . A considerable part of M. Gilson's book is devoted to refuting these conclusions. . . M. Gilson deals likewise with the contention that Dante was a pure Thomist." (Sat R of Lit) Indexes.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Chicago Sun N 28 '49 70w

"This book is one for which all lovers of Dante and of philosophy may be grateful. The translation preserves the wit and vigour of M. Gilson's style so well that we are not conscious that it is a translation." D. M. Emmet

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 15 '49 350w

Reviewed by T. C. Chubb

Sat R of Lit 32:13 O 15 '49 850w

"Dante's stature as an independent thinker is enhanced by M. Gilson's analysis. There is no dearth of writing about Dante; he has been studied as a poet, as a political theorist, and as a representative of medieval Christianity, but someone with Mr. Gilson's encyclopaedic knowledge of the currents of medieval philosophy was needed to draw an adequate picture of Dante the philosopher."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p268 Ap 23 '49 1250w

GINGER, RAYMOND. The bending cross. 516p $5 Rutgers univ. press

B or 92 Debs, Eugene Victor. Socialism. Trade unions 49-9524

A long, detailed, and for the most part sympathetic biography of the American Socialist leader, Eugene V. Debs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:392 Jl 15 '49

"Though I disliked it and its hero, I am not suggesting that the book is wholly useless. If you are interested in the radical thinking during the life and time of Eugene Debs, this is possibly the most complete biography available. But its inspiration is something quite different from the social message of the Gospels." G. P. Schmidt

Cath World 170:77 O '49 550w

"Ginger's refusal to face up to the full truth has seriously injured his biography, and there is little chance that it will replace the Coleman biography, or the two excellent though shorter books about Debs by David Karsner." Irving Stone

— Chicago Sun Je 16 '49 380w

Christian Century 66:1106 S 21 '49 350w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 14 '49 1250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

"A long, lively, and always absorbing account of a man who was secondarily a labor hero and a leader of the Socialist Party. I say 'secondarily' because before he was either of these he was a deeply human being, and in the course of his life humanness cut being in two. . . It is clear that Ray Ginger feels greatness in Debs; and so well does he tell his story that his reader has the same feeling. . . We may reject Debs' terms, we may laugh at their naïveté, and we can surely deplore their indifference to the revelations of religion. But we may profitably remember that here was a man who, while fighting the battle himself, kept striving to soften its rigors for others." M. H. Ley

+ Commonweal 50:441 Ag 12 '49 1000w

Current Hist 17:161 S '49 60w

"Deserves wide reading." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 74:1026 Jl '49 110w

"The author atones for his confusions over left-wing factionalism by setting at rest two myths about Debs which still have currency in certain quarters. One is that his wife Katherine was a harsh, unsympathetic mismate who drove Debs to drink. The other is that Debs, after his release from Atlanta, was going Communist. Readers of 'The Bending Cross'—and here's hoping their name will be legion—will find that Mr. Ginger's documentary evidence effectively disposes of both these hoary yarns." MacAllister Coleman

+ — Nation 169.188 Ag 20 '49 1200w

"In The Bending Cross, Ray Ginger has given us not merely the best biography of Debs, but a model for studies of any man whose life reflects the struggle of great social forces." L. B. Boudin

+ New Repub 121:18 N 21 '49 490w

"Mr Ginger's book is by no means the first, but it is the best biography of Debs. It would be an exaggeration to say that it was either critical or judicious; it is almost impossible for any one to write judiciously about Debs, and with the best of intentions Mr. Ginger gives way frequently to sentimentality and adulation. It is easy to bear with these attitudes. Mr. Ginger is a very young man, and it is refreshing to find enthusiasm allied with scholarship. And Debs justifies enthusiasm." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 7 '49 1800w

Reviewed by Sidney Hook

N Y Times p7 Jl 17 '49 1700w

"A scholarly and readable account of the life of Debs. He has escaped the addiction of many biographers who overplay the historical significance of their subjects, venerating the whole man as a shaper of events and men, to the exclusion of the reciprocal effects of events on the man." Richard Uhlig

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 28 '49 850w

"An extremely impressive, detailed, and vivid reconstruction of the life of Eugene V. Debs." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 Jl 2 '49 850w

GINZBURG, MRS NATALIA. Road to the city; two novelettes tr. from the Italian by Frances Frenaye. 215p $2.50 Doubleday

49-10245

Two novelettes: The dry heart, and The road to the city. Each tells the story of a young Italian girl's failure to find happiness in love.

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 22 '49 550w

"Successful in Italy, and representative of the writing of the new generation there, this will still have a literary rather than popular audience."

Kirkus 17:309 Je 15 '49 90w

"Though dealing with Italians in Italy, author seems foreign or else focussing so myopically on her feeble-minded heroines as not to notice any of the gentler emotions or subtler thoughts, to say nothing of local color. Flat, unrealistic, one-dimensional little blind alleys. Pity, because author has an exceptional feeling for form and language." E. L. Lewis

— + Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 90w

New Repub 121:18 N 21 '49 200w

GINZBURG, NATALIA—Continued

"Both these stories, told in the first person, have an effective realism. One has no doubt as to the actuality of these women, their husbands and lovers, friends and parents. In each, the dominant theme is the boredom of the tyranny of sex, which in the one led to tragedy, in the other, to a kind of anaesthetized frittering. The force of Natalia Ginzburg's telling clarifies and sharpens one's understanding of some aspects of human nature." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 21 '49 450w

"'The Dry Heart' is the more effective story. . . If there is no great emotional impact to the story, the reader does feel the weight of neglect and callousness growing more intense until, for the narrator, it becomes intolerable. The heroine of 'The Road to the City,' Delia, is an empty-headed country girl. . . Delia is not an interesting figure and there is not warmth or local color to make the story of much consequence." Ann Schakne

+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 21 '49 300w

New Yorker 25:109 S 10 '49 110w

"Signora Ginzburg explores the motives of these meager and limited people with a sense of compassion that never spills over on the page, yet is never absent from it. The translation from the Italian has been ably done by Frances Frenaye." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 S 25 '49 450w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe

Sat R of Lit 32:37 S 17 '49 380w

GIPSON, FREDERICK BENJAMIN. Hound-dog man. 247p $2.50 Harper

49-7116

Chronicles the adventures of two boys on a Texas hunting trip with the carefree Blackie and his two hound dogs. Blackie wasn't married because he would rather hunt than assume any responsibilities, but several events of the hunting expedition added together ended in a wedding for Blackie. Altho told from the viewpoint of one of the boys, the novel is for adults.

Booklist 45:149; 192 Ja 1 '49; F 1 '49

"One learns to regard with some skepticism the blurbs on book jackets, but the one on Hound-dog Man, by Fred Gipson, which asserts that the author 'has the Twain touch and something of Booth Tarkington and Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings—and something very special of his own' tells no more than the simple truth. The writer might also have added that there's more than a trace of Pecos Bill and Paul Bunyan, too, in this highly diverting tale. . . It is hard to lay the book down." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 169:154 My '49 220w

Reviewed by H. T. Kane

Chicago Sun p53 Ja 12 '49 380w

Christian Century 66:626 My 18 '49 280w

"The good old theme of a boy and a dog (a one-man dog with the voice of an army bugle), tall talk and horseplay, fine feeling and clear, beautiful writing make up this book." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 13 '49 180w

+ Kirkus 16:601 N 15 '48 300w

"A warm and appealing story. Recommended." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 80w

"'Hound-Dog Man' is a rough-hewn idyll. Into it Fred Gipson packs all the heady excitement of a boy's initiation into a man's world, and adorns his essentially simple tale with the rich enticements of an encyclopedic firsthand knowledge of Texas cotton, river, hill and brush country and of the engaging creatures—animal and human—which inhabit it. He has spiced it extravagantly with humor and with Texas tall tales. . . 'Hound-dog Man' is fun." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 16 '49 550w

"Mr. Gipson is himself far enough away from the 'primitive' to be interested in pleasing. His novel succeeds admirably in proving that. One suspects it might have done more if Mr. Gipson had set himself a more exacting aim. Even so, it's a first-rate 'bait' of entertainment." Lon Tinkle

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 9 '49 800w

"If you can face the prospect of another sentimental journey with a boy who wants a dog 'so bad he can't stand it,' you might find something to your liking here." E. J.

San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 6 '49 90w

"There are some unaffectedly lyrical passages, and some in which Mr. Gipson tries too hard, as in the case of Fiddlin' Tom. The hunting scenes in the crisp night air and the moonlight are the best things in a book which would, and should, have been a nice short story, a short story of a little boy who went on a hunting trip." John Woodburn

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ja 22 '49 650w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 240w

Wis Lib Bul 45:48 Mr '49

GIPSON, LAWRENCE HENRY. British empire before the American revolution; v. 7, Great war for the Empire; the victorious years, 1758-1760. 467p $7.50 Knopf

942.07 Great Britain—History—18th century. Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. U.S.—History—Colonial period. France—Colonies (36-20870)

"This seventh volume of Professor Gipson's 'British Empire Before the American Revolution' opens with the coming to power of William Pitt and ends with the conquest of the French colonies in North America." (Nation) Index. For volume 6 see Book Review Digest 1946.

"The publication of this volume makes Parkman's classic Montcalm and Wolfe quite obsolete, except as a piece of literature; and even as such, the writing of the Lehigh professor merits recognition along with that of the Boston Brahmin. Gipson's history of the war is longer, more comprehensive, and more critical than Parkman's; and, in addition to embodying the labours of later scholars, it utilizes the enormous mass of raw material that has become available since Parkman laid down his pen. In weighing and sifting this extensive literature and this mountain of sources, printed and manuscript, Gipson seems to have exhausted the subject without in the least exhausting himself or his readers." A. L. Burt

+ Canadian Hist R 30:355 D '49 1100w

Kirkus 17:352 Jl 1 '49 280w

"The scope and infinite detail of this ambitious chronicle and a style that is lucid but never brilliant combine to make a book useful for reference or study but scarcely one that can be read for pleasure."

+ — Nation 169:286 S 17 '49 80w

"As we have come to expect from previous installments, Mr Gipson offers us sound and judicious scholarship based upon the best work of previous writers and upon independent researches of his own, the whole presented in a leisurely manner in an always lucid and often graceful prose. In these respects the seventh volume is no disappointment." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 2 '49 1400w

Reviewed by W. B. Hamilton

N Y Times p46 O 23 '49 750w

"While some of the drama is entangled in Mr. Gipson's skein of scholarship and some of the momentum of battle is lost by the author's tendency to pause to award praise and blame, Mr. Gipson has revised and amplified Parkman at numerous points, drawing not alone upon the researches of Waddington, Corbett, and Pargellis, but also upon his own examination of much firsthand evidence. He has given us a better rounded picture of the war than anyone has ever done before, and he has painted his strokes with originality, insight, and authority." R. B. Morris

+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 S 24 '49 900w

GIRAUDOUX, JEAN. Madwoman of Chaillot; English adaptation by Maurice Valency. 134p il $2.50 Random house

842 49-8845

An adaptation of a French play. It is a fantastic drama in which the mad Countess Aurelia learns of a plot to raze the city of Paris, in order to get the oil which the prospectors believe is underneath it. With the help of her many eccentric friends the Countess wrecks the plot, and then proceeds to the important business of her life—feeding the stray cats which live in the city streets.

Booklist 45:292 My 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '49

Kirkus 17:126 Mr 1 '49 30w

"Fantastic and delightful comedy. . . Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:821 My 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Je 5 '49 240w

"This current play loses very little in book form. The writing is spare and brilliant, and the fabulous countess, with her Alice-in-Wonderland logic and her significant non sequiturs, can be quite well realized without the interpretation of a Martita Hunt. There are one or two sad and jarring puns that would not go in French and are probably the work of the translator, Maurice Valency, but otherwise the translation is a good job."
+ New Yorker 25:95 Je 4 '49 70w

"Although this play has been given a polished, adroit production in New York for the past thirteen months, under the reading lamp it reveals a few red whiskers. . . On the boards, evidently directed by wand, the comedy is enchanting. Between them, with all its symbols showing, it is a rather wry keepsake of an era when Marxism wore a more cherubic face." Rochelle Gibson
Sat R of Lit 32:31 D 31 '49 140w

"The quality of the writing is superlative, almost indescribably so; its unusualness is thrilling—in short, it should be seen and heard and not just talked about."
+ School & Society 69:358 My 14 '49 60w

GIRVAN, MRS HELEN (MASTERMAN). Seventh step; mystery at Cedarhead; il. by Gertrude Howe. 238p $2.25 Rinehart

49-8364

Mystery story for girls 12 to 15.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 14 '49 60w

"Absorbing story for teen-age girls." K. T. and M. B.
+ Churchman 163:3 Je 15 '49 20w

"A pleasant and enjoyable story, that seems to have gotten a little bit out of hand, turns into simply a mystery tale."
+ — Kirkus 17:87 F 15 '49 130w

"The story, keyed to the leisurely life on the island, never achieves enough suspense to make a good mystery. However, teen-age girls will enjoy it, because the characters are natural, likable, and intelligent. Recommended." M. F. Cox
+ — Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 80w

"Whether a mystery story should try to be something more, a story of character, too, is a matter for debate. On the side of a judicious mixing of mystery and personal problems, in palatable if not equal proportions, 'The Seventh Step' is an ordinary example, with familiar ingredients." G. C. Castor
N Y Times p26 Ap 10 '49 150w

GIVEN, WILLIAM BARNS. Bottom-up management; people working together. 171p $2.50 Harper

658.3 Employment management 49-6075

"This short book promulgates the idea of encouraging more constructive cooperation from the 'bottom up.' In other words, the author thinks (and apparently has proven it as President of American Brake Shoe Co.) that business will get better results and more profits and less labor trouble by encouraging all-out co-operation right up through the ranks." (San Francisco Chronicle) No index.

"Exceedingly readable and inspiring. A book to put in industrial and business libraries, to call to attention of business leaders."
+ Kirkus 17:290 Je 1 '49 160w

"Inspiring and practical." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1824 D 1 '49 100w

"It makes excellent reading for everyone in business." G. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p32 O 16 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 28 '49 290w

GLEIT, MARIA, pseud. See Gleitsmann, H.

GLEITSMANN, HERTHA (MRS WALTHER VICTOR) (MARIA GLEIT, pseud). Paul Tiber, forester; il. by Ralph Ray. 209p $2.50 Scribner

49-11051

"The story of a miner's son who, through his own initiative, carried out the project of making his own town green and beautiful and became a successful forester. It is based on the true story of Stanley Mesavage." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 46:126 D 1 '49

"The author writes with anger and compassion, and at times with beauty. Unfortunately, she is more concerned with her introspective hero than with her story." Vernon Ives
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 130w

"Too bad the story itself lacks the tightness and plot values necessary to capture the interest of this age group. For the story while over-endowed with sentiment, has unusual sympathy and sensitivity."
— + Kirkus 17:512 S 15 '49 90w

"An oddly uneven style slows down the reading at times, but it is a vivid picture of the mines, a miner's family life, the ugliness of the slag heaps, and the carelessness of nature's bounty in a people who rarely see the sunlight. It is listed as a fictionized biography of Stanley Mesavage, an outstanding forester." Esther Gorey
+ — Library J 74:1553 O 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. A. Groves
Library J 75:112 Ja 15 '50 70w

"How seldom one comes upon such a book for older boys as this: the story of a modern man's career, based on fact, fictionized with deep feeling and striking details of two kinds of hard work. . . The real Paul is still a forester. Librarians should be sure to paste the backflap of the jacket into the book so that boys will know this. The style is extraordinary, for with all its detail, it holds the interest, because of its sustained emotion. At times it is exciting and beautiful; at times it gasps its single words and short sentences. But it is adult, and splendid in its slow build-up of Paul's thinking toward his goal." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 13 '49 470w

"This is an excellently written story of a remarkable man geared to the reading likes of teenagers."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:48 N 12 '49 40w

GLESINGER, EGON. The coming age of wood; with graphic illustrations by Henry Billings. 279p $3.50 Simon & Schuster

674 Forest products. Wood. Wood-using industries 49-7775

"Dr. Glesinger, an international authority on forestry, now working with the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, proposes to realize the age of wood. The era which he previews in this book would see the reforestation of countless millions of denuded acres and the planned, efficient use of forest products. The result would be an enormously improved standard of living in crowded Asiatic areas and a notable gain in those countries already enjoying other technological advantages. Dr. Glesinger's persuasive argument for more and better-tended forest preserves rests on the fact that the cellulose and lignin molecules of which wood consists have very extensive chemical possibilities. Properly utilized, the cellulose molecule yields not only wood sugars and alcohols, explosives, motor fuel, plastics in wide variety, wood alloys, paper, film and countless other substances, but even food itself." (N Y Times) Index.

GLESINGER, EGON—Continued

Booklist 45:233; 236 Mr 15 '49

"Here is a book that should be read by everyone interested in the conservation and more complete utilization of the world's only reproduceable natural resource—timber. Stimulating, thought-provoking, controversial are its watchwords. No one may read this book without sober reflection or gaining a new and finer appreciation of the role wood can and must play in the economy of his nation." E. S. Harrar

+ Chem & Eng N 27:2224 Ag 1 '49 270w

"Many of the things which the book recounts have already taken place here in the last decade or so. In previewing many of the others, 'The Coming Age of Wood' is optimistic, inspiring and readable by both the technical man and the layman." R. S. Aries

+ Chem Eng 56:297 S '49 320w

Reviewed by H. B. Nichols

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 30 '49 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '49

"The fascinating material of this book is presented in the way best calculated to prevent the reader from taking it seriously—as it should be taken. Whether it actually was or not, 'The Coming Age of Wood' sounds ghost written, synthetic and assembly line produced."

— Commonweal 50:102 My 6 '49 140w

Kirkus 17:99 F 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 20w

"This book is one answer to the recent prophecies of gloom and starvation. It is a cheerful, even enthusiastic, revelation of how the world—and especially the United States—could multiply prosperity and live well merely by intelligent use of its forests. . . Most advanced and most fascinating are Dr. Glesinger's proposals for converting present wood wastes into feeds and food by methods that are already in large scale use in Sweden and Germany and have been proved in America. . . In the world's present plight vision is precisely what is needed. 'The Coming Age of Wood' provides a good deep breath of relief and hope, a powerful antidote to recent pessimism. The graphic illustrations by Henry Billings are a noteworthy blend of art with fact." Gerald Wendt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Mr 20 '49 500w

"A pleasing, if rather unlikely, alternative to the atomic age. . . Dr. Glesinger's plea certainly ought to appeal to the millions (of whom this reviewer is one) longing for the happy day when a simple wooden house can be built without dedicating most of a lifetime to paying for it." E. B. Garside

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 20 '49 550w

"The author puts his case attractively and forcefully, but he will need to do even better if he expects his view to catch on with a nation in which a hamburger made of wood pulp can be a source of delight only to gag-writers."

New Yorker 25:106 Ap 2 '49 120w

"A book of hope and economic cheer for a world made morbid, since 1945, by the doomsday prophecies of the neo-Malthusians. It is an important book for the reason that it bridges the semantic abyss between botany, chemistry, and everyday living with explanations that should give the layman new understanding of forestry, and bring a glow of remorse for some of the chapters in our national history." R. W. Howard

+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 My 28 '49 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 45:85 My '49

GLICK, CARL. I'm a busybody. 238p $3 Crowell

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-7592

Reminiscences of the author of Shake Hands With the Dragon (Book Review Digest 1941). He begins with a trip across the continent when he was fourteen and made his prize faux pas by mentioning murder to the notorious Lizzie Borden. He continues with stories of his life as an actor, as a college professor, as a director of little theater groups, as non-combat soldier in World war I, and as author.

Booklist 45:224 Mr 1 '49

"High in entertainment value."

+ Kirkus 16:640 D 1 '48 130w

"Amusing, sometimes raucous reminiscences which can while away an evening quite pleasantly." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:196 F 1 '49 130w

"In these informal chapters of autobiography, Mr. Glick reveals himself with the wit and spontaneity that have graced his writings about his Chinese friends." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 F 13 '49 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 11 '49 650w

"One of the best-natured books of a bad-natured era." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ap 2 '49 320w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p22A F 20 '49 190w

Wis Lib Bul 45:46 Mr '49

GLICK, DAVID. Techniques of histo- and cytochemistry; a manual of morphological and quantitative micromethods for inorganic, organic and enzyme constituents in biological materials; with a foreword by Robert R. Bensley. 531p il $8 Interscience

544.8 Physiological chemistry. Microchemistry 49-7614

"This book is the first compendium in English of the techniques for the identification and localization of compounds in cells and tissues. In addition to providing a description of microscopic techniques of chemical morphology, it also emphasizes wherever possible the quantitative aspects. An attempt is made to cover all the physical and chemical techniques for the preparation of tissues, identification of inorganic and organic constituents, including enzymes, quantitative analytical methods, and the mechanical separation of cellular structures—nucleus, chromatin, cytoplasmic particulates—in a form susceptible to in vitro examination." U S Quarterly Bkl

N Y New Tech Bks 34:2 Ja '49

"The volume will prove valuable to all workers in analytical biology, including almost every department of pre-clinical and clinical science."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:269 Je '49 240w

GLIDDEN, FREDERICK DILLEY (LUKE SHORT, pseud). Fiddlefoot. 264p $2.50 Houghton 49-8810

Western story.

Booklist 45:337 Je 1 '49

Kirkus 17:122 Mr 1 '49 70w

"For those who like a good, fast-moving Western, with a well-integrated plot, 'Fiddlefoot' is top-drawer stuff." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p10 My 29 '49 150w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 200w
Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

GLYNN, JOHN HUBERT. Story of blood. 285p $3 Wyn
612.1 Blood 48-8945

"Dr. Glynn has used the central theme of the blood to provide a thumbnail sketch of many aspects of medicine and human biology. With the familiar device of tracing the main lines of thought which have resulted in modern concepts, he manages to convey to the layman a considerable amount of information on subjects ranging from abscesses to white counts, from arteriosclerosis to the effects of worry, from the adrenal glands to vitamins." (Am J Pub Health) Index.

"In barely 60,000 words a surprising amount of accurate knowledge is clearly and simply presented. The approach is reminiscent of Paul de Kruif, minus the exuberance and hyper-dramatics. In a more ideal society we might hope that the facts given by Glynn would be taught in every high school; as it is, we must hope that books like this will reach a wide audience." Ancel Keys
+ Am J Pub Health 39:673 My '49 140w

"Written by a physician, a specialist in diseases of the blood, who also writes like a professional author. His style is smooth and engaging; he has a knack of making medical facts dramatic. Since few stories of medical progress are more interesting (and more rapidly developing) than that of hematology, the result is an immensely entertaining and informative book." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p21 D 12 '48 200w

GODDARD, ROBERT HUTCHINGS. Rocket development; liquid-fuel rocket research, 1929-1941; ed. by Esther C. Goddard and G. Edward Pendray. 291p il $6.50; to schools $4.90 Prentice-Hall
629.13338 Rockets (aeronautics) 48-11764

"Robert H. Goddard, a pioneer worker in the field of rocket research, and one of the leading authorities on the subject, died in 1945. This volume, prepared by his widow and another rocketry expert, provides a summarized account of the major experiments performed by Goddard from 1929 to 1941. The technical data and specifications, regarding the construction and operation of each rocket tested, and the descriptions of the results achieved, are based on Goddard's own notebooks, and will be of considerable interest to engineers working with liquid-fuel rockets. Because of Goddard's leadership in this field, the book also constitutes a history of the growth of rocket research in the United States." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Of great historic importance, but of interest to rather few people." Julian Sohon
Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:29 Mr '49
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:281 Je '49 320w

GODDEN, RUMER (MRS LAURENCE FOSTER). In Noah's ark. 62p $2.50 Viking 821 49-50222

A retelling of the story of the ark in verse. The animals enter two by two, until the procession is interrupted by the winged horse, who enters singly. "What follows is a tragi-comic battle involving animals, birds, reptiles and insects, and it narrows down to a supreme contest between the star-gazing Pegasus and Noah's earthbound son Ham. At the end, of course, Ham turns out to be Man himself, or the everyman who has 'no time for poetry.'" (N Y Times)

Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 30w
Reviewed by J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 25 '49 420w

"No two people will read this with even similar reactions. To some it will be sheer enchantment of poetic flight of fancy. To some it will be symbolic, a philosophic and satiric approach to the world's conflicts. To some it will be a fairy tale, extension of the folktale of all people, imagination off the beaten track. . . To others it will be an irritation, pot-pourri of childhood jingles, phrases clipped from a book of quotations, woven together with tongue in cheek. To others it will be a parable, difficult of interpretation, signifying what you will."
Kirkus 17:561 O 1 '49 250w

"It has charm, humor and lyric grace and has been printed in a book whose format, too, deserves a word of praise." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 74:1908 D 15 '49 90w

"Delight is the very substance of certain books and the nature of the delight is a triumph of imagination. Something new has been created, something which intensifies the perceptions and the feelings, extends horizons, stirs the mind to reconsideration. The very words used in such books are a genial incantation and it is hard to distinguish in one's pleasure between the idea and the cadence. Among such rarities is to be classed, I am sure, Rumer Godden's enchanting myth, parable, apologue, entitled 'In Noah's Ark.'" Irwin Edman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 D 4 '49 1100w

"Constant readers who have deserted our recent verse because of its self-centered moaning may come back to the fold and enjoy themselves again. For this is a poem deserving of popularity along with all good books whose true survival rests in the hands of average people." Alfred Kreymborg
+ N Y Times p18 D 4 '49 450w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ja 8 '50 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup p837 D 23 '49 300w

GODSEY, F. W., and YOUNG, LLOYD ARTHUR. Gas turbines for aircraft. 355p il $4.50 McGraw 629.13435 Gas turbines. Jet propulsion 49-9468

"Survey of the current knowledge and practice in adapting the gas turbine to aircraft propulsion. The book is primarily suitable for readers who have had considerable previous training in engineering, but who are beginning the study of this special topic. Advanced students of aeronautical engineering and also established engineers who have not been specializing in turbine design will find it useful. The first three chapters contain basic information. The remainder of the book is developed for aircraft, and here most of the exposition is expressed in mathematical terminology and equations. A large proportion of the 238 figures are graphs which illustrate data useful to engineeers." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 45:386 Jl 15 '49

"There is nothing popular about this new treatment of gas turbines. The book is an introductory one but only for advanced and graduate engineers. For qualified readers it presents a convenient and authoritative exposition of the knowledge which an engineer needs in order to begin in the designing of aeronautical gas turbines or even to discuss them intelligently with his colleagues." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1330 S 15 '49 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 54:54 Jl '49

GOETHE, JOHANN WOLFGANG VON. Autobiography; poetry and truth from my own life; tr. by R. O. Moon. bicentennial anniversary ed 700p $5 Public affairs press
B or 92 49-9277

"When he was in his 60's, Goethe wrote his Dichtung und Wahrheit, the story of his life to the age of 26 when he was leaving Frankfort for Weimar. . . On the factual side, it is a record of the poet's boyhood experiences, university education at Leipsic and Strassburg, the beginnings of his literary career and his first four romantic entanglements. . . The elderly Goethe observes and interprets the young Goethe as he might a character in one of his own novels and, in a sense, dramatizes himself as he would a figure in one of his own plays." (Christian Century) Index.

GOETHE, J. W. VON—Continued

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

Chicago Sun p7X Je 5 '49 50w

"In this year when the 200th anniversary of his birth is being celebrated, Goethe is so much in the news that a new version of this famous book is timely and its publication by the Public Affairs Press is not inappropriate. The translation, though apparently accurate with a few exceptions, leaves a good deal to be desired." W. E. G.
Christian Century 66:686 Je 1 '49 420w

Reviewed by Francis Russell
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 7 '49 1550w

Reviewed by Arthur Child
Ethics 60:77 O '49 220w

Kirkus 17:261 My 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 31 '49 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 14 '49 300w

Reviewed by Claude Hill
Sat R of Lit 32:9 Je 25 '49 550w

Time 53:100 Je 6 '49 600w

GOETHE, JOHANN WOLFGANG VON. Goethe; the story of a man; being [his] life as told in his own words and the words of his contemporaries, by Ludwig Lewisohn. 2v 456; 473p $10 Farrar, Straus
B or 92 49-8936

Translations of selections from the poems, autobiographical works, and letters of Goethe, arranged in chronological order to form a picture of his life. Bibliographical note. Indexes.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:87 Jl '49 450w

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

+ — Chicago Sun p7X Je 5 '49 270w

"One must congratulate Dr. Lewisohn for the remarkable skill with which he has handled this difficult task." E. G. Budde
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 7 '49 1550w

"Unfortunately, this beautifully planned book starts with an ugly stain. Taking revenge for the ignominious persecutions of Jews staged by the Hitler gang, Lewisohn debunks in the first paragraph of his 'Introduction' the whole German people, the nation that brought forth the genius of Goethe. . . Lewisohn's collection is not a biography, as the subtitle 'The Story of a Man' suggests, but only a selection of the biographer's source material. On some questions, Goethe's utterances are rather complete, especially about the Jews. However, Goethe's most interesting remarks about Catholicism are omitted. Explanatory notes by the editor are reduced to a minimum; thus you are undisturbed in listening to the voices of Goethe's time." Max Fischer
Commonweal 50:204 Je 3 '49 850w

Kirkus 17:191 Ap 1 '49 340w

"This two-volume 'autobiography' is a worthy contribution to the Goethe year." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 74:816 My 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by Humphrey Trevelyan
Manchester Guardian p4 N 15 '49 60w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 31 '49 270w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner
N Y Times p7 Je 5 '49 300w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 25:102 S 17 '49 90w

Reviewed by J. W. Stauffacher
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Je 12 '49 700w

"A skillful compilation of Goethe's letters, autobiographical excerpts, and accounts of friends and visitors. . . There is a real chance that Goethe's genius will at last be appreciated in America." Claude Hill
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 Je 25 '49 550w

Reviewed by J. M. Cohen
Spec 183:430 S 30 '49 800w

Time 53:100 Je 6 '49 600w

GOETHE, JOHANN WOLFGANG VON. Goethe's world. See Biermann, B., ed.

GOETHE, JOHANN WOLFGANG VON. Wisdom and experience; selections by Ludwig Curtius; tr. and ed. with an introd. by Hermann J. Weigand. 300p $3.75 Pantheon bks.
832.62 49-2749

Selections from Goethe's prose, rarely more than a page in length, arranged under such headings as Religion, Nature, Science and philosophy, Art, etc., and many subheadings, Christianity, God and nature, God and man. No index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:87 Jl '49 390w

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

Chicago Sun p7X Je 5 '49 20w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 7 '49 850w

"These tatters of text—from one line to four pages—are taken from Goethe's prose-writings, both literary and scientific, from his diaries, his letters and recorded conversations. This might be a fine method to represent authors of maxims and apothegms like La Rochefoucauld, Chamford and Lichtenberg, or highly aphoristic philosophers like Montaigne, Pascal, Kierkegaard and Nietzsche. But for Goethe such a book has only secondary value. . . Despite shortcomings, readers already familiar with Goethe's work may be stimulated to interesting observations while reading the quotations, mostly from his mature years." M. F.
— + Commonweal 50:157 My 20 '49 450w

Reviewed by Humphrey Trevelyan
Manchester Guardian p4 N 15 '49 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 31 '49 270w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 27 '49 200w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner
N Y Times p7 Je 5 '49 300w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 25:102 S 17 '49 40w

"The amazing universality, loftiness, lucidity, intellectual power, and enormous range of Goethe's interests radiate through the pages of a new anthology, published under the title 'Wisdom and Experience.'" Claude Hill
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 Je 25 '49 320w

"This is an admirable bedside book for the mature." J. M. Cohen
+ Spec 183:430 S 30 '49 220w

"These divisions and the table of contents make the book a clear and ready reference to Goethe's ideas on most points, and it is largely as a reference book that it must be judged. It can not be read, but one can browse through it to happen on an epigram or a flash of wit and turn the pages to reach some profound truth." H. L. Varley
+ Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 210w

GOETZ, DELIA. Hidden burro; il. by Dorothy Bayley Morse. 128p $2 Morrow
49-9780

A sequel to The Burro of Barnegat Road (Book Review Digest 1945). Chula, the burro, arrived unexpectedly from the country at a time when Mr and Mrs Pebbles were away. The children tried to hide her as they realized they were violating the Washington zoning laws. However Chula did not hide away for long, she rebelled and led the parade welcoming the President of Mexico to the city. For grades 4-6.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 8 '49 180w

"It is an amusing story for the middle-age group of readers and made more convincing by the line drawings." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:413 S '49 80w

Kirkus 17:360 Jl 15 '49 150w

"Warm, pleasant little story told with sympathy for animals and children. Amusing drawings by Dorothy Bayley Morse. Sturdy format. Nine- and ten-year-olds who enjoyed the first book will undoubtedly take to this, too. But there is no new contribution here and no reason to add if funds are limited." M. E. Martignoni
Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1536 O 15 '49 60w

"Chula and these children appeared before in 'The Burro of Barnegat Road.' Here the same realism makes the almost unbelievable events seem possible. Children of about ten will find it all very funny, as they worry with the children and laugh at Chula's poise in all her strange hiding places." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
N Y Times p12 Ja 1 '50 190w

"Boys and girls and their elders who remember with great pleasure the little Mexican burro Chula in 'The Burro of Barnegat Road' will be delighted to meet her again in this book." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 N 12 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 70w

GOETZEL, CLAUS GUENTER. Treatise on powder metallurgy; 3v; v 1, Technology of metal powders and their products. 806p il $15 Interscience

669 Metals, Powdered (49-8792)

"This is the introductory volume of a series of three. It deals with the powder metallurgy process, its terminology, advantages and disadvantages, history, methods of powder production, characteristics of the powders, the testing procedures, the commercial forms, grades, processing and applications in molding by cold and hot pressing, the behavior of the powders under compression, the principles and practices of sintering, heat treating and finishing treatments of the parts." Chem Eng

"The approach is both scholarly and practical. Virtually all works bearing upon the subject that have appeared in the scientific and technical literature have been reviewed, in addition to a good amount of first-hand knowledge." F. N. Rhines
+ Chem & Eng N 27:3441 N 14 '49 300w

"The chemical, physical and mechanical phases of the discussion are well covered, while the engineering aspects of dies, presses, furnaces, and equipment are adequately treated. In view of the excellence of the book, the author's tendency to prolixity may be forgiven as the volume represents a recommended and valuable addition to the art and science of powder metallurgy." C. L. Mantell
+ — Chem Eng 56:295 Je '49 250w

"Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:44 My '49

GOLDBERG, BENJAMIN. Electricians' pocket companion. 442p il $2.50 Rinehart

621.302 Electric engineering—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 49-7391

"A reference handbook. . . Designed for practical electricians, it contains both standard reference data and 'practical pointers.' In order to keep the book small, the author has omitted discussions of theory and data on the more advanced and unusual types of electrical work. However, he has covered most of the electrical topics on which an electrician or an apprentice working on residential or small industrial installations is likely to need information." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Contains a tremendous amount of useful information. Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:4 Ja '49

GOLDBERG, ISRAEL (RUFUS LEARSI, pseud). Israel: a history of the Jewish people. 715p maps $5 World pub.

296 Jews—History 49-8382

This history of the Jewish people covers four thousand years, and considers both the social and historical factors which have shaped their story, and the influence they have had on history. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:327 Je 1 '49

"This history has the undoubted merit of good writing, for Learsi is an accomplished writer. The publishers have enhanced the readability and colorfulness of the writer's style by a most legible type, wide margins, helpful maps, good index, and a well selected bibliography." J. J. Weinstein
+ — Chicago Sun My 31 '49 380w

"This book is useful because it may give the patient reader a vivid realization of how persistent and formidable is the problem of Jewish-Gentile relations. . . The problem of Jewish-Gentile relations, as revealed by 4,000 years of history, is deep and vast. At times it has caused tragic upheavals. In dealing with it one must arm himself with knowledge, wisdom, and irrepressible love. For that reason, this book will be useful to Christians who are resolved to be better Christians." R. H. Markham
+ Christian Science Monitor p20 My 12 '49 550w

"A one volume and up to date history of the Jews is an achievement, and the text bears the stamp of scholarship and is vigorously and dramatically written."
+ Kirkus 17:204 Ap 1 '49 280w

"An extraordinary chronicle unfolded in lucid, readable narrative."
+ Nation 168:620 My 28 '49 20w

"Mr. Learsi's ardor, while appropriate and contagious, occasionally over-reaches itself, especially in its manhandling of the opponents of the Jews. And his eloquence, though often genuinely moving, sometimes lapses into a plush and lush prose. But, for all its defects, the work does portray and express the forces which have secured Israel's survival and made its history unique in human annals." Marvin Lowenthal
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p54 S 25 '49 380w

"Can be warmly recommended to Christians and Jews." Alfred Werner
+ N Y Times p17 My 29 '49 320w

"Vividly written in dramatic narrative form. The treatment of the biblical period is traditional and conservative." R. H. U.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 8 '49 60w

"Barring debatable, controversial points, Mr. Learsi has written a history which is at once straightforward, lucid, and readable, a book which the lay reader should find satisfactory. A distinct advantage is that it brings Israel's story to date." John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Je 25 '49 180w

GOLDEN, FRANCIS LEO. For doctors only; with a foreword by William E. Mountford; il. by Barye Phillips. 273p $2.95 Fell

817.08 Humor 48-9686

A collection of jokes and anecdotes about doctors and their patients.

GOLDEN, F. L.—Continued

"This flippant attitude toward bugs and drugs is contagious and should make the book a welcome tonic to both the long-suffering medico and perhaps his even longer-suffering patients. It is a volume that will do nicely both in the anteroom and as a sickbed companion. . . It must also be said that this little kit bag of humor should not be given to a maiden aunt who takes a dim view of the facts of life, and that a large dose at one time is rather hard going. But in small gulps, Dr. Golden's olio ought to please anyone who has been either a doctor or a patient." A. L.

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 6 '49 230w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p6B D 26 '48 240w

GOLDENWEISER, EMANUEL ALEXANDROVICH. Monetary management. (Committee for economic development. Research study) 175p $2.75 McGraw

332.4 Money—U.S. 49-10027

"This book presents the essential elements of monetary management in the United States from 1914 to 1948. It indicates the role played by money in the economy, and the powers of monetary authorities in regulating the volume, availability, and cost of money. It reviews the experience of American monetary management since the establishment of the Federal Reserve System in 1913, and outlines the problems that confront it at the present time." (Publisher's note) Index.

"The former economist of the Federal Reserve Board has now, from his vantage point in the Institute of Advanced Study, written for the Committee for Economic Development a brief and lucid comment on the nature of our monetary system and the way it ought to be managed. The exposition will help anyone to understand the basis of post-war inflation." George Soule

+ Nation 169:284 S 17 '49 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 25 '49 250w

GOLDING, LOUIS. Honey for the ghost. 383p $3 Dial press

49-10824

Jim Gunning, a Cockney ex-soldier, discovered that he had tuberculosis. Escaping from the sanatorium, Jim managed to reach a remote part of Scotland, where he hoped to cure himself and return to his young wife and their son. The elderly woman who employed him promised to cure him if he would allow himself to be possessed by the spirit of her beloved nephew, killed in the war. The struggle for Jim's health and sanity is achieved in time, but not until the old woman has died.

Booklist 46:82 N 1 '49

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun p56 O 7 '49 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins

Manchester Guardian p4 My 20 '49 150w

"If demonology is your dish, Louis Golding is your man. 'Honey for the Ghost' is a strong cup of tea."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 O 16 '49 180w

"Mr. Golding, one of England's popular and prolific writers, has produced a readable story about his average bloke, and the book has the rare attribute of becoming more, instead of less, exciting as it moves on." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p51 O 30 '49 260w

"Much of the witchcraft material is on a mumbo-jumbo level, and the Scottish dialect sometimes gets thick enough to be split for kindling, but after its slow start the story becomes really gripping, and it will be a rare reader who can put it down before the final exorcism."

+ — New Yorker 25:122 O 22 '49 160w

"Certainly 'Honey for the Ghost' is one of the most readable and exciting books of the season, and no one should be tempted to try to take it out of its plain frame and study it in relation to any literary masterpiece. It is intended for entertainment alone, and one may hope that Mr. Golding will write other novels for the same purpose." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 32:23 O 8 '49 900w

GOLDMAN, SOLOMON. In the beginning. (Book of human destiny, v2) 892p il $5 Harper

222.11 Bible. Old Testament—Genesis

This study of the book of Genesis, is volume II of the author's projected many-volumed work on the Bible, following the introductory volume Book of Books, published last year (Book Review Digest 1948). The first part of the volume is divided into three main parts; part I a summation of the Book of Genesis; part II a translation; and part III, chapters on historical background, authorship, style and philosophy. Following this, nearly six hundred pages contain an anthology of quotations "Echoes and Allusions" with indexes and bibliographies at the end.

Reviewed by Emmet Dedmon

Chicago Sun N 9 '49 550w

"In his reference to the literary style of Genesis, Dr. Goldman himself becomes an unconscious stylist of the sort that marks him not only as one of America's great masters of the pulpit but also as a writer of unusually graceful English prose. On the other hand, such as in the author's almost verse by verse commentary, he easily sets aside the flowing pen for brevity and its sharp impact upon the understanding." John Evans

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 20 '49 650w

Christian Century 67:18 Ja 4 '50 150w

"This volume deals with the book of Genesis which Dr. Goldman translates in its most important passages from the original Hebrew with a display of philological erudition and literary appreciation that is as fascinating as it is amazing. . . The reader will not always agree with Dr. Goldman's conclusions, but he will always find them helpful and stimulating." K. M. Chworosky

+ — Churchman 164:16 Ja 1 '50 130w

"The scholarship revealed in the earlier chapters is profound, with the findings of Biblical criticism accepted. This and the other volumes in this series should be in the library of every clergyman, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish."

+ Kirkus 17:542 O 1 '49 180w

GOLDMANN, FRANZ. Voluntary medical care insurance in the United States. 228p $3 Columbia univ. press

614.2 Insurance, Health. Medical care 48-7044

"The nine chapters of this book present a discussion of the principle of medical care insurance, the history of its development in the United States, and the principal types of voluntary medical insurance. Dr. Goldmann is careful to point out the achievements and shortcomings of each kind of voluntary plan, but he does not hide his own convictions, which are stated explicitly in the final chapter, Limitations and Potentialities of Voluntary Plans. Dr. Goldmann finds that the voluntary plans he has described can never provide complete medical coverage for the whole population, partly because they are too expensive for the low income groups, and partly because of the inertia of, a certain portion of the population." U S Quarterly Bkl

"In this book, Dr. Goldmann has presented, first, an objective account of principles and prerequisites in the operation of voluntary medical care insurance plans. This constitutes one of the best summarizations now available of all related factors—actuarial, administrative, and medical. . . The presentation suffers from a profusion of statistical data in the text that might have been organized into tables or charts. One wishes, also, that the author had more forcefully applied his own experience with voluntary plan participation in European health insurance programs to the current issues facing the American people." E. S. Rogers

+ — Am J Pub Health 39:388 Mr '49 430w

"This is the first comprehensive account of the matter published in America. . . Dr. Goldmann with an astounding objectivity explains the good and the bad sides of each plan. Thus, he probably will be attacked by the representatives of them all." Alfred Manes
+ Ann Am Acad 260:236 N '48 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

"Written in an economical, lucid style, this book admirably answers the real need for a timely and authoritative study of the voluntary approach to medical care problems. Extensive bibliographical notes document the text." C. G. Sheps
+ Social Forces 27:175 D '48 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:362 S '48 170w

GOLDRING, DOUGLAS. Trained for genius; the life and writings of Ford Madox Ford [Eng title: Last pre-Raphaelite]. 288p $3.75 Dutton

B or 92 Ford, Ford Madox 49-3200

A study of the life and writings of an English writer, born Ford Madox Hueffer, grandson of Ford Madox Brown, one of the Victorian pre-Raphaelites. The author was a disciple of Ford's and at one time worked with him on the editorial staff of the English Review. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 45:375 Jl 1 '49

"The biography is a forthright, sympathetic interpretation, subjective at times, though never overly so." C. T. Houpt
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 20 '49 600w

Reviewed by Vivian Mercier
Commonweal 50:249 Je 17 '49 600w

"Even if based in friendship, this is always a just estimate of the man, though one may question the interest Ford Madox Ford holds for the reader of today."
Kirkus 17:220 Ap 15 '49 220w

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel
Nation 169:110 Jl 30 '49 1850w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 120:18 My 30 '49 1000w

"With respect to Ford's life in the United States, his book is shockingly deficient, being warped not only by Mr. Goldring's undisguised animosity to America and Americans, but by his failure to ascertain indispensable facts that could easily have been obtained. But about Ford's childhood and youth, his formal education, his private life and public career in England, his quixotic military service in the First World War, and the tragicomic scandal that led to the collapse of his reputation in England—about all these matters Mr. Goldring writes with authority and to excellent effect." Lloyd Morris
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 My 22 '49 1750w

"Douglas Goldring has gotten Ford into a book with all his contradictions, eccentricities, and talent. Goldring writes with the authority of knowledge and friendship. From 1908, when he was a sub-editor of the English Review, he knew Ford. He liked and admired Ford; after so much supercilious carping at the man this is a welcome change. But he is an honest biographer. His book is by no means a whitewashing of Ford or an attempt to build him into a great literary figure. A critic and novelist himself, Goldring can fairly evaluate Ford's achievement and can render dramatically Ford's rich and troubled life." Charles Weir
+ N Y Times p10 Je 12 '49 750w

"A lively and opinionated biographical study."
New Yorker 25:98 My 28 '49 120w

"It is an enormous labor to put a man of such varied life and achievements realistically into a book. Mr. Goldring very nearly succeeds." C. S. Forester
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 2 '49 950w

"This is a biography written with much loyalty and much affection and, I am sure, a thorough understanding of its subject. It is also a rather prickly book, one in which the writer's hackles are obviously up, for in it Mr. Goldring continues his dual task of casting down Ford's many detractors and claiming for Ford himself the literary rank which his old friend and associate believes he deserves." B. R. Redman
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:11 Je 25 '49 1050w

Reviewed by Victor Prahl
Springf'd Republican p6D Je 26 '49 900w

"The critical remissness which pained Mr. Goldring in the obituary notices of his friend and the crass abtuseness about Ford's merits which has persisted since his death are not likely to be removed by a biography that makes no attempt at critical examination. Proof demands more than laudatory asseveration. All the facts Mr. Goldring produces about the life, and they are indeed interesting and well set forth, cannot be analysed into any logical elements of Ford's literary worth. To be great is to be misunderstood: the converse has no rational basis."
Times [London] Lit Sup p708 D 18 '48 800w

GOLDSMITH, GENE. Layout for a corpse. 245p $2.50 Mill

49-10113

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 9 '49 60w

"A certain forced vivacity—but that's about all."
Kirkus 17:374 Jl 15 '49 60w

"The novel is stuffed with wisecracks, occasionally bright, and features one of those murderers sensible enough to give himself away when he realizes the manuscript has reached book length. This will do for that night when there's nothing else in the library you haven't read." A. B.
N Y Times p23 Ag 7 '49 200w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 21 '49 110w

"Below average."
— Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ag 13 '49 40w

"It is fast moving and, although the murderer isn't too hard to spot, written in a sufficiently engaging fashion to make it pleasant hot weather fare." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 110w

GOLDSTEIN, BERNARD. Stars bear witness; tr. and ed. by Leonard Shatzkin. 295p $3.50 Viking

940.53438 Jews in Warsaw. World war, 1939-1945—Poland 49-8564

"For many years a leader in the Polish-Jewish Socialist labor movement, the author tells of tragic and heroic end of Jews forced into a Ghetto by the Gestapo with aid of Jewish renegades. Of 500,000 Jews in Warsaw before Hitler, only 10,000 survived this worst of pogroms. Author, one of these few, describes . . . day to day horrors and indignities which the people endured until they found 'release' in the gas chambers or against courtyard walls. The events are so far removed from all 'civilized practices' that it is hard to give them credence." Library J

Booklist 45:233; 293 Mr 15 '49 My 1 '49

Kirkus 17:102 F 15 '49 190w

"A book whose significance all free people should try to comprehend. Recommended." C. W. Roth
+ Library J 74:736 My 1 '49 140w

GOLDSTEIN, BERNARD—Continued

"Mr. Goldstein may overemphasize the fighting role played by the Socialist anti-Zionist section of Warsaw Jewry; others give the Zionists chief credit for the resistance. Be that as it may, he is very modest about his own role, even though he tells of his many narrow escapes, of his hazardous existence in cellars or among Christian friends outside the ghetto, with the enemy constantly at his heels." Alfred Werner

N Y Times p29 My 8 '49 800w

"Through the book—notably aided by Leonard Shatzkin's understanding translation—shines the tremendous spirit of the author who is interested in no credit or glory for his part in the resistance, but who cares more that the story of the Jewish population's superhuman battle be recorded. Neither is it an excessively chauvinistic document; for in his narrative, side by side, are presented heroic, as well as traitorous Jews. Such impartiality reflects well the integrity of a man who is so interested in fact that he will neither polish up the bright side of the picture, nor minimize the uncomplimentary. It is this, precisely, that makes Mr. Goldstein's book eminently worthwhile reading." M. R.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 My 29 '49 400w

" 'The Stars Bear Witness' is written with restraint, with humane understanding, and with that kind of emotional love for their fellowmen that makes even pessimists believe that this world is some day going to be a good place to live in." H. B. Kranz

+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 My 7 '49 800w

GOLDSTEIN, NAOMI (FRIEDMAN). Roots of prejudice against the Negro in the United States [thesis]. 213p il $2.50; to libs & public insts gratis Boston univ. press

325.26 Negroes 48-8757

A study of the roots of Negro prejudice in America, by a young American psychologist who died in 1946. The study is developed under the following headings: Review of the literature; The nature of anti-Negro prejudice and hostility; Some aspects of the growth of racial thinking in America; The expression of the norm in American culture; The perpetuation of the American norm with respect to the Negro. No index.

"Although the approach is scholarly, the writing is clear and free from technical jargon. It is a volume that any reader with an interest in this important American problem will find rewarding. Dr. Goldstein makes use of a wide range of material, from early documents of the slave trade to contemporary greeting cards that stereotype the Negro." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p27 Ag 28 '49 270w

"Dr. Goldstein's study represents an important contribution to the growing literature on race prejudice in America. Because her outlook is constructive, the study points the way toward improvement."

+ School & Society 69:63 Ja 22 '49 50w

"A splendid illustration of the clear-eyed and thorough-going nature of the author."

+ Social Studies 40:192 Ap '49 20w

"The untimely death of Dr. Goldstein in 1946, at the age of 26, deprived the world of a young social scientist of great promise. In this doctoral thesis she has used a scientific, yet exceedingly sensitive and human, approach to one of the most important problems in American life today. . . This young, brilliant, honest analyst, of broad scholarship and great ability, has drawn freely from the various disciplines —anthropology, sociology, history, and social psychology—the findings which are so germane to the roots of prejudice against the Negro." T. G. Duckrey

+ Social Studies 40:272 O '49 600w

GOLF clinic, by Gene Sarazen [and others] phot. by Arthur E. Haug. 164p $3 Ziff-Davis

796.352 Golf 49-2180

"Excellent photographs illustrate for the amateur golfer the basic principles and helpful pointers of golf discussed by six leading tournament players." (Booklist) Contents: Grip and stance, by Gene Sarazen; The golf swing, by Ed Oliver; Wood shots, by Sam Snead; Iron shots, by Lloyd Mangrum; Chipping, pitching, and putting, by Jim Ferrier; Trap and trouble shots, by Ellsworth Vines.

+ Booklist 45:309 My 15 '49

Chicago Sun p8X My 15 '49 50w

Kirkus 17:231 Ap 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:738 My 1 '49 30w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p14 My 22 '49 230w

GOLLOMB, JOSEPH. Albert Schweitzer; genius in the jungle. 249p $2.75 Vanguard

B or 92 Schweitzer, Albert—Juvenile literature 49-48819

A life of Albert Schweitzer for teen aged readers.

Booklist 46:142 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:57 D '49 40w

"Here is a well-told story of one of the greatest men of our time."

+ Chicago Sun p6X N 13 '49 370w

"The volume serves admirably to make known to the youth of today the story of one of the most brilliant men and one of the most useful lives of today." J. A. O'Brien

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 390w

Reviewed by Neil Martin

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 550w

"It would seem almost impossible to take the life of a man of world-wide fame, complex character and personality, with such varied genius, condense it into a readable, satisfying biography for young people and retain the flavor of the man himself and the facts of his extraordinary career. Yet this has been done—and a very creditable job it is."

+ Kirkus 17:477 S 1 '49 150w

"The author has done a good job. Theology is played down, and Schweitzer's experiences as a medical missionary in Africa are emphasized, but the spirit of the great scholar, musician, and humanitarian is still felt." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1549 O 15 '49 80w

"For high school students and for a wide adult audience, too, this is a splendid introduction to an extraordinary living genius." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 8 '50 180w

"The pace is brisk, the sequence of events rich and colorful, and the style pleasant. Many young people will be fascinated by Schweitzer's continual struggle against handicaps." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p30 N 13 '49 180w

"An excellent job. . . Any child who does not shy away from serious reading will be completely fascinated by the story of the man who has been acclaimed as physician, musician, author and spiritual leader."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '49 90w

GOMEZ, WINNIFRED LOERCH. Merry songs; music ed. by Leo Sowerby; il: Eunice Young Smith [eds. Margaret Rose White and Linton J. Keith]. [96p] $2 Follett

784 Children's songs 49-3043

Over seventy children's songs, words and music in simple arrangements. Some of the songs are the old familiar ones, others are new. Index.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

"Arrangements are simple and melodies pleasant. Lively illustrations, many in color by Eunice Y. Smith. Not recommended for first purchase but possibly useful in schools and public libraries where there is a special need." Clara Adams

Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 80w

GONCOURT, EDMOND LOUIS ANTOINE HUOT DE, and GONCOURT, JULES ALFRED HUOT DE. French XVIII century painters [tr. with an introd. by Robin Ironside; il. selected by Ludwig Goldscheider]. 418p 100il $2.50 Phaidon

759.4 Painters, French 49-8783

These six essays selected from a group that appeared between 1856 and 1875 are now translated into English for the first time. They are biographical and critical studies of Watteau, Boucher, Chardin, La Tour, Greuze, and Fragonard. Copiously illustrated. List of plates and index of collections.

Booklist 45:395 Jl 15 '49

Kirkus 17:230 Ap 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 30w

"Ludwig Goldscheider has selected the hundred plates, four of which are in color. To this reviewer the choice of plates for Greuze seems the weakest. And one is surprised to see the Chantilly portrait drawing of Watteau, which England's foremost authority on that master has ascribed to Boucher, here attributed to Watteau himself. Mr. Goldscheider has also designed the book, and with charming taste. After so many weighty and unwieldy art books it comes as a delightful surprise that one can have so much that is good in so small a package." Agnes Mongan
+ — N Y Times p5 My 15 '49 600w

Sat R of Lit 32:36 S 3 '49 110w

"The Goncourts . . . contrive in a relatively small space to convey to the reader's mind not only an idea of the sort of pictures that a specific artist painted, with his good and bad qualities, but also the character and career of the man himself. Their method of setting out information is sometimes a trifle confused but the final result is extraordinarily effective in the impression left on the mind. The painter and his work are treated as if they were living entities; not as if both had to be fitted into an aesthetic strait-waistcoat of the critic's devising."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p458 Jl 15 '49 1500w

GOOCH, GEORGE PEABODY. Studies in German history. 515p $5 Longmans

943 Germany—History [49-9227]

"The items in this collection are partly old and partly new, but most of the former have been expanded and revised. . . Though the studies collected in this volume were written at different times, they derive a certain unity from the fact that they illustrate almost every phase of German history, from the Reformation to the eve of the Second World War. No attempt has been made to prove or disprove a thesis in this controversial field, though the author's opinions have not been concealed." (Pref) Contents: German political ideas from Luther to Hitler; Germany in the eighteenth century; Mirabeau's Secret Letters from Berlin; Mirabeau on the Prussian monarchy; Prince Henry of Prussia: statesman and diplomatist; Goethe's political background; Germany's debt to the French Revolution; Ranke's interpretation of German history; Treitschke in his correspondence; The study of Bismarck; Bismarck's table talk; Holstein: oracle of the Wilhelmstrasse. Index.

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 12 '49 180w

"A book needs something more than quotations. The primary task of the historian, Dr. Gooch writes, is interpretation. At the end it should all add up to something, but Dr. Gooch prefers to leave his sums unfinished and so, for all its interest and erudition, the impression left by the book is that its author is unaware of, or even slightly puzzled by the problems which other people, with only half his knowledge of Germany, have found in German history." Alan Bullock
Spec 182:406 Mr 25 '49 750w

"For the general reader the special value of this bird's-eye view of German history through more than four centuries lies in Dr. Gooch's rare ability for combining great learning with a gift of exposition that enables even those who are ignorant of the subject to read whatever he writes with profit and with pleasure. Moreover Dr. Gooch displays an impartiality in his comments on men and events that is of great value to the layman who ventures into a field of history that has for too long been the scene of embittered controversies."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p465 Jl 22 '49 8000w

GOODBAR, JOSEPH ERNEST, and BERGERON, LORENZO U. Creative capitalism; intended to reveal where depressions start, where lasting cure must begin and how cure can be had within the capitalistic system of private enterprise. 376p $3.75 Boston univ. press box 840, Portland, Me.

330.15 Economics. Capitalism. Business cycles 48-7407

"Recognizing the partial validity of the Marxian diagnosis of profits but disavowing its pessimistic conclusions, challenging the complacency of economic orthodoxy based on Say's dictum that production creates equivalent purchasing power, and abjuring all modern forms of governmental intervention from Keynes to Stalin, the authors would avert socialism by controls calculated to make capitalism 'creative,' 'dynamic,' and 'self feeding.' Specifically, they would close the gap between selling prices and purchasing power at full employment. . . This deficiency would be eliminated by three principal devices: an incentive tax on undisbursed private balances to stimulate investment; a government agency to act as a 'safe keeping deposit' for excess funds not required by private business; a public investment program to absorb the surplus funds entrusted to the government agency." Ann Am Acad

---

"The reviewer can but admire the authors for attempting to set up a type of control which would avoid dependence on the government and the enthusiasm with which the proposals are presented. No one can quarrel about the importance of some modicum of stability. It is indeed unfortunate, however, that the work of others was largely ignored. Particularly helpful would have been a study of Ruth Mack's savings tax, Arthur Dahlberg's deposits tax, and C. W. Hazelett's incentive tax. The failure to consult such studies possibly may be accounted for by disdain for the work of professional economists. In spite of mistakes which economists have made, if the authors had known more about economic thought they might have saved themselves such difficulties as necessarily arise from assuming that prices are merely the result of adding up costs and a profit margin." E. C Bratt
Am Econ R 39:539 Mr '49 750w

"If, as [the authors] affirm, capitalism on its own initiative cannot provide full investment, full employment, and adequate purchasing power then it is functionally obsolete and beyond resuscitation; governmental intervention can prolong its senility but cannot revitalize it or restore its creative powers. Hence, the authors are caught in a dilemma created by their own premises; all their ingenuity and wit fail to extricate them. On these assumptions a middle-of-the-road approach, with more attention to developing a sound program of public investment and less to saving capitalism from its inherent defects, would have proven more successful." H. M. Gray
Ann Am Acad 260:224 N '48 400w

"The notion of asking-value in excess of consumer income involves no logical, mathematical, or accounting contradiction. This is about all that Goodbar and Bergeron succeed in showing. They cite practically no direct historical evidence in support of their cyclical picture, which is difficult to reconcile with much that we know. They refuse to consider the Department of Commerce estimates of consumer income, but their objection is based on a misconception of the figures. . . It may well be that prices, at times, get out of line with the part of their incomes consumers are willing to spend. The book does not explore this potential source of trouble very far. It is not the only potential source, and a reader will find little more than a hint of numerous quite different and quite promising approaches to the understanding of business cycles." Thor Hultgren

GOODBAR, J. E. Continued

Sat R of Lit 31:24 N 6 '48 1150w

GOODENOUGH, FLORENCE LAURA. Mental testing; its history, principles, and applications. 609p il $5 Rinehart

151.2 Mental tests 49-6866

"A comprehensive survey of what has been accomplished in mental testing, of principles, methods, and uses, and notes on the still uninvestigated areas. Technical material, for the most part, for those concerned with testing in education, industry, or social welfare." (Booklist) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:114 D 1 '49

School & Society 70:223 O 1 '49 30w

GOODMAN, PHILIP, comp. Purim anthology. 525p il $4 Jewish pub.

296 Purim (feast of Esther) 49-8892

Collection of prose and verse about the origin and celebration of Purim. Includes music, suggestions for parties, programs, dances, and food. Glossary. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:347 Je 15 '49

"Really a wonderful job. I doubt whether any other day of popular religious celebration, except Christmas, has ever been the subject of such extensive and varied treatment." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:990 Ag 24 '49 210w

GOODRICH, LLOYD. Max Weber; pub. for the Whitney museum of American art [research by Rosalind Irvine]. 59p il $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Weber, Max, 1881-. Paintings, American 49-1473

"Biography and critical estimate of an American artist by the associate director of the Whitney Museum of American Art. Reproductions of 37 examples of the painter's work illustrate the volume." (Booklist) Selected bibliography.

Booklist 45:312 My 15 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 130w

"This uncritical monograph appraises Weber's later works as 'richly exuberant plastic fantasies combining inexhaustible inventiveness with subtlety and refinement.' Inexhaustible? Inventive? No analysis supports the judgments; actually the late Weber is a mosaic of innumerable recent impressions from local and foreign artists, with tiny invention if some refinement." Lincoln Kirstein

New Repub 120:29 Ap 18 '49 90w

"Lloyd Goodrich, the capable art historian associated with the Whitney Museum of American Art, has, in his catalogue for that institution's recent Max Weber show, ably checked through the record of his man and set it forth in a prose which, though clear, sometimes lacks the enticements of Mr. Wight's more compelling turns of statement. Though a careful sifter and a quiet estimator, he does possibly take the artist a little too much on his own terms. Weber often has been an eclectic—and an intelligent one, too. A simple acknowledgment to that effect would hurt nobody and furnish a real pivot for the discussion." Jerome Mellquist

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:15 Je 18 '49 180w

"The reproductions of Weber's work are excellent, affording a complete view of the painter's accomplishment."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:147 Je '49 200w

GORDON, ALBERT I. Jews in transition. 331p $4 Univ. of Minn.

296 Jews in Minneapolis. Jews—Social life and customs 49-10489

"Dr. Gordon, for 15 years a rabbi in Minneapolis and a labor arbitrator and now executive director of the United Synagogue of America, tells the story of Jews in one American community—Minneapolis. Using the 'participant-observer technique,' the author, who is familiar with social anthropology and sociology, does for one community what has been done on a broader scale by the Lynds in Middletown and Lloyd Warner in his Yankee City studies." (San Francisco Chronicle) Glossary. Index.

"For those concerned with the problem of race relations, this makes a definite contribution."

+ Kirkus 17:600 O 15 '49 130w

"Backed by numerous charts of statistics and a painstaking bibliography, it is a reasoned protest against prejudice and bigotry. From it every intelligent non-Jew can gain new respect and, better still, new understanding of the American Jew." V. P. Hass

+ N Y Times p14 N 6 '49 500w

"Carefully documented studies like this one are valuable not only from a sociological research viewpoint, but provide the data for a community action program to abolish segregation, discrimination, delinquency, group tensions, mental and physical illness and artificial barriers which prevent many people from full participation in community life. . . As one aspect of such a broad community study, Dr. Gordon has made a fine start for Minneapolis and at the same time has written a book packed with human interest and meaningful detail." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p35 N 20 '49 550w

GORDON, CYRUS HERZL. Lands of the cross and crescent; aspects of middle eastern and occidental affairs. 267p $3.75 Ventnor pubs, inc., box 2098, Ventnor City, N. J.

901 East (Near East)—Civilization. Civilization, Occidental 48-12882

"This volume is the chronicle of personal observations and judgments of the social customs, cultural achievements, political aspirations, and religious attitudes and practices of some sixteen different national and cultural units—nine under the Crescent and seven under the Cross—among whom the author at times has lived during the last fifteen years. In each chapter relating to lands visited, features of geology and geography, together with important incidents in history, usually form an introduction to the body of the narrative." Crozer Q

"The book is too brief and uncritical for the scholar, too diffuse for the layman. It would appear that he compounded his knowledge into a series of capsule studies, loaded them into a blunderbuss, and blazed away at the public in general with the hopes that some of them might land on the target. Dr. Gordon is more informative and convincing when he limits himself to the habits of the gods and goddesses of the city of Ugarit." E. M. Wright

— Am Hist R 53:618 Ap '49 320w

"For the historian these scanty and undocumented introductions are quite unnecessary; to the reader unacquainted with ancient history and Semitic lore they may be either meaningless or even misleading. Naturally these studies are 'neither balanced nor complete'; yet as descriptions and evaluations of one man's opinion, and that within limited areas, they are quite beyond reproach." I. G. Matthews

+ — Crozer Q 26:184 Ap '49 330w

Foreign Affairs 27:330 Ja '49 20w

"This modest volume is written without bias or pedantry. . . The chapter on Palestine and Zionism, the most brilliant in the book, is an excellent compendium of facts concerning this tragic corner of the earth." R. G. C.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 18 '48 140w

GORDON, LESLEY. A pageant of dolls; with a foreword by Janet Pagter Johl. 132p il col pl $3.75 Wyn

649.55 Dolls 49-10466

"Miss Gordon has given us an . . . account of the history of dolls and doll making, presenting the more important varieties of dolls from prehistoric times to the present. Ancestor dolls are represented as well as fashion dolls, edible dolls, novelty dolls, puppets, sign posts, toy dolls, rag dolls, and many more." (Publisher's note) The second section of the book deals with dolls of many lands. Illustrations are in color and in black and white. Index.

Booklist 46:24; 29 S 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '49

"Throughout, the text is livened by line drawings, and there are numerous double spreads in full color. Wonderful value in a book, the market for which will cover children and adults."

Kirkus 17:385 Jl 15 '49 180w

"The extreme simplicity with which all this is done makes it hard to agree with James Laver when he seems to assume, in his foreword, that the book will find an adult public. It is one on which an intelligent small girl might batten eagerly; but the grown-up collector of dolls (and it seems there are quite a number) will not need it, and the ordinary reader will think either that he does not want it or—as cogently—that he cannot afford it." A.M.P.

Manchester Guardian p3 S 21 '48 180w

"An informing reference book for adults as well as for children." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 40w

"Charmingly illustrated. . . The book is very simply written, so that those who still play with dolls will be able to enjoy it, but with much knowledge of the subject, and in particular with a great deal of fascinating information on the materials from which dolls are and have been made, and on their historical development."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p539 S 25 '48 600w

GORDON, MAURICE BEAR. Aesculapius comes to the colonies. 560p pl $10 Ventnor

610.9 Medicine—History. Medicine—U.S.

"The story of the early days of medicine in the thirteen original colonies." (Subtitle) Arrangement is by state. Bibliography. Index.

"Here is assembled in an apparently orderly but actually very awkward arrangement a great mass of data on colonial medicine and its practitioners. The book is not attractively enough written to interest the general reader, and it is not critically enough written to serve well as a textbook or work of reference. Yet doubtless the amateur compilers of medical history, who are a flourishing tribe, will welcome it as a new and abundant 'source' of information." L. H. Butterfield

Am Hist R 55:151 O '49 500w

"Dr. Gordon has written a fascinating book in which the general early history of the American colonies is used as a background for an account of the medical pioneers."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p301 My 6 '49 330w

GORER, GEOFFREY. American people; a study in national character. [Eng. title: Americans]. 246p $3 Norton

917.3 National characteristics, American 48-5913

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"It has been fun to read this book. Ostensibly a scientific essay in 'cultural anthropology,' Gorer's composition is disfigured by none of the stigmata of his discipline. He rarely deviates into the vocational dialect; he sets forth his conclusions without evidence and his inferences without the data from which he says he draws them; and he does so with the scalpeled simplicity that English writers on the United States so often manifest. Occasionally, Gorer's style brings to mind Bertrand Russell at his most sardonic. But there is no irony in this cultural anthropologist." H. M. Kallen

+ Am J Soc 54:474 Mr '49 1650w

Reviewed by Milton Singer

Ethics 60:62 O '49 3800w

Foreign Affairs 27:335 Ja '49 30w

"This book is the result of several years' impressions regarding the American people. Portions have appeared in Life magazine. The author has the detachment of mind to evaluate people and their peculiarities professionally and the book is quite readable because of his dry wit and humor." S. M. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 120w

"For the most part the reader will find himself absorbed in, if at times annoyed by, this unusual analysis of the American people."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:295 S '48 280w

GORTNER, ROSS AIKEN. Outlines of biochemistry; 3d ed, ed. by Ross Aiken Gortner, jr, and Willis Alway Gortner. 1078p $7.50 Wiley

574.19 Biological chemistry. Physiological chemistry. Chemistry, Organic. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 49-10321

"The book is addressed primarily to students who have had courses in organic chemistry. In this edition, substantial revisions and additions have been made. The chapters on protein denaturation, carbohydrate metabolism and lipid metabolism have been added, and numerous revisions have been made in other parts." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"The two chief criticisms which it seems might be justly leveled at this new edition are, first, that the editors were not drastic enough in their revision and that more of the older material might have been eliminated. It must be admitted, of course, that in so doing there might also be lost some of those odds and ends of information that lend this book some of its charm. The other criticism is that the book is not as up-to-the-minute as it seems it might be. . . Nevertheless, because of the uniqueness of its approach, this book remains a welcome addition to the armamentarium of the biochemist." E. G. Ball

+ — Chem & Eng N 27:3518 N 21 '49 330w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:66 S '49

GOS, CHARLES. Alpine tragedy; tr. from the French by Malcolm Barnes. 282p il $6 Scribner

914.94 Mountaineering—Accidents. Alps 49-1978

"This Swiss writer has reconstructed [more than twenty] Alpine disasters that took place mainly in the nineteenth century. . . He has selected those in which climbers or guides were well-known, including the Matterhorn accident in which Edward Whymper was involved. M. Gos treats his disasters in a dramatic, not quite English, way, inventing conversations and feelings; but he has taken much care in gathering evidence and he is perfectly familiar with the territory. He stresses the devoted work of rescue parties and the affection that exists between climber and guide." Spec

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 30w

Reviewed by Arnold Lunn

New Statesman & Nation 37:282 Mr 19 '49 320w

"Malcolm Barnes' excellent translation of Charles Gos' book on fatal mountain-climbing accidents in the Alps is strangely fascinating and should be welcomed not only by mountaineers but by all lovers of adventure. The style is graphic. Though the accidents are treated with great realism, there is nothing macabre about the dramatic story of twenty-four separate disasters, many of them well known to climbers for three-quarters of a century. Probably never has any single book dealt so successfully and so fairly with these famous mishaps." R. H. Bates

GOS, CHARLES—Continued
+ N Y Times p15 Mr 27 '49 450w

"The book will be of special interest to those who know the mountains, but may give to others some idea of the fascination of climbing. It is illustrated by tail-pieces by Whymper himself and a series of magnificent photographs of the Alps."
+ Spec 182:456 Ap 1 '49 180w

"M. Gos's approach to his subject is strongly romantic. He casts a Byronic eye on these massive outcrops of rock and ice, and often (in this translation) overwhelms his reader by the violence of his rendering of form and colour. Destiny and eternity, if not explicit, are always close under his pen; pathos, presentiment and irony are used to build his story; and at the end, with the rescue party, the memorial tablet and the final tributes, a neat black border is put round it. But he knows how to work with these tools, and in such a tragic narrative as 'Collapse of the Bas Relief,' the crisis is approached and held horribly in a brilliant piece of writing."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ja 1 '49 650w

GOSNELL, HARPUR ALLEN. Guns on the western waters; the story of river gunboats in the Civil war. 273p il maps $6.50 La. state univ. press

973.75 U.S.—History—Civil war—Naval operations 49-1284

Story of gunboat warfare, mainly on inland waterways, during the Civil war. The data are taken from the records and include both Federal and Confederate activities. No index.

"Mr. Gosnell's narrative technique has a sort of case-history approach. He often sets up the general background of the strategic and tactical situation. Out of this he draws upon one or two sources, often quoting at great length, to present in detail the activities, achievements, and colorful events incident to the operations of a single vessel. The results, from a historical viewpoint, are far more satisfactory than one has a reasonable right to expect." J. D. Hill
+ Am Hist R 55:164 O '49 320w

Booklist 45:278 Ap 15 '49

"Mr. Gosnell, former lieutenant commander in the U.S. navy and an experienced research student and writer, covers this field with entire competence. The inclusion of many contemporary accounts of episodes in these fresh-water naval operations (and some coastal engagements) lends vividness and intimate factuality to the narrative." W. E. G.
Christian Century 66:593 My 11 '49 250w

"The illustrations, both of men and ships, add to the interest. There is a lot of Southern history in it."
Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 40w

"Uncle Sam's web feet, as Lincoln called the Western gunboats, have yet to find a thorough historian. Meanwhile this well-composed selection from various books on their exploits will furnish a passable substitute."
Sat R of Lit 32:30 Je 18 '49 150w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:207 Je '49 280w

GOTTSCHALK, MRS FRUMA (KASDAN). The youngest general; a story of Lafayette; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 169p $2.50 Knopf

B or 92 Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert du Motier, marquis de—Juvenile literature 49-8467

This biography of Lafayette for young readers covers his childhood and youth, his early marriage and life at the French court, and finally his coming to America to serve under Washington in the Revolution. Except for a brief paragraph or two the story ends with his appointment as a general in the American army at the age of twenty. Chronology. Index.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun My 21 '49 410w

"A well-authenticated life of Lafayette from fresh material contained in original documents." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:290 Jl '49 130w

"The biographer has shown her readers the warmth, the courage, the clear thinking, as young Lafayette became inflamed by ideals of liberty and equality. She has made a fast moving drama of plots and international intrigue, and at the same time given a portrait of a sensitive youth, a romantic."
+ Kirkus 17:209 Ap 15 '49 190w

"Especially recommended for ages 10-14." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 80w

"The writer bases her facts on historical research of her husband, and on their visits to all the places in France here mentioned. She makes the eighteenth century life of the rich remarkably real, and we squirm with the ungainly lad at what was the assumption of court life. Interesting reading for boys and girls who are beginning to study American history, to supplement other lives of Lafayette." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 17 '49 250w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p16 Jl 24 '49 220w

GOULD, JEAN ROSALIND. Young Thack (William Makepeace Thackeray) il. with Thackeray's original sketches. 276p $2.75 Houghton

B or 92 Thackeray, William Makepeace—Juvenile literature 49-6501

Fictionized biography of William Makepeace Thackeray written for young people. It covers his life story from his voyage to England from India, at the age of six, to his death at the age of fifty-two, but the period of his youth is more fully studied. Bibliography

Booklist 45:398; 46:101 Jl 15 '49; N 15 '49

"Miss Gould writes a good narrative and introduces her readers to a pleasant literary atmosphere, and she makes Thackeray attractive to young readers without being dishonest concerning his faults. Many illustrations from Thackeray's own drawings add to the charm of the book." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 160w

"This book has the flavor of Thackeray's own stories, showing against the London of his times, the schoolboy pranks and friendships, the college years and the fame that came through his writings. . . Boys and girls over 13, or more, can read this just as a good story but it has the extra merit of being all true." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 10 '49 230w

"It has no intention of being a critical biography either of the man or his work but, because it is never under-written, because it respects the youthful intelligence, each incident, character, and idea produces fresh understanding and appreciation." Florence Codman
+ Commonweal 51:187 N 18 '49 330w

Kirkus 17:327 Jl 1 '49 150w

"It is, on the whole, disappointing. The man who wrote 'Vanity Fair' and 'The Newcomes' fails to emerge from its pages. . . His sketches, sprinkled generously through the text, are a valuable addition to the format. It is an attractive looking book." M. G. Davis
— + Sat R of Lit 32:38 N 12 '49 150w

GOULD, JOHN. And one to grow on; recollections of a Maine boyhood; with drawings by F. Wenderoth Saunders. 253p $3 Morrow

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Maine—Social life and customs 49-2045

Reminiscences of the author's boyhood spent in the Maine town where his ancestors have lived for nearly two hundred years. He still lives there and edits the Lisbon Enterprise, a small weekly with a large reputation.

Booklist 45:217; 279 Mr 1 '49; Ap 15 '49

"[Mr Gould's] recollections occasionally become salty, are usually humorous, always intimate, homespun, and tolerant, and bound to demonstrate his conviction that a sound and happy home, self-directed play, some work, and the wisdom of his elders, distilled in the stories they told, make a good extracurricular education for a growing boy." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 28 '49 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"Homely, funny stories of a Maine childhood, told in fine downeast style."
+ Kirkus 17:104 F 15 '49 130w

"Inimitable Gould, fully up to standard." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 130w

"Mr. Gould's book will ring true in every Maine mind. Let us hope it will be read and enjoyed by many others who know the state only as 'Vacation Land.'" M. E. Chase
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 8 '49 600w

"It's mighty good reading, as well as able, unstudied writing, which makes every word work as all good State of Maine words should work. And those who won't like it just don't like Maine." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 17 '49 550w

"He has a great deal of the late Clarence Day's ability to recapture and recreate the happiness of a bygone generation. He sees the humour and weaknesses of that generation, but he is an enthusiastic admirer of that past era, although in expressing that enthusiasm he recognizes that understatement is the most emphatic of all." Caspar Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 My 15 '49 900w

"Both native State-of-Mainers and eager 'Mainiacs' would be hard put to it to find an account of a small-town boyhood more amusingly, humanely, and satisfyingly described. What an eye he has for character. . . Like all first rate humorists, John Gould is able to tell a really poignant story when such a tale becomes a part of his picture. His style remains his very own, laconic, colloquial, with the manner of a good storyteller's speech, yet always a vigorous part of the realm of the written word." Henry Beston
+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 My 28 '49 600w

Wis Lib Bul 45:105 Je '49

GOULD, LAWRENCE. Mirror of your mind. 190p $1.95 Fell

150.13 Psychology, Applied 49-9287

The author, who conducts a widely read newspaper column with the same name as the title of this book, has been a reporter, teacher, consulting psychologist, and minister. He has answered here over two hundred questions, arranging them under such headings as: love; marriage; divorce; emotional maturity; child guidance; getting along with others; friendship; health; middle age; mental illness; etc.

Booklist 45:384 Jl 15 '49

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 120w

GOULD, MAGGY. The dowry. 244p $2.75 Morrow

49-10310

"A horror story about a man with a curse upon him set against a modern, cushy background of the Riviera, London, New York and California. . . The man is Jonathan Reizel, an artist of some ability. The man Reizel believes put the curse upon him is Laurentz Gilmore, dean of art critics in Europe and 57th Street, who has traveled much in remote, mysterious lands. When the handsome artist and the beautiful young wife of the middle-aged critic fall in love, they quite simply walk out on Laurentz to be happy, young and good-looking together. Then is when the curse falls on Jonathan." N Y Times

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p56 O 7 '49 20w

"Some shocking stuff here which you may find absorbing, if you indulge in this genre."
Kirkus 17:310 Je 15 '49 190w

"Morbidly fascinating book." H. R. Forbes
Library J 74:1024 Jl '49 70w

"The technique, unfortunately, isn't nearly so good as the idea. And somehow the horror of the curse isn't conveyed in a way to make the hair stand on end. 'The Dowry' poses a fascinating set-up, but it will probably keep nobody awake at night." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p26 Ag 28 '49 230w

"The people of whom Miss Gould writes are often fascinating, and she tells their story in a vigorous, confident style. But the story of the violence-ridden marital life of Jonathan Reizel, having no apparent purpose save a deliberate, over-anxious attempt to horrify the reader, and failing, for the most part, even in that, falls short of the promise of its opening chapters. We reach the point where we can believe nothing, where we are saturated with contrived, meaningless terror, and we can listen to no more of it." N. G. Chaikin
— + Sat R of Lit 32:18 O 15 '49 230w

Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 100w

GOULD, MARY EARLE. Early American house. 144p $5.75 McBride

728 Household appliances. Architecture, Domestic. U.S.—Social life and customs—Colonial period

A study of the houses and utensils of the American colonists. Includes fireplaces, kitchens, wooden and other utensils, furniture, and something of the social life of the times. Illustrated with photographs. No index.

Booklist 46:138 D 15 '49

"A new and handsome book by the author of Early American Wooden Ware. . . Text is detailed and readable." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock
N Y Times p43 N 27 '49 100w

Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 230w

GOVAN, MRS CHRISTINE (NOBLE) (J. N. DARBY, pseud). Mr. Hermit Miser and the neighborly pumpkin; il. by Anne Merriman Peck. [43]p $1.75 Aladdin

49-11178

The story of how a pumpkin vine made good neighbors for Mr. Miser. Mr. Miser was such a pathetic sight after all his failures at baking pumpkin pies from the pumpkins on his vine, that the neighbor ladies came to his aid. In return for their good pies, Mr. Miser had to clean up his place, and then his neighbors became his friends.

Kirkus 17:425 Ag 15 '49 140w

"Recommended for 7-9-year-olds." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 70w

"It would not be fair to Mr. Hermit Miser to present the tale of his sorry plight to children over 8 who can read, although the publisher indicates that it is planned for the 8-to-12-year-olds. Their patience would not long endure the length or the quaintness of the telling, although their funny bones might be mildly tickled. This story would be better listened to than read by a youngster, although its length might weary the child of 5 to 8 who would be its most appreciative audience." G. C. Castor
N Y Times p24 N 6 '49 180w

GOULD, C. N.—Continued
Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:26 N 12 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul p9 N '49

GRABER, DORIS APPEL. Development of the law of belligerent occupation, 1863-1914; a historical survey. 343p $4 Columbia univ. press

341.32 Military occupation 49-7087

"This is a study of the development of the law of belligerent occupation from 1863 to 1914, as reflected in contemporary international agreements, military manuals, and literature of international law. Only the law applicable to occupation of enemy territory in war time, prior to the conclusion of an armistice is discussed." (Pref) "The responsibilities of occupying powers to the occupants, and the duties of the latter to the former, are considered from the historical records of actual occupation in the period. Chapters on public property and personal rights, and requisitions follow." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"Data for the study of occupation practices are 'scanty and unreliable.' Yet the book is a convenient summary, with a succinct chart of the texts in an appendix, and a competent bibliography. The author surely merits the vita customary in books of this sort, which has been omitted." Llewellyn Pfankuchen
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:397 Ap '49 380w

"The value of the present study lies in the fact that it indicates clearly the need for a new approach suited to the situations of belligerent occupation in our rapidly changing world. It is a carefully prepared, well-documented study." W. J. Dickman
+ Ann Am Acad 263:237 My '49 400w
Current Hist 16:169 Mr '49 70w
Foreign Affairs 27:679 Jl '49 10w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:229 Je '49 280w

GRACE SISTER MELANIA, and PETERSON, GILBERT CHARLES. Books for Catholic colleges; comp. under the auspices of the Catholic lib. association. 134p $3.75 A.L.A.

016 Roman Catholic literature—Bibliography. Libraries, University and college 48-11124

"A supplement to Shaw's List of Books for College Libraries." (Subtitle) It is "intended to supplement Shaw's work for the Catholic point of view. It will serve as an additional measuring stick by accrediting agencies in their evaluation of Catholic college book collections. It provides a check list for individual librarians and institutions in surveying their collections and in purchasing new titles. The index, which lists many subjects upon which the Catholic viewpoint is solicited, should serve as a reference tool." (Introd)

Booklist 45:114 D 1 '48

"The data on book prices will have to be used cautiously, as a number of titles are indicated as still being in print, such as Crowley's Catholic High School Principal, which has been out of print for a number of years. The index is satisfactory from the standpoint of locating authors but is not intended as a subject index to the individual titles . . . However, the criticisms mentioned above are relatively minor in nature. As a whole, this list will stand as a basic tool for Catholic college librarians and college administrators in building and evaluating their collections. We should be most grateful to the compilers and to their colleagues in preparing a worthwhile reference work." E. P. Willging
+ — Library J 74:540 Ap 1 '49 650w

"Some users of this book will question the decision of the compilers to omit foreign-language titles other than works in German and Romance languages. . . Trade information is given for each entry, and out-of-print items are designated as such in many instances, but by no means in all. . . Of course, every critic will have his own ideas about what might have been included and was not: the present reviewer regrets the omission of Werner Wolff's biography of Anton Bruckner, and even more that of such an old reliable as William Turner's History of Philosophy. However, none of the criticisms we have made is of any moment when considered in relation to the general level of excellence maintained throughout this bibliography. The need for it is the more readily apparent as there is no existing book with which to compare it." Phillips Temple
+ — Library Q 19:296 O '49 700w

GRADENWITZ, PETER. Music of Israel; its rise and growth through 5000 years. 334p il $5 Norton

781.72 Music—Jews. Music, Jewish 49-3614

A history of the music of the Jews from Biblical times to the present. Includes liturgical, folk, and formally composed music. A final chapter: The Return to Zion, discusses music in Zionist Palestine. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:331 Je 1 '49

"Certainly the study is a timely one, because one is curious to know what will come out of Palestine now that an independent Jewish state has been established. . . The study is well-written and excellently documented." C. S. Smith
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:469 Je '49 1050w

"'The Music of Israel,' although it doesn't tell us all we should like to know about its 'rise and growth,' does give a readable account of available information as related by a cultivated musician." Aaron Copland
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 O 2 '49 700w

"Mr. Gradenwitz recounts the achievements of many composers of Jewish birth. Here, one feels, a touch of chauvinism enters his narrative, although on the whole his approach is detached. Some of these men were so thoroughly assimilated that they were German, French or American as composers, not Jews, and Mr. Gradenwitz strains somewhat to find in some of them their Jewish characteristics. He is on much safer ground in reporting on the rich growth occurring in Israel today." Howard Taubman
+ — N Y Times p22 Jl 10 '49 680w

"An utterly non-self-conscious, buoyant, and stimulating recital of the fascinating saga of Jewish music. . . The author, an Israeli critic and composer who received his training at the University of Prague, unfolds this chronicle with a clearly distilled and unostentatious scholarship, and in a spirit of an enlightened musicologic humanism." Max Helfman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 Je 25 '49 1000w

GRADMANN, ERWIN, ed. French master drawings of the eighteenth century; sel. and with an introd. [tr. by Robert Allen]. 90p 57il $2.50 Harper

741.9 Drawings

An introduction to the art of drawing in eighteenth century France. Includes examples of the work of Watteau, Gillot, Lancret, Pater, Liotard, Greuze, Fragonard, and others. Descriptive notes on the plates are included.

"It has drawings of such delight and skill that anyone studying painting, either as an artist or part of an informed public, will find himself going over and over the pages of drawings by Watteau, Boucher, Fragonard, Greuze and Prud'hon. This book, like all of Harper's publications, is beautifully done." Irving Stone
+ Chicago Sun p12X D 4 '49 70w

"A fine piece of book making."
+ Kirkus 17:621 N 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 80w

"The book is particularly rich in varied and skillful sketches by Watteau—among them an unusual study of Negro heads." R. H. Hagan

+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 27 '49 180w

"Excellently edited and printed volume."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:69 D 3 '49 130w

GRAEDENER-HATTINGBERG, MAGDA VON (BENVENUTA, pseud). Rilke and Benvenuta; a book of thanks; tr. from the German by Cyrus Brooks. 193p $3 Norton

B or 92 Rilke, Rainer Maria 49-50009

A first person account of the friendship between the author and the poet, which began with a "fan letter" from the woman. The story is chiefly of the three months in 1914 when they were together, in Berlin, Paris and Italy.

"It is a moving book, of the utmost sincerity. While for some readers it may not add to Rilke's stature it cannot help but implement their understanding of the man." T. M. Longstreth

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 650w

"The general mawkishness of the book is pretty formidable, but never mind; it is about Rilke, and it is not mean-spirited." Rolfe Humphries

Nation 169:629 D 24 '49 270w

Reviewed by James Stern
New Repub 122:20 Ja 9 '50 270w

"One hardly knows where to place this book in the clutter of letters, memories, critical studies and biographies so steadily accumulating around Rilke's name. As much hysterical nonsense has been written about him as about D. H. Lawrence, if that is possible." K. A. Porter

N Y Times p3 Ja 1 '50 1750w

Reviewed by Gwendolen Freeman
Spec 183:244 Ag 19 '49 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p570 S 2 '49 2150w

GRAF, DONALD THORNTON. Data sheets; thousands of simplified facts about building materials, planning, and construction. 2d ed rev & enl 809p il $8 Reinhold

690 Building—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 49-9581

"There are a number of additions in the 1949 edition of this useful book. Among the new entries are sheets on radiant heating, fluorescent and radio-active paints, fiber block insulation, magnesium oxychloride plastic flooring, asphalt shingles, cork block insulation, noise reduction, current uses of glass block, and underwater lighting of swimming pools. The layout of the pages has been changed and manufacturers' names have, in the main, been moved to a list of acknowledgments at the front of the book. The index has been expanded, but it has not yet been made according to good indexing principles." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1944.

N Y New Tech Bks 34:50 Jl '49

"All those engaged in building or repair work will rejoice that a second edition, revised and enlarged, of 'Don Graf's Data Sheets,' for some time out of print, has been published. This practical work, begun as a collection of loose-leaf sheets about manufactured products and basic design data for the author's own use in active architectural practice, has become standard." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 7 '49 120w

GRAHAM, BENJAMIN. Intelligent investor; a book of practical counsel. 276p $3.50 Harper

332.67 Investments. Securities 49-9174

"The purpose of this book is to supply, in a form suitable for laymen, guidance in the adoption of an investment policy. Some of the material is derived from a larger work—Security Analysis by Benjamin Graham and David L. Dodd [Book Review Digest 1934]—intended mainly for working analysts and advanced students. Comparatively little will be said here about the technique of analyzing securities; attention will be paid chiefly to investment principles and investors' attitudes." (Introd) Index.

"The reasonableness of expression that runs throughout this book and the many ideas (particularly those that relate to the valuing of individual securities) that will prove helpful to the lay investor are most disarming for the critic. The book has many good points, but to this reviewer it has a major defect. Mr. Graham's outline of specific investment programs for broad groups of persons runs counter to what I regard as a basic idea of investment theory and good practice." G. H. Evans

+ — Ann Am Acad 266:205 N '49 650w

"An excellent job, for the man in the street."
+ Kirkus 17:134 Mr 1 '49 170w

Nation 169:113 Jl 30 '49 160w

"The material as presented, is always readable and within easy grasp of the layman, although the chapters on security analysis and the tables of statistical data require some digging for complete understanding." R. R. Rash

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 3 '49 250w

GRAHAM, EDWARD HARRISON, and VAN DERSAL, WILLIAM RICHARD. Wildlife for America; the story of wildlife conservation. 109p il $2.50 Oxford

799 Wild life, Conservation of 49-8356

One page discussions on various phases of conservation of wild life in the United States, with photographs facing each page.

Booklist 45:265 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:288 Jl '49 90w

"A child already interested in wild life would need no guidance, but the average child would find it very choppy reading."
Kirkus 17:151 Mr 15 '49 80w

"Clear and beautiful photographs. . . Format is attractive, paper excellent—a good introductory book for adults as well as young people interested in the subject." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 80w

"An unusual book for teen-age readers and adults, presenting in brisk one-page essays a progressive story of the conservation of our native wild life." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 8 '49 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:40 Je 11 '49 50w

Wis Lib Bul 45:91 My '49

GRAHAM, FRANK DUNSTONE. Theory of international values. 349p $5 Princeton univ. press

330.162 Value 49-176

"Professor Graham (Princeton) calls this 'a straight exercise in untutored logic.' In it he expounds his theory of 'opportunity cost' in place of demand, and establishes a new yardstick for measuring international values and national price structures. The theories of Ricardo, John Stuart Mill, and others are attacked in the process." Current Hist

"It is a book to be reckoned with, and it may well mark an important turning point in international trade theory." P. S. Peirce
+ Ann Am Acad 264:172 Jl '49 360w

Current Hist 16:169 Mr '49 40w

"The book is an impressive intellectual exercise, ranks high in the literature of dissent, and is addressed to advanced students of economic theory."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:60 Mr '49 220w

GRAHAM, LLOYD. Niagara country. (American folkways ser) 321p $3.50 Duell

917.14 Niagara Falls 49-9928

The territory covered in this book is the region, in the United States and Canada, within a fifty-mile radius of Niagara Falls. The history of the region from earliest times is here recorded, with a few partly fictional stories of Indian days, and some accounts of the publicity stunts which have brought Niagara Falls into prominence. Index.

Booklist 45:390 Jl 15 '49

Commonweal 50:446 Ag 12 '49 90w

"A vivid picture of the history and the people of one of the United States' spectacular scenic regions, this manages an able coverage of the double nationality involved. . . Of definite locality interest."

+ Kirkus 17:224 Ap 15 '49 120w

"Material hackneyed for the most, and writing is heavy. Even distinctive episodes like the Finian invasion and a modern Indian witch trial fall accurate but flat. Not recommended except to include with other titles in the 'American Folkways' series." E. L. Lewis

Library J 74:891 Je 1 '49 80w

"Mr. Graham's chapter on the Morgan affairs is both careful and detailed, a fine account of this strange, muddled and still somewhat mysterious business. . . The author has made the most of these events, as properly he should, in a book concerned with folkways. I was disappointed to find a mere mention of Elbert Hubbard, one of our most entertaining 'characters' of all time; and nothing at all about the Larkin Soap Company, famous alike in Maine and Oregon; or Community Silver, known everywhere. Still, the author may have good reasons for leaving them out. The publishers, however, cannot be excused from letting this book appear without a map. (The end-papers are useless.) This reviewer has been in Niagara Country a number of times yet had to read the present book with a Rand-McNally handy and open." S. H. Holbrook

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 17 '49 900w

"Some readers will think that the geology of the Falls deserved explanation, and certainly there should have been a map of the Niagara Country. But of all the many books written about this storied region, this is the most readable." H. W. Thompson

+ — N Y Times p19 Ag 7 '49 470w

"At its best, the book is a lively account of the history of the Falls, especially during the balmy days of the commercial exploitation of the cataract, but toward the end it peters out into a collection of dull local notes on Buffalo and environs. No pictures, unfortunately."

+ — New Yorker 25:114 S 17 '49 130w

"There was real need for this book and Lloyd Graham has done a good job of fulfilling it. The land that centers about the greatest of American waterfalls is important in history and rich with the lore of its folk. . . Mr. Graham has orgnized his work well and his history flows smoothly. . . It is to be regretted that so few interesting facts about life on the Western reaches of the Erie Canal have been included." Carl Carmer

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:11 Ja 21 '50 550w

GRAHAM, ROBERT BONTINE CUNNINGHAME-. See Cunninghame-Graham, R. B.

GRAHAM, SHIRLEY. Story of Phillis Wheatley; il. by Robert Burns. 176p $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Wheatley, Phillis—Juvenile literature 49-10767

The life story of the Negro poetess, from the day she was rescued from the Boston slave market by the kindly Mrs Wheatley, until her death in 1784. For grades seven to nine. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:69 O 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

"A fascinating story, which should have wide appeal for sensitive readers of any age."

+ Kirkus 17:432 Ag 15 '49 150w

"The story is told without rancor or sentimentality." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1549 O 15 '49 70w

"A biography with a definite emotional appeal for girls of twelve and over." M. B. Snow

+ Library J 74:1920 D 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 8 '50 180w

"Shirley Graham tells a moving tale, tenderly and well." N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p30 N 13 '49 120w

"The tale is told with sympathy and understanding and it gives interesting sidelights on the social and intellectual life of her time. An important book, it is unfortunate that the author did not give it its proper classification. This is not a biography; it is historical fiction. As historical fiction it merits high praise for its interpretation of a period and a person." R. A. B.

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:38 N 12 '49 140w

GRAHAM, SHIRLEY. Your most humble servant [the story of Benjamin Banneker]. 235p $3 Messner

B or 92 Banneker, Benjamin 49-11346

"Benjamin Banneker, for the few to whom he has been known, was an inventor of a clock, an assistant in the planning of the city of Washington, D. C., and a Negro author of a letter to Thomas Jefferson that was a sharp reminder of the human rights of Negroes. Shirley Graham has built a biography about the personality of Banneker. . . For young people and adults." Library J

Booklist 46:1; 81 S 1 '49; N 1 '49

"Recommend this as revealing and fascinating biography of a figure in American history and the annals of science, a man whose name deserves wide recognition. . . Dramatic treatment of a rewarding subject, this is a book to call to attention of readers who might too easily bypass it."

+ Kirkus 17:449 Ag 15 '49 330w

Reviewed by M. E. Monroe

+ Library J 74:1088 Ag '49 100w

+ Library J 74:1559 O 15 '49 20w

"Miss Graham's grasp of the background material for her biography is less than adequate—her calling Lord Baltimore 'Lord Calvert' is symptomatic—and her narrative is highly emotional. Banneker was hardly the American Leonardo of the uninhibited publishers' blurb . . . but he was a distinguished American we do well to recall. Miss Graham has at least performed a service in bringing him to our attention." E. H. Smith

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 30 '49 400w

"We are grateful to the biographer for reminding us of the debt we owe this early American." B. M. Murphy

+ N Y Times p53 O 30 '49 550w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 240w

GRAHAME, KENNETH. Bertie's escapade; il. by Ernest H. Shepard. 41p $1.50 Lippincott 49-10255

Bertie, the pig, had a motto: "Deeds, not grunts." So when he decided to go Christmas carol singing, he rounded up his friends, Peter and Benjie Rabbit, and started out. The account of what happened then is illustrated by Ernest Shepard. The story first appeared in "First Whisper of The Wind in the Willows" (Book Review Digest 1945).

Chicago Sun p8X N 13 '49 80w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 100w

"An attractive little book especially suitable for Christmas giving." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 25:413 S '49 80w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 25:522 N '49 60w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 70w

"With the rarely amusing pictures, it becomes a 'must' for the Christmas stockings of all who love this author and artist. This great company by now includes many ages. Age has nothing to do with the privilege of peeping in on a funny bad dream of Kenneth Grahame's, or loving a pig and two rabbits as drawn by Ernest Shepard." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 N 13 '49 260w

"In the merry Christmas Eve antics of Bertie the pig, the rabbits, Peter and Benjie and the unnamed mole are found that bland mixture of fantasy and reality, the same childlike sense of fun and that deep, unobtrusive tenderness. Children will delight in Bertie and his friends singing carols (off-key) in their discomfiture, their breathless retreat and in their Gargantuan feast." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p28 O 2 '49 230w

"One could hardly expect it to measure up to the adventures of Mole, and it doesn't but the little tale of Bertie the pig and his rabbit friends' unsuccessful Christmas serenade and the feast they later gorge upon has enough of Grahame's magic to gratify anyone from seven to ten."
New Yorker 25:171 D 3 '49 90w

"To see this little book is to long to possess it. Ernest Shepard has never made more appealing or funnier drawings. . . Nothing more need be said about this book. It is Kenneth Grahame and Ernest Shepard." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 O 22 '49 270w

GRANT, BRUCE. Eagle of the sea; the story of Old Ironsides; il. by Gordon Grant. 176p $2.50 Rand McNally

359.32 Constitution (frigate)—Juvenile literature 49-11424

A true story of the adventures of the U.S. frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides." It tells, in particular, of two boys who sailed on her maiden voyage and stayed with her thru the war of 1812. The two boys, both real people, were Ebenezer Terrill and Tobias Smith. Chronology. List of famous models of Old Ironsides.

Booklist 46:145 D 15 '49

Reviewed by Lucile Pannell
Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 220w

"Today's science-minded boys seem to have lagging interest in pirates and sea battles, but the historical and biographical background of this make it good supplementary reading, of particular use in school libraries. Gordon Grant (no relation of the author) has done grand line drawings and a beautiful portrait of the ship jacket in color."
+ Kirkus 17:588 O 15 '49 190w

"The building and launching of 'Old Ironsides,' her races at sea, fights with pirates, participation in the War of 1812—all of the famous incidents of her career—are told with accuracy as to detail and historical background. Gordon Grant's illustrations add distinction, as he is internationally famous for his sea pictures. Recommended for boys 12-15." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 75:51 Ja 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 13 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:48 N 12 '49 20w

GRANT, MRS DOROTHY (FREMONT). Devil's food. 282p $3 Longmans 49-9219

Novel about one of the problems of youth. Betsy Lyman, brought up in a good Catholic home, defies her mother and enters Sherwood Junior College, to which she had won a scholarship. Betsy wanted freedom and thought she was taking the right way, until she was seduced by one of the college professors. The long, hard way of experience finally led Betsy back to her religion and her mother.

"As a story, parts of the plot, as well as some of the characters, particularly the professor, seem decidedly implausible. As a tract for the purpose of pointing out that crime does not pay in this area of human activity either, there is a danger that young readers may be more entranced by the graphic portrayal of evil than impressed by its inevitable consequences."
Cath World 169:319 Jl '49 120w

"This will be read almost wholly by Catholics of fairly rigid orthodoxy. Though purporting to be a novel, the story is deliberately keyed to a rebellion from Cathelicism, and the progress of the rebel away from and back to the fold. Non-Catholics will find it contrived and unconvincing."
Kirkus 17:69 F 1 '49 220w

"Unfortunately, the heroine is not a credible human being and so the theme is not worked out in terms of character. . . Although the author is most deeply concerned with the dangers which confront a bewildered adolescent mind, the homecoming of this prodigal daughter seems a somewhat dubious achievement. Perhaps melodrama has inhibited the sympathy which Betsy's difficult struggle for self-knowledge deserves. Certainly it does not excuse her peculiar behavior." Joan Andrews
— N Y Times p22 Je 5 '49 320w

" 'Devil's Food' is the sort of novel in which conversation must carry a considerable burden of preaching and teaching. For all that the action is spirited and the interplay of characters convincing. With the exception of Stanley, the characters are realistically drawn. Stanley would certainly put the author in her place for not knowing that a super-sophisticate carries his liquor more elegantly [and] dismisses a cast-off lady with subtler technique." A. F. Wolfe
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:23 Je 25 '49 320w

GRANT, MRS DOROTHY (FREMONT). John England, American Christopher. 167p $2.75 Bruce pub.

B or 92 England, John, bp. 49-1728

"[A biography of] John England, an Irish priest who became the first Bishop of Charleston, S.C., 1820-1842. He was an interesting character, humane, energetic and original. Full of ideas, he was an innovator and a controversialist. He therefore got on poorly with his colleagues and superiors. An indefatigable apologist for his church in a country and a period in which native American intolerance was rising, he founded the first Roman Catholic paper of any vitality in this country." N Y Times

"Her book is intended for the use of the general reader. Unfortunately it contains no table of contents; but she partly compensates for this defect by a very full chronology."
+ Cath World 169:160 My '49 150w

"Mrs. Grant brings to the subject the zeal of a convert. . . Unfortunately zeal is all she brings. She has left moderation, perspective, coherence, and good style behind." W. B. Hamilton
— + N Y Times p20 Je 12 '49 300w

GRAUTOFF, CHRISTIANE. Stubborn donkey; pictures by Anne Marie Jauss. [45p] $1.75 Aladdin 49-11179

"There was once upon a time a gentle little donkey who was always full of joy. Then something happened to make him a stubborn donkey and it was a long time before his master, Grumpy-Dumpy, learned what it is that cures donkeys and people of stubbornness." Horn Bk

Horn Bk 25:405 S '49 70w

GRAUTOFF, CHRISTIANE—Continued
"Story is commonplace, but the illustrations by Arne Marie Jauss with their Mediterranean flavor give to the book a charming appearance." J. M. Smith
Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 60w

GRAVES, RALPH A. Thanks for the ride. 251p $2.75 Lippincott
49-9825

Story of Jerry's efforts to keep his childhood gang together. During several eventful months at college he learned that his friends were separate people who had their own separate lives to lead.

"Mr. Graves has a touch that is light and agreeable, and his romance has overtones of raillery."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 S 4 '49 120w

"A gay, lighthearted book that evidently draws heavily on its young author's personal experiences." Carolyn Lydgate
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 31 '49 230w

GRAVES, ROBERT. Islands of unwisdom. 328p $3.50 Doubleday
Mendaña de Neira, Alvaro—Fiction 49-11053

Historical novel based on the Spanish expedition to establish a colony in the Solomon Islands, led by General Mendaña y Castro in 1595. The story of that voyage is here presented as filled with meanness, brutality, jealousy, and unspeakable hardships. The guiding spirit in this unhappy affair was the general's beautiful amoral wife Ysabel Barreto.

Atlantic 185:88 Ja '50 240w
Booklist 46:82 N 1 '49

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p18 N 3 '49 360w

"Mr. Graves does well in recreating some of the possible episodes and in restoring the participants. There is a vigorous reality about the scenes of battle with the natives and the brutality of the Spaniards in dealing with them. Some of the attempts to invoke the invectives of that day fall flat, and the preoccupation with the bawdy story which opens the book seems misplaced. At any rate as a story based on real events this must be rated superior." George Miles
+ — Commonweal 51:324 D 23 '49 400w

"Well-written, informative, humorous—delightful reading. The Graves fans will welcome this. And their number is a substantial one, and might well be increased by this fine novel."
+ Kirkus 17:484 S 1 '49 220w

"Told in simple narrative style . . . with a skill which recaptures authentically time and place. Distinguished. Recommended." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 74:1674 N 1 '49 80w

"As far as one can judge without duplicating the author's own rather fugitive research, the historical facts of Don Alvaro's expedition are faithfully rendered. As a novel, however, the book is less satisfactory. It is indeed difficult to see what valid reasons Graves could have had for choosing to write it as a novel rather than as straight history." Monroe Engel
Nation 169:523 N 26 '49 850w

New Repub 121:20 D 5 '49 190w

"First rate fiction, done with the candid verisimilitude of a Defoe." E. B. Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 N 13 '49 900w

"It is an unhappy business to have to speak harshly of his newest volume. But even by standards far lower than those Mr. Graves has himself raised for us, 'The Islands of Unwisdom' is not a good book. The story is set in the reign of Philip II, and Mr. Graves' knowledge of sixteenth century navigation, warfare, food, and worship, of early Spanish ceremony and courtesy and cant is formidable; the uses to which he puts it, however, are disquieting. His large learning cannot alter the fact that here is historical fiction conceived, not in respect for the past, but in condescension to it—that most grievous sin." Diana Trilling
— + N Y Times p4 N 6 '49 600w

"Mr. Graves latest historical novel, about a sixteenth-century Spanish expedition to the South Seas that was led in its final stages by a woman, is probably his weakest and most disappointing work in the genre."
— New Yorker 25:150 N 12 '49 120w

"At a time when the famous 'black legend' of the Spanish conquest is being carefully reexamined by scholars, Mr. Graves has contributed to the popular knowledge of the subject by rescuing a number of old documents from near oblivion, and by reconstructing the Odyssey of one of the strangest flotillas that ever sailed the seas, he has given us a first-rate thriller which really deserves a place in the best-seller list." Samuel Putnam
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 N 12 '49 800w

"The Islands of Unwisdom cannot be compared to his best novels . . . but it yields a rich vegetation of outlandish history, and its narrative is skillfully knocked together by a carpenter who knows his nails and timber."
+ Time 54:104 N 7 '49 460w

GRAVES, ROBERT. Watch the north wind rise [Eng title: Seven days in New Crete]. 290p $3 Creative age
49-7659

Fantasy on life in New Crete, a Utopia of some distant age. Edward Venn-Thomas, an English poet living in the present post-war era, is called by witchcraft into New Crete. There in a land where the White Goddess rules and wars are over in a day, he attempts to explain to the New Cretans the life of the Late Christian Era (the present as we know it) and to learn the ways of his hosts and hostesses.

"Mr. Graves has dexterously wrapped his serious ideas in witty burlesque and spirited narration. The debunking leaves untouched the author's central ideas about the cult of the White Goddess—there is something of the crank in Graves with his fetish for the archaic and his vested interest in magic. Still, one is disarmed and delighted by the impression that much of the time Graves is spoofing himself. It is quite clear he had a grand time writing this satiric fantasy, and his enjoyment is thoroughly contagious." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 183:82 My '49 800w

Booklist 45:393 Jl 15 '49

"Unfortunately, the satire in 'Watch the Northwind Rise' is so mild that many readers will miss it. Graves' fine, sensitive and poetic style is unimpaired, but his mysticism, although genuine, is cloudy and unfocused." Dorothy Langley
— + Chicago Sun Ap 4 '49 470w

"An engaging, inventive, often vitriolic stab at what can happen to a well-regulated, status quo Paradise, and a surprise for Graves' followers."
Kirkus 17:65 F 1 '49 220w

"A strange brew for special tastes." R. E. Kingery
Library J 74:494 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 7 '49 240w

"The appreciation of Watch the Northwind Rise will depend on the reader's enthusiasm for Utopian fantasy, but of its kind it is excellent—sustained, witty, urbane. In creating imaginary worlds, a writer's ingenuity usually burdens his book with the mere machinery of novelty, but here the detail is admirably subordinated to the narrative." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 120:24 Ap 11 '49 60w

"Mr. Graves's point of view is in more than one sense out of date, and while his urbane high spirits may have foxed us for a little, that is because we are not accustomed to see the arguments of Nietszche put forward politely nor the forebodings of Lord Elton clad in gaiety. In any case, Mr. Graves has made his creation too agreeable, and while he could make any line of thought attractive, he cannot make the insipidity of New Crete convincing." J. D. Scott

+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:463 O 22 '49 420w

"Wild as this may sound, Mr. Graves's yarn seems to me realistic and entirely credible. . . If you stick to what happens in this tale you work your way through murders stranger than those the Sunday tabloids purvey, all in a land where Love reigns supreme. There is plenty of 'action,' but what makes the book tease and startle as the hero stamps about in his seven-aeoned boots spiked with satire are the conversations, and the bright candor that gushes up from what I believe to be not so much pure fantasy of the future as many little wells of autobiography, one man's true confessions. . . But Mr. Graves can be mawkish; and sometimes his generosity loads you down. You find yourself trying to get the gist and guess the riddle, and detouring the arguments as one does the mathematical formulas in a book on cybernetics." Ernestine Evans
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 20 '49 1000w

"Graves is quite serious about the general ideas that underlie 'Watch the North Wind Rise,' but the book is far from solemn, and obviously he had a good time writing it. . . The complications are ingeniously contrived, and are described with a pleasant lightness of touch. Dispensing for the most part with the kind of exposition that makes most Utopian novels tedious, the book rattles along to its climax. In that climax, the description of a ritual murder, the poet takes over, but then the novel is brought to a neat conclusion by the adroit hand of a practiced storyteller." Granville Hicks
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 20 '49 550w
New Yorker 25:103 Ap 2 '49 230w
San Francisco Chronicle p30 My 1 '49 400w

"'Watch the Northwind Rise' will never reach the popularity of many of Robert Graves's books. It is a literary oddity, a strange whim translated into sense and nonsense by his imagination and his store of knowledge of a lost past. . . When he is finished with the book, the reader will discover that Mr. Graves has been standing him on his head, that he has had an entertaining diversion and perhaps has received a profitable education in the sins of the world and the apparently ineradicable stupidity of twentieth-century man." Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:11 Mr 26 '49 1200w

"Mr. Robert Graves's disciplined plainness of style is refreshing indeed." R. D. Charques
+ Spec 183:478 O 7 '49 180w

"Watch the North Wind Rise is no great shakes either as a novel or a sociological essay. But it manages to stand up—and to stand out—as another rich expression of Robert Graves's fantastical mind. To laugh in the face of his Goddess is only natural; but without this pure yet beastly muse Graves would probably not be what he emphatically is—one of the finest poets of the Late Christian Epoch."
+ Time 53:107 Mr 28 '49 900w
Times [London] Lit Sup p661 O 14 '49 500w
Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

GREEN, ALAN BAER. What a body! 239p $2.50 Simon & Schuster
49-11698

Detective story.

"The zany mood predominates as it does, say, in the best books of Craig Rice. The author's locked-room gimmick is not impenetrable, although it is a tidy gadget and the book on the whole may be taken as one of the more auspicious debuts of the year." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun N 11 '49 160w

"All aspects of this murder puzzle, even the process of solution, bubble with 100-proof humor."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p44 D 4 '49 60w

"A farce which is really not as funny as it tries to be."
Kirkus 17:488 S 1 '49 80w

"Mr. Green is a little too full of gags, but his plot has a neat twist."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 8 '50 190w

"The author clearly suffers from a bad case of gag poisoning."
New Yorker 25:171 N 19 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 6 '49 80w
Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 120w

GREEN, FREDERICK LAWRENCE. Mist on the waters. 250p $2.75 Harcourt
49-7756

"The ramifications of criminal guilt are again explored by the author of 'Odd Man Out.' The guilty in this case are a pair of Belfast grifters, whose trite but successful blackmail scheme has caused its victim so much anguish that he kills himself. Neither of the extortionists is callous enough to hear of this development without a tremor, and they both proceed, in keeping with their pitiably uncertain natures, to give themselves away." New Yorker

Booklist 45:217; 242 Mr 1 '49; Mr 15 '49

"'Mist on the Waters' has neither the brilliance nor the compulsion of 'Odd Man Out' nor does it drag with it anything like the philosophic clutter that marred the earlier novel. This is plainer, more sober, its creatures are fleshed and their dilemma observed with as deep an understanding as their natures admit." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Mr 11 '49 230w

"I found this novel very uneasy reading, mainly because the author spends most of his time ascribing motives to the actions of a group of characters whom he does not fully understand. . . If the inner action of this psychological novel fails to convince, it is probably of minor importance that the outer action, too, fails to give the illusion of life." Vivian Mercier
— Commonweal 50:20 Ap 15 '49 270w
Kirkus 17:12 Ja 1 '49 160w

"Though the surface of his tale is realistic, with its background of an Irish city, its meaning unfolds in the hidden realm in which the threads of will are severed by fear or, in the simple good nature of the girl Anne, cohere and show the only way to restoration. It is in the subtle feeling for what goes on beneath speech in the silences of human contacts or in the loneliness of a soul disrupted by guilt and remorse that Mr. Green reveals the precise intuitions of genius." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 5 '48 240w

"'The Informer' and Mr. Green's own 'Odd Man Out' have followed this same moral pattern where a petty criminal is brought to his end not by discovery but by his own sense of guilt. It is a powerful theme when presented in rational terms. But in 'Mist on the Waters' one cannot escape feeling that the book would have been more dramatically rounded if Barty and Pelancy's remorse had overtaken them more subtly, and if their fate had resulted more directly from it." Anne Brooks
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 6 '49 500w

"'Mist on the Waters' is as seductively readable as the best detective stories, and still has a sense of life which the detective stories too often lack. But we are given no adequate dramatic means of grasping this life. A disparity remains between the patness of the plot and the psychological richness of the human relationships. The image is of a great city, but the coincidences are proper only to a quite small town. There is great moral insight, but it gives way to spectacle and melodrama." R. G. Davis
+ — N Y Times p4 Mr 6 '49 700w
New Yorker 25:101 Mr 12 '49 190w

GREEN, F. L.—Continued

"Mr. Green has given the crime-pattern an inward significance by bringing the guilty men to a reckoning of fate and final justice rather than to the courts of law. And yet 'Mist on the Waters' is not a profound novel. It is hardly a novel that matters. The reason is that the characters are meager—meager in their crime, in their fear, and in their remorse." Walter Havighurst

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:14 Mr 12 '49 700w

"There are a few small implausibilities in the story, but its concentration, its momentum and its advance to a climax are admirable. Once again Mr. Green shows himself to be a real novelist, who can read the human heart and tell a story in a way that recalls the great exemplars." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 181:612 N 5 '48 130w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8B Mr 13 '49 330w

"Readers may be disturbed by two weaknesses in this otherwise skillful story: its occasional lapses into stilted novelist clichés, and its too convenient ending which veils coincidence with the appearance of fatality. But for the most part, Mist on the Waters is as good as a first-rate movie thriller."

+ — Time 53:110 Mr 21 '49 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p621 N 6 '48 450w

GREEN, HENRY, 1888-. Industrial rheology and rheological structures. 311p il $5.50 Wiley

660 Rheology 49-9782

"The purpose of the book is to provide a manual for the laboratory man. It discusses a system of rheology, its application to laboratory measurements, and then studies the particle, which is the basis of rheological structure, and the use of the microscope and ultramicroscope." (Library J) Glossary. Indexes.

"The present book is restricted in viewpoint mainly to materials which exhibit Bingham body behavior and thixotropy, and which can be examined in the rotating cylinder viscometer of the author's design. Discussion of other types of behavior and other methods of measurement is meager and in places misleading. The style of presentation and the arrangement leave much to be desired. There are some interesting comments on the position of the rheologist in industry." Herbert Leaderman

— + Chem & Eng N 27:2718 S 19 '49 360w

"This book was prepared primarily for the laboratory investigator and is written in an easy reading style. Although the book is of little assistance in engineering design problems such as sizing pipelines for the flow of suspensions and slurries, it should nevertheless be of interest to engineers concerned with the general subjects of fluid flow, agitation, and mixing." G. E. Alves

+ Chem Eng 56:248 N '49 800w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 60w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1606 O 15 '49 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:59 Jl '49

GREEN, HENRY, pseud. Loving. 248p $3 Viking

49-10679

Love story of two English servants, employed in an Irish castle at the beginning of the second World war. There is some excitement over a stolen ring and over the discovery that the young mistress has a lover. But in the main it is a picture of life in the servants' hall.

"Mr. Green is an ambitious writer in the truest sense: every book of his has been an attempt to extend the range of the novel. Loving, as I have said, is the most accessible of his works. Even so, it demands a good deal more of the reader than most novels; and I imagine that some would find it rather cold and mannered. The novel consists almost entirely of trivial incident and dialogue—incomparable dialogue; into them Mr. Green packs all of the magic by which art enlarges our experience, wrests new truths from the familiar. In my accounting, Loving is one of the top literary dividends of 1949." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 184:92 N '49 950w

Booklist 46:3; 34 S 1 '49; S 15 '49

Bookmark 9:29 N '49 50w

"There are some irritating mannerisms in the book—for example, the persistent use of an adjective where an adverb conventionally serves—'She spoke tart,' 'He followed sheepish,'—but generally Green's prose is taut in construction, original in phrase. The few descriptive scenes—the game of blindman's buff in the old 'temple,' the housemaids waltzing in the deserted ball-room—are, in perfection of design and vividness of imagery, the stuff of poetry." Edward McCourt

+ — Canadian Forum 29:189 N '49 350w

"Perhaps, as some critics have suggested, Green has all the literary virtues but compassion. Be that as it may, 1949 is not likely to bring us a better novel than 'Loving' or a more brilliant writer than this little-known Englishman with his gift for sensory perception." Theodore Kalem

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 27 '49 1100w

"Perhaps not for a wide public, but for those who have liked the also recently imported I. Compton-Burnett who bears a very close comparison in method and mood."

Kirkus 17:368 Jl 15 '49 210w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor

Library J 74:1321 S 15 '49 100w

" 'Loving' is, altogether, the richest and most entrancing novel that has come out of England since Virginia Woolf's 'Between the Acts.' " Ernest Jones

+ Nation 169:401 O 22 '49 1200w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 121:19 D 26 '49 1150w

"Mr. Green does less than justice to his material largely because his attitude toward it is not clear. A study of life below-stairs might be richly satirical or highly romantic. But in this case the reader is not sure whether the author admires or despises his characters. . . But there is another factor which detracts from the book as a whole. Mr. Green gives an excellent approximation of the manner of speech of these low-born English people (none of the servants is Irish except the loony stable-boy). But this same kind of language seeps out and soaks into a good deal of the text in general, which seems inappropriate and makes for difficult reading." Iris Barry

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 9 '49 600w

" 'Loving' is a fine example of Green's presentational art, the directly dramatized feel and texture of experience concretized in style. The strain which is sometimes placed upon the risky style both in its earlier bare and its later luxuriant forms is absent. Here the author attends most carefully to the delineation of individuated character and to a full expression of that comic-pathetic view of character that he habitually takes. Nowhere is his dialogue more exact; in no other novel are there so many luminous scenes. Here the use of accident and coincidence, like the use of thematic echoes from folklore and fable, has a precise structural and symbolical function which need discomfort no reader. 'Loving' may not be Green's best book, but it is probably the best with which to start." Mark Schorer

+ N Y Times p1 O 9 '49 1800w

"If it is surprising for a manufacturer to be a novelist, it is downright flabbergasting for him to produce a work of art of the mischievous brilliance and eccentricity of 'Loving.' Unlike the stiff little Meccano set of a romance that a magnate with a literary bent might be expected to sit down to after a hard day at the mill and doggedly, fumblingly fit together, 'Loving' is as light and round and flawless as a bubble. Like a bubble, it occasionally threatens to burst or to float away up out of sight, but until it breaks at last, at its author's bidding, it mirrors the world with a richness and a fullness that dazzle the beholder, convincing him half against his will that its iridescent surface is the world." Brendan Gill

+ New Yorker 25:103 O 8 '49 1150w

"It is very difficult to describe this book in terms of any other, and I have never read any book that is quite like it. The author seems to use nothing anyone has used before, to write with a technique that is so casual, so spontaneous, that at first impression he appears to have abandoned all technique. His dialogue, which has a fine, true breathlessness and furnishes much of the bone of the story, is, on closer scrutiny, a cunning blend of idiom and poetic overtone. Henry Green, whoever he is, is an original." John Woodburn

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 O 29 '49 1150w

Time 54:104 O 10 '49 1800w

GREEN, JULIAN. If I were you; tr. from the French by J. H. F. McEwen. 247p $3 Harper

49-7294

Fabian, a young French clerk, bored with his humdrum existence, makes a compact with a mysterious M. Brittomart, who enables him to become anyone he chooses, for as long as he likes. But the experiment turns out not to be as happy as Fabian had hoped, and he returns home. There he finds himself at the door of the room in which his own body lies dying, and he seeks in desperation to take up his own fate once more.

Booklist 45:242 Mr 15 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 360w

Kirkus 16:604 N 15 '48 130w

"Translated from the French, this novel by the author of The Dark Journey is a somber fantasy, suggestive in atmosphere and theme of a Hawthorne tale set in a French provincial town." H. W. Hart

Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 80w

"In this thoughtful and finely analytical novel Julian Green succeeds in making the reader accept the device and follow him through a moving and vivid experience in which pity, fear and evil are clothed in human persons, realistically, wittily and profoundly observed." Gouverneur Paulding

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 23 '49 800w

Reviewed by Lionel Abel

N Y Times p20 Ja 30 '49 900w

"M. Green has attempted a fantasy. His success is only moderate, but since fantasy is so rarely brought off with any success at all, even a partial triumph is noteworthy. What saves the game for M. Green is his deftness as an amateur theologian." John Broderick

New Yorker 24:64 Ja 29 '49 550w

"If Mr. Green had elected to remain on the level of pure fantasy, it would have been one thing, complete with horns, hoofs and forked tail. If he had told it straight, it would have been another. As it is, it seems to me to fall between the two positions. Mr. Green writes beautifully as always, and he has a point to make. . . But perhaps I am being captious. Mr. Green's novel will entertain you and it will suggest an approach to an age-old question with which humanity has always liked to toy. That should be enough." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 23 '49 650w

"Mr. Green's theme in 'If I Were You' is the enduring mystery of human identity. He explores this theme with considerable ingenuity and with style, and along lines calculated to entertain almost any reader, but he was perhaps ill-advised to make his fantasy bear the weight of a foreword as explicit as the one he has provided." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 F 5 '49 700w

GREEN, PAUL. Dog on the sun; a volume of stories. 178p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

49-11774

Twelve short stories, most of them tragic, all about Negroes and whites in the South.

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

"'Dog on the Sun,' which is Paul Green's third collection of short stories, reminds us of his ability in this form—and that he is a novelist and essayist as well. These twelve short stories are an important addition to the body of writing—and Paul Green himself has contributed no little to it—in which a great section of our nation takes a long, hard look at itself." Coleman Rosenberger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 18 '49 850w

Reviewed by Donald Barr

N Y Times p36 N 6 '49 360w

"Mr. Green's evocation of local moods and his description of the terrain around the Cape Fear River and Chapel Hill are successfully poetic."

+ New Yorker 25:131 N 26 '49 120w

GREENBERG, CLEMENT. Joan Miro. 133p 113il $10 Quadrangle

759.6 Miro, Joan

"Its structure is chronological, tracing the evolution of Miró's work from his semi-fauve, semi-cubist beginnings in 1917 down to the present. This [the author] has framed by two short essays, one at the beginning on the role of the Spanish painters in the school of Paris, and one at the end on the terrible and the comic. Between these punctuating points Greenberg has written a careful account of Miró's life—largely uneventful in external happenings—and analyzed the progress of his art." Nation

---

"A sensitive and illuminating essay." Robert Goldwater

+ Nation 168:250 F 26 '49 900w

"If the idiom of modern art is not queer or abhorrent to you, you will find this book, illustrated by six color plates and more than a hundred monochromes, a fascinating as well as attractive presentation of the work of one of the leading figures in contemporary painting." Harold Clurman

+ New Repub 120:25 My 2 '49 850w

"This book is an important addition to the criticism of modern art. By 'modern' this reviewer does not mean merely 'contemporary' (a starchless and evasive term), but the original art of our time, particularly that produced by artists younger than Matisse, Rouault, Braque and Picasso. It is a thoughtful book, and its many interesting conclusions are due, at least in part, to the questions which Greenberg has the imagination to ask. . . The book itself is attractively designed, and the illustrations are of excellent quality." S. L. Faison

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 30 '49 700w

"One of the most thoughtful attempts to analyze Miró's art that have yet appeared, and particularly good in the sections devoted to the artist's early development. The critical estimates made by the author, who is exceptionally well informed on the painters of the School of Paris, are consistently sound, with a gratifying avoidance of the indiscriminate eulogies so often found in treatises of this sort. Much light is thrown not only on Miró but on the artistic environment from which he emerged."

+ New Yorker 24:96 F 5 '49 90w

GREENBERG, DAVID BENJAMIN. Raising game birds in captivity. 224p il $4.95 Van Nostrand

799.24 Game and game birds Agr50-2

"Detailed, modern production methods of incubating, brooding, raising and breeding pheasants, quail, wild turkeys, ducks, etc. Illustrated with photographs, plans, drawings." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

GREENBERG, D. B.—Continued

"Many illustrations make this a desirable 'how' book for the landowner who is starting a bird raising project." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 40w

Kirkus 17:452 Ag 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 30w

GREENBERG, EVELYN (LEVOW) (MRS MEYER GREENBERG). Little tractor who travelled to Israel; il. by Israel Levy. [48p] $1 Behrman

49-3022

"The tractor which decorates the jacket . . . is shown being hoisted off-ship to land in Israel. From there the tractor is driven to a cooperative farm settlement, or Kvutza, where it helps willing workers to convert a barren hillside into fertile fields. This is the first of a projected series of books 'that Jewish mothers can read to their little children.'" N Y Times

"Excellent pictures and a simple story." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 24 '49 130w

"Attractive little volume. . . This story will find its most ready audience among 4 and 6 year old children already interested in farming and those who have already been stirred by the story of accomplishments in Israel." C. E. Zagat

+ N Y Times p24 Je 12 '49 160w

GREENE, GRAHAM. Nineteen stories. 247p $2.75 Viking

49-594

Contents: The basement room; The end of the party; I spy; The innocent; A drive in the country; Across the bridge; Jubilee; Brother; Proof positive; A chance for Mr. Lever; The hint of an explanation; The second death; A day saved; A little place off the Edgware road; The case for the defence; When Greek meets Greek; Men at work; Alas, poor Maling; The other side of the border.

Booklist 45:242 Mr 15 '49

"Even with all the listed debits, Greene can keep you interested. His bared-to-the-bone prose is sometimes concerned with adventure cum horror, sometimes with the basic reactions of unsaintly mortals to the fundamentals of right and wrong. . . This collection shows a vivid awareness of the basic verities; some of the pieces are more concerned with them than others, a few do not touch upon them at all." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 169:157 My '49 220w

"Several critics have complained of the monotony of [Greene's] style, but this very monotony, like his monotony of atmosphere, has a cumulative force of its own and also a symbolic force: it expresses the spiritual poverty, the fear, the seediness, the obscure guilt, the disorientation of his characters better than any words of theirs could do, especially since inarticulateness or else a conscious or endemic inability to see and speak truthfully usually accompanies these qualities. Sometimes, though, the stylistic elements become virtuosity: the compression, the vivid original metaphors, the photogenic intensification of reality, too far outrun the meaning: manner becomes mannerism." David Burnham

Commonweal 49:546 Mr 11 '49 1050w

Kirkus 16:645 D 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

— New Repub 120:25 F 21 '49 950w

"Short-story writer or novelist, he ranks with the most talented users of the English language today. Excepting one or two very slight items, presumably included for the sake of completeness, nearly all of Mr. Greene's stories are sound in workmanship. A few—principally those in which he looks into the minds of children—are as good as anything of their kind." Richard Match

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 13 '49 900w

"'I present these tales,' says Graham Greene at the beginning of this new collection of his short stories, 'merely as the by-products of a novelist's career.' There are eighteen stories and a fragment of an abandoned novel. Most of them are very good in themselves—two of them brilliant—but it is not only for their solid virtues as English short stories, their quietness and lucid ease, that they are important. It is also for the light they throw on one of the most interesting novelists of our generation." Donald Barr

+ N Y Times p3 F 13 '49 1700w

"Some of the other stories aren't quite so good as 'A Day Saved' and 'The Basement Room,' but, mostly, if they're about fear, they're effective—Mr. Greene knows the ingredients of fear—and credible, possibly because Mr. Greene doesn't seem to care whether he's believed or not. One of his great assets as a storyteller is his detachment, but it's a pity that he so sternly denies himself even the small luxuries of contempt and malice."

+ — New Yorker 24:89 F 19 '49 240w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 11 '49 700w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:23 Ap 16 '49 700w

"All the stories have their own intrinsic interest and merit, but they are perhaps most valuable in adding to the reader's understanding of Graham Greene the novelist." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p9B Mr 6 '49 210w

Time 53:114 F 21 '49 420w

GREER, THOMAS H. American social reform movements; their pattern since 1865. 313p $5.35; to schools $4 Prentice-Hall

301.1535 Social problems. U. S.—Social conditions 49-1202

"Sees social reform movements in the U. S. as following a pattern; the earlier movements were Utopian in character and general in their application; more recent ones seek definite material benefits for an organized labor group. Reform movements are usually of short duration because the American public seems to take an active interest only as long as an evil is rampant, and the movements are quickly absorbed by the major political parties, which incorporate in their platforms a response to any widespread feeling. Bibliography." (Booklist) Index.

"The categories in which he chooses to group reform movements (farm, labor, progressive, radical) give a clue to a weakness of his analysis. They are nonparallel and overlapping, and in the author's treatment of specific reform movements the interrelationships between the different categories do not always appear to be appreciated. . . One still seeks, after reading this volume, some historical and scientific analysis of American social reform movements which will provide an open-minded inquiry into a question of prime importance to both political theory and practical politics. . . Nevertheless, Greer has done a service in calling our attention to the still unanswered questions about social change." S. F. McDowell

+ — Am J Soc 55:211 S '49 1350w

"The several essays are readable, but cursory."

Am Soc R 14:445 Je '49 70w

"A cautious thinker, Mr. Greer has adhered faithfully to hallowed canons of historical objectivity, and has succeeded in writing a noncontroversial book about a controversial subject." Richard Hofstadter

+ Ann Am Acad 263:240 My '49 360w

Booklist 45:275 Ap 15 '49

School & Society 69:287 Ap 16 '49 40w

GREET, WILLIAM CABELL. World words; recommended pronunciations. 2d ed rev & enl 608p $6.75 Columbia univ. press

411.5 English language—Pronunciation. Names, Geographical. Names, Personal. World war, 1939-1945—Dictionaries 48-6140

For descriptive note see Book Review Digest 1948.

"World Words is recommended for all libraries supplying current information on topics of general interest. The individual will also find this a valuable book. Libraries having the first edition will want the second."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:7 Ja '49 650w

GREGOROVIUS, FERDINAND ADOLF. Lucrezia Borgia; a chapter from the morals of the Italian renaissance [ed. by Ludwig Goldscheider; tr. by John Leslie Garner]. 362p il $2.50 Phaidon

B or 92 Borgia, Lucrezia

A new edition of a biography of Lucrezia Borgia, written by a nineteenth century German poet and historian, student of Roman and Greek civilizations. "The first edition of 'Lucrezia Borgia' appeared in 1874 under the imprint of Cotta in Stuttgart. . . The present text is based on the third original edition, the last supervised by the author. The English translation by John Leslie Garner has been revised. Of the author's original notes, only a few are here included; [some] have been added by [the editor] as have also the running headlines, the genealogical and chronological tables and the bibliography. . . [The] illustrations depict buildings, paintings, and sculptures of the Italian Renaissance, including nothing of a later period. All the illustrations are reproduced from original photographs." (Editor's Pref)

Booklist 45:357 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 30w

"Gregorovius makes it easy for us to criticize his views, but, beyond that, his strong and fervid writing leads us to share his excitement. The Phaidon Press deserves our gratitude for this new edition, a companion to its printing of Burckhardt's 'Civilization of the Renaissance,' and especially for the superb photographs illustrating life in Rome and Ferrara in this period." John Arthos
+ — N Y Times p5 My 1 '49 500w

New Yorker 25:102 Ap 23 '49 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 12 '49 160w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Jl 2 '49 50w

"Lucrezia Borgia is well documented and scholarly, but Gregorovius 'selected,' and was always conscious of the formal aspects necessary to the work of art. The book has one serious failing which prevents it from being among the great biographies—that the protagonists are never brought entirely to life."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p76 Ja 29 '49 900w

GREGORY, SIR RICHARD ARMAN, 1st bart. Gods and men; a testimony of science and religion. 214p il $3.50 Macmillan

215 Religion and science [49-5573]

"Science and religion meet on common ground in the study of invisible forces and the effects of these external influences upon human thought and conduct. All systems of philosophy—secular or sacred—construct mental concepts of relationships between objective realities and ideas concerning their nature. At all stages of civilization celestial objects and phenomena have been used as factors of material service as well as for worship of divine attributes in them. In the design of the present volume these two attitudes of mind are traced throughout the ages, with due regard to advances of natural knowledge and the corresponding expansion of intellectual outlook." (Pref) Personal name index.

"One cannot but wish that Gregory's talents had been given to a more thorough-going analysis of the many problems he touches only lightly. He nowhere comes to grips with some of the finest statements of theism, and so does not judge their conceptions of the relation between science and religion. For example, he makes no assessment of the concept of God as the dynamic ground of the natural order which science studies. Yet his book has many values for moderns, and deserves a wide reading." R. E. Gilmore
+ — Christian Century 67:16 Ja 4 '50 1150w

"A tolerant, considered analysis of early cosmogonies, the great religions and the implications of the atomic bomb. It is good to have all this together from the hand of an outstanding British scientist, summarizing as it does the humanistic view of the world." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p36 N 20 '49 90w

"Sir Richard Gregory's book is a very odd one indeed, but its oddity is not, unfortunately, of an illuminating kind. . . It is a pity that Sir Richard Gregory wrote this book. The whole issue is far outside his reach, and much time will have been wasted both for the writer and for many unsuspecting readers. To write such a book it is not enough that a scientist should be an expert in his own subject and be tolerantly disposed to what he considers to be the best in religious belief. Theology is a tough and prickly subject, and it should not be approached in this breezy and uninformed manner."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p278 Ap 30 '49 1350w

GRENFELL, RUSSELL. Bismarck episode. 219p il maps $3 Macmillan

940.545942 Bismarck (battleship). World war, 1939-1945. Naval operations 49-9337

Account of the pursuit and final destruction of the German warship by the British in May 1941. Index.

Booklist 46:11 S 1 '49

"Grenfell provides an exciting account of one of the longest naval battles in history. His unbiased story is based on material drawn from every available reliable source, and is a fascinating portrayal of six days of suspense packed with dramatic changes of fortune which brought in their wakes emotions that fluctuated to and fro between high optimism and bitter disappointment." F. L. Oliver
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 21 '49 850w

Current Hist 17:226 O '49 50w

Foreign Affairs 28:161 O '49 20w

Kirkus 17:129 Mr 1 '49 120w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ — Library J 74:954 Je 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by Asher Lee
New Statesman & Nation 37:189 F 1
'49 650w

"There is fascination in the description of the techniques of modern warfare at sea and profit to be gained from the lessons of the epic pursuit. But the lay reader will, doubtless, find his chief enjoyment in the sheer drama of uncertainty, discomfort, danger and triumph that Captain Grenfell makes so real. By keeping most of the information about conditions on the Bismarck, gleaned since the war, tucked away in footnotes, he never loses the air of ominous mystery that enveloped that gray shape, ranging wolflike across the Atlantic wastes." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 26 '49 700w

"If only because it shows what can be done with a knotty subject, the book deserves consideration from historians, who are wrapped up in footnotes and bibliography. The general reader, free from the hangman's noose of scholarship, will find two or three hours spent with 'The Bismarck Episode' a thoroughly rewarding investment." R. W. Daly

GRENFELL, RUSSELL—Continued
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 10 '49 420w
New Yorker 25:59 Jl 2 '49 200w

"Captain Grenfell, a retired Royal Navy officer, who participated in the Battle of Jutland, has all the technical knowledge and ability to explain naval strategy, but more than that, he has both the background and literary ability to bring the whole, dramatic story brilliantly alive." C.W.W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 28 '49 240w

"It is a good example of a now-it-can-be-told book. It is also a fine piece of naval narrative, sweeping from suspense after suspense to the climax in a manner a detective-story writer might well envy." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Jl 30 '49 850w

"The value of this new book is two-fold; it is a corrective to mere praise of the way in which affairs were conducted, and it is—like the six-day operation itself—an affair of mounting excitement which at moments becomes almost intolerable. It has the unity of a classical play: time, area and action are on a large scale, but they can be grasped by lay intelligence. The theme has, moreover, a beginning, a middle and an end, besides the cardinal dramatic elements of suspense and 'recognition.' It will, in fact, always have an artistic as well as a factual appeal." Oliver Warner
+ Spec 181:848 D 24 '48 650w

"[This] is a retired British naval officer's remarkably lucid account of the pursuit, cornering and sinking of the pride of Hitler's navy."
+ Time 53:93 Je 27 '49 900w

"The narrator is not only an experienced naval officer who appreciates the significance of every detail in a complex series of events; he is also a thinker, a student of history and strategy, and a practised writer. There is no striving after effect, but his narrative is full of dramatic interest."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p675 D 4 '48 450w

GRESHAM, WILLIAM LINDSAY. Limbo tower. 275p $3 Rinehart
49-8811

Story of the patients and staff in one ward of a city tuberculosis hospital, and how they face the omnipresent spectre of death.

Booklist 45:313 My 15 '49
Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Chicago Sun My 9 '49 350w

"The depths of disease—physical, moral and political—make this something quite different than the usual hospital story, give it a sombre tone."
Kirkus 17:120 Mr 1 '49 200w

"The author of Nightmare Alley [Book Review Digest 1946] has again written a swiftly paced novel. . . Actually it is less a novel than a group of closely knit sketches, and as such is unevenly written—but the overall effect is one of extreme readability. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ — Library J 74:735 My 1 '49 80w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 Je 12 '49 140w

"If Mr. Gresham's tragic vision were as keen as his eye for naturalistic detail, his book would not reveal that seam which separates writing from life." Thomas Lask
+ — N Y Times p5 My 8 '49 700w

"The struggle with bacilli and with moral truths is convincingly detailed, and the dialogue is sharp, if not always profound."
New Yorker 25:96 My 28 '49 130w

"The narrative skill in the book is of a high order. It is garnished with frequently brilliant dialogue and vivid projections of character. The hospital atmosphere is impressively authentic and the detailed account of the terrible operation known as a thoracoplasty, performed on Washington Lee, is overwhelming. It deserves anthologizing. There are faults on the same scale as the virtues. Some passages grate harshly through falseness, simplifications, or sentimentalities. Dr. Kildare leers out from behind a post once in a while." Edmund Fuller
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:20 My 21 '49 750w

GREW, DAVID. Ghost mare. 241p $2.75 Coward-McCann
49-11253

"Up in the Canadian badlands, 16 year old Billy Thornton finds a beautiful white mare, wild and mysterious. She comes to be known as the Ghost Mare and because she lures horses away from the farms becomes public enemy No. 1. Billy finally catches her, however, trains her, and as Lady Lightning she proves during a tremendous blizzard that she is really good, not bad, luck for everyone in the community." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by Will Davidson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 13 '49 60w
Kirkus 17:429 Ag 15 '49 110w

"A fine story of a boy and horse set in the Canadian prairie country. It has good characters, excellent local color, and an exciting and interesting plot. Recommended for all children's rooms and young people's collections." M. D. Read
+ Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 60w

GRIERSON, SIR HERBERT JOHN CLIFFORD, ed. And the third day . . . a record of hope and fulfilment; pictures chosen by John Rothenstein. 297p $3.50 Macmillan
232.96 Jesus Christ—Resurrection 49-7295

"'An anthology' assembling all the great records of human belief in an hereafter from the dawn of man's history to our day, psalms, Scripture readings, poems, philosophical bits of Plato, historical records and sermons by great men like John Donne and Cardinal Newman." (Commonweal) There are over forty illustrations, chosen from the classics of art. Four are in full color. Indexes.

"A strikingly successful experiment in a rather novel form." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:306 Mr 9 '49 130w

"The introduction is Protestant in its background, but of a deep and vivid faith, accepting the Resurrection of Our Lord as an historical fact and the true and only conclusive argument for our faith in the reality of an hereafter. . . This book is one of the most eloquent documentaries of the root-faith of Christians, badly needed in our hopeless days and equally badly needed in our disoriented and rudderless devotional life." H. A. Reinhold
+ Commonweal 49:549 Mr 11 '49 260w

"It would be an appropriate gift volume for any Christian minister and a pleasing addition to any library."
+ Kirkus 17:57 F 1 '49 120w

"Fit accompaniment of these varied literary expressions of man's hope are the illustrations, chosen for the book by John Rothenstein, the director of London's Tate Gallery. Ranging from Duccio's 'Raising of Lazarus' to Houthuesen's 'Supper at Emmaus,' we see in these widely differing plastic expressions of a central theme a single passionate conviction. Four handsome color plates, from paintings by Ford Madox Brown, Giovanni Bellini, Titian, and William Blake, and beautifully designed pages, in fine, large print embellished with red initial letters, add greatly to the book. . . Though it is always officious to recommend some particular use for a book, and the suggestion of 'gift book' seals almost any volume into a particularly dismal class, 'And the Third day . . .' would surely, I have the temerity to suggest, be an ideal Easter selection for those whose concern with the day rises beyond a new bonnet and dress. Provocative, moving, and eloquent, this is a book to reach out for in a sleepless night, to keep on the table next to a hospital bed." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 F 19 '49 550w

GRIFFIN, CLARE ELMER. Enterprise in a free society. 583p $5 Irwin
338.7 Industry 49-7718

"The main thesis of this book is that what modern society needs most is an adequate and increasing supply of enterprise. The author analyzes our economy from the standpoint of the incentives it offers for enterprise and seeks to determine whether these are sufficient to support needed expansion of production. The book is divided into three parts: The first section is devoted to a study of the incentives and motivations which influence expansion of business in this country. The second part outlines the conditions necessary to maintain a favorable climate for business expansion. The final section formulates a philosophy of a free society and the role of free enterprise in it." Management R

"This book is a timely and useful addition to the literature of American capitalism. Within its 573 closely printed pages of text, containing more than 250,000 words, Professor Griffin has given a systematic and scholarly treatment of enterprise in American society—its functions, motivations, consequences, and environmental conditions that facilitate it." N. H. Jacoby
+ Am Econ R 39:1300 D '49 1950w

"This volume serves the purpose of being a valuable reindoctrination of the business man in the fundamentals of our system as well as providing a clear exposition for others of the benefits inherent in that system. It might well be used as a basis for the development of economic education programs by business firms and groups." L. W. Trester
+ Management R 38:507 S '49 700w

"Today, a turn in the struggle of ideas is plainly visible. A number of intellectually respectable books of the conservative stamp have appeared, among which the present volume will surely take high rank." Palmer Harmon
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 10 '49 450w

GRISCOM, LUDLOW. Birds of Concord [a study in population trends]. 340p il $5 Harvard univ. press
598.2 Birds—Concord, Massachusetts 49-4471

Describes the bird population and the migrants as well of the region around Concord, Massachusetts. "The area included in this book centers around the river valleys of the Sudbury and Assabet which join at Concord to form the Concord River. The Sudbury and Concord Rivers have a general northeasterly and northerly trend in a territory lying 20 to 30 miles west of Boston. This territory is in Middlesex County, and includes the towns of Concord and Sudbury and portions of Lincoln, Wayland, Carlisle, and Bedford." (Introd) Contains a systematic list of birds, a bibliography, and an index.

"I know of no better introduction to modern bird study than this account of the Concord birds, which puts geology, meteorology, physiology, and American history on the witness-stand to explain them." L. J. Halle
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 S 3 '49 550w
Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 17 '49 130w

GRODZINS, MORTON MELVIN. Americans betrayed: politics and the Japanese evacuation. 445p $5 Univ. of Chicago press
940.547273 Japanese in the U.S. World war, 1939-1945—Evacuation of civilians 49-9724

"The result of three years intensive research, and complete with charts, bibliography and index,. this large volume is subtitled 'Politics and the Japanese Evacuation.' It deals with the setting aside of the constitutional rights of the citizens of Japanese ancestry who were sent to concentration camps during World War II. Mr. Grodzins' thesis is that the removal of the Japanese was not, as was publicly affirmed, for either their own or the country's protection, but was totally a political and economic move." (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliographical note. Index.

Reviewed by R. K. Carr
Am Pol Sci R 43:1042 O '49 700w
Booklist 45:390 Jl 15 '49
Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Chicago Sun S 8 '49 110w
Christian Century 66:1044 S 7 '49 280w

"Universities having courses in politics might well consider Americans Betrayed for a text. The author's approach is somewhat similar to that of Thomas A. Bailey in his A Diplomatic History of the American People, which dealt quite completely with the wave of hysteria that caused discrimination against Orientals early in this century. That book is used as a text in some colleges, and probably has more educational value than a hundred books dealing in the abstract." Ina Sugihara
+ Commonweal 50:514 S 2 '49 1400w
Current Hist 17:99 Ag '49 50w

"The real difficulty with the work under review is that, despite its impressive documentation and apparatus of scholarship (plus the apparently inevitable impedimenta of jargon), it is a polemic rather than an objective study. It is a biased and intolerant tract against bias and intolerance, a prejudiced denunciation of prejudice. Professor Grodzins started with the conclusion that the evacuation was wrong, and wrote his book accordingly. . . It takes more than research, footnotes, graphs, statistics, and the external apparatus of learning to produce a learned tome. Genuine scholarship calls for open-mindedness, clarity of analysis, appreciation of relevant factors and of related fields, and, above all, a willingness to distribute praise and blame in accordance with the facts rather than in reliance on prejudgments. The latter qualities are lacking in Professor Grodzins' production." F. B. Wiener
— + Harvard Law R 63:549 Ja '50 2150w
Nation 169:190 Ag 20 '49 90w

"'Americans Betrayed' is far from pleasant reading. For this reason it may never reach a large audience, but it is a book of the first importance. It is disturbing not so much because of what happened as of what might happen again." Bucklin Moon
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 24 '49 850w

"A lesser man than Mr. Grodzins might well have been angry and vituperative, and understandably so, but he is not; he merely sets down the results of his tremendous researches into the period. And those results should be enough to make us ashamed for some time to come, for his book is a valuable portrait of ourselves at a time when we were not thinking clearly and were certainly behaving much more like animals than men." Marc Rivette
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 26 '49 1000w

"All the main facts and much of the evidence here presented have been made public before. The book suffers at times from repetitive summaries like a doctoral dissertation. But Mr. Grodzins by the completeness of his demonstration has produced an important, a basic work." Bradford Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ag 20 '49 700w

GROMBACH, JOHN V. Saga of sock; a complete story of boxing. 381p il $5 Barnes, A.S.
796.83 Boxing 49-48745

"A brief 'popular' history, touching high spots and outstanding personalities, from ancient Greece to Joe Louis, with a mass of related material, including boxing in literature, art, theatre, movies and radio. Chapter on technique, and records. Illustrated with photographs and drawings." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:142 D 15 '49
Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:49 Ja 1 '50 40w

GROSS, FELIKS, ed. European ideologies; a survey of 20th century political ideas; with an introd. by Robert M. MacIver. 1075p $12 Philosophical lib.

321 Political science 48-10359

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"As the editor himself points out, there is some overlapping, but this is understandable in a book written by a large number of authors. The success of the editor in bringing so many contributors to achieve a common task of such importance is nevertheless to be underlined. We feel that the work would have had more value if the editor had asked for a greater systematical description of some ideologies, looking toward a more common approach, and if one or two important chapters (e.g., a chapter on European humanitism and one on European political rationalism) were added." Otakar Machotka

+ — Am J Soc 55:106 Jl '49 700w

"It is no mean task for an editor to attempt to coordinate the efforts of twenty-four writers contributing twenty-seven essays so that a balanced picture of contemporary European political thinking will result. In spite of the excellence of some of the individual contributions, this volume falls short of that goal. . . Two of the major ideologies are dealt with in highly commendable fashion. In his chapter on Communism, Max Nomad describes clearly how Marx's vision of the dictatorship of the proletariat giving way to a classless society has become an ideological cloak to mask Stalin's dictatorship over the Russian people perpetuating a new class society. . . The same can be said of the objective study of 'Catholicism and Politics' by Alfredo Mendizabal." Felix Oppenheim

+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:382 Ap '49 700w

"As one might expect, the volume suffers from the usual weaknesses of symposia. Despite an impressive array of scholarly contributors, the writing is markedly uneven; and the method of analyzing ideologies varies with the particular contributor, although the most common interpretation is historical. Despite these probably inevitable deficiencies, this will prove a highly useful reference work for any social scientist who is concerned with the ideological tides and ground swells of our time. Let us hope that libraries, at least, can afford to own it."

+ — Am Soc R 14:192 F '49 250w

Reviewed by J. J. Mathews
Ann Am Acad 263:221 My '49 480w

Foreign Affairs 27:502 Ap '49 20w

Reviewed by M. M. Bober
J Pol Econ 57:451 O '49 2600w

"This book is an attempt to present the babel of voices in a series of twenty-seven chapters written by twenty-four authors some of whom were personally involved in the struggles in Europe. It is true that this book will increase one's understanding of this struggle, but chiefly from an historical point of view. There is an inadequate analysis of the ideas involved in the ideologies. . . But with all its shortcomings, the book is recommended as a good source for the student of present-day ideological conflict." L. O. Kattsoff

+ — Social Forces 27:316 Mr '49 600w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey 85:119 F '49 700w

"The collection is addressed primarily to the reader who already has some knowledge of the main currents of European thought. Partly for this reason, the editor has included essays on those ideologies which have not been given much consideration in other anthologies. In undertaking his task, the editor obviously met with several difficulties which, in spite of the 1,063 pages of text, he did not solve altogether successfully. . . Apparently the editor also encountered difficulties in securing uniformity of method and emphasis from his contributors. Some essays give as much attention to the organizational development of the various movements as to their ideologies. . . In spite of the faults mentioned, the collection performs a service to the student of political history by bringing together a large number of studies in aspects of European thought on which little information is easily available."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:88 Mr '49 320w

GROSS, JOHN OWEN. Education for life. 219p $2.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury

370.1 Education—U.S. Education—Aims and objectives 48-4070

"After reading Gregor Ziemer's 'Education for Death,' the book telling of the poisoning of the mind of the German people by their educators and philosophers and the subsequent destruction of the German nation, the author felt something should be said about a form of education which can produce a life-giving culture: the training of people in the history of Christian culture in America." School & Society

"This book is worthy of wide reading. While many of its ideas may be familiar, they are presented in such a way as to make a deep impression. Quotations are unusually frequent, but they are from leading writers on related subjects and are used effectively. The writer does not try to delude himself or others, but presents the facts as he sees them and offers his solution to the critical problems of the present day. If he should be accused of 'wishful thinking,' his critics need to remember that his wish is noble, and his thinking worthy of most careful consideration." Rittenhouse Neisser

+ Crozer Q 26:64 Ja '49 1500w

School & Society 69:197 Mr 12 '49 60w

GROSS, WILLIAM H. Story of magnesium. 258p il $1.50 Am. soc. for metals

669.7 Magnesium 49-860

"This book is one of a series whose purpose is to provide technical information on metals and metallurgical processes for the practical man. This volume dealing with the technology of magnesium brings to the reader many facts about industry's lightest structural metal. It is not possible in a book of this size to discuss all phases of the subject in detail, but every effort has been made to give the reader a comprehensive understanding of the technological aspects of the magnesium industry." (Pref) Glossary. No index.

"Thoroughly documented, competent presentation, readable text."

+ Kirkus 17:531 S 15 '49 190w

"The present volume appears to this reviewer to be somewhat too technical for the average high-school student who usually seeks rather general information. . . The book is exceptionally well illustrated and there are questions, at the end of chapters, which enable the student to test his own grasp of the topics discussed."

N Y New Tech Bks 34:40 My '49

Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 110w

GROSSMAN, JAMES. James Fenimore Cooper. (American men of letters ser) 286p $3.50 Sloane

B or 92 Cooper, James Fenimore 49-50106

Biographical and critical study of Cooper, with emphasis on the critical estimate of his writings. Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 46:157 Ja 1 '50

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p32 D 29 '49 300w

"This restrained and well-balanced account of Cooper's work should do much to send readers to Cooper's 'white' novels of American manners, in which he grappled with the many problems of his era." Horace Reynolds

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 5 '50 1100w

"There are valuable outlines of Cooper's various stories, with critical and discerning commentaries, but the analysis of this early writer's complex personality and activities is as stirring as any one of Cooper's tales." James van Zandt

+ Churchman 164:17 Ja 15 '50 130w

"Well balanced, painstaking volume. . . Grossman is objective and fair, but the result is uninspired, solid reading." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1599 O 15 '49 130w

"In his generous, sagacious, and useful biography Mr. Grossman has made the quiet assumption that Cooper's books must first of all be regarded as literary works, apart from their national or historical meaning to us. And this has saved him as surely from over-estimating Cooper as from underestimating him. It has also, as we should expect, enabled Mr. Grossman to give us an entirely plain and convincing picture of Cooper in his various personal guises." Richard Chase
+ Nation 170:40 Ja 14 '50 1000w

"If at times Mr. Grossman does deal with the sociological aspects of Cooper's work at the expense of the literary, this can no doubt be justified by Cooper's own offhanded attitude toward his fiction writing. In general, this study not only revaluates Cooper himself with skill and consicence but casts a sharply focussed light on the sources of American character. Somewhere in the shades the spirit of James Fenimore Cooper, irascible though it may still be, can read this latest appraisal of the work he once did and rest content that fair judgment has been rendered." Milton Rugoff
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 8 '50 1100w

"In rounding out his picture of Cooper, Mr. Grossman puts to excellent use his analyses of plots and thematic concerns in each of the thirty-two novels. He also summarizes more than a dozen other books and pamphlets which Cooper wrote. These summaries make this a valuable handbook, with a particularly well-planned index to Cooper's titles and characters. Yet this is much more than a handbook. It offers a fresh interpretation of that all-important relationship between the times, the man, the writings." Lawrance Thompson
+ N Y Times p3 D 25 '49 900w

"It is the honesty and directness, the refusal to be really mean or complicated on both their parts that makes this book a near perfect meeting of author and critic. This sensitive and mild-mannered lawyer has put its incongruities in order because he loves his subject. How anyone could love the prickly Cooper may be hard for some to see. Such people should read this biography." R. E. Spiller
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ja 7 '50 1000w

GRUBER, FRANK. Broken lance. 217p $2.50 Rinehart 49-7440

Western story.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49

"Tough, fast paced, fair average."
Kirkus 16:649 D 15 '48 70w

"Very light, quite harmless and entertaining. For men." L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 74:312 F 15 '49 120w

GRUBER, FRANK. Leather Duke. 247p $2.50 Rinehart 49-9040

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 27 '49 80w

Kirkus 17:97 F 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 3 '49 150w

"It's the mixture as before; but in its own highly specialized way, it's a marvelous mixture." A. B.
+ N Y Times p29 My 22 '49 200w

New Yorker 25:120 My 21 '49 90w

"Extra good tough 'un."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Je 4 '49 40w

GRUNEWALD, MATHIAS. Drawings of Mathis Gothart Nithart, called Gruenewald; ed. by Guido Schoenberger. 98p pl $12.50 Bittner, H.
741.91 Drawings 48-7755

"The first on its subject in English, this volume aims to give a full account of the thirty-six drawings identified by the editor as the compositions of Mathias Gruenewald. An Introduction first describes briefly the few facts known about his still obscure life, and the principal works of this great Gothic artist of the early sixteenth century. Then investigated are such matters as Gruenewald's approach to drawing, his technique and style, the effect of his artistic insights and methods on contemporary schools, and his place in the history of art." U S Quarterly Bkl

---

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1823 D 1 '49 140w

"Gruenewald's message is by no means exhausted, and future generations will probably find in him virtues beyond those now recognized. His color, for instance, is lost in the black and white reproductions that have extended his fame, and is pitiably weakened in color plates. Yet he was first and foremost a colorist. Dr. Schoenberger makes a special point of this fact in his 'Gruenewald's Drawings,' and his discussion of the master's use of tonal as opposed to linear definition is sensitive and just." J. T. Soby
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 29 '49 1650w

"The beautifully reproduced drawings will prove to those unacquainted with this artist that he was one of the most original in a period of great draughtsmen. Delineated most often in black chalk, with either rubbed off surface or diffused line, the drawings achieve form chiefly through careful placement of light and shadow. The paintings for which some of them were preliminary studies are reproduced here as are other works of art considered to have some bearing on the Gruenewald drawings. Provided, in addition, with conscientious lists of primary and secondary sources pertaining to the artist, this book should be welcomed by layman and scholar alike."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:261 S '48 320w

GUDZII, NIKOLAI KALLINIKOVICH. History of early Russian literature; tr. from the second Russian ed. by Susan Wilbur Jones; introd. by Gleb Struve. 545p $10 Macmillan
891.709 Russian literature 49-7867

"The text here offered surveys in chronological sequence the basic aspects of the history of early Russian literature from the beginning of the eleventh century to the end of the seventeenth. The selection of the material subjected to study is determined—although there are specifically literary elements present in it—chiefly by the degree in which it reflects essential features of historical reality. . . The exposition is supplemented by bibliographical references to the most important literature on the question." (Author's note) Indexes.

Booklist 45:389 Jl 15 '49

Christian Century 66:498 Ap 20 '49 190w

"For an understanding of Russia, this book is invaluable." John Cournos
+ Commonweal 50:229 Je 10 '49 460w

Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 50w

Kirkus 16:500 S 15 '48 180w

"Some traces of Marxist-Leninist interpretation are evident, but book stands out, nevertheless, as monument of Slavic scholarship. Volume which gives us better understanding of Russia's belated literary development, will be invaluable to serious students of Eastern European civilization. Recommended for larger scholarly libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:1507 O 15 '48 140w

"An outstanding work of Russian scholarship." Helen Muchnic
+ New Repub 122:19 Ja 2 '50 1550w

GUDZII, N. K.—Continued

"Gudzy is one of the most distinguished literary scholars in contemporary Russia, a member of the Academy of Science of the U.S.S.R., and a professor of literature at the Second Moscow State University. He is a man of great erudition, keen perception, and prodigious productivity. Also, he is a good writer, commanding a style that is precise, vigorous, eloquent, and, when the subject matter allows, sophisticatedly entertaining." Joshua Kunitz

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 10 '49 1150w

"Professor Gudzy's method is chronological and historical. Esthetic appreciation is not lacking, but it is subordinated to the careful presentation of the historical facts about each literary work—manuscripts, editions, genesis, dating and discussions of the accumulated scholarship. The author draws upon a wealth of erudition in his learned analyses of the numerous studies devoted to this early Russian literature." E. J. Simmons

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 3 '49 1050w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 24 '49 300w

"This fascinating record takes us up to and through the seventeenth century, almost to the eve of the inception of modern Russian literature. If the Renaissance had passed Russia by, we are left to speculate if it was not precisely the genius that had lain fallow in Russian soil, plus that window that Peter the Great opened on the West, that brought about the great Russian literary flowering of the nineteenth century." John Cournos

+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ap 16 '49 650w

"A work of very considerable learning, detailed and analytical in style."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p698 O 28 '49 800w

GUERARD, ALBERT JOSEPH. Thomas Hardy; the novels and stories. 177p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

823 Hardy, Thomas 49-10737

"A critical study of Hardy as a writer of fiction which amounts to a complete revaluation of this novelist and his work. The commonly held conception of Hardy as a great realist and pessimist is debated and discarded. He is treated as a popular novelist thoroughly anti-realist, whose conflicting impulses are not always controlled, who is profoundly sympathetic to the plight of simple people in complex situations and who has a bent toward the supernatural and grotesque." (Library J) Index of titles and characters.

Reviewed by Denham Sutcliffe

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 27 '49 650w

"A highly intelligent appraisal which derives from an exceptional literary background, this should interest followers of contemporary literature as well as this particular writer."

+ Kirkus 17:415 Ag 1 '49 190w

"Important book in its field. Of interest chiefly to students and teachers or lay readers familiar with all of Hardy's novels and stories." G. W. Hill

+ Library J 74:1088 Ag '49 140w

New Repub 122:21 Ja 9 '50 180w

"This is a brief but rewarding critical study." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 O 16 '49 900w

"Professor Guerard, young critic and novelist ('The Hunted'), tells here with respectable brilliance what he discovered in re-reading Hardy's prose fiction in the perspective of modern times." Carlos Baker

+ N Y Times p3 O 2 '49 800w

GUERARD, ALBERT LEON. Education of a humanist. 302p $5 Harvard univ. press

370.1 Education, Humanistic. Education—Aims and objectives 49-11289

Reminiscences of forty years of teaching in American colleges and universities by a Frenchman who came to this country in 1906, and is now professor emeritus of general and comparative literature at Stanford. He divides the book into five main sections: Evening thoughts of a schoolmaster; French civilization; Literature; History; World citizenship.

Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 30w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 20 '49 250w

Reviewed by R. D. MacCann

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 29 '49 650w

"Professor Guérard in a free and loose fashion has included within these covers much upon French Language, Literature and History. His observations are derived from not only long scholarship within these areas but also an acute awareness of other fields." Frederick Goode

+ Commonweal 51:164 N 11 '49 550w

"Stimulating reading, of interest not because it is one man's story, but because it encompasses modern man and all that makes him what he is. . . An urbane, charming book, to be savored and appreciated, a bit at a time."

+ Kirkus 17:499 S 1 '49 190w

"Strong personal touch throughout whole work will often arouse questions in mind of the reader, but will also make for lively reading. Every educated person interested (as he ought to be) in education and world peace should read it." H. H. Bernt

+ Library J 74:1316 S 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Irwin Edman

Nation 169:548 D 3 '49 1100w

New Repub 121:28 D 12 '49 100w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 N 27 '49 650w

"Nothing so spirited and intelligent has been written about education since Barzun's 'Teacher in America'; but the comments about education are only a foretaste of Mr. Guerard's iconoclasm in international affairs proceeding from his vision that vital literature must come from a healthy society. Although he castigates the aping of science which has threatened to dehumanize the humanities, he admires the triumphs of science in its proper realm." Emery Neff

+ N Y Times p14 N 6 '49 410w

"Mr. Guerard is carried all over the place by his retrospections. . . The going is always graceful and enlightening."

+ New Yorker 25:168 N 19 '49 160w

"This is a somewhat studied, labored and overly academic little book. . . Nevertheless, 'Thomas Hardy' is clearly based on a great deal of careful scholarship, and the author's last three pages of conclusions in which he sets forth his own excellent estimate of Hardy and his place among the other great novelists constitute a particularly valuable bit of literary criticism, and indicate the author's aptitude for able synthesis and condensation." C. W. W.

— + San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 6 '49 500w

+ School & Society 70:255 O 15 '49 30w

GUILLAIN DE BENOUVILLE, PIERRE. Unknown warriors; a personal account of the French resistance; tr. from the French by Lawrence G. Blochman. 372p il $3.50 Simon & Schuster

940.5344 France—History—German occupation, 1940-1945. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, French 49-7480

History of the French Resistance by one of its charter members. When World war II broke out M. de Bénouville was a junior officer in the French army; now, at thirty-three, he is the youngest general in that army. Beginning in Marseille in July, 1940, the Resistance gradually penetrated into every corner of France, and it is of this gradual development, his part in it, and its importance, that the author writes. No index.

Booklist 45:259 Ap 1 '49

Foreign Affairs 28:160 O '49 30w

"Highly recommended both as exciting narrative and for its historical value."
+ Nation 168:219 F 19 '49 50w

"Benouville at thirty-three is the youngest general in the French Army, and a member of DeGaulle's political secretariat. He is at his best in that part of his book which is a personal account. In the telling of it, he has defined the chaos of his country as it appeared to a young lieutenant, fresh from the collapse in the Vosges, and he has defined also the simple weakness of the men whom the Germans left in power and the haphazard manner in which that weakness worked to kill men or to save them. . . General de Benouville is historian too when he departs from this personal account to describe the mushroom, happenstance growth of the Secret Army. These descriptions are valuable but they are in striking contrast to his casual dismissal of the Communist-led F. T. P., which was one of the principal elements in the Resistance." Thomas Braden
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 20 '49 650w

"Guillain de Bénouville's memoirs is one of the more important contributions to Resistance literature and also one of the most honest, whatever one may think of its political color. Only an honest man would dare to tell such a story of trials in joining the Resistance." Theodore Draper
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 30 '49 750w

"An excellent history. . . The author, who held a post in the top echelon of the Resistance from the beginning, describes [the French Resistance] with skill and candor."
+ New Yorker 24:94 F 5 '49 100w

"While never swerving in his loyalty for De Gaulle, M. de Benouville was and still is critical of the French politicians in London. . . He has, in effect, written the first manual for large-scale guerrilla operations in enemy-occupied territory ruled by modern terror. But he has also written here about the great figures of the Resistance, about its fantastic inception, its hopes and despairs, about the hair-raising adventures average men and women got involved in, about some traitors, and many, all too many, of his martyred friends. 'We must not fail them.'" Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 F 26 '49 450w
Springf'd Republican p10B F 13 '49 420w

GUILLEMIN, ERNST ADOLPH. Mathematics of circuit analysis; extensions to the mathematical training of electrical engineers. 590p $7.50 Wiley

510 Mathematics 49-9496

"The fourth volume in the excellent Principles of Electrical Engineering series prepared cooperatively by the staff of the Department of Electrical Engineering of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It introduces the engineer to several areas of mathematics which are becoming important in many fields of engineering. Among the subjects covered are matrices, linear transformations, vector analysis and Fourier series and integrals." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1330 S 15 '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:53 Jl '49

GULICK, CHARLES ADAMS. Austria from Habsburg to Hitler; with a foreword by Walter Federn. 2v $20 Univ. of Calif.

943.6 Austria—History. Austria—Politics and government 48-1808

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by Walter Galenson
Am Econ R 39:761 Je '49 2100w
Foreign Affairs 27:337 Ja '49 50w

Reviewed by W. C. Langsam
Pol Sci Q 64:288 Je '49 950w

"This formidable, but literally indispensable, work is in the grand and spacious tradition. . . No facet of Austrian public life in the troubled era from 1918 to the Nazi occupation has been omitted and frequently events are illuminated by useful excursions into earlier history." A. J. May
+ Social Studies 40:185 Ap '49 950w
Times [London] Lit Sup p35 Ja 15 '49 600w

"Impressive in scope, but even more so in fullness and accuracy of documentation. . . Unquestionably there are many who for different reasons will wish to modify or oppose Professor Gulick's conclusions. There should be none, however, who will not respect his intellectual honesty and the acumen of his arguments."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:319 S '48 440w

GULICK, LUTHER HALSEY. Administrative reflections from World war II [lectures delivered before the fellows of the Southern regional training program in public administration in Nov. 1946]. 139p $2.50 Univ. of Ala. press

353 Public administration. World war, 1939-1945—U.S. 48-6766

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Here are important and provocative generalizations for fruitful analysis and high debate. Discussions among students of public administration will be sharpened and channels of research will be more meaningful as a result of Gulick's boldness and imagination, even though in the end he evokes as much rebuttal and dissent as confirmation." W. S. Sayre
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:143 F '49 1000w
Foreign Affairs 27:506 Ap '49 10w

"Historians will find little that is new in the sketchy history of the war presented in the first two lectures, but they will be rewarded by the third and fourth. . . The tone of the book is dogmatic; the conclusions are qualified, but the qualifications do not remove the impression of omniscience."
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:339 S '48 200w

GUNDELL, GLENN, ed. Writing—from idea to printed page; case histories of stories and articles published in The Saturday evening post; foreword by Frank Luther Mott. 374p il $5.95 Doubleday

029.6 Authorship. Journalism. Saturday evening post 49-7591

"This book is the result of a widespread demand on the part of those interested in creative writing to obtain individual copies of Case Histories as originally distributed by the Educational Services of The Saturday Evening Post. The Case Histories contained herein are part of a series supplied as supplementary teaching material for writing instructors in colleges and universities throughout the land. . . The material in this book is not designed to serve as a textbook on how to write. It is merely a record of how individual writers and an artist went about creating an acceptable product." Introd

"This oversize book will undoubtedly become a standard reference in writing classes because it takes the reader behind the scenes where editor and author hammer out their ideas." J. A. Michener
+ Sat R of Lit 32:8 Ap 30 '49 110w

"A readable book, sound, and attractive in format and typography." J. C. Carter
+ School & Society 70:122 Ag 20 '49 800w

GUNNISON, MRS OLIVE (MASON). Learning to garden; drawings by Anne Seaman; foreword by T. H. Everett. 388p $2.85 Funk

635 Gardening 48-10584

Intended primarily for the beginner at gardening this book contains chapters on soil preparation and fertilizing, and others on the various kinds of flowers and vegetables grown in the amateur's garden. Bibliography. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '49

GUNNISON, O. M.—Continued

"This has so much immensely useful and valuable information about gardening that I hate to criticise its shortcomings. But, it purports to be a gardening book for the wholly inexperienced gardener, and my feeling is that too much is attempted, and too little attention given to follow out her own advice: start with a small garden. . . But, for the most part, here is the book to recommend to the gardener who has been at it long enough to discover how much he (or she) has still to learn."

+ — Kirkus 16:497 S 15 '48 190w

"This is for the very elementary enthusiast as well as the better informed gardener. It is practically helpful as well as extremely readable." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 73:1084 Ag '48 110w

GUNTHER, JOHN. Behind the curtain. 363p $3 Harper

940.55 Central Europe. Russia—Foreign relations. Communism—Central Europe

49-9431

A report on what this American journalist saw and heard in the countries of middle and eastern Europe during a visit last year. "This book is partly based on material that appeared recently in Look and the New York Herald Tribune. But it is not in any sense a compilation of articles; the whole has been handled afresh from a new and different point of view, remodeled, recast, and greatly enlarged." (Acknowledgments) Index.

"Gunther's style, emphasis, and treatment are better suited to a series of popular articles than to a broader canvass. The book has value, but the reason is not that Gunther tells us anything new or that he tells it well, but that he has popularized for the nonspecialists a subject of current interest and a great debate." J. S. Roucek

Ann Am Acad 265:194 S '49 420w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 184:86 Jl '49 950w

Booklist 45:305; 352 My 15 '49; Je 15 '49

Bookmark 9:4 O '49 30w

Reviewed by Dorothy Graham

Cath World 169:394 Ag '49 430w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p18X Je 19 '49 550w

Reviewed by E. D. Canham

Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 24 '49 600w

"Behind the Curtain is not a work of penetrating research, but of rather hasty travel observations. . . In spite of the limitations of his experience, Mr. Gunther's easy-going report is worth reading. The happenings behind the Iron Curtain are so infected with propaganda that it is expedient to gain any additional information from seasoned travelers. . . Mr. Gunther's attitude on the conditions of the satellite countries is not entirely consistent. In the beginning of his trip he is eager to see also some good points in the present conditions, but in the course of his report he becomes more and more aware of the calumnious anti-American propaganda, imposed by Moscow's influence. He gives much emphasis to the truism that the crisis between East and West is not merely one of friction in space, but of ideologies." Max Fischer

+ — Commonweal 50:298 Jl 1 '49 400w

Foreign Affairs 28:156 O '49 110w

"Exceedingly good reading, and certain to reach a wide market."

+ Kirkus 17:244 My 1 '49 450w

"Thoroughly readable and freshly informative liberal survey of European affairs, with discerning biographical sketches, many amusing anecdotes, and a great deal of 'inside' political low-down." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:954 Je 15 '49 140w

Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 50w

"A remarkably penetrating analysis of the two-power struggle that divides the world. Let it be said at the start that this is Gunther's best book." Homer Bigart

+ Nation 168:712 Je 25 '49 1050w

Reviewed by R. E. Lauterbach

New Repub 121:24 Jl 11 '49 1150w

"For all its carelessness and 'unscholarliness,' Gunther's book is important, in much the same way as Inside Europe was important twelve years ago. Except in Czechoslovakia, where his approach is almost purely emotional, he tries very hard to understand what is really happening in Eastern Europe. . . Despite many faults, this book has two immense virtues: objectivity and intellectual honesty. These qualities not only no longer exist in Eastern journalism, where everything is 'party line'; but they are also very far today from being universal in Western journalism. Although this is far less good and informative a book than Inside U.S.A. or even Inside Europe, it still belongs to a great journalistic tradition, which is, unfortunately, today, in danger of dying." Alexander Werth

+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:362 O 1 '49 1250w

Reviewed by Joseph Barnes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Je 19 '49 1300w

"Most of the material he presents should be familiar to any careful reader of a serious newspaper. . . But they are not; and such is the tempo of modern life that today's headline is apt to blot out the memory of yesterday's crisis. It is useful, therefore, for someone with the background and experience of Mr. Gunther, who writes concisely and well, to gather up the bits and pieces and put them all together so that the busy reader can obtain a hasty refresher course in the relationship of events in different places at different times upon his own life and outlook." Raymond Daniell

+ N Y Times p3 Je 26 '49 1400w

"Although the writing and organization show some evidence of haste, the book is valuable because it makes a start at disentangling the vast mass of contradictions about the countries that comprise Russia's security belt."

+ — New Yorker 25:85 Je 18 '49 360w

Reviewed by Gordon Pates

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Je 19 '49 1150w

"The best work on the Soviet satellite republics of Eastern Europe that has appeared since Hal Lehrman's impressive 'Russia's Europe' (1947). . . There are a few factual errors, which might profitably be eliminated in subsequent editions. . . But these are trifles. 'Behind the Curtain' is one of the best pieces of reporting in a decade and the author may well be proud of it." E. A. Mowrer

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 Jl 2 '49 2200w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wiskemann

Spec 183:270 Ag 26 '49 550w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p21A Jl 10 '49 470w

"Mr. Gunther contributes little that is new in information; his usefulness lies in his ability to bring difficult political and economic problems into the focus of personal experience. He is able to do this by thumbnail sketches of how the leaders look and talk. The best sketches of this kind are of Hungarian leaders. . . Mr. Gunther clarifies a great many matters for his countrymen, simplifying the issues. . . The best quality of Mr. Gunther's 'brief report,' as of his other writings, is the genial informality of the writing. Instead of taking the pose of an expert, who knows much that he may not tell, Mr. Gunther tells exactly what he knows and how he obtained it. The reader, captivated by the fairness of his chronicle, comes closer to understanding the eastern European attitude toward the United States." Harry Hansen

+ Survey 85:494 S '49 850w

"At times, the old sharp-eyed Gunther breaks through the over-chewed, juiceless summaries of East European history with which Behind the Curtain is stuffed. But in the end, Behind the Curtain adds up to little more than a recapitulation of recent journalism on Eastern Europe."

— + Time 53:96 Je 20 '49 220w

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p595 S 16 '49 550w

Wis Lib Bul 45:105 Je '49

GUNTHER, JOHN. Death be not proud. 261p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Gunther, John, 1929-1947 49-7491

A biographical sketch written by John Gunther, in memory of his brave young son, who died June 30, 1947, at the age of seventeen. For fifteen months the boy had fought a gallant fight against brain tumor, but his own fighting spirit, the loving care of his father and mother, and all that medical science could do, did not save his life. The final chapter of the book was written by his mother.

Booklist 45:224 Mr 1 '49

"An eloquent and beautiful book."

+ Cath World 169:240 Je '49 200w

"Every so often these days it seems that you have the good fortune to come upon a small picture, or a fragment of music, or a short book, that, in being briefly just what it says, causes you to see in it much more than you had expected. . . This little book is the brief story of a human being who lived a brief life. It is also . . . much more. The meaning of 'much more' is for each reader to discover for himself. What he brings to the book will not help in the discovery. What he brings to the life he shares with others will." M. H. Ley

+ Commonweal 49:475 F 18 '49 600w

"This account has not a trace of morbidity or sentimentality. Rather it is an inspiring picture of courage, intelligence and consideration for others." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 25:241 My '49 80w

Kirkus 16:350 Jl 15 '48 270w

"An almost undescribably touching book, also valuable as a medical document, this ranks with Lewis Mumford's Green Memories, the book about his son, Geddes, who was killed in the late war. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:197 F 1 '49 130w

New Statesman & Nation 37:654 Je 18 '49 250w

"The keynote of this book is not horror and suffering but bravery, strength and cheerfulness, the warmth of a joint struggle in which Johnny and his parents were upheld by, and did uphold, the eager efforts and devotion of doctors and nurses, schoolmasters and friends. The story . . . gives a triumphant picture of human heroism in which the hero is truly heroic. To read it is to grasp the meaning of man's power to defy Death's hurt, to be filled with confidence and emptied of despair. It will bring fresh spirit to the weary, new confidence and light to those who walk in shadow." Walter Duranty

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 6 '49 800w

"It is as painful a story as one could well read, for Mr. Gunther spares neither himself nor his reader. It is also a story of great unselfishness and great heroism. If we can stand literal descriptions of battles, we ought to be able to stand this. Still, it is not easy. . . If courage is an antidote to pain and grief, the disease and the cure are both in this book. Those who can endure this strong medicine will be the stronger if they read this book." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p6 F 6 '49 550w

"A heartbreaking tale, beautifully written."

+ New Yorker 25:98 F 26 '49 80w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 21 '49 850w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 Mr 5 '49 650w

+ Spec 182:700 My 20 '49 190w

"Not within recent memory has there been a more profoundly moving memorial than 'Death Be Not Proud'. . . Mr. Gunther courageously relates all the incidents . . . in an unprecedented case history that has at once the mobility of a news story and the drama of an epic. There is no art to it, no calculated pathos, no reaching for sympathy." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B F 13 '49 550w

"Such a book could easily have become an understandable but embarrassing statement of grief, or a father's equally embarrassing eulogy. This one is neither. Gunther is interested in neither tears nor personal royalties (both his proceeds and the publisher's profits go to cancer research for children). Without fuss, in simple, almost conversational style, he expresses the love and comradeship he felt for his son, gives a step-by-step account of cancer's inexorable victory. In so doing, Gunther arouses in the reader an almost deliberate passion to help find the dark enemy and destroy it."

+ Time 53:92 F 7 '49 440w

Times [London] Lit Sup p348 My 27 '49 700w

Wis Lib Bul 45:65 Ap '49

GUPTIL, ARTHUR LEIGHTON. Pencil drawing step-by-step. 200p il $7.50 Reinhold

741.24 Pencil drawing 49-11521

"Takes the place of Sketching and Rendering in Pencil, long a standard work. It covers lead pencil, charcoal and scratchboard drawing, and contains many examples by well-known artists." Cleveland Open Shelf

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '49

"Mr. Guptill's teaching background gives him insight for anticipating the needs of the beginner and skilled artist alike, and he presents the step-by-step methods in the acquisition of skill, confidence, and techniques that may be used as the foundation for an artistic career or as a means of recording scenes, moods, personalities, and events for life-long enjoyment."

+ School Arts 49:adv D '49 150w

GURNEY, RONALD WILFRID. Introduction to statistical mechanics. 268p $5 McGraw

541.39 Statistical mechanics 49-3983

"An attempt to simplify the exposition of statistical mechanics so that its chief concepts and methods will be available to scientists who are not professional mathematicians. The more abstruse concepts are not introduced until the latter part of the book. In the first part the emphasis is on the mathematical techniques and on some of their applications. Applications in chemistry and in physics are used throughout the book. The chapters are supplemented by problems for students to solve, but the work is intended for graduate students and graduate scientists already in industry rather than for undergraduates." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"It is important to present statistical mechanics with emphasis on the positive contributions rather than on the difficulties of the past. Professor Gurney has succeeded in accomplishing this, but it is hardly to be expected that his book will suffice in itself to give the reader a thorough mastery of the subject. After all, the author has only attempted to introduce the subject to those who are already familiar with thermodynamics and with general physical chemistry. Such a reader will find many stimulating paragraphs in this text." H. M. Smallwood

+ — Chem Eng 56:260 D '49 750w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:60 Jl '49

"The consistent emphasis on simplicity throughout the book, both as to physical ideas and analytical development, leads to a number of excellent and clear qualitative explanations of such matters as the most probable energy distribution, the progress toward this equilibrium distribution, the relation between the partition functions of a gas and a solid, and the concept of temperature. At the same time it is perhaps an inevitable result that some of the discussions will not satisfy the more inquiring students even in a basic course on this subject." L. I. Schiff

GURNEY, R. W.—Continued
+ — R of Scientific Instruments 20:687 S '49 270w

GUTHEIM, FREDERICK ALBERT. The Potomac; il. by Mitchell Jamieson. (Rivers of America) 436p maps $4 Rinehart
917.549 Potomac river 49-11856

A history of men and events, of travels, explorations, growing industries, along the banks of the Potomac from earliest colonial times thru Civil war days. Two chapters are exclusively devoted to Washington, D.C., but in the story the upper reaches of the river as well as the Tidewater country are not neglected. Bibliographical notes. Index.

Booklist 46:140 D 15 '49

"An account so ably planned and written that the book must certainly be regarded as among the best in this excellent series." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 18 '49 450w

Kirkus 17:533 S 15 '49 160w

"Here is what is so far the best of the Rivers of America series, a book that is at once learned and lively, intelligent and informed." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 N 27 '49 1600w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
N Y Times p10 N 27 '49 450w

"Another Rivers of America book, and another commendable one. . . The river has provided Mr. Gutheim with an excuse to write a history, and a good one."
+ New Yorker 25:59 D 31 '49 130w

Reviewed by Charles Hurd
Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ja 21 '50 1150w

Wis Lib Bul p6 N '49

GUTHRIE, ALFRED BERTRAM. Way West. 340p $3.50 Sloane
49-11198

A story of an emigrant trek from Independence, Missouri, to Oregon in the 1840s. Dick Summers, one of the principal characters of the author's earlier novel, The Big Sky (Book Review Digest 1947), reappears in this.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 184:88 D '49 550w

Booklist 46:63 O 15 '49

Bookmark 9:29 N '49 50w

"In his novel of the 'On-to-Oregon' wagon train, Guthrie adheres to the pattern. . . One of the women is a compassionate, broad bosomed earth-mother type, beloved of sculptors who do monuments of westward emigration. . . Too, there is a pretty young creature who inevitably marries the youth. Guthrie brings in a 1949 best-seller note by having the girl lose her virginity before marriage. Otherwise the hazards of the journey are just what you'd expect, told pompously and long-windedly. The gusty paeans of praise of Oregon should make the novel popular with the state chamber of commerce. A non-Oregonian would be apt to prefer a rousing John Ford western movie." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 170:234 D '49 250w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p13X O 16 '49 500w

"Where most writers of Western fiction concentrate on what their characters do, Mr. Guthrie concentrates on how they think and feel. It is this emphasis which gives his books depth and sense of reality." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 O 13 '49 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

Reviewed by George Miles
Commonweal 51:300 D 16 '49 250w

"Just as in The Big Sky he gave new significance to the saga of the mountain men, so in The Way West, he gives freshness and vigor to the drama of westward passage. The stark realism, the often unnecessary crudities of the earlier book are absent here, while the strength of the writer is evident in both."
+ Kirkus 17:479 S 1 '49 180w

"It is fundamentally a simple story, told with an attention to homely detail and an understanding of human nature which gives it a warmth and vitality often lacking in more pretentious works. Recommended." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 74:1603 O 15 '49 110w

"'The Way West' is complete enough in itself . . . and if it is not as big a book as 'The Big Sky' it is a better novel. Its pattern of character is more various, more human, and warmer than was Mr. Guthrie's development of the creation of a Kentucky boy into a mountain man, and this book's plot is neater." E. B. Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 9 '49 1200w

"Mr. Guthrie writes with modest but sure art, especially in his feeling for the idiom of Western talk and for the narrative style proper to it." R. G. Davis
+ N Y Times p5 O 9 '49 700w

Reviewed by Brendan Gill
— New Yorker 25:128 O 15 '49 280w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 9 '49 1500w

Reviewed by W. V. Clark
+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 O 8 '49 950w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 390w

"Guthrie is still not master of the novel and his characters have a four-square, surface rightness rather than depth. He can also use some unashamed, sugary, overripe prose. . . But most readers will be thankful for a fictional fidelity to time & place that is wholly exceptional among Guthrie's competitors."
+ — Time 54:108 O 17 '49 550w

Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

"Occasionally pseudo-poetic prose, conventional characterization, and lack of narrative compulsion make the book little more than just another story of western migration." Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:383 winter '50 140w

GUY, HAROLD A. New Testament doctrine of the last things; a study of eschatology. 200p $3 Oxford
236 Eschatology. Bible. New Testament

"The author reviews carefully all the important eschatological passages in the New Testament, interpreting each and relating it to its place in the New Testament literature as a whole. He is one of the increasing number who emphasize the unity of the New Testament. . . He concludes that eschatology is neither the key to Jesus' teaching nor is it absent from his teaching. Jesus used eschatological language, but 'mainly for purposes of illustration,' not in the vein of the apocalyptists but of the great prophets, as the 'vehicle for permanent spiritual and ethical truth.'" J Religion

"Guy has provided one of the best introductions in English to this complicated subject, explaining fairly and with sufficient completeness the pertinent New Testament passages and the main lines of present interpretation. The exposition is unfortunately limited by the utter lack of all use of literature in languages other than English. Kümmel's Vorbeissung und Erfüllung, to mention a single instance, would have added much to the discussion." J. W. Beardslee
+ — J Religion 29:316 O '49 500w

"Mr. Guy's book has two chief merits; it provides a clear and concise conspectus of the passages of the New Testament which deal with the coming of the Kingdom and of the Son of Man, and it recognizes that there is no single and simple key to their meaning and reference. . . His execution in detail is less impressive than his general maxims. There is far too much of that carping criticism which, in the endeavour to avoid the stigma of fundamentalism, gaily suggests inconsistencies where a dispassionate consideration of the texts reveals only a difference of emphasis."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p62 Ja 22 '49 1050w

GYORGY, ANDREW. Governments of Danubian Europe. 376p $4 Rinehart

943.6 Danubian countries. Europe—Politics 49-2755

A survey, set against a sketch of the historical background, of the postwar governments of Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia, and Bulgaria. Bibliography. Index.

"The author completely disregards the wartime military considerations, the Soviet geographic proximity to 'Danubia,' and failure of a single traditional democratic party in 'Danubia' to organize a resistance movement, thereby allowing the initiative to rest in Communist hands. As an introductory survey of political and socio-economic developments in postwar 'Danubia,' this book is not without merits; it attempts to explain some of the difficulties of Soviet-engineered socialism among the peoples who are neither historically nor ideologically prepared for it." W. S. Vucinich

Am Pol Sci R 43:1059 O '49 700w

"Unfortunately, Gyorgy's book is frequently not only poor but actively annoying, although it is evident that the author has the makings of a fine scholar and that his future publications may be of more valid historical importance." J. S. Roucek

— + Ann Am Acad 264:132 Jl '49 380w

Booklist 45:352 Je 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 28:167 O '49 20w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

H

H. D. See Doolittle, H.

HAAR, BAREND TER. Adat law in Indonesia; tr. from the Dutch; ed. with an introd. by E. Adamson Hoebel [and] A. Arthur Schiller; issued in cooperation with the Southwest Asia institute. 255p $4 Inst. of Pacific relations

349 Law—Netherlands Indies 48-9442

"This work is a translation of the major part of a book with the title Beginselen en Stelsel van het Adatrecht, by the Dutch jurist B. ter Haar and published by J. B. Wolters, Groningen and Batavia, in 1939. It is offered, with an interpretative introduction, as an authoritative study of the law of the native peoples of a society which, although on the brink of entering into modern world civilization, has retained much of its traditional life and thought." (Pref) Adat law literature. Indexes.

"This authoritative study is of great interest for students of anthropology and primitive law." L. A. Mills

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:619 Je '49 260w

Reviewed by J. O. M. Broek

Geog R 39:508 Jl '49 750w

"The publication of this English translation is an event of great importance because it makes more generally available a classic work on the living law of the Indonesian people. The introductory exposition, by Professors Hoebel and Schiller, of the ethnological background and the place of adat law in the legal system of the Netherlands Indies is extremely helpful because it enables the reader properly to evaluate the relative significance of adat law in both the cultural setting and the legal framework of Indonesia. . . It is worth noting that this translation is in some respects even clearer and more readable than the original Dutch." R. Supomo

+ Pacific Affairs 22:194 Je '49 800w

HABELL, KENNETH JOSEPH, and COX, ARTHUR. Engineering optics; the principles of optical methods in engineering measurement. 411p il $7.50 Pitman

535 Optical measurements. Optical instruments [49-9525]

"The greater part of this work consists of technical descriptions of the most important optical methods and instruments that are applicable to engineering practice. The first two chapters, on the theory of optical systems, have been written as optional material: not prerequisite to the rest of the book, but helpful for full understanding of it. There are many diagrams and photographs of instruments. References are given at the end of the chapters." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1330 S 15 '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:73 S '49

HABER, WILLIAM, and COHEN, WILBUR J., eds. Readings in social security. 634p $7.65; to schools $5.75 Prentice-Hall

331.2544 Insurance, Social 48-11096

"A selection of articles for those working in, or interested in social security fields. It gives background, philosophy, and current developments of social security. Of value from both theoretical and practical viewpoints. The editors do not necessarily agree with the viewpoints in all the articles, nor will the reader. . . The subject matter is: the problem of insecurity; the theory and philosophy of social security and its development in the U.S.; social insurance, such as unemployment, old-age, medical and health; related social security programs; economic and financial aspects; and an appraisal and criticism." (Library J) Selected references. Index.

"One might wish for the inclusion of more material on foreign social security thinking, on the 'social security' which is provided exclusively for war veterans, on the economics of transfer payments in general; and perhaps for the inclusion of texts (or digests) of pertinent legislation. Nevertheless, the significant lines of thinking are represented in the book. And in the continued absence of a new and authoritative textbook on social security, this volume is apt to prove much more useful than the ordinary collection of collateral readings." D. E. Christian

+ — Am Econ R 39:1361 D '49 750w

Reviewed by Karl de Schweinitz

Ann Am Acad 264:162 Jl '49 500w

Booklist 45:205 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 80w

HACKETT, ALICE PAYNE (MRS ALBERT GEORGE HARTER). Wellesley, part of the American story. (American college and university ser) 320p il $5 Dutton

376 Wellesley college 49-3550

A history of Wellesley college from its days as a female seminary in 1870-72 to its present position in American education. Index.

Booklist 45:385 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p16 My 18 '49 480w

Kirkus 17:201 Ap 1 '49 150w

"Well written and interesting. . . Recommended." G. O. Kelley

+ Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 160w

HACKETT, A. P.—Continued

"Alumnae and others will wish that there were more discussion of the philosophy behind the present-day curriculum, one remarkably free from required courses. There might have been more discussion pro and con on the question of the choice of faculty and of whether women's colleges might set an example for male institutions by choosing their professors solely on their qualifications without regard to sex. Interest in underlying ideas, rather than in details, would have made the book more appealing to the general public." Alice Sheehy

N Y Times p21 Jl 31 '49 390w

"Although in a few sections of the book, Alice Payne Hackett's treatment may be a trifle more categorical than necessary, she has done the knowledgeable and professional job that might be expected of her. Moreover, it is to her credit that a subject which could have been limited in appeal has been given significance and scope." M. L. M.

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 3 '49 250w

"Miss Hackett's life of the 'College Beautiful' makes fascinating reading, and in view of the nostalgic pleasure it afforded at least one old Wellesley girl, even to frequent lumps in the throat and tears in the eye, it may seem ungrateful to file these demurrers. The book is written in the monotone of an everything-is-for-the-best-in-this-best-of-all-possible-(college)-worlds style. It is hard to see or confess faults in a beloved mother, but the skirting of criticism and analysis results in a surface portrait." E. P. Hazard

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:30 S 10 '49 1100w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p7C O 16 '49 300w

HADER, MRS BERTA (HOERNER), and HADER, ELMER. Little appaloosa [il. by the authors]. [45p] $2.50 Macmillan

49-11913

An "appaloosa" is a spotted horse, a descendant of wild Indian ponies of the Southwest which were in turn descended from the horses brought over by the Spaniards. This is the story of young Ben and the appaloosa colt his father gave him for his birthday.

Booklist 46:145 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:57 D '49 50w

"The factual content is simply presented, and there is enough pace of story to give it appeal for small boys who want something to happen."

+ Kirkus 17:654 D 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by Juanita Walker

Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 60w

"With this engaging title, the Haders give small boys a story-picture book they will love." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 11 '49 170w

"There is the ring of truth in this, the most vigorous of the Haders' books to date. On the whole, the pictures match the text, although occasionally the pastel tones are too delicate for the subject." A. N. Fedder

+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 1 '50 70w

"This account of a boy and his horse in the West today has about everything to satisfy the cowboy-mad age—Indians, roundups, a rodeo, and a calf-roping contest, won by the hero. It's a big book, quietly written and illustrated with wash and color pictures."

+ New Yorker 25:182 D 3 '49 40w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '49 90w

HAGEN, MIRIAM ANN. Dig me later. 186p $2.25 Doubleday

49-4828

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun S 9 '49 40w

Kirkus 17:260 My 15 '49 80w

"Well up to seasonal average." Elizabeth Bullock

+ N Y Times p21 Ag 14 '49 140w

HAGER, MRS ALICE (ROGERS). Canvas castle; il. by Mary Stevens. 179p $2.50 Messner

49-5953

Beginning with an unexpectedly happy Christmas in a hotel, this is the story of one year in the life of the Harper family. Maidie Harper's father was an engineer who never stayed long in one place but this time Maidie hoped they had settled for good in the little California town. But then father had to move again and it took Maidie some time to realize that "home" was where father was.

Booklist 46:52 O 1 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:530 N '49 80w

"A nice, wholesome family story, but not a particularly distinguished book."

+ — Kirkus 17:359 Jl 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid

Library J 74:1541 O 15 '49 50w

"Warmhearted, thoroughly realistic family story that will appeal especially to 10-12-year-old girls." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 70w

"In many spots the book is not well-written, and the baby-talk of the youngest boy gets on one's nerves. It seems surprising that it was felt to deserve the Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation Award. Yet the family life is most natural and happy, the parents wise and clever with their passionate, headstrong Maidie, and the main point is a healthy one to offer the many uprooted homes and children of today." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 30 '49 290w

"This is a human, heart-warming story of a young girl's growing up."

+ N Y Times p24 N 13 '49 150w

HAGER, MRS ALICE (ROGERS). Washington, city of destiny; text; phot. by Jackie Martin. 72p $3.50 Macmillan

917.53 Washington, D.C.—Description

49-9351

Brief text and many photographs present the life and work of our national capital. No index.

Booklist 45:359 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin

Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 80w

"Not only a travel book and a souvenir, but a painless lesson in civics for any student. Most of the photographs were taken by Jackie Martin when she was on the staff of the Washington Times Herald. The workings of Washington, therefore, are pictured in the terms of embassy parties, the Eisenhowers, living Senators, and Washington hostess Pearl Bailey."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 Je 18 '49 70w

HAGGIN, BERNARD H. Music in the Nation. 376p $5 Sloane

780.4 Music—History and criticism. Music—U.S.

49-50209

A collection of the author's articles on music first published in The Nation. The arrangement is chronological with one article dated October 9, 1929, and the rest dated between March 1939 and March 1948. There is also a small section of articles on the ballet, 1944-1947, and thirty pages of book reviews. Indexes.

Booklist 46:169 Ja 15 '50

"A selection of the noted music critic's sparkling articles and book reviews containing sincere and discerning commentary on music, old and new, on orchestras and operas, musicians and managers, concerts and recordings."

+ Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 50w

Reviewed by K. G. Roy

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 750w

"An interesting, stimulating, varied collection."
+ Kirkus 17:529 S 15 '49 150w

"Recommended lively reading." Leonard Burkat
+ Library J 74:1907 D 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Randall Jarrell
Nation 169:599 D 17 '49 1250w

"Mr. Haggin's writing has grown in flexibility and grace. It lacks, perhaps, something of Tovey's or Virgil Thomson's gift for summary statement or flashing comparison which, in a single sentence or turn of phrase, seems to define once and for all the special quality of a composer's style or the peculiar expressiveness of some particular work. Only infrequently, in his more abstract descriptions, does one come upon one of those arresting figures which, in Tovey or Thomson, suddenly strike one with the force of a new revelation. But neither does one get the feeling in reading him, as one does with so many other writers on music, that he is only occasionally deviating into sense." H. D. Aiken
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 18 '49 1350w

"On the strength of Mr. Haggin's title one would naturally expect to encounter a sympathetic, informed concern with the creative impulses, representative institutions and personalities, and qualities of taste and appreciation that characterize the musical life of the country. Instead, he is confronted by a tight little world of the author's own imagining—a world dominated by a handful of subject deities and a rather larger group of alleged frauds, nihilists, ungifted pretenders, and members of the great unwashed." Cecil Smith
— Sat R of Lit 32:25 D 31 '49 850w

Reviewed by Victor Prahl
Springf'd Republican p16A Ja 15 '50 650w

HAHN, EMILY (MRS CHARLES BOXER). England to me. 271p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. England—Social life and customs 49-7142

"An account of the English family life of Emily Hahn, her husband Major Boxer and their small daughter Carola, who arrived in England in August, 1945 and left almost two years later for a visit to the U.S. . . Miss Hahn describes postwar England from the angles of rationing, transportation inconveniences, differences of English and American temperaments, unpredictable house guests and servants, her husband's new profession, etc." Library J

Booklist 45:129; 176 D 15 '48; Ja 15 '49

Reviewed by Frayn Utley
Chicago Sun Ja 26 '49 320w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 27 '49 180w

"Diverting enough for the circle of devotees."
Kirkus 16:586 N 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Library J 73:1742 D 1 '48 80w

"Accuracy and insight make 'England to Me' more than a mere comedy: it actually gives a remarkable impression of English character and peculiarities." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 16 '49 650w

"While the Boxer family inches its way into an English state of mind, Miss Hahn is at her best. Never raising an eyebrow, never exposing a touchy nerve center, she details her bewilderment explicitly, leaving the reader's sense of humor to do the rest. This is much the funniest part of the book. The writer's internationalism, unfortunately, is of an impatient variety; hardly has she come to grips with her typically English problems before she retires to a Tower of Babel constructed out of her own household. In no time the English scene is fading from view." Isabelle Mallet
+ — N Y Times p4 Ja 23 '49 900w

New Yorker 24:83 Ja 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ja 9 '49 500w

"This is more like it. This is the Emily Hahn of 'China to Me' and 'Hong Kong Holiday.' She is back on the track again after straying off with 'Miss Jill,' the pale lost lily out of mind who peddled her fragile charms up and down the China coast. Wistfulness and the brave, sad smile are not for Miss Hahn." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Ja 15 '49 750w

HAIG-BROWN, RODERICK LANGMERE HAIG. On the highest hill. 319p $3 Morrow 49-2628

A story of a shy, lonely boy, who, in spite of a love affair and war service, grew into a shy and lonely man. Loving the mountains of his native land, the Canadian Northwest, he retreated into them and there finally met his death.

Booklist 45:313 My 15 '49

"Colin, in his relation to the primitive is convincing, from his shy, awkward, inarticulate boyhood, to his tragic, unnecessary death. But in his relation to the people who tried to help him, the people who loved and thought they understood him, the people who were antagonized by his strangeness, he is never wholly real."
+ — Kirkus 17:119 Mr 1 '49 210w

"The author of A River Never Sleeps is at his best describing nature—not quite so convincing with people." A. J. Gaines
+ — Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 90w

"The theme here is sound enough; the difficulty is that the conflict is realized only on the simpler levels. Like Colin himself the author is least successful when dealing with people, and at his best when he is dealing directly and easily, as he invariably does when they are in the foreground, with the mountain peaks, the solitary lakes, the whole vast and challenging emptiness of the country he knows and so obviously loves and understands." J. H. Jackson
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 19 '49 550w

"Above all Colin is an anachronism and when, inevitably, the world intrudes upon the mountain fastnesses he wants for himself, the end is as preordained as it is tragic. But this is tragedy in the classic sense, rising out of the very nature of the protagonist and not out of the petty, contrived strivings of our contemporary world. There is magnificence of spirit in a magnificent setting and for that spirit the reader feels pity, terror and awe, but never foolish regret." Ann Schakne
+ N Y Times p5 My 8 '49 320w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 25 '49 420w

"Static rather than dramatic and lacking humor in either the wide or the narrow sense, 'On the Highest Hill' is a book which will appeal primarily to readers who are already excited about lumbering, or western Canada, or living alone in virgin forest, or who find in Colin a spirit like their own." Bradford Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:34 My 28 '49 470w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 300w

HALE, CHRISTOPHER, pseud. See Stevens, F. M. R.

HALE, GARTH, pseud. See Cunningham, A. B.

HALE, RICHARD WALDEN. Story of Bar Harbor, an informal history recording one hundred and fifty years in the life of a community. 259p il $3 Washburn

974.145 Bar Harbor, Maine 49-5010

"When the great fire struck Bar Harbor in 1947 it brought the picturesque place on the Maine coast to the minds of news readers all over the U.S.A. Mr. Hale's well documented and illustrated history of the region, better known as a resort and scientific center, is the result of that tragedy. Author has gone back to the 17th century settlements of the neighborhood and traced the Mount Desert, Port Royal and Eden developments. . . He carries the story from time of area's early international position to post-fire days." Library J

HALE, R. W.—Continued

"For summer visitors, both residents and transients, the book will have definite appeal. Some of the year-round residents, descendants, in many instances, of early settlers, will claim it as their own. But we question its appeal to those who do not know the place. The writing is for the most part pedestrian. It would seem as though the author had missed the opportunity to make more vivid use of some of the interesting incidents he touches on. And there are some what seem inexcusable mistakes."

+ — Kirkus 17:228 Ap 15 '49 220w

"Has more than regional interest. Illustrated with historic and contemporary photographs." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 140w

"Mr. Hale faithfully records the early history, writing in a clear, if not too lively, vein. . . The book was written to mark the sesquicentennial of Bar Harbor's existence as an incorporated town, which date actually fell in 1946, and, as such a recognition, has unquestionable value in terms of social history." M. E. Chase

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 10 '49 700w

"Mr. Hale, as becomes a member of the Wellesley faculty, alludes frequently and informally to novels with Bar Harbor settings. His own account, readable and competent, deserves to become a part of the region's permanent literature." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 O 1 '49 180w

HALE, WILLIAM JAY. Farmer victorious; money, mart and Mother earth. 241p $3 Coward-McCann

660 Agriculture—Economic aspects. Chemurgy 49-11074

"Despite Mr. Hale's notable accomplishments in the field of chemistry—both in the development of new industrial processes and in the academic field—he is immensely interested in many other fields. . . The principal theme of the author is that we have moved from the Machine into the Chemical Age. . . Although the author touches upon and at times elaborates the many ideas contained in an active mind, he comes to rest upon the incredibly vast opportunities which lie before agriculture as a constant and inexhaustible source of raw materials for industry, for chemistry, for medicine." (N Y Times) Index.

"It is a book that may make you mad but it also will make you think." Watson Davis

Chem & Eng N 27:3518 N 21 '49 160w

"Readers who have already become interested in (or addicted to) the arguments and aims of chemurgy will recognize Dr. Hale's latest work as an important book. Others may find some of his statements rather dogmatic and certain of his views far-fetched." R. R. Hawkins

+ — Library J 74:1912 D 15 '49 80w

"If the book has a fault, it is that of an overabundance of ideas, perhaps not too well organized, but at least it is the product of an inquiring mind backed by scientific prestige." Louis Bromfield

+ — N Y Times p14 N 20 '49 450w

HALL, GEOFFREY HOLIDAY. End is known. 248p $2 Simon & Schuster 49-1723

Mystery story.

"First novel and to my mind the most distinguished first mystery novel of the year." Jame Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun p73 D 9 '49 350w

'Well sustained interest."

+ Kirkus 17:592 O 15 '49 90w

"There is good suspense to this first mystery, and Mr. Hall has a novelist's talent for establishing character."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 15 '50 180w

"This intelligently written book is Mr. Hall's first novel, and a very fine one it is too."

+ New Yorker 25:156 D 10 '49 160w

"Don't believe we've ever guaranteed a thriller before. This one is guaranteed." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 25 '49 220w

HALL, HESSEL DUNCAN. Mandates, dependencies and trusteeship. 429p $5 Carnegie endowment

321.027 Mandates. Colonies. International trusteeships 48-8893

"A documented study of the mandate system which followed World War I. The termination of the League of Nations brings the book to the beginning of the United Nations agreements. The principal documents appertaining to the mandate era are quoted in the Annexes, requiring 100 pages of text." (Current Hist) List of works cited. Index.

"Careful, compact, and thorough, with much new material and much critical interpretation." Clyde Eagleton

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:362 Ap '49 600w

"This is perhaps the most significant study of the mandates system and related phenomena since Quincy Wright's work on Mandates under the League of Nations, published in 1930. The well-documented text is compressed into less than 300 pages of facts and judicious observations, and cannot be read hurriedly. The documentary annex of 94 pages is well selected and especially useful to one interested in comparisons of the mandate and trusteeship systems." F. M. Russell

+ Ann Am Acad 262:194 Mr '49 340w

Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 50w

Foreign Affairs 27:329 Ja '49 50w

"Mr. Duncan Hall's book will serve for a long time as an estimate of the significance of, and the contributions made by, the mandate system under the League of Nations. Its value is increased by its discussion of the transition from mandates to trusteeships, by a reprinting of the relevant documents, and by a good bibliography and index." Quincy Wright

+ Harvard Law R 62:1424 Jl '49 2400w

Reviewed by H. R. Winkler

Pol Sci Q 64:286 Je '49 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p691 O 28 '49 1200w

"Long experience in the League of Nations Secretariat and years of research upon international trusteeships and related topics have equipped Mr. Hall admirably for this study."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:469 D '48 420w

HALL, MARJORY. Your Young Life; il. by Elinor Darby. 278p $2.50 Houghton 49-10142

This career story for girls follows Fern Clayton thru her first year on the editorial staff of a teen-agers' magazine, Your Young Life.

"Well written, and with a good word for the nicer techniques of getting ahead, this book ought nevertheless to jar the star dust out of a few overdreamy adolescent eyes." Jane Cobb

+ Atlantic 184:104 D '49 70w

Booklist 45:398; 46:49 Jl 15 '49; O 1 '49

Reviewed by A. R. Brooks

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 13 '49 170w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 8 '49 70w

Kirkus 17:301 Je 15 '49 130w

"Fern [is] surprisingly immature. She develops somewhat before the end and the magazine somehow survives, but none of it seems quite real. Large libraries which can afford it will, of course, find girl-readers who will like this story. Follows Copy Kate." Siri Andrews

Library J 74:1209 S 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 80w

"Even those teen-aged girls who haven't editorial ambitions will enjoy Marjory Hall's latest career novel, for the young people in it are very much a part of the present-day world. Those who do have such ambitions will get some good pointers on magazine work from this crisply written story. . . Elinor Darby's brisk drawings strike just the right note." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p32 S 25 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:31 N 12 '49 30w

HALL, MELVIN ADAMS. Bird of time. 307p $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 Adventure and adventurers 49-7168

"Colonel Hall, American army officer, has been through two world wars, lived an interesting and adventurous life between, and is a born story teller. Now, in his Burgundian home in France, he describes the country, his neighbors, wine-making, while branching out to recall odd episodes of the first war, his adventures as an American official in Persia, experiences in Siam, Japan, Russia and hunting in Maine. Variety and plenty of humor are in this sequel to Journey to the End of an Era (1947)." (Library J) Index.

Kirkus 17:22 Ja 1 '49 130w

"The kind of a book to be picked up for an hour's enjoyment. Recommended." G. W. Hill

+ Library J 73:1188 S 1 '48 100w

" 'Bird of Time' left me with the feeling that I had spent an evening with a very pleasant gentleman just back from strange ports; a gentleman who is, to boot, a delightful after-dinner story teller." Margaret Hubbard

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Mr 13 '49 450w

"It is all episodic and anecdotal, but it is interestingly done. Readers who missed his first book will want to go back to it." H. A. Littledale

+ N Y Times p21 F 13 '49 300w

"As [Hall] looks over his chattels, he is reminded of the places whence they came. . . The device is pleasant and not followed so slavishly that it becomes trite. And the memories are generally interesting and occasionally surprising." W. R. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 20 '49 150w

"Colonel Hall allows his memory to travel highways and byways and revivify more rich anecdotes of unforgettable people, places, incidents, and experiences. These he relates with a sort of casual leisureliness which in no wise detracts from their sharp characterizations, graphic descriptions, chuckle-inducing humor, occasional breathtaking thrills, and penetrating cosmic observations. . . Perhaps the real charm in 'Bird of Time' lies in the nostalgia it creates for a bygone era of graciousness and ease of living." Linton Wells

+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 Mr 26 '49 600w

HALL, OAKLEY M. Murder city. 223p $2.50 Farrar, Straus

49-7594

Detective story.

"Rough stuff, smoothly handled."

Kirkus 16:583 N 1 '48 90w

"This yarn should satisfy the most demanding thirst for gore." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p21 F 20 '49 110w

Sat R of Lit 32:38 F 26 '49 40w

HALL, ROBERT KING. Education for a new Japan. 503p $6 Yale univ. press

370.952 Education—Japan 49-9201

A study of the re-education of the Japanese people after the war. The author was Chief of the educational subsection of GHQ in Tokyo and is now professor of comparative education at Teachers College, Columbia university. Bibliography in Acknowledgments. Index.

Reviewed by C. B. Fahs

Am Pol Sci R 43:1056 O '49 600w

"This is a thought-provoking book. In many respects, however, the author's judgments seem too sweeping. Few who have wrestled with the Japanese writing system will rush to its defense, but it need not be made the source of all Japan's ills." M. B. Jansen

Christian Science Monitor p20 My 28 '49 750w

Nation 169:190 Ag 20 '49 80w

"Reflects tremendous research. It sheds welcome new light on a corner of the Japanese mentality that previously has remained in the shadows. The book's greatest value may well be to those who already know Japan well; it will give a considerable jolt to men who believe Nippon should find its own solutions." Stuart Lillico

+ N Y Times p34 Je 19 '49 850w

" 'Education for a New Japan' is essentially an academic work, but it is a vastly important study and a most valuable and necessary book for all who are concerned with our attempts to build a new Japan, democratic, and friendly to democratic countries and democratic institutions." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Je 26 '49 340w

School & Society 69:375 My 21 '49 70w

HALL, ROBERT KING. Shūshin; the ethics of a defeated nation. 244p $3.75 Teachers college

170.952 Ethics, Japanese 49-10209

" 'Shushin,' or ethics, was a course taught two hours per week in prewar Japanese elementary schools. The textbooks were compiled by the Ministry of Education, and emphasized the virtues of service to the state and loyalty to the throne. . . Professor Hall has translated all six textbooks of this course, and has added to them a 70-page interpretative introduction and a short but interesting epilogue comparing the situation in postsurrender Japan with that during the latter half of the nineteenth century." Christian Science Monitor

---

Reviewed by Takashi Oka

Christian Science Monitor p18 O 6 '49 450w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 25 '49 600w

School & Society 70:78 Jl 30 '49 90w

HALLIDAY, BRETT, pseud. See Dresser, D.

HALSMAN, PHILIPPE. The Frenchman; a photographic interview [with Fernandel]. [24p] pl pa $1 Simon & Schuster

B or 92 Contandin, Fernand 49-11363

"Photographs of the French comedian Fernandel, taken as he answered in pantomime questions on art, finance, international and private relations, and other subjects usually covered in interviews with visiting character actors. Mr. Halsman, who thought up the questions and took the pictures, was rewarded with responses that range from happy surprise to complete frenzy, several of them masterpieces." New Yorker

---

"The unimaginably comical and ultra-human face of that great French actor, Fernandel, forms almost the sole substance of this little book, save for a brief foreword by the photographer, Philippe Halsman, who took its inspired sequence of twenty-four pictures. A simple enough idea, thus to have invented an interview which satirizes all shipboard-interviews with celebrities, but, as carried out, it irresistibly provokes small volcanic eruptions of laughter (not smiles, not titters, but loud sudden laughter), for page after page." Iris Barry

HALSMAN, PHILIPPE—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 23 '49 200w

New Yorker 25:136 N 5 '49 140w

"Philippe Halsman is to be congratulated for cooking up the idea of interviewing Fernandel with his camera." E. M. T.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 27 '49 150w

HAM, CLARENCE WALTER, and CRANE, EDWARD JAMESON. Mechanics of machinery. 3d ed 538p $5 McGraw

621.8 Machinery. Mechanics, Applied
48-7455

"College textbook on the application of mechanics to practical problems of machine design. Principal changes embrace new chapters on vibrations and critical speeds in shafts, the gyroscope, some additional material on flywheels and governors and many new problems." Library J

Booklist 45:106 N 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:130 Ja 15 '49 40w

HAMBLETON, JACK. Forest ranger; decorations by Thoreau Macdonald. 226p $2.50 Longmans

49-8653

"The Canadian northland comes alive in this career story of Young Bill Hanson during his first year as a ranger around Temagami and Algonquin Park in Ontario. Bill is ably assisted in his adventures by his Irish terrier Mickey and his friend Bun Higgins, a pilot with the Provincial Aid Service." N Y Times

"Recommended." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 74:896 Je 1 '49 70w

"Mr. Hambleton, an authority on the Canadian outdoors, has written a warmhearted story of the forestry service made up of men you'll like, set against a background of almost incredible beauty. For teen-agers." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p28 Je 5 '49 150w

HAMBOURG, DARIA. Richard Doyle; his life and work. (English masters of black-and-white ser) 96p il $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

741.91 Doyle, Richard. Drawings
[48-20179]

A brief sketch of the life and work of the Victorian cartoonist, Richard Doyle, whose design for the cover of Punch, done in 1849 still appears on that periodical. The book includes many samples of his work. Bibliography.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 74:199 F 1 '49 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 26 '48 110w

New Yorker 24:94 F 19 '49 40w

Reviewed by Osbert Lancaster
Spec 180:532 Ap 30 '48 130w

"Dicky Doyle has the distinction of having a drawing still in weekly use as the cover of Punch. His life was shorter and his output smaller than those of Cruikshank or Tenniel. Much of that output is delightful and still very amusing. Some of the Brown, Jones and Robinson drawings have a topical quality except that we in our grimmer age find it more difficult to laugh at such matters."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Ap 10 '48 420w

HAMBURGER, PHILIP. Oblong blur, and other odysseys. 304p $3 Farrar, Straus

818
49-7884

Profiles of people in the news and sketches about situations of interest to New Yorkers, selected, with two exceptions, from the author's articles in The New Yorker. The sketches of Mary Margaret McBride and Judge Learned Hand first appeared in Life.

Booklist 45:238 Mr 15 '49

"Mr. Hamburger approaches his subjects with curiosity, wit, a quick eye, a cool head, and a tolerant familiarity with their frailities. The writing is good, tangible reporting. Sometimes there is excellent selection of detail. The prose comes alive and often it flashes. . . The profile of Norman Corwin is one of the most original and unusual pieces of biographical description this reviewer has encountered." DeWitt John

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 28 '49 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

Kirkus 16:654 D 15 '48 130w

"A shorter book would have been a better book, but a surprising number of the pieces are worth rereading, especially the parody of Norman Corwin that gives the book its title, and Winds off the Pampas, a report on Argentina."

+ Nation 168:424 Ap 9 '49 110w

"[The author] has turned out to be an excellent reporter, a shrewd observer and thoroughly adept at the casual, sensitive and highly effective style which seems to be the distinguishing characteristic of the better modern practitioners. . . When he allows himself a little more elbow room, as in the strikingly good first chapter, the account of an evening spent with Mayor O'Dwyer of New York, Mr. Hamburger proves to be a highly competent and amusing workman. His study of that ghastly American spectacle, the radio broadcasts of a couple at breakfast, is an example of how he can be devastating without being too obviously brutal." Stanley Walker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 13 '49 500w

"For once the book-jacket blurb does not exaggerate when it hails Hamburger as a 'balanced writer' who is both 'a humorist with great comic resources and a serious journalist with a magnificent feeling for facts.' " Joe McCarthy

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 3 '49 470w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 15 '49 190w

"This chap can really write. Never know what he's going to do next." Hollis Alpert

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ap 9 '49 850w

HAMILTON, ALEXANDER, 1712-1756. Gentleman's progress [his] itinerarium, 1744; ed. with an introd. by Carl Bridenbaugh; pub. for the Inst. of early Am. hist. and culture, at Williamsburg, Virginia. 267p il $4 Univ. of N.C. press

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel 48-28157

In 1744 Dr Alexander Hamilton, a Scottish-born physician, then living in Maryland, took a horseback trip for the benefit of his health. He went as far north as York, Maine, and as far west as Schenectady. In all he traveled four months and covered 1600 miles. This is the journal of his trip, containing his observations on the people of the colonies he passed thru, their habits, speech, and customs. Except for a collectors' limited edition in 1907, the journal has not been published before. Index.

"The editorial work is excellent. The Institute of Early American History is to be congratulated upon the publication of another fine contribution to the history of the British colonies in America." Max Savelle

+ Am Hist R 55:224 O '49 480w

"Dr. Bridenbaugh, editor and author of the introduction in this new edition . . . says of young Hamilton's travel-book that it is one of the happiest combinations of liveliness, wit, and instructive information written in colonial America." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p22 Ja 3 '49 260w

"The Hart edition of this characteristic 'Itinerarium' has for years been both scarce and expensive; the present edition performs a useful service. . . From a scholarly point of view it is less a contribution than might have been anticipated. Though the notes are voluminous and interesting, they refer usually to secondary source materials . . . and while it is one thing, in an edition intended for the enjoyment of the general reader, to modernize paragraphing, punctuation and capitalization of the text, it is another to misquote one manuscript letter and misdate another. . . But this is inconsequential criticism, 'and,' as Doctor Hamilton says in another connection, 'what none but rank pedants will be guilty of.' Doctor Bridenbaugh's introduction is excellent on the whole." E. H. Smith

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 16 '49 950w

"This book is a delightful and authentic slice of mid-eighteenth century life, frankly and plainly told by its conversation-loving author. Without benefit of literary form or studious vision, this diary of a mediocre colonial doctor, a Scotsman with a somewhat broad sense of humor, conducts the reader into a world of two centuries ago with the ease of a visitor who has come to take us unquestioningly by the hand to his own lands and daily living." Adrienne Koch

+ N Y Times p12 F 20 '49 400w

New Yorker 24:78 Ja 8 '49 120w

"This travel journal, while not as humorous and lively as the earlier and shorter book by Madame Knight, is decidedly more informative, and its rescue from complete obscurity by the Williamsburg Institute is a happy achievement." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 32:40 Ap 16 '49 700w

"One of the most candid and engaging travel diaries to come down from a colonial American. It is casual to the point of slightness, a bit snobbish and of little historical importance. But it brings the speech of the time and the look of town and country to the reader in a way historians rarely do."

+ Time 53:92 Ja 10 '49 650w

"This journal merits wide popularity in a nation increasingly concerned with its first-hand accounts of its own past."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:44 Mr '49 340w

HAMILTON, EDITH. Spokesmen for God; the great teachers of the Old Testament. 259p $3 Norton

224 Bible. Old Testament — Prophetical books. Prophets 49-11919

"Miss Hamilton interprets the Old Testament according to her own spiritual understanding of this difficult part of the Scripture. She is vigorous and without sanctimonious presumption. This is a new edition of Prophets of Israel [Book Review Digest 1936], the added material being commentary on the first five books of the Old Testament." Library J

Booklist 46:174 Ja 15 '50

"The whole western world knows the stories, poems and sermons of the Old Testament. It is one thing to be able to retell these stories and quite another thing to understand them. In this book, Edith Hamilton helps us to understand the fundamental meaning of this Old Testament literature." C. Seidenspinner

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 25 '49 350w

"Here is a work of sheer delight. The pure, flutelike beauty of Edith Hamilton's writing falls on the ear with a grace we encounter with wonder in our raucous and overwrought age. It is a grace of the spirit, not merely of style—though surely there is no more flawless prose being written today. Here is a writer who from a lifetime of classical scholarship has brought the simplicity of a child. She wears the burden of learning lightly and gladly. With superb economy of words and clarity of phrase she brings the significant past to the very threshold of our hearts and minds and invites us to accept our heritage." Robert Peel

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 17 '49 1200w

"So many readers have been impressed with Miss Hamilton's Greek Way (1930), Roman Way (1932) and Witnesses For the Truth (1948) that they will welcome one more volume for the beauty of her significant prose." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:1820 D 1 '49 100w

"These chapters on the prophets were published previously in 1936, as 'The Prophets of Israel.' They are gems of scholastic meditation, a distillation of Miss Hamilton's long life as a teacher, scholar, and intellectual. Placed now between essays on the earlier books of the Old Testament and some chapters of brilliant summary, they shine even more brightly. The book as a whole presents a mature, objective, considered interpretation of the Jewish story as it is told in the Bible; Miss Hamilton has caught the essence of the tale—a search for God carried on without pride or self-pity, and without compromise." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 1 '50 850w

"The magnificence of the Prophets and of the Bible (or the King James version of the Bible) breathes through the chapters which Miss Hamilton composed with intensity and a religious fervor. It is, insistently, a work of intuition, about intuition. She leaps over the orthodoxy of Jew and Christian in order to reach directly the inspired moral insights of the Prophets and their mystical facts of the nature of God." Philip Burnham

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by W. L. Sperry

Sat R of Lit 33:20 Ja 21 '50 800w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 300w

HAMILTON, HARRY. Thunder in the wilderness. 304p $3 Bobbs

49-7492

Historical novel of Frenchmen and Indians in the Mississippi valley in the 1760's. The chief character is Michel, the son of an Indian woman and Paul Duclos, wealthy French trader.

"Hamilton, in this as in his other books, spins a fine yarn. His technique is professional, his style restrained, the plot plausible, the characters colorful. It is romantic, genteel fiction, written for the reader's entertainment, guaranteed not to shock or disturb." Harold Lancour

Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 100w

" 'Thunder in the Wilderness' is colorful and dramatic, and among its minor virtues is the absence of heavy guttural—or wooden Indian—speech."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Mr 20 '49 200w

"Mr. Hamilton likes to work in primary colors: his villains have no virtues, his heroes no flaws. Life could not have been so simple even in those days." Arthur Leonard

N Y Times p22 F 20 '49 190w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:30 Mr 26 '49 110w

HAMMERSTEIN, OSCAR. Lyrics [pref. by Richard Rodgers]. 215p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

782.8 49-50316

A collection of Hammerstein lyrics with a section, by the author, on the writing of lyrics. Among the musical shows represented in the verses are Oklahoma, Carousel, Allegro, South Pacific, Show Boat, Music in the Air, and Carmen Jones.

Booklist 46:153 Ja 1 '50

HAMMERSTEIN, OSCAR—Continued

"Hammerstein's notes on his lyrics, on how he came to write them, on the composer-author-collaboration, on the particular shows they worked up together, on the mechanics of lyric writing, are light and engaging in tone, and hold some value for the prospective lyric writer. Notwithstanding, the market seems a little thin."

Kirkus 17:573 O 1 '49 110w

"Probably no one other than Richard Rodgers could provide an introduction to this selective anthology with more understanding or felicity. . . A collection of lyrics is unusual and all the more to be commended. Highly recommended for theatre and music collections regardless of the size of the libraries involved." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:108 Ja 15 '50 80w

"It may be said at once that they all look fine in print as lyrics, partly, I am certain, because the tunes go on in one's head as one reads them. But some of them are good light verse independent of the music; some veer over to at least the more sentimental fringe of poetry—but genuine sentiment, not mere sentimentality. . . Some of the most famous of the lyrics do not do as well all by their worded selves. Mr. Hammerstein seems very fond of 'When I Grow Too Old to Dream,' but, apart from its setting, it reads rather banally on the page. . . No, this is not an addition to poetry, not even to light verse, but it is a fine collection of the best theater lyrics in our generation and a contribution in Mr. Hammerstein's long introductory essay, if he 'will excuse the expression I use' to the esthetics of the marriage of words and music." Irwin Edman

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 11 '49 900w

"A pleasant adventure in nostalgia." F. P. Adams

+ N Y Times p7 D 18 '49 400w

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH (HAMMOND INNES, pseud). Blue ice. 245p $2.50 Harper 49-10191

"A fast moving story of a wild double-barrelled chase, by yacht and over hazardous snow-clad Norwegian mountains (authentically described), after a fugitive from justice who possesses the secret of the location of immense mineral deposits." Library J

Booklist 46:34 S 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun S 29 '49 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"For the market, predominantly masculine, as before, this is assured and accomplished adventure."

+ Kirkus 17:282 Je 1 '49 170w

"A typical Innes thriller, packed with suspense, mystery, horror, murder and surprises, the tension increasing as representatives of rival concerns clash on every page. Provided the reader is not too critical, guaranteed to keep him on the edge of his chair until the climax is reached." R. W. Henderson

+ — Library J 74:1024 Jl '49 100w

"Aside from its merits as sheer narrative, 'The Blue Ice' discloses the deep scars left by the Nazi invaders on the people of Norway. Those who resisted and those who were either terrorized or bribed into collaboration are still separated by mistrust. And incidentally Mr. Innes does a graphic descriptive job on a whaling station." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p52 S 25 '49 170w

"'The Blue Ice' is, unquestionably, the goods. The plot this time is the simplest kind of chase-motif. . . But the plot is merely a just-strong-enough thread to hold together a series of descriptions . . . as breathtaking as anything you'll find in contemporary adventure literature, fact or fiction. There are still purely novelistic flaws, such as an intrusive love story and a character whose dialect switches on and off from page to page; but the background offers you vicarious experiences as magnificent as anything you'll find this season." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p21 Ag 14 '49 270w

"The whole business culminates overviolently, and without too much regard for probability, but these drawbacks are fairly well concealed by the author's skillful technique."

New Yorker 25:68 Ag 27 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p33 O 16 '49 40w

"Excellent in every department."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:41 S 24 '49 40w

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH (HAMMOND INNES, pseud). Killer mine. 246p $2.50 Harper 49-7471

"A deserter, miner, is smuggled back to England at a price: to blast underwater passage into worked-out Cornish mine, in order to facilitate liquor-running. He is thwarted by mad owner after terrifying episodes." Library J

Booklist 45:242 Mr 15 '49

"The most artful and hair-raising of Hammond Innes' novels that I know." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun F 4 '49 150w

"With none of the especial superiority of last year's Gale Warning, this is still a competently, substantially plotted story of high adventure, with the atmospheric assists of the forbidding, isolated Cornwall mining country."

+ Kirkus 16:628 D 1 '48 130w

"A can't-lay-it-down 'thriller.'" R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 6 '49 70w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p21 F 20 '49 140w

"A thin thread of detection, having to do with a long-past murder, is inserted in the plot, probably for the benefit of those who cling to the mystery conventions, but for the most part the story is aimed—and rather successfully, too—at admirers of the grim and atmospheric."

+ New Yorker 24:96 F 19 '49 110w

Sat R of Lit 32:33 Mr 5 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

HAMON, MARCEL. Nightfall at noon; tr. from the French by Samuel Putnam. 234p $2.50 Ziff-Davis

Jesus Christ—Fiction 49-10456

A novel picturing conditions in Palestine during the days climaxed by the crucifixion of "the rabbi of Nazareth." The tale is told as the experiences of a young Jew who had returned to Jerusalem from Rome and as a servant of the high priest was among those in the Garden when Jesus was taken prisoner.

Kirkus 17:337 Jl 1 '49 160w

"Writing with authenticity, beauty, and reverence, the author is particularly successful with details of sight, sound and smell in creating the atmosphere of ignorance, longing, tyranny and filth in which Palestinian masses existed. With Jesus himself 'off stage' more often than on, the mystery surrounding him is fittingly climaxed by the weird solar eclipse at the time of his death. Recommended." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 130w

"The novel bears evidences of careful scholarship in its portrayal of places, events and many persons known to history; its emotion and reverence will add to its appeal to those who read it with faith." David Tilden

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 S 11 '49 500w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p37 S 11 '49 230w

HANCOCK, RALPH. Fabulous boulevard. 322p $3.50 Funk

979.494 Los Angeles—Streets—Wilshire boulevard 49-5225

"Wilshire Boulevard is six auto lanes wide and sixteen miles long, and runs from downtown Los Angeles through Beverly Hills to the sea at Santa Monica. Although not legally born until 1895 (and still comprising more vacant lots than occupied ones), it now embraces in its four hundred blocks some of the world's most valuable real estate, a remarkable gamut of human activities—and, in its development, a microcosmic history not only of Los Angeles but of California and the West." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 46:1; 11 S 1 '49

Bookmark 9:27 N '49 30w

"This ought to be informative, and will certainly be amusing reading for the more inquisitive among the millions who have migrated to southern California so recently that they don't really know where they are." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:1425 N 30 '49 430w

"I have little but compliments for this former newspaperman, foreign correspondent, airways director of publicity and author. Fabulous Boulevard is not written in the careful historical manner that marked Robert Glass Cleland's splendid histories of California (From Wilderness to Empire and California in Our Time), but behind the fluid exclamatory sentences there is evidence of long and laborious research." H. W. Flannery

+ Commonweal 51:130 N 4 '49 650w

Kirkus 17:354 Jl 1 '49 160w

"Aside from its worth as pure entertainment, the principal value of the book is that it does provide a guide to an understanding of this strange city which, although admittedly different, is not nearly as crazy as it appears to be. . . Mr. Hancock has written, in short, a most welcome antidote to the national fable that Los Angeles is the idiot in the family of American cities." Carey McWilliams

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p64 S 25 '49 550w

"While a street is an inanimate object, and thereby a relatively unpromising book subject, Mr. Hancock—hitherto a specialist in Latin-American travelogues—has brought Wilshire Boulevard to life. And he has woven about it a fabric of history and reportage that stands out in the freshet of Californiana accompanying the centennial celebration." Gladwin Hill

+ N Y Times p24 O 2 '49 330w

"In spite of all this talk about culture, the author all but ignores Wilshire's one great contribution to culture and the arts: its architecture. . . Maybe it is too much to expect. This book doesn't pretend to be a serious study. It is a publicist's job, slick, colorful and amusing. But, Wilshire is a phenomenon far more significant than Mr. Hancock indicates, and maybe some future author will tackle it with the thoroughness it deserves." Harold Gilliam

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 9 '49 950w

Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 240w

HANDLIN, OSCAR, ed. This was America. 602p il maps $6 Harvard univ. press

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel. U.S.—Social life and customs 49-7940

"This book contains true accounts of people, places, manners, and customs, as recorded by Europeans, travelers to the Western shore in the 18th, 19th, and 20th centuries. Here is America as seen through the perspicacious eyes of Europeans who have loved and hated it." School & Society

---

"Other compilers probably would have made other selections, or would have reprinted other passages from the materials chosen by Dr. Handlin. But the material is both interesting and significant, and the brief introductory comments about each author and the several periods of American history from which the selections are drawn will prove helpful, especially for the so-called 'general reader.' " Carl Wittke

+ Ann Am Acad 263:239 My '49 400w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 183:90 My '49 550w

Booklist 45:293 My 1 '49

Reviewed by Francis Russell

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '49 750w

Reviewed by John Cournos

Commonweal 50:180 My 27 '49 900w

Current Hist 16:231 Ap '49 70w

Kirkus 17:81 F 1 '49 270w

"Similar compilations have been published but in none has the editor searched so consciously for material revealing the character of Americans and the distinctive and original elements of their society. This is not a source book but is designed for the general reader. Texts have been freely edited with introductory remarks and no textual notes (and no corrections to the factual errors made by some of the misinformed travelers)." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 74:492 Mr 15 '49 130w

Nation 168:620 My 28 '49 70w

"Among the growing number of anthologies of foreign observers' reports on the United States, Mr. Handlin's volume is notable for originality in choice of materials and carefulness in planning." Richard Hofstadter

+ New Eng Q 22:413 S '49 650w

"A major merit of this collection is its freshness and its scope. It will prove an invaluable supplement to the well-known accounts of America by Britishers, and it is fascinating in itself." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 15 '49 1050w

"This reader felt, after laying down the book that he had been watching, from a good seat in a theatre, a sequence of adroitly chosen and vividly presented moving pictures, tracing the development of the United States through some of the most significant eras in its history." T. R. Ybarra

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 24 '49 1000w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 15 '49 600w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins

Sat R of Lit 32:18 Jl 9 '49 1200w

School & Society 69:182 Mr 5 '49 50w

Survey 85:394 Jl '49 220w

HANDY, WILLIAM CHRISTOPHER, ed. Treasury of the blues. 258p $5 Boni; for sale by Simon & Schuster

784 Jazz music 49-50282

"Complete words and music of 67 great songs from Memphis blues to the present day; with an historical and critical text by Abbe Niles; with pictures by Miguel Covarrubias." (Subtitle) The first edition Blues, appeared in 1926. [Book Review Digest 1926]. Bibliography. Index.

"In this superb collection of blues and blues songs, many of them his own, Handy has given us an invaluable documentary and a most entertaining volume for those who can play. Fully scored, the 67 great songs are there for the parlor group or the serious student. Abbe Niles has written a thoughtful and discerning historical and critical text." Will Davidson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 11 '49 220w

"A gorgeous, readable, singable book. And, of course, the Covarrubias pictures are out of this world! Out of this world, but definitely a part of the world of Blues and Jazz and all the other uninhibited expressions of essential truth in the character and habits of that strange and rather baffling person we call the typical American." Sigmund Spaeth

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 11 '49 800w

HANFORD, JAMES HOLLY. John Milton, Englishman. 272p il $3.75 Crown

B or 92 Milton, John 49-11254

A biography of the English poet by an American scholar. Index.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun N 28 '49 260w

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 27 '49 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

"It remains difficult to see just what reader Professor Hanford had in mind in designing his book. Despite his clarity of exposition, many will find the historical and social background sketched in somewhat too lightly to follow with comfort Milton's stormy path against it. On the other hand, students of the period (who will find in the book little that is new) will deplore the absence of notes and references to sources which, no doubt, Professor Hanford has judged it best to omit in the interests of the general reader." Alban Baer
Commonweal 51:298 D 16 '49 650w

"It is both critical and interpretative and its careful research, not only in the known facts, but in the evidence implicit in Milton's writing, will offer interesting material for serious students of the poet, while dignity of the style will commend it to the attentive scholar."
+ Kirkus 17:598 O 15 '49 100w

"Hanford is not unimaginative, he is not unaware of what modern psychologists would make of Milton, but he uses these elements sparingly in his book. . . Result is a valuable study, with no fictional elements, yet making us feel much better acquainted with Milton as a man and as a poet. Recommended." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 30 '49 1500w

"Professor Hanford's 'Milton Handbook' has informed generations of students, who for many years have been awaiting his critical biography of the poet. Like Rusk's 'Emerson,' Professor Hanford's 'John Milton, Englishman,' represents a lifetime's devotion. It is more compendious and far more acute than Masson's famous biography. In Professor Hanford's book the complexities of Milton's career, thoroughly under control, form a readable narrative, easy and direct." W. Y. Tindall
+ N Y Times p6 O 23 '49 750w

"A penetrating and revealing biographical portrait." William Haller
+ Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 19 '49 850w

HANKE, LEWIS ULYSSES. Spanish struggle for justice in the conquest of America. 217p il maps $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

970.5 Spain—Colonies. Indians, Treatment of. Latin America—History 49-3817

"Since the turn of the present century a revision of traditional concepts concerning Spain in America has been under way. . . Conspicuous among the present generation of scholars engaged in this historical re-evaluation is the author of the work under review who, during the past two decades, has produced a significant series of monographs, documentary studies, and articles dealing with the social, legal, and philosophic aspects of the sixteenth century conquest of America by the Spaniards. This latest contribution . . . is in the nature of a synthesis or, perhaps, a distillation of his researches and delvings in Spanish and Spanish American repositories." Am Hist R

"Stimulating study. . . All students of the history of the westward expansion of Europe —not merely those interested in Spain—should ponder upon these statements and acquaint themselves with the convincing demonstration of them set forth in this admirably documented and eminently readable book." I. A. Leonard
+ Am Hist R 55:172 O '49 1050w

Booklist 46:11 S 1 '49

HANLIN, TOM. Miracle at Cardenrigg. 244p $2.75 Random house

49-4827

Story of a near-disaster in a Scottish coal mine. Two hundred men trapped below are told by a young girl above that their lives will be saved tho not by the means any one expects. Tho one man attempts self-sacrifice to save them it is the girl's faith which proves to be the "miracle."

Booklist 46:34 S 15 '49

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Chicago Sun Ag 31 '49 450w

"In spite of its rather tedious, sluggish and unconvincing religious overtones, this novel . . . has a considerable physical impact. Taken on a level of adventure, Hanlin has done a top-drawer job in activating his plot and characters, in sustaining suspense. However, on the religious level, which concerns other-worldly Ria Kennedy, the author has watered down the Joan of Arc theme."
+ — Kirkus 17:256 My 15 '49 180w

"Written with deep sympathy and understanding, fine characterization and a high sense of drama. Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:892 Je 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by Michael Swan
New Statesman & Nation 38:308 S 17 '49 420w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 28 '49 460w

"An extremely interesting attempt to blend two traditions, or perhaps one should say, to apply the technique of the realistic novel to religious fiction. . . Readers will differ in their evaluation of Hanlin's climax, since the evaluation will depend on personal convictions. Yet whether or not one believes in miracles, one must give Hanlin credit for avoiding the sweetly nauseating sentimentality of Hollywood. . . He has written a good novel on what, for our day, is certainly a difficult subject." Charles Weir
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 28 '49 470w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 9 '49 300w

"It is to the credit of the author's artistry that he makes it all sound plausible and succeeds in making the reader share a faith that is out of tune with our age. Yet when the miracle actually occurs there is nothing unnatural about it, though Ria is called upon to pay the ultimate sacrifice, in harmony with the accepted symbolism of the Christian faith." John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ag 27 '49 650w

"The trapped men are saved, as the reader has known from the beginning that the plot requires them to be. This foreknowledge robs the narrative of a good deal of the suspense on which it depends; it says much for Mr. Hanlin's ability that it does not by any means rob it of all. His concentration on the action, however, prevents him from developing fully an interesting, if not wholly convincing, sketch of what his readers are asked to accept as the apotheosis of a saint."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p469 Jl 22 '49 270w

HANNA, KATHRYN TRIMMER (ABBEY) (MRS ALFRED JACKSON HANNA). Florida, land of change. 2d ed rev & enl 455p il maps $4.50 Univ. of N.C. press

975.9 Florida—History 48-9796

"A single-volume history of Florida that is less concerned with state politics and local development than with Florida's share in the nation's history and its heritage from three colonial empires. First published in 1941 [Book Review Digest 1941 under Abbey] and now brought up to date." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

"The revision of this book has consisted for the most part of elaborating the recent history of Florida and thereby bringing the end of the story nearer the present. Certain inaccuracies noted by reviewers of the old edition (1941) have been corrected, and there are others which might well have been removed. . . These inaccuracies, however, are of very minuscule importance, to be noticed only by a reviewer and detracting not at all from the general scholarship and trustworthiness of the book." R. S. Cotterill

+ — Am Hist R 55:158 O '49 600w

Booklist 45:316 My 15 '49

"An excellent popular history of a state which has an immensely romantic remote past and a present which now seems extremely raw but will no doubt in its time turn out to have other aspects of romance when it is remembered in some later century. Mrs. Hanna, in dealing with the Florida of our day, sees it in its national relationships, not in any sectional isolation."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Mr 13 '49 80w

HANSEN, ALVIN HARVEY. Monetary theory and fiscal policy. 236p $3 McGraw

332.4 Money. Finance 49-8130

"The purpose of this book is to supplement current standard texts on the subject and to supply a brief but intensive treatise on modern monetary theory. Although this volume is primarily theoretical, it contains considerable historical material, which illustrates trends and developments with respect to money supply, national income, public debt, and the role of the central banking system in the creation and control of money. Among the special features of this book is the comprehensive coverage of the role which Keynesian economics plays in modern monetary theory." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by K. E. Poole

Am Econ R 39:1014 S '49 1950w

"This third volume in the 'Economics Handbook Series' represents Professor Hansen's most comprehensive and profound thinking and rethinking since Fiscal Policy and Business Cycles. It is the most authoritative single presentation to date of Keynesian economics in transition and in process of assimilating nutritive elements of pre-Keynesian thought which have been left undigested." M. Bronfenbrenner

+ Ann Am Acad 264:173 Jl '49 650w

HANSEN, HOWARD JAMES. Modern timber design. 2d ed 312p il $4.50 Wiley

694 Timber. Building. Strains and stresses 48-6103

"This college textbook has also proved useful to practicing engineers concerned with the design of wooden structures. It has been revised so as to conform with the National Lumber Manufacturers Association's National Design Specification for Stress Grade Lumber and Its Fastenings (1944). Most chapters show some alterations, but the most extensively revised are the third and fifth; two—those on mechanical properties, and on mechanics—are new." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1943.

Booklist 45:106 N 15 '48

N Y New Tech Bks 33:3 Ja '48

HANSON, EARL PARKER. New worlds emerging. 385p $3.50 Duell

910 Discoveries (in geography). Geography. World politics 49-9036

"The author for 25 years was called an explorer. During those years he worked intermittently in the tropics and the sub-Arctic, in deserts, mountains, tundras, and jungles, as an engineer, geographer, geophysicist, economist, and government planner. He thus became aware of changes taking place, of world-wide striving for growth and material well-being. From his findings he has written this [book]." (School & Society) Index.

Booklist 45:311 My 15 '49

"Completely unorthodox in his approach to geography is the author of 'New Worlds Emerging,' whose book contains not even one footnote by past generations of worthy men to bolster his arguments. He depends almost entirely on what he has found out himself." H. B. Nichols

Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 30 '49 600w

"In many ways Hanson's book closely resembles Vogt's Road to Survival. Because Vogt brought to a wide public the seriousness of the scourge of soil erosion which threatens to extinguish mankind, he may perhaps be forgiven his lack of accuracy, his sacrifice of truth to the telling phrase, and his journalistic language. Hanson has these same faults: the serious reader will find himself questioning the accuracy of so many statements that he will make a mental reservation against all. Unhappily the author makes it difficult to check his statements and quotations. . . There is now sound evidence from many sources, experimental and observational, that the physiological effects of climates formerly regarded as 'unhealthy' are not unfavorable to human development. . . But it is surely destroying a good case to pretend that such scourges as yellow fever, malaria, and, presumably, typhus are merely the results of malnutrition. . . The great fear is that Hanson's new worlds may emerge before Vogt's road to survival has been followed." L. D. Stamp

Geog R 39:683 O '49 600w

"An intelligent view of world problems, aware of the cultural needs as well as the economic, and well worth world-thinking reading."

+ Kirkus 17:99 F 15 '49 120w

"A stimulating book. . . Highly recommended for all libraries." Joseph Borome

+ Library J 74:492 Mr 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by H. P. Emerson

Nation 168:564 My 14 '49 1150w

"This is an exciting book, and it would be pleasant to believe that Mr. Hanson had demolished Mr. Osborn and Mr. Vogt. Its rebuttal—or confirmation—must come from scientists who know about sun and rain and soil, know how the scourges which attack man and plant can be bested. This reviewer finds himself in skeptical mood. . . There seems to be room, as Mr. Hanson argues. Room, but how much? And for whom, and for how many? Mr. Hanson urges more and better exploration. That argument, at least, carries conviction." Hubert Herring

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 8 '49 1450w

"Mr. Hanson is fairly bursting with ideas, most of which would have been called farfetched only twenty years ago. Yet with the proposed Dominion of Capricorn Africa taking shape in the center of the continent, a Jordan Valley Authority on the drawing boards, and a plan for the development of the Amazon basin under serious consideration, who can question his ebullience or imagination?" John Barkham

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 24 '49 300w

Reviewed by W. A. Hance

Pol Sci Q 64:465 S '49 900w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 10 '49 350w

"Mr. Hanson takes another swing at classical geography and the prophets of doom in this latest book and, though professional pessimism about the future of the human race seems again to be fashionable, he is apt to find many sympathetic readers. Hanson has written what everyone wants to hear—that a rosy future lies ahead. . . The reviewer shares Hanson's optimism, but he believes his thesis would have been better served had he hampered himself with more facts, and if he had freely recognized that social evolution has steadily forced more humane and liberal attitudes upon capitalism and governments alike." H. A. Meyerhoff

Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ag 27 '49 750w

"Most interesting textbook."

+ School & Society 69:287 Ap 16 '49 70w

Wis Lib Bul 45:105 Je '49

HANSON, LAWRENCE. Shining morning face; the childhood of Lance. 256p $3.75 Macmillan

B or 92 [49-7818]

Written in the third person and in somewhat fictionized form, this is the story of the author's boyhood, and particularly the period, just before he was nine years old, which ended in his going away to school.

"Lawrence Hanson, as befits the biographer of Coleridge, tells the story of his early years with many felicitous touches. The novelist's fit is, however, upon him . . . the tone of the book is that of fiction yet no novel-reader could reasonably complain if he read it through without suspecting that it was no more than the truth; for it is a solid, satisfying piece of work." P. H. Newby

+ New Statesman & Nation 37:386 Ap 16 '49 180w

"'Shining Morning Face' leaves one with a definite conviction that if children wish to settle old scores with their parents, it is less uncomfortable all around to have it done under the tactful guise of fiction." Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 32:33 Je 11 '49 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p134 F 26 '49 650w

HANSON, PAULINE. Forever young. ltd ed [29p] $1.50 Swallow, A.

811 48-10992

"Sixty-four quatrains dealing with love-in-death and death-in-love: love for whom (or what) unspecified—no names, no dates, no contours, no particulars." Sat R of Lit

"The chastity of Miss Hanson's method will allow no spilling over of the extra-poetic into the poetic. What we have is a clean, poetic realization in tension with what it cost to get it there. . . But Miss Hanson refuses any trapping or false atmosphere. She takes nakedness itself for a drama—a drama of refusal—and formalizes her story into a kind of intellectual ordeal. . . Sometimes her calculated austerity holds her vocabulary to unfair limits. . . But most of the time, The Forever Young is that miracle, the combination of purity and toughness—and I count it among the distinguished books of the year." Henry Rago

+ — Commonweal 50:72 Ap 29 '49 330w

"Miss Hanson is not only willing to write literally; she employs her important words (and they are, after all, important words for all of us) again and again. Indeed, I cannot remember reading poetry in which the familiar device of repetition appears as prominently and as frequently as it does in this book. . . It is clear that this poet walks a precarious tight-wire. The line between deft repetition and the deadly tautology is as narrow as that between admirable economy and fatal poverty. Furthermore, in a looser and longer verse form or in language which is frankly figurative, ambiguity—real or imagined—is seldom a definitive bar to poetic effectiveness; more often than not it is a challenge and, in the totality of things, a delight. But the tightly contrived quatrains of this book call for understanding; in such a context it is virtually impossible to distinguish between the ambiguous and the unintelligible." Ned Rosenheim

+ — Poetry 74:357 S '49 800w

"Written starkly by a real poet." T. H. Ferril

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 13 '49 20w

"The quatrains themselves are harsh in diction and ungrateful to the ear; but this I take to be calculated, as though the poet were trying to strip her lines of all ornament, of all affective appeal, in order to contemplate better the substance of her poem. Unhappily, the result is not so stripped and bare as it is dehydrated, and matters are not helped by the periodic intrusion—it is a trick of style—of the chintz-turbaned, antiseptic ghost of the late O. Khayyám." Dudley Fitts

— + Sat R of Lit 32:40 Mr 19 '49 180w

HARDEN, JOHN WILLIAM. Devil's tramping ground, and other North Carolina mystery stories; with drawings by Mary Lindsay McAlister. 178p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

975.6 North Carolina—History 49-4259

A collection of mystery stories of North Carolina, ranging from the Lost Colony to the 1944 story of the missing Major Robert Clark. The stories were first collected for the author's radio program "Tales of Tar Heelia."

"The book is to be recommended primarily to North Carolinians, especially those exiled to infidel parts, who will find in it an even score of those minglings of fact and fancy that constitute the legendry of the state." G. W. Johnson

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Je 19 '49 330w

"The volume will be of greatest value to the devotees of Charles Fort, who will find a detailed account of the Brown Mountain lights which Fort mentions so briefly and the absorbing problem of the hoof-marks at Bath—an apparently well-authenticated, non-natural phenomenon as good as anything Fort ever found. Unfortunately, in the telling of these wondrous tales Mr. Harden seems to scorn documentation and bibliography, style and imagination; but the stories are good enough, if your taste runs to the bizarre." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p21 Ag 14 '49 200w

"This is an engaging little collection of unsolved (and occasionally of solved) puzzles. . . Some of them are of more than local fame—the vanishing of Theodosia Burr, for instance, and the identity of the mysterious schoolmaster of Rowan County (was he really Marshal Ney?)—but the others are equally good reading, perhaps even better reading for being unfamiliar to the outlander." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 Je 18 '49 240w

HARDING, MRS BERTITA (LEONARZ). The land Columbus loved; the Dominican Republic. 246p $3.75 Coward-McCann

917.293 Dominican Republic 49-48425

A brief history of the Dominican Republic, with a study of its geography, and information on hotels, foods, etc. which will interest travellers. No index.

"It seems almost unnecessary to observe that Bertita Harding commands an attractive style. Her ability as a writer is well known. If, however, the reader demands strict accuracy as well as a flowing narrative, he cannot fail to be somewhat disappointed." J. F. Rippy

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 20 '49 500w

Kirkus 17:496 S 1 '49 130w

"Sections on the social and cultural activities of the people and their national economy are absorbing. Some, however will question the last chapter—a defense of President Trujillo which makes him seem to be a Cárdenas of the Caribbean." Joseph Borome

Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 100w

"This book really goes overboard when it tells us on one page that Trujillo 'persecutes no class, no race,' and on the next that the 'Dominicans of superior education and means, while ruefully recognizing the sacrifice of many democratic forms, agree that both their own class and the poor are far better off than if the unhampered ballot were in the hands of the vast majority, largely unlettered Negroes, who would chase political will-o'-the wisps over the precipice.' The proper concern of a book on the Dominican Republic, even one for nervous tourists, should not be to excuse, cover up and blandly ignore a repressive force that is hated from the biggest business man to the smallest cultivator." Selden Rodman

N Y Times p20 N 6 '49 600w

"During the last year a plethora of books, articles, and magazine advertisements have appeared, the intent of which is to whitewash the ruthless little dictator of the Dominican Republic. 'The Land Columbus Loved' is the latest to glorify the man who rose from convicted horse thief and forger to undisputed ruler of a rich island domain." Wenzell Brown

— Sat R of Lit 32:16 N 19 '49 700w

HARDING, MRS BERTITA (LEONARZ). Mosaic in the fountain. 320p $3 Lippincott

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-10804

Describes the author's childhood which was spent in several countries. She was born in Hungary, but was taken to Mexico at an early age. There she lived in Mexico City and then in Monterrey, until the time of the revolution and her father's arrest. Before she was ten she had crossed the Atlantic three times, and had learned Spanish, Magyar, French, German, and a little English.

Booklist 46:24; 62 S 15 '49; O 15 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 380w

"Mrs. Harding's style has not changed. She is always dramatic and good humored. These impressions of her varied childhood in the early 20th century will interest younger readers as well as the devoted readers she has collected—always a few new ones with every new title." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:1599 O 15 '49 100w

"'Mosaic in the Fountain' is a remarkable presentation of the development of a small girl into a personality. For Bertita Harding tells her story with great objectivity and humor." Lorine Pruette

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 23 '49 700w

"Mrs. Harding was an impressionable and imaginative child. Her reminiscences, ranging from rich Old World dishes and nightly musicals to convent school life and civil warfare, are intimate and perceptive. They bristle with absorbing detail and bright young ideas." Ransom Turner

+ N Y Times p22 O 23 '49 180w

"Mrs. Harding breaks off her story at [a] natural stopping place. Her publishers do not say whether she plans to go on with her recollections, but many readers will hope she does. Not many writers are able to recall their youth so completely, or to set it all down so engagingly when they do." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 3 '49 750w

"Although there are occasional examples of overwriting in her book, Miss Harding's detailed account of the siege of Monterrey ranks with the very best of stories about Mexican revolts." Robert Pick

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 D 10 '49 500w

HARDY, KAY (MRS DOUGLAS JOHN CONNAH). How to make your own draperies; il. by the author. 112p $3 Funk

645.3 Drapery 48-9677

Practical directions for making lined and unlined curtains, valances and swags, and many kinds of draperies. Contains sketches of details and photographs. No index.

Booklist 45:153 Ja 1 '49

"The illustrations are detailed and will be most helpful. A practical book for every collection."

+ Wis Lib Bul 45:45 Mr '49

HARDY, MARTHA. Skyo. 256p $3 Superior pub.

B or 92 49-3060

In a sequel to her book Tatoosh (Book Review Digest 1946) the author tells how she came to buy a homesite on the slope of another mountain, Skyo. Intermingled with the account of her own adventures are bits of local history and tradition.

"A faithful and fond record of regional life that will appeal to the readers of her earlier book. Line drawings by the author have a naive humor."

+ Kirkus 17:193 Ap 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor

Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 100w

"Martha Hardy conveys some of her zest for woodslife in this book. Whether the existence she led would be everybody's dish is another question, but nobody can dispute Miss Hardy's love for it. Every detail in an intensely detailed book testifies to that.'"

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 My 15 '49 170w

"The book has a humorous, informal style with vivid word pictures that are almost mystical. The author's clever line drawings help to make this not only a charming treat for nature lovers, but also a spiritual experience for the most confirmed urbanite." L. A. P.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 15 '49 170w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:21 Jl 30 '49 140w

HARKINS, PHILIP. Punt formation. 253p $2.50 Morrow

49-9984

Football story for high school readers. "Tom Minton could punt and pass with the best of them, but he shied away from hard physical contact. . . How the boy won a victory over his fears, regained the leadership of the team and sparked it to a sensational victory is something to warm the vitals of any American boy." (N Y Times)

"As far as mortal woman can tell, this is the low-down on football. It is also a spellbinding story of intramural politics in an average high school, and an account of what kind of toughness is best in the long run. There are many ways of pointing a moral; we like Mr. Harkins's way." Jane Cobb

+ Atlantic 184:104 D '49 70w

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun N 5 '49 40w

"Well above the average sports story." Vernon Ives

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 13 '49 160w

"Good football story."

+ Kirkus 17:472 S 1 '49 100w

"Good football and good story about a real problem." Lillian Morrison

+ Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p34 O 30 '49 90w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 20w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 40w

HARMON, NOLAN BAILEY. Organization of the Methodist church; historic development and present working structure. 281p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

262 Methodist church (United States) 48-1503

"The first study of the organization of the Methodist Church since the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church united in 1939 as the Methodist Church, and became the largest Protestant church in the United States. The organization of the Methodist Church is discussed in historical perspective, although the book is chiefly concerned with the constitutional features and the operative structure of the church since the union. The five sections of the text under which the twenty-one chapters are arranged treat in turn the episcopacy, the conference system—including the general, jurisdictional, annual, district, and quarterly conferences, the jurisdictional division of the church, Methodist law and judicial council, and the executive agencies. The influence upon the united church of the organization and processes of the three uniting bodies is also discussed." (U S Quarterly Bkl) The book is an expansion of the author's Southwestern university lectures of 1946. Index.

Christian Century 65:758 Jl 28 '48 50w

"This work is not free from minor errors, but I have discovered none that need concern any who do not themselves detect them. That they are so few is creditable in view of the scope of the work. The author proceeds upon the assumption, whose soundness is apparent, that properly to understand and appreciate the merit or demerit of the organization of this church, which is the result of a process of growth, one must be informed concerning that process. He makes the tracing of that process in history an interesting, inspiring, and informing story." J. E. Skillington

HARMON, N. B.—Continued
+ Crozer Q 26:274 Jl '49 1150w

"This book not only should be of interest to Methodists but might well be studied by all who are interested in bringing together into organic union the major American churches. . . In any course on comparative church polities, Dr. Harmon's book ought to be required reading." W. W. Sweet
+ J Religion 29:69 Ja '49 750w

"Addressed primarily to officials of the church, this authoritative volume will be valuable to all those interested in constitutional church history, church polity, and church administration. . . The book is intended to explain and describe rather than to evaluate, but evaluations are not entirely lacking. The subject is a difficult one to handle interestingly, but Dr. Harmon has succeeded in writing a most readable book as well as an accurate study which will doubtless long remain a standard work."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:282 S '48 270w

HAROUTUNIAN, JOSEPH. Lust for power. 174p $3 Scribner
301.15 Social psychology 49-11579

"Here is a book which invites the reader to think about the problem of personal existence in our time. The author, who teaches at McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, believes that modern man is driven by the apparently indefinite power he may hope to pyramid and the number of goods he may accumulate. . . Love for life provides the only antidote to lust for power. Such love for life has always been the fruit of great art and of the wisdom to number our days while numbering our goods. The Christian religion, in the author's opinion, effects the basic recoil from lust toward love by tying sin and death together, guilt and man's sense of 'lifetime.' " (N Y Times) Index.

"Haroutunian makes many critical observations on current subjects with a forcefulness of language which will, no doubt, shock some of the effete sophists whom he scourges along with the lusty power-seekers. In spite of this forcefulness, readers may retain some doubts." W. A. R. Leys
Christian Century 67:14 Ja 4 '50 1200w

"Dr. Haroutunian's picture of a 'lopsided' universe, full of confusion and moral camouflage, is not too exaggerated to be recognizable, although it is obviously distorted, for it represents an entirely soulless world. . . For Dr. Haroutunian, Christianity is inherently paradoxical and 'ambiguous'—which is only to say that he becomes deeply involved in the difficulties that have always beset those theologians who attempt to attribute both the finite material world and the Infinite to the same divine authorship. His outlook is cosmic." H. J. S.
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 750w

"Professor Haroutunian has the gift of the trenchant phrase and the apt illustration, and, for this reason, as well as because of his penetrating analysis of the contemporary scene, his book should appeal to many ministers and to other religiously minded leaders of American thought."
+ Kirkus 17:547 O 1 '49 130w

HARPER, FLOYD ARTHUR. Liberty, a path to its recovery. 159p $1.50; pa $1 Foundation for economic educ, inc, Irving-on-Hudson, N.Y.
323.44 Liberty 49-5631

An analysis of the nature of individual liberty, plus a study of its present status in the United States, and a suggested "path to recovery" which places the responsibility on the true lover of liberty. Index.

Reviewed by N. E. Taylor
Am Pol Sci R 43:1077 O '49 210w

"Dr. Harper has endeavored to make his presentation clear and easily understandable and yet challenging to people who will spend some time thinking of this liberty which we are all too prone to accept because we believe it exists." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 17 '49 360w

HARPER, FRANK. Skiing naturally. 128p il $2 Wyn
796.93 Skis and ski running 49-7394

Illustrated manual describing easy ways to ski, in which the author borrows suggestions from all the accepted techniques except the French. Illustrations are photographs and simple line drawings. No index.

Booklist 45:206 F 15 '49
Kirkus 17:19 Ja 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 30w

"The author insists that skiing is more than a sport, that it's a state of mind. He really doesn't advise any different techniques than are prevalent today, but his application of the 'Vorlage' or deep forward lean, not emphasizing the shoulder swing but just 'skiing naturally' makes for informative reading." Frank Elkins
+ N Y Times p21 Mr 6 '49 140w
Sat R of Lit 32:35 Mr 5 '49 50w
Wis Lib Bul 45:64 Ap '49

HARRINGTON, FRED HARVEY. Fighting politician, Major General N. P. Banks. (Am. hist. assn. Albert J. Beveridge memorial fund. Publication) 301p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press
B or 92 Banks, Nathaniel Prentice 48-6954

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Professor Harrington in Fighting Politician has succeeded both in his portraiture of Banks and in assessing Banks's role in history. The book is almost clinical in its precise analysis. Each chapter of Banks's career is probed and the finding is rigorously conditioned by the evidence. Accuracy and soundness of judgment mark every page. This is a work which the professional scholar can depend upon with confidence that all the available evidence has been used effectively. Perhaps the book's one weakness is a matter of style. Not much of the color of a colorful career is permitted to show on these chaste pages." P. H. Buck
+ — Am Hist R 54:628 Ap '49 550w

"Nathaniel Prentice Banks obviously merits the kind of consideration and scholarly competence he has here been accorded. . . Professor Harrington is conscientious and illuminating, but there is little to add here about Banks's later career, though it extended almost to his death in 1894. It suffices, perhaps, to note that this ten-time Congressman, who was also a Speaker, a Governor, and a Major General, is commemorated only in the names of a local high school and a public square." Louis Filler
+ New Eng Q 21:550 D '48 550w

"Detailed and scholarly study."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:287 S '48 280w

HARRIS, CHARLES OVERTON. Strength of materials. 212p il $4.90 Am. tech. soc.
620.11 Strength of materials 49-1670

"An elementary text designed to acquaint engineering students with the fundamental principles and methods of analyzing and determining the strains and stresses in engineering materials, and the methods of adapting this knowledge to the design of structural and machine members. Each phase of the subject is explained clearly and in detail, and the abundant use of work examples, review problems, summaries, and illustrative diagrams, makes the volume suitable for home study as well as for study in organized classes. Special attention is given to the analysis and design of welded joints, and a brief description of common welding methods is included." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 45:349 Je 15 '49
N Y New Tech Bks 34:61 Jl '49

HARRIS, ISOBEL. Little boy Brown; il. by André François. 44p $1.75 Lippincott
49-3766

Pictures and story about a little boy named Brown who lived in a city hotel with his father and mother and seldom went very far away. On the chambermaid's day off she took little boy Brown to visit her family in the country, in a real house with an upstairs and a downstairs. The story describes the little boy's utter delight all that day.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

"Little boy Brown is so real you want to hug him and tell him he can stay in the country always. And the pictures, drawn by a student of Picasso, both show that artist's influence and appear to have been drawn by a four year old himself. They are fresh and original and full of fascinating detail. I should think children would love both them and the story." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 6 '49 160w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:405 S '49 80w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 25:435 S '49 80w

"Pictures by André François are so under the Picasso influence as to be startling at first; they grow on one with time. Recommended for originality and imagination." Anne Izard
+ Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1531 O 15 '49 80w

"The work of Francois is familiar to any who read Punch—he is a sort of French Steinberg; his people seem gruesomely hideous until you find them intelligently funny. His French dream of New York apartments, elevators, skyscrapers, walks underground, is excitingly accurate. His cross-sections of houses, his multitudinous details are dramatic and amusing. He was a student of Picasso, and his simplifications have all of that master's eerie power. For art work and fine bookmaking, this is a collector's item. Plenty of people will like it who are a lot older than Little Boy Brown. It strikes a distinguished, fresh note among American books." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ag 21 '49 270w

"The illustrator, who studied with Picasso and has appeared in Punch, has interpreted children's art with unusual skill. One 8-year-old said enthusiastically, 'Why, the boy could have done the pictures himself!' It is a wonderful experience for children when they discover that their own way of seeing things has a place in the adult world." Elena Baker
+ N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 150w

New Yorker 25:168 D 3 '49 90w

"For grown-ups this picture book has a definite value. The artist is original. The text is fresh and honest. Little Boy Brown is secure and happy in his city life. His day in the country is a new experience that brings delight and satisfaction. Through story and pictures we learn how very much a new experience, joyfully conducted, can mean to little boys and girls."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 S 17 '49 320w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. Economic planning. 577p $6; text ed $4.50 Knopf

338.91 Economic policy 49-4929

"The plans of fourteen countries with analyses of the plans." (Subtitle) Countries whose plans are studied are the United States, the Argentine, Japan, India, and ten European countries: Great Britain, France, Germany, Greece, Norway, The Netherlands, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and the USSR.

Booklist 46:42 O 1 '49

"An uninspired and somewhat superficial but competent job."
Nation 169:354 O 8 '49 40w

Reviewed by George Soule
N Y Times p27 S 11 '49 750w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. European recovery program. 309p $4.50; text ed $3.50 Harvard univ. press

338.91 Reconstruction (1939-)—Europe. Europe—Economic conditions 48-10614

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The organization of the book is designed to meet the requirements of the hasty reader. . . The controversial nature of the author's conclusions on many issues raised by the European Recovery Program should not obscure the fact that Professor Harris has highlighted some of the basic problems involved in this vast undertaking and that he has presented to students of the subject the relevant factual materials from which independent conclusions can be derived." W. H. Bray
+ Am Econ R 39:555 Mr '49 1150w

Reviewed by N. L. Silverstein
Am Pol Sci R 43:393 Ap '49 180w

"This is a valiant and on the whole remarkably successful attempt to inform 'the man in the street.' . . For the more perspicacious it should provide a very useful arsenal of the essential facts." R. A. Brady
+ Ann Am Acad 262:200 Mr '49 550w

"Professor Harris's book ought to be useful over the next three years, throughout the duration of the Marshall Plan, and perhaps beyond that. Congressmen, students of international affairs, or the ordinary reader who really wants to know what is going on, will find this a valuable statement-sheet of the economic assets and debits of the Western world, against which the progressive failures or accomplishments of the Marshall Plan can be checked off." William Barrett
+ Atlantic 183:89 Ap '49 800w

"Professor Harris has come through with flying colors and has produced a book which gives both form and reason to the vast amount of seemingly disjointed 'facts' about ERP." M. Shubik
+ Canadian Forum 28:261 F '49 550w

Foreign Affairs 27:504 Ap '49 20w

Reviewed by L. W. Towle
J Pol Econ 57:265 Je '49 550w

Reviewed by R. B. Warren
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 27 '49 1050w

"Of 'The European Recovery Program' the publishers make the claim: 'It is written in language anyone can understand.' Having been lured time and again into bogs of impassable technicalities by that kind of come-on (somebody told us the same thing about the Smyth report) we approached Professor Harris's volume with some doubt. The book was a happy surprise." Kenneth McArdle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ja 30 '49 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:61 Mr '49 320w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN, ed. Foreign economic policy for the United States. 490p $6; text ed $4.50 Harvard univ. press

337 U.S.—Foreign policy. U.S.—Economic policy 48-4988

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"An excellent group of essays by twenty-four economists and civil servants has been brought together in this volume by that most indefatigable of editors, Seymour E. Harris. . . [However] Mr. Harris is apparently a strong believer in freedom of speech. At any rate, he has permitted his book to close with a slashing attack on American policy that is frequently inaccurate, generally ill-tempered, and completely inconsistent with everything that has gone before." C. Wilcox

HARRIS, S. E.—Continued
+ — Am Econ R 39:797 Je '49 1550w

"Really successful symposia are few, and the one under review belongs to the other, far more numerous, category. It is not enough to get together a number of men, each highly competent in his own right, in order to obtain a unity of vision and a meeting of minds. The present book is refreshing in that it does not even strive for a unity of purpose among its contributors, while the editor vigorously attacks one of the contributors, Professor Gottfried Haberler, in the introductory chapter." M. A. Heilperin
— + Am Pol Sci R 43:1045 O '49 650w

Reviewed by M. W. Reder
Ann Am Acad 263:242 My '49 600w

Foreign Affairs 27:507 Ap '49 30w

"Timely contribution to an understanding of our major international economic issues. Teachers of courses in international economics will find [it] useful for supplementary reading." L. W. Towle
+ J Pol Econ 57:266 Je '49 390w

"The present book is a symposium. . . As usual Professor Harris takes his duties as M. C. very seriously, this time with rather happier results than on other occasions. The book is perhaps the weightiest discussion of United States foreign economic policy to be found within a single set of covers. But in spite of the expectations aroused by the title, no clear-cut policy for the United States finally emerges. Instead, the international context of a policy is intensively, but not exhaustively, examined and some of the problems of policy are taken up for close inspection, notably international equilibrium." C. H. Grattan
Nation 168:280 Mr 5 '49 1200w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:61 Mr '49 310w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. Market for college graduates and related aspects of education and income. 207p $4 Harvard univ. press

378 College graduates 49-11426

Largely a statistical survey of a present day trend in higher education, which the author suggests may in the near future bring about an unbalance between the number of college graduates and positions in business, industry and the professions commensurate with their training. Index.

Booklist 46:91 N 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

"A book worthy of study by all educational heads, college trustees and boards, and discussion groups. Serious in its import and style."
+ Kirkus 17:500 S 1 '49 180w

Nation 169:525 N 26 '49 40w

"The question not only of 'Who should go to college?' but 'how many should go to college?' is the theme of Professor Harris' absorbing book." Benjamin Fine
+ N Y Times p61 N 20 '49 320w

"The issues discussed in this book are important and serious and ought to be considered by intelligent citizens, by those who influence educational policy, and especially by the millions of parents who are sending their children to institutions of higher learning."
+ School & Society 70:256 O 15 '49 50w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN, ed. Saving American capitalism; a liberal economic program; with introductions. 373p $4; text ed $3 Knopf

338.973 Capitalism. U.S.—Economic policy 48-9864

"Twenty-four rather similar viewpoints converge in this symposium, edited by a Harvard professor of economics . . . Chester Bowles, dedicatee, Alvin E. Hansen, A. M. Schlesinger, Jr., George Soule, etc. In general, the essays argue for government responsibility as opposed to a mixed economy, and for a more modernized capitalistic system than that preferred by the N.A.M. and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Concrete facts and specifications on labor, housing, natural resources and similar topics bolster a welter of theory." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Max Millikan
Am Econ R 39:1008 S '49 2100w

"The book is the most comprehensive and readable account that has yet appeared of the dominant rôle of the state in current domestic and international affairs." E. W. Carter
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:844 Ag '49 370w

"The whole book is required reading for those unfortunate victims of our times who do not understand how the seeking of private economic gain can be consonant with the public good, and who imagine that only under socialism can high employment and high productivity be achieved." Theodore Morgan
+ Ann Am Acad 265:202 S '49 550w

Booklist 45:187 F 1 '49

Reviewed by S. R. Davis
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 27 '49 900w

Reviewed by M. Bronfenbrenner
J Pol Econ 57:454 O '49 1200w

"Book should be useful in a variety of libraries. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Nation 168:366 Mr 26 '49 900w

Reviewed by Robert Warren
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Je 5 '49 550w

"This collection of essays—edited and with valuable introductions by Harvard economist Seymour Harris—represents a stimulating contribution to the discussion of an important and timely topic." P. A. Baran
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 16 '49 1350w

Reviewed by S. A. Levitan
Pol Sci Q 64:629 D '49 700w

Reviewed by M. R. Konvitz
+ Sat R of Lit 32:44 Ja 22 '49 800w

"Until Machine Age economics are generally understood, we shall have to treat symptoms. And for this, 'Saving American Capitalism' is a treasure-house of factual and interesting material, written by eminent authorities. It should be widely read." Arthur Dunn
+ Survey 85:180 Mr '49 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:194 Je '49 320w

"Despite the many merits of the book, I find myself in disagreement with some of the underlying assumptions. In a world in which the United States is fighting a cold war and is called upon to give substantial aid to twenty countries and territories, with combined populations greatly in excess of our own, and in which industry is compelled to meet the demands of trade unions for wage increases substantially in excess of the annual increase in output per manhour, the problem of how to increase production seems to me to be quite as important as the problem of how to maintain demand." S. H. Slichter
Yale R n s 39:376 winter '50 900w

HARRIS, VICTOR. All coherence gone. 254p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

192 Cosmology. Pessimism. Philosophy, English 49-8131

"The concept of the decaying universe held in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries is the subject of this study. After an introductory chapter summarizing the issues, two detailed chapters describe the positions taken by Godfrey Goodman and George Hakewill, respectively the proponent and the foremost critic of the idea of decay. A fourth chapter traces the development, and then the gradual decline of the concept during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, centering upon the evidence in Nature of incremental deterioration, but examining also pertinent additional proofs. A final chapter restates and analyzes at length the basic arguments." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"The value of our author's book is primarily bibliographical—dozens of writers and works are mentioned—and this justifies it as it stands. But some space is given to historico-philosophical interpretation of the fundamental motivation behind the theory and the dispute. The thoughtful reader will be disappointed over what is included and what is omitted in that area. Not nearly enough is made of the general disillusionment characteristic of that epoch, as the new secularism in science, letters and art emerged to collide with the high romance of the old order." V. C. Aldrich
Christian Century 66:681 Je 1 '49 1250w

"Despite certain defects the student will find here clear exposition and ample documentation of an idea historically significant in philosophy and poetry."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:170 Je '49 200w

HARRISON, CHARLES YALE. Thank God for my heart attack. 144p $2.50 Holt
616.13 Heart—Diseases 49-8954

An account of the author's recovery from an attack of coronary thrombosis. He describes his personal philosophy and gives some factual material about heart disease.

Booklist 45:253; 312 Ap 1 '49; My 15 '49

"It is skillfully done. The author gives convincing encouragement without belittling the danger or the need for generous support of further research." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:766 Je 22 '49 160w

Kirkus 17:167 Mr 15 '49 130w

"It is a brave (sometimes with a little bravado) and often wise commentary on living done with the touch of a novelist." K. T. Willis
Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 80w

"His story should be of deep interest to all cardiacs, and a slow-up warning to many others."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Je 12 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. H. Weiler
N Y Times p19 Jl 10 '49 340w

"Being a novelist Harrison has a good sense of the dramatic, and has made his own story read like a novel. Yet he has written, from the clinical standpoint, quite a thorough analysis of cardiac diseases." A. B. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Je 19 '49 350w

"The work's chief interest lies in its sensitive relating of the subjective reactions and experiences of one man's odyssey to the brink of the grave and back again to a functioning life. Nevertheless, the reader should not get the impression that he is being served with a novelist's fictionalized slice of autobiography. As a self-made cardiologist the reviewer is willing to affirm and certify that the tale told by the author is disconcertingly authentic." Joseph Rosenfarb
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 S 17 '49 800w

Wis Lib Bul 45:104 Je '49

HARRISON, GEORGE RUSSELL, and others. Practical spectroscopy. 605p il $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall
535.84 Spectrum analysis 48-11619

"Written by a physicist, a chemist and a biophysicist, it is an attempt to give a comprehensive view of the status and possibilities of experimental spectroscopy as it exists today. This is a text for the student, and a reference book for the user of spectrographic equipment." (Library J) Bibliographies. Indexes.

"The authors have added much to the usefulness of the text by including many bits of experimental 'know-how' which usually are not recorded in the literature. This book includes no discussion of the techniques of microwave spectroscopy. . . This well presented volume is a valuable text and reference book in any phase of spectroscopy for the beginner or even the experienced worker." M. K. Wilson
+ Am Chem Soc J 71:2592 Jl '49 230w

" 'Practical Spectroscopy' is both an excellent text and reference book comprehensively covering the entire field of spectroscopy. . . This book should certainly be on the shelf of every university and technical organization library as well as in the laboratory of every worker in the field." E. K. Jaycox
+ Chem Eng 56:328 Mr '49 650w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:46 My '49

HARRISON, RICHARD. Scotland Yard [Eng title: Whitehall 1212]. 269p il $2.75 Ziff-Davis
352.2 Police—London. Crime and criminals —London 49-8335

A history of Scotland Yard and an account of its workings. It includes case histories to show the accomplishments of the associated sections of the Yard: the Railway police; the Flying Squad; Port of London authority; The Special constabulary; and the Women police. Photographs. No index.

Booklist 45:306 My 15 '49

"A superficial and disorderly sketch of the history and operation of Scotland Yard which lacks the index that might have guided a reader to the material it does contain." James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun Ap 22 '49 50w

"An authentic, intramural and operational presentation of the Yard which records the patience, perseverance of its men, the coordination of the divisions."
+ Kirkus 16:204 Ap 1 '49 120w

"It is well and truly illustrated. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 120w

"Mr. Harrison's manner is informal and his matter is sketchy in spots." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 My 8 '49 70w

Reviewed by Helen Reilly
N Y Times p26 Je 12 '49 320w

"Informative, well documented with photographs, and of such interest that one can easily overlook the pedestrian style."
+ — New Yorker 25:111 Ap 30 '49 50w

"One of the nicest things about this volume is Mr. Harrison's approach. From the very first page it is perfectly clear that Scotland Yard and all its pomps and works thrills Mr. Harrison to his very marrow." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 10 '49 180w

"This is a book by a journalist, and the product of painstaking, honest and objective enquiry facilitated by much official encouragement. . . I can think of many writers of detective fiction who might profit by reading Mr. Harrison's book. It compares ill with, say, Sir John Moylan's Scotland Yard, which is still the best account obtainable, and which, even if Sir John had not been a Scotland Yard official, would still carry the greater conviction because it is well-written. But Mr. Harrison's book at least recognises that there are other police forces in London—over a dozen, in fact. . . Among errors of fact are his statements that the G.P.O. telephone girls at Scotland Yard 'work day and night in shifts of eighteen.' . . His few errors of law are more interesting. . . These and some similar discrepancies could be put right. . . These suggestions are not carping criticisms, nor are they the antics of a reviewer showing off. This agreeable and potentially valuable book would be the better for their adoption. Even as it is, most of our murder-scribes ought to put their pens down and read it carefully before they write another word." R. H. Cecil
+ — Spec 181:844 D 24 '48 1200w

HARROD, ROY FORBES. Towards a dynamic economics; some recent developments of economic theory and their application to policy. 169p $2.25 Macmillan

330.4 Economics [A49-1064]

Five lectures delivered at the University of London in February, 1947. The first "on the need for a dynamic economics, is a plea for a rediscovery of the classical interest in 'the progress of society' and the application of more refined methods of analysis to the Smith-Ricardo-Malthus theory of economic development. In the second, on the supply of saving, [the author] argues that saving is likely to be a fairly constant proportion of income and will not be very responsive to interest changes. This is preparatory to the central argument of the lectures, contained in the third lecture, in which he develops a variant of the savings-equals-investment identity as a tool of dynamic analysis. . . The fourth and fifth lectures are on policy questions—the foreign balance, contracyclical policy, and 'Is interest obsolete?' " (J Pol Econ) No index.

"What is really important in this book is not the practical policy sections, but rather the theoretical apparatus outlined for a study of dynamic economics. Mr. Harrod has given us an elegant piece of analysis, highly original, and pregnant with suggestions for theorists, econometricians and students of the business cycle." A. H. Hansen

+ Am Econ R 39:497 Mr '49 1300w

"Harrod can always be relied on to say something interesting and these lectures . . . are no exception to the rule. . . It is to be hoped that Harrod's return to academic life will permit him to become acquainted with the American literature in this field, in particular with the works of Benjamin Graham, whose plans are similar to those which Harrod puts forward. The lectures are concluded by an eloquent peroration in defense of a leisured class and a plea that the euthanasia of the rentier should be accompanied by the abolition of the burden of death duties." K. E. Boulding

+ J Pol Econ 57:79 F '49 700w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 10 '48 230w

HART, ALBERT GAILORD. Money, debt and economic activity. 558p $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall

332 Money. Economics 48-7253

"The work is strongly oriented toward policy-making; but, with the possible exception of international finance, it does not incontinently hasten on to conclusions without a firm basis of fact and analysis. Part I covers the chief institutions necessary to the understanding of money, credit, and prices; Part II is devoted to monetary theory; Part III to business fluctuations; Part IV to international monetary relations; and Part V to policy." (Am Econ R) Index.

"Although this book has been conceived as a textbook for university students, it is really a well-rounded treatise on money; it is written for grown-ups and will prove educative to most economists and illuminating even to special students in the field." H. S. Ellis

+ Am Econ R 38:952 D '48 2700w

Reviewed by Homer Jones

J Pol Econ 57:353 Ag '49 500w

HART, IVOR BLASHKA. James Watt and the history of steam power. (Life of science lib) 250p il $4 Schuman

B or 92 Watt, James. Steam engines 49-9572

"Beginning with a short discussion of the main factors in human development from the age of instinct to the age of reason, [this book passes] to a review of the backgrounds to the life and the times of James Watt—the social, economic, cultural, and scientific outlook of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth centuries. The story next turns to the work of those who preceded Watt as pioneers of the steam engine, and so leads naturally to an account of his own life and work." (Pref) Index.

Am Hist R 55:200 O '49 240w

Booklist 46:32 S 15 '49

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1330 S 15 '49 80w

"Dr. Hart, who is a well-known English technical author, gives a comprehensive picture of the social and economic needs, which provided the impetus to Watt's achievement. . . The book is more than just a technical account of the birth of the steam engine, for the author relates the interesting story of the eighteenth-century background which provided the fertile soil in which such things could grow, and he gives very human portraits of Watt, his associates and predecessors." James Stokley

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 21 '49 700w

N Y New Tech Bk 54:60 Jl '49

"The development of steam as a source of power illustrates, about as simply as possible, the typical course of any great technical advance. It is a paradigm which brings into bold relief the collective nature of scientific achievement. And so the theme is here understood by Mr. Hart, an English popularizer, who properly treats it as a challenge to his expository skill, rather than as a novelty, which it is not." E. B. Garside

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 10 '49 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 21 '49 150w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ag 13 '49 130w

HART, SCOTT. Eight April days. 188p map $2.50 Coward-McCann

49-10343

A story of the retreat of the Confederate army from Petersburg to Appomattox as experienced by a woman peddler, Old Pine. On the way she helps a confused Southern couple and gives courage to a deserter.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 184:74 O '49 550w

Booklist 46:4; 34 S 1 '49; S 15 '49

Chicago Sun p11X O 23 '49 300w

"Concentrated in a single locality and economical in treatment, though with an occasional detail that might better have been omitted or enlarged so as to have more significance, the novel is distinguished most by the author's comprehension of the spirit of the rank and file of Confederate troops. . . The author was born 'within hollering distance' of the route of the retreat from Petersburg, and from his background and intensive study of the region and its lore he has been able to put himself in the place of the men who slogged along those roads, and has given concrete form to a woman who might conceivably be an heroic legend." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 13 '49 550w

"Novel is too short to attempt the scope of a Gone With the Wind, or So Red the Rose, and achieves being little more than a sketch for what could have been an interesting piece of fiction." W. K. Harrison

Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 70w

"To you, in this very graphic, delicately moving novel, will come a coherent and vivid impression of what one Southerner who has studied it carefully thinks the end of the Civil War may have been like. Furthermore without a line of material irrelevant to the small story he tells, by implications, he tells a story of much larger scope and significance." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 11 '49 550w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger

N Y Times p34 O 9 '49 110w

"What another writer might have dragged out to three times the length is here pared to essentials and told with pity and understanding. 'Eight April Days' is a first-rate piece of writing. It will be worth your while to see that you don't miss it in the flood of autumn books, many of which perhaps will be more picturesquely promoted than this quietly good, unpretentiously done novel." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 15 '49 700w

"The atmosphere of reality is what makes this novel, hardly more than a short story, so impressive. It is reasonable to expect a full-fledged American historical novel from Mr. Hart's pen which shall make other works seem artificial and puerile." John Cournos

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 26 '49 360w

"'Eight April Days' is an unusual war story, dramatically and interestingly told by a man who knows his South because he was born 'within hollering distance' of the scene of his book. An expert on the Civil War, he has here concentrated almost entirely on the spirit of the Confederate armies." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 300w

HARTE, HOUSTON, ed. See Bible. Old Testament. Selections. In our image

HARTMANN, EDWARD GEORGE. Movement to Americanize the immigrant. 333p $4 Columbia univ. press

325.73 Americanization. U.S.—Foreign population 48-9245

"Beginning in the first decade of the twentieth century, the organized movement to Americanize the immigrant gained impetus with the worsening of German-American relations, came to its greatest height during World War I, and declined soon after the end of the war. The ten chapters of this study trace the history of the movement and describe the leaders, the voluntary organizations, and the federal and state agencies promoting it. The account given is replete with programs, resolutions, and pronouncements of persons and organizations concerned with the work." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"A tolerant and even a patient review of the efforts made in the early part of the century to 'accelerate' the assimilation of the vast new immigration." E. E. Lape

Am Hist R 54:897 Jl '49 550w

"This is a useful source-book. The bibliography is exhaustive."

+ Am Soc R 14:189 F '49 60w

"The interpretations presented seem much oversimplified, but the volume should prove valuable to those interested in the factual account of the rise and decline of the organized movement and its more or less enduring results. The text is fully documented, makes use of primary source material as well as published books, and has an impressive forty-nine page bibliography."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:73 Mr '49 220w

HARTOG, MABEL HELENE (KISCH) lady. P. J. Hartog: a memoir, by his wife. 178p il $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Hartog, Sir Philip Joseph [49-49689]

"Sir Philip Hartog made a remarkable contribution to education and university development in the British Commonwealth, and this memoir gives a vivid account of his many-sided activity. He was Academic Registrar of the University of London in its formative period and one of the founders of the School of Oriental Studies. He was chairman of the Committee on Education in India and the first Vice-Chancellor of the University of Dacca. When 70 he was head of a commission on the University of Jerusalem, and, finally, after his retirement from the service, he initiated two large educational reforms: on the vexed subject of examinations and on the teaching of English." Manchester Guardian

"His wife has written the memoir with great understanding and exemplary conciseness. All the essential facts and factors are recorded; and without any flowers—except the tribute of those who worked with Hartog. But that is a rich tribute."

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 12 '49 390w

School & Society 70:302 N 5 '49 50w

"A host of admirers from many lands will be grateful to Lady Hartog for her moving portrait of a great scholar and a loyal friend and counsellor." H. G. Rawlinson

+ Spec 183:118 Jl 22 '49 500w

"Few educationists had a more sustained and helpful career than Sir Philip, and there can be no doubt that a record of it was well worth while. Lady Hartog has written it with modesty and restraint and, what must have been difficult within the narrow limits she imposed on herself, with a good sense of proportion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p502 Ag 5 '49 420w

HARTSHORNE, CHARLES. Divine relativity; a social conception of God. 164p $2.75 Yale univ. press

231 God 48-7802

"This expansion of lectures delivered at Yale University makes a searching criticism of traditional theistic absolutism. The idea of God as personal is retained and even enlarged, but the author, opposing tradition, holds the concrete and relative aspects of deity to be even higher in worth than the immutable and absolute aspects. His book, indeed, is an able attempt to defend divine relativity in somewhat technical detail." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Indexes

Reviewed by J. Macleod

Hibbert J 48:90 O '49 800w

"In The Divine Relativity Professor Hartshorne raises certain important problems to which traditional theism has never given definite answers. He rightly appeals on behalf of logical clarity in theology and states the case persuasively for a relativistic conception of the divine. However, his conception of the deity as an absolute-relative supreme being appears to be dependent upon and largely vitiated by an erroneous theory of knowledge and to lack any adequate empirical support. In spite of, or in part even because of, these shortcomings, this is a stimulating book, which makes a real contribution to current metaphysical and theological thought." P. H. Phenix

+ — J Philos 46:591 S 1 '49 2700w

"The book is strong in passion and in genuine respect for the competency of man's mind to deal with ultimate problems, albeit also conversant with the self-deceiving temptations of our actual religious thinking. If nothing else were gained from the book, this combination of virtues would itself be an encouraging manifestation of right directions." N. F. S. Ferré

+ J Religion 29:304 O '49 700w

"Thomists will question the arguments advanced; non-Thomists may not agree that human beings can be included in God without contradiction. But all readers interested in theistic philosophy will find reason to respect the historical and critical powers of the author."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:431 D '48 260w

HARTT, FREDERICK. Florentine art under fire. 147p il maps $5 Princeton univ. press

940.53187 Art—Florence. World war, 1939-1945—Art and the war. Italy—History 49-8953

"The author, an American authority on Tuscan art, served as head of the Army's Subcommission for Monuments, Fine Arts, and Archives around Florence, in charge of rescuing, salvaging, and preserving art objects. Since much of his work was done under combat conditions, he had a number of fairly exciting adventures, which he tells about very simply. The main part of the book deals with the way his unit functioned and its disappointments and occasional triumphs in the confusion of war." New Yorker

Booklist 45:373 Jl 1 '49

Christian Century 66:766 Je 22 '49 270w

Current Hist 17:99 Ag '49 40w

HARTT, FREDERICK—Continued
Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 80w

"As a corrective to hazy knowledge, this book is invaluable. But, perhaps of more lasting interest is the penetrating and sympathetic picture given of the plight of the Italians as the rake of war was dragged up that incomparable peninsula." Stuart Preston
+ N Y Times p22 Jl 10 '49 320w

"Melancholy but interesting reading."
New Yorker 25:103 My 28 '49 100w

Sat R of Lit 32:35 S 3 '49 140w

HARTWELL, NANCY, pseud. See Callahan, C. W.

HARVEY, JOHN H. Dublin, a study in environment. (British cities ser) 116p il maps $3.50 Batsford
914.183 Dublin 49-11099

"Mr. Harvey, in effect, describes the history of Dublin as it is written today in its buildings and in the spirit of its people. The city's façade, of course, is almost entirely the product of that remarkable Golden Age whose ease and leisureliness have lived on with its architecture. But Mr. Harvey looks through the façade, and into holes and corners, to display the whole story of Dublin's spasmodic growth." (Spec) Maps on end papers. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Harvey has written an historical guide-book to Dublin, beautifully illustrated as are all Batsford publications, by means of which any intelligent tourist can trace his way street by street, almost building by building, through that Georgian city. And to those who already know Dublin it will give a more coherent and unified if somewhat static picture of it. The book has as its subtitle, 'A Study in Environment.' As such, nearly everything is included—except for the reality of the present." Francis Russell
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 29 '49 900w

"To all intelligent visitors to Dublin Mr. Harvey's book may be commended as the best kind of guide-book. It will both tell them what to see and help them to understand what they are seeing, its history, its meaning, and its worth. . . 'I wish it had been available when I was a youth,' wrote Bernard Shaw. Young or old, all resident citizens should welcome it now." J. T. Gwynn
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 5 '49 390w

New Yorker 25:126 D 17 '49 80w

"Mr. Harvey is deeply sympathetic to Eire, so much so that he finds that country's selfish and harmful 'neutrality' in World war II to have been animated by higher motives than those which moved 'any of the belligerents.' Thus the bias of the author is clear, but when he leaves politics and state morality for writers who are reasonably competent in such fields and returns to architectural and scenic subjects, his appreciation and descriptions of Dublin and its historic places and associations are sound and informed." C. W. W.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 27 '49 300w

"Mr. Harvey has covered Dublin with loving care, showing how the political vagaries of Ireland have so violently affected the economic scene and thus the nature of the capital. No other European capital has developed in such surroundings of uncertainty and yet arrived at maturity wearing a face so serene. One can be grateful for Mr. Harvey's expert eye on Dublin's architecture, and at the same time question some of his reflections. He appears to be a sentimentalist; perhaps a sentimentalist with time on his hands." Rawle Knox
+ — Spec 183:246 Ag 19 '49 550w

"Mr. Harvey is well aware of the beauty and accessibility of Dublin's neighbouring sea and mountains, but his own chief interest is antiquarian. He says that his book is not a history, but he has been to school to the latest historians, and his chapter on the growth of Dublin is a serious contribution to Irish history. In particular he has something interesting to say of the influence of Dublin's small rivers on its development, and gives a useful summary of the increase and frequent renaming of the Liffey bridges. . . The introductory chapters, where he writes from general impressions of modern Irish life and politics, are unworthy of the good meat in the rest of the book."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p475 Jl 22 '49 900w

HARVEY, MRS RUTH (WALKER). Curtain time. 310p $3 Houghton
792 Theatre—Canada 49-11037

Memories of the author's childhood in Winnipeg in the early 1900s. Papa was the owner of the fine large playhouse in Winnipeg and Mamma, who had been an actress before her marriage, sometimes filled in at the theater.

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 3 '49 230w

Kirkus 17:385 Jl 15 '49 130w

"Recommended for circulating collections, paid or otherwise, as well as theatre collections in all libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1605 O 15 '49 70w

"Mrs. Harvey's book is ostensibly about the life and times of Winnipeg's Walker theatre, but it is much more than that. It happens to be also a pretty fine book about all western Canada, perhaps the most exciting region in North America during, say, 1900-'14." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 2 '49 1050w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger
N Y Times p25 O 2 '49 500w

"Recommended for all libraries."
+ Wis Lib Bul p7 N '49

HARWOOD, ALICE. The lily and the leopards [Eng title: She had to be queen]. 508p $3.50 Bobbs
Grey, Lady Jane—Fiction 49-10017

Fictionized retelling of the pathetic story of Lady Jane Grey, queen of England for nine short days.

Bookmark 9:6 O '49 30w

"This is a book to sit down with for long, unhurried, contented reading, written in the old tradition of the historical novel, without its bombast; modern in its psychology, but decorous."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 200w

"The pathetic queen of nine days is always a romantic figure and when her tale is as well told as it is here it may make English history readable for younger readers as well as the historical novel reader of mature years." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 140w

"The times which saw the growth of the modern spirit in England are the real substance of the novel, and Miss Harwood makes use of the source materials about them in an engrossing and honest fashion. Following pretty closely the classic historical line of Trevelyan, she gives us a picture of an era, of events and their causes and of the personalities who made or were made by them. Her portraits, both physically and psychologically, of Henry VIII, of Edward Somerset, the Protector, and his younger brother Tom, of Lady Jane and Elizabeth and Mary Tudor, of Cranmer and Aylmer and that ham-fisted, dour Scottish visitor, John Knox, are excellent. 'The Lily and the Leopards' is a really good historical novel." David Tilden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ag 28 '49 700w

"The narrative which the author has written around the life of the prim, pretty girl who for nine days was Queen of England and whose sixteen-year-old head fell on the Tower Green, has its scenes of Renaissance color and its moments of tragic intensity. But it is too long, too painstaking, too full of a sense of scrupulous reconstruction in place of the vivacities of direct experience." Mary Ahern

+ — N Y Times p26 Ag 28 '49 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 9 '49 150w

"There isn't much that is new that can be said about Tudor England in a fictional way but, as Miss Harwood proves in the pages of this excellent novel, there is much that can be said better than most novelists have said it. Miss Harwood is no peddler of literary bagatelles; 'The Lily and the Leopards,' the story of tragic Jane Grey, is a sound, scholarly, vital, and exciting reconstruction of history. It is historical fiction as it should be written, but seldom is in these days." V. P. Hass
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 S 24 '49 700w

HASKELL, ARNOLD LIONEL. Ballet vignettes. 80p pl $3 Irving Ravin, 56 W. 93d st, N.Y. 25

792.8 Ballet

Brief studies of modern ballet, written by an authority. Contains many photographs.

"Short but excellent study. . . Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 30w

"The reader with a love for great artists and memorable ballet will respond to Mr. Haskell's discerning opinions and share his enthusiasms preparatory to his next inspection of 'Swan Lake' or 'Giselle.'" Russell Rhodes
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Ag 27 '49 260w

HATCH, MARY COTTAM. More Danish tales, retold; il. by Edgun. 237p $2.50 Harcourt

Folklore, Danish 49-10046

Companion volume to Thirteen Danish Tales (Book Review Digest 1947). This time there are fifteen tales, showing the same combination of humor, clever people, enchantments and trolls, as the former collection.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:208 D '49 30w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 11 '49 120w

"There is humor and magic and there are surprising twists about the Tree of Health, and the six sons who were turned into stars, and such flowing dialogue that all the tales stick delightfully fast in memory."
+ Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 70w

"Edgun's amusing drawings have the right Scandinavian touch and the print and bookmaking are excellent. Storytellers and lovers of fairy tales will be glad to have this fresh collection." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:416 S '49 80w

"The humorous characterizations, the rhythmic repetition of speech and action, the familiar themes are always acceptable to young imaginations, and the comically alive illustrations by Edgun, in two colors, go hand in hand with the text."
+ Kirkus 17:359 Jl 15 '49 90w

"Story-tellers will find welcome material here, enlivened not a little by Edgun's jolly drawings. Recommended for all libraries." Clara Adams
+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 80w

"After reading all the Lang fairy books, here are still more for the age who haunt those shelves of nonsense and magic of long ago, with delightful pictures by an able Danish artist. The book will have special interest for Americans of Danish extraction, and is fine for story tellers." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 1 '50 90w

"'More Danish Tales' will take its place along with its predecessor, '13 Danish Tales,' as a source of delight for the story-teller and the 8-to-12's." A. N. Fedder
+ N Y Times p24 Ag 28 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:181 D 3 '49 60w

"Reading them aloud is to long to memorize and tell them. It would be a delight to watch the faces of the children when you began a tale. . . Boys and girls will love it, but to the storytellers it is a treasure that will be with them for many, many years." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ag 13 '49 230w

"The children should find them all amusing and since they make good 'reading aloud' even the youngest members of the family will be able to enjoy the fun." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 31 '49 90w

HATCHER, HARLAN HENTHORNE. The Western Reserve; the story of New Connecticut in Ohio. 365p il maps $4 Bobbs

977.12 Ohio—History 49-9476

When Connecticut ceded to Congress most of her western lands (her charter granted her a strip extending from ocean to ocean) she "reserved" that portion lying between the shores of Lake Erie and the forty-first parallel now a part of northern Ohio. The author relates the history of this section from the end of the eighteenth century to the present day. Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 45:373 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by John Cournos
Commonweal 50:346 Jl 15 '49 600w

Library J 74:955 Je 15 '49 140w

Nation 169:211 Ag 27 '49 220w

"It is probable that no part of the United States west of New England is better documented than the history of the Western Reserve, which from the first teemed with writing men. Mr. Hatcher, vice president of the Ohio State University, and author of several books on the region, is familiar with this voluminous material. He has drawn on it to the best possible advantage for this book, which is not only a sound account of 150 years of Ohio history, but is also happily readable." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 3 '49 800w

"The book is repetitious and at times flat in style, but the story moves and the pictures change." J. T. Flanagan
N Y Times p12 Jl 31 '49 470w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 21 '49 200w

"Mr. Hatcher's book is a harmonious mingling of learning, observation, and reflection. From surveyors' field notes to city directories, from bills of lading to newspaper files, he has looked into the complex story of how a colony grew into a commonwealth. . . One reason for the high degree of reader interest in this book is the stream of people who move through it." Walter Havighurst
+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 Jl 16 '49 800w

Time 54:68 Ag 1 '49 380w

HATCHER, JULIAN SOMMERVILLE. Book of the Garand. 292p il $6 Infantry journal

623.442 Garand rifle. Rifles 48-8966

"A noted ballistics authority has prepared this book on the Garand, the new official national match rifle. Book covers history, design, ballistics, and operation of the Garand rifle, its use in World War II and on the shooting range." Library J

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1669 N 15 '48 40w

"The text is indexed and profusely illustrated with photographs and working drawings. To the student of warfare, this is an interesting and important book."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:126 Mr '49 320w

HATCHER, WILLIAM HOOKER. Introduction to chemical science. 2d ed 449p il $4 Wiley

540 Chemistry 49-2068

"Broad coverage of basic facts designed for liberal arts students. This edition has five new chapters and other new material to bring it up to date. Chemistry in the home, modern plastics, chemical composition and reaction, and industrial chemistry are a few of the subjects in the new and revised material." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

HATCHER, W. H.—Continued

Booklist 45:316 My 15 '49
Chem Eng 56:342 My '49 120w

HATTINGBERG, MAGDA VON GRAEDENER-. See Graedener-Hattingberg, M. von

HAUF, HAROLD DANA, and PFISTERER, HENRY ALBERT. Design of steel buildings. 3d ed 280p $5 Wiley

691.7 Steel construction 49-7730

"General structural design principles of common types of buildings—apartment houses, schools, office. Materials on welding construction expanded. Includes a detailed discussion of welded framing connections, application of welding to the design of plate girders and roof trusses." Library J

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:130 Ja 15 '49 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:47 My '49

HAUSMAN, LEON AUGUSTUS. Beginner's guide to seashore life; il. by the author. 128p $2 Putnam

591.92 Marine fauna 49-9063

Line drawings and non-technical descriptions of sponges, corals, jellyfishes, crustacea, mollusks, etc. found on the Atlantic and Pacific seacoasts of the United States and Canada. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:349 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 14 '49 300w

"Families who spend their summers by the sea will do well to take with them this splendid guide to identification of the common sea creatures found on the beaches and mud flats. It is clear, simple and profusely illustrated with line drawings." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:289 Jl '49 80w

"An important book in this field. . . The arrangement by groups with accompanying pictures make the book most useful. Format is especially noteworthy: good white paper and clean black-and-white drawings. . . Highly recommended for school and club libraries for young people." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 80w

"Apologies to every one concerned for not finding this handy little guide until summer is over. It will be recommended on our nature book list next spring and is strongly recommended now for all who may still be near the sea." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 16 '49 140w

HAVIGHURST, ROBERT JAMES, and TABA, HILDA. Adolescent character and personality. 315p $4 Wiley

136.7354 Adolescence 49-1495

"This is a preliminary report growing out of studies made on 16-year-old youths in a real Midwestern town by the University of Chicago Committee on Human Development. The problem posed is: To what extent is character development influenced by the social environment of the individual and to what extent by the individual's personal make-up? The problem is attacked by examining the interrelations between the various aspects of growth and development, e.g. physiological, social, psychological and educational." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Booklist 45:367 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by K. I. Brown
Christian Century 66:1040 S 7 '49 1800w

"The conclusions, which point to the importance of good social adjustment, especially in school, as a major contribution to the development of 'good character,' suggest that this study would be of great value to teachers and educators." R. H. U.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 My 1 '49 150w

"With about one third of the volume given to an exposition of research methodology, it is easy to see that this co-operative report on wartime adolescence was prepared with commendable meticulousness. However, as often happens in research reports, the implications sometimes verge upon the platitudinous." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 70:442 D 31 '49 500w

"This volume is significant on two counts: First, it moves the study of character and personality a step forward over previous studies and prepares the way for further research that will advance knowledge and understanding of this important problem still more. . . The study is of value not only to the advancement of science but has an immediate practical usefulness for the leaders in the community in which it was conducted." M. A. May + Survey 85:448 Ag '49 700w

HAVIGHURST, WALTER. Signature of time. 284p $3.50 Macmillan

49-5790

This story of two brothers attempting to return to civilian life after the war, is set against a background of the history of an island in Lake Erie where four generations of the family had lived, worked and died.

Booklist 45:382; 46:13 Jl 15 '49; S 1 '49
Bookmark 9:29 N '49 40w

Reviewed by Eleanor McNaught
Canadian Forum 29:240 Ja '50 280w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

"An interest-compelling story."
+ Kirkus 17:337 Jl 1 '49 190w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 100w

" 'Signature of Time' recaptures a century of history with eloquence and artistry. It is regional fiction of enduring worth." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 18 '49 700w

Reviewed by Judith Quehl
N Y Times p43 O 2 '49 150w

"Mr. Havighurst tells his thoughtful and perceptive story with quiet warmth. It is constructive, healing, aware but unfrightened. A fine texture of backgrounds is achieved by the way in which his narrative is laminated with alternate slabs of past and present. The journal of Julian Hazard gives extension and depth to his concepts and is perhaps the book's most distinctive note." Edmund Fuller
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 S 17 '49 550w

"This veteran's problem seems a bit dated and may not arouse every reader's full sympathetic interest." W. R. Manchester
Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 210w

HAVIGHURST, WALTER, and BOYD, MARION MARGARET (MRS WALTER HAVIGHURST). Song of the pines; a story of Norwegian lumbering in Wisconsin; il. by Richard Floethe. (Land of the free ser) 205p $2.50 Winston

49-8982

Nils Thorson, aged fifteen and an orphan, is the hero of this story for grades five to seven. Nils came to America from Norway a hundred years ago and earned his living as a maker of canthooks in Wisconsin's logging camps.

Booklist 45:360 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 25:283 Jl '49 100w

"A fine book for young people." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:293 Jl '49 110w

"Walter Havighurst knows the region of which he writes—the Wisconsin lumber tracts; doubtless he knows their history, their development, the people who settled them. But he hasn't the story-teller's gift; the story pattern is stereotyped, the characters two dimensional, lacking in warmth and human values."
— + Kirkus 17:180 Ap 1 '49 180w

"Absorbing, well-written story of courage and strength brought from the Old World." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 100w

"This latest volume in 'The Land of the Free Series' is the sort of book to make young people think and feel more deeply about their country. Here they will learn, simply and clearly, of the sort of courage which shaped their native land. . . The differing attitudes of various Norwegians toward the new land and pioneering are well defined. Splendid songs run through the book, from the Old World and the New." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 8 '49 360w

"The story is told with warmth and color, and is interwoven with Norwegian manners and customs in a delightful way. This is a fine addition to the Land of the Free Series, and charmingly illustrated. For teen-age readers." R. A. Gordon
+ N Y Times p30 Je 19 '49 150w

"It is sure to be widely read by American boys and girls. We wish that it could be translated into Norwegian. There could be no better bond between the two countries than Nils's story."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 9 '49 140w
Wis Lib Bul 45:108 Je '49

HAWKINS, ANNE. To the swift. 296p $2.75 Harper
49-7696

Novel based on the short-lived but important link in our Westward expansion: the Pony Express. It is the story of one of the Express riders, Sierra Dave Wagenet, whose devotion to his share of the duty was remarkable, and of his young sister Hallie, who cooked for the men, and once even carried the mail.

Booklist 45:228 Mr 1 '49

"Although cliché-ridden, sometimes starry-eyed, this has excitement and action."
Kirkus 16:645 D 15 '48 140w
Library J 74:1556 O 15 '49 20w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 F 27 '49 600w

"The objection to this blend of spectacle and story is that the elements tend to separate. There are pages, as in the council with the warring Piutes, that show that Miss Hawkins knows what she is about, but to get to them one has to stay with as improbable a villain as ever curled a mustache and a hero who is so long-suffering that the reader gets to feel he must be a little addled in the head. The trouble with 'To the Swift' is that it doesn't move half as fast as the Pony Express." Thomas Lask
+ — N Y Times p24 F 27 '49 280w

Reviewed by Ruth Teiser
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 13 '49 90w

"Miss Hawkins renders a service to a somewhat neglected phase of American history in her stirring salute to the Pony Express. Documented with care, told dramatically, and paced with calculated speed, her novel succeeds in re-creating the thrill of the Western relay in 1860."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 9 '49 130w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8B Mr 13 '49 300w

HAWTHORNE, HILDEGARDE (MRS J. M. OSKISON). His country was the world; a life of Thomas Paine. 239p $2.50 Longmans
B or 92 Paine, Thomas 49-7574

A biography of Thomas Paine for ages fourteen and older. Index.

Booklist 45:228 Mr 1 '49
Christian Century 66:686 Je 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 28 '49 210w

"As one reads this well-documented biography, one is increasingly amazed that a man of such brilliance and integrity could have been so slandered, and so praised, and then forgotten so long. An excellent piece of basic reading in democracy."
+ Kirkus 17:4 Ja 1 '49 130w

"Miss Hawthorne feels strongly about her subject and about the controversies that have surrounded him, but, though partisan, she does not lose her perspective. Valuable contribution to literature for the young adult." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 10 '49 400w

"What Howard Fast and W. E. Woodward did in the adult biography field Miss Hawthorne does, and brilliantly, in this book for high school ages. It's too bad that in dealing with so controversial a figure she does not list her sources. However, the text is sprinkled with quotations, and every page gives evidence of careful research and a balancing of conflicting views. Especially good is the explanation of rational deism, so frequently misrepresented as atheism." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p26 Ap 10 '49 160w

Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 100w

"This is not an exciting book, in the usual sense. The author has deliberately avoided dramatizing the episodes that might so easily have been made sensational. Such restraint and good taste are rare, and pleasant to discover in these days of raucous thrillers. It is a book with a mighty message for young readers, who will soon be 'the common people'—the immensely important common people in whom Thomas Paine believed and for whom he did so much." M. P. Allen
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 My 21 '49 800w
School & Society 69:87 Ja 29 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul 45:50 Mr '49

HAWTREY, RALPH GEORGE. Western European union; implications for the United Kingdom. 126p pa $1.50 Royal inst. of int. affairs 341.184 Europe—Politics. Great Britain—Foreign relations. International cooperation 49-5131

"The Price Professor of International Economics at Chatham House here analyzes some of the problems raised by proposals for closer political, military and economic unity among the countries of Western Europe. The background for his work was a series of discussions by a study group that investigated the effect 'a closer union of Western Europe might have upon the position and policies of the United Kingdom.' The emphasis is on the difficulties 'union' would entail and on the desirability of proceeding cautiously, via intergovernmental coöperation, rather than letting the current crisis provoke action which may turn out to be impracticable or, in the long run, undesirable." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by D. F. Fleming
Am Pol Sci R 43:1293 D '49 340w

"This is a cautious, sound, unenthusiastic study of a subject which will not please our enthusiasts for any kind of union now. It is particularly good on matters economic. But Professor Hawtrey is fully aware that the problems involved are much more than economic, and he gives full play to those forces of human habit and sentiment which do in fact set the essential limits of his problem." Crane Brinton

HAWTREY, R. G.—Continued

+ Ann Am Acad 266:216 N '49 300w

Foreign Affairs 28:158 O '49 90w

Times [London] Lit Sup p359 Je 3 '49 1950w

HAYAKAWA, SAMUEL ICHIYE. Language in thought and action [rev] in consultation with Basil H. Pillard. 307p $2.75; text ed $1.90 Harcourt

422 English language—Semantics 49-6125

A revision and enlargement of the author's book Language in Action (Book Review Digest 1941, 1942). In his Foreword the author says: "Events since 1941 have naturally caused me to reexamine the whole of that earlier book. Some statements to be found there, unhappily, have been given a sharper, tragic significance by ensuing events; some statements, on the other hand, especially those in which it was asserted that the semantic discipline could be applied to the solution of many social and individual problems, now appear to me to have been somewhat oversimplified. . . The attempt to repair these deficiencies has resulted in something more than a revised Language in Action. So much has been changed and so much has been added that more than half the material in the present volume is new." (Foreword) Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:66 O 15 '49

Reviewed by Bess Sondel
Chicago Sun O 6 '49 500w

"Hayakawa has produced perhaps the best book yet on the whole subject, and one of the most readable." Stuart Chase

+ Nation 169:471 N 12 '49 1300w

"This book promises a relaxing and entertaining evening for anyone. Its subtly humorous vein underscores its meaningfulness and is a technique certain to be incorporated by more and more authors." R. H. U.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p37 N 20 '49 400w

HAYDEN, ARTHUR. Chats on old silver; ed. and rev. by Cyril G. E. Bunt. new ed 306p il $3.75 Wyn

739.23 Silverware 49-8386

Revised edition of a volume on old silver which first appeared in 1916 (Book Review Digest 1916). Many of the illustrations in this edition are new. Includes Scottish and Irish silver. An appendix gives illustrations of hall marks on London, Provincial, Scottish, and Irish silver. Index.

Booklist 45:316 My 15 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 30w

"Professional collectors who don't know quite everything about antique British silver, amateurs who still have much to learn, and people who merely have an interest in the relation of old silver to its original social milieu will welcome the reissue of this invaluable book, which has long, and unaccountably, been out of print. . . Numerous illustrations of splendid silverwork—mostly of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries—enrich this edition."

+ New Yorker 25:118 My 14 '49 120w

HAYDN, HIRAM COLLINS, and FULLER, EDMUND, eds. Thesaurus of book digests. 831p $5 Crown

803 Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. Plots (drama, novel, etc.) 49-11653

"Digests of the world's permanent writings from the ancient classics to current literature." (Subtitle) Includes novels, plays, poems, and mathematical, historical and philosophical works. The work was compiled by a staff of fifteen specialists under the editorial direction of Hiram Haydn and Edmund Fuller. Indexes.

Booklist 46:155 Ja 1 '50

"Easy-to-use basic reference volume."

+ Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 20w

"It is a useful book, and I expect to use it frequently. I could write a number of columns reporting what I believe to be its shortcomings and ineptitudes, but to be fair I would have to write twice as many columns to report its excellences." Vincent Starrett

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 6 '49 420w

"A clumsy title for a book of considerable usefulness, readability and value. . . Errors include misalphabeting and the usual quota of misspelled names and absurd statements, such as 'Camille' (1852) 'was introduced to the stage by Duse' (born 1859!), and 'The Sign of the Four' takes Holmes and Watson to the city of Agra in India (it doesn't). Cynara is listed only under its unfamiliar Latin title. Like Keller's Reader's Digest of Books this must be used with caution in college libraries." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 74:1754 N 15 '49 140w

"Recommended for theatre and general reference collections, where the addition of novel plots will prove helpful." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:1759 N 15 '49 50w

"Most reference books can be counted on to supply facts and figures in their chosen field. A few furnish good reading and stimulating comment for the general reader, as well. To this more exalted class belongs 'Thesaurus of Book Digests.' " N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p22 D 11 '49 200w

"The kind of book that will achieve a permanent place on library shelves. . . Of course, you won't find everything you may want; there's no such thing as completeness. And there are some odd omissions; for instance, John Steinbeck's novel 'In Dubious Battle,' considered by many to be one of his best, is not mentioned anywhere. Benchley, Thurber, Ogden Nash and Dorothy Parker make the book, but Mary Roberts Rinehart doesn't. Hilaire Belloc doesn't either; no mention. But in general the volume is first rate for its purpose. A feature is a special index for characters in books which is especially useful." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 29 '49 350w

"The résumés are brief and not adequate enough to become a menace to high school and college reading assignments; for it would be impossible to pass an examination on a book by merely reading one of these digests. But the 'Thesaurus' has good reference possibilities. It will be helpful in the choice of a book for reading. It should assist the current 'great books' reading movement. It is a valuable tool for readers' advisers." Louis Shores

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:42 Ja 21 '50 110w

"Primarily a handy work of reference, excellent for schools and libraries, not to mention newspaper offices, its pages also provide plenty of entertaining as well as enlightening reading. The material 'has a freshness that belies the antiquity of some of its subject matter.' " D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7C N 6 '49 350w

Wis Lib Bul p8 D '49

HAYEK, FRIEDRICH AUGUST VON. Individualism and economic order. 272p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

330.4 Individualism. Economics. 48-4149

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by F. D. Graham
Am Econ R 39:775 Je '49 550w

"This volume of essays deals with some of the themes discussed in the author's earlier volume, The Road to Serfdom, but being less a tract for the times, it will probably generate less heat and more light than that much-debated polemic against socialism. In this volume,

Professor Hayek ranges from a discussion of moral philosophy to the methods of the social sciences and from problems of economic policy to questions in pure economic theory. Though many will disagree with some or all of his views, few will deny that he writes with vigor, considerable freshness and originality, and wide learning." Sidney Ratner
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:132 F '49 850w

"It transcends technical economics and it should be read by all who are concerned with the inner history of our time." John Lindberg
+ Ann Am Acad 261:202 Ja '49 390w

Reviewed by Garland Downum
Christian Century 66:561 My 4 '49 1050w

Current Hist 16:101 F '49 40w

Foreign Affairs 27:331 Ja '49 20w

Reviewed by Peter Sovren
New Statesman & Nation 37:678 Je 25 '49 1000w

Reviewed by J. M. Clark
Pol Sci Q 64:108 Mr '49 1050w

HAYES, ALFRED. Girl on the Via Flaminia. 215p $2.50 Harper
49-7883

This novel of the last year of the war in Italy presents a symbolic picture of the relations between conquered and conqueror in a story about an affair between an American GI and a Roman girl.

"As a psychological study the book may honestly be described as acutely sensitive, and impressively realistic. In short, it is the exploiting of an ugly, fairly original set of circumstances carried out artistically by a man with a delicate touch."
+ Cath World 169:401 Ag '49 200w

"In the main, Mr. Hayes suggests rather than states his conflicts, through expert dialogue inevitably reminiscent of Hemingway. With its brilliant economy of detail, its dramatic rise and fall, and its wealth of interior suggestiveness, the story is close to the pattern of stage drama. As such it is essentially tragedy—a minor tragedy in the major tragedy of war and human separateness."
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Ap 7 '49 330w

"An articulate, fine meshed picture of the clash of victor and victim, of national thinking with little common ground, this has the persuasion of its young people in taut perspective."
+ Kirkus 17:64 F 1 '49 160w

"This is a tight, small novel, written more in terms of a play, and it suffers from a permeating self-consciousness and an obvious intention to be significant, intense, universal. Honestly meant, I think, it somehow manages an air of falsity." Gertrude Buckman
— + Nation 168:508 Ap 30 '49 450w

Reviewed by Jack Weeks
New Repub 120:25 Ap 4 '49 950w

"Given Robert's particular background as an average G. I., his amazing grasp of Italian idiom and national character isn't quite plausible. Also, the various attitudes expressed by others in the Pulcini household, effective dramatically, are sometimes too neatly stacked and too sequential. . . However, these are shortcomings quite apart from the central story, the relationship itself, which is convincing, moving and handled with great sensitivity. You will find 'The Girl on the Via Flaminia' immensely readable." J. D. Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 20 '49 800w

"There are passages in the book that come a little too close to Hemingway, although this fault appears less in the dialogue than in the expository writing, and especially in the first two pages. The best of the lessons that Hayes has learned from the older novelist are beyond mere tricks of style. They are the habits of writing under pressure, with painstaking accuracy and of never saying too much. What sets him apart from most of our younger novelists is his feeling for words and his sense of how to make them count." Malcolm Cowley
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 20 '49 1050w

New Yorker 25:111 Mr 26 '49 160w

"The book is a short one, a brutal yet compassionate story by a writer whose reputation was made before the war as a poet. Lisa is a believable feminine character, and the situation a normal one of the time. Don't expect a heavy budget of prose from Alfred Hayes; he doesn't work that way. The novel is slim, but well-worked, and an entirely satisfying job." William Hogan
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 10 '49 650w

"The novel manages to impart much by implication and poetic indirection only, for the characters and the scenes are by no means fully realized. It is as a mood piece, a study in wistfulness and melancholy, that this book is memorable. Mr. Hayes effectively uses images of wind, cold, and loneliness, and emphasizes significant details to give the illusion of completeness. With more substance and intensity, 'The Girl on the Via Flaminia,' conceivably could have been this war's 'A Farewell to Arms,' but in his own manner Alfred Hayes does make his every note ring clear and true." Siegfried Mandel
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ap 2 '49 600w

"The Girl on the Via Flaminia is a good piece of reporting upon a single theme, but the theme is too monotonously repeated to make it a good novel—the unhappiness of the girl, the bitterness of the young Italian and Robert's ineffectual attempts to get somewhere." Olivia Manning
+ — Spec 182:374 Mr 18 '49 350w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 3 '49 210w

Time 53:118 Ap 11 '49 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p197 Mr 26 '49 270w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:163 Je '49 240w

HAYES, HELEN (MRS C. G. MACARTHUR), and KENNEDY, MARY. Star on her forehead. 247p $2.50 Dodd 49-11927

A career story showing how two girls achieve success in the theatre. "The two young heroines and their good angel, the great actress, Kartini Yorke, are shown in summer theatres, plays in New York and London, television and movie studios, and casting agencies. Elizabeth, Kartini Yorke's niece, wants to make her way on her own, without taking advantage of all her aunt can give her, and Hannah Hartwell must make her own way. Both girls have talent and determination, and before the book ends both learn much." (N Y Times)

Bookmark 9:83 Ja '50 30w

"It is recommended to all stage-struck girls, for the success is balanced with plenty of failure and hard work." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 Ja 29 '50 80w

"The convention of career books for older girls has it that the young aspirant must make the grade in a short space of time, and this book, like the others, should be taken with a pinch of salt. But there is so much that is real in 'Star on Her Forehead' (including honest discussion of the problems of gifted young women) that it will be read with great advantage by anyone with an interest in the stage and its special people. Incidentally, anyone who wants to write for the theatre will pick up some not-so-easy facts of that life, too." Marjorie Fischer
N Y Times p29 N 13 '49 220w

HAYTER, STANLEY WILLIAM. New ways of gravure; pref. by Herbert Read. 275p il col pl $5 Pantheon bks.
760 Engraving 49-11557

This "practical guide to line-engraving, etching, dry point, aquatint, bitten textures" is made up of two sections, one on techniques and one on history and philosophy of the art. The illustrations include both examples from the works of old masters and samples of contemporary art. No index.

HAYTER, S. W.—Continued

"The modern artist need not shy away from this volume, as Mr. Hayter is as modern as they come, but he is no sloppy worker and insists on painstaking care in all steps. His technical methods are sound and, altho stressing the newest, he does so with all the ability of the true craftsman. The author's writing style is as clear as his graven line, and one is never at a loss to understand his message." Gary Sheahan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 6 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 100w

HAYWARD, CHARLES HAROLD. Cabinet making for beginners. 200p il $2.50 Lippincott

684 Cabinet work 49-7791

This book of British origin presents the essentials of cabinet making, including the handling of tools, cutting of joints, and methods of construction. It also gives a series of comparatively elementary designs suitable for the man who is taking up the subject. Index.

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 40w

HAYWOOD, CAROLYN. Eddie and the fire engine; il. by [the author]. 189p $2 Morrow 49-9783

Little Eddie (Book Review Digest 1947), the small boy with the collector's instinct, in this book is one year older. This time he collects "valuable property" to the extent of an old fire engine and a goat named Gardenia. For grades two to four.

Booklist 45:400 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Ag 27 '49 150w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:408 S '49 60w

"Eddie and his friends are so real and such fun that they should be here to stay. The writer has the unusual gift of recognizing sure-fire situations that will appeal to small readers, and telling the stories in the sort of language they accept as their own. Third graders can read it to themselves."
+ Kirkus 17:300 Je 15 '49 160w

"Another can't-miss favorite by an author who writes with a child's sense of humor about the everyday life of boys and girls." F. M. Hensey
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1536 O 15 '49 30w

"Such a happy picture of normal American home life would make every European child want to come over here at once. Many fathers are going to have trouble with a father in a book who refuses his son a goat, but buys him a fire engine. We should be grateful for a story which makes a father so human. Eddie's mother is fine, too, and clever enough to get him to help wash her windows." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 2 '49 200w

"Carolyn Haywood's fictional youngsters are as genuine, as unself-conscious as the kids next door and even funnier. It is no wonder that 6-to-10-year-olds love her easy-to-read stories or that grown-ups can read them aloud with as fresh a pleasure as do the children. This one will give them their heartiest laugh since they first read 'Penrod.'" E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 7 '49 110w

New Yorker 25:176 D 3 '49 50w

"Story and illustrations are even better than the first 'Eddie' and quite as good as the ever-popular 'Betsy' books." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ag 13 '49 130w

Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 60w

HAYWOOD, HARRY. Negro liberation. 245p $2.75 Int. pubs.

325.26 Negroes 48-8881

"The author directs his attention solely to that third or more of the Negro population living in the Black Belt, which is defined as those 470 counties in the southeastern states with a Negro population in excess of thirty per cent. The remaining nine million Negroes are almost ignored, on the assumption that the pattern of race relations for the entire country is determined within the plantation economy of the Black Belt. Therefore any change must begin with the source of the problem. Haywood visualizes the problem as identical with that of a landless peasantry and oppressed national minority in Eastern Europe. It follows that the solution is 'land for the landless' and autonomy for the Black Belt." (Am Pol Sci R) Index. Bibliographical reference notes.

"Although the book draws upon respectable collections of statistics, the facts are so handled as to make them lead to the conclusions foreordained by the party line, which so pervades the book as to make conversion of non-Communists unlikely. Despite Haywood's vigorous denials, the plan would be another version of segregation, whereas the basic Negro demand is for full acceptance into the American democratic tradition. Moreover, this starting of emancipation with the rural, plantation Negro is unrealistic. To date, the urban Negro has been the first to become politically conscious, and he has gradually brought enlightenment to his country cousins." D. S. Strong
Am Pol Sci R 43:176 F '49 320w

"The information presented in this hard-hitting book is a valuable, almost up-to-the-minute summary portraying some of the worst aspects of the exploitation of the Negro in the United States. This reviewer finds himself in substantial agreement with most of the factual information. . . The disagreement stems initially from the reviewer's rejection of a single explanation for any problem as complicated as the disabilities inflicted upon Negroes in most parts of the nation. . . Negro Liberation is an indispensable reference for those who would be well informed on the current program of the Communists for Negroes in the United States. It also deserves a careful reading by those who do not yet know the facts of life about the current discontent among many Negroes because of their second-class status." R. W. Logan
+ — Ann Am Acad 261:211 Ja '49 480w

HAZELTINE, ALICE ISABEL, comp. Children's stories to read or tell, for pleasure and understanding. 224p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury.

49-7550

Thirty-seven stories selected for parents, teachers, and workers with children to read or tell to children of grades four to seven. They are grouped as follows: stories of learning to live, of ancient wisdom, of enchantment and adventure, of courage and kindness, and of famous men and women.

Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49

Christian Century 66:467 Ap 13 '49 30w

"A very useful book for parents, teachers, and other counselors, containing a large variety of selections which will appeal to boys and girls as good stories. They also have a significance which, brought to the child at the right time, may be a real factor in his growth. . . Miss Hazeltine's selection shows that she is sensitive to good writing, and however meaningful the stories she has chosen, the moral is never too obvious." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ag 9 '49 180w

"Sunday-school teachers and many others, in quest of stories with an ethical bearing will welcome Miss Hazeltine's generous collection. She has chosen from sources, ancient and modern, tales as widely separated in origin as Howard Pyle's 'The Apple of Contentment' and Pearl Buck's 'The Big Wave.' All have significant inner meanings, but the choice is in no way hackneyed." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:296 Jl '49 110w

"An excellent and unusual collection of stories."
+ Kirkus 17:84 F 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 8 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. R. Brown
N Y Times p22 Jl 17 '49 190w

"Chosen with skill and discrimination.'
+ School & Society 69:197 Mr 12 '49 30w

HEAD, MATTHEW, pseud. See Canaday, J. E.

HEADLAM, ARTHUR CAYLEY, bp. Fourth Gospel as history; with a biographical essay by Agnes Headlam-Morley. 106p $2.25 Macmillan

226.5 Bible. New Testament—St John

"The late Bishop of Gloucester left this manuscript complete but unrevised at his death. This and a short essay, 'The Historical Value of St. Mark's Gospel,' were to have been included in a comprehensive critical study, 'The Credibility of Early Church History.' The section was to serve as a preface to an extension and revision of his Life and Teaching of Jesus the Christ. These parts have been published, together with a 40-page biographical essay by Agnes Headlam-Morley." Christian Century

"I should say that the most valuable part of the book is the opening biographical essay. It gives a good survey of the work of a devoted servant of the Lord Jesus Christ. Headlam's books on the New Testament doubtless served their day and generation, but already they belong to the past." C. T. Craig
+ Christian Century 66:273 Mr 2 '49 550w

Manchester Guardian p3 S 6 '48 420w

"The two theological essays are characteristic pieces. They display admirably Headlam's ability to master the details of a complex problem and then state the issues, as he saw them, clearly and simply. Here, too, is the robust common sense and the trenchant, sometimes devastating, criticism of opposing views. The characteristic limitations are also here: the too ready assumption that any difficulty which he did not see did not exist, and the tendency to regard as perverse any insistence on such difficulties."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p29 Ja 8 '49 850w

HEADLEY, ELIZABETH. She's my girl! 223p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.
49-6499

When Jo Redmond realized that she could not go to college in the fall because of her father's illness, she decided to open a summer boarding kennel for dogs. By the end of the summer she had earned enough to start her on her college course. For grades seven to nine.

Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

"Elizabeth Headley has done better books, but her audience is not too critical, and this is a competent enough, though undistinguished, tale."
+ Kirkus 17:430 Ag 15 '49 90w

"Teen-age girls who enjoyed the author's earlier books may be a bit disappointed in this, but the dog interest and teen-age problems will find a ready audience." Margaret Miller
+ — Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 80w

"Here is an old, old theme given a new lease on life and a new sparkle."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 13 '49 90w

HEADSTROM, BIRGER RICHARD. Birds' nests; field guide. 128p il $2.75 Washburn 598.2 Birds—Eggs and nests 49-10257

"An identification manual to the nests of birds of the United States east of the one hundredth meridian." (Subtitle) There are descriptions of almost 300 birds' nests. Index of birds.

Booklist 46:60 O 15 '49

"A useful addition to the nature shelf."
+ Kirkus 17:448 Ag 15 '49 180w

Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 40w

HEARD, GERALD. Notched hairpin. 226p $2.50 Vanguard 49-11290

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Oct 28 '49 30w

Kirkus 17:444 Ag 15 '49 70w

"H. F. Heard now comes along with another of his tales about Mr. Mycroft which has much of the subtlety and erudition of the earlier book. Unfortunately, it lacks the superb plot of 'A Taste for Honey.'"
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 O 23 '49 160w

"The whole is a unique book, as each Heard has been unique even among its companions. I have been struggling throughout this review to avoid Hamlet's phrase, 'caviar to the general,' particularly since the play to which the Prince applied it was obviously at best fairly good red salmon eggs. But I give up the struggle; caviar is the only suitable term. It is, however, the best caviar—as incontestably excellent as the March Hare's butter." A. B.
N Y Times p35 O 16 '49 500w

— New Yorker 25:128 O 22 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 6 '49 80w

HEARD, HENRY FITZGERALD. See Heard, G.

HEARN, LAFCADIO. Selected writings; ed. by Henry Goodman; with an introd. by Malcolm Cowley. (centennial ed) 566p $4 Citadel
818 49-11635

Contains three complete books: Kwaidan; Some Chinese Ghosts; and Chita; plus stories and essays, arranged under three main headings: American sketches, Caribbean sketches, and Japan. There is a brief biography of Hearn by the editor. Bibliography.

Chicago Sun p6X D 25 '49 30w

"Presents as thoroughly readable a sampling as it is possible to get between two covers. The overall effect is an enticement to read further into Herun-San, with the conviction that the task would prove to be no hardship at all." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 74:1752 N 15 '49 110w

Nation 169:551 D 3 '49 110w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 1 '50 200w

"The editor has combed through Hearn's entire output and has, in a large satisfying measure, chosen what is representative and what should be of permanent interest and value. In Hearn's case, especially, a process of selection is highly desirable, because Hearn is unequal, not in stylistics or the de Maupassant-like scrupulousness of his craftsmanship, but certainly in the varying value of the content itself." H. E. Wedeck
+ N Y Times p9 N 13 '49 700w

HEARN, LAFCADIO—Continued

"An excellent selection, by an enthusiastic admirer, from the work of this now rather neglected writer."
New Yorker 25:82 Ja 7 '50 120w

"Through a shrewd winnowing of repetitious and overwritten pieces, Editor Goodman manages to show Hearn at his best, but still does not succeed in lifting him into the first rank of 19th Century U.S. writers. Lafcadio Hearn's brightest virtues were the human compassion that sweetened all of his work, and his ability to spin out atmosphere like yard after yard of fine Japanese silk."
Time 54:114 D 5 '49 1050w

HEATH-STUBBS, JOHN FRANCIS ALEXANDER. Charity of the stars. 110p $2.50 Sloane 821 49-7329

This volume of poetry by a young English writer contains a selection of works from volumes previously published in England and others from periodicals.

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ag 1 '49 50w

"I find his poems admirable in their virtuosity; they offer some very skilful adaptations of period-manners or of period 'atmosphere,' and a few uncommonly sensitive translations; but when they attempt to handle a direct experience on their own, they seem only to be pleasant little inventions—which is to say that they are not inventive enough, either in speech or in dramatization." Henry Rago
+ — Commonweal 50:72 Ap 29 '49 270w

"Perhaps his youth accounts for the lacks one feels, but he shows talent and his growth will be worth watching."
Kirkus 16:651 D 15 '48 90w

"One of the few talented English poets of the present time whose reading of Eliot, Auden or Hopkins is not apparent in his work. . . Outside the limits of a fashion or a period he simply writes good poetry that would have been recognized as such at any time during the past hundred years." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 74:497 Mr 15 '49 70w

"This work seems to me quite uninteresting, its principal strength being the smell of the lamp. Not inept, not quite scholastic; not sentimental exactly, but just, oh, rather genteel and literary, the subjects out of reading, and nothing very intensely felt." Rolfe Humphries
Nation 168:191 F 12 '49 130w

" 'Elegy,' the finest poem in this collection, well illustrates Mr. Heath-Stubbs's ability to make his point by a careful concatenation of images rather than by the method most modern poets have learned from Eliot of highly compressed allusiveness. This is the most open-surfaced of any recent poetry, and perhaps, as Stephen Spender has claimed, modern poets have much to learn from it." David Daiches
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Je 12 '49 300w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 25:110 Mr 26 '49 20w

"The Charity of the Stars is a selection from four previous books; but as there is no indication of chronology, it is impossible to say whether there is or is not development. There are certainly isolated successes; the rhythms of To the House of Fame are interesting enough to merit extensive quotation; the False Return sequence exhibits unusual purity of diction; and one spare poem, Mozart, outweighs much of the Palace of Art erected elsewhere in the volume." Hugh Kenner
Poetry 74:169 Je '49 750w

"There is a new poet among us worthy of the name, John Heath-Stubbs, an Englishman, whose first book under an American imprint gives one the instant shock of good poetry. The magnificence of the writing is of such magnitude that 'The Charity of the Stars' may well be the most distinguished book of poems to appear in 1949." I. L. Salomon
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 F 12 '49 320w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Engaged to murder. 224p $2.25 Doubleday 49-10564

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 30 '49 50w
Kirkus 17:375 Jl 15 '49 100w

"Smooth plotting and Rick, himself (as smooth as they come), can't quite pull this book above average." E. B.
+ — N Y Times p29 S 18 '49 150w
Sat R of Lit 32:60 O 8 '49 40w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Sinister shelter. 191p $2.25 Doubleday 49-9321

Detective story.

Kirkus 17:189 Ap 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Jl 10 '49 110w

"Slower than some Kilgerrin episodes, it's still a sharp and rewarding spy story." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 3 '49 230w

"Regulation material, well handled."
+ New Yorker 25:104 Je 11 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 7 '49 80w

HECTOR, LUTHER GRANT, and others. Physics for arts and sciences. 731p il $5.50 Blakiston
530 Physics 48-11620

"An elementary text for use by college students with no previous knowledge of the subject. Mathematically, nothing beyond simple algebra is required; and the problems, grouped by difficulty, are for the most part practical and theoretical rather than mathematical. Other features are two-color diagrams, a short summarizing introduction before each chapter, and an outline of the important points at the end of each. Part II was originally published in 1943 as Electronic Physics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 33:91 N '48
School & Society 69:31 Ja 8 '49 60w

HEDLEY, GEORGE PERCY. Symbol of the faith; a study of the Apostles' creed. 173p $2.50 Macmillan
238.1 Apostles' creed 48-8598

A series of sermons on the various articles of the Apostles' Creed, written originally for the Chapel of Mills College. The author's purpose was "to interpret the Apostles' Creed in terms both of its history and of modern ways of thinking." Index.

"An intelligent, scholarly and readable account of the Apostles' Creed. . . This reviewer placed this book in his parish library immediately." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 162:15 D 1 '48 180w

"There seems to be a strong note of romantic archaism in the book, evidenced by the indiscriminate use of the title 'St.,' by the plea for the word 'Ghost' in 'Holy Ghost,' and by the use of ancient language to conceal modern doubt. Few modern Christians can cast the first stone, however, and I can only suggest that the book needs tightening up and further investigation of what the fathers said rather than of what later writers said they said." R. M. Grant
Crozer Q 26:171 Ap '49 700w

"Christians who are often puzzled when asked to repeat the Apostles' Creed will find new meaning in the ancient phrases after reading this carefully wrought and easily read study of the historic document."
+ Kirkus 16:512 O 1 '48 130w

HEDMAN, MARTHA (MRS HENRY ARTHUR HOUSE). Uncle, Aunt, and Jezebel. 260p $3 Scribner

B or 92 Finland—Social life and customs 49-10768

A loving, amusing, only slightly fictionized, picture of life in a middle-class home in Helsinki, forty years ago. The author, who has since had a considerable success as an actress in Europe and America lived with her uncle and aunt as a young girl, sympathized with both in their quarrels and reconciliations, pondering over the mystery of the unknown Jezebel, even while she pursued her own ambition to become an actress with or without their approval.

Booklist 45:365; 46:62 Jl 1 '49; O 15 '49

"A pleasing minor memento."
+ Kirkus 17:387 Jl 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 130w

"There are much charm and originality in this book, warm humor, moments of real sorrow, friendship, fun and affection. Miss Hedman has whetted our appetite for more. We want to learn what happened further to the young girl who waved good-bye to her uncle and aunt at the pier in Helsingfors, as she set out bravely to pursue a dramatic career that eventually took her to America." Holger Lundberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 2 '49 470w

"Those who remember Martha Hedman as the brilliant Swedish actress with triumphs here and abroad will be interested in her recounting of the difficulties she had escaping the matrimonial schemes of her doting aunt and stubbornly insisting on a career first. The adventures of the whole family, including Hilda, the remarkable servant; Kurre, the parrot; Hanski, the dog, and Lisa, the cat, are related with infectious gaiety. Telling her story with a light touch and a winning lack of pretense, Martha Hedman has begun to carve another career for herself." Anne Richards
+ N Y Times p40 O 2 '49 340w

"Slightly arch at times, but almost certain to go straight to the hearts of gastronomes, who will be in full accord with Miss Hedman's sentiments about the supreme importance of good cooking."
+ New Yorker 25:126 O 22 '49 160w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 32:29 O 22 '49 500w

HEGEL, GEORG WILHELM FRIEDRICH. Early theological writings; tr. by T. M. Knox; with an introd., and fragments tr. by Richard Kroner. 339p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

193.5 Theology 48-4598

"These early writings of Hegel were never published in his lifetime and were only printed in German in 1907. Now the Chicago University Press has published his 'Positivity of the Christian Religion,' 'The Spirit of Christianity and Its Fate,' 'Love' and fragments of an early system of philosophy." (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 45:226 Mr 1 '49

"This book marks a very auspicious beginning for the 'Chicago Editions,' and both the collaborators and the publisher deserve warm congratulations." Roger Hazelton
+ Christian Century 66:272 Mr 2 '49 500w

Current Hist 16:36 Ja '49 20w

Reviewed by Glenn Negley
Ethics 59:227 Ap '49 390w

Reviewed by James Gutmann
J Philos 47:24 Ja 5 '50 300w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 10 '48 170w

HEINDLHOFER, KALMAN. Evaluation of residual stress. 196p il $4 McGraw

620.18 Strains and stresses. Metals 49-367

"A fuller treatment of the causes, effects and measurement of residual stresses in formed metals than has hitherto been available under one cover. In the chapters on measurement, X-ray, mechanical, and electrical methods of detection and measurement are all considered. The work is addressed primarily to graduate students in mechanical engineering, consequently a few problems for students are included. However both the content and the level of the discussions make it useful as a source of information to practicing engineers in many fields. A selection of the related literature is cited in footnotes." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1517 O 15 '48 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:31 Mr '49

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:282 Je '49 200w

HEINE, HEINRICH. Poetry and prose; sel. and ed. with an introd. by Frederic Ewen; poetry tr. by Louis Untermeyer [and others] incl. 110 new trs. by Aaron Kramer; prose newly tr. by [the editor]. 874p $6 Citadel

838 48-9220

Selections from the poetry and prose of Heinrich Heine. The poetry includes some well-known translations, and 110 new translations by Aaron Kramer. The prose is classified under such heads as: Self portrait; The story teller; Religion, art and life; Israel; Germany; and The citizen of the world.

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 600w

"Frederic Ewen has selected and edited 'The Poetry and Prose of Heinrich Heine' with extensive knowledge and a good deal of discrimination. . . Heine has long been the German writer whom I enjoy and read most, and I miss few of my favorite poems or passages in this volume, which is rich and varied. Only a part of the verse renderings seem to me fairly satisfactory."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 N 21 '48 170w

"The publishers and the editor—who also writes an introduction, and who has newly translated all the prose—of this volume are to be warmly congratulated. It is an attractive, readable and authoritative work book, nicely planned and well executed both mechanically and in context." V. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 2 '49 120w

"This book deserves a hearty welcome, for Heine in English has been hard to come by of late, and here are more than 800 pages of his poetry and prose in translations of unusual excellence. Readers who meet him for the first time in this volume, or who have known him only as the author of 'Lorelei,' [and] 'Du bist wie eine Blume,' . . . will have the pleasure of discovering one of the most vigorous and versatile of writers—a man in whose head, as Matthew Arnold said long ago, 'fermented all the ideas of modern Europe.' They will hear a voice that speaks today in as freshly minted words, and with as contemporary a ring, as it did during the first half of the nineteenth century." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:40 D 4 '48 1550w

HEINER, MRS MARIE HAYS. Hearing is believing; introd. by Rupert Hughes. 126p $2 World pub.

B or 92 Deafness 49-7312

In autobiographical form the president of the Cleveland Hearing and Speech center presents the story of her own victory over deafness, and her struggles to help others among the 15,000,000 hard of hearing in this country.

Booklist 45:220 Mr 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

HEINER, M. H.—Continued
Reviewed by G. W. Martin
N Y Times p12 Mr 13 '49 470w

"The reading of this book should not be limited to the 15,000,000 of us whose hearing needs aid. Rather, it should be read by all who associate with the deaf." L. D. B.
San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 20 '49 220w

"Fascinating as the details of her own life are, the great value of this book is what it offers the discouraged millions who are at this moment going down that dread descent from hearing into silence. 'Wake up, hard-of-hearing America! You, too, can meet the challenge.' And if it is a must for the handicapped, it is even more so for those other millions, family and friends, who are in daily contact with the underhearing." E. E. Calkins
+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ap 2 '49 700w

"Here is a book probably written primarily to encourage the deaf and hard of hearing. It will do that as few other books have done. In addition, as happens once in awhile, a book about a particular group of handicapped people has such human interest, such charm in the telling, such insight into character, and such wit, that any reader will find it fascinating." Henry Redkey
+ Survey 85:627 N '49 370w
Wis Lib Bul 45:63 Ap '49

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Red planet; a colonial boy on Mars; il. by Clifford Geary. 211p $2.50 Scribner
49-11347

"Having covered interplanetary travel in his first two books, the author now turns to colonization of Mars. Chicanery and villainy are thwarted by Jim and his friend, Frank, to say nothing of a Martian roundhead who must be met to be believed." Library J

Booklist 46:126 D 1 '49

"Readers young and old will enjoy this fast-moving adventure novel." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 180w

"The book is based on scientific knowledge, and the author's careful attention to detail and his matter-of-fact way of telling his tale carry the reader along with him." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 12 '50 250w

"The most thrilling and tingling kind of science fiction story, by an experienced hand."
+ Kirkus 17:473 S 1 '49 130w

"Excellent. . . The book not only maintains a high level of interest, but has undertones of political philosophy that the thoughtful reader should not miss." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1547 O 15 '49 100w

"Mr. Heinlein is so straightforward and matter of fact in recounting all this that it's pretty hard not to believe every word of it. Earth-bound boys of 12 to 16 will find it fascinating." Creighton Peet
+ N Y Times p50 O 23 '49 200w
Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 50w
Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

HELMERICKS, MRS CONSTANCE, and HELMERICKS, HARMON. Our Alaskan winter. 271p il $3.50 Little 917.98 Alaska—Description and travel. Eskimos

49-2015

"This is the third and last book in a series describing a trip of two winters and three summers of exploring by homemade canoe above the Arctic Circle of North America. . . The present book is the story of the winter spent among those Eskimos, until with the coming of the next summer and the opening of the Arctic Ocean to boat travel once more we finally canoed our way from Alaska to Canada, to resume contact with civilization and ultimately fly out to the United States. In it we tell of the Eskimo life as lived in a land of no houses, for we lived in our tent converted by winter into an igloo, in the company of two young Eskimos who taught us much about Eskimos and Eskimo ways." Foreword

Booklist 45:217;279 Mr 1 '49; Ap 15 '49
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 12 '49 480w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '49

"Completely devoid of the stuffiness sometimes a part of explorers records and full of youthful vitality and enthusiasm." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 25:240 My '49 60w

"Interesting, informative reading."
+ Kirkus 17:100 F 15 '49 160w

"Sportsmen as well as readers of adventure stories will find this book entertaining. Recommended." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 130w

"The Helmericks warn us that this volume finishes their account of their Arctic life, but surely they will not be allowed to stop here. They have a further contribution to make in putting to use their knowledge of this little known area. Meantime, both the Arctic-wise and armchair adventurers will enjoy this modest account of 'The Friendly Arctic' brought up to date." Margaret Hubbard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 17 '49 600w

"This is the best book yet by the ingenious Helmericks. It has the flavor of authenticity and reality, even to the slightly patronizing attitude toward the glamorous Mounties." R. L. Neuberger
+ N Y Times p18 My 8 '49 470w
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 10 '49 210w

"Much nonsense has been written about Alaska. The Helmericks are expert dispellers of this." Maurine Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ap 23 '49 360w
Wis Lib Bul 45:86 My '49

HEMMING, JAMES. Teaching of social studies in secondary schools; with a foreword by Sir Cyril Burt. 176p $1.60 Longmans

375.3 Social sciences—Study and teaching. Education, Secondary—Curricula

"This book has been written in response to a large number of requests for a concise description of the scope, content, and purpose of a social-studies course." (School & Society) The book is of English origin. Indexes.

School & Society 69:342 My 7 '49 30w

"Hemming's work would have been clearer if he had distinguished, as Quillen and Hanna do, between 'social studies' and 'social education.' Hemming also commends the problems approach highly and makes some excellent suggestions for units designed to stimulate critical thinking. . . Those educators who wish to learn what some of our British colleagues are thinking and doing in the same area, and who like to read pedagogical works not too heavily loaded with 'pedagese,' will find Hemming's book instructive and charming." R. E. Keohane
+ School R 57:383 S '49 330w

HENDERSON, ARCHIBALD. Campus of the first state university. 412p il maps $5 Univ. of N.C. press

378 North Carolina. University 49-9582

History of the founding and expansion of the University of North Carolina. The author is Kenan professor of mathematics at Chapel Hill. Index.

"A pleasantly readable history of a great university." G. W Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 14 '49 500w

"This book is a complete record of the growth of the Village University. Dr. Henderson says that its writing was undertaken with no little diffidence and has been a labor of love and far-reaching research. And indeed this is so. It is a 'love' book, affectionately written and carefully documented." Betty Smith

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 10 '49 470w

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). Here come the Perkinses! il by the author. 183p $2.50 Bobbs

49-11203

"Most of the action takes place aboard the 'Ella J. Perkins,' which Cap'n Perkins has turned into a 'seagoing dude ranch,' taking people out on a schooner for a taste of Maine sailing. Perk, Cap'n Perkins son and first cabin boy . . . is sore beset by many problems: a debt of five dollars and twenty cents to his sworn enemy Bucktooth Dilley, 'uncomplicating' Ronald Simpson, a summer boy, the task of keeping the passengers safe and happy. . . Once the 'Ella' is on the high seas, things start happening, with ensuing excitement and suspense before Perk finds how to handle and solve the difficulties of Bucktooth, Ronald and the landlubber passengers." San Francisco Chronicle

"Recommended as a good title to use with the comic addict and the older slow reader." F. M. Hensey

+ Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner

N Y Times p11 D 25 '49 180w

" 'Here Come the Perkinses' is a made-to-order story for any small boy who has ever wanted to go adventuring on the sea. It is thoroughly modern, and quite slap-happy in the inimitable Le Grand manner. Girls, at least tomboy-type girls, will like this story as much as their brothers do."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 13 '49 350w

HENLE, FRITZ. Virgin Islands [pictures] with text by Vivienne Tallal Winterry. 72p $3.50 Hastings house

917.297 Virgin Islands of the United States

49-9477

After a five-page introductory sketch, this book is composed of a series of full page photographs with brief captions, showing the scenic beauties of the islands and glimpses of the inhabitants.

Booklist 45:374 Jl 1 '49

Kirkus 17:321 Je 15 '49 70w

"Mr. Henle is well equipped with both technical skill and a trained traveler's eye. Readers will find this volume a pleasant guide for either a planned or a vicarious cruise." R. T.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 O 16 '49 150w

"The ex-Life, sometime fashion photographer has collected a thin book of photographs, some arty, some conventional, some corny, some nostalgic." Horace Sutton

Sat R of Lit 32:35 Jl 2 '49 50w

HENNE, FRANCES, ed. See Chicago. University Graduate library school. Library institute. Youth, communication and libraries

HENNESSEY, WILLIAM JAMES, ed. America's best small houses; sel. by a jury of architectural photographers: Robert C. Cleveland [and others]. 196p il $3.95 Viking

728.6 Architecture, Domestic—Designs and plans

49-7465

Photographs, plans, and brief descriptive text of 40 houses recently built at costs ranging from $6,000 to $15,000. Most of the houses shown are modern in style tho a few are traditional.

Booklist 45:206 F 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '49

"A fine piece of book making [and] an excellent handbook for aspiring homebuilders."

+ Kirkus 17:82 F 1 '49 190w

"Unlike many other similar books, this is not wholly given over to California houses, for example. Nor is it a book of 'modern' dwellings only. The houses pictured here are modern enough, to be sure, some of them even 'Modern,' but the editor's taste is catholic, and readers who have their own notions about how a house should look are likely to find their kind of home pictured here along with others." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 24 '49 700w

Wis Lib Bul 45:45 Mr '49

HENNESSEY, WILLIAM JAMES, and ATKIN, WILLIAM WILSON. Encyclopedia of home care and repair. 429p il $3.95 Lantern press (N Y)

643.7 Home economics. Dwellings. Repairing

48-11083

"As the title indicates, the book is an encyclopedia of facts and methods on home care. It is a guidebook of complete and accurate information on what is usually thought of as 'a man's work about the house.' Directions are given clearly and simply, understandable to those with the least mechanical experience. . . The explanations are supplemented by carefully labeled line drawings that illustrate the use of tools and show methods. Included is a practical list of basic tools for the household and directions for their care and use." J Home Econ

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '49

"The information in the book is written for all parts of the country and in some instances may not be right for certain climates. But in such cases, the person interested would consult other authorities. In the home, the book will guide the week-end repairman; in the classroom it will be a valuable reference for courses in housing and home management. It would be especially helpful for boys' classes in home economics." Sylvia Shiras

+ J Home Econ 40:537 N '48 220w

"The first, so far as I know, book of this type to be arranged in dictionary form, with careful cross indexing, so that it is easy to locate a subject under various heads. . . There is good and simple instruction on all sorts of repair problems, from leaks and squeaks to floor finishings and do's and don't's of frozen pipes."

+ Kirkus 16:142 Mr 1 '48 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:29 Mr '49

Reviewed by R. S. Robbins

N Y Times p51 D 5 '48 110w

+ Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 25 '48 240w

HENRY VIII, king of England. Love letters; ed. with an introd. and comments by Henry Savage. 112p il $3.50 Univ. of Denver

B or 92 [49-26203]

Contains the love letters of Henry VIII and his wives, from the letter written by Katherine of Aragon on her deathbed, to a letter from Katherine Parr, Henry's sixth wife. The French originals of some of Henry's letters to Anne Boleyn are included, with translations, as well as several photographic facsimiles of the originals. Biographical details about each of the six royal wives complete the book.

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 11 '49 310w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 1 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:83 Ja 7 '50 120w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband

Sat R of Lit 33:25 Ja 7 '50 180w

Time 54:114 D 5 '49 300w

HENRY, MARGUERITE. Little-or-Nothing from Nottingham; il. by Wesley Dennis. (Whittlesey house publication) 64p $2 McGraw

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-10143

"The story grew out of an item in the National Geographic about a real dog that belonged to a traveling circus. 'Little-or-Nothing'

HENRY, MARGUERITE—Continued
buries a bone each day under a circus wagon, but never can find the bones. When the circus closes for the season the dog discovers why the next season will be one of happy unearthings." (Springf'd Republican) For ages 6-9.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:210 D '49 60w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 10 '49 170w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 20 '49 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

"Both pictures and story are amusing and the circus is always a popular subject." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:406 S '49 90w

"Really this deserves to be one of the beloved picture story books of the year. It is winsome and very, very funny, and its hero, the vagabond pup, has a well defined personality."
+ Kirkus 17:391 Ag 1 '49 190w

"Recommended." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 90w

"A gay, unusual circus dog story. . . 'Little or Nothing' is an appealing hero. Mrs Henry tells about him in her usual brisk style, good journalism. Mr. Dennis's casual pictures make the 'little mut dog' very real." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 11 '49 150w

Reviewed by Marjorie Burger
N Y Times p41 S 11 '49 130w

Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 120w

HENRY, MARGUERITE. Sea Star, orphan of Chincoteague; il. by Wesley Dennis. 176p $2.75 Rand McNally

Horses—Legends and stories 49-11474

A sequel to Misty of Chincoteague (Book Review Digest 1947). In this story Paul and Maureen sell Misty to some movie people in order to send their uncle to college. At first they seem unconsolable over their loss, but an orphan colt brings them happiness. For grades 4-7.

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

Chicago Sun p8X N 13 '49 200w

"Another beautifully written story on the ever-popular theme of the strong bond that can exist between children and animals. Wesley Dennis' pictures, as before, perfectly complement the story." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 240w

"A story that nine- to 12-year-olds will thoroughly enjoy." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 15 '49 250w

"Fact and fiction adroitly merged in a heartwarming story that is a sure favorite."
+ Kirkus 17:586 O 15 '49 70w

"Boys and girls who have eagerly followed the adventures of Misty will enjoy this story. However, one is apt to regret the intrusion of the sophistication of movie making on the natural, wild character, of the island." Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1539 O 15 '49 80w

"Recommended for ages 9-12." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 70w

"A second book about Chincoteague has not the impact of the first, but this one is both a good sequel and a good document, ending with a map of the island and a footnote about the truth of the story from the author. . . Mr. Dennis's paintings outshine every one else's horse pictures. His color work here is superb." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 13 '49 370w

"All those who are expected by the 7-to-12-year-olds to pull a new and good horse story out of the hat on demand will be grateful for this." G. C. Castor
+ N Y Times p20 N 13 '49 140w

"'Sea Star' is as fine in every way as the earlier books and should be a medal winner, too."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 13 '49 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 30w

Wis Lib Bul p11 N '49

HENRY, RALPH B., and PANNELL, LUCILE, comps. My American heritage; introd. by Marguerite Henry; il. by John Dukes McKee. 318p $3 Rand McNally

810.8 American poetry—Collections. Quotations 49-6967

"A collection of songs, poems, speeches, sayings, and other writings, all American in flavor or expression. Here, within three sections entitled Childhood, Youth, and America, are the old favorites which are often difficult to locate. Useful for school libraries especially and for family reading. All ages." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

Chicago Sun p6X N 13 '49 320w

"A compilation of those generally forgotten bits of wholly American writing on which you and your forbears were nourished and stirred and on which you hope your children also will be." Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 20 '49 550w

"A family collection, this, of everybody's favorites, prose and verse, from the annals of American writing. The sophisticates will dub it corny, in all probability, but even they will confess it good corn."
Kirkus 17:574 O 1 '49 100w

"Should be useful in children's rooms." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 70w

"Sentimental appeal is the common characteristic of the selections included in this nostalgic miscellany." Elizabeth Hodges
N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '49 140w

"I believe that those who don't mind spending a nostalgic hour or two—in fact, rather like it—will smile delightedly (and maybe a little sadly) as the ghosts of their youth are summoned up by these pages. . . No collection is perfect for everyone. Meantime, this one will do to go on with. I'd feel better, though, if the author of the Introduction hadn't referred to the book as a 'gladsome gathering of flowers.' It isn't ALL Ella Wheeler Wilcox, really." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 1 '49 950w

"Good author, title and first line index. Will be useful in any library."
+ Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

HENTIG, HANS VON. Criminal and his victim; studies in the sociobiology of crime. 461p $6 Yale univ. press

364.3 Crime and criminals. Criminal psychology 48-8098

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by E. H. Sutherland
Am J Soc 54:575 My '49 310w

Reviewed by E. J. Galway
Am Soc R 14:177 F '49 650w

"The author uses statistics, but indicates a laudable caution in the use of those that are available from prisons, those concerned with arrests, and points out that frequently they do not take into account enough factors in their breakdown to ensure that the factor considered is not mixed up with some other one. Perhaps his treatment is most open to criticism in that he does not clearly indicate what if any weight is to be given to any set of factors discussed. There is no summing up of the evidence presented. However, the book is one that no one interested in this important subject will miss reading." J. L. Gillin

+ Ann Am Acad 261:179 Ja '49 380w

"The volume is the product of basic scholarship. It throws light into many dark corners and pits that breed crime, encourage its growth, and make victims of us all. Because it makes the inner recesses of the crime problems seem more darksome than ever, it is the more valuable as a stimulus toward ethical reorientation and scientific correctives." L. M. Brooks

+ Social Forces 27:445 My '49 650w

HERALD, KATHLEEN. Sabre: the horse from the sea; il. by Lionel Edwards. 146p $2.50 Macmillan

Horses—Legends and stories

An English horse story for older girls. Liza first saw Sabre as the beautiful grey horse came up from the sea, and she loved him on sight. The story follows the course of the lives of the girl and the horse thru many experiences, until Sabre is at last Liza's own horse.

"A remarkable horse story for girls . . . said to have been written when the author was fifteen. It is hard to believe that she did not revise later, for the style is definitely distinguished, the descriptions poetic and biting, the vocabulary wide in range, and the feelings of a lonely thirteen-year-old put down with precision and little sentimentality." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 24 '49 250w

"This is a remarkably finished work to have been written by a 15-year-old English girl. It is also a very good horse story in its own right." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p30 Je 19 '49 110w

HERGE, HENRY C. Wartime college training programs of the armed services; with chapters on special phases by Sidney L. Pressey [and others] for the Comm. on implications of armed services educ. programs. 214p pl $3 Am. council on educ.

355.07 Soldiers—Education, Non-military
48-8379

"This book gives specific data on both the academic and the business phases of the ASTP, the Navy V-12, and other less well-known service programs. There is a valuable chapter on wartime scientific research and its effect on institutions of higher learning." School & Society

"This volume is a creditable contribution to the history of higher education. It should be read now. Experience indicates that it will not be read at some hurried time in the future when a new emergency suddenly requires new programs for the armed services." Harold Benjamin

+ Ann Am Acad 262:238 Mr '49 500w

School & Society 68:326 N 6 '48 50w

"A below-the-surface analysis of the aptitudes of the instructors and of the efficiency of instruction would have enhanced the utility of the volume. As it is, however, its claims are more reasonable than those advanced in most of the other reports in the ACE series." W. W. Brickman

+ — School & Society 68:397 D 4 '48 270w

Reviewed by E. B. Sackett

Survey 85:61 Ja '49 400w

HERMAN, ABBOTT PHILIP. Approach to social problems. 516p $3.75 Ginn

301 Social problems

"Here for the first time we have an integrated text, with a single relevant frame of reference. It maintains throughout a sociological approach. The various topics are dealt with not as separate issues but as aspects of a universal problem of human society, that of its accommodation to the impacts of change coming from within or from without. . . All the issues raised in this book are seen as interconnected and interdependent. And they are all problems of social relationships, raised by the unsatisfied need for readjustments of behavior to the demands of the changing situation." (Introd) Selected readings at end of each chapter. Index.

Reviewed by F. N. House

Am J Soc 55:233 S '49 300w

Reviewed by Verne Wright

Am Soc R 14:696 O '49 490w

"If one takes the title literally, then Professor Herman is, of course, under no obligation to deal with any single social problem, since his is only 'an approach to' such problems. But since the book is intended as a textbook for courses in social problems, the issue of its adequacy for the purpose intended cannot be by-passed by retreat into philosophical ultimates. It is not being here asserted that this book is in fact inadequate for social problems courses as characteristically taught in American colleges and universities; the question of adequacy and relevancy is merely being raised for consideration. Perhaps, if Professor Herman's contentions are correct as judged by the consensus of his peers who read his book, the philosophy and content of the social problems courses will be reconstructed." J. F. Cuber

Ann Am Acad 264:182 Jl '49 240w

Reviewed by J. F. Santee

Social Studies 41:39 Ja '50 700w

"The book is stimulating and provocative and could be read with considerable profit by social workers, both for the breadth of perspective it imparts and for the challenge it presents to certain trends in professional social work." E. M. Burns

+ Survey 85:565 O '49 300w

HERMAN, WILLIAM. Hearts courageous; twelve who achieved; il. by James MacDonald. 254p $2.50 Dutton

920 49-11003

Brief biographical sketches of twelve men and women who achieved fame in spite of physical handicaps. Contents: Demosthenes, John Milton, Josiah Wedgwood, Ludwig Beethoven, John Kitto, Francis Parkman, Edward L. Trudeau, Robert Louis Stevenson, Charles Steinmetz, Helen Keller, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Glenn Cunningham.

Booklist 46:86 N 1 '49

"The writing, clear, concise, economical, retains the vividness that gives the material freshness and vitality."

+ Kirkus 17:557 O 1 '49 120w

"Well-written, dramatic incidents serve to make each individual a living, vital character. . . Makeup of the book is excellent and will be useful for older boys and girls who have reading difficulties." C. W. Field

+ Library J 74:1762 N 15 '49 100w

"The style is simple and straightforward—a logical presentation of the lives of men who, greatly handicapped, chose accomplishment rather than self-pity." R. A. B.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 N 12 '49 180w

School & Society 70:224 O 1 '49 20w

HERNANDEZ, JOSE. Martín Fierro; the Argentine gaucho epic; tr. into English prose with introd. and notes by Henry Alfred Holmes [il. by Héctor Ortiz]. 193p $4; pa $3 Hispanic inst. in the U.S.

861 48-10995

"Seventy-six years ago 'Martín Fierro' was published in Buenos Aires. A poetic narrative about a gaucho, it tells of escapades in the towns and on the frontier. In the opening canto, Martín Fierro, the travel-worn minstrel, sits down with his guitar to tell his story. Improvising, verse by verse, he sings of how he left home to fight Indians for the Government, how he returned to find his rancho deserted, his family dispersed. Taking to the road and its perils, he recounts his adventures and the lessons he learned." (N Y Times) The present translation is in prose.

HERNANDEZ, JOSE—Continued

"Hernandez (1834-86) not only knew the gauchos—as he ought, for he had lived among them some years and fought on their side—but he also commands a clear and graceful style. Considering the illiteracy of the frontiersmen who are supposed to be speaking, one might expect some rather obscure form of dialect. Nothing of the kind. Except for a few localisms, it is transparent Spanish. The book has had great popularity in Argentina and has been often reprinted since the original publication of Part I in 1872 and Part II in 1878. This translation is faithful and felicitous." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:146 F 2 '49 750w

"Although this prose translation by Prof. Henry Alfred Holmes is more literal than literary, it nevertheless gives a clear picture of the contents of the poem. It should be of service to students of Latin-American literature who seek a key to a work which confounds even those fairly fluent in the Spanish language. And it should be of real interest to any American reader who wishes a clear understanding, and a truly colorful picture, of life in the pampas." Betty de Sherbinin
+ N Y Times p22 F 6 '49 420w

HERON, ALEXANDER R. Beyond collective bargaining. (Toward understanding in industry) 214p $2.75 Stanford univ. press

331.116 Collective bargaining. Employment management. Industrial relations 48-11237

"Considers the kinds of employer-employee relations covered by collective bargaining and warns of its limitations. Counsels employers to take the initiative in basic relations for industrial harmony." Booklist

"While the academic people will find the book a useful source of research leads, the other members of the industrial relations fraternity will encounter 'workable solutions' for problems with which they frequently have to grapple." Joseph Shister
+ Am Econ R 39:1063 S '49 250w

Booklist 45:172 Ja 15 '49

"There is genuine need for a comprehensive work on union-management relations in America. It is to be regretted, therefore, that this book will be useful only to those persons who have enough knowledge of its subject matter to enable them to recognize the flaws it contains and therefore to concentrate upon its solid parts." Wellington Roe
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:42 Ja 22 '49 900w

HERRICK, JOHN P. Empire oil: the story of oil in New York state. 474p il $5 Dodd

665.5 Petroleum—New York (state). Gas, Natural 49-48803

A history of the oil production of New York state, from its beginnings in the 1850's to the present. "It will probably be news to many people that in 1948 New York State produced 4,000,000 barrels of oil valued at $22,000,000." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"John P. Herrick, a newspaper publisher of the 'oil country,' has told the story with skill and care, thereby rescuing from oblivion the record of an important enterprise." Palmer Harman
+ N Y Times p26 N 20 '49 130w

"Fascinating oddments of fact emerge from Mr. Herrick's amiable recollections and researches. As editor and publisher of an oil-region newspaper for many years, he knows what he is talking about, and he talks informatively and entertainingly."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 D 31 '49 150w

HERSEY, MRS JEAN. Garden in your window; il. by Gertrude Herrick Howe. 272p $3 Prentice-Hall

635.9652 House plants 49-11775

This book of advice and encouragement for indoor gardeners contains sections on general window gardening, varied gardens for the window, special window gardens (herb gardens, rock gardens, terrariums, spring gardens), and a very special window garden (orchids). Index.

Booklist 46:138 D 15 '49

"The lists of plants that can be grown indoors give due recognition to problems of light and shade, the need for color, for scent, for quiet greenness, for specialties. Lots of information slighted in other books in the field."
+ Kirkus 17:496 S 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 5 '49 390w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 180w

HESSE, HERMANN. Magister Ludi; the Nobel prize novel Das glasperlenspiel; tr. by Mervyn Savill. 502p $5 Holt

49-10878

"An enormous novel about a community of men who live in celibacy and poverty, dedicating their lives to learning, in a mythical place called Castalia, which is supported by public funds, because the members of the community never work for money. Their main preoccupation is with the Bead Game, a universal intellectual language that can be used only by scholars of immense learning after lifelong practice. The Master of the Game—who is regarded by his fellows as a kind of god—is called Magister Ludi. This book deals with the life of Joseph Knecht, who rises from being an obscure student to become Magister Ludi, and then discovers that the Castalian ideal doesn't satisfy him." New Yorker

"This is a solid book, often rhetorical, often diffuse, but always diverting and original." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 13 '49 400w

Reviewed by Monroe Engel
Nation 169:626 D 24 '49 1150w

"Improbable as it may seem, Hesse has succeeded in constructing a novel which is as original as it is profound, offering astonishing wealth to the reader who gives himself to it. But something of Castalia's sterility seems to have communicated itself to Knecht's biography. The book is reminiscent of a moon-landscape—overclear, without shadows, colors and smells. Where there is no background, the foreground loses its significance. . . Only Hesse's lyrical power appears at its height, and his gift for projecting the essence of saintliness." Richard Plant
+ — N Y Times p50 O 30 '49 600w

New Yorker 25:86 O 1 '49 200w

"It is impossible to give, in short space, an adequate idea of the fabulous scholarship, the eclectic learning, and the wealth of mystical speculation which permeate the discussions. If one applies the yardstick of the English-American novel to this book, it is an amorphous, a nearly boundless fantasy. Its best, as one of its early Swiss admirers once said, 'is proffered in a cipher language.' Hermann Hesse's great master, Jean Paul, would not have been ashamed of 'Magister Ludi.' It commands high respect as the confession of one of the most sincere of important contemporary authors and as the ultimate word of an old man who has never been content with retreating into the shell of an old man's wisdom." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 O 15 '49 650w

"Magister Ludi has an underlying theme as savage as some of Jonathan Swift, but it is written in an elegant, leisurely, almost wearily lyrical prose. The combination is arresting."
+ Time 54:113 O 17 '49 850w

HESSLER, WILLIAM HENRY. Operation survival; America's new role in world affairs. 282p maps $3 Prentice-Hall

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. U.S.—Defenses. World politics 49-6881

The foreign editor and editorial writer for the Cincinnati Enquirer offers an evaluation of the military, political, and economic power of the United States and its allies, and compares it with that of Russia. Then he discusses the possible course of a war between the United States and Russia. Index.

Booklist 46:183 F 1 '50

Kirkus 17:496 S 1 '49 210w

"On the whole, it is a hopeful book and a useful one." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:1676 N 1 '49 100w

" 'Operation Survival' makes a genuine contribution to current thought. Well written and cogently argued, it restores to the layman a realization of the immense area in which his judgment must be brought to bear. Peace may be for statesmen, war for soldiers—but above both at all times must be the standards of the citizen. Mr. Hessler is a citizen who has made easier the task of all the rest of us." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 D 4 '49 850w

"The great value of this book is the thoroughness and force with which it hammers home the premise contained in its opening sentence: 'The New World cannot survive in freedom if the Old World is swallowed up by any despotism.' . . Unfortunately, as it seems to this reviewer, Mr. Hessler has thrust into the middle of an otherwise excellent work a one-sided and violent attack on those he calls 'the reckless proponents of strategic air power.' " G. F. Eliot
+ — N Y Times p5 O 16 '49 650w

"This book is as timely as the announcement that Russia has produced an atomic explosion. It should be collateral reading with news of the hearings by the House Armed Services Committee. It is a thoughtful, sober and graphic analysis of our present trend toward depending on the A-bomb and the B-36 for security and it argues convincingly for a more realistic foreign and military policy based upon the one thing that does not change in this world—geography. Reading it, you will have a clearer picture of many important things, presented here—perhaps for the first time—in their relation to each other." A. R. Bosworth
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 23 '49 1900w

Reviewed by Cord Meyer
Sat R of Lit 32:28 D 17 '49 1150w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 360w

HETH, EDWARD HARRIS. If you lived here. 241p $2.75 Harper 49-8085

Novel of two days in Miss Lizzie Temple's life, culminating in the town's celebration of her fifty years of teaching. During this time she reviews her past life, and worries about a wayward pupil and the love affair of a fellow teacher and a bartender.

"Some sentiment but not wholly stereotyped and relieved by Lizzie's sturdy personality."
Booklist 45:262 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by Florence Medow
Chicago Sun p8X Ag 21 '49 170w

"This is the story of two days in the life of a village schoolteacher, and as such it is a deft piece of work. . . This could be a brave and beautiful book; it is a book with harsh undertones; a book that reaches out to create and establish a vivid person but falls short of doing so because the level of the town life persistently becomes more important. For many readers it will be a depressing, sordid, and not wholly convincing level—for even in a town as small as Temple there would, one feels, have been those truly to respond to what Miss Lizzie gave." Elizabeth Yates
— + Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 9 '49 600w

"A certain homely, human warmth here, but a market seems fairly non-definable."
Kirkus 17:64 F 1 '49 120w

"Mr Heth has made the warm, fussy little event seem very real. What is less than real is the teacher herself, whose memories lie exclusively in people, and never once with the work to which she had dedicated fifty years of her life."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Ap 3 '49 280w

"The questions in the novel are clearer than the answers. . . In atmosphere, character types, point of view, even in its loose structure, 'If You Lived Here' suggests a book like 'Winesburg, Ohio.' But Sherwood Anderson doesn't seem to be around." Ruth Page
N Y Times p20 Mr 20 '49 320w

"Mr. Heth handles the flashback technique in a solidly workmanlike fashion. His picture of village life is both acid and loving. Rather significantly, his only really likeable people are those who have had city experience. Mr. Heth's Temple seems to attract and repel him at one and the same time." W. R. W.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 22 '49 350w

"With taste, high good humor, and perception Mr. Heth makes his community a glowing, vital spot."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 9 '49 170w

School & Society 69:198 Mr 12 '49 50w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 500w

Wis Lib Bul 45:66 Ap '49

HEVESY, GEORG VON. Radioactive indicators; their application in biochemistry, animal physiology, and pathology. 556p $10 Interscience

574.1072 Radioactivity. Biological physics 48-8866

"Sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation and based on work completed in the Donner Laboratory of the University of California, this book provides a comprehensive survey of the use of radioactive indicators in the fields of animal physiology, pathology, and biochemistry. In addition to reviewing concisely the literature on the subject, Dr. Hevesy has in places added hitherto unpublished data to the text." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The contributions of Professor Hevesy to the tracer field have of course been of paramount importance, so the present book has the ring of real authority throughout its length. . . It appears that the workers in biological fields will find this book indispensible if they are working with tracers, and highly valuable if they are not. The radiochemist, on the other hand, may not want to read the entire book, but certainly will find the first hundred pages of real value." W. F. Libby
+ Chem Eng 56:312 F '49 120w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1033 Jl '48 10w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:127 Mr '49 300w

HEWES, MRS AGNES (DANFORTH). Anabel's windows; il. by Kurt Wiese. 240p $2.50 Dodd 49-10971

Based on recollections of the author's own childhood, this is the story of a year or two in the life of little Anabel Dare, the child of American missionaries living in a mountain village in Syria.

Booklist 46:176 Ja 15 '50

"The book unfolds a rich fabric of folk culture, providing a warm account of the lives of the village people." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 60w

HEWES, A. D.—Continued

"Valuable contribution to the cause of international friendship and understanding. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 22 '50 100w

"A warm, thoughtful book for little girls who have been stimulated to varied interests, it is of special value to those whose parents' business takes them to live in the Near East. For ages 8 to 12." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Times p50 O 23 '49 220w

"Mrs. Hewes' story, ably illustrated by Kurt Wiese, is a warm and friendly picture of an American girl and her family, liking and liked by a different people." Eleanor Breed
+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:42 N 12 '49 150w

HEYER, GEORGETTE (MRS G. R. ROUGIER). Arabella. 284p $3 Putnam
49-9142

When pretty Miss Arabella, eldest daughter of the poor but genteel vicar of Heythram, was invited to London to stay with her godmother for the season, it was with the intention of making the best of her opportunity. And a great success she was, but why and with what result is the story told in this gay tale of Regency days.

Booklist 45:254; 336 Ap 1 '49; Je 1 '49

"Here is just a good story about a lovely girl and a period lavish in color."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"The thing is contrived as light entertainment (let's have no comparisons with Jane Austen, an artist, and faithful to her own world), and hasn't quite enough gusto to put it on the best seller list." John Hay
Commonweal 50:250 Je 17 '49 350w

"Well costumed period piece."
+ Kirkus 17:184 Ap 1 '49 130w

"Not as interesting as some of its predecessors, notably The Reluctant Widow which it resembles, it is nevertheless a most welcome addition to the light fiction shelf. Recommended for public libraries." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 74:735 My 1 '49 140w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 19 '49 90w

"The prose has all the easy competence of one who is an old hand and imitates admirably the mannered witticisms of the time. Except for a grimy little chimney sweep, no sign of the rough and sordid London of Swift and Defoe is allowed to intrude. Nor is there the least sign of the robustness and vitality that made those masters' creations come to life. But if Arabella and the Nonpareil are no more than stereotypes from The Ladies Monthly Museum, Miss Heyer has at least been a faithful copyist and given us an entertaining caricature of a way of life." J. P. Quehl
+ — N Y Times p40 Je 19 '49 320w

"The plot deals with a poor country vicar's daughter who snags a renowned London dandy, an event that is annotated with sufficient Georgian embellishment and wit to provide an exemplary piece of escapist literature."
+ New Yorker 25:96 My 28 '49 120w

"Agreeable and soothing stuff." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 2 '49 150w

Reviewed by Robert Kee
Spec 183:122 Jl 22 '49 100w

"Diverting, brimming over with entertaining characters, here is Georgette Heyer at her sprightly best." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 17 '49 180w

Time 53:90 My 30 '49 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p469 Jl 22 '49 110w

HEYN, ERNEST VICTOR, ed. Twelve sport immortals. 304p il $3 Bartholomew house, inc, 205 E 42d st, N.Y. 17

927.96 Sports—Biography 49-9281

Brief sketches of twelve sport heroes. The articles are reprinted from Sport Magazine and include: Ty Cobb; Lou Gehrig; Bob Feller; Dizzy Dean; Ted Williams; John McGraw; Jack Dempsey; Honus Wagner; Joe DiMaggio; Connie Mack; Joe Louis; and Babe Ruth.

Booklist 45:338 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 20w

HIBBERT, ELEANOR (JEAN PLAIDY, pseud). King's pleasure. 302p $3 Appleton 49-1013

Historical novel based on the life of Anne Boleyn, from the time when as a child of seven she accompanied the king's sister to France, until the day of her beheading in the Tower of London.

Booklist 45:289; 313 My 1 '49; My 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"Historical novelization that is ably told, carefully mounted, this offers a satisfying portrait of its main, and minor, characters, that makes believable the life of the period and the forces that made possible Henry's break with Rome, his ability to use and control his court, his career as a 'royal murderer'."
+ Kirkus 17:36 Ja 15 '49 100w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 S 11 '49 140w

"Exhaustive research has given the writer a good deal of fascinating material—vivid descriptions, pithy dialogue, dramatic situation and a galaxy of strong characters—and although she has made ingenious use of these, she has failed to bring to life impressive figures like Henry, Wolsey, Cromwell and Cranmer. Even Anne does not come alive under her woman's-eye view." M. M. Ahern
+ — N Y Times p18 Je 26 '49 430w

"Jean Plaidy feels Anne never loved her King and submits accusations of incestuous relationship with her brother at her trial. Otherwise it is the familiar tale told with question, exclamations, thigh-slappings, and timely trappings. Readable, coarse, and moving as the case history itself cannot fail to be." C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:29 Je 4 '49 140w

"With Catharine's simple and impulsive nature Miss Plaidy is more at home than with the rest, but the robustness of Tudor England is lacking in her novel."
Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Je 10 '49 240w

HICKS, JOHN RICHARD. Problem of budgetary reform. 95p pa $1.50 Oxford

351.72 Budget 49-3105

"The author is Professor of Economics at Nuffield College, Oxford. He sets forth a plan for modernizing British governmental accounting in a manner that will promote orderly budgeting, particularly with respect to the economic undertakings. He considers the simple, customary methods of public accounting adequate for the administrative departments. However, the vast expansion of the economic activities of the trading departments in the realm of business enterprises necessitates the introduction of new accounting principles and a new accounting system which will permit public planning and control." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

"Thought-provoking little volume." A. G. Buehler
+ Ann Am Acad 264:173 Jl '49 320w

"Professor Hicks's exposition of the problem is clear and lucid; the arguments supporting his proposal are cogent and convincing. . . There should be little disagreement either with the analysis or with the recommendations." B. U. Ratchford
+ J Pol Econ 57:356 Ag '49 700w

HIGGINBOTTOM, SAM. Sam Higginbottom, farmer; an autobiography. 232p il $3 Scribner

B or 92 Missionaries—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Agriculture—India 49-10566

Autobiography of a missionary to India. Born in England, he was educated in America, and was sent to India by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. There he and his wife fought against the poverty of the people, and as one step in the fight he founded the Allahabad Agricultural Institute to help teach the methods of increasing food supplies. Index.

Booklist 46:62 O 15 '49

"Rarely does the world of letters present us with the simplicity and solidity of character that shines through this life of Sam Higginbottom." Henry Sowerby

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 8 '49 850w

"This is not a book that will be read by posterity, nor even a book that will create any stir in sociological circles today. But it is a quietly enjoyable book. . . The author writes with the simple ease of a man of seventy drawing on his memories. There is a seasoning of homey humor, and a shrewdness of observation concerning India's problems of famine, and caste and division. . . Several pages of halftones embellish the text. Sam Higginbottom, Farmer, would be a good book to read before going to bed. Not sleep-inducing, exactly, but certainly relaxing." L. J. Trese

+ Commonweal 50:611 S 30 '49 280w

Reviewed by E. C. Herrick

+ Crozer Q 27:80 Ja '50 700w

"It is good to have this definitive record of his life and work and it should have a wide reading, for Sam Higginbottom's friends and admirers are legion."

+ Kirkus 17:355 Jl 1 '49 240w

"A simply told, moving autobiography. . . First hand, life-long observation of conditions in rural India, contacts with many notables, work in leper colony, make book of value. Most interesting is re-evaluation of Gandhi. Well worth reading." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:1088 Ag '49 130w

"A sincere, straightforward, one-track account of forty-five years of spreading the Gospel in India. . . Perhaps the outstanding merit of the book from the agricultural point of view is its timely refutation of some recent gloomy prophecies of world-wide starvation through overpopulation." W. M. Teller

+ N Y Times p53 D 4 '49 500w

Reviewed by Russell Lord

Sat R of Lit 32:13 D 10 '49 800w

HIGHBAUGH, IRMA. Family life in west China. 240p $2 Agric. missions, inc, 156 5th av, N.Y. 10

392.3 Family. China—Social life and customs 48-18831

"This is a study of family life and the orientation of the child in two communities in Szechuan province. The work was undertaken in connection with the establishment of a mission-sponsored nursery school and is more widely concerned with the general problems of agricultural mission work. Thus it provides an example of sociology applied to mission purposes. This is reflected in such a chapter heading as 'New Interests Improve the Grandparents.' In addition to its data on family life and the ways in which members of the mission inculcate changed attitudes toward education and public health, a whole section is devoted to the problems and procedures of rural reconstruction." Am Soc R

"The reader can concentrate upon the particular phase of the study in which he is primarily interested. To date, few authors have included so many research techniques in detail, i.e., scales for the rating, classification, and attitude measurements of intra-familial relationships, as well as the criteria for the selection of personnel. . . Dr. Highbaugh is to be congratulated for pointing out to Western and Chinese readers alike how the Chinese family in West China interacts and how similarities and dissimilarities may be found in different families in this area." R. H. Lee

+ Am J Soc 54:556 My '49 850w

"While the book contains valuable first hand data on family organization, the reform motif of the study sometimes obscures the picture of ordinary family behavior in Szechuan."

+ — Am Soc R 14:189 F '49 120w

Reviewed by Ai-Li S. Chin

Pacific Affairs 22:205 Je '49 280w

HIGHET, GILBERT. Classical tradition; Greek and Roman influences on Western literature. 763p $6 Oxford

809 Literature—History and criticism. Literature, Comparative 49-11655

"This book is an outline of the chief ways in which Greek and Latin influence has moulded the literatures of western Europe and America." (Pref) "Its twenty-four chapters fall into four main sections. The first takes in the Dark and Middle Ages—Anglo-Saxon poetry and prose, French epic and romance, Dante, Petrarch, Boccaccio, Chaucer. The second section comprises eight chapters on the Renaissance—drama, epic, pastoral and romance, lyric, the literature of translation, Rabelais, Montaigne. . . Intermediate between this section and section iii is a chapter on 'The Battle of the Books,' a battle beginning in 1635 and still going on in 1742. . . We pass so to our third section, 'The Baroque Age.'. . . There is a neat table (page 290) of 'the greatest baroque artists.' The table includes nine, or it may be eleven, English names; Robert Adam, Wren, Vanbrugh, Purcell, Dryden, Pope, Swift, Gibbon, Fielding. . . After baroque, we come to our fourth and last section, the romantic, or, as Mr. Highet will have it, the revolutionary period 'and afterwards.'" (Spec) Bibliography. Index.

"Has a combination of qualities that is not often found in works of contemporary scholarship. Along with its awesome erudition goes a very readable prose style, touched with wit and epigram; and a refreshing readiness to venture forthright opinions."

+ Atlantic 185:88 F '50 150w

"Such a study as Highet's 'The Classical Tradition' is valuable twice—first, because it moves along interestingly of itself; and second, because it prompts us to explore fields either known to us only by repute, or else hitherto out of our ken altogether." W. P. Tryon

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 800w

"An excellent outline it is, and much else—an intelligent erudite, perceptive interpretation of how, through study, translation, imitation, emulation, the masterpieces of ancient literature have variously shaped the forms, ideas, and ideals of subsequent literature down to our own day. It collects, sifts, compresses, and applies an immense accumulation of technical study that most readers have neither the time nor the training to examine for themselves and that too frequently is inaccessible to those who could make us of it." George Genzmer

+ Nation 170:16 Ja 7 '50 1200w

"Professor Highet has shown an encyclopedic mastery of detail and at the same time a fine sense of proportion and relevance. His interpretations of individual authors, from Boethius to Andrè Gide, though they may not satisfy the demands of specialists, are marked by unusual flexibility and discernment. Though he never goes out of his way to make an epigram, the reader will be impressed by the number of sentences that remain memorable for their penetration to the heart of the matter under discussion and for their wide range of reference." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 18 '49 1150w

"The many values of Mr. Highet's study of Greek and Roman influence on the civilization and literature of the West can hardly be exaggerated. In the first place, the range of his knowledge is remarkably wide. Not only is he familiar with the whole body of classical literature; he seems to have read nearly every writer of importance from the Dark Ages down to the Joyce of 'Finnegans Wake,' and he talks about them with clarity and sound sense. Moreover, his exposition operates in various directions and on various levels." Dudley Fitts

HIGHET, GILBERT—Continued
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 29 '50 950w

"Mr. Highet's book is a valuable contribution to the scholarship of literature and to the literature of scholarship. Such a book can easily be dull. Mr. Highet never is—perhaps, indeed, he takes more pains than he need to avoid being dull. . . I could wish that a good deal of this book deferred less to modern fashion. Expatiating on Pound, it has no word on Bridges, a very classical poet, surely. . . Here is a book, even so, full of learning, and cleverness; and, as if that were not enough, well written—attaining sometimes real distinction of style. Occasionally, the cleverness is, I fancy, a little laboured—as when we are told that in the birthday Odes of our Poets Laureate 'inspiration is replaced by perspiration.' . . The book, it should be added, has, what some people will not like, a purpose, outside the immediate purposes of literature. Really, it aims to make men better." H. W. Garrod
+ — Spec 183:424 S 30 '49 1450w

HIGHET, HELEN MACINNES. See MacInnes, H.

HIGMAN, HARRY WENTWORTH, and LARRISON, EARL JUNIOR. Pilchuck; the life of a mountain [drawings by Edmund J. Sawyer]. 288p $3.50 Superior pub.
917.977 Pilchuck, Mount. Natural history—Cascade range 49-8723

Mount Pilchuck is a peak in the Cascade Mountains, not forty miles from Seattle. For some six years the authors have been studying the natural science of this one mountain. Altho the book on their experiences does not stress mountain climbing, it touches on almost everything else to do with a mountain: geology, flora and fauna, glaciation, camping, and living off the land. Index.

Booklist 46:12 S 1 '49

"Mt. Pilchuck in the state of Washington is comparatively unfamiliar territory outside the Northwest, and the interest in this book will be largely regional. . . Readable, but special."
Kirkus 17:250 My 1 '49 130w

"This is a [quiet] story, in the Thoreau vein, but vivid. For an informal introduction to ecology, and for the joys of mountain walks, this is recommended fare." M. E. Monroe
+ Library J 74:734 My 1 '49 100w
Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by R. H. Bates
N Y Times p16 My 29 '49 330w

"To the authors Pilchuck is as unique and individual among mountains as Walden was among ponds to Thoreau. Indeed, this short volume has some of the flavor of 'Walden.' While lacking Thoreau's knowledge of the human spirit, these men see in the grunting frogs and the waving hackberry bushes some of the same symbolism which inspired 'Walden.'. . The authors have failed to make the most of some of their truly dramatic material about Pilchuck's animal, bird, and reptile kingdom. But they also have resisted the temptation, common to many novices, of overwriting. For this reason the book is easy to read." R. L. Neuberger
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:28 Je 18 '49 550w

HILDEBRAND, DIETRICH VON. Transformation in Christ; on the Christian attitude of mind. 406p $4.50 Longmans
248 Sanctification 48-9454

"A solid and penetrating analysis of the Christian virtues, and their application in the struggle toward Christian perfection." (Library J) Dietrich von Hildebrand is a member of the faculty of Fordham University, New York City. Born in Munich, he was educated at the Ludwig Gymnasium and the Universities of Munich and Göttingen, and was for some years professor at the former University. Leaving Germany for political reasons in 1933, he lectured at the University of Salzburg until 1938, when he came to the United States.

"If one is looking for a sugar-coated spiritual pill which will bestow a feeling of goodness and sweetness, this is definitely not the book for him. Profound in its erudition and amazing in its spiritual insight, it demands deep study and serious meditation. In final analysis it constitutes an uncompromising challenge to every follower of Christ in name to become a protagonist of Christ in fact. . . In general this work, which calls for more than a passing acquaintance with psychology, will prove rather heavy going for the average reader, though at times it does become eloquently inspirational as in the chapter, 'Confidence in God.' " J. T. Clune
+ Cath World 168:494 Mr '49 400w

"Hildebrand is a convert from paganism, from fin-de-siecle atmosphere; he is a layman, a family father, a husband and one who saw Totalitarianism in the raw. These facts give the book a practical, real attitude which we miss in so many 'spiritual directions.' It is also a very sane and wholesome book. The only complaint I have is its length." H. A. Reinhold
+ Commonweal 49:451 F 11 '49 390w

"It is refreshing for a Protestant reviewer to discover at how many points he is in agreement with a Roman Catholic author. Dietrich von Hildebrand is a member of the faculty of Fordham University. . . To be sure, there are many basic differences between the reviewer and the author. . . Yet in the basic philosophy and practice of religion suggested in the volume he finds strong similarities between much Protestant and Catholic religion at their best. He laid down the volume with the thought, 'We are closer than we think in the basic matters of spiritual concern.' " G. W. Davis
+ Crozer Q 26:271 Jl '49 550w

"The book shows a profound knowledge both of religion and of psychology, but is neither pedantic nor sentimental."
+ Kirkus 16:510 O 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 130w

HILL, FRANK ERNEST. To meet Will Shakespeare; il. by Addison Burbank. 481p $4 Dodd 822.33 Shakespeare, William 49-4576

A biography of Shakespeare, interlarded with fictionalized scenes in which the author dramatizes events in his hero's life, basing his inventions often on Shakespeare's own words or on knowledge of Elizabethan manners and customs. Index.

Booklist 45:398 Jl 15 '49

"Stimulating, fictionized biography of Shakespeare."
+ Bookmark 9:52 D '49 30w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p25X O 9 '49 230w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

"The best thing about 'To Meet Will Shakespeare' is its decency. The author has written a sincere, respectful, indeed affectionate book. On the other hand his style and creative imagination are only those of the minor historical novelist, and his critical remarks on the separate plays more dutiful than stimulating." Alfred Harbage
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p44 D 4 '49 700w

"This book is part fact and part fiction. As regards the factual part, although Mr. Hill has brought together a great deal of information about the period, it is a little like the dinner Dr. Johnson attended—'it was not a dinner to ask a man to.' He presents no new material, and his interpretation of the old is not often original, and not always right." Charles Norman

— + N Y Times p34 O 16 '49 440w

"Mr. Hill has added a valuable postscript to his volume entitled 'The Impostors.' It embodies the most closely reasoned and cogent argument in print against the misguided souls who attribute the authorship of Shakespeare's works to Bacon, the Earl of Derby, the Earl of Oxford, or to some other distinguished Elizabethan lady or gentleman. This postscript gives the coup de grace to the perverse detractors of William Shakespeare. The whole book is written with Elizabethan dash and verve. It is a pity that the author's too frequent excursions into jejune fiction obscure the many virtues of 'To Meet Will Shakespeare.' " O. J. Campbell

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:36 O 8 '49 750w

"Highly readable."

+ Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

HILL, J. W. F. Medieval Lincoln. 487p pl maps $9.50 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

942.53 Lincoln, England [49-1943]

Scholarly history of the English cathedral city of Lincoln in the medieval period. "The book is arranged on a plan which is partly chronological and partly descriptive. Thus down to the Norman Conquest the narrative is continuous, and it is then broken by a chapter describing the Minster and the Close, the Castle and the Bail, the parish churches and religious houses. Afterwards the narrative proceeds with similar digressions relating to the medieval Jewry, to trade and communications and finally to the details of civic administration." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

"Mr. Hill's scholarship is thorough and his judgment sound. If the reader finds himself at times confused by the detail and the lack of obvious guideposts to changes in direction, he should remember that the chief use of the book may be in the reliable detail it will supply for general and local historians." Margaret Hastings

Am Hist R 54:867 Jl '49 490w

"Mr. Hill tells the story of Lincoln from the time of the Roman occupation as he has been able to discover it by patient research over many years; and relates it with such a wealth of detail, accompanied by numerous maps, photographs, sketches and figures, that one may take it for granted that this will remain the book on Lincoln for many years." F. J. Moore

+ Churchman 163:15 Ap 15 '49 180w

"The general reader may find himself bogged down in the wealth of detail, but the medievalist will find this book a genuine delight." J. E. Newman

+ Commonweal 49:573 Mr 18 '49 200w

"An excellent piece of local historical research, the fruits of twenty years of study. The author's scholarship is wide and exact."

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 15 '48 120w

"A worthy history of the medieval city. . . The author tells us that his book has been twenty years in preparation, and perhaps, as the fittest summary of its importance it will suffice gratefully to remark that the time has been well spent."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p714 D 18 '48 1100w

HILL, RALPH NADING. Winooski, heartway of Vermont; il. by George Daly. (Rivers of America) 304p $3.50 Rinehart

917.43 Winooski river. Vermont—History 49-8844

The Winooski or Onion river, which is only ninety miles long, crosses Vermont and flows into Lake Champlain. This volume in the Rivers of America series gives the history of the people, the towns, cities, colleges, quarries, and ski resorts, of the Winooski river valley and vicinity. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:333 Je 1 '49

"A delightful, if not spectacular book leading into the odd streams and corners of the Winooski watershed as well as following the main channel. Infant prodigies, Millerites, love colonies appear side by side with Morgan horses, Fort Ethan Allen, the University of Vermont, and Rudyard Kipling writing his 'Jungle Books.' And when, at the end, the river finally mixes with the waters of Lake Champlain, one is comfortably aware that there is a Lakes of America series to take care of that, too!" Francis Russell

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 My 20 '49 420w

"Historical and regional material of particular native state interest."

+ Kirkus 17:132 Mr 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton

New Eng Q 22:427 S '49 500w

"Mr. Hill, native that he is, has made the most of his river, without straining. The reader will finish the book with a new appreciation of what this ninety-mile waterway has meant to the Green Mountain State, and perhaps join those of us who have always loved it." Stewart Holbrook

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 15 '49 800w

"All of which is very good reading. And why not? It's about Vermont, isn't it?" S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p26 Je 5 '49 550w

"Well-written, entertaining, and attractively illustrated volume. . . Trades, professions, and industries peculiar to the region receive due attention, and in this department the description of the granite industry is most interesting as it is most picturesque. Mr. Hill even manages to make geology and geography come to life, and part of his secret may be that here, too, what he has to deal with is manageable and neighborly rather than vast and overwhelming. Two things I would rather have had more of—the activities past and present of the state government at Montpelier and the wonderful old ballads recorded and preserved by Senator Flanders's wife." Bradford Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 My 28 '49 700w

HILL, ROBERTA. Desperate wall. 250p $2.75 Putnam

49-2625

"The story revolves around the psychological sadism and lust for power of Aunt Carrie Bittner, a grossly fat and wholly repulsive old lady who runs a cheap hotel in a tiny Midwestern town. Her principal vocation is the ruination of her nieces and nephews and these latter, with a disgusting lack of spirit (or is it masochism?) permit themselves to be ruined. . . The book ends when a niece by marriage kills herself and her no-good husband in a deliberate auto wreck, staged in a blinding snowstorm." Sat R of Lit

"A picture of religious bigotry, unrelenting possessiveness and hypocritical innocence produces some dramatic, if contrived effects."

Kirkus 17:156 Mr 15 '49 160w

"Roberta Hill's first novel asks no questions and answers none. It contents itself with a fevered recitation of facts, omitting the description necessary to forming visual pictures. The sadistic entertainment this tale of family tyranny provides encourages swift reading; to linger is to find the book barren of the philosophy necessary to the communication of any tragedy." Paul Hollister

— + N Y Times p10 My 29 '49 270w

"Precisely what Roberta Hill was trying to do in this, her first novel, remains unclear to me. She is not without talent. She manages to infuse her generally unsavory characters with a kind of lurid vitality, and her landscapes and interiors—bathed though they be in gloom—are uncommonly effective. Her style will undoubtedly be praised by critics who like it 'spare' and 'understated.' . . But the book as a whole is a reworking of ground that has been churned to a dusty boredom since Ed Howe first plowed it in his 'The Story of a Country Town'—back in the 1880's, wasn't

HILL, ROBERTA—Continued
it?—and I find it difficult to believe that Miss Hill did not intend a deeper meaning." K. S. Davis
— + Sat R of Lit 32:33 My 28 '49 430w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 120w

HILL, RUTH LIVINGSTON (MRS GORDON MUNCE). Morning is for Joy. 256p $2.50 Lippincott 49-4977

A novel by the daughter of Grace Livingston Hill which continues in the tradition of the older woman's many works.

"Joy is a one-girl dispensary of moral, mental and physical restoratives, and you may rest assured that everything's going to turn out for the best."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 N 6 '49 110w

"'Morning Is For Joy' is a simple, sincere story, with devilish complications aplenty." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p20 Ag 21 '49 140w

HILLENBRAND, MARTIN J. Power and morals. 217p $3.25 Columbia univ. press
320.157 Political ethics 49-9564

"The general purpose of Mr. Hillenbrand's book is to support the view that political power ought to be exercised in accord with moral principles. The distinctive characteristic of the book is the thesis that the basis of political morality can be found only in a system of natural law, and that this in turn can be based only upon a Neo-Scholastic metaphysics and theory of knowledge. The outline for such a system, the author finds in the great Jesuit juristic philosophies of the sixteenth century, especially those of Bellarmine and Suarez, supported by a general philosophy of Thomist Aristotelianism. Mr. Hillenbrand holds a post in the American consular service." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

"Agree with its conclusions or not—and on the whole I do not—this is a book to be read by those who are interested in the strategy of controlling political power. For a strategy must be based on a theory and this book has one, and discusses others acutely. On the critical side, the shortcomings of classical schools of theorists who sought adequate grounds for limiting power have seldom been more cogently put. On the constructive side, as much is said as can be said for a modern Catholic position. The reading, learning, and reflection that went into the book—in spite of the author's wartime preoccupations—must leave any reader respectful. And the writing and style are good enough to make a trade publication of a doctor's thesis." H. C. Mansfield
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1265 D '49 700w

Reviewed by G. H. Sabine
Ann Am Acad 265:178 S '49 440w
Current Hist 17:162 S '49 80w

HILLYER, ROBERT SILLIMAN. Death of Captain Nemo. 57p $2.75 Knopf
811 49-10220

A narrative poem based on the life of Captain Nemo, who appeared in Jules Verne's Mysterious Island. Two "war-weary American poet-sailors" discover Captain Nemo, at nearly a hundred years of age, dying aboard his submarine yacht. After his death they read his diary, giving the facts of his life, then sink his yacht bearing his body, and sail away from the island.

Reviewed by Peter Viereck
Atlantic 184:69 O '49 110w
Booklist 46:79 N 1 '49

"The poem is far more than a fascinating and skillfully worded story of the last rites for an adventurous character who had searched for and found a treasure ship, and the reading of his journal. The thoughtful reader cannot escape the deeply moving inner story which the fragments of the journal reveal. . . The total effect of the poem is not melancholy but rather assuring because it is another proof that such writing, rich with learning—nourished by it in a vital way, not merely decorated with it—becomes part of our twentieth century addition to the continuous stream of English literature."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 25 '49 300w

"This fantastical poem . . . marks both the most interesting contribution Robert Hillyer has yet made to poetry and perhaps a new note in the history of poetry itself."
+ Kirkus 17:378 Jl 15 '49 210w
Library J 74:1327 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by David Daiches
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 23 '49 430w

"I must freely admit that, without Mr. Hillyer's 'Argument,' I should probably have been unable to abstract so clear and coherent a narrative from his poem. For 'The Death of Captain Nemo' is really program-poetry. . . More important is the question what Mr. Hillyer means to say through his fable borrowed from Verne. I suspect that the story of Captain Nemo is intended to be what some contemporary critics call a 'myth,' but not all the good-will of which I am capable can suggest anything more precise in the way of a meaning than the fact that Mr. Hillyer takes a rather dim view of the state of the world. The Nautilus, poor ill-omened craft, was not meant to be Mr. Hillyer's vehicle." Milton Crane
N Y Times p10 Ag 7 '49 450w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ja 8 '50 80w

"'The Death of Captain Nemo' will not, obviously, as a whole appeal to those whose tastes do not turn to the traditional; but I think that all who love the Muse, whether she wears classic robes or modern dress, will find in these lines much that is moving and beautiful and the stuff of real poetry." S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 32:22 S 17 '49 650w

HILTNER, SEWARD. Pastoral counseling. 291p $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury
258 Pastoral work. Counseling 49-7612

A summary of the principles and techniques of pastoral counseling illustrated with numerous case histories, real and fictitious. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"The author is convincing because he obviously knows his field intimately. The book is of sound scholarship, without being pedantic or ponderous. It is completely free of those 'big bad words' which encumber so many books on counseling." A. L. Halvorson
+ Christian Century 66:562 My 4 '49 1500w

"To students of the ministry it will prove of inestimable value, but even the experienced counselor should find many excellent suggestions. The reviewer's main criticism is the reprehensible placing of references at the back of the book; they should be incorporated in the text or used as footnotes at the bottom of the page." J. H. Titus
+ — Churchman 163:15 Ap 1 '49 150w

"Mr. Hiltner, whose training and experience have given him unusual competence in this field, has in this book made an important contribution to an understanding and practice of the art of pastoral counseling. His treatment has the excellence of combining theory and practice so that theory is practical and practice intelligent. . . What this reviewer misses most is a critical analysis of religion as a resource in counseling." W. C. Bower
+ — Crozer Q 26:269 Jl '49 550w

"In general, the book is written with great care in construction and not only is interesting for the general reader but has logical development and scholarly caution as well. It will add definitely to the literature on the subject which can be recommended as dependable, balanced, and well written. From the theological point of view there appear to be some defects and some real strong points. . . In spite of its shortcomings [this] is, in my opinion, one of the most satisfactory interdepartmental productions, both in spirit and in result, to have appeared." N. F. S. Ferré

+ — J Religion 29:318 O '49 600w

HINDUS, MAURICE GERSCHON. In search of a future: Persia, Egypt, Iraq, and Palestine. 270p $3 Doubleday

915.6 Persia. Egypt. Iraq. Palestine 49-8049

"This is a book about Persia (Iran), Egypt, Iraq, and Palestine—countries in search of a future. Essentially it is a book about people and land, only incidentally about cities and culture." (Foreword) The author surveys these countries as he saw them from 1942 to 1946. No index.

"Mr. Hindus's book is a forceful appraisal of Middle East realities, and his message an important one."

+ Atlantic 183:91 My '49 270w

Booklist 45:240 Mr 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 27:691 Jl '49 40w

Kirkus 16:656 D 15 '48 160w

"His account of Tel Aviv and the Palestinian agricultural experiments comes as a green oasis, full of purposeful, intelligent control of the forces of man and nature. Objective in his few political judgments, Hindus writes a sympathetic, informative, delightfully readable book of people and their problems. Recommended for all general libraries." M. E. Monroe

+ Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 190w

Manchester Guardian p4 S 9 '49 210w

Nation 168:424 Ap 9 '49 70w

"The first thing to be said of Maurice Hindus's sixteenth and latest book is that it is about an important subject, and the second is that it is timed beautifully. . . It is no weighty study; he writes entertainingly of his experiences in Persia particularly, and has an eye for the noble, the beautiful or the beneficial in the villages and cities he studied." Fitzhugh Turner

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 27 '49 1000w

"Hindus, who acquired his skill as an analyst of social forces in the vast experimental laboratory that is the Soviet Union and has recorded his findings in several books on Soviet life, diagnoses the basic ailment of Arab and Moslem countries as landlordism, and the remedy he prescribes is not as new as penicillin but as old as Abraham—land reform. . . To one who has traveled the same ground, Hindus seems to have discerned much." Clifton Daniel

N Y Times p3 Mr 13 '49 900w

"Mr. Hindus writes compellingly and we are carried along by his easy and infectious prose. 'In Search of a Future' is a fine job of analytic reporting. It is important for Americans to know about the Middle East these days, as it is being transformed and revolutionized. Mr Hindus's book is one of the most useful introductions that this reviewer knows." D. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 17 '49 400w

"A sort of travelogue with attendant commentary, and the author is often at his best in his vivid descriptions of what he saw in his journeys through the Middle East." P. L. Hanna

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Mr 5 '49 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p643 O 7 '49 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:160 Je '49 280w

HINES, DUNCAN. Vacation guide; good places to spend an enjoyable vacation, winter or summer, spring or fall. 371p il pa $1.75 Adventures in good eating, inc, Box 548, Bowling Green, Ky.

917 U.S.—Description and travel. Canada—Description and travel. Mexico—Description and travel. West Indies—Description and travel (48-9510)

"Specific resorts in some areas are listed by name, with information on type of accommodation and recreation and rates, but for many states only a page summary of characteristics and attractions with reference to an information center is given. Includes U.S., Canada, Mexico, and West Indies. Frequent reference to the author's other travel guides." Booklist

Booklist 45:156 Ja 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"The coverage is extensive, but everyone is going to find gaps in the sections best known, and inclusions that are of doubtful value. But in the main, it should prove a useful one volume aid."

+ — Kirkus 16:615 N 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by Horace Sutton

Sat R of Lit 31:38 N 27 '48 1350w

HINKLE, GEORGE HENRY, and HINKLE, BLISS MCGLASHAN. Sierra-Nevada lakes. (American lakes ser) 383p il maps $4 Bobbs

979.42 Sierra Nevada mountains. Lakes—California. Lakes—Nevada 49-1596

Regional study of some of the lakes of the Sierra Nevada region, chiefly Donner, Gold, Honey, Pyramid, Mono, Webber, Meadow and Tahoe. The authors, who have long been associated with the area, stress the historical side of the story. Index.

Booklist 45:310 My 15 '49

"The Hinkles—both old Sierra hands, combine their academic training in history with an instinctive knowledge for story telling. From start to finish, the tale of these mountain lakes is packed with thrills enough to please any devotee of western stories. To produce a book that children can read and that won't offend Aunt Priscilla, the authors have somewhat toned down their reporting from the original language. . . Those who study history and those who just like a good story will read this book from cover to cover." H. B. Nichols

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 My 16 '49 550w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans

Commonweal 50:445 Ag 12 '49 290w

"The history covered is as understandably human as the ragged prospector's lust for gold and as refreshing as a steamboat excursion on one of the mountain lakes. The authors combine sprightly historical writing with the intimate knowledge of the country which is theirs by virtue of having been born and brought up in it." Clarence Gorchels

+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 130w

"Not the least valuable feature of this excellent book is the fact that it tells for the first time the complete story of Tahoe, which the authors term 'one of three of the world's greatest alpine lakes'—the other two being the Peruvian Bolivian Titicaca, and Oregon's Crater Lake." Oscar Lewis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 17 '49 750w

"As in other volumes of the Lake Series, the writing is good, the level of scholarship is high and references to source material are numerous." G. R. Stewart

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 17 '49 290w

"Dr. and Mrs. Hinkle are ideally equipped to tell the story of these lakes. They are not satisfied to present old material in a new form. What they do is to bring to light new facts, fit them with skill and grace into a pattern and show you California-Nevada history from a fresh perspective." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 8 '49 800w

HINKLE, G. H.—Continued

"The opening chapters are certainly the least satisfying. . . Beginning with the chapter on Gold Lake, that legend which had an incredible power to humbug even a race of men foredoomed to humbuggery, the book picks up in freshness, color, and pace; I'll be surprised if some readers don't hightail it out to California this summer to look into this Gold Lake thing themselves." D. L. Morgan

+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 Ap 16 '49 800w

Wis Lib Bul 45:87 My '49

HINKLE, THOMAS CLARK. Vic, a dog of the prairies. 192p $2 Morrow

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-10000

The story of a big black dog who feared men but loved children. Eleven-year-old Gene, the son of a rancher, wanted Vic for a pet; but Vic was frightened away during a hunt for an outlaw dog. Before boy and dog came together again Vic had many adventures with trappers and traders.

"Thomas Hinkle's jerky, homespun style and his lack of imagination in plotting situations remains the same. Old Vic, the dog, and his adventures on the prairies, emerge as rather less than interesting or original—to this reader. And the story is heavily weighted with the author's observations on the codes and maxims of the Old West, on customs and place and period. Any reader who has read his earlier stories has read them all; similar situations and dialog and descriptions and stock characters appear in this, as in other books, and they even seem to echo from chapter to chapter."

— Kirkus 17:268 Je 1 '49 180w

"Well written and exciting." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 13 '49 100w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 60w

HINSHAW, DAVID. Sweden: champion of peace. 309p il $4 Putnam

948.5 Sweden—History. Sweden—Neutrality. Sweden—Economic conditions 49-7313

"This is the honest attempt of a Quaker to understand Sweden's traditional policy of neutrality and to properly interpret it. David Hinshaw was a political associate of Republican leaders from Theodore Roosevelt to Herbert Hoover; he is now Vice-president of Institute of Public Relations." Library J

Booklist 45:169; 190 Ja 15 '49; F 1 '49

"The author has made a thorough study of Swedish institutions and, with a few exceptions, his findings should not only please his Swedish friends but also provide his American fellow countrymen with much to think about." E. S. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 F 5 '49 600w

Foreign Affairs 27:685 Jl '49 40w

"Worthwhile book recommended for college and public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 200w

Reviewed by M. W. Childs

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 10 '49 900w

"While it seems futile, to this reviewer, to study the recent or more remote record of Sweden in search for a 'peace formula,' Mr. Hinshaw's book will be welcomed by all friends of Sweden. It contains some startling history and extravagant interpretations, but also a great deal of information that is both useful and inspiring." J. H. Wuorinen

+ N Y Times p19 F 6 '49 750w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 10 '49 800w

Reviewed by Erik Sjögren

Sat R of Lit 32:14 Ja 22 '49 800w

Springf'd Republican p22A F 20 '49 190w

Reviewed by R. H. Andrews

Survey 85:232 Ap '49 600w

Wis Lib Bul 45:65 Ap '49

HIRSCH, RICHARD. Crimes that shook the world. 224p $2.75 Duell

904 Crime and criminals. Murder 49-11427

Ten accounts of deeds of violence. These are the assassinations of Gandhi, Rasputin, Archduke Ferdinand, King Alexander of Yugoslavia, Matteotti, Dollfus, the family of Czar Nicholas; the kidnapping of Sun Yat-sen; Mrs Kasenkina's leap from the window of the Russian consulate; and the career of Mata Hari.

"The stuff of his book is absorbing although Hirsch's most striking accomplishment has been to remind us once again how rarely such matters are dealt with either tastefully or with authority. His manner is catchpenny: casual, undocumented and sometimes contradictory." James Sandoe

+ — Chicago Sun O 28 '49 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

Kirkus 17:459 Ag 15 '49 100w

"Brief accounts, neatly told, sometimes marked by a macabre humor as in the case of the apparently murder-proof Rasputin, which point up (as author notes) Rebecca West's remark that 'Assassinations lead to other things.' " E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:1195 S 1 '49 100w

"It is a good collection, well chosen and excellently told." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p17a Ja 8 '50 180w

HIRSCHMANN, IRA ARTHUR. Embers still burn; an eye-witness view of the postwar ferment in Europe and the Middle East and our disastrous get-soft-with-Germany policy. 272p $3 Simon & Schuster

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-)—Europe. United nations relief and rehabilitation administration 49-7099

"A bitter denunciation of mismanagement of UNRRA in Europe and of what author believes to be our 'get-soft-with-Germany' policy, documented by official words, actions, documents and Hirschmann's two postwar European inspection trips as the personal representative of Mr. LaGuardia, then head of UNRRA." Library J

Booklist 45:155 Ja 1 '49

Chicago Sun p9X Ja 16 '49 60w

"The idea of the 'Soviet Union's corresponding responsibility,' which Bartley C. Crum stresses in his foreword, is completely absent from the 272 pages of Mr. Hirschmann's book and makes it a strictly partisan contribution despite its stirring reports on DP camps and its timely warnings about the 'embers of Nazism' still burning in Germany." Ernest Pisko

— + Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 13 '49 750w

Foreign Affairs 28:164 O '49 80w

Kirkus 16:567 O 15 '48 210w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor

Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 140w

Nation 168:137 Ja 29 '49 200w

"This is a hard-jabbing, furious little book, but one which, unfortunately, will not land any convincers on the stubborn chins of the current crop of Washington heavyweights. And, to be fair, such is not Hirschmann's intent. He wants to convey—to as many of us as possible—the frightening evidence he accumulated in postwar Europe as personal envoy of the late Fiorello LaGuardia. . . It's a shame that at $3 this book will probably be bought only by those who already agree with it. It would be a good omen for 1949 if its publishers invested some of their profits from The Shmoo in bringing out Hirschmann's urgent message as a dollar or even as a quarter book. Then it might knock over more of the Red straw men in our minds." Richard Lauterbach

+ New Repub 120:24 Ja 31 '49 800w

Reviewed by Russell Hill
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ja 30 '49 600w

"Many people, and things, richly merit Mr. Hirschmann's anger. But, in the fullness of that anger, he has not thought his accusations through." E. W. Fox
N Y Times p28 Ja 16 '49 650w

"One is strongly tempted to jump ship on him when he tries to persuade us, in discussing other facets of the contemporary scene in Europe, that all is democratic in the new Poland, that the Marshall Plan should be regarded as an assault by the National Association of Manufacturers on the wee European shopper, that all displaced Balts and Poles who don't want to go home are loafers and Fascists, and that it's too early to say whether what recently happened in Czechoslovakia was a Communist coup or a Boy Scout uprising."
New Yorker 24:79 Ja 8 '49 180w

Reviewed by Abe Pivowitz
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Mr 13 '49 700w

"This is a most readable book, and greatly worth reading, for conscience's sake, for peace's sake." S. K. Padover
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 Ja 15 '49 800w

HIRSH, JOSEPH. Problem drinker. 211p il $3 Duell

616.861 Alcoholism. Alcohol—Physiological effect 49-862

"A study of alcoholism in the United States, by the executive director of the Research Council on the Problems of Alcohol, an affiliate of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Mr. Hirsh considers the medical, sociological, psychological, and economic aspects of his subject. He believes that the chronic alcoholics in this country are a national disgrace—not, he says, because they are alcoholics but because of our treatment of them." (New Yorker) Index.

"A useful book. A summary of fact and opinion without novelty of information or originality of viewpoint. This well defined and much exploited segment of the alcohol problem in contemporary U.S.A. is dealt with rationally and with good purpose." Haven Emerson
+ Am J Pub Health 39:801 Je '49 320w

Booklist 45:221 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by A. J. Carlson
Chicago Sun p8X F 27 '49 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '49

Kirkus 16:587 N 1 '48 160w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 17 '49 220w

"A worthy work: a forthright, concise and helpful examination of an insidious scourge." A. H. Weiler
+ N Y Times p14 Mr 6 '49 470w

New Yorker 24:94 F 12 '49 170w

Reviewed by C. F. Marden
Social Forces 28:103 O '49 550w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). The cat wears a mask, by D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 190p $2.25 Doubleday 49-7928

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Mr 25 '49 50w

"An unusual setting for Miss Rachel, but the usual whimsey for the usual feminine audience."
Kirkus 17:40 Ja 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Mr 27 '49 140w

"A firmer plot, sharper characters and background, a generous supply of those eerie shudders which Mrs. Olsen is so adept at dispensing, and a refreshing absence of the coyness at which she is equally adept—all make this the best of Miss Rachel's adventures since the still memorable first, 'The Cat Saw Murder.' " Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 27 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 27 '49 120w

Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

HIVNOR, ROBERT H. Too many thumbs; a three-act play. 90p $2.50 Univ. of Minn.

812

"A three-act satirical fantasy of man's evolution from anthropoid to mystic. The microcosmic scene is a university laboratory; the title role (finally spelled out 'all thumbs,' in case you didn't catch on) a trapped chimpanzee, whose mind and soul are tinkered with, respectively, by a young animal psychologist and the school's professor of contemporary religion." Sat R of Lit

---

"Probably the most provocative and imaginative comedy to come out of the university theatre in a decade or two. Perfect for university production. Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:821 My 15 '49 20w

Reviewed by Rochelle Girson
Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ag 13 '49 140w

HOAG, FRANK VICTOR. It's fun to teach; a book for folks who wish to help children in the church school, but don't know how to start. 199p $3 Morehouse

268.6 Sunday schools—Teaching 49-10150

Practical consideration of various aspects of teaching in the Church school, by the associate rector of a large Oklahoma parish. Partial contents: Project teaching; Abusing the project method; Work for response; Incidental learning; Teller or teacher?; Keeping the child in the midst; How can you be trained?; Meeting our critics; Your influence in worship; Discipline?; The art of leadership; Leaders of young people; Your classroom equipment; The bad child; The personal conference; Problem teachers.

"This book seems to the reviewer to be pedagogically sound, but is free of technical terms, full of practical suggestions, and seems, so far as possible, to cover the whole field in language that anyone can understand. It should be useful to every church school teacher, especially the novice, for whom it is especially intended." W. L. Caswell
+ Churchman 163:18 N 1 '49 100w

"Although written for teachers in the church school, this sprightly, well-organized discussion of the how, why and what of teaching will have an interest for teachers in general. Parents, too, will find some helpful pointers on the learning process, on the reactions of children and, no less important, on the peculiarities of adults, whether parents or teachers." N. K. B.
+ N Y Times p10 Ag 28 '49 200w

HOBBES, THOMAS. De cive; or, The citizen; ed. with an introd. by Sterling P. Lamprecht. 211p $1.75 Appleton

320.1 Political science

"This volume is a new and convenient printing of Hobbes' own translation of his De Cive. He gave it the title 'Philosophical Rudiments concerning Government and Society,' which has been abbreviated by the editor into the convenient title The Citizen. In his introduction, Professor Lamprecht relates this work to Hobbes' philosophy in general and especially to the later Leviathan." J Philos

---

"The omission of four chapters from the new edition somewhat lessens the usefulness of the volume in a university library." Margaret Spahr

Am Pol Sci R 43:1080 O '49 150w

J Philos 46:656 S 29 '49 120w

School & Society 69:375 My 21 '49 50w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 10w

HODGES, C. WALTER. Shakespeare and the players; il. by [the author] with a foreword by Allardyce Nicoll. 100p $2.50 Coward-McCann

792 Shakespeare, William. Theater—England 49-8016

"From the shows of the strolling players, Mr. Hodges traces the growth of the theater in Elizabethan times, illustrating how the famous London playhouses may have looked when a play was put on. He does not go into details about Shakespeare's life, but outlines his connection with the players themselves, imagining a day at the Globe when Richard III was given. Brief sketches of Ben Jonson and other well-known playwrights are included and there is a short chapter on Stage Music." Horn Bk

Chicago Sun Ap 30 '49 100w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 8 '49 180w

"This is a fresh approach for young people and with the admirable line drawings the book will interest many older ones." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:141 Mr '49 100w

"It is not the author's purpose to present a definitive history. He merely whets the appetite for further study, and within the confines of a brief text, manages to get across a remarkably vivid picture of Elizabethan England, and the growth of the theatre as both art and industry. . . The excellent illustrations are based on authentic source material, and the style is popular and entertaining."
+ Kirkus 17:63 F 1 '49 130w

"This is one of the most revealing small volumes of practical Shakespeareana of which I know. The section devoted to the reconstruction of an Elizabethan playhouse and a production of Richard III is genuinely illuminating. For Shakespeare and theatre collections, this is highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:549 Ap 1 '49 60w

"Seldom has so delightful a small book as this come to help boys and girls to relive the age of Shakespeare. . . Everything about the book—the facts chosen, the style, easy, but far from childish, the pictures—is admirable and engaging." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly R p9 Ap 24 '49 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Hodges
N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 220w

HODGKIN, M. R. Student body. 226p $2.50 Scribner
49-9573

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 15 '49 80w

"Not very professional, but a young touch which is never skittish."
Kirkus 17:284 Je 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 31 '49 110w

"A callowness not only in the dialogue but in the whole narrative will probably limit the book's appeal to those to whom such a quality is a matter of indifference." E. B.
— N Y Times p19 Jl 17 '49 50w

"Now don't try to tell us that any murder mystery this year has had a more wonderful title than 'Student Body.' (You must pause briefly, of course, between the two words.) We were almost reluctant to open the book. It couldn't, we told ourself, be good enough to be worthy of its title. But it is." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 10 '49 190w

HOFFMAN, GLORIA. Primitivo and his dog; phot. by [the author]. 47p $2.50 Dutton 49-10293

Large photographs and simple text tell the story of the Mexican boy Primitivo, and his beloved dog.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 3 '49 50w

"Miss Hoffman has written a simple little story to go along with her camera studies. She chose to take no chances and centers the slight tale around Primitivo and his sick dog—sure fire stuff for all but the most disgustingly sophisticated youngsters. The Mexican background—that most photogenic of all lands—lends a special charm to the least impressive of her thirty-four only slightly better-than-average pictures."
+ Commonweal 51:188 N 18 '49 160w

"One way to introduce facts of Mexican life to third and fourth graders."
Kirkus 17:427 Ag 15 '49 100w

"Recommended." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 74:1464 O 1 '49 40w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 30w

"The story is like that of many other photograph books—devised to carry the pictures, not one that would stand alone. But the pictures are a worthy record of one side of Mexican life—that of childhood in the famous silver-mining town." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 28 '49 250w

"Because Miss Hoffman's photographs, richly detailed, reveal much of Mexican life, a child of 8 to 11 or a grown-up can dwell on each page long after reading the author's simple line or two of accompanying narrative." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p34 S 18 '49 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '49 100w

School & Society 70:144 Ag 27 '49 30w

HOFSTADTER, RICHARD. American political tradition and the men who made it. 378p $4 Knopf

973 U.S.—Politics and government. Statesmen, American 48-8258

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Mr. Hofstadter brings to this task the full apparatus of critical scholarship; but, more important, he brings a wide knowledge of political and economic theory, a genuinely cultivated and reflective mind, a sensitive understanding of personal motives and dilemmas, and a deft literary style. His estimates are fresh and original, shaped by requirements neither of myth nor of debunking. The essays on Jefferson, Lincoln, and Wilson are perhaps the best, although the two contemporary portraits—Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt—are both witty and illuminating." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.
+ Am Hist R 54:612 Ap '49 800w

Reviewed by F. W. Coker
Ann Am Acad 264:147 Jl '49 750w

"This book is a welcome addition to the literature of American political thought. It comes near to being the kind of which we have very few and need more. It is, that is to say, almost a major contribution to the interpretation of the American tradition. But, in spite of the title, it is, instead, a series of twelve essays. All are lively and readable; all are based on wide reading; all, except one, deal with significant figures or groups of figures." B. F. Wright
+ — Ethics 59:226 Ap '49 700w

"Vital and stimulating as it is, the volume suffers from certain serious omissions. Although it is obviously designed to pair with Wilfred Binckley's American Political Parties: Their Natural History, the reader is obliged to ask why American nationalism is accorded no place in the book in the person of Washington or Webster or Marshall? Where, must also be asked, are such doughty champions of liberal causes as William Leggett, prophet of the Locofocos,—on whom Mr. Hofstadter has written an interesting article,—and the Robert La Follettes? . . Despite these lacunae the volume will prove a stimulating addition to the literature of American biography and politics, and useful to students and teachers alike." C. M. Destler

+ — Social Educ 13:251 My '49 850w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:456 D '48 360w

"Whether one believes in celebrating the past or seeks to disprove an accepted belief in its relevance, it is clearly a function of scholarship to make the traditions of a society available to those ultimately responsible for its welfare. In a society based upon popular choice, as we like to suppose ours to be, this imposes certain obligations upon historical writing and has resulted in the increasingly recurrent phenomenon of the 'popular history.' Mr. Hofstadter's book is an excellent example. It deserves and will undoubtedly achieve a wide audience." F. V. Cahill

+ Yale R n s 38:565 spring '49 700w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Nappy is a cowboy [il. by the author]. [49p] $1.25 Dutton

49-7731

"Nappy is a healthy, happy little boy who already has won friends through earlier books about his getting a dog, planting a garden and finding a friend. This time Nappy is a 'rootin', tootin', shootin' cowboy' with all the costume fixings." N Y Times

Kirkus 17:83 F 15 '49 70w

"Not an outstanding book, but there are so few of this type for second-and third-graders that it will fill a need." N. L. Rathbun

Library J 74:1034 Jl '49 60w

"Parents who have qualms about so much rope play in the story should note that, unbeknownst to the boys, there is constant supervision by Nappy's big sister. Inez Hogan once again shows her ability to reproduce the feelings and actions of young children. For 4 to 8 year olds." Lois Palmer

+ N Y Times p26 Mr 20 '49 140w

"Pre-school and kindergarten listeners will delight in this picture-story book of 'pretend' games. Needs pre-binding."

+ Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). World round [il. by the author]. [63p] $1.75 Dutton

49-10294

Picture-book geography for first and second grades. The whale and the sea lion decide to swim around the world. At each continent they stop, and after the native animals greet them, they take one from each place aboard as passenger. End papers contain lists of animals of various continents.

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

Bookmark 9:6 O '49 30w

"An inviting book for young readers." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 20 '49 100w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 15 '49 150w

+ Kirkus 17:426 Ag 15 '49 130w

"Useful in kindergarten and first and second grades. Easy reading." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 70w

"A fascinating book."

+ School & Society 70:144 Ag 27 '49 10w

HOGARTH, WILLIAM. Drawings; ed. by A. P. Oppé. 65p 91pl $7.50 Oxford

741.91 Drawings [49-8211]

"Reproductions of a hundred and twenty drawings either known to be by Hogarth or thought to be. Among them are the preliminary studies for such famous engravings as the illustrations for 'Hudibras' and the 'Industry and Idleness' series. Some of these drawings have recently been discovered, and most have never been reproduced before. The volume contains a catalogue describing all Hogarth's drawings in detail, and an introduction in which the editor explains the reasons for the scarcity of drawings by Hogarth." (New Yorker) Bibliography Index.

Kirkus 17:174 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Stephen Bone

New Statesman & Nation 36:553 D 18 '48 130w

New Yorker 25:103 Ap 23 '49 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Je 26 '49 300w

"This is a welcome volume because, although reproductions of Hogarth's prints and paintings have been generally available, his drawings have been rather hard to come by. . . Mr. Oppe's introduction and analytical catalogue of 110 entries, the products of painstaking research and sound scholarship, are an invaluable contribution to Hogarthiana." L. R. Sander

+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Jl 2 '49 150w

"A model of its type. Its centre-piece is the catalogue of drawings by Hogarth and of those which, although no longer allowed to be from his hand, have ascriptions of respectable antiquity. This admirably complete list is a striking example of Mr. Oppé's meticulous scholarship and critical acuity. . . It is hardly necessary to add that Mr. Oppé spares his readers the boring and glib anecdotes which have flowed from the pens of many previous writers on Hogarth, and which have hitherto elbowed out a more rational criticism. His book is not only the first monograph on the drawings in which the subject is satisfactorily comprehended; it will for a long time remain the only monograph to which the student will need to refer." Jonathan Mayne

+ Spec 181:776 D 10 '48 800w

HOGBEN, LANCELOT THOMAS. From cave painting to comic strip; a kaleidoscope of human communication; with 20 pages in full col. and 211 il. in black and white, sel. by Marie Neurath. 286p $5 Chanticleer

709 Communication and traffic 49-48679

Popular history of 30,000 years of human visual communication, from the cave paintings, thru the birth and growth of hieroglyphs, alphabets, printing, photography, down to the present age of visual aids. Illustrated with pictures in color and in black-and-white chosen by Marie Neurath, director of the Isotype Institute of London. Index.

Booklist 46:119 D 1 '49

Bookmark 9:52 D '49 50w

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 300w

"A spirited and sparkling interpretation."

+ Kirkus 17:523 S 15 '49 140w

"The book set out, so Mr. Lancelot Hogben says in his introduction, to be the accompanying text to a 'picture gallery' selected by Mrs. Neurath, long associated with the Vienna school of visual statistics. The picture gallery is here all right, and very entertaining it is. But Mr. Hogben has been stimulated into something more; much of what he has to say is of real importance, and the minor tragedy of his book is that because he does not from the start seem clear what he is trying to do his best points do not get adequate treatment." J. W.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 N 18 '49 600w

Reviewed by Jacquetta Hawkes

New Statesman & Nation 38:526 N 5 '49 950w

"The story is well told in English which can be read with delight, and is accompanied by a charming decoration of story and wit. I must quarrel with Mr. Hogben and Miss Neurath in one important respect. I think it a great pity, in spite of the obvious popular appeal, to suggest that this great stream,

HOGBEN, L. T.—Continued
which has proceeded from ancient time with such pomp of waters, is ending amid the bogs and sloughs of the art of comic-stripping." Joseph Hudnut
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 N 6 '49 750w

"This examination, of necessity brief and telescoped, is filled with witty comments and personal crotchets which add immeasureably to the effectiveness of his presentation. . . Very few facts will be new to the intelligent reader, but the morals drawn and the particular context into which they are imbedded are penetrating and important. . . A particularly satisfying combination of illustration and text. In few other recent books are text and plates so unified and the color plates so superbly reproduced." L. J. Wathen
+ N Y Times p6 O 16 '49 600w

+ New Yorker 25:135 N 5 '49 140w

"Naturally in this rapid, didactic-hortatory kind of book broad generalizations cannot be helped. Professor Hogben delivers himself of plenty such, and since he writes directly and much as he might speak, his text exhibits all sorts of personal bias, odds and ends of individual prejudice and opinion. Nevertheless this is an enormously stimulating book, as much argument as it is history in its field, and honestly exciting in the view it opens up of a possible tomorrow." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 20 '49 1400w

Reviewed by Dixon Wecter
Sat R of Lit 32:11 N 5 '49 2200w

"A most enthralling work!"
+ School & Society 70:288 O 29 '49 30w

Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

HOGG, JAMES (ETTRICK SHEPHERD, pseud). Private memoirs and confessions of a justified sinner; with an introd. by André Gide. 230p $2.75 Chanticleer

"This minor masterpiece by 'the Ettrick Shepherd,' first published in 1824, is a highly original, powerful study of religious mania, which steadily increases its grip on the readers' interest, page by page, as the remarkable story unfolds." Sat R of Lit

---

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p61 D 2 '49 100w

"For some mysterious reason, this little book escaped the reputation it deserves as one of the first horror stories in the language, and survives (since its publication in 1824) only as a curiosity of literature." J. F.
+ New Repub 121:20 O 24 '49 130w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 N 5 '49 50w

Time 54:106 S 26 '49 700w

HOGNER, DOROTHY (CHILDS) (MRS NILS HOGNER). Daisy; a farm fable; pictures by Nils Hogner. [46p] $1.50 Oxford

Horses—Legends and stories 49-10086

A picture book for ages 5-8. Daisy, a work horse, wanted to prance and dance. At the fair she won a prize for pulling the biggest load of stones. From that time on she realized that prancing was all right for ponies, but her job was to move slowly and steadily.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:406 S '49 40w

"The illustrations lack vitality and strength of line, but a horse is a horse and many children will no doubt enjoy the story very much."
Kirkus 17:391 Ag 1 '49 150w

"Drawings by Nils Hogner are clear, accurate, and unusually appropriate to the story. Recommended for kindergarten and grades 1-3." Nella McCalla
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 40w

"Farm children especially will be amused by Daisy, if their farms still have horses. To other children she offers an illuminating horse-eye view of a county fair, and a nice moral attached to an amusing creature. The pictures are in Mr. Hogner's well known sculptured style." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 25 '49 140w

"This book has an appealing theme: happiness comes with recognition and use of abilities. The illustrations are excellent and should appeal to children from 5 to 8." M. R. Brown
+ N Y Times p34 S 18 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 50w

HOGUE, WILBUR OURINGS. Bob Clifton, elephant hunter; il. by Kurt Wiese. 151p $2.50 Holt

49-2149

An adventure story relating the experiences of an American boy in present day Africa. For older boys.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

"The book is full of authentic information about unfamiliar life and scenes and makes good reading." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:293 Jl '49 110w

"A very good story . . . which might almost be classed as non-fiction in the authenticity of the detail."
+ Kirkus 17:151 Mr 15 '49 90w

"The background and hunting lore seem authentic and the relationships with the natives well handled. A bit jerky at the beginning, but it picks up momentum. Boys, grades 7-8, should welcome." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 74:738 My 1 '49 80w

"The author has lived in Africa for long periods. . . He has a good, straight-forward style and gives much unusual information about this dangerous sport." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 5 '49 150w

Reviewed by H. B. Lent
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 17 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 50w

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 110w

HOKE, MRS HELEN L. (HELEN STERLING, pseud). Factory kitty; pictures by Harry Lees. [34p] $2 Watts, F.

49-9484

Picture story book about a small calico kitten with enough spunk for several big cats. He followed the workmen into the Ritz Print and Dye Works one day, and promptly fell in love with the factory and the men, and they with him. The story of his adventures describes his brief trip away from the factory, and his return to his "career."

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

Bookmark 9:7 O '49 30w

"This is perhaps the best of the career kitten stories—from the point of view of text. And the Harry Lees pictures are beguiling, too, though not quite so fascinatingly detailed as the pictures in Grocery Kitten."
+ Kirkus 17:252 My 15 '49 170w

"Very lively and interesting story. . . Recommended." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 60w

"Strong men in action, fascinating machinery, and the engaging calico kitten are dramatized in colorful illustrations which complement the well-told story. A happy combination for 6-to-10-year-olds." Elena Baker
+ N Y Times p22 Jl 17 '49 150w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Rowena Carey; il. by Grace Paull. 242p $2.50 Doubleday

49-8893

Story of a chubby nine-year-old girl of Rockport, Massachusetts. Rowena wanted a horse so badly that she used a cherry tree and a stag's head for a charger. Her friends were sympathetic and before a year is over, Rowena receives riding lessons from the chief of police, rides in the firemen's parade, and is given the use of a rented horse. For grades 4-6.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Jl 2 '49 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"The sense of place is strong in the story and the doings of the impulsive child will amuse other nine-year-olds. Grace Paull's drawings support the action well." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:286 Jl '49 90w

"Rowena to adults will stand for living, healthy, growing American democracy at its best. Children will love her for herself, and those who live in large cities or inland will find the life in a seaport a new doorway, while those who live as she does in just such a community, will feel the book is written for them."
+ Kirkus 17:178 Ap 1 '49 190w

"This amusing story of life in a small village is highly recommended to boys and girls of 9-12. Good illustrations by Grace Paull." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 70w

"The year-round doings of both adults and children in this lovable old New England town are most charming and will make good vacation reading. Rockport's celebrations of both Christmas and Memorial Day are so happily told one longs to share them." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ag 21 '49 150w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
N Y Times p10 Jl 3 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 30w

Wis Lib Bul 45:107 Je '49

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. America's Ethan Allen; pictures by Lynd Ward. 96p $2.50 Houghton

B or 92 Allen, Ethan—Juvenile literature
49-10780

A biography of the leader of the Green Mountain boys. For grades 7-9.

Booklist 46:69 O 15 '49

"A strikingly beautiful, dramatically honest account of a man who has become legendary. The Lynd Ward paintings make the volume as brilliant as the red coats of the British and the dyed deerskin hunting shirts of the Americans. They reflect all the turbulence, the suffering, the violence of the times." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun O 8 '49 270w

"Ethan Allen's story will kindle young Americans' pride in another of our great rebel heroes. . . Lynd Ward's strong, dramatic illustrations in full color and black and white again add distinction to a memorable biografy." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 200w

"Courage, bravado, honor, and adventure make it a good story but its subtler merit is that Mr. Holbrook has managed by the simplest use of narrative to fashion Ethan whole." Florence Codman
+ Commonweal 51:187 N 18 '49 120w

"Here we have a spirited, well-written true story presented in picturebook format of smaller size than the drawings seem to require." A. C. Moore
+ — Horn Bk 25:522 N '49 50w

"The stunning pictures by Lynd Ward help to make this a distinguished book." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:538 N '49 120w

"A beautifully written and dramatically illustrated history of one phase of the American Revolution, combined with a vivid portrayal of one of the most dashing of American heroes. . . Recommended." C. W. Field
+ Library J 74:1828 D 1 '49 120w

"In text, pictures and book make-up, this is one of the outstanding books of the fall. . . Mr. Ward has outdone himself. He illuminates history with technical skill, deep feeling and artistic power. His pictures alone tell the story wonderfully well." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 13 '49 250w

"The simple and dramatic narrative complements the breathtakingly beautiful pictures." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p20 D 11 '49 140w

"A handsome and exciting book for readers from nine up."
+ New Yorker 25:184 D 3 '49 60w

"In both text and illustrations the New England background is extraordinarily convincing. You feel it in every word and see it on every page." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 12 '49 180w

HOLCOMBE, ARTHUR NORMAN. Human rights in the modern world. 162p $3.75 N.Y. univ. press

323.4 Civil rights. Liberty 48-9556

"Four of the six lectures presented in this volume deal with the proposed International Bill of Rights, the privileges and immunities of 'citizens of the United Nations,' the enforcement of such rights and privileges under the Charter of the United Nations, and the relation between human rights and the rights of nations under the Charter. . . Professor Holcombe devotes the two other lectures to a review of the general progress in respect to human rights and their protection from the time of the 'Glorious Revolution' of 1688, through the constitutional provisions and their interpretation in respect to the American Bill of Rights, and the privileges and immunities of American citizens." U S Quarterly Bkl

"In a world in which so many people of integrity and intelligence are prone to tilt at windmills when they consider problems of international organization, it is good to hear words of caution from a scholar of such repute. But in this reviewer's opinion, this book carries caution too far. The author is right, of course, when he fears that Russia and her satellites will never accept Western concepts of human rights. But he fails to show why these states will be much more disposed to accept his more modest proposals for the declaration of rights of individuals as members of the United Nations." J. B. Whitton
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:841 Ag '49 850w

"Professor Holcombe's work is marked not only by wide erudition and a straight-forward style, but also by an unfailing realization that mere statements about human rights have very limited value. While revealing faith and idealism of the highest order, he repeatedly insists that noble aspirations must find implements of application in order to be useful." R. H. Markham
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 D 29 '48 550w

Foreign Affairs 28:159 O '49 20w

"This is a depressing book, but it is also a useful one. It should be required reading for the many idealists who are convinced that the millennium can be achieved by adopting the right set of by-laws. . . As a publication, the present book seems to this reviewer an unhappy compromise, being neither a thorough survey of its subject matter, nor a pithy statement of a point of view. The fault lies less with the author than with the inventor of the notion that good lectures always make a good book." J. B. Bingham
— + Sat R of Lit 32:35 My 14 '49 500w

School & Society 69:215 Mr 19 '49 40w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:89 Mr '49 300w

HOLE, CHRISTINA. English sports and pastimes; il. from paintings, prints and photographs. 183p $4.50 Batsford

790 England—Social life and customs. Sports [49-10160]

"The pastimes described here go back to medieval days. . . The contents range from an account of the origin and development of lawn tennis to notes on Threshing the Hen, a curious nineteenth-century game in which blindfolded players happily flailed at a fowl borne by a horseman. . . Over a hundred contemporaneous illustrations." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"Within [certain] limits the book is a valuable mass of information on a subject too long neglected. Miss Hole has kept her head in spite of the complexities of her material and method. Her inaccuracies seem to be trifling and she has shown a positive genius for clear and compact statement." C. H. Kirby
+ Am Hist R 55:132 O '49 490w

Reviewed by Ronald Stead
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 21 '49 1500w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 50w

New Yorker 25:102 Je 11 '49 120w

"To praise overmuch the illustrations of a book may be to cast unfairly an oblique slur on its author. Yet it is almost certain that many people will find Miss Christina Hole's book primarily a most attractive picture-book. She has conscientiously covered a great deal of ground and perhaps her fault lies in trying to cover too much. . . Golf is dismissed with the statement, which runs contrary to that of accepted historians, that there was a course at Westward Ho! in the reign of George II. Miss Hole is on safer and happier ground with the old, traditional country pastimes, such as the Hood Game played at Haxey, in Lincolnshire."
Times [London] Lit Sup p345 My 27 '49 600w

HOLLAND, MRS CLAUDIA. Center aisle. 279p $2.75 Rinehart

49-9052

A picture of life in a small Virginia town dominated by two or three old families. On the wedding day of one lovely daughter, in flashbacks, in incidents from other parts of town, the background of another lovely daughter is revealed to the reader if not to all the actors in the drama.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 130w

Kirkus 17:157 Mr 15 '49 130w

"'Center Aisle' is gaily satirical but never tart—a good-natured effort to pierce the overblown bubble of family and social position in a historic Virginia town. But in spite of her obvious effort to remain detached, Miss Holland shows herself still somewhat caught up in the honey of her own tradition. . . Just a little more acid in the mix next time, if you please, Miss Holland, and the blend will be perfect." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 22 '49 650w

"Mrs. Holland's novel is a natural for this season of nuptials and most assuredly will find a place on the bookshelf devoted to lighthearted summer reading." J. P. Quehl
+ N Y Times p10 My 29 '49 270w

"Mrs. Holland doesn't play fair. She leaves those threads dangling that she should have tied, and tightly knots those she could have left undone. Perhaps she has made us greedy. Certainly one or two items should have been settled. . . The atmospheric combination of heat, juleps, organdy, hot breads, and skeletons about to burst the closets makes for an undeniably valid sense of locale. It is simply that the scene isn't quite played out."
— + Sat R of Lit 32:33 Jl 30 '49 180w

HOLLAND, DANIEL JOHN. Trout fishing; phot. by the author [decorations by William J. Schaldach] foreword by Corey Ford and Alastair MacBain. 420p $5 Crowell

799.1755 Trout fishing Agr49-444

"Comprehensive guidance for the American trout fisherman; gives information on the habits and characteristics of the fish, on tackle, and on techniques." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:44 O 1 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p7X D 11 '49 90w

"There have been several books on trout fishing this year, but this qualifies as perhaps the most thorough coverage on the specific subject indicated in the title."
+ Kirkus 17:316 Je 15 '49 240w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 60w

"Mr. Holland, well known as angler, writer and photographer of the outdoors, is at his best when he grapples with such slippery subjects as what a trout can see. His chapter on 'The Metropolitan Angler' is a good bet to delight many of the several hundred thousand who forsake family, home and job on the second Saturday in April each year." Nate Aleskovsky
+ N Y Times p6 D 25 '49 190w

"A comprehensive and readable volume. . . The book is refreshingly long on information and short on personal reminiscence of the 'beautiful sunset' school."
+ New Yorker 25:138 O 15 '49 120w

HOLLINGSHEAD, AUGUST DE BELMONT. Elmtown's youth, the impact of social classes on adolescents. 480p $5 Wiley

301.1584 Class distinction. Adolescence. Social surveys 49-3279

"This is an analysis of the way the social system of a Middle Western Corn Belt community organizes and controls the social behavior of high-school-aged adolescents reared in it. Although based on a scientific report the writing is directed to the intelligent, general reader rather than to the specialist in sociology, etc." (School & Society) Index.

Reviewed by R. S. Lynd
Am Soc R 14:560 Ag '49 900w

Booklist 45:347 Je 15 '49

Christian Century 66:1074 S 14 '49 170w

Reviewed by Celia Kraft
Churchman 163:18 S 1 '49 190w

"Mr. Hollingshead in this minor Kinsey report clearly shows his affinity for the deterministic, environmental school. Yet his alarming findings are too solidly based, factually, to be ignored or summarily dismissed."
Commonweal 50:253 Je 17 '49 200w

"Intelligently planned and lucidly presented; interesting to the layman, invaluable to the sociologist."
+ Nation 169:142 Ag 6 '49 50w

Reviewed by Vance Bourjaily
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 26 '49 650w

"Just because 'Elmtown' is so small, semi-agricultural, and so patently American, the clarity of the data in chapters four and five on class cleavages and their bases makes this part of the volume an important contribution." R. S. Lynd
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Jl 2 '49 600w

"The conclusions and implications of this study are clearly and realistically formulated." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 70:442 D 31 '49 360w

"In spite of the statistics and all the supporting proof this reader feels that the case is made a little too strong for class and its consequences. Even job aspirations seem to be determined by class. It may be wishful thinking but isn't there greater elasticity in our class system than the author implies—or is there? At any rate this type of study sets an excellent example that should inspire similar studies on both a regional and size of community basis." R. M. Reser

+ — Social Forces 28:211 D '49 500w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Survey 85:556 O '49 800w

HOLLINGWORTH, HARRY LEVI. Psychology and ethics; a study of the sense of obligation. 247p $3.50 Ronald

177.8 Psychology. Ethics 49-7396

"The author's thesis is based in a sense on the negative judgment that 'traditional systems of ethical doctrine do not relate very closely to contemporary activities and ideals,' and often are based on 'antiquated descriptions of our minds and misguided accounts of human motives.' He endeavors to use the most approved methods of psychological inquiry in his study of 'oughtness.' The core of the book is an analysis of the varieties of ought." (Christian Century) Indexes.

"Psychology and Ethics contains close and orderly reasoning and is not superficial. If there is a weak point, it lies in the fragile basis of its demonstration. The value of the theory will, of course, be determined in the course of time by the experience of those who may try to use it." R. E. L. Faris
+ Am J Soc 55:429 Ja '50 550w

"Unfortunately the book is written in typical textbook style. It is hoped that this will not cause its reading to be limited to teachers." K. B. Cully
+ — Christian Century 66:823 Jl 6 '49 900w

Reviewed by E. G. Ballard
Ethics 60:76 O '49 440w

School & Society 69:63 Ja 22 '49 70w

Reviewed by M. H. Williams
Social Forces 28:220 D '49 550w

"Small and very readable volume." E. T. Burr
+ Survey 85:399 Jl '49 460w

HOLLISTER, WILLIAM WALLACE. Government and the arts of obedience. 139p $2 King's crown press

320.15 Political science 48-8102

"Attempting 'a fresh analysis of the esprit des lois in terms of contemporary culture,' William W. Hollister focuses our attention upon the old problem of political obligation. . . Conceiving of government as 'the art of securing obedience,' by compulsion if necessary, by convention if possible, the author believes that 'the arts of governing can now be distinguished as different aspects of the problem of resolving conflict and making joint participation customary. Domination, command, leadership, administration, and representation have each its own appropriate esprit or cultural context in terms of which it must be judged.' Domination is 'based on a balance of fears;' command upon 'social solidarity;' leadership upon 'trust that the agency of control will carry out group goals which are desired, but which have not been explicitly recognized;' administration upon 'recognition of the usefulness of the ends of control, but not of the specific policies to carry them out;' and representation upon 'reciprocity of interest.'" (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

"This study should be useful in reopening discussion of the vital problem of political obligation, and the author, it seems to me, is certainly on the right track when he insists that the study of 'power' must be undertaken 'primarily in terms of its basis in obedience.' If, however, that discussion is to be truly fruitful, it must free itself from the positivistic shackles that bind this author from ever seriously considering the ends in terms of which obedience is desirable. 'Social control' is no end in itself, and to posit it as the goal of government is simply to beg the question of political obligation. What purports to be an answer to the question thus turns out in the end to be but a restatement of the problem in different terms." J. H. Hallowell
Am Pol Sci R 42:1251 D '48 450w

"This little book brings together the thoughts and ideas of many men on the vital problem of today. It is readable and contains much valuable information for the undergraduate student of political theory." R. F. Harvey
+ Ann Am Acad 262:210 Mr '49 280w

"Ministers and ecclesiastical administrators may apply in their own vocational field many of the suggestions of this study of secular government. Using the discriminating terminology of advanced semantics the author maintains high standards of scholarship and presents a thesis calculated to strengthen the reader's loyalty to democracy and liberally tolerant religion." Earl Cranston
+ Crozer Q 24:187 Ap '49 380w

"In this brief work, Mr. Hollister makes a significant contribution not only to the substance of theoretical analysis in politics, but also to the method. . . In criticism, I must add that Mr. Hollister occasionally uses unimpressive and confusing jargon, and is not always completely clear in his argumentation, while at other points he seems to me to oversimplify issues. I should indeed like to suggest that an article systematically developing his essential theses would probably eliminate some of these defects, and would at the same time be of great value as a demonstration of method, and a statement of the essential findings of a fertile analysis." T. I. Cook
+ — J Philos 46:220 Mr 31 '49 900w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:470 D '48 320w

HOLLON, W. EUGENE. The lost pathfinder, Zebulon Montgomery Pike. (American exploration and travel ser) 240p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Pike, Zebulon Montgomery 49-5390

A biography which shows Pike's place in the history of the West. A large part of the book describes his expeditions up the Mississippi, the Osage, and the Arkansas rivers, and into the Southwest. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:32 S 15 '49

Current Hist 17:354 D '49 50w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 18 '49 800w

"Professor Hollon of the University of Oklahoma has studied the man and his career extensively and devotedly. Exploring manuscript collections and using printed sources, he has written about Pike in the spirit of a careful scholar. The story of exploration and war that he tells is intrinsically interesting, and it strikingly reveals the trials of military life on the crude frontier. It also touches on other men much better known than Pike—and these figures sometimes seem to overshadow him." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Times p38 N 20 '49 450w

"Mr. Hollon's book is the first really serviceable biography of Zebulon Montgomery Pike that has been published in the 142 years since he first began to merit a biography, though we have had useful studies of his expeditions by Elliott Coues and Stephen Hart and Archer Hulbert. But though this new biography is informative and conscientious, and therefore useful, it is also more than a little dull, showing no great amount of imagination in either the writing or the general treatment. 'The Lost Pathfinder' is one of those books to be kept available on the reference shelf, but hardly to be reread for the pleasure of the experience." D. L. Morgan
Sat R of Lit 32:17 S 17 '49 850w

HOLMAN, CHARLES THOMAS. Psychology and religion for everyday living. 178p $2.50 Macmillan

248 Psychology, Applied. Psychology, Religious 49-10280

"This book is intended to indicate how an understanding of ourselves and of the resources inherent in religious faith may assist us in achieving a full, rich and liberated life.

HOLMAN, C. T.—Continued
It does not present a systematized treatment of psychology or of religion, but it does discuss some of the problems which we all face day by day as we pursue the quest for life." Pref

"So much good religion and sound sense is here put into plain and simple words that one almost forgets that Holman is well trained in psychology and education. . . Though the author states his ideas with complete clarity, he does not oversimplify by dodging the real problems of either psychology or religion, and a certain amount of technical terminology is inevitable." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1328 N 9 '49 370w

"The book includes many quotations and anecdotes which preachers may find useful for illustrative purposes."
+ Kirkus 17:545 O 1 '49 120w

"Book should be helpful to many and should be widely read." M. A. Johnson
+ Library J 74:1088 Ag '49 100w

HOLSTIUS, EDWARD NILS. Evergreen. 302p $3 Doubleday
48-9522

A story of an unhappy marriage which in spite of everything proved in the end unbreakable. The principal characters are the lovely, innocent Loraine Drew, the charming rascal who was her husband, and Shandy, the man who loved her. The scene is England in the 1920s.

Booklist 45:129; 137 D 15 '48
Chicago Sun p8X F 27 '49 110w
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 120w
Kirkus 16:628 D 1 '48 170w

"An absorbing plot and well-written narrative remind the reader of Galsworthy." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 73:1384 O 1 '48 50w

"In easy, conventional surroundings, Mr. Holstius has drawn his central characters with care. Benedict's charm is genuine, Shandy is a sympathetic mixture of sweetness and stuffiness, and Loraine's honesty and grace enlist the sympathy of the reader. 'Evergreen' is a pleasantly written, moving novel set in easy, conventional surroundings." Barbara Klaw
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 F 6 '49 290w

Reviewed by Wilson Follett
N Y Times p24 F 6 '49 200w
New Yorker 24:90 F 12 '49 160w

"Here are types of the period—the quick-rich, the opportunist, the career woman and the rest. 'Evergreen' gives them to you clearly and vividly, and with considerable dash and vigor. And it has the one quality readers look for in this kind of novel; it tells a story every minute of the way." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 2 '49 850w
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 9 '49 130w

HOLT, ISABELLA. My son and heir. 346p $3 Bobbs
49-10521

Story of three generations of the Wicklund family from 1893 to 1941. Beginning in a small town in Ohio, the fortunes of the family sky rocketed and carried the family to a position on the outskirts of New York, not quite at the top of either the social or the financial set. The story centers in the relationship of Joanna Wicklund to her son Alec.

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

"Chicago friends of Isabella Holt will find that her talent has come into full bloom in this rich, well-developed novel." Edward Uzemack
+ Chicago Sun p10X N 27 '49 120w

"An exceptionally good family novel."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 3 '49 210w

"A sympathetic and interesting character study. Recommended." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 74:1460 O 1 '49 80w

"Miss Holt's characterization has liveliness and edge, and the story moves swiftly and smoothly. She writes with penetration and humor about the town the Wicklunds left behind them, the ultra-respectable New York circles that never wholly accepted them and, especially, about the permutations and combinations, in both settings, of the manifestations of little red-haired Joanna's fighting faith; actually the story is hers, rather than that of the son for whom it is entitled. These qualities and depth, as well as range in Miss Holt's portrayal of people, places and ideas make 'My Son and Heir' an unusually readable novel." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 2 '49 500w

Reviewed by Anne Richards
N Y Times p34 O 9 '49 200w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 32:19 O 1 '49 600w

HOLT, JACK, and COGGINS, CAROLYN. Lance and his first horse; il. by Wesley Dennis. (Whittlesey house publication) 48p $2 McGraw

Horses—Legends and stories 49-11256

Information on horses conveyed thru a story for young readers. By the time Lance is seven he has learned to be responsible, and so he earns a horse of his own.

Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 150w

"There is apparently no limit to the market for horse books, and this is a sure candidate for popularity. It meets one very vital need: a practical, down to earth book at the easy reading level."
+ Kirkus 17:558 O 1 '49 120w

"Authentic information about horses that can be given to children as soon as they are interested." A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 40w

"Splendid information for young horse enthusiasts of six, seven, and eight."
+ Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 70w

"This is a book both boys and girls will treasure, and I suspect they will wear out many of the pages of rules for riding, learning them by heart." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 13 '49 230w

"The trio who produced this book—Jack Holt, movie star and horseman; Carolyn Coggins and Wesley Dennis, the last two well known in the children's book world—have presented story, points on horsemanship and pictures in a way to please readers or listeners of 5 to 8 and to teach them something about horses and kindness to animals in general." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p50 O 23 '49 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 20w

HOLT, STEPHEN. Phantom roan; il. by Pers Crowell. 244p $2.50 Longmans

Horses—Legends and stories 49-10379

"The story of an eighteen-year-old boy's exciting and interesting experiences as apprentice to a veterinarian in the cattle country of Alberta, Canada, and his finding and taming of an outlaw horse, a rodeo castoff that hates all men." Booklist

Booklist 46:69 O 15 '49

Reviewed by Will Davidson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 13 '49 100w
+ Kirkus 17:362 Jl 15 '49 160w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1554 O 15 '49 140w

"Glenn's adventures are told with a brisk, honest realism, and the minor characters are interesting. It is good reading for those in the teens and older who will appreciate Glenn's conflicting problems as to his beloved horse and his job." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 23 '49 190w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 30w

"Everything here a boy or girl could desire: good writing, swift action, the great outdoors—a boy and a horse."
+ School & Society 70:160 S 3 '49 20w

HONEYMAN, JOHN. Introduction to the chemistry of carbohydrates. 143p $4 Oxford
547.3 Carbohydrates [A49-9850]

"In this book the author has provided a concise pattern in presenting the chemistry of a select number of carbohydrates. The avowed purpose of the treatise as stated in the preface is to furnish the reader with an up-to-date account of the sugars and nonsugars. Various scientific papers of eminent carbohydrate chemists, such as Emil Fischer, C. S. Hudson, E. L. Hirst, and others, are referred to throughout the book with the author's unique method of presentation. A considerable number of pages are devoted to the chemistry of the monosaccharides with regard to their constitution and synthesis, configuration, ring structure, reaction, derivatives, and action of acids and alkalies." Chem & Eng N

Reviewed by M. L. Wolfrom
+ Am Chem Soc J 71:3268 S '49 60w

"The author in his discussion of the polysaccharides presents a well-balanced and substantially factual account of the subject, though certain concepts are perhaps oversimplified to a degree bordering on inaccuracy. . . Unfortunately the author has omitted to a great extent the physical and chemical properties of the sugars, non-sugars, and their derivatives. However, ample illustrations are given throughout the treatise by employing structural formulas. . . This book should be of interest to students, chemists, and all who wish to keep abreast in theory and technique of the carbohydrates." T. H. Newkirk
+ Chem & Eng N 27:1470 My 16 '49 400w

HOOD, SAMUEL STEVENS, ed. Archibald Henderson: the new Crichton; a composite portrait, authorized. ltd ed 252p il $5 Beechhurst press
B or 92 Henderson, Archibald 49-7925

"Nearly forty men and women who have seen him plain linked hand and heart to create this tribute to Dr. Henderson, the grand old man of Chapel Hill, mathematician, scientist, historian, biographer of Bernard Shaw, and fifty years a teacher at the University of North Carolina. The contributors include Gerald W. Johnson, Percival Chubb, Betty Smith, Walter Pritchard Eaton, Lennox Robinson, and the late Holbrook Jackson and Charles A. Beard, and there are letters from Bernard Shaw and Albert Einstein. . . Bibliographies of Dr. Henderson's writings in various fields are appended. There are sixteen pages of photographs." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 14 '49 130w

"It should be worth any man's while to strive to live so usefully and productively as to merit such a monument as this while he still has the insight and outsight to read the noble inscription. Dr. Henderson deserves well of his school and of the republic, and here is the proof of his deserving." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ag 13 '49 180w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 70:90 Ag 6 '49 1550w

HOOVER, EDGAR MALONE. Location of economic activity. 310p maps $3.75 McGraw 658.21 Industries, Location of 48-3997

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"This volume, which surveys important institutional factors that must be taken into account in bridging the gap between economic theory and economic reality, is a most useful volume, and of high quality; it is also virtually the only systematic work in its field." C. C. Abbott
+ Ann Am Acad 261:199 Ja '49 460w

"An excellent case is made for the importance of locational knowledge. More and more, conscious attention is being given to location as a problem per se, not only by individual entrepreneurs and wage earners, but also by all the many units of government." C. L. Vinge
+ Geog R 39:343 Ap '49 250w

Management R 38:234 Ap '49 140w

HOOVER, KATHLEEN O'DONNELL. Makers of opera; introd. by Carleton Sprague Smith. 209p il $7.50 Bittner, H.
782.09 Opera—History. Musicians 49-851

Eighteen essays on the lives and works of some of the major operatic composers, from Jacopo Peri to Richard Strauss. "The author concentrates on the genesis of operatic works, describing a composer's relation to his librettist, comparing initial jottings and first drafts with final revisions, describing contemporary critical reception." (Sat R of Lit) There are fifty illustrations.

"There are statements in this new work on which the author scarcely stands on the solid ground of fact. . . Nor is it possible to agree with the claims, also frequently made by others, that Allessandro Scarlatti 'originated the ternary pattern of the da capo aria.' . . These flaws cannot detract from the worth of Makers of Opera as a whole. Mrs. Hoover often gives an enlightening sketch of the character of a composer, and as often hits off a critical estimation of an opera with skill and acumen, as well as with literary polish. Not least attractive are the 50 illustrations of opera houses, scenes, composers, and autographs." Felix Borowski
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:305 Mr '49 950w

"The effect, especially in view of the author's bland and laudatory approach, is that of a series of learned, well written encyclopedia articles. It cannot be claimed that the book gives a comprehensive or bird's-eye view of three hundred and fifty years of opera, for though it includes Lully and Rameau, it omits Handel. It deals with Rossini, but not Bellini or Donizetti. . . 'Makers of Opera' makes no pretense of contributing new appraisals or new data. It is content with genteel summaries smooth with well-bred charm. Strangely lacking an index, it is of little use as a reference book, as which it is in any case too limited in scope. Worth possessing for its beauty of format and illustration, it can be best be called a luxurious table book for opera-manes." Herbert Weinstock
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 24 '49 240w

"In appearance, 'Makers of Opera' is a very attractive book. . . The text itself quickly dispels the promise implied in its artistic interior and ambitious foreword. Instead, a weary procession of names and events readily available in any dictionary of music and musicians confronts the reader, and only the most superficial and passing references connect one chapter with another. There is no real attempt to trace the development of opera as an art form." H. G. Lawrence
— N Y Times p20 Ap 10 '49 390w

"With masterful skill, Mrs. Hoover avoids the cliché both of fact and expression. She writes well, and never with condescension. A nimble allusion here, a trenchant comparison there affirm her genial culture. The author's knowledge, in short, is assimilated, not flaunted. . . A rich, eminently civilized book! One awaits with impatience Mrs. Hoover's further investigations in the uncharted field of twentieth-century opera." Roland Gelatt
+ Sat R of Lit 32:60 F 26 '49 500w

HOPKINSON, ARTHUR WELLS. About William Law; a running commentary on his works; with a foreword by E. Gordon Selwyn. 131p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Law, William [48-9335]

"A sub-title describes this book as A Running Commentary on His Works; and so, for the most part, it is. But the author has more in view than the providing of a commentary on Law: he seeks to get him read again for the value of his message for these times." Churchman

Reviewed by C. D. Brodhead
Christian Century 65:1302 D 1 '48 430w

Reviewed by F. J. Moore
Churchman 163:17 F 15 '49 240w

HORAN, JAMES DAVID. Desperate men; revelations from the sealed Pinkerton files. 296p il $4 Putnam

364 Outlaws. Pinkerton's national detective agency 49-11617

Based on the sealed Pinkerton files, these are the stories of two groups of outlaws: Jesse James and his gang, and Butch Cassidy and the Wild Bunch. Index.

Booklist 46:126 D 1 '49

"The James-Younger brothers' chapters are fast-moving, fine-reading antidotes to the surge in recent years of inept, superficial, historically false, outlaw-glamorizing Hollywood works on the subjects. The treatment of the Northfield (Minn.) bank robbery and getaway and the detail of the assassination of Jesse by Bob Ford are vividly excellent. Even more entertaining is the last half of the book, dealing with 'Butch' Cassidy and other energetic cattle rustlers, horse thieves, train robbers and bank heisters." Ray Brennan
+ — Chicago Sun N 8 '49 600w

"Here is one of the most exciting books of Americana to be published in a long time. . . It's a wonderful book, and only seldom does the prose decline into anything as feeble as 'Then, in 1883, the star of the play emerged from the wings and came on the stage.' " Paul Engle
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 13 '49 500w

"Well-written, factually sound, fascinating true western."
+ Kirkus 17:495 S 1 '49 200w

Reviewed by Dashiell Hammett
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 27 '49 800w

" 'Desperate Men' does little more than retell the old stories that have been told and retold." Hoffman Birney
N Y Times p10 D 25 '49 160w

"Told as precisely and as carefully as the professional historian might do the job. . . It is good to have someone examine this misty mid-region of America's past as Mr. Horan does it, using the apparatus of the scholar and the skepticism of the first-rate reporter. His book reflects both the high drama of an earlier gangster period and the tenacious, unrelenting work of the greatest detective agency of them all. Which is as it should be." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 31 '49 900w

Reviewed by D. L. Morgan
Sat R of Lit 32:18 D 31 '49 700w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 490w

Time 54:106 N 7 '49 800w

HORN, STANLEY FITZGERALD, ed. Robert E. Lee reader. 542p il $5 Bobbs

B or 92 Lee, Robert Edward 49-11582

"The purpose of this book is to present a full-length portrait of Robert E. Lee by means of extracts selected from the writings of the many who have taken the Confederate commander as their subject. . . Published works range from that modern biographical masterpiece, Dr. Freeman's four-volume R. E. Lee, back to the scores of biographies and reminiscences written by those contemporaries who knew Lee. . . Use has been made also of the many fugitive sketches in periodicals and newspapers. . . Lee's official reports and orders, together with his family correspondence, give us an insight into his own innermost thoughts, both military and personal." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:157 Ja 1 '50

"Historians say that it is necessary to be familiar with the musical compositions of Palestrina and Bach to understand the Reformation. Certainly it is necessary to understand the personalities of Grant, Lincoln, and Lee to understand fully the Civil War, and this book can be recommended as the last word in a composite picture of the great Confederate." Jay Monaghan
Chicago Sun p69 N 24 '49 700w

Reviewed by R. P. Basler
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 6 '49 420w

"The quoted material varies widely in its literary quality but all selections have been carefully chosen; combined they provide an interesting volume. . . Recommended." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 74:1600 O 15 '49 100w

"A jolty method of construction and one for which, in view of the Freeman biography, it is difficult to see the justification."
— Nation 169:525 N 26 '49 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p31 N 6 '49 20w

"This is the easy way of compiling a biography; whether it is a wholly satisfactory way is another matter. From the 232 selections by sixty-odd writers we obtain a recognizable likeness of Lee. It is, however, a mosaic rather than a master's painting." A. C. Gordon
N Y Times p49 O 30 '49 360w

"The book presents a clear and sympathetic picture of the man who must have been the most resourceful, talented, and great-hearted soldier the United States has ever had to fight."
+ New Yorker 25:60 D 31 '49 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 25 '49 500w

"Whether Mr. Horn accomplishes his design 'to present a full-length portrait of Robert E. Lee by means of extracts selected from the writings of many who had taken the Confederate commander as their subject' is something the reader must decide for himself. To this reader it did not seem that the portrait emerged. The compilation does, however, serve as a guide-post directing the reader to original sources and should stimulate interest in the processes and methods of biographical and historical research."
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:19 D 31 '49 200w

HORNER, JOYCE MARY. Greyhound in the leash. 313p $3 Doubleday

49-7875

A novel in three parts, with a prologue and an epilogue. In the prologue Evelina Grant is a school girl wondering what life holds in store for her; in the epilogue she is a thirty-five year old spinster enjoying a holiday in France. Between these two short pieces, are the longer parts, each showing what Evelina's life might have been had she married one or another of the three men who had loved her.

Booklist 45:295 My 1 '49

"The final and most deeply satisfying virtue of 'The Greyhound in the Leash' may well be its attention to form. The essential unity of its parts, the introduction and development of themes, resemble nothing so much as a well-conceived classical symphony, with three related but contrasted movements, introduction and coda. The result is a quiet distinction which much contemporary writing, despite its virtuosity of style or content, conspicuously lacks." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 17 '49 370w

Kirkus 17:36 Ja 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 O 7 '49 30w

"All these varied possible lives of Evelina are presented by Mrs. Horner with sympathetic understanding and a wealth of persuasive detail. Evelina is unmistakably Evelina in all of them. And the people who surround her are as real, if not quite so fully realized, as she is herself. 'Greyhound in the Leash' is, I think, a most attractive novel, sensitively imagined and beautifully and intelligently written." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Mr 13 '49 800w

"It is amusing to wonder what a great psychological novelist would have done with this highly original conception. . . 'The Greyhound in the Leash' is a literate, restrained and intelligent novel, often well and never badly written, though cluttered at times with excessive realistic detail." Albert Guerard, Jr.
+ — N Y Times p14 Mr 27 '49 470w

"Miss Horner fills in each panel of her triptych with care and gives each a nicely balanced relationship to the others."
New Yorker 25:100 Mr 19 '49 180w

" 'The Greyhound in the Leash' is a good novel; the theme is surely a fascinating one, and the writing is executed with sensitivity, subtle humor, and above all, conviction." P. A. Sides
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 20 '49 500w

"Miss Horner contrasts her men and their milieus cleverly, unsparingly, sometimes tenderly. But she joyously gives plenty of place in the sun to independent Evelina. Ten rousing cheers for the career."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 18 '49 180w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong
Spec 183:516 O 14 '49 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p613 S 23 '49 180w

HORNSBY, HENRY. Lonesome valley. 385p $3.50 Sloane
49-8437

Character study of a Kentucky mountain boy. Johnny, brought up by a sadistic uncle and aunt, had escaped in a sense by building up a rich inner life. He reveled in the sights, the sounds, and the smells of the country. After much hardship he escaped and went to college in the city, but he finally returned to his own community.

Booklist 45:336 Je 1 '49

"There's slow motion in the telling of the story—there's the feel of the people and the countryside—and the style somehow has the flavor of the vernacular without the form. Not an important book, except in introducing a new writer who reaches a measure of distinction."
Kirkus 17:155 Mr 15 '49 220w

"Main character, Johnny Baker, an orphan, is handled with skill and feeling. While not too pleasant a story, and tedious in spots, it has real power, holds the interest fairly well, and gives a true picture of a portion of our land about which all too little is known. . . Recommended with reservations, for larger libraries." L. R. Etzkorn
+ — Library J 74:547 Ap 1 '49 100w

"Johnny's sensuous perceptions are so clear, his creator's account of them so delicately precise, that one finds oneself exclaiming again and again: 'That's it—exactly!' . . Mr. Hornsby does his novelist's job carefully, precisely, in the manner of the young Imagist poets of the 1920's, building up 'Lonesome Valley' out of the rich stuff actually at hand. . . This method of writing gives 'Lonesome Valley' both an over-all and a line-upon-line integrity that is little short of thrilling." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ap 17 '49 750w

"A serious first novel. It is, to my taste, somewhat too long, and frequently the emotions seem too vaguely conceived to be matched with convincing words. The flight from the city is conventional, but the question mark at the end is not. . . Hornsby has so rich an understanding of his material, so much respect for the people from whom he springs, that he does not need either to exploit or to patronize them—and this is something remarkable in the literature of his people. The value of his book is not in the plot, which has been used before; it is in the quiet and unself-conscious study of what is, after all, a society as complex and as poignant as any other in America." Perry Miller
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 17 '49 450w

"The hill people of Kentucky get a going over that is, for a change, neither self-consciously folksy nor depressingly sociological. Mr. Hornsby, who comes from the part of the country he writes about, has found it necessary to put his narrative into a modified form of the local dialect, but he doesn't exploit that idiom unbearably, and he does touch expertly on minute details of country life that are the same in or out of Kentucky."
+ New Yorker 25:107 Ap 30 '49 120w

"The novel . . . though homely is not without interest. With skill, Hornsby paints a quiet picture of mountain folk. . . The novel is slow-paced—perhaps deliberately so—but some of the slowness comes from the author's insistence upon letting far too many scenes appear only as flashbacks in Johnny's mind, rather than when they are actually taking place. Thus the action sometimes seems only slightly warmed over or viewed through a gauze curtain, when a more direct presentation would have been far more satisfying. Yet, in spite of that, Mr. Hornsby certainly writes well enough to make this book worthwhile reading." M. R.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 15 '49 500w

"An obsession with loneliness, a trick of counterpoint between what actually happens and what Johnny dreams will happen, and a tendency to tap detail dry mar the clarity of the theme. But the created mood is vibrant, the toilers of the soil are bright with endeavor, and hope is high. A first novel of rough distinction."
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:33 Jl 30 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 330w

HORNUNG, JULIUS LAWRENCE. Radar primer. 218p il $3.50; text ed $2.80 McGraw 621.38 Radar. Television 48-11860

"This book has been prepared to give the reader a clear and comprehensive viewpoint of the elements of radar and other important applications of pulse technic, including television, and pulse communication systems. This book endeavors to treat this highly technical topic in a manner readily understandable by the layman." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Bookmark 9:12 O '49 10w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1824 D 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:92 N '48

HORNUNG, WILLIAM J. Architectural drafting. 154p il $4.50; to schools $3.40 Prentice-Hall
744.42 Architectural drawing 49-1472

"An elementary book on architectural drafting applied to residential buildings. Includes the fundamental principles of construction, the plans for the house itself, methods of heating, plumbing and wiring, and finally complete

HORNUNG, W. J.—Continued
plans and specifications for a model home. Examination questions are at the end of each chapter, and a glossary of work terms at the end of the book." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:10 S 1 '49

"Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 70w

HOROWITZ, JUDITH, and HOROWITZ, MRS CAROLINE. Treasury of parties for boys and girls. 96p il $1.50 Hart

793 Entertaining. Games 48-9527

"A collection of party ideas for the various holidays for ages 7-12. Each party has a well-outlined plan, to follow, with suggestions for the games, menus, favors and decorations that can be made up inexpensively." Library J

Booklist 45:124 D 1 '48

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 26 '49 130w

Kirkus 16:622 D 1 '48 50w

"Interesting and useful book. Recommended." Judith Stevenson
+ Library J 74:132 Ja 15 '49 60w

HORTON, BYRNE JOSEPH, and others. Dictionary of modern economics. 365p $5 Public affairs press

330.3 Eonomics—Dictionaries 48-10684

"The authors state that this book is an attempt to 'assemble and coordinate primarily for the layman and incidentally for the college student, reasonably lucid definitions of those terms which cover the economic facts of life.' Some three thousand entries are included, ranging from old concepts like the iron law of wages to modern terms such as propensity to consume and liquidity preference. Many of the economic terms one meets in the daily press and nontechnical journals are explained. In addition, there are digests of major Federal laws in economic fields; short notes on public and private organizations; and biographies of some leading economists." Ann Am Acad

"The book is a welcome addition, and it should find wide use among businessmen, government workers, journalists, librarians, and others in need of a convenient reference manual in the field of economics. The authors are to be congratulated for their courage in undertaking a formidable task, and for their willingness to make currently available the fruits of their efforts at the risk of offense to sterile perfectionism." R. E. Smith
+ Am Econ R 39:993 S '49 750w

"The book is a good beginning and should fill a real need. But future editions should be strengthened by the addition of many more items and the omission of some now included. For example, separate entries for a dozen or so Federal tariff acts during the past hundred years are scarcely needed. . . In the book as a whole the citations of additional references are carelessly done." J. R. Huber
+ — Ann Am Acad 262:221 Mr '49 320w

Current Hist 17:97 Ag '49 40w

Management R 38:176 Mr '49 20w

"The authors modestly disclaim any effort to solve all the semantic problems in the realm of economic writing. However, the beginning student will welcome this guide to a professional language which is rapidly migrating via the front page of the newspaper from the realm of the scholar into the every-day life of the reading public." H. H. Cummings
+ Social Educ 13:349 N '49 250w

HORTON, WALTER MARSHALL. Toward a reborn church; a review and forecast of the ecumenical movement. 122p $1.50 Harper

280 Church unity 49-8654

This volume contains "the Hoover lectures on Christian unity, at the Disciples Divinity House of the University of Chicago, delivered in 1948 by Dr. Horton. . . Dr. Horton's long and intimate association with the ecumenical movement, both in this country and in Europe, qualifies him in an exceptional degree to narrate and analyze its development in all its aspects through Edinburgh (1910), Stockholm and Oxford (1925, 1937), Lausanne and Edinburgh (1927, 1937), and Amsterdam (1948)." (Christian Century) Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 66:766 Je 22 '49 1200w

Reviewed by T. F. Opie
+ Churchman 163:18 S 1 '49 150w

"Protestant clergymen and others interested in church union should be glad to have this book. But its presentation is not such as to provide inspired reading for the general reader."
+ — Kirkus 17:295 Je 15 '49 110w

HOSFORD, MRS DOROTHY GRANT. Sons of the Volsungs; adapted from Sigurd the Volsung by William Morris; il. by Frank Dobias. 171p $2.50 Holt

293 Mythology, Norse 49-8722

A reissue of a book first published by Macmillan in 1932 (Book Review Digest 1932). It carries the story of the Volsungs thru the awakening of Brynhild.

Booklist 45:321 My 15 '49

Chicago Sun Ap 30 '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:297 Jl '49 40w

Kirkus 17:233 My 1 '49 100w

"It is good to have available again this excellent and poetic retelling of the Volsunga Saga." E. W. Turpin
+ Library J 74:897 Je 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:52 N 12 '49 40w

HOSKINS, HALFORD LANCASTER. Atlantic pact. 104p $2.50 Public affairs press

341.1 North Atlantic treaty, 1949 49-6624

"This short book reviews the Atlantic Pact and discusses the reasons for its formulation. The position of the United States is particularly stressed, and our recent foreign policy outlined. The provisions of the Pact, the limits of the defense area, the Soviet attitude toward the Pact, problems likely to arise in connection with it, and implementation are all discussed." (Library J) Selected references. Index.

Reviewed by C. M. Frasure
Am Pol Sci R 43:1301 D '49 300w

Current Hist 17:286 N '49 40w

"While a somewhat over-simplified discussion of this important event, it is useful and is recommended for smaller collections and schools." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:1323 S 15 '49 90w

"Mr. Hoskins writes in lucid style and against a broad background. He ranges from America's past experiences with alliances to the events in the evolution of the Atlantic treaty itself. . . Put down this book as a competent once-over-lightly." R. G. W.
N Y Times p14 O 2 '49 180w

HOTTES, ALFRED CARL. Garden facts and fancies; profusely il. by the author. 370p $4 Dodd

635.9 Gardens Agr49-416

Legends, prayers, superstitions, and odd facts and fancies about gardens and flowers. Some of the descriptions are from the author's own works, others are quotations. Index.

Booklist 45:329 Je 1 '49

"One would scarcely choose this book for continuous reading, but as something to be dipped into briefly from time to time it has its merits. The numerous decorative drawings, all done by the author, serve their purpose well." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p40 D 4 '49 140w

"Recommended for every library."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:85 My '49

HOVLAND, CARL I. Experiments on mass communication. See Studies in social psychology in World war II, v3

HOWARD, ELIZABETH. North winds blow free. 192p $2.50 Morrow
49-4521

A novel for older girls. It is the story of a Michigan farm family in the 1850's. Seventeen-year-old Elspeth is the heroine of this story of a Canadian settlement for escaped slaves, where the family went to help in the work. A young doctor who joins in the establishment of the settlement is the hero.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 27 '49 350w

"The history of the time and the local setting are indicated with the assurance of a well-founded knowledge." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:418 S '49 90w

"There's sound psychological basis in the approach to marriage here. This is Elizabeth Howard's second good romance adventure for girls."
+ Kirkus 17:326 Jl 1 '49 150w

"Recommended for older boys and girls." C. W. Field
+ Library J 74:1335 S 15 '49 80w

"This is both a charming love story and a tale in which the burning issue of abolition is made vital. All the characters, white and colored, are interesting, but Elspeth and her old Aunt Crick are most alive. It is excellent reading for high school girls." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 9 '49 230w

"In this well-told story for teen-agers both people and their times bear the stamp of truth. The author wrote her master's thesis on the Underground Railroad." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p41 S 11 '49 180w

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 S 17 '49 200w

HOWARD, GUY. Give me thy vineyard; a novel of the Ozarks. 287p $3 Zondervan 49-10935

Novel of life in the Ozark mountains. Among the chief characters are Hiram, wrongly accused of killing a man, and Rosie, whom he loved. For years Hiram lived in a mountain cave until his innocence was proved and he could come back to marry Rosie.

"Many of the characters are well drawn, local atmosphere is skillfully created but the plot is too obvious; the reader knows from the first page that right will surely prevail, as it does, in the end. Recommended for libraries with an interest in Southern mountain customs." R. P. Tubby
+ — Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 70w

"Although a work of fiction, this novel, its plot, and many of its scenes had their conception and birth in historical fact."
School & Society 70:207 S 24 '49 30w

HOWARD, HENRY. Charting my life. 398p il $5 Merrymount
B or 92
48-10295

"The story of an eminent chemical engineer and patentee whose hobby of yacht cruising and racing became unwittingly his letter of introduction, without special influence or money, for enlisting, wherever he traveled in widely scattered parts of the world, the interest of kings, presidents, admirals, and heads of foreign businesses. He was able to retire from business earlier than is customary, exchanging his business for his hobby without missing the former even though that touched a vast variety of fields." (Chem & Eng N) "From business to sport and travel, and back again, is his method of recounting his experiences. He gives intimate pictures of men who crossed his path, among them Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft and King Alfonso of Spain." (N Y Times)

"Although comprising nearly 400 pages, his stories are so well grouped that any part can be read understandingly and, indeed, reread often." J. V. N. Dorr
+ Chem & Eng N 27:706 Mr 17 '49 340w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward
N Y Times p20 Ap 24 '49 130w

HOWARD, JOHN ELDRED. Parliament and foreign policy in France; a study of the origins, nature and methods of the parliamentary control of foreign policy in France during the Third Republic, with special reference to the period from 1919-1939. 166p $3.25 Transatlantic

328.346 France—Foreign relations. France. Assemblée nationale [49-2675]

"[An account] of the effort of the French Parliament to control the foreign policy of the Third Republic. . . Mr. Howard has made a careful study of the influence of popular elections, of Parliament as a whole and of the Chamber and Senate Foreign Affairs committees, especially during the years between the two wars. He gives a dispassionate picture of what was a passionate demand by the French that another war should be prevented—or, at least, that in an emergency France would not have to stand alone." N Y Times

Reviewed by L. D. Epstein
Am Pol Sci R 43:850 Ag '49 300w

"The study is on the whole effectively written, and its evaluations are often subtle. On the other hand, the data on which the volume is based are confined almost wholly to printed materials. For this reason, personality factors and the imponderables of French political life receive rather sketchy treatment. A closer intimacy with these aspects of the problem might have made the analysis more illuminating." W. R. Sharp
Ann Am Acad 265:177 S '49 480w

Foreign Affairs 27:684 Jl '49 30w

"This account . . . was written in 1939, but publication was delayed by the war. Its value, however, to those who seek to understand the French tragedy—and also the good and bad effects of popular control of foreign policy—has not been diminished." P. J. Philip
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 31 '49 380w

"Mr. Howard's theme is extremely important, not only for students of modern France but for all who are concerned with methods of popular and parliamentary control over foreign policy in a modern democratic State. . . As a technical, juridical and constitutional explanation of how far the devices of the Third Republic led to effective parliamentary control his work is admirable. . . His examination unfortunately ends in 1939, which limits its value in many ways." David Thomson
+ — Spec 182:124 Ja 28 '49 750w

"The book was completed in 1939. Nevertheless, in spite of the delay in publication, it is a welcome contribution to the study of international politics in the inter-war period and a valuable complement to such earlier monographs as Mr. E. M. Carroll's French Public Opinion and Foreign Affairs and Professor F. L. Schuman's War and Diplomacy in the French Republic. It is to be hoped that in any reissue Mr. Howard will make the adjustments necessary to put the book in the perspective appropriate to the demise of the Third Republic and that he will consider what new evidence may have come to light since 1939."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p51 Ja 22 '49 1350w

HOWE, GEORGE. Economics for the practical man; what makes the wheels go round. 154p $2 Wilcox & Follett

330 Economics 48-9398

"Greatly simplified definitions and explanations of economics terms and factors, such as tariffs, monopolies, consumption, and wages. Interpretations are in defense of the American capitalist system, and sometimes show an anti-labor bias." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:187 F 1 '49

"Recommended." Julian Sohon

Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 30w

"Economics for the Practical Man, probably the most inappropriately titled book of the year, is the product of a mechanical engineer turned real-estate promoter. What comes out is economics fifty years behind what every 'practical man' knows from his own experience." H. A. Wolff

— New Repub 120:23 Ja 24 '49 250w

HOWE, GEORGE LOCKE. Call it treason. 344p $3 Viking

49-10435

"Three German prisoners of war employed by U.S. Army Intelligence are dropped into Germany to carry out espionage activities. Their training and instruction before setting out, and the progress of one of them through part of Germany are told with realistic detail." Library J

"The operation of spying has never been told in more credible fighting detail, but I must record two impressions which checked my headlong pursuit of this story: first, the essential goodness of all the participants on our side. . . There is a kind of Galahad purity in the men of this outfit which runs counter to my experience of the meanness, the selfishness, and the embusque tendency—qualities which the war brought out along with the bravery. Secondly, I wonder if the hue and cry does not run too long for its best effect." Edward Weeks

+ — Atlantic 184:88 N '49 400w

Booklist 45:382; 46:34 Jl 15 '49; S 15 '49

Bookmark 9:30 N '49 30w

"The book presents a really fascinating and, we may well believe, an authentic account of American procedure in schooling spies. To the comment of some critics that this story is not a novel, one may counter with the question, 'What is a novel?' To be sure, the author gives us a minimum of plot, or rather a series of related incidents with no dominating plot at all; and unfortunately he has deprived us of the emotional experience of suspense by disclosing the denouement in his first pages. Yet both characters and episodes are reasonably convincing." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 170:75 O '49 600w

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler

Chicago Sun S 7 '49 500w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p16 S 14 '49 330w

"Call It Treason is seriously intended, is elaborately terse, brilliantly detailed—and both meaningless and harmless." William Pfaff

— + Commonweal 50:565 S 16 '49 200w

"A psychological approach to a spy thriller, unique in handling and specific angling. . . A first novel which would indicate a practised hand."

+ Kirkus 17:333 Jl 1 '49 170w

"Aside from presenting a fascinating story, author attempts to explain why people in these circumstances become spies, and he generally succeeds. Awarded the Christophers prize. Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:1024 Jl '49 100w

Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 40w

"A big prize-winning novel is commonly supposed to be a widely popular book, with the implication that that popularity is bought rather cheaply by superficial appeal. This novel is sure to win popularity of a more durable type. Its matter could have been the subject merely of an adventure thriller, but Mr. Howe's insight and honesty make it a thoughtful and heartening, as well as exciting book." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 28 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Philip Burnham

N Y Times p5 Ag 28 '49 700w

New Yorker 25:133 O 15 '49 140w

"Mr. Howe has written a spy-suspense novel, skilful of its kind and possessing plus values not common to books of its genre. These added qualities have earned for it the Christophers Award, rather vaguely defined as being for a book 'in accord with Christian principles and not against them.' The tense, tight-knit action pattern of the story is illuminated by sensitive and searching insights into the heart of an idealist whose unsparing honesty with himself leads him into a private Way of the Cross. . . The author is said to have written 'Call It Treason' during a long hospitalization. If we can expect something as good as this from his invalidisms, Mr. Howe should break another leg." Edmund Fuller

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 S 10 '49 650w

Reviewed by W. R. Manchester

Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 300w

"Essentially, Call It Treason is a forthright story of flight, pursuit and death, of the hunters and the hunted. Of its kind it is a good one."

+ Time 54:110 S 12 '49 600w

HOWE, IRVING, and WIDICK, B. J. The UAW and Walter Reuther. 309p $3 Random house

331.881292 Reuther, Walter. International union, United authomobile, aircraft and agricultural implement workers of America

49-5873

"This is a book about the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America, CIO. It is, however, neither an 'official' history nor a detailed chronicle; it is rather an attempt to provide a brief but comprehensive account of the rise of the UAW, its external struggles and internal life, and the problems it faces in the postwar world." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by Harvey Breit

+ Atlantic 184:83 S '49 750w

Booklist 46:42 O 1 '49

Reviewed by James Peneff

Chicago Sun S 14 '49 500w

Reviewed by Harlan Trott

Christian Science Monitor p20 S 15 '49 900w

"This is a labor book that is much more than a labor book. It should show the general reader what part labor and unions play in American life, how they function, how real leadership is developed. And it is very good reading."

+ Kirkus 17:379 Jl 15 '49 240w

"Definitely pro-labor, but carefully critical 'from within the range of labor opinion.' Useful notes on sources. Recommended." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 74:1089 Ag '49 140w

Management R 38:585 O '49 100w

"A swift, incisive, and highly intelligent book in a field where writing is too often official or irresponsibly polemical. Mr. Howe is a brilliant young critic; Mr. Widick is a chief steward at the Chrysler plant; and their collaboration combines a high level of political and social insight with intimate practical familiarity with life in the orbit of the assembly line." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Nation 169:303 S 24 '49 750w

Reviewed by Joseph Barnes

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 11 '49 1350w

"Notwithstanding the obvious sympathy with which they describe the union, however, the authors write with knowledgeable understanding, critical acumen and forthright candor. . . The book is limited in its scope. There is relatively little attempt to set the story of the UAW against the rise of industrial unionism as a whole or the great change in governmental attitudes toward labor in the days of the New Deal. Sometimes this seems to throw the record out of focus. In what the authors set out to do—to write a book about the UAW—they have nevertheless succeeded admirably, telling their story interestingly and well." F. R. Dulles

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 28 '49 850w

New Yorker 25:111 S 17 '49 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p34 O 16 '49 300w

"This is a book written on two levels. First, it is the story of the formation, rise, external policies, and internal politics of the world's largest trade union, the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America, CIO. Secondly, it is an attempt to relate the union's development to the social and economic aspects of American life. . . On the first level the work is excellent. . . In their attempt to relate the organization to the larger aspects of American life, however, many of the authors' conclusions seem to emanate from concepts of the union which cannot be sustained by the internal evidence even of their own work." Wellington Roe

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 D 21 '49 1050w

HOWE, QUINCY. World history of our own times; v 1, From the turn of the century to the 1918 armistice. 695p il $5 Simon & Schuster

909.82 Twentieth century. History, Modern (49-11858)

"The start of a proposed three volume history of our times. . . The Introduction states the basis on which this history is conceived. The first volume, while highlighting the world figures [Mr Howe] has chosen as his symbols, —Sun Yat-Sen, Wilson and Lenin, is much broader in scope than this would indicate. He gives the first part over to an analysis of the overall picture at the opening of the new century. He proceeds to explore the dominant historical, political and intellectual factors, the changing pattern of history in the first decade of the new era, power politics in new guise, new elements of unrest and revolution below the crust, the shifts in world power and the factors behind them, the conditions of anarchy that failed to prepare most of Europe for the war that was in the making. He analyzes in the next part the First World War, building up to 1918—with Wilson and Lenin emerging, world statesmen as world messiahs, each convinced as the year came to an end, that he had made the world safe—the one for democracy, the other for communism." (Kirkus) Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:156 Ja 1 '50

Chicago Sun p10 D 4 '49 300w

"Highly satisfactory. Mr. Howe is producing a balanced yet inclusive history which makes good reading and will make an unusually valuable reference book." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 66:1454 D '49 1000w

"An exciting book, which students and the average reader alike will find important as a synthesis of our own times."

+ Kirkus 17:533 S 15 '49 210w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 D 4 '49 900w

"Mr. Howe has the skill and imagination to organize the vast material into a meaningful and interesting narrative. He pays as much attention to cultural and social developments as to political events, and he has enlivened the story with pen sketches of leading or representative personalities. As good and telling as the text are the many contemporary illustrations and cartoons." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p49 N 13 '49 500w

New Yorker 25:152 D 10 '49 160w

"Unless succeeding volumes of this projected trilogy fall below the first, the jealous camp of professional historians must welcome another intruder to their midst. The muse of history continues to smile upon outsiders. . . Mr. Howe's aims are admirable, his execution so seemingly effortless that it is easy to underrate the virtuosity of his achievement." Geoffrey Bruun

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 N 12 '49 1100w

"The work is its own excuse for the factual slips, repetitions, gratuitous moralizing, and startling non sequiturs bred of swift compositions. It is a big handsome book, brightly illustrated, and if only for its evocation of memories, it would be hard to stop reading. It has a nostalgic fascination for those of us who remember its events from the newspapers, and for the juniors who took up reading after the Armistice, it is inviting background. No junior should approach it, however, in the innocent expectation of objective reliability. It is loaded with the author's predilections and selections, which dissenters will have no hesitation in calling prejudices. On many points, this reviewer dissents. There is scholarly evidence against quite a few of the author's most dogmatic suggestions." George Britt

Survey 85:687 D '49 700w

HOWE, WALTER. Mining guild of New Spain and its tribunal general, 1770-1821. 534p $7.50 Harvard univ. press

338.64622 Cuerpo de la minería de Nueva España. Mining industry and finance. Mines and mineral resources—Mexico 49-7949

"Based largely upon unpublished documents this is a definitive study of the mining guild (Cuerpo de Minería) which controlled and managed practically all mining enterprise in Colonial Mexico from 1770 to 1821. The creation and development of the guild, the contribution it made to the mining industry and Mexico, and the influence of the mining ordinances of its Tribunal General upon mining laws elsewhere in America are set forth in detail." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"This monograph is the first full-length treatment of the Mexican mining industry in the late colonial period to appear in any language, and a long needed continuation of Gamboa's Comentarios a las Ordenanzas de Minas, published in 1761. . . The history of the guild is largely the history of the tribunal. With a wealth of scholarship, Professor Howe discusses the major contributions of this body under the directorship of the distinguished Gachupín, Fausto de Elhuyar. . . While the study suffers somewhat from the narrowness of monographic treatment in failing fully to trace the relations of the mining industry to social structure and general economy, it is an impressive contribution to the institutional history of Mexico." C. H. Van Duzer

+ — Am Hist R 55:174 O '49 550w

"As scholarship, this original monograph is marred by misspellings or typographical errors which could easily have been eliminated. These defects are inconsistent with the care which went into the treatment and development of the topic." Harry Bernstein

+ — Ann Am Acad 264:168 Jl '49 430w

Current Hist 16:288 My '49 40w

"A work for the scholar." Joseph Borome

Library J 74:548 Ap 1 '49 130w

"Mr. Howe's study is scholarly and detailed. It will be of considerable interest to those concerned with the history of Mexico or of mining in the New World." R. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 31 '49 350w

"The study is extremely well documented, with a wealth of original material, some of which appears in the Appendix. The narrative is both continuous and analytic."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:208 Je '49 240w

HOWES, BARBARA. Undersea farmer [poems]. ltd ed 40p $2 Banyan

811 48-9842

Twenty-three poems chosen from the work of an American writer. Miss Howes' "talent manifests itself most particularly in two areas

HOWES, BARBARA—Continued
that might seem remote but are perhaps really complementary: she does quite well a subaqueous, soft-green kind of lyric, as in the title poem and Everywoman, and she can also strike off a sharp, incisive satirical comment—Lady-Poet, Views of the Oxford Colleges, Beacon Hill, [and] The Critic." (Nation)

"Issued in a limited edition of 250 copies, and beautifully made, this is the kind of book I want to see more of. In its forty pages, are unevennesses and awkwardnesses, including amateurish ones; there are also instances of observation, insight, a command of technique beyond competence, emotion under control." Rolfe Humphries
+ — Nation 168:80 Ja 15 '49 400w

"Miss Howes has been writing and publishing poetry for ten years, so one expects all the more that her choice of work for this book should present a little novelty. The expectation, in my case, was not disappointed, but I feel that Miss Howes needs more time to fight her way to an untrammeled personal utterance through the trials of the 'modern idiom.' . . In general, Miss Howes' work suffers less than that of most of her contemporaries from their besetting vice, an over-reaching ingenuity of comparison which would rather fall flat on its face than say anything simply and directly. And she does very well when looking around her, away from the associations of ideas that are already present in her poetic self." Frank Jones
Poetry 74:166 Je '49 950w

"It is refreshing to turn to Miss Howes's exquisitely printed book. . . At least four times in 'The Undersea Farmer' we find finished poems of considerable merit—'The Sport of Boys, 'Indian Summer,' 'The Lost Girl,' and the title poem itself—and many of the others have passages of memorable force. The technique is aware and skilled; the structure—'The Lost Girl' is a good example—is subtly designed and harmoniously realized; the poems—the best ones—are passionate saying. The faults are solecism . . . syntactical confusion, and more seriously, a kind of jeweled preciosity of diction not far removed from archness." Dudley Fitts
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:40 Mr 19 '49 200w

HOYEM, OLIVER. How to do business with the U. S. Government. 288p $5 Durrell
353 Buying. Industry and state 49-9528

"Doing business with the United States Government is of its nature complicated. The Government is a multibillion-dollar customer. It buys through many channels and with much attention to regulations. The author goes down the line, department by department and agency by agency. He provides concise instructions as to who buys what, where the branch offices are, what are the contract requirements and what forms will be needed." (N Y Times) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:368 Jl 1 '49

"Valuable guide for the business man in finding his way around in Washington. . . Fortunately indexed. Urged for most collections. Required reading for all reference workers." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 74:1028 Jl '49 110w
Management R 38:581 O '49 60w

"Altogether a useful, if specialized, book." R. G. Whalen
+ N Y Times p16 Je 26 '49 320w

HSIEH, TEHYI, ed. & tr. Chinese village folk tales. 74p il $2.50 Humphries 398.21 Folklore, Chinese 49-8297

A collection of Chinese folk tales retold in English by a Chinese scholar, who was educated at Cambridge (England), engaged in diplomatic service in Europe, Asia and Australia, and is now Director of the Chinese Service Bureau in Boston.

Christian Science Monitor p24 Ap 7 '49 300w

"Just as most folklore reveals the people from whom it comes, so do these twenty-two stories show the charm and graciousness of the Chinese people. . . Full of mature wit and philosophy, these tales may be more interesting to adults than to children, but older and inquisitive children will enjoy them too. They are new to us and will be a real addition to the folklore library." Phyllis Fenner
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 10 '49 140w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 50w

HSU, FRANCIS LANG-KUANG. Under the ancestor's shadow; Chinese culture and personality. 317p il $3.75 Columbia univ. press
915.1 China—Social life and customs. Ancestor worship 48-7782

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by J. J. Honigmann
Am Anthropol 51:106 Ja '49 1300w

"A book by a Chinese author for a nonideographic reading public must be angled to clarify details, symbols, and behavior known to the group to which the writer belongs. This, Dr. Hsu has ably done, and a Chinese version would reaffirm many known facts. The volume is an objective, analytical presentation of the life and community of West Town, southwest China. Similarities and dissimilarities between this community and others in China are disclosed, for West Town is a part of the larger China yet is a society possessing its own customs, ideologies, and habits." R. H. Lee
+ Am J Soc 54:554 My '49 950w

"Adds rich detail and illuminating insight to earlier investigations of this basic institution by such writers as L. K. Tao, D. H. Kulp, II, Martin Yang, Hsiao-tung Fei, and others." J. S. Burgess
+ Am Soc R 14:321 Ap '49 700w

Reviewed by Chun-Chan Yeh
New Statesman & Nation 38:560 N 12 '49 750w

"The greater part of the book is a valuable analysis of a social institution basic in traditional Chinese culture. But the opinions on personality do not much help our understanding of Chinese character, nor is it likely that they will have much relevance to present events and changes." Raymond Firth
+ — Pacific Affairs 22:303 S '49 1450w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:440 D '48 280w

HUBBARD, FREEMAN H. Vinnie Ream and Mr Lincoln. (Whittlesey house publication) 271p il $2.75 McGraw
Lincoln, Abraham—Juvenile literature. Hoxie, Vinnie (Ream)—Juvenile literature 49-11038

Fictionized biography of Vinnie Ream, the tiny girl who created the statue of Abraham Lincoln which still stands in the rotunda of the Capitol in Washington. She was only fourteen when she first met Lincoln and was still under twenty when the statue was commissioned. Bibliography.

Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

"It is an absorbing book which reads like fiction and yet its authenticity is affirmed by a long bibliografy and many fine photografs." A. R. Brooks
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 13 '49 160w

"Not top ranking on the score of style; it seems a little over-simplified. But easy and pleasant reading, and fresh material."
+ — Kirkus 17:558 O 1 '49 110w

"Here is a success story to charm anyone. Vinnie herself is a delightful person, and her experiences in wartime Washington add zest to a well told story." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1550 O 15 '49 50w

"An easy-to-read book which junior high school girls will like." Siri Andrews
+ Library J 74:1920 D 15 '49 70w

"The book is not too well written, but is recommended for its mostly true story of a real girl whose persistence brought her fame, and whose life touched that of our great President in such an unusual way. An interesting bibliography shows where all the details were collected." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 13 '49 200w

N Y Times p18 Ja 22 '50 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 6 '49 110w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 12 '49 230w

Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

HUC, EVARISTE REGIS. High road in Tartary; an abr. revision of [the author's] Travels in Tartary, Tibet and China during the years 1844-5-6; ed. by Julie Bedier; il. by Joseph Notarpole. 219p $2.75 Scribner

915.1 Mongolia—Description and travel. Tibet—Description and travel 48-9450

"The high adventure often entered into by missionaries in the pursuit of their work is exemplified in this tale of exploration and travel a hundred years ago. The journeys of two Lazarist missionaries through the wastelands of 'Tartary' and Tibet while studying the philosophy of the Buddhist Lama-series provide a thrilling tale. William Hazlitt first discovered this story and translated it from the French in 1851. This is an abridgment and revision of his work." Sat R of Lit

"Adventure in the greatest danger is combined with interracial human relations on the simplest levels and Father Huc, the narrator, tells his tale in a lucid, picturesque style which has lost little in this translation."
+ Kirkus 16:514 O 1 '48 130w

"Abbe Huc's account ranks with the great travel and exploration classics."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 D 12 '48 230w

"Having picked her way through the long 'Souvenirs' to reduce them to a brief volume, Editor Bedier's narrative often bobs and jumps. However, she does bring a fascinating and historic experience to those who like their Tibetan adventures within armchair's reach." M. J. Tweedy
+ N Y Times p11 D 19 '48 700w

Sat R of Lit 32:28 F 19 '49 80w

HUDNUT, ELIZABETH ANN. You can always tell a freshman; how to get the most out of your college years; il. by Marjorie Bauernschmidt. 180p $2.50 Dutton

371.8 Students 49-8749

An informal description of college life for the benefit of prospective freshmen (female).

Booklist 45:318 My 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 14 '49 110w

"A casual (but quite practical) course in sprouts which will give the prospective freshman an idea of what to expect—written with a sense of humor (some of it cute, some of it maybe a little too cute) and with the right approach for this audience."
+ — Kirkus 17:133 Mr 1 '49 120w

"The casual approach and colloquial style will appeal to the girls for whom it is written. Recommended for older readers." R. O. Bostwick
+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 70w

"The counsel is helpful, the style is chummy, but the humor gets no more than a passing grade."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 My 8 '49 70w

Reviewed by V. H. Mathews
N Y Times p16 Jl 24 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul 45:109 Je '49

HUDNUT, JOSEPH. Architecture and the spirit of man. 301p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

720.1 Architecture, Modern 49-10654

A group of essays by the Dean of the faculty of design at Harvard university. Partial contents: Part one: On traditional and modern architecture: What buildings are beautiful? The obelisk of General Washington; The gothicke universitie; The post-modern house; Space and the garden; Part two: On the architecture of cities: The invisible city; The political art of planning; What a young planner ought to know; Blueprint for a university; The art in housing.

Booklist 46:154 Ja 1 '50

"The book will delight those who have perceived the possibilities of an architecture which will recapture—through the imaginative handling of enclosed space, the skillful distribution of light, the better appreciation of vista, and unaffected proportion—some of the dignity and repose which characterized our cities before the invasion of industry and the assertiveness of advertising. Although an exponent of contemporary design, Mr. Hudnut makes no pretensions that a satisfactory result can be realized without a larger respect for and acknowledgment of the spiritual values which underlie all outward evidence." Neil Martin
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 D 16 '49 550w

"A useful self-education book for those interested in design."
+ Kirkus 17:495 S 1 '49 90w

"To these papers Dean Hudnut brings a mind richly stored and a temperament sensitive and humane—twin gifts that have created for their expression a style that is deft, eloquent in its understatement, witty, and elegant. It is a delight to see the art of the essayist so charmingly reborn to serve and clarify another art." Talbot Hamlin
+ Nation 169:447 N 5 '49 750w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein
New Repub 121:26 D 12 '49 90w

"For this gay and well mannered collection of essays one would wish a better audience than it is likely to achieve, for certainly few books so well endowed have labored under such enormous handicaps. The title falls as heavily as a long ancestral name upon a newly born infant. The author is not only a professor; he is a dean—and at Harvard. And his book is published by a University Press. . . Here are essays with the charm of good talk. There is authority, but without pedantry. There is style. Best of all, there are ideas." Frederick Gutheim
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 4 '49 400w

"In advancing his 'post-functionalist' thesis, Dean Hudnut has sometimes been led astray by his obvious delight in flowery prose. His ideas are all there, but they are often buried beneath a mountain of anecdote and of scholarly digression. Yet the book's message is important, not only in architectural terms, but also as a plea for the free individual as against the standardized man." Peter Blake
+ — N Y Times p6 O 16 '49 700w

Reviewed by William Lescaze
Sat R of Lit 32:34 N 5 '49 800w

Survey 86:47 Ja '50 40w

"Whether or not the reader is finally persuaded to like a particular kind of architecture, there is no doubt that the book will achieve the purpose of encouraging architectural appreciation. The author writes beautifully, so beautifully, in fact, that he will be accused by the hair-shirt school of being meretricious. He has a penetrating eye and knows from experience what makes a fine building; the bright wit and kindly humor which enliven his pages will endear both author and subject to all but the most cantankerous." Christopher Tunnard
+ Yale R n s 39:366 winter '50 900w

HUDSON, WILBUR G. Conveyors and related equipment. 2d ed 468p il $7 Wiley

621.867 Conveying machinery. Hoisting machinery 49-10001

Second edition of a work first published in 1944 (Book Review Digest 1944). "New material introduced in this edition includes information on pneumatic conveying, recent developments in belt conveyors, new applications of fork trucks and other mobile equipment for moving materials in factories and warehouses." (Library J)

"This second edition shows the benefit of experience with the first, in 1944. It is worth while for every technical library, for chemical engineers, and for others interested in conveying materials." C. O. Brown
+ Chem & Eng N 27:2860 O 3 '49 550w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1606 O 15 '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:70 S '49

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Best of W. H. Hudson; ed. by Odell Shepard. 317p $4 Dutton

828 49-11464

"This book provides samples of Hudson's various skills. Mr. Shepard has collected a good variety of pieces on bird life, insects, rivers and forests from Hudson's books—nicely turned pieces that reveal an artistic rather than scientific eye. Several selections from 'Far Away and Long Ago' display Hudson as a philosopher, and his story-teller's art is shown in a fascinating bit from 'The Purple Land.'" (N Y Times) The selections are from the following of Hudson's books: The Purple Land; Idle Days in Patagonia; Nature in Downland; Birds and Man; Hampshire Days; The Land's End; Afoot in England; A Shepherd's Life; An Old Thorn; Far Away and Long Ago; The Book of Naturalist; Birds in Town and Village; A Traveller in Little Things; A Hind in Richmond Park.

Chicago Sun p6X D 25 '49 30w

"Mr. Shepard succeeds admirably in giving us a comprehensive cross-section of W. H. Hudson's best work; despite omissions, the book is one of the finest nature books of this or any year. In its pages one finds not only some of the most remarkably fine passages of nature writing in the language, but also clearly emerging, a portrait of a man who fully appreciated the earth and all things upon it, including his fellow human beings." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 25 '49 140w

"These selections combine pure descriptive writing, with scientific bits of unusual natural history, and contemplative writing."
+ Kirkus 17:500 S 1 '49 130w

"The selections are taken from fourteen of Hudson's books, and they are intended to represent 'all the facets' of his mind 'while at the same time leaving a clear and unitary impression.' I miss some things I should have liked to see, but I find it difficult to imagine any reader who will not find much here to rouse and delight him."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 15 '50 450w

"Odell Shepard, the compiler of this anthology, has chosen well in his selections. The heartrending simplicity of some of these tales is matched by the rollicking spirit of adventure in others. Gay or grim—on man, bird or beast —W. H. Hudson wielded a wonderful pen and Mr. Shepard proves it handsomely in this volume." John Kieran
+ N Y Times p16 O 30 '49 550w

New Yorker 25:154 D 10 '49 160w

"Mr. Shepard has selected well, presenting as wide a cross-section of Hudson as could very well be got into a single volume. Like all such books, this is on the scrappy side, a matter of bits and pieces; anthologies can hardly avoid the fault. Its chief virtue, it seems to me, is that it may serve to direct the right reader to Hudson's books, where he may find the whole man and savor him at length." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 2 '49 800w

"His is a timeless prose, skilled if not schooled, and so sensitive and expressive as to place him in the company of a rare few. Hudson was philosopher as well as naturalist, and a number of his short, simple stories are reprinted here, too. Perhaps he's at his perceptive and elusive best in 'Unchartered Islands' from 'The Land's End' and 'Solitude in the Wilderness' from 'Idle Days in Patagonia.'" D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 330w

HUGGINS, ROY. Lovely lady, pity me. 221p $2.50 Duell

49-10740

Mystery story.

Kirkus 17:341 Jl 1 '49 50w

"While there are some fast-moving moments, the whole thing doesn't add up to more than just average." Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p43 S 11 '49 240w

Sat R of Lit 32:60 O 8 '49 40w

HUGHES, MRS DOROTHY BELLE (FLANAGAN). Big barbecue. 310p $2.75 Random house

49-7422

Ariadne Pontius, beautiful, aged eighteen, and bone lazy, determines to get to Hollywood and marry money. She drags her parents from their Greenwich Village home to the New Mexican hill on which atomic bombs are made, in search of Justinian Hrobel. Once there their adventures are mixed but hilarious until Ariadne realizes her dream.

Booklist 45:210 F 15 '49

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 24 '49 210w

"The relaxed, romantic touch makes this engaging."
+ Kirkus 16:629 D 1 '48 160w

"An extremely clever, well contrived, hilarious comedy, with a lovable bunch of characters. Heartily recommended for light reading." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 70w

"The author of 'Ride the Pink Horse' gives this plot an equally merry go-round in a pert, nimble, unclouded narrative, bearing a resemblance to reality so slight as to be merely coincidental. She gives her characters such quirky names as Hullable, Hrobel, Goober and Buffoon, and their behavior is in keeping."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 6 '49 220w

"'The Big Barbecue' is a light-hearted, blandly amusing story. . . This lightsome fancy is well off the beaten path of the Hughes well-written mystery and crime stories. It is simple and gay with a few thrusts of satire. The only somber touch in the bright New Mexico setting is the proximity to the Valley of the Hill, where atom bombs are made. In this connection one tiny mystery creeps in, but it explodes happily in a hoax instead of a Hiroshima." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p24 F 27 '49 230w

"Even as Ariadne casts her amorous glances toward Hollywood, so, I fear, does her creator, Miss Dorothy Hughes. . . Miss Hughes is given to coy interpretation of just about everything, and has the aggravating habit of qualifying obvious situations with obvious remarks. 'The Big Barbecue' does not fulfill its obligations as intelligent satire or, for that matter, as intelligent fiction." N. G. Chaikin
— Sat R of Lit 32:49 F 12 '49 200w

Wis Lib Bul 45:66 Ap '49

HUGHES, G. BERNARD. Collecting antiques. 351p pl $12.50 Scribner

704.95 Antiques. Collectors and collecting

Brief chapters on collecting various types of antiques. Contents: Battersea and South Staffordshire enamels; Pewter; Pontypool and Usk Japan ware; Sheffield plate; Fire-dogs and firebacks; Decanter labels; Candle-snuffers; Samplers; Lace; Lustre-ware; Toby jugs; Porcelain and pottery cottages; Willow pattern; Staffordshire dogs; Picture pot-lids; Old English maps; Miniatures; Silhouettes; Wax miniatures; Glass pictures; Baxter and Le Blond prints; Barometers; Tunbridge ware; English millefiori paper-weights; Chinese jade; Tea-caddies; Fans; Papier mâché. Bibliography. Index.

"An essential book for the collector shelf, and a handbook for individuals who are interested in collecting English antiques, off the beaten track. Wonderful value at this price."
+ Kirkus 17:537 S 15 '49 230w

"The treatment is brief—hardly for the expert, but there is much useful information for the amateur and many excellent illustrations."
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 21 '49 40w

"Mr. Hughes's new book deals lucidly and learnedly not only with his twenty-eight subjects, set out in as many chapters, but also with the pitfalls which beset the path of the uninformed. Not that the book is addressed only to the beginner, for the most experienced collector will gain pleasure from reading about what he already knows as well as profit from the extensive results of Mr. Hughes's research."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p456 Jl 15 '49 450w

HUGHES, LANGSTON. One-way ticket; il. by Jacob Lawrence. 136p $2.75 Knopf

811 49-7018

A collection of poems on Negro subjects. In form the poems are variously lyrics, dirges, dramatic soliloquies.

Booklist 45:189 F 1 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun Ja 31 '49 110w

"The sale of the book will be largely from [Hughes'] admirers (who will be disappointed) and from those who are interested in any expression of this race."
Kirkus 16:609 N 15 '48 130w

"The virtues of Mr. Hughes's poetry are, mainly, those of forbearance. Given the single theme, he treats his data with great restraint; basic vocabulary, simple rhymes, short line; no violence, no hyperbole, no verbalizing. The rhetoric, such as there is, is that of understatement; this kind of rhetoric is easier to slide over than that of exaggeration, but it contains, no less, the contrived element, and in the long run Mr. Hughes's use of these devices induces in the reader an effect opposite, I feel sure, to that which he intends." Rolfe Humphries
+ — Nation 168:80 Ja 15 '49 220w

Reviewed by David Daiches
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 9 '49 400w

"The backgrounds, the simplicity, the humor, the passion and the song, all are here. Yet a rather intangible change in feeling and form makes these poems slightly different. The lyric, blues and folk-song forms that Mr. Hughes has used to project, often with the lightest touch, the most devastating emotions and moral commentaries on life in the United States, have now been stripped almost to bareness. It is as if the poet, suspecting softness in his early work, were pushing toward an even more direct and forceful method." Hubert Creekmore
N Y Times p19 Ja 30 '49 360w

"Mr. Hughes is a highly sophisticated individual, and, like all imitation folk artists, he often sounds thin and artificial."
New Yorker 24:72 Ja 29 '49 80w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 120w

"It is a tribute to Langston Hughes's earlier accomplishments that his reputation continues undimmed by verse which of late is often jejune and iterative. Intellectual recognition of the thinning out of his creativeness is inescapable, but emotional acceptance of the fact comes hard." J. S. Redding
Sat R of Lit 32:24 Ja 22 '49 360w
Wis Lib Bul 45:64 Ap '49

HUGHES, LANGSTON, and BONTEMPS, ARNA WENDELL, eds. Poetry of the Negro, 1746-1949; an anthology. 429p $5 Doubleday

811.08 Negro poetry—Collections. Negroes—Poetry 49-7193

This anthology is in three sections: Negro poets of the U.S.A; Tributary poems by non-Negroes; The Caribbean. At the end of the volume are biographical notes and indexes.

Booklist 45:207 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun Ja 31 '49 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '49
Kirkus 16:609 N 15 '48 120w

"While it may lack the unity and special charm of some of the more selective anthologies like Caroling Dusk, Poetry of the Negro will take its place as a standard collection, representing the best poems by and about the Negro." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 168:217 F 19 '49 280w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ja 16 '49 40w

"The anthology is a stimulating cross-section of the imaginative writing of the Negro. It can help the reader understand the Negro's emotions, longings and values. And it demonstrates the thoughtful development of Negro talent to the point where one questions the necessity (other than for its social evidence) of the specialization of 'Negro' in the title." Hubert Creekmore
+ N Y Times p19 Ja 30 '49 360w

"The percentage of good poetry is about the same as that in any long-term racial cross-section."
New Yorker 24:71 Ja 29 '49 100w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 13 '49 80w

"Even though it doesn't take high rank as an anthology, much excellent poetry is to be found in its pages, poetry written by Negroes of the USA and the Caribbean (some of it in translation) and by their white colleagues among whom I am glad to count myself." J. S. Untermeyer
— + Sat R of Lit 32:16 Mr 19 '49 800w

HUGHES, LEO, and SCOUTEN, A. H., eds. Ten English farces. 286p $4 Univ. of Tex.

822.08 English drama—Collections 49-9320

Reprints of ten English farces by minor writers of the eighteenth century. All were produced in London between 1684 and 1790. Each is introduced by a brief note on the author, sources, stage history, and publication. Contents: A duke and no duke, by Nahum Tate; The emperor of the moon, by Aphra Behn; The anatomist, by Edward Ravenscroft; Hob, by Thomas Doggett; The cobler of Preston, by Charles Johnson; The devil to pay, by Thomas Jevon; The bilker bilk'd (Anonymous); The brave Irishman, by Thomas Sheridan; Appearance is against them, by Elizabeth Inchbald; No song no supper, by Prince Hoare.

"I was greatly impressed with the choice of the editors." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:665 Ap 15 '49 70w

"Although the comments are in type large enough to read easily, the plays themselves are so wretchedly set up and printed that the reader is punished if he wishes to read them. It is doubtful that this collection will be useful to any but keen-eyed students of the eighteenth-century drama; it will probably drive others to read the first-rate farces of Gay, Fielding, and Foote."

HUGHES, LEO—Continued

Sat R of Lit 32:21 My 14 '49 140w

HUGHES, OSEE GLADYS. Introductory foods. rev ed 575p il $4.25 Macmillan

641 Cookery. Food 49-8422

Revised edition of a textbook first published in 1940. "Although planned for high school cooking classes using demonstration methods, the textbook format is not obvious, the recipes are usually for four servings, and the explicit instructions, as well as the explanation of reasons for the processes, make this a helpful manual for the amateur cook. In this edition the chapters on food preservation and meal planning are expanded; new data have been added." (Booklist) Bibliographies. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:357 Je 15 '49

"It is primarily a background text and could be supplemented with any recipe book one would wish to use. The illustrations are excellent and point up the subject matter. It is easy and interesting reading." M. H. Dixon

+ J Home Econ 41:477 O '49 150w

HUGHES, PHILIP. Popular history of the Catholic church. Am ed 294p $3.50 Macmillan

270 Roman Catholic church—History. Church history 49-7695

A one-volume history of the Catholic church from the early days of primitive Catholicism down to the present. The author has also published the first three volumes of a larger work: A History of the Church (to 1517) (Book Review Digest 1934, 1935, 1947). Index.

Booklist 45:290 My 1 '49

"With its carefully chosen limits and thoroughly pleasing narrative prose style, this book is a very valuable over-all survey, bringing to any reader, however, instructed or uninstructed, a good view of the succession of eras and persons and problems by which the Catholic Church has lived and changed, while remaining from 'St. Peter to Constantine' to 'The Contemporary Scene, 1878-1946' the same thing." Philip Burnham

+ Commonweal 49:594 Mr 25 '49 460w

"He is unbiased, realistic and sympathetic in his approach. This is a reference book that is at the same time interesting." J. W. Bogan

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 180w

HULBERT, ARCHER BUTLER. Forty-niners; the chronicle of the California trail; with an introd. by Joseph Henry Jackson. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 340p il maps $4 Little

917.8 Overland journeys to the Pacific. California—Gold discoveries 48-10297

"A chronicle of the hard going encountered, in 1849, by a party of aspiring gold miners en route from Independence, Missouri, to California. Professor Hulbert's particular group of forty-niners aren't historically real people, but the story of their trip, which is cast in the form of a diary kept by one of them, is all genuine archive stuff, selected from the writings of dozens of men who actually did make the long, anxious journey over the California Trail." (New Yorker) First published in 1931 (Book Review Digest 1931) the book has been reissued as a contribution to the California centennial. Bibliography. Index.

"Important western Americana. For the larger and historical libraries." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 74:56 Ja 1 '49 130w

"Very interesting and—according to an introduction by Joseph Henry Jackson, who, in the name of our Western regions, passes on projects of this sort—factually almost perfect."

+ New Yorker 24:82 Ja 15 '49 100w

"It is an impressive, vivid, and highly entertaining recreation of a unique page of history." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 F 26 '49 290w

Reviewed by R. G. Cleland

Sat R of Lit 32:22 Mr 12 '49 850w

Time 53:102 Mr 28 '49 500w

HULL, MRS ELEANOR (MEANS). Tumbleweed boy; decorations by Charles Alston. 137p $1.75 Friendship press

49-8153

The hero of this story for young people, is Colly Harper, son of migrant harvest workers in the American West. Life for the families of these workers is hard and desolate, but little by little Colly finds and is helped to a way out.

Churchman 163:3 Je 15 '49 40w

"This is for boys akin to what Strawberry Girl is for girls, a sensitive and beautifully written story of a boy whose family are migrant workers, ranging from Arkansas down through the market garden areas to Texas and up to Wisconsin."

+ Kirkus 17:149 Mr 15 '49 160w

"A vivid picture of the life of the migrant. Ages 12-15." Margaret Taylor

+ Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 70w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman

Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 31 '49 150w

HULME, FRANCIS PLEDGER. Come up the valley; ballads and poems; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 92p $3 Rutgers univ. press

811 49-8439

Collection of short poems, ballads, and sonnets by a native of North Carolina. For his ballads the author began with a tune and fitted words to it, and he suggests the musical instrument best suited for most of them.

Booklist 45:373 Jl 1 '49

"Some of the words have the real, unmistakable magic. The later pages of this first book by a new poet illustrate his talents for the lyric poem and the sonnet." Gerald McDonald

+ Library J 74:958 Je 15 '49 70w

"Hulme attempts some conversational city pieces, which are a sophisticated, stream-of-consciousness type of poetry. In these he is not as sure of his craft or material as he is in the lively ballads, or in the fine spun lyrics and sonnets. The sonnet group, which closes the volume, is well wrought, although the poet mixes the traditional rhyme patterns, which may annoy the formal sonneteers of the Petrarchian school." A. M. Sullivan

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:30 My 21 '49 270w

HULTGREN, THOR. American transportation in prosperity and depression. 397p $5 Nat. bur. of economic res.

385 Railroads—U.S. Business cycles 49-643

"In an Introduction to this study, Professor Arthur F. Burns remarks that 'The influence of business cycles can be detected in almost every feature of railroad operations. . . But the direction, amplitude, and timing of the multitudinous adjustments to business cycles are highly variable. To find one's way through the maze of cyclical reactions, a plan is needed. Hultgren's plan is to focus attention on the behavior of costs and profits.' In the twelve chapters of this study, based on transportation statistics to 1938, the effect of cycles on movement of goods, people, utilization of equipment, trainloading, condition and supply of equipment, workers and their performance, prices and wages, cost and its various elements, and profits is carefully examined. Supporting the text are 151 tables and 133 charts." U S Quarterly Bkl

"There is much that is interesting in this analysis both for students of cycles and for those who are interested in the railroad industry as such. For the former it provides a vivid picture of the internal changes which occur in an industry under broad cyclical pressure. The statistical material examined is very large, and the correlation of averages of performance in particular aspects of railroad work with the over-all movements of traffic is interesting and plausible. Moreover, the variety of reliable data in the controlled railroad system is so great that it is possible to attempt interpretations which might be dangerous in other cases. For students of railroading, as such, the study provokes reflections with respect to the operating characteristics of railroad undertakings." Stuart Daggett

+ Am Econ R 39:1048 S '49 1450w

"Comprehensive and penetrating study. . . No such comprehensive analysis of the causes and effects of cyclical changes in the transportation industries and of the relationships between the conditions in these industries and the national economy has ever before been undertaken. . . The analyses of past performance in this comprehensive study are of great value to students of transportation operation, traffic, and economics." G. L. Wilson

+ Ann Am Acad 265:207 S '49 800w

"One is left with the feeling that the commentary does not fully exhaust the voluminous statistical material. Indeed, the book is somewhat severe to read for all but the avid consumer of statistics. The author does not always make clear what is gained from a particular operation. More extensive summaries of the behavior-pattern of railroads might have relieved this situation. Despite these criticisms, which relate mainly to organization and presentation, the book is clearly an important work. It is on such inductive studies that much future economic analysis will rest." J. G. B. Hutchins

+ — J Pol Econ 57:553 D '49 800w

"The analysis will be of great value to transportation officials, economists, advanced students, financial writers, and labor leaders. It is to be hoped that a supplementary study will deal with the data since 1938."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:194 Je '49 200w

HUMPHREY, HENRY, ed. Woman's home companion household book. See Woman's home companion (periodical)

HUMPHREY, MARTHA BURNHAM. Eye for music; drawings and text. 108p $3.50 H. M. Teich & co, Algonquin press, 712 Beacon st, Boston 15

785 Boston symphony orchestra. Musicians 49-6748

"A Boston artist who has had the privilege of taking her sketchbook into Symphony Hall, discourses at random on music, musicians and drawing. . . Subjects covered are, in chief, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its conductors, visiting composers, recitalists, a Duke Ellington rehearsal and a few of the Orchestra's peripheral activities." Library J

Reviewed by Leonard Burkat

+ Library J 74:1907 D 15 '49 70w

"As silent films often seem flat, so these drawings without the sounds that inspired them may make one wish for a recorded accompaniment. Yet many of the sketches are lively and likeable; one enjoys the elegance of 'Koussie's cape,' the solid earnestness of the MacDowell Club's lady cymbalist, the sketches of baton and hand in fine frenzy or repose. Many of the drawings have appeared in newspaper and magazine; now between the covers of a book, they would seem appropriate as a gift for symphony-goer, budding musical genius, or teacher of music." A. S. Plaut

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:118 D '49 400w

"Miss Humphrey has written the running commentary which carries human interest and proves that she knows her music as well as her art, for the text is readable and to the point for the layman as well as the musician. It is a delightful souvenir for those who like their Boston Orchestra and its veteran conductor." V. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 230w

HUMPHRIES, ROLFE. Wind of time; poems. 49p $2.50 Scribner

811 49-9872

Twenty-eight lyrics by an American poet who "learned his formal excellences as a Latinist and translator of poets like Lorca, Rilke, and Heredia." (Sat R of Lit)

Reviewed by Peter Viereck

Atlantic 184:68 O '49 120w

Booklist 46:31 S 15 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Chicago Sun S 12 '49 550w

"On the whole disappointing. It shows little direction, integration or coherence of style. The verse moves from a mildly serious to a mildly light mood, and in no case expresses anything worth noting or remembering. The poetical sensitivity is not deep and the point of view inconsequential. This is the more discouraging as Humphries' earlier work seemed to show much lyrical promise."

— Kirkus 17:378 Jl 15 '49 70w

"Not, perhaps, for the reader who believes poetry died with Tennyson, but a welcome discovery for the reader who has insisted heretofore that poetry died with Yeats." Shirley Barker

+ — Library J 74:1327 S 15 '49 80w

"The paradox that Mr. Humphries's unsuccessful poems are those that endeavor to speak of contemporary matters, with which his best poems have little directly to do, defines, I think, his position as a modern poet. The fact is that his attitude toward the contemporary 'self' is too negative to be a real concern of his poetry. He is too disgusted with it to make it into poetry. . . The best of these poems look back, evoking the golden age which, having never existed, is every poet's new-found land. Since what matters is the writing of good poetry, I don't see any reason why the golden age is not enough. The proof lies in the poetry." H. P. Lazarus

Nation 169:284 S 17 '49 950w

"By all the rules, a poet like Rolfe Humphries should not exist today. His classical poise, his fine balance between the worlds of observation and of imagination, his unashamed indulgence in lyrical feeling, his almost trance-like lucidity—these are qualities which the modern temper is believed to forbid or prevent, and no poet should be able to display them without paying some awful penalty of perpetual cliché or undue facility. But Mr. Humphries on the whole gets away with it: at his best he is lucid without being facile, classical without being derivative, and lyrical without being either sentimental or exclamatory." David Daiches

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ag 7 '49 370w

"Forty-nine pages filled with music. Principally, I should say, music. He is at his best strictly as a lyricist and poems like 'Little Fugue' and 'The Islands' and 'The Obdurate' are delightful. I was delighted by 'The Cynneddf' both when I read it first in magazine form and later in this book. I could wish, in some, less grace and more meat, a sharper satire; but that is ungrateful of me, since, after all, Mr. Humphries is doing me (and the handful of other inveterate poetry readers left on earth) the great favor of writing poetry at all. Good, careful, singable, memorizable lines —writing them with love and skill and artistry." Phyllis McGinley

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 31 '49 350w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 40w

"The lyrics in this volume give very pure pleasure. Humphries writes with the clarity, ease, and conversational wit, the felicities of rhyme and pattern, of the best society verse." R. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 Ag 20 '49 470w

HUNGERFORD, EDWARD. Wells Fargo; advancing the American frontier. 274p il $3.75 Random house

385.23 Wells, Fargo and company. West—History 49-10151

"This present volume traces the development of one of the pioneer express companies of the nation. The Wells Fargo Express Company was founded as a joint stock company in 1852 by two men from New York State, Henry Wells and William T. Fargo. It was one of the many aftermaths of the California Gold Rush. It served the country as a carrier, first in the West, later in the East, until 1918, when it merged with its competitors, Adams and the American, into a single agency called the American Railway Express." (Christian Science Monitor) Included are sketches of some of the personalities connected with the early history, especially the famous robber Black Bart. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:27 S 15 '49

Reviewed by Hayden Carruth
Chicago Sun Ag 9 '49 500w

"Mr. Hungerford writes well about the Pony Express, that gallant gesture in the history of American transportation. . . He writes good thumbnail biographies of many men connected with Wells Fargo. His book is a bit desultory in tone, a bit haphazard in plan—in some places it degenerates into the manner of the house organ dutifully setting forth the doings of the president of the firm. But an express company, like a railroad, breeds loyalties and Mr. Hungerford's book makes clear why there were men, of which he was one, proud to be Wells Fargo men!" R. M. H.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 900w

"Edward Hungerford as an author is best known as a railroad historian, and his Wells Fargo narrative is a plain one. It is remarkable for its lack of local-color splotches and purply verbal flights. The battles between company men and desperadoes are allowed to speak for themselves. This sober treatment is less happy when dealing at length with the growth of the company affairs—especially after larger interests had taken over." E. S. Skillin
+ — Commonweal 50:442 Ag 12 '49 480w

Kirkus 17:315 Je 15 '49 170w

"The material could have been better organized, and the writing in general seems hasty. However, the subject matter makes the book a worth while acquisition for all libraries." Clarence Gorchels
+ — Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 100w

Nation 169:237 S 3 '49 30w

"The late Mr. Hungerford, whose last work this is, wrote many books about railroads. For several years he was an employee of Wells Fargo, in charge of its public relations department. The present book suffers, in this reviewer's opinion, because it neither offers nor even indicates any criticism. Wells Fargo is always right, always just. . . . Apart from that, the book is a genial, easy-going account of the venerable and efficient institution." Stewart Holbrook
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Jl 31 '49 1050w

"Hungerford wrote with much spirit about the old West, its mining camps, desperadoes, railroad wars and such. His pages are enlivened also by sketches of colorful personalities: stagecoach drivers and operators, bandits and detectives, financiers and company executives. One might wish for a more realistic appraisal of Wells Fargo policies, but in spite of any shortcomings, this is an indispensable record of a notable subject of Americana." W. G. Tyrrell
+ — N Y Times p16 Ag 14 '49 400w

"Those who would like to know something of Wells Fargo and its beginning will find what they want here. So will those who would like the broad picture of a great financial institution and the roots from which it grew. And so will those who enjoy reading the story of an intensely American enterprise—a story which inescapably reflects the vigor and drive of the period in which it began and during which it built itself so firmly, by its service, into the civilization of which it became so significant a part." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 27 '49 1000w

"Edward Hungerford's last book is a solid and detailed narrative; fact has the call over romance, much as it did, and still does, with Wells, Fargo and Company." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 O 1 '49 200w

"Author Hungerford's history of Wells Fargo contains only a few nuggets like the story of Black Bart. It concerns itself chiefly with lavishing praise on Wells Fargo executives and listing company assets and dividends through the years. Most readers had better look elsewhere for the sound & fury of early California days; but ardent collectors of Americana will want to sift its dry-as-dust style for new facts about the old West."
— + Time 54:74 Ag 8 '49 500w

HUNGERFORD, EDWARD BUELL. Escape to danger; Robert Frankenberg illustrations. 282p $2.50 Wilcox & Follett

Jones, John Paul—Juvenile literature 49-48412

Story of a Yankee seaman, who was captured by the British off an American brigantine during the Revolutionary war. He escaped from prison in Plymouth and joined John Paul Jones in the battle against the Serapis. For grades five to seven.

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

"Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, John Quincy Adams and LaFayette are some of the famous people of that time whom the reader meets in this engrossing sea tale. Their portraits and that of John Paul Jones are vivid and human." Al Chase
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 160w

Kirkus 17:626 N 15 '49 70w

"An exciting tale with authentic background that makes the challenge 'I have not yet begun to fight' live again."
+ Wis Lib Bul p11 N '49

HUNT, DOROTHY ALICE BONAVIA-. Pemberley shades. 317p $3 Dutton 49-10724

A sequel to Pride and Prejudice, which picks up the story about three years after Elizabeth Bennett's marriage to the master of Pemberley. The action centers around the choice of a new vicar for Pemberley, and the difficulties encountered by Darcy and others in pursuit of the right man for the place.

Booklist 46:3; 47 S 1 '49; O 1 '49

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 29 '49 360w

"Miss Hunt has handled the lesser characters like Lady Catherine de Bourgh with better fortune, but Darcy and even Elizabeth are tiresome; the plot lacks credibility and the happiest occurrence is the elopement of Anne de Bourgh with a scapegrace." E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 51:46 O 21 '49 600w

"For Austen followers everywhere and worthy of their critical notice."
+ Kirkus 17:337 Jl 1 '49 150w

"There are a few new characters and there is a mystery and it is not so badly done. Risk being annoyed—do not miss it." K. T. Willis
Library J 74:1092 Ag '49 130w

"How any rational being can attempt the suicidal feat of 'continuing' one of Jane Austen's novels must remain a mystery. Where success is impossible the only praise that can be earned is for a failure less deplorable than some. Miss Bonavia Hunt has written what is, so far, the least exasperating version in this field." Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 15 '49 180w

Reviewed by Michael Swan
New Statesman & Nation 38:309 S 17 '49 100w

"Much as all confirmed Janeites would like to prolong their intimacy with these characters, they will miss the authentic sparkle of the original in Miss Bonavia-Hunt's continuation. It is true that some of her sentences go off with a genuine Austenish ironic snap. But the tone is not long sustained. What for Jane Austen was the familiar stuff of everyday life, and hence a possible medium for the transmission of the finest shades of feeling and perception, becomes for the modern author fixed in the quaintness of long ago. . . In spite of the perplexities caused by an almost incredible impostor, 'Pemberley Shades' lacks the comic tensions of its model. The fonder the reader is of Jane Austen's novels the more he will be dissatisfied with any imitation of the inimitable." G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 11 '49 450w

"The most extravagant compliment that may be paid to Miss Bonavia-Hunt's charming book is that occasionally it is possible to lose the natural regret at her decision to write a sequel to 'Pride and Prejudice.' Just as it is manifestly impossible to write an eighteenth-century novel in the twentieth century, so it is impossible to write a Jane Austen novel if you are not Jane Austen. Miss Bonavia-Hunt succeeds, with skill and loving care, in keeping her reader from wondering about petty details for the length of the book; it is never a temptation, for instance, to check back against the original for correct place names and spellings; there is no antagonistic anxiety to catch Miss Bonavia-Hunt in an anachronism. . . The result is a charming and not very convincing novel of English country life, its principal fault that the author has dared the reader to compare her with Jane Austen; a dare all of us will take and few of us will venture." Shirley Jackson

+ — N Y Times p9 S 11 '49 700w

"Miss Bonavia-Hunt has been presumptuous enough to attempt to write a sequel to 'Pride and Prejudice.' She would have been better advised to invent her own characters and start from scratch, because her book stands up very well by itself and is without need of support from such names as Darcy and Bennet and Bingley."

— + New Yorker 25:107 O 8 '49 100w

"In this characterization Miss Bonavia-Hunt loses the delicate Austen reserve and restraint and all but pushes Lady Catherine into a caricature. . . As for the manner of writing, that is pretty much a matter of individual taste. If you are among the Austenites who see their idol as mistress of the shaded and the impalpable, who credit her 'with all the lovely order and the firm calculation of Bach,' you'll probably find plenty to quibble about. But on the whole, Miss Bonavia-Hunt has stepped gracefully into the Austen slippers. She treads her measure lightly, with dignity, almost with a sense of exhilaration." Jane Voiles

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 18 '49 550w

"Complicated, entertaining, and dramatic." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 D 10 '49 290w

"Delightful sequel to Pride and Prejudice. . . The keenest Janeites may have some criticisms to make of this excellent 'school of Austen' picture." Sylva Norman

+ Spec 183:156 Jl 29 '49 150w

"There is a horrible temptation to use the time-exhausted phrase about rushing in where angels fear to tread, but that's just what Miss Bonavia-Hunt has done and as a result her entertaining and enjoyable little book cannot be judged on its merits. It has to suffer by comparison. Primarily Miss Hunt's novel is artful and contrived where Miss Austen's is all ease and grace, and what in Miss Austen's writing is precisely and brilliantly perfect, when imitated by Miss Hunt's clever pen becomes merely a stunt. But it's a nice stunt, even though the present version makes Fitzwilliam Darcy so impossibly perfect as to be rather silly, and Elizabeth is more Ilka Chase-ish than minxish." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 420w

"Miss Bonavia-Hunt has been rash enough to attempt a sequel to Pride and Prejudice, but the only real similarity between her work and that of Jane Austen is in the names of the characters. There is no comparison with the vivid characterization and exquisite wit and humour of the original. That the author should have spent time and trouble in trying to re-create another's work is regrettable, for there are indications that she could write an interesting and amusing story in her own right, and her sense of period is adequate for the average historical novel."

Times [London] Lit Sup p469 Jl 22 '49 150w

HUNT, FRAZIER, and HUNT, ROBERT. Horses and heroes; the story of the horse in America for 450 years. 306p il $4.50 Scribner

636.1 Horses 49-11803

"A collection of anecdotes, connected by a thin thread of history, about the growth and development of horse-raising in this country since the Spaniards brought the first shipload of horses to Mexico, more than four hundred years ago." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"A richly varied, broad panorama of 'horses and heroes.' "

+ Kirkus 17:501 S 1 '49 160w

"Good for reading or reference." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:49 Ja 1 '50 40w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

N Y Times p6 D 25 '49 90w

"It makes splendid reading, especially in the stories it tells of the almost incredible feats of endurance-riding in the West in the days of the pony express, but it is not very accurate about the thoroughbreds many readers will remember."

+ — New Yorker 25:126 D 17 '49 80w

"The Hunts, father and son, lard their chronicle with good anecdotes and a cluster of excellent pictures. They are concerned not merely with race horses, but with all kinds. It is not essential to know what a martingale is in order to enjoy this book."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 D 31 '49 160w

HUNT, HOWARD. Bimini run. 229p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

49-10344

Story of a fishing trip out of Miami and of the growing hate among the four on board—Clay Crawford, the rich man who has chartered the boat; his wife; Engstrom the captain; and Hank Sturgis, ex-Marine, ex-barkeeper, working cook-guest.

"In the hands of a Hemingway this might have been an exciting short story. Expanded to a brief novel, in less skilled hands, it seems melodrama, rather cheap and tawdry."

— Kirkus 17:309 Je 15 '49 250w

"The author had the makings of a good standard 'action' story, with a workable, standard 'love' triangle, and he should at least have come up with a couple of hours of not too tedious entertainment. Unfortunately, his book is lifeless and unexciting." Leon Dorais

— N Y Times p35 O 9 '49 320w

"It is all very laconic and hard and moody, a competent job of tale-telling with more than an echo in it of 'The Short and Happy Life of Francis Macomber.' " N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 32:42 S 24 '49 200w

HUNT, LEIGH. Autobiography; ed. and with an introd. and notes by J. E. Morpurgo. 512p $2.75 Chanticleer

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

"Thomas Carlyle called The Autobiography of Leigh Hunt 'by far the best book of the autobiographic kind I remember to have read in the English language.' . . It is still probably the most quoted of all autobiographies; for, as Hunt lived in the centre of the literary, political and artistic life of his time, no biographer can write about Shelley, Keats, Byron, Lamb, Coleridge, Carlyle, Dickens, Tennyson, or a score of minor figures of the first half of the nineteenth century, without some reference to his calm, witty and moving memorials of an energetic life and a numerous acquaintance. Yet, since the publication, in 1860, of the final version, there have been only two editions of the book, and it is almost fifty years since the appearance of the only annotated edition. This edition is the first in which any attempt has been made to analyse the sources, in his own writings, from which Hunt drew the material for The Autobiography." (Publisher's note) Index.

HUNT, LEIGH—Continued

Booklist 46:64 O 15 '49

"The Autobiography is a disarming book, for in it Hunt shows a rare, if tardy, self-knowledge. By the end of his life he had learnt wisdom, corrected certain notions of himself and others, and retired, gracefully enough, from a number of untenable positions. Sprawling, chatty, and discursive as De Quincey—though less liable to go off at a tangent—Leigh Hunt in old age was almost the ideal autobiographer, for he had no reserves about himself and, when describing his friends, could always be trusted to know what would interest his reader." Edward Sackville-West
+ New Statesman & Nation 37:356 Ap 9 '49 2350w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:39 N 5 '49 90w

"As often happens, posterity has brought to light some of those extenuating circumstances which tend to offset harsh judgments. Hunt had two skeletons in his house, Mrs. Hunt and his son John, whose misdeeds go far to explain his own impecuniosity. Loyalty forbade him to complain; but Mr. Blunden's excellent biography has done justice here as elsewhere. No reader of that book, nor of his autobiography, can feel any qualms about giving his affection to Leigh Hunt, who will live in our literary history not only as the staunch friend of Shelley, but in his own right as one of the most charming and influential of its minor figures."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p218 Ap 2 '49 1150w

HUNTINGTON, MRS HARRIET E. Let's go to the desert; il. with phot. by the author. 90p $2.50 Doubleday

574 Desert flora—Juvenile literature. Desert fauna—Juvenile literature 49-9730

Companion volume to the author's Let's Go to the Seashore (Book Review Digest 1941). In full size photographs and simple text, the author reveals the beauty and interest lying in desert plants and animals.

Booklist 45:400 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 11 '49 230w

+ Horn Bk 25:421 S '49 40w

"This doesn't measure up to the predecessors, Let's Go to the Seashore and Let's Go Outdoors, both of which have had substantial success. . . There might well be a plus sale for this in school libraries, where need for desert material as supplementary reading in the 8 to 10 level is still expressed."
Kirkus 17:324 Jl 1 '49 170w

"Highly recommended." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 70w

"Here is a new and very beautiful nature book by the author of two outstanding companion volumes: 'Let's Go Outdoors' and 'Let's Go to the Seashore.' . . The book is valuable for any shelf of nature books in home, school or library." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 31 '49 270w

"The text is brief, easy to read and contains the kind of facts which children of 7 to 9 want to know. Younger children also will enjoy the book as a picture book." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 14 '49 180w

HUNTINGTON, HELEN (H. H. LYNDE, pseud). Slender reed. 312p $3 Crown 49-8097

"Analysis of the character and reactions of a shy, lonely, sensitive woman. Long since disillusioned about her marriage, ignored and dominated by her husband and daughter, Madge finally emerges as her sweet generous self after Roger's death and Margaret's marriage." Library J

Booklist 45:217; 242 Mr 1 '49; Mr 15 '49

"How Madge Fairlie, quietly and self-effacingly, sets about the final adjustment of her own and her family's affairs, constitutes one of the most refreshingly normal studies of character development this reviewer has met in recent years. With the ultimate turn of the screw, a situation that might have been morbid, is carried off delicately and with a moving simplicity that goes straight to the heart." M. P. Corcoran
+ Cath World 168:492 Mr '49 350w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 21 '49 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"The Slender Reed is not merely an unusually perceptive novel of character. It poses some basic questions concerning women in society and human beings in the universe and its solutions are at least partially satisfying." C. A. Cline
+ Commonweal 50:206 Je 3 '49 600w

"A solid, and pleasantly sensible, story of a woman's life."
+ Kirkus 17:66 F 1 '49 130w

"Rich details, clever characterizations, and subdued expression make this an interesting, worthwhile novel. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 70w

" 'The Slender Reed' is a firm-textured and discriminating novel that bases its very real appeal almost wholly on its character-drawing. . . This is a thoughtful, sensitive and honest book, the substance of which is the victory of an individual." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 3 '49 850w

"With nothing unusual in the theme, the story moves slowly, sometimes tediously. Though Madge is treated with understanding and quiet humor, the focus is so steadily on her that the supporting cast—husband, daughter, son-in-law, sister (a rather stereotyped group)—never get a chance to come to life." E. M. Beck
N Y Times p22 Ap 10 '49 200w

New Yorker 25:107 Ap 30 '49 100w

"Delicately written, understated always, it carries a message of hope and courage for any who fear that, with their children grown and middle age upon them, they may be permanently on the shelf. The middle years, so the author believes, can be, and should be, fruitful years. And her novel says so with clarity and great perception." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 20 '49 850w

"You could say of its setting . . . that it was so well presented that it is as if you had lived there yourself, among the imperceptible changes of the years. Or you could speak of the characters so quietly presented, so completely real, so subtly understood. . . You would still, if you like this quiet book and the people, and the woman who centers it like some well-loved friend, be unable to express the quality it has, rich with fine rhythms and understanding. It is the quality that some of the great books of family relations have, 'The Forsyte Saga' and 'The Old Wives' Tale.' It is not written on such a breadth of canvas. But it is built with that same sureness of pitch, an instinctive feeling for recognizable reality." M. S. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ap 23 '49 500w

HURD, EDITH (THACHER) (MRS CLEMENT HURD). Galleon from Manila; pictures by Frederick T. Chapman. 153p $2.50 Oxford
49-10311

Story of a boy kidnapped and forced to work on a galleon filled with smuggled goods. Before rescue arrives he has many harrowing experiences, including a sea battle with English pirates led by William Dampier. This story of the year 1709 is for children in grades 6-8.

Booklist 46:52 O 1 '49

Reviewed by A. R. Brooks
Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 13 '49 170w

"Here is a gallant youth in dangerous sea adventure that holds interest throughout the book. The action is the main thing; characterization follows well-tried models." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:545 N '49 60w
Kirkus 17:431 Ag 15 '49 130w

"Will appeal to all older boys. Excellent characterization, appropriate black-and-white illustrations. Recommended." C. W. Field
+ Library J 74:1465 O 1 '49 70w

"The romantic oldtime atmosphere, on shore and at sea, the excitement and suspense as Felipe's life is often at stake make this a most readable thriller for teen-age boys, though one rather wonders why the author chose this strange period." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 13 '49 180w

"The sixteenth-century background is richly detailed and generally accurate. The characterization sometimes lacks depth, but the story is exciting enough to carry the reader past such places. The illustrations are excellent." R. A. Brown
+ — N Y Times p26 O 9 '49 140w

Reviewed by Felix Riesenberg
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 13 '49 100w
Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

HURD, HARRY ELMORE. Yankee boundaries. 169p $2.50 Day
811 49-10428

A volume of collected verse, dealing chiefly with the joys of country living in New England.

"Another New Englander, Harry Elmore Hurd, observes and reports and doesn't rein Pegasus for minor matters of technique, and doesn't mind repeating his performances with variations. With these complaints recorded, there is much to say in favor of the bold strokes used by Mr. Hurd in his character sketching. There is the stamp of authority in the incidents reported and the local color applied." A. M. Sullivan
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:33 O 22 '49 220w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
Springf'd Republican p70 D 11 '49 130w

HURLBUT, ADRIAN LEIGHTON. Servicing the modern car radio. 2d ed 702p il $7.50 Rinehart
621.38419123 Radio apparatus—Installation in automobiles 48-11023

"A manual for radio repairmen who are already experienced in the servicing and repairing of home radio receivers. It provides practical information on car radios in general and circuit diagrams and servicing data for the various models of sixteen individual makes of car radios." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 45:179 Ja 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1280 S 15 '48 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:93 N '48

HURLBUT, CORNELIUS SEARLE, ed. See Dana, E. S. Minerals and how to study them

HURWITZ, SAMUEL JUSTIN. State intervention in Great Britain; a study of economic control and social response, 1914-1919. 321p $4 Columbia univ. press
330.942 Industrial mobilization (for war). European war, 1914-1918—Great Britain 49-7398

"Mr. Hurwitz surveys the development of state controls in Great Britain as a result of the pressures of World War I. With particular emphasis on the problems of wages, manpower, coal, shipping, and agriculture, the author traces the development of controls and the parallel shifts in the British philosophy of the relationship of government to business. The book clearly pictures the disparity between the rate of adjustment of politicoeconomic philosophy during the war years and the rate of improvisation of controls in the face of war-imposed problems of production, transportation, materials, and the rest." (J Pol Econ) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by D. H. Pinkney
Am Hist R 55:201 O '49 320w

"As it is presented the work suffers a major defect in its lack of conclusions. Without them, the study seems open at both ends, and places upon the reader the responsibility of extracting from it the generalizations which make it of use as something more than a narrative primarily chronologically unified. Even so, Mr. Hurwitz has here collected in convenient form many interesting data which will undoubtedly prove of use generally to students of governmental-economic relationships, and which add to the depth of our understanding of the intricate problems of that field." F. V. Cahill
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:617 Je '49 380w

"The data, especially the quotations, that were selected and the author's conclusions appear to the reviewer to give an exaggerated and somewhat lurid impression of the political turbulence and opportunism, the intellectual inconsistencies, and the social unrest preceding the war; the emotionalism attending the outbreak of the war; and the idealism and later disillusionment following the war. Ominous import is too often seen in the mere effervescence of vital democratic ferments. These criticisms, however, are mainly questions of emphasis. The study contributes to an understanding of the tragic failures after World War I, and by implication helps also to explain the present heroic efforts of the British people to avoid the mistakes of that period." Witt Bowden
+ — Ann Am Acad 263:228 My '49 380w

"A scholarly yet sprightly book." Buford Brandis
+ J Pol Econ 57:268 Je '49 700w

HUSBAND, RICHARD WELLINGTON. Applied psychology [under the editorship of Gardner Murphy]. rev college ed 845p il $4.50 Harper
150.13 Psychology, Applied 49-1231

"A revised edition of a textbook first published in 1934. As the use of psychology has expanded tremendously in the intervening years, Prof. Husband apparently has had to rewrite a large part of his book while retaining the basic idea of explaining the uses of psychology in industry and in almost every facet of modern life. Among some of the subjects are the following: Vocational selection, getting a job, college personnel, employment procedures, aptitude tests, labor relations, accidents and safety, advertising and selling, psychology in medicine and law, and psychology closer to home—marriage, sports, study habits and physical efficiency." (Springf'd Republican) Chapter references. Indexes.

School & Society 69:118 F 12 '49 30w

"While not a book to relax with in a hammock, there is hardly any employer, or employee for that matter, who could not use it to advantage." R. F. Husband
+ Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 180w

HUSSEY, HARRY. Venerable ancestor; the life and times of Tz'u Hsi, 1835-1908, empress of China; drawings by Shirley Wang. 354p $4 Doubleday

B or 92 China—History. Tzŭ-hsi, empress dowager of China

Biography of the Empress Dowager Tz'u Hsi of China, 1835-1908. The author, who lived in China for almost forty years, made friends with many Manchu families, and was given assistance by them in his work on the biography. In it he attempts to show that to offset the cruel and wicked qualities of her character, the Empress had a kindly and generous side too. Index.

"Ts'u Hsi's colorful and adventurous life makes engrossing reading. It is an astonishing story; one which deserves, at times, better telling, but one that nevertheless deserves to be read." M. B. J.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 3 '49 650w

"A full-scale, well written biography, and a must for all interested in the Orient."

+ Kirkus 17:419 Ag 1 '49 170w

"Mr. Hussey has neither romanticized his heroine nor vilified her. He presents a credible human being, unusual in the degree of her ability and moving within the framework of her times." Ida Pruitt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 D 4 '49 450w

"'Venerable Ancestor' gives a vast amount of obviously authentic data on Tz'u Hsi's private life and on inside events in the Court, presents it with verve and color. It is not, however, a definitive work of historical scholarship. Events in Sino-foreign relations or general Chinese history are often portrayed inaccurately. Mr. Hussey would do historians a great service by depositing in some American library a detailed record of the bibliographical origins of this colorful and fascinating account." J. K. Fairbank

+ — N Y Times p6 N 20 '49 650w

"A well-balanced, and well-rounded, biography. . . While there may be a slight lifting of academic eyebrows over some of the facts as Mr. Hussey reports them in this book, still he has been most fair and has made mention of the debatable points over which the historians quibble. And so 'Venerable Ancestor' is one of the most informative and best biographies of the Empress Ts'u Hsi yet written, as entertaining and readable as a novel." Carl Glick

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:28 O 22 '49 850w

HUSTON, MCCREADY. Right people. 288p $3 Lippincott

49-10002

"Claymore and Susanna Gavin put up an exquisitely polite front for the world, but in reality they have little in common. Their son, Rodney, spoiled and attractive, turns to drink and takes up with a married woman, Grace Malden McClure, daughter of the equally wealthy Malden family. Overshadowing their lives is the figure of Eric Venner, the priest, who acts as the novel's mouthpiece for Christian ethics. Claymore Gavin and Grace's mother, Hortense, resist, at first, the force which turns them back to the paths of righteousness, but the tragedy of their children's deaths hastens the conversion process considerably." N Y Times

Booklist 46:47 O 1 '49

"It will provide a comfortable evening or two for those who have tired of the salacious and the sensational and are ready for a book in which virtue is not scorned nor conscience ridiculed. But in company with many other similar presentations of an essentially religious theme, The Right People is not likely to be widely read by the very segment of the population which most deeply needs the word it is trying to speak." R. M. Pearson

Churchman 163:18 N 1 '49 210w

"For larger fiction collections only." E. S. Brown

Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 130w

"An absorbing and satisfying story, admirably planned and written with great feeling. . . There is not a single scene in this narrative which does not belong here nor one that falls short of its purpose." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 21 '49 470w

"Portraying the human soul in transition is the hardest, and perhaps highest, task confronting the novelist. If Mr. Huston in this novel has not accomplished that task, he has at least presented a very significant side of human life." J. P. Quehl

+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 21 '49 320w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 32:56 D 3 '49 500w

HUTCHINSON, ELIOT DOLE. How to think creatively. 237p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

155 Creation (literary, artistic, etc.) Thought and thinking 49-532

"This book is concerned primarily with an exposition of the processes of creative thought as seen in the experience of contemporary thinkers and with the bearing of these processes upon education, aesthetics, religion, and research. . . Let it be at once understood that in no way do I undertake to explain creative ability. No one knows at present how integrations of thought take place in the mind, or upon just what principles of nervous action they ultimately depend. The problem can be dealt with only descriptively; explanation can be only approximate. But we can study the objective experiences of those who are productive." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 45:255 Ap 1 '49

Christian Century 66:81 Ja 19 '49 350w

"Dr. Hutchinson has not devised a formula for writing a St. Matthew Passion, painting a Sistine ceiling or solving problems in mathematical logic. . . He has tried to find predictable patterns in the welter of evidence. This can be a fascinating quest and Dr. Hutchinson has made it so. Since he is as eager to learn as he is to impart what he knows, he is a man without pretense." Arthur Leonard

+ N Y Times p17 F 13 '49 450w

"This examination suffers from language barriers, which at times shadow the intuitive processes being explained with mystical connotations. The intimation, moreover, that creativity, is apart from everyday experiences with new ways of saying or doing something, is challengeable." R. H. U.

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 17 '49 140w

School & Society 69:198 Mr 12 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:84 My '49

HUTCHINSON, RAY CORYTON. Elephant and Castle; a reconstruction. 658p $3.75 Rinehart

49-7231

A long novel of life in the London slums. Armorel, a girl of good family, saw a boy in a street brawl and was attracted to him. After he came out of prison she encouraged him to try for more education. Then they were married, and Armorel went to live in the Lambeth slums because she thought it was better for Gian. The long crowded story of their marriage ends in tragedy.

"A big book—big in its capacity, big in its accommodition of many people—an honest, often laughable, sometimes deeply touching cross section of London from the middle class to the Toynbee Hall district to the poorest slum. . . This book exerts a slowly possessive power if you will give it a quiet chance." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 183:82 Mr '49 550w

Booklist 45:170; 192 Ja 15 '49; F 1 '49

Reviewed by Edith Fowke

Canadian Forum 29:95 Jl '49 280w

"His novel is as dreary and shapeless as the slums themselves. Sometimes it reads like a psychoanalyst's interpretation of a detective story; sometimes it runs like a soliloquy of the author, brilliant perhaps, but as wearisome as a sermon spun out too long." John Fermatt

— Cath World 168:491 Mr '49 280w

Reviewed by Dorothy Langley
Chicago Sun F 1 '49 440w

"The surfaces of life—the lay of the streets, the smells, the gossip of neighbors, the vivid sunsets—are set down with bald realism; but nuances of character and lesser turns of the plot are disclosed through seeming irrelevancies and casual inferences—even as in life they are seldom explicitly stated. These mingled strands of fact and implication weave into a novel of Dickensian bulk and texture, but with a cumulative tension that rises swiftly and surely to the ultimate tragic climax."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 210w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"At times, there are phases of the development that fail to ring true; at times, the woman seems a lay figure. But always, the husband, with his own strange but rather beautiful code, is handled with tender understanding. A book that deserves to be read."
+ — Kirkus 17:8 Ja 1 '49 340w

"Characterization is excellent; East End dialect, racy and raw, is well recorded. This is a major work for Hutchinson. It was eight years in the writing; it is both broad in scope and incisive in its psychology; its power is not damaged by occasional touches of facile writing. Small libraries should consider local appeal carefully; recommended highly for all others." Scott Adams
+ Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 29 '49 240w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 37:446 Ap 30 '49 1100w

"I found myself reading page after page of this spacious novel with a mounting joy which was delightful to experience but difficult to account for exactly. . . 'Elephant and Castle' is richly populated with lively people. . . But this profusion of characters never becomes a confusion, because every one of them is unmistakably there in the flesh, and most of them, including Armorel herself, bring with them a past which exerts its vital influence on current happenings. The only character who seems to get really out of hand is Elizabeth Kinfowell. . . Elizabeth's story is told, it seems to me, with excessive sentimentality and at such length near the end of the novel that it slows up the strong denouement." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ja 30 '49 850w

"It is a tremendously long novel, almost three times the size of an ordinary one. It is told in a complicated and sometimes irritating way. Some of it is related in the first person by a member of the Cepinnier family; the rest of it is told in the third person. There is a gigantic list of characters: their roll-call sprawls over four pages at the beginning and end of the book. Yet, when these complaints have been lodged, one must admit the story's masterful survival of all its handicaps and limitations. . . The story itself is not easy to swallow. . . Yet the tale is superbly moving: there are passages in this book . . . that are almost unbearably poignant. It is when Hutchinson stops fidgeting with his novelist's technique and simply lets narrative flow that he becomes irresistible. 'Elephant and Castle' proves his abounding talents: it is for him, henceforward, to get rid of his tricks." Ivor Brown
+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 30 '49 1000w

"Long-winded and cluttered novel. . . Instead of letting his two principals work things out, if not satisfactorily, at least quietly, Mr. Hutchinson is always butting in, constantly meddling, constantly pushing them back into line. There are more than a hundred other characters, and Mr. Hutchinson keeps a stern eye on all of them. Occasionally, some of them manage to elude him, and the result is a few brief scenes that are genuinely pathetic or funny. But mostly it's a pretty bloodless book, confused by fuzzy, high-minded writing, uncontrolled shuttlings in time, and shifts in narrators, for no reason at all."
— + New Yorker 24:93 F 5 '49 260w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p13 F 6 '49 650w

"A full-blooded, magnificently alive work. . . Some readers will feel that Mr. Hutchinson's ingenious devices for maintaining psychological suspense in this story of crime and punishment are too cleverly sustained and unworthy of a novel of this stature. Some readers may become impatient with the thoroughness of the author's discursive explorations of many lives and many creeds while the developments of the main story are suspended. These are matters for debate. The incontrovertible fact is, however, that Mr. Hutchinson's career as one of the most gifted of English novelists has flowered into a brilliant performance in 'Elephant and Castle.'" William Soskin
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ja 29 '49 900w

Reviewed by Robert Kee
Spec 182:492 Ap 8 '49 170w

Time 53:118 F 21 '49 280w

"If, on page after page, the reader is forced to protest that it cannot have been like that, it is generally a sign that the author has been straining his imagination. It is this sense of strain which makes Elephant and Castle so uncomfortable a book to read. The panorama of slum and semi-slum life is immensely painstaking but much of it gives the impression of having been laboriously invented without a sufficient basis of observation."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p293 My 6 '49 550w

Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

"Elephant and Castle, like all his books, is brilliant. But it is not one of his best. Too long, too cluttered with detail, confused by several different methods of narration, it seems ponderous and labored. It drives its points home with too many examples, with unnecessary vehemence. Nevertheless, it fairly bursts with magnificent life; it is awash with vital and amusing characters; it is tense with drama." Orville Prescott
+ — Yale R n s 38:573 spring '49 450w

HUTTON, JOHN ERNEST. Trout and salmon fishing. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 272p il $5 Little 799.1755 Trout fishing. Salmon fishing

Agr49-446

Information on trout and salmon fishing, by one who has been a life-long angler. He bases his book on his own experiences in Great Britain, the United States, and Canada. Bibliography. Index.

"The observant, unorthodox, entertaining fly-fishing philosophy of the expert, written with nice humor and modesty." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 184:82 S '49 180w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
+ Chicago Sun p7X D 11 '49 180w

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 40w

Kirkus 17:262 My 15 '49 210w

"An exceptional, scholarly book. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 40w

"Mr. Hutton's suggestions are a well-balanced mixture of hard fact, challenging theory and gentle humor—mellowed over almost half a century of angling in British, Canadian and American waters." Nate Aleskovsky
+ N Y Times p6 D 25 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul p8 D '49

HUXLEY, MRS ELSPETH JOSCELIN (GRANT). Walled city. 350p $3 Lippincott 48-9605

A story of British colonial administration which covers a period of thirty years from before the first World war to the dark days of the second. In particular it deals with the fortunes of two men in the Service, Freddy Begg and Robert Gresham and their wives.

HUXLEY, E. J.—Continued

Booklist 45:192 F 1 '49

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun p7X Mr 6 '49 230w

Reviewed by Margaret Hubbard
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 27 '49 1100w

"A distinguished, powerful, dramatic story, in sharp, incisive style." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 2 '48 250w

Reviewed by P. H. Newby
New Statesman & Nation 35:380 My 8 '48 300w

"Its writing style is only average, and Mrs. Huxley's hand falters in handling some of the more dramatic scenes. But what she has to contribute in specific and well presented knowledge of a world, and in the broader human wisdom which at once understands, interprets and encourages man's dream, more than compensates for the technical shortcomings of 'The Walled City.'" F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 9 '49 650w

"Written with lucidity and mature craftsmanship, 'The Walled City' is a novel to be read at a leisurely pace. In describing the lives of two couples caught within the framework of a British colony's social and official life, Elspeth Huxley has succeeded in accomplishing one of fiction's more difficult aims: she has dramatized general truth in the reality of specific situation. Though the book's locale is Africa, its significance is not limited by the geographical edge of any single continent." Blythe Morley
+ N Y Times p21 Ja 30 '49 400w

New Yorker 24:80 Ja 22 '49 180w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 6 '49 200w

"The basic moral of this book is essentially the same as that which Alan Paton pointed in his equally striking novel, 'Cry, the Beloved Country.' In a nutshell, it is this: the balance which the black has struck with nature over the centuries has been toppled by the white man, through a secular force that undermines from without and a spiritual force that bores from within. How can the white man best redress that balance now? In [this book] Mrs. Huxley gives what is to my mind the only intelligent answer to that question. Every reader who is interested in the problems of his fellowmen should ponder her answer. The past year has yielded some notable books on Africa. This novel, for its compassion, its expert narrative, and its genuine authority, can take its place with the best of them." John Barkham
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 Ja 8 '49 800w

"The Walled City is written in a subdued, unpretentious but effective style, and though it has some weaknesses (principally the failure of the subsidiary but important character, Maurice Cornforth, to come to life, and an overdependence of the plot on coincidence) it leaves one with the unmistakable impression of a work of art." Robert Kee
+ — Spec 180:416 Ap 2 '48 500w

"The book is decidedly overcrowded with material: while the system of moving backwards and forwards in chronology makes for traversing the same ground unnecessarily often. At her worst (men in clubs) Mrs. Huxley's dialogue rivals Ouida for improbability; but she has evidently pondered much on colonial problems and we feel that devotion to literary models not of the first rank has often masked some sound common sense."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Mr 27 '48 360w

Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

"It is an able and stimulating book which should not be overlooked by thoughtful readers." Orville Prescott
+ Yale R n s 38:575 spring '49 260w

HUXLEY, JULIAN SORELL. Heredity, East and West; Lysenko and world science. 246p $3 Schuman

575.1 Heredity. Lysenko, Trofim Denisovich. Genetics 49-50254

"An account of the controversy in genetics that is being carried on, as a minor skirmish in the cold war, between the followers of Trofim Lysenko, the Soviet Party-line scientist, and most of the leading geneticists outside the boundaries of the U.S.S.R., who are not quite so ready to abandon Mendel's findings." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"The book will be of interest primarily to biologists and students of genetics, but the clear explanation of the issues involved should be profitably read by the interested layman." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 74:1195 S 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by C. H. Waddington
New Repub 122:18 Ja 23 '50 2050w

"Mr. Huxley's book is intended for nonscientists. Yet the first three chapters, on the controversy itself, on the ideological issue and on the scientific issue, demand of the reader an understanding of modern genetics. This is admirably supplied by the fourth chapter on 'Genetics as a Science' which should be read first by all who are not geneticists." Gerald Wendt
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 25 '49 500w

"Dr. Huxley is convinced that totalitarian states will learn by bitter experience that it does not pay to suppress scientific freedom and to abandon tolerance. If Soviet Russia ever learns in this hard way 'the battle of Soviet genetics will not have been fought and lost in vain,' because the 'scientific movement will for the first time have fully become conscious of itself and of its social function.'" Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p4 N 27 '49 700w

New Yorker 25:58 D 31 '49 100w

"Dr. Huxley, one of Britain's best-known biologists, a distinguished scientist and Fellow of the Royal Society, is eminently qualified to investigate the whole subject, both because of his scientific knowledge and because he has been a student of Russian affairs and has often visited the U. S. S. R. . . Dr. Huxley proceeds step by step to disprove and destroy the edifice of pseudo-scientific experiment and research built by Lysenko showing how his system is essentially a nonscientific doctrine applied to a branch of scientific study, not a branch of science in its own right. And from this point he goes on, through several brilliant chapters, to discourse generally upon similar doctrinaire and regimented thought in other spheres of Soviet science and culture." G. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 25 '49 460w

"Professor Huxley has done his contemporaries a great service in giving the time and considerable labour necessary to compile this book. . . Huxley's book brief but amply documented, should be read by everyone who cares to examine the extraordinary yet artificial conflict which has developed in the intellectual life of our time." R. A. Fisher
+ Spec 183:896 D 23 '49 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p829 D 16 '49 900w

HYDE, MARY MORLEY (CRAPO). Playwriting for Elizabethans, 1600-1605. 258p $4 Columbia univ. press

822.09 English drama—History and criticism. Drama 49-8843

Handbook on the technique used by the Elizabethan playwrights during the years 1600-1605. "After an analysis of the themes, characters, opening, middle and end of each play, and a discussion of properties, stage business, and devices, the findings are summarized with tips to the dramatist." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"Scholarly and sound yet written with such clarity as to make it fascinating reading for any student of dramatic literature and particularly embryo playwrights. . . Recommended for all drama and theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 60w

"Unfortunately, since so few Elizabethan plays can be dated to the year, the selection and arrangement is somewhat arbitrary. Yet the value of Mrs. Hyde's experiment may well lie in its horizontal approach, which embraces the total dramatic fashion of certain years, as distinguished from a vertical approach which isolates certain dramatic traditions over a longer period." Harry Levin
N Y Times p24 Ag 7 '49 320w

I

IAMS, JACK. Death draws the line. 250p $2.50 Morrow 49-7209

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p24 Ja 28 '49 180w
Kirkus 16:607 N 15 '48 90w

"It's hard to see what Mr. Iams gains by foregoing the high spirits and hearty merriment which have hitherto marked his stories. . . Twelve pages of comic strips, here reproduced, come into the solution. These are serious, too." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ja 23 '49 230w

"The tale is lively and entertaining, though not up to what might be expected from the author of as gay a piece as 'Table for Four.' The solution, based on twelve actual comic strips, is moderately ingenious. Despite this innovation, the mystery remains Grade B." B. S.
+ — N Y Times p27 Ja 30 '49 180w

"Fairly easy to solve, but first-rate handling of fresh material."
+ New Yorker 24:87 Ja 22 '49 80w

"Something doing every second in this lively, pungent, satisfactorily melodramatic, and ably plotted item—with satirically explanatory 'comics' thrown in. Extra good."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 F 5 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 140w

IAMS, JACK. Do not murder before Chirstmas. 250p $2.50 Morrow
49-11102

Detective story.

"Entertaining and puzzling mystery."
+ Bookmark 9:30 N '49 40w
Kirkus 17:409 Ag 1 '49 60w

"The solution of this mystery is pretty obvious, but it doesn't matter since Jack Iams tells the story with his usual wit and humor. He has a good set of characters in this one, too."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 16 '49 200w

"It is no small trick for an October mystery novel to give off a heart-warming glow of Christmas spirit, but this one manages to do it. It is also a tale of fast action, with a steady threat of danger hanging over the heads of the more likeable people involved." E. B.
+ N Y Times p43 O 30 '49 170w

"An excellent job by an author endowed with that rare quality, the light but never asinine touch."
+ New Yorker 25:140 O 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 6 '49 90w
Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 110w

ICKIS, MARGUERITE. Standard book of quilt making and collecting. 276p il $2.98; de luxe ed $3.98 Greystone
746.46 Coverlets 49-10683

Practical illustrated handbook on the making of pieced, appliqued, and tufted coverlets, and on quilting coverlets and other articles. Contains patterns for many traditional designs. Index.

Booklist 46:44 O 1 '49

"Admirers of this fine old art will like the chapters on collecting, famous American quilts, and the story of quilt making." M. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ja 9 '50 90w

IDELL, ALBERT EDWARD. Doorway in Antigua; a sojourn in Guatemala; il. by Marguerite Idell. 210p $2.95 Sloane
917.281 Antigua 49-50384

The author went to Guatemala to write, while his wife painted pictures. When they decided to live there, they bought a house and started to fix it to their own specifications. However, the native workmen had other ideas. Mr Idell's book describes his joys and tribulations in remodeling the house, his delight in the beauties of scenery, and the life and customs of Guatemala.

Booklist 46:170 Ja 15 '50

"His book reflects the hasteless charm such a stay may have for traveler and reader alike, with the rich beauty of the Guatemala highlands conveyed in sincere and delicate prose." E. F.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 5 '50 430w

"'Doorway in Antigua' is a book to be enjoyed—gay, appetizing and free of what the author calls 'a kind of visual dyspepsia' caused by 'doing' ruins." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 8 '50 380w

"Mr. Idell tells us how it all happened in an easy diary-style—Mrs. Idell's sketches of flowers, street-scenes, marimba-players and fiesta-firecrackers add much to the book's offhand charm." James MacBride
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 1 '50 230w

"In which Mr. Idell informally and pleasantly records some of the characteristic episodes that marked his introduction into the Antiguan way of life, and Marguerite Idell does the illustrations and decorations in delightful and able black-and-white drawings." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 28 '49 600w
Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ja 14 '50 90w

ILIN, M., pseud. See Marshak, I. I.

ILYIN, BORIS. Green boundary. 312p $3 Houghton
49-5057

Love story of a young American major, born of White Russian parents, and a Russian girl lieutenant, who served as interpreter at a meeting between Russians and Americans in the American Zone of Germany. Major Radonov became involved with the tragic problems of some Russian displaced persons, and Darya Lubinova nearly lost her life in the intricate tangle which followed.

Booklist 46:14 S 1 '49
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 18 '49 230w

"This is well told, the characterization is good, the dramatic effect is heightened by undercurrents of helplessness and tragedy. Of particular interest to those who have read the various non-fiction books dealing with escape from Soviet domination."
+ Kirkus 17:240 My 1 '49 180w

"Intelligently developed, this is a modern problem novel which has an authentic ring." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1024 Jl '49 110w

ILYIN, BORIS—Continued

"'Green Boundary' is, foremost, a story of individuals, told movingly and with a restraint that makes it the more convincing. Through Paul, Darya and the other Russians and Americans who come into it, it becomes also an exciting and illuminating picture of likenesses and differences between and among Russians and Americans. I know of nothing in fiction or in the factual stories that have come out of Europe that gives as clear a sense of the setting in which occupation forces function in that disturbed continent." David Tilden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ag 14 '49 700w

"Mr. Ilyin [is] a young White Russian who has grown up in this country. . . In Major Radonov he has created the convincing figure of a man in whom Slavic and American characteristics are forever at war. The facts and the numerous details woven into the tale are apparently correct. Yet some of the other main characters and too many of his supporting figures remain shadowy. 'Green Boundary' is an honest attempt to face one of the tragic themes of our time, but the execution falls short of the intention." Richard Plant

+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 14 '49 400w

New Yorker 25:110 S 17 '49 120w

"It is a good story, cleanly told with an economy that was once thought peculiarly characteristic of French fiction; an economy that does not rely on the staccato technique favored by some of our more laconic American novelists. . . 'Green Boundary' is well worth reading for more than the fiction. But it is not all pleasant reading for Americans. If we sent but one Melnikov back to the Soviets, we should all have to confess murder. And it seems there were many Melnikovs." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ag 13 '49 800w

INCOME, employment and public policy; essays in honor of Alvin H. Hansen, by Lloyd A. Metzler [and others]. 379p $4 Norton

330.4 Economics 48-3186

"In this volume, sixteen former students or close associates of Professor Hansen have contributed essays generally germane to his work; most of them being expressive of American Keynesianism, theoretical or applied. They have been grouped into three parts, headed: 'Determinants of Income' (meaning total national income), 'Social Setting' and 'Economic Policy.' The essays in Part I generally treat the economy as a mathematically analysable mechanism, though on that score, Robert L. Bishop's diagrammatic analysis of the three expansionist fiscal policies, which is placed in Part III, could as well be placed in Part I. The three essays in Part II are presumably placed there because they are broader in range or perspective than the others. . . In the seven essays which make up Part III, 'economic policy' is dominated by fiscal policy, taxation and the national debt; the only exceptions being Alice Bourneuf's specialist's account of 'Exchange Practices and the Fund' and John Dunlop's notable essay on wage-theory." Am Econ R

Reviewed by J. M. Clark
Am Econ R 39:499 Mr '49 4200w

Reviewed by A. B. Wolfe
Ann Am Acad 260:230 N '48 480w

"The reader will find the section headings of little use as a description of the nature of a given contribution. . . As has been characteristic of many such collections, the quality of the papers varies considerably, the mode being comparable to that of a typical issue of a professional journal, but lower than that which denotes a 'good' book. While some of the essays make original contributions or present already available materials in a manner which is likely to make them more generally accessible, others are largely rehashes of ideas which have been set forth more clearly and succinctly elsewhere." O. H. Brownlee

J Pol Econ 57:173 Ap '49 1300w

Reviewed by P. J. Strayer
Pol Sci Q 64:125 Mr '49 900w

"Tracing the relationships among income, employment, and public policy is, of course, a tremendously complex task, and this is reflected in the wide diversity of topics discussed. The volume, which requires familiarity with the concepts and techniques of the field, should prove of great interest and value to the professional economist."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:301 S '48 250w

INGALLS, FAY. Valley road [il. by Margaret Lowengrund]. 293p $4 World pub.

975.587 Hot Springs, Virginia

"The valley road leads to the Homestead, the famed old Southern resort hotel in Virginia Hot Springs. As president of the Homestead Company and an author-columnist, Mr. Ingalls writes the history of the American spa which has relieved the aches and pains of Presidents from Thomas Jefferson to Franklin Roosevelt." Sat R of Lit

"The frontier days, the Victorian elegance, the trials of fire, depression, and war are related with a charm and sincerity which could come only from long and intimate association. A book for a selective group of readers, but for them, unusually rewarding."

+ Atlantic 184:88 S '49 120w

"Mr. Ingalls has a collection of old books and records and he glances at the famous past, noting some of the celebrities who used to come to take the waters. Mostly, however, these pleasant reminiscences ramble over the years he himself can recall. It is to people who can recall them too rather than to historians that 'The Valley Road' will chiefly appeal." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 23 '49 360w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p26 Je 5 '49 360w

Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 4 '49 180w

INGLES, JAMES WESLEY. Woman of Samaria. 261p $2.75 Longmans

49-9158

A novel based on the Biblical story of the meeting of Christ and the woman of Samaria. In telling the life story of the beautiful Photina, her five husbands, and the Roman centurian who was her lover, the author has also told much about the customs of the country in the time of Christ.

Booklist 45:336 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun p7X Je 5 '49 150w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 240w

"Background material is fascinating; the colors, sounds, sights, smells, heat and cold of Samaria provide an atmosphere charged by political events with portent and foreboding."

+ Kirkus 17:183 Ap 1 '49 130w

"Writing simply and reverently, often with a Biblical cadence, Mr. Ingles makes real the ways of life among a primitive and remote people, divided by sects, ridden by tabus, to whom came a gospel of love and hope. A great deal of study and research must underlie his clear picture of everyday affairs in the different circles through which Photina's way led, but the detail, in itself strange and fascinating, has been subordinated to the story of the woman and the seven men who influenced her life. 'A Woman of Samaria' is an unusual little book with a strong religious appeal and also, from a secular standpoint, charm and interest." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 My 22 '49 550w

"Mr. Ingles has found a new formula for historical and Biblical fiction which will make his book widely and approvingly read by people who would think Moll Flanders scandalous. To cap the achievement, he is perfectly sincere both in his choice of material and in his restraint of manner." Bradford Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 Je 11 '49 650w

INGRAM, KARL CULTON. Winning your way with people. (Whittlesey house publication) 258p $3 McGraw

174 Psychology, Applied 49-9762

"Why do you suppose some people you know have such a good time in life? How is it that they seem to get things done so easily? Why do they have such 'good luck'? What is the secret of their magiclike touch in dealing with other people?. . . We invite you to look into these interesting and important matters with us. . . We examine the life stories of actual people who live lives such as yours. In these true stories of success and failure, of joy and tragedy, of life and death, we find certain clues to why people act as they do. . . Finally, the results are put together in a simple philosophy of personal action." (Introd) Bibliography.

Kirkus 17:344 Jl 1 '49 100w

Management R 38:584 O '49 20w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 8 '49 950w

INNES, HAMMOND, pseud. See Hammond-Innes, R.

INNES, MICHAEL, pseud. See Stewart, J. I. M.

INSTITUTE FOR RELIGIOUS AND SOCIAL STUDIES. Discrimination and national welfare. See MacIver, R. M., ed.

INSTITUTE ON SOCIAL MEDICINE, NEW YORK, 1947. Social medicine; its derivations and objectives; ed. by Iago Galdston. (N.Y. acad. of medicine. Com. on medicine and the changing order. Studies) 294p $2.75 Commonwealth fund

614.2 Public health. Medicine 49-1701

"One of the highlights of the centenary celebration of the New York Academy of Medicine was the Institute on Social Medicine. This book contains Institute papers by twenty-six distinguished contributors." Survey

"Many of the 25 essays collected here are exceedingly interesting, although they are rather uneven and do not form an entirely consistent pattern. . . Several enthusiasts urge the naïve belief that social science, fully applied, can resolve the world's ills. Indeed, the book's major defect is that little attention is given to practical means for putting its admirable ideas into effect. Most would appear to require large-scale governmental action, yet this seems greatly feared by many of the authors." D. A. Clark
Am J Pub Health 39:1056 Ag '49 270w

"The individual addresses are full of suggestions concerning the teaching and practice of medicine. . . A major lack in the symposium is the almost entire omission of the economic aspects." M. M. Davis
+ — N Y Times p5 Je 12 '49 700w

"There are highly stimulating sections on social medicine versus clinical and preventive medicine, epidemiology, nutrition, and psychiatry. Despite a certain amount of unevenness and overlapping, each contribution is rewarding. Let me urge every person interested in medicine and society (every intelligent human being, I hope) to read each essay carefully. . . I hope that schools teaching medicine, dentistry, nursing, social work, and their related fields will make this fine book easily available to all students." B. F. Miller
+ — Survey 85:282 My '49 420w

INTER-PROFESSIONS CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION FOR PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY, BUCK HILL FALLS, PENNSYLVANIA, 1948. Education for professional responsibility; a report of the proceedings of the Conference held April 12-14, 1948 [by Donald K. Davis, and others]. 207p $3 for sale by Rutgers univ. press

378.99 Professional education 48-11018

"The conference brought together teachers in schools of divinity, medicine, law, engineering and business for the interchange of experience and ideas. The session was planned because its sponsors felt it had become increasingly clear that the major problems of professional education are common to all professions, and that unusual opportunities for fruitful discussion of these problems are provided by the variety of experience of teachers in different professions." (Christian Science Monitor) Bibliographies.

Reviewed by E. L. Brown
Ann Am Acad 262:235 Mr '49 600w

Chem & Eng N 27:178 Ja 17 '49 70w

Reviewed by H. C. Parmelee
Chem Eng 56:296 Ja '49 450w

Christian Science Monitor p7 D 18 '48 180w

"The three papers by law teachers should be required reading for all who teach law. . . Despite the lack of agreement on the scope of the professional schools' responsibility, and despite the nontransferability of specific experiments from one field to another, the final judgment must be that this exchange of professional confidences was fruitful and promising." Brainerd Currie
Harvard Law R 62:1252 My '49 3350w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:66 Mr '49 250w

IOWA CONFERENCE ON ATTITUDE AND OPINION RESEARCH, STATE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA. Polls and public opinion; ed. by Norman C. Meier and Harold W. Saunders. 355p maps $3.50 college ed $2.50 Holt

301.154 Public opinion polls. Public opinon 49-11509

"The papers comprising this volume were presented at a conference held in February 1949, under the auspices of the State University of Iowa. Thirty leaders in the field of public opinion research, including such experts as George H. Gallup, Archibald M. Crossley, and Paul F. Lazarsfeld, participated in the program and their discussions offer a review and searching analysis of the techniques and present status of this branch of social science." (Library J) Index.

"The book will be of particular interest to sociologists, psychologists and others concerned with ascertaining public interests and opinions." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 74:1676 N 1 '49 150w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
N Y Times p52 O 23 '49 450w

"This book will be very helpful to the research technician but a little heavy for the general reading public." R. H. U.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p34 D 4 '49 220w

IREMONGER, FREDERIC ATHEWOLD. William Temple, archibishop of Canterbury: his life and letters. 663p il $6.50 Oxford

B or 92 Temple, William, abp. 48-9469

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"If Dean Iremonger has given us a synopsis rather than a critical, interpretative study, it remains true that his work is indispensable for every student and lover of the great archbishop. He has written clearly, lovingly and fully of a man who was more things rolled into one than any other person of our generation. No one will read this life without thanking God and resolving to be finer and deeper in his own Christian discipleship." C. W. Lowry

IREMONGER, F. A.—Continued
+ Christian Century 66:430 Ap 6 '49 1350w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 850w

"This is a most readable biography, written with great restraint. . . Dean Iremonger has given us a fine biography of Temple, the man, the great Christian leader, the peoples' archbishop." O. J. Hart
+ Crozer Q 26:185 Ap '49 400w
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 F 19 '49 110w

IRGANG, FRANK JACOB. Etched in purple. 241p $3.50 Caxton printers

940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 49-50255

"The story of the author's experiences in the army from the day he landed in Normandy until he returned home. First a medical aid man and later an infantryman, Mr. Irgang saw a great deal of fighting which he describes in considerable detail." Library J

Kirkus 17:573 O 1 '49 100w

"While this is a sincere book, there is no style in writing, conversations are colorless, and the whole effect is flat." Donald Wasson
Library J 74:1817 D 1 '49 100w

"The author reports his experiences with a minimum of moralizing, and he achieves a gruesomeness matched by few of the books that have come out of World War II. Four years after the war it is natural to expect depth in war literature, yet reportage, when enlightening, is valuable even now." Herbert Mitgang
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 1 '50 200w
School & Society 70:383 D 10 '49 50w

IRISH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

IRVINE, WILLIAM. Universe of G. B. S. (Whittlesey house publication) 439p $5 McGraw

B or 92 Shaw, George Bernard 49-11656

An impersonal biography of Bernard Shaw which intends primarily to relate Shaw to the "universe" in which he lived. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:123 D 1 '49
Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 30w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p10X N 27 '49 150w

"Prof. Irvine's book takes its place beside the books by Archibald Henderson and Hesketh Pearson among the most comprehensive studies that have been made of him. It differs from Pearson and Henderson in that it is less biografical; there is a chapter, for example, upon Shaw's very Shavian flirtation with Ellen Terry, but there is another describing and evaluating his labors as a music critic." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 13 '49 600w

"For the more serious reader, the student."
Kirkus 17:570 O 1 '49 200w

"This is an excellent addition to the many biographies and critical studies of Shaw. . . Recommended for theatre and general literature collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1759 N 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by James Stern
New Repub 121:17 N 21 '49 1250w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 4 '49 1450w

"It is a thorough survey of the ideas that for seventy years have been ceaselessly bubbling up from the Shavin spring, which even now has not run dry; and on the whole it is the most intelligent guide to Shaw's philosophy that I have read. It is both sympathetic and critical, partial to the theme, impartial in treatment; it displays a general admiration and a detailed detachment, virtues and faults equally and carefully noted. My only criticism is that there is perhaps too much background unrelated to the man in the foreground." Hesketh Pearson
+ N Y Times p16 N 27 '49 650w

"Although Mr. Irvine may not be quite the repository of wit, brilliance, and urbanity that his publishers say he is, he writes with considerable grace, and manages in slightly less than four hundred pages to put together a complete and believeable Shaw and to emphasize in the process various aspects of Shaw that haven't been so much to the fore in his legend."
+ New Yorker 25:134 N 5 '49 200w
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 27 '49 170w

"Mr. Irvine has done a difficult job well. He has a resilient and independent mind of his own. His knowledge is immense. He can be witty, too. His is a good book and a needed one. It lives up to the challenge of its title, and does succeed in shedding genuine light on the universe of G. B. S." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:55 N 12 '49 950w

ISAACS, JULIUS. Oath of devotion. 337p $4.50 Dutton

B or 92 49-915

This autobiography of a former New York city magistrate tells two stories. It gives an account of his own personal life as the son of Russian-Jewish immigrants, and a record of the city he loved, which he served as corporation counsel under Mayor La Guardia. Index.

"A book of dignity and a certain warmth. But one wonders if—outside the metropolitan circle interested in his story—it will be of more than mediocre interest."
+ — Kirkus 16:655 D 15 '48 160w

"A dignified record of conscientious public service." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
+ Nation 168:450 Ap 16 '49 900w

"The most valuable part of the book is its account of the workings of the corporation counsel's office and the Magistrate's Courts. . . Judge Isaacs' book reveals him as a progressive penologist and sensitive human being, altogether devoid of judicial pomposity."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Mr 13 '49 360w

"A gentle biography, a pleasant, humane bit of writing. Because it is singularly local in theme and in treatment, it may not find many readers outside Gotham-on-Hudson." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p29 Ap 10 '49 300w

"Here is a book that tells some of the stories that pass through that mill of judicial proceedings known as the Magistrates' Court. The author is a man of great humility but possesses inner security. He is a reformer at heart but shows a high degree of quiet humor. He understands the shortcomings and frailties of mankind and knows how to deal with individual people, and is also interested in the cultural literature of mankind." M. L. Ernst
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 F 26 '49 900w

"Mr. Isaacs' book is a sincere testimonial to the city which has done so much for him. It is at the same time a plea for a sense of devotion and social responsibility in the interests of the common good." Lucian Lamm
+ Social Educ 13:301 O '49 350w

"One of the book's attributes is its humility. Though Judge Isaacs frequently has been found in the center of problems fraught with tremendous significance to the city's health and welfare, he makes no effort to enhance his own role in their resolution. . . This is the saga of public service rendered by a remarkable man who loves a city and its people, who hates injustice, and who found appropriate outlets for both his love and his hatred." E. J. Lukas

+ Survey 85:498 S '49 650w

ISHERWOOD, CHRISTOPHER. Condor and the cows; a South American travel-diary; phot. by William Caskey. 217p $3.50 Random house

918 South America—Description and travel 49-11039

Diary kept during the author's trip thru most of the Andean countries and Argentina. The time was from September 1947 to March 1948.

Booklist 46:95 N 15 '49

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p15 O 20 '49 1050w

"The impressions of South America, by the Anglo-American author, are at once sharply witty, sometimes wicked and at all times fresh-eyed. . . Declaredly non-authoritative, this will supplement many a guide book."
+ Kirkus 17:387 Jl 15 '49 150w

"His portraits are not as sharply etched as his descriptions, but some of them will surprise readers, particularly his questioning sketch of Haya de la Torre, and his admirable defense of Mme. Peron's past. Rather pessimistic close." Joseph Borome
+ — Library J 74:1196 S 1 '49 130w

"Isherwood's diary is always readable and occasionally penetrating; one gets the impression that just as he is getting on terms with a place he is always being plucked out of it by the inexorable Caskey, who has got his pictures and wants to move on. One would be glad if he could some day return to, say, Peru or Ecuador, give himself time to acclimatise, and let his gift of luminous sympathy play over this queer juxtaposition of cultures." P. J. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 6 '49 300w

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel
Nation 169:423 O 29 '49 1800w

"A conscientious, literate and sometimes amusing observer records his observations in the most conventional manner, offering a smattering of information on geography, culture, social customs, politics, economics and religion in each of the places he visited and only occasionally reminding the reader, by direct reference, that he is Christopher Isherwood the novelist. The result is a smooth mixture, for Isherwood is a finished writer. But it is never unexpected, usually less perceptive than one would hope for from the author, and occasionally a little tiresome." A. L. Goodman
+ — New Repub 121:19 N 7 '49 500w

"The Condor and the Cows is not the Isherwood we have known, it is a larger, cinematic version, but the smaller, agile, eel-quick figure is there inside, and the two have made between them an irresistible feature. The pictures are admirable. Caskey, who didn't speak much at the parties, is an excellent photographer." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:585 N 19 '49 1850w

"Another travel book. This reviewer opens it, ready to pick a quarrel with any who dares add to the pile of nonsense on South America. But Mr. Isherwood wins. After all, he can write, he has an eye for things worth writing about. . . There is a lot of South America in this swift account." Hubert Herring
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 4 '49 750w

"The title, with its touch of playfulness and underlying seriousness reminiscent of the Auden-Isherwood collaboration on the Far East, is by no means an inapt one for this diary the author kept in the course of his recent tour. It is accurately indicative of the character of the book, which—as one might expect in a diary—is quite frankly Isherwood first and South America second. Rather, it is South America viewed through a temperament, by a novelist who is well up among the best that we have. . . For the sensitive nonspecialized reader it will make the big, sad, mist-shrouded, sun-parched continent to the south of us come alive with an emotional impact, a vividness and sense of tangible reality that no scholarly treatise can hope to give." Samuel Putnam
+ N Y Times p41 O 2 '49 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 30 '49 950w

Sat R of Lit 32:37 D 31 '49 180w

"Detached, self-effacing, too humble to be called urbane, Mr. Isherwood suggests the hero of a novel by Mr. Evelyn Waugh taken out of a novel by Mr. Evelyn Waugh—an intelligent, negative, stoical figure who accepts, without reacting to them, the strange experiences that come his way. It goes without saying that there are throughout the book flashes of brilliant perception and interpretation; and the descriptions of people are often (though of places less often) extraordinarily good. But something is missing." Peter Fleming
— + Spec 183:828 D 9 '49 750w

"A lively, sensible, no-nonsense kind of book, which carries the eye forward from paragraph to paragraph like a film-sequence unfolding. It can be warmly recommended to any armchair traveller whose imagination has been fired by the metallic glitter of the Andes and the oozy heat of the Pacific lowlands."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p727 N 11 '49 1100w

ISSLER, MRS ANNE (ROLLER). Happier for his presence; San Francisco and Robert Louis Stevenson. 178p il $3.50 Stanford univ. press

B or 92 Stevenson, Robert Louis 49-9000

An account of the five months in 1879-80 that Stevenson spent in San Francisco, set against a detailed picture of the city itself and the friends and acquaintances Stevenson had there. Bibliography Index.

Booklist 45:392 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by C. T. Houpt
Christian Science Monitor p14 S 10 '49 300w

"Mrs. Issler has explored all the available source material, including the San Francisco newspapers and a few hitherto unpublished letters of Stevenson's. Until such time as his complete correspondence with his most intimate friend, Charles Baxter, is made accessible, it is unlikely that anything significant can be added to this account of five crucial months in the novelist's life." DeLancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 19 '49 700w

"Mrs. Issler's study, though it lacks the more offensive sentimentalities of Mrs. Fisher's 'fictionalized' account of R. L. S. in Monterey, does nevertheless have similar faults. It is badly organized, and written with a disconcerting mixture of jerky matter-of-factness and sympathetic brooding over her subject. There is some interesting new light thrown on Stevenson in California, and some tantalizing quotations from unpublished letters, but nothing about Stevenson of any great significance." David Daiches
— + N Y Times p16 Je 19 '49 270w

New Yorker 25:102 My 28 '49 120w

"This well-written volume, based on much interviewing, much ransacking of old newspaper and magazine files, and the use of some unpublished letters of Stevenson and Sam Osbourne, is a real addition to our knowledge of the author, and particularly of his wife." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 S 17 '49 700w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey 85:456 Ag '49 200w

IVES, BURL. Wayfaring stranger. (Whittlesey house publication) 253p il $3.50 McGraw

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-11144

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Booklist 45:240 Mr 15 '49

IVES, BURL—Continued

"If you like folk songs, you'll enjoy Wayfaring Stranger. If you don't, you'll probably like them better after you read it." Edith Fowke

+ Canadian Forum 29:46 My '49 280w

"Wayfaring Stranger is an anecdotal account which often has real savor. The writing shows an occasional turn of phrase from folk poetry, but its brevity and understatement are so sophisticated that one feels something anomalous in their use to tell the folksy story of a country boy who made good in the city." Sidney Cowell

Music Lib Assn Notes 6:314 Mr '49 480w

Wis Lib Bul 45:29 F '49

J

JACKMAN, STUART BROOKE. Portrait in two colours. 188p $2.75 Scribner

49-8184

Story of a theological student's return from war in the Persian desert. At first Simon was uncomfortable at home and undecided about returning to his studies. After an automobile accident in which he relives harrowing memories, he sees his way clear to the future. The novel ends on a note of faith.

Booklist 45:242 Mr 15 '49

"The first part lacks decision and the attempted stream of consciousness style seems a trifle amateurish; but it does capture the particular charm of the English novel in describing a pleasant middle-class life. . . To sum up: a trim minor effort which you might very well enjoy."

+ — Cath World 169:479 S '49 200w

"The author's description of the desert and of the rigors of war in that setting are poignant and powerful, and his account of the inner life of the one important character are deeply moving. The background may be in two contrasting colors, those of Arabia and England, but the portrait seems rather to be in one color, and that one handled with great subtlety and effectiveness. This writer should be heard from again." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:653 My 25 '49 250w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 31 '49 550w

"In the direct speech of his generation, in words of bare bones, Stuart Jackman has written a memorable first novel. There is nothing negative about Portrait in Two Colours. There is a positive solution for Simon Calder's dilemma, as unobscure, as spare, as forthright as Mr. Jackman's prose, and as strong. . . It is to be hoped that his duties permit Mr. Jackman to write another novel soon. We could all do with more of the fresh warm air that comes through the window he has opened." M. M. Clarke

+ Commonweal 50:73 Ap 29 '49 250w

"Introspective probings and ramblings, somewhat confused flashbacks as Simon relives his unpleasant experiences, and finally ending on a religious note that seems a bit contrived. The major character is thrown into relief; the others are shadowy, indistinct. Well enough written, but the end impression is that it doesn't add much that is significant for American markets to the literature that has come out of the war."

— + Kirkus 17:40 Ja 15 '49 150w

"Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 100w

"This is a first novel of real significance and the best story of the returned soldier that I have read." H. I'A. Fausset

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 2 '48 150w

Reviewed by Walter Allen

New Statesman & Nation 36:119 Ag 7 '48 110w

"As both a war footnote and a psychological case history 'Portrait in Two Colors' has authenticity that keeps it always readable and sometimes quietly impressive." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Mr 13 '49 800w

"A novel which, though slight in bulk, is of a fine and satisfying workmanship." Arthur Leonard

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 13 '49 270w

"The book is remarkably uneven. From pages 117 to 181, it is a magnificent long short-story of Simon's last grim patrol and his subsequent hospitalization. It is one of the most compelling accounts of individual war experience that has come along. In its first 117 pages and its last eight, it is awkward, mannered, and unconvincing." V. B.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 5 '49 400w

"Simon's (re)conversion after he comes out of his symbolic foxhole requires considerably more proof to knit it to the rest of the compelling story." Robert Halsband

Sat R of Lit 32:13 Mr 5 '49 800w

"Mr. Jackman writes beautifully, using the exact words and not a word too many." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 181:58 Jl 9 '48 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p397 Jl 17 '48 240w

JACKSON, ADA ACRAMAN (MRS W. C. FAWCETT). In England now; a latter-day sampler [poem]. 24p $1.60 Macmillan

821 48-11803

"This poem interprets English life in an austerity epoch with the empire's glory in eclipse. Mrs. Jackson, employing the iambic tetrameter presents the daily domestic problems of making ends meet, of being stoically unconcerned with 'doing without,' and of conjuring faith in a future without immediate promise." Sat R of Lit

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '49

"The versification is clear and limpid if not distinguished, and the descriptions are bright and concrete if not truly vital, the tone unpretentious and sincere. The most remarkable qualities are the ease and high level of even pedestrian efforts at versifying in English writers. Limited market."

Kirkus 16:540 O 1 '48 90w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 13 '49 50w

"This reviewer distinctly recalls the first poem of Ada Jackson published by Mrs. William Brown Meloney in This Week; he shared the editor's enthusiasm for a lively talent. In 'In England Now,' subtitled 'A Latter Day Sampler,' Ada Jackson continues to justify the early enthusiasm of E. V. Lucas, Walter de la Mare, and Mrs. Meloney." A. M. Sullivan

+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 F 12 '49 300w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan

Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 170w

JACKSON, ALAN. Amateur photomicrography; with simple apparatus [Am. adaptation of 6th British edition]. 184p il $2.75 Focal press, inc, 381 4th Av, N.Y. 16

578.4 Photomicrography 49-7871

"American adaptation of the sixth English edition. Describes simple apparatus, much of which can be made at home, so that only a camera and microscope need be purchased. Covers the optical bench, filters, use of small cameras, photographing in color, micro-preparations, etc." (Library J) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:222 Mr 1 '49

"Interesting as a photographic technique, and fascinating as a hobby. A good book for the beginner." Julian Sohon

+ Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 70w

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL. Rose Bowl all-American. 245p $2.50 Crowell
49-11716

Story for older boys about the rivalry between two football players which started in their high school days, and continued when they played at Michigan State. With the victory of their team in the Rose Bowl understanding comes to both boys.

Booklist 46:127 D 1 '49

"One of the best all round football yarns we've seen, and we've seen plenty."
+ Kirkus 17:513 S 15 '49 110w

"A good all-round football story with a refreshing plot twist. . . Recommended for all young people's collections." M. D. Read
+ Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 60w

Wis Lib Bul p15 D '49

JACKSON, CHARLOTTE E. (COBDEN) (MRS JOSEPH HENRY JACKSON). Mercy Hicks; il. by Addison Burbank. 241p $2.75 Dodd
49-48771

"A story of California in 1826. The heroine is a fifteen-year-old girl whose father is the captain of a clipper ship. It brings in the Indians, the California Missions, and the ranch life." (Sat R of Lit) For older girls.

"The appeal is somewhat hard to define. There is no plot and rather thin characterization, yet . . . it gives a fascinating picture of the life of a girl, half Yankee, half Californian, growing up on a Rancho near Monterey in the 1820's." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1551 O 15 '49 50w

"That Mercy Hicks' behavior is unusual for the times is indicated by the author. Just how anachronistic it is, however, is a thought that probably will never occur to the girls of the 11-to-14-age group who will like the book without reservation." A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p20 Ja 29 '50 170w

"Mrs. Jackson has done a superb job of bringing early California and its people alive. That period will remain vivid in the minds of teenagers who follow the fast-moving adventures of Mercy Hicks."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 13 '49 300w

"A well-written, interesting story with many black and white drawings." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 50w

JACKSON, JOSEPH HENRY. Bad company. 346p pl $4.75 Harcourt
979.4 Brigands and robbers. Frontier and pioneer life—California 49-10782

"The story of California's legendary and actual stage-robbers, bandits, highwaymen and outlaws from the fifties to the eighties." (Subtitle) The stories of Black Bart, Tom Bell, Rattlesnake Dick, and Dick Fellows, appeared in 1939 as Tintypes in Gold (Book Review Digest 1939). Index.

Booklist 46:66 O 15 '49

"Jackson's account of these early desperadoes is always factual and while he gives them their due for cleverness he never gives way to so much as a wistful sigh over their chivalry. For this reason 'Bad Company' has all the legitimate excitement of a test of wits between criminals and the law without the embellishments of fiction which frequently do justice neither to the law nor to the lawless." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p53 D 15 '49 750w

Kirkus 17:492 S 1 '49 220w

"Well recommended." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 110w

Nation 169:333 O 1 '49 180w

"'Bad Company' is a lively and authentic addition to the long list of volumes published this year to celebrate the California centennial." J. K. Howard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 16 '49 800w

"Mr. Jackson's exhaustive research into the lives and times of assorted banditti has resulted in a worthy addition to Californiana." Hoffman Birney
+ N Y Times p21 S 18 '49 500w

"The highlight of the collection is an impressively documented commentary on the gradual transformation, at the hands of several generations of feature writers and local historians, of Joaquin Murieta, a thug who may never have existed at all, into a folk hero of formidable stature. The other pieces are just as entertainingly written, but they are sometimes overloaded with geographical detail."
+ — New Yorker 25:109 S 24 '49 140w

"'Bad Company' is in a sense a collection of sketches, as close to fact as I can make them, of some legendary and actual stage-robbers, bandits, highwaymen and outlaws who infested California from the Fifties to the Eighties. In some small degree, the book attempts also to reflect the patient, difficult, courageous and in the long run successful efforts of honest citizens to put these bad men down. More than this it does not pretend to be. But I hope, at least, that the reader interested in California's past will enjoy it for what it is." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 11 '49 1850w

JACKSON, JOSEPH HENRY, ed. Gold rush album. 239p il $10 Scribner
979.4 California—Gold discoveries 49-7009

A collection of pictures—including reproductions of paintings, engravings, drawings, book title-pages, etc.—with brief running commentary and captions by the editor, telling the story of the rush to the California gold fields in the 1840s and '50s.

Booklist 45:223 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by J. H. Hirschl
Commonweal 50:19 Ap 15 '49 390w

"This is a beautiful book as well as a very informative and interesting one. . . The link between pictures and text is unusually close, at some times slowing the process of scanning (the usual method with such books, but one which often causes the 'reader' to miss salient facts). But the pieces fit into an overall panoramic sense of the growth of one part of the nation. Physically, one of the best of its kind."
+ Kirkus 17:23 Ja 1 '49 260w

Nation 169:310 Mr 12 '49 20w

"The more than three hundred illustrations constitute an extraordinarily vivid report on the most spectacular episode in American history. Some of the men who made these records of what they saw were quite untrained, but the very naïveté of work like Captain J. Goldsborough Bruff's drawings of dead cattle around a dry water hole or of the grizzly bear outside his tent in a California forest gives it a compelling documentary authority." H. N. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 27 '49 700w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 27 '49 850w

"Jackson has cleverly bound the pictures together by a running narrative—brief, clear, well written—that makes the book much more interesting and useful than the usual run of similar pictorial records. The end maps are excellent. Cartoons and caricatures are numerous and good. Two things trouble me, however. The title page, which shows the name of Joseph Henry Jackson, as editor in chief, fails to list the names of any associate or assistant editors. . . On the dust-jacket, California, at the end of the Mexican War, is described as 'unknown, unpublicized, almost disregarded.' In actual fact, the very opposite was true." R. G. Cleland
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:29 Mr 12 '49 320w

Time 53:102 Mr 28 '49 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:148 Je '49 260w

JACKSON, MRS KATHRYN, and JACKSON, BYRON. Mouse's house; pictures by Richard Scarry. [28p] $1 Simon & Schuster
49-8337

Story of a mouse family's housing problem. Their sock, pocketbook, and muff homes were stolen by a kitten, duck, and puppy. A dollhouse made a real house for them; but had to be defended against the onslaughts of the three thieves. The mice found a protector in the person of the puppy and joyfully proceeded to raise a family. The larger animals in the full-page illustrations of this picture-book are done in felt.

"Teachers and particular parents may take issue with the fact that the duck feathers and the kitten's fur and the dog's hair all feel alike! So don't recommend it for anything but an entertaining story, dressed up with lots of pictures in gay colors by Richard Scarry."
Kirkus 17:178 Ap 1 '49 150w

"Big Golden Book with touch-me materials in three colors, the effect of which is to destroy any spontaneity the illustrations by Richard Scarry might have had and to add to the sentimental condescension of the little story. Not recommended for library purchase unless there has been a demand for this sort of thing." Mary Strang
— Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 60w

"Three-to-6-year-olds will find plenty to chuckle over in this book. The absurdities of a duck with a pocketbook, a puppy with a muff, are brought out in Richard Scarry's colorful illustrations." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 My 8 '49 130w
Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 90w

JACKSON, PERCIVAL E. What every corporation director should know; a handbook for the corporate executive. (William-Frederick press bk) 198p $3.50 Pamphlets distributing

658.1 Corporations. Directors of corporations
49-8432

"This book tells the corporate executive the duties and disabilities of the corporation director and the obligations of the operating executive. It discusses the organization of the board qualifications, selection, compensation, powers, functions, and liabilities of directors." Library J

"Interestingly written in very simple language. Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 60w

"A comprehensible and highly readable account."
+ Management R 38:581 O '49 70w

JACKSON, PHYLLIS WYNN (MRS RICHARD SORTOMME). Golden footlights; the merry-making career of Lotta Crabtree; portraits by Lloyd Lózes Goff. 310p $3 Holiday

B or 92 Crabtree, Lotta—Juvenile literature
49-11753

A biography of Lotta Crabtree, the first great American comedienne. It traces her career from her days as a child singer and dancer in the California mining camps to stardom on Broadway in the play "Firefly." For young people.

Booklist 46:160 Ja 1 '50

"This is a book for anyone interested in the theater." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:212 D '49 50w

Reviewed by A. R. Brooks
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 13 '49 260w

Reviewed by Florence Codman
+ Commonweal 51:187 N 18 '49 210w

"Full of life and color, Golden Footlights is a welcome addition to our collection of story biographies for young people." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:424 S '49 60w

"Anyone interested in the theatre, particularly girls who want to make the stage a career, should read it for background; for other readers it is a delightful costume piece."
+ Kirkus 17:432 Ag 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1549 O 15 '49 50w

"The story is gay and exciting, the background excellently drawn. For 12 and upward." N. B. B.
+ N Y Times p30 N 13 '49 130w

"More than an excellent biography of a remarkable girl, this book is a graphic description of the life and trials in the gold rush towns. Skillfully interwoven, is another tale, that of lonely, frustrated men who dug for riches and fortunes in the mud and rocks of the rivers and streams, but who were happy to settle for a song and dance in the local bar."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 13 '49 350w

"The author's style is charming and her material is fascinating and well organized. . . This is a superior biography." R. A. B.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 N 12 '49 180w

JACKSON, SHIRLEY, (MRS STANLEY EDGAR HYMAN). Lottery; or, The adventures of James Harris. 306p $2.75 Farrar, Straus
49-8263

"The twenty-five stories in this volume represent a selection of Shirley Jackson's work. Through some of them wanders James Harris, the daemon lover, in many guises, his veneer of the ordinary covering his elusive, satanic nature." Publisher's note

Booklist 45:295 My 1 '49

Reviewed by E. G. Langdale
Canadian Forum 29:94 Jl '49 260w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun Je 3 '49 60w

Kirkus 17:13 Ja 1 '49 160w

"Few of the sketches in The Lottery are pleasant stories, but Miss Jackson uses the trick ending device adroitly. She can twist a seemingly normal situation into something that leaves you squirming. . . Miss Jackson's prose is deft and readable. Recommended for adults." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:547 Ap 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 120:26 My 9 '49 80w

Reviewed by James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 1 '49 600w

"These twenty-five stories reveal both that Miss Jackson has a very effective talent as an ironist and that the magazines are clinging too long to certain patterns in stories. The middle-class emotion of embarrassment has been substituted for many of the human passions, and passion itself is very often treated in such a way that the reader is only embarrassed by it. . . It seems unfair to dwell on the shortcomings of one of the most interesting books of short stories we have had in some time, but the erudite quotations which adorn it and the recurring use of the name James Harris give a false unity to the book and confuse the meaning of the individual stories." Donald Barr
+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 17 '49 450w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 13 '49 700w

"The short stories of Shirley Jackson in this collection seem to fall into three groups. There are the slight sketches, like genre paintings, dealing with episodes which are trivial in terms of plot but which by means of her precise, sensitive, and sharply focussed style become luminous with meaning. . . Even if she is using a story form that has the New (Yorker) Look, she still belongs to the literary line that goes back to Katherine Mansfield and Chekhov. The second group comprises her social-problem sketches. . . Here she has, in addition to an enlightened point of view, a penetrating understanding of the subtle ways prejudices operate.

Her final group deals with fantasy, ranging from humorous whimsey to horrifying shock." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 My 7 '49 700w

"Unfortunately, nothing else in The Lottery is as good [as the title story]. The other 24 pieces are brightly lacquered sketches trimmed to New Yorker specifications. . . Shirley Jackson accumulates little piles of irrelevant detail, topples them over with the expected sardonic swipe. If she could break out of this mold, she might become one of the U.S.'s best short-story writers."

+ — Time 53:105 My 23 '49 500w

JACOB, HEINRICH EDWARD. World of Emma Lazarus. 222p il $3 Schocken

B or 92 Lazarus, Emma 49-8929

Life of an American poet of the nineteenth century, daughter of a well-to-do Jewish family of Sephardic descent, disciple and protégé of Emerson, friend of Rose Hawthorne Lathrop (Mother Alphonsa) and other poets and intellectuals of the day. Sources. Index.

Booklist 45:354 Je 15 '49

Nation 169:68 Jl 16 '49 30w

"It is by her 'Songs of a Semite' and moving 'The Dance of Death' that Emma Lazarus will be chiefly remembered. Mr. Jacob's excellently organized study appears opportunely upon the eve of the centenary of the woman whose stirring lines are engraved upon the base of the Statue of Liberty." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Je 19 '49 600w

"The fact that a good many unprinted manuscripts, diaries and letters seem to have been lost has made the biographer's task most difficult. Nevertheless, Mr. Jacob, through indefatigable research, has managed to give us a fascinating picture, not only of the gifted, if frustrated woman, but also of her world—New York from the Mexican War to the late Eighties. The lucidly written volume comes in time to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the poetess' birth this month." Alfred Werner

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 24 '49 650w

"While this may not be the definitive life of Emma Lazarus, it supplies a needed biography of this brilliant and ardent personality. . . In his eagerness to show all the facets in the personality of Miss Lazarus, Mr. Jacob tends to make some rather far-fetched comparisons between Miss Lazarus and other prominent women, for example, with Adah Mencken and with Elizabeth Barrett Browning. But he deserves credit and praise for having revived so vividly for the present generation the world of Emma Lazarus." J. V.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 10 '49 450w

"Mr. Jacob's book is not in any sense critical but it is an honest and lucid statement. It gives us more detail and shading than we have had before, in the portrait of a poet who, if not great, was nevertheless noble and heroic in the Emersonian sense." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Je 4 '49 400w

JACOBS, MRS EMMA (ATKINS). Far West summer; il. by Robert L. Doremus. 213p $2.50 Aladdin

"How a seventeen-year-old Eastern girl adapted herself to the ways and the people of a community in the Northwest." Sat R of Lit

"Recommended for very large collections only." M. B. Snow

Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 80w

"It is very difficult to write of teen-agers' changing values without using stereotyped characters and situations, and this author has done no worse, at least, than many others. It's all a little wooden, but the theme is an honest one, and the majestic setting is interestingly presented." V. H. Mathews

N Y Times p12 Ja 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:31 N 12 '49 40w

JACOBS, FLORENCE BURRILL. Neighbors; poems; drawings by Aldren Watson. 54p $2.50 Harper

811 49-11076

A collection of sonnets about the people of the New England farm country.

Booklist 46:93 N 15 '49

"This little volume of sonnets does for our day what the Spoon River Anthology did some time ago in free verse, and there is wit, cynicism and a sense of form in these brief sketches of country lives. . . The poems may not have a lasting quality, but they are bright and amusing, adult and topical."

+ Kirkus 17:419 Ag 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald

Library J 74:1908 D 15 '49 100w

"Mrs. Jacobs's neighbors are interesting people and she records their eccentricities more often than their faults. Technically, her sonnets are a hybrid of the Petrarchian and Shakespearean forms. The excellent line illustrations by Aldren Watson add an authentic flavor to the New England townspeople in 'Neighbors.' " A. M. Sullivan

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 D 24 '49 360w

"Witty, tender, and sometimes biting."

+ Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

JACOBS, HELEN HULL. Gallery of champions. 224p il $3.75 Barnes, A.S.

796.34 Tennis. Woman—Biography 49-7960

Sketches of fifteen women tennis champions by one who is herself a great tennis player. Contents: Suzanne Lenglen; Helen Wills Roark; Hilde Krahwinkel Sperling; Alice Marble; Dorothy Round Little; Molla Bjurstedt Mallory; Pauline Betz; Simone Mathieu; Cilli Aussem; Sarah Palfrey Cooke; Anita Luzanna Ellis; Louise Brough; Margaret Osborne du Pont; Betty Nuthall; Margaret Scriven Vivien.

Booklist 45:264 Ap 1 '49

Kirkus 17:174 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 10w

"The book recounting as it does many great moments in tennis history, will be engrossing to any fan."

+ Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 60w

Wis Lib Bul 45:105 Je '49

JACOBY, ERICH H. Agrarian unrest in southeast Asia. 287p maps $4 Columbia univ. press

333.76 Peasantry—Asia, Southeastern. Asia, Southeastern—Politics. Colonies. Asia, Southeastern—Economic conditions 49-7399

"Culmination of several centuries of discontent as colonial empires is manifesting itself in southeast Asia, and Professor Jacoby (formerly of Adamson University, Manila) makes a survey of the six major areas. These are Java, Burma, Malaya, Indo-China, the Philippines, and Siam." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Boeke

Am J Soc 55:200 S '49 1600w

Reviewed by J. O. M. Broek

Am Pol Sci R 43:1303 D '49 290w

"For all but a handful of specialists, the book provides a timely, systematic picture. Its chief contribution lies in its description and interpretation of the interlocking factors which underlie the protean nationalistic movements that make today's headlines from the Far East."

+ Am Soc R 14:446 Je '49 60w

Reviewed by L. A. Mills

Ann Am Acad 264:141 Jl '49 380w

Current Hist 16:231 Ap '49 40w

Foreign Affairs 27:693 Jl '49 20w

"The book does not offer anything new, since it is based largely on previously published material rather than on firsthand observations and investigations. The discussion of the rubber industry in Malaya did not benefit from the studies by P. T. Bauer; instead, the author

JACOBY, E. H.—Continued
repeats several one-sided and misleading arguments in favor of the plantation and against the peasant rubber grower. In general, however, Dr. Jacoby has rendered a service in bringing together within a single volume a large mass of data that will enable the reader to understand more fully current events in Southeast Asia. An extensive bibliography will aid those who wish to study the region further." K. J. Pelzer

+ — Geog R 40:166 Ja '50 380w

Reviewed by M. M. Knight
J Pol Econ 57:455 O '49 900w

Reviewed by Edgar Snow
Sat R of Lit 32:22 My 14 '49 500w

Reviewed by E. de S. Brunner
Social Forces 28:97 O '49 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p718 N 4 '49 600w

"The study as a whole is well documented, and includes a bibliography and a detailed index."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:240 Je '49 320w

Reviewed by M. S. Stewart
Yale R n s 39:353 winter '50 420w

JAEGER, ELLSWORTH. Council fires. 253p il $2.95 Macmillan

796.54 Camping. Pageants 49-1600

"Representing some twenty-five years of research by the author, this book discusses types of council fires, council ring etiquette, programs, musical instruments, Indian masks and costumes. Pen-and-ink sketches are numerous and add much to the text." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:258 Ap 1 '49

"Directors of camps, scout leaders, school and organization people will find this factual book on council fires, and all kindred matters, a useful handbook."

+ Kirkus 16:653 D 15 '48 100w

"Camp and community leaders will be grateful for Council Fires, and it should be on all library shelves. Will probably be used mostly by Scout leaders and older Scouts." Margaret Taylor

+ Library J 74:558 Ap 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Howard Boston
N Y Times p16 Jl 24 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:85 My '49

JAGENDORF, MORITZ ADOLF. Marvelous adventures of Johnny Caesar Cicero Darling; with a foreword by Harold Thompson; il. by Howard Simon. 239p $2.75 Vanguard

398.21 Tales, American. Darling, John 49-4543

A collection of retold "tall tales," attributed to a real character, John Darling, an eccentric who lived in Sullivan County, New York, in the nineteenth century. Johnny Darling told these stories of his own feats of daring and cleverness, "stories that no one believed but himself," but stories that had a grain of truth in them, nevertheless.

Booklist 45:400 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:209 D '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:416 S '49 90w

"Fine regional and folk hero tales, good material for story tellers, fine tales for reading aloud."

+ Kirkus 17:299 Je 15 '49 130w

"Highly recommended for reading aloud, storytelling, and good entertainment for all ages. Illustrated with Howard Simon's spirited drawings." Clara Adams

+ Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 110w

"Such a book is good fun for all, and good medicine for any who are not too sure of the true source of American humor." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 17 '49 410w

"Dr. Jagendorf, who recently gathered the folk stories of New England into an appealing volume, presents thirty of Johnny Darling's stories set against a colorful biographical background. Some of the tales wander almost as far from the Catskills as they do from the truth and some have been told before and since Johnny's time. Nevertheless, this book should give Johnny his largest audience of those readers, young and old, who are fascinated by a bracing tall tale." W. G. Tyrrell

+ N Y Times p18 Jl 10 '49 190w

"These are good tales, some of them very good. Even their occasional borrowing from their predecessors has a new twist. The artist has contributed a lot of absurdity, too."

+ New Yorker 25:181 D 3 '49 80w

"Dr. Jagendorf's collection is a good deal more than a child's book. Humor, inventiveness and imagination are evident in every one of these tall tales, both in their creation and their masterful retelling." P. A. S.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 O 16 '49 320w

"Dr. Jagendorf tells them here as he heard them, in crisp, humorous prose. The sketches by Howard Simon, and the fine format make Johnny's story an unusually attractive book. It preserves the folklore of the Catskills and it belongs in the enduring records of American folk literature."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 S 17 '49 220w

JAGENDORF, MORITZ ADOLF. Upstate, downstate; folk stories of the middle Atlantic states; il. by Howard Simon; introd. by Henry W. Shoemaker. 299p $2.75 Vanguard

398.21 Folklore—U.S. 49-49298

A collection of regional folk tales. The stories are from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Booklist 46:162 Ja 1 '50

"At times, the tales have the quality of rollicking folk song. Not only have they the gift of yarning characteristic of folklore, but they recapture a note of authenticity through the author's sense of dialect, language and the minds and spirit of the people from whom they come."

+ Kirkus 17:473 S 1 '49 180w

"These stories tell of queer creatures, pirates, hex-doctors, witches and sad, lovely heroines. Altogether they comprise a rich and fascinating volume, liberally spiced with fun. They should stimulate in readers of 8 to 12 a genuine interest in our native heritage as reflected in the untrammeled imagination of the people." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '50 150w

"Here is the superstition, the logic, and the humor of Americans who remember the stories of their ancestors and pass them on from one generation to another."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 Ja 21 '50 280w

JAKOB, MAX. Heat transfer. v 1 758p il $12 Wiley

536.2 Heat—Transmission (49-10412)

"The first volume published of a two-volume treatise. . . The treatment is historical in the sense that the development of each important step in the understanding of heat transfer phenomena is traced back to its origin; but the account is brought down to the present time, and the final effect is a statement of heat transfer knowledge as it exists today." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography and indexes.

"A distinctive treatise which is bound to achieve widespread use and appreciation." C. F. Bonilla

+ Chem & Eng N 27:2860 O 3 '49 320w

"In his latest book, Dr. Jakob has fulfilled the expectations of those who have followed and admired his work. This book is an ambitious undertaking which fulfills the need for a source book in heat transfer. . . As a text the book is definitely beyond the undergraduate level. . . The literature is decidedly enhanced by the appearance of this book and while it is fairly expensive for its size, it will prove a rewarding investment because of the unique position it fulfills in the literature and the wealth of information it contains." D. Q. Kern

+ Chem Eng 56:239 N '49 550w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:69 S '49

JAMES, DAVID GWILYM. Life of reason: Hobbes, Locke, Bolingbroke. (English Augustans, v 1) 272p $4 Longmans

192 Reason. Hobbes, Thomas. Locke, John. Bolingbroke, Henry Saint-John, 1st viscount [49-48438]

"This is the first of four proposed volumes dealing with the English Augustans, in which Professor James's main purpose will be a new study of the poets of the period. In the present volume he sets the scene and displays two or three figures whose influence will greatly affect his main actors later on—Hobbes, Locke and Bolingbroke. Within a comparatively short essay Professor James succeeds in explaining not only the salient points of each of these philosophers' reasoning, but in relating each to his fellows and all of them to the conditioning impact they made upon their time." (Spec) Index.

Reviewed by J. Bronowski
New Statesman & Nation 38:276 S 10 '49 1950w

"He writes with a freshness and vigour which suggests that instead of reading former commentators he has read his originals and formed independent conclusions; here is little of the conventional apparatus of citation and examination of former critics, and the writer has time and space in which to get on with developing his own arguments."

+ Spec 183:60 Jl 8 '49 290w

"The three studies which compose this book are executed in a manner both subtle and profound, and Professor James has made a notable contribution to our understanding of this period of the history of English thought. He writes in a discursive, meditative style, and the reader has the agreeable experience of watching him turn over in his mind, in a leisurely, reflective, unemphatic manner, the ideas of these writers."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p509 Ag 5 '49 1400w

JAMES, H. C. Gold is where you find it. 245p $2.75 Crowell

49-10490

A novel about prospecting for gold in the Australian desert. Dead Sweet Joe Stephenson was Irish, and he was sure he'd find the biggest gold mine in the world. The story of Joe's successes and failures ends with his death in the desert, many years after he had come out from Ireland.

Booklist 45:382; 46:34 Jl 15 '49; S 15 '49

"A nice job which communicates the fascination of a magnificent obsession, and which should find a masculine market."

+ Kirkus 17:337 Jl 1 '49 130w

"So few good stories have been published here by Australians about their continent . . . that it is regrettable to read a new Australian book adding so little to its literature. 'Gold Is Where You Find It' just doesn't seem to pan out even as a straight adventure yarn. Its characters—the prospector, the promoter, the gambler, the sinful and good woman—have all been headed off at Eagle Pass before in numerous Republic Studio sagas." Herbert Mitgang

— N Y Times p35 O 9 '49 260w

"The author starts out bravely enough with a realistic picture of men enduring ordeals in the desert, but before he is half through he bogs down badly and his individuals metamorphose into movie puppets." John Cournos

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:22 S 24 '49 260w

JAMES, HENRY. Complete plays; ed. by Leon Edel. 846p il $10 Lippincott

812 49-10769

The texts of Henry James' fifteen complete plays, and two unfinished ones. "The editor has talked to the chief actors of the produced plays, seen James's correspondence with them and had access to the secrets of the managers, whether they produced James or shied away. He has read the English provincial reviews, scanned James's library at Lamb House before it was scattered and received the aid of the James family in going over the papers." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

"With the enormous recurrence of interest in James, this volume comes at a particularly happy time. Everyone can examine the strengths and defects for themselves. Recommended for drama collections and the reference collections of larger libraries." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:1605 O 15 '49 70w
Manchester Guardian p4 D 20 '49 800w

"As an edition, the offering leaves nothing to be desired. . . No sooner does some confusion or uncertainty occur to the reader than Mr. Edel answers or quiets it—if he has not indeed forestalled it in his introduction and successive prefatory notes. . . Twenty years' work are nobly enshrined in this long-awaited, indispensable, ever-to-be-admired edition. If after this I carp at one minor detail, wholly unimportant in this work, it is because its occurrence in other places has become frequent and I attach to it the value of a distressing cultural symptom. The detail is this: Mr. Edel very properly explains in brief footnotes allusions in James's dialogue which might no longer be intelligible. Thus 'an Armstrong'—a type of gun much discussed at the turn of the century. But why, in heaven's name, explain Rubens?" Jacques Barzun

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 O 30 '49 1550w

"Mr. Edel has performed a real service to any manager who might be tempted to make an interesting experiment. He has also provided the general public with a thorough introduction to all the dramatic works of one of our greatest men of letters. His volume is not only an amazingly comprehensive labor of love; it is also an intelligent one, wisely shunning the tone of cultish rapture which often does this author in books about him a disservice quite as short-sighted as the general public's indifference to him." Gerald Sykes

+ N Y Times p3 N 20 '49 550w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 25:83 Ja 14 '50 750w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 27 '49 420w

"As a biographical searchlight, Edel's book devaluates the inspirational criticism of James and dispels the legendary. . . The editing has been truly a labor of love, persisted at in the face of great difficulties and of long duration. Like a great detective, he has hunted clues and interested parties until he acquired, first hand from those who knew, James's theatre history." Edwin Clark

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 N 12 '49 900w

"The result of reading this fascinating book is to see how necessary the dramatic years were to James's career as an artist—how he went to the drama as a profound lover even if he pretended to be no more than a philanderer —and to take a very real pleasure in some three or four of the plays." Michael Swan

+ Spec 183:826 D 9 '49 800w

JAMES, HENRY. Ghostly tales; ed. with an introd. by Leon Edel. 765p $5 Rutgers univ. press

49-7759

Contents: The romance of certain old clothes; De Grey: a romance; The last of the Valerii; The ghostly rental; Sir Edmund Orme; Nona Vincent; The private life; Sir Dominick Ferrand; Owen Wingrave; The altar of the dead; The friends of the friends; The turn of the screw; The real right thing; The great good place; Maud-Evelyn; The third person; The beast in the jungle; The jolly corner.

JAMES, HENRY—Continued

Booklist 45:281 Ap 15 '49

Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 60w

Kirkus 17:96 F 15 '49 120w

"One cannot read with pleasure all the stories in the book. But no one who is interested in James can fail to be impressed by the editorial comment that envelopes the stories." F. W. Dupee

+ — Nation 169:16 Jl 2 '49 420w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Mr 13 '49 320w

"A lot of relatively unfamiliar material is included in this anthology, but the most effective haunts turn up in that old landmark, 'The Turn of the Screw.' Mr. Edel's introductory essay takes up, very ably indeed, the psychoanalytical implications of the stories, as well as the James family traits responsible for the author's particular brand of the shudders. A long-term reading project for connoisseurs of the otherworldly."

New Yorker 25:107 Mr 19 '49 100w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:41 Je 25 '49 90w

Time 53:104 Je 13 '49 700w

"Whoever would be aware of the full gamut of James' fiction should know these tales and notes, for they make an important contribution to the portrait of a great novelist whose full stature is only now beginning to be appreciated."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:163 Je '49 300w

JAMES, HENRY, and STEVENSON, ROBERT LOUIS. Henry James and Robert Louis Stevenson; a record of friendship and criticism; ed. with an introd. by Janet Adam Smith [pub. in association with the Classic art company]. 284p il $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 [49-2238]

"This volume contains the correspondence between Stevenson and Henry James, including six previously unpublished letters; the literary controversy in print on the subject of realism vs. romance, which was the occasion of their first interchange; James's two essays on Stevenson; Stevenson's poem about James; and a letter written by James to Mrs. Stevenson after her husband's death." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by C. T. Houpt

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 10 '49 300w

"Miss Janet Adam Smith, the author of the most perceptive life of Stevenson yet published, has put us further in her debt by compiling this record of friendship. . . This book will appeal to all interested in the technique of the novelist, and it should do much to raise Stevenson's unjustly fallen reputation. Who to-day can afford to patronise a novelist to whom James wrote with a copy of The Tragic Muse that he was 'the sole and single Anglo-Saxon capable of perceiving . . . how well it is written.' James was capable of oriental courtesy to his inferiors, but the praise he gives to Stevenson has the directness and warmth of equality." Graham Greene

+ New Statesman & Nation 36:468 N 27 '48 900w

"The letters show a craftsmanship in the writing (James' style so different from Stevenson's, but both so thoroughly accomplished, yet so completely at ease) that makes one realize how completely a lost art letter-writing has become. To read this kind of thing puts one out of temper with the peevish exhibitions of so much contemporary critical discourse. And how wisely, sanely, understandingly, Janet Adam Smith discusses the two authors and their relationship in her introduction." David Daiches

+ N Y Times p8 Je 19 '49 800w

New Yorker 25:116 My 21 '49 140w

"In spite of a common devotion to the 'art' of writing, of fiction in particular, they moved in different paths. Stevenson's romances, for all the style, atmosphere, and charm he gave them, appeal to the juvenile imagination. His reputation cannot be raised by James's bootstraps. But that does not at all detract from the worth of this fascinating record of a friendship. It is an editorial irony, though, that James's intellect and sensibility shine more brilliantly than his friend's." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Je 25 '49 240w

JAMES, SIR WILLIAM MILBURNE. Durable monument: Horatio Nelson. 312p il maps $4 Longmans

B or 92 Nelson, Horatio Nelson, viscount. Great Britain. Navy [49-7918]

A brief biography of Sir Horatio Nelson, the English naval hero. The author gives a resumé of Nelson's affair with Lady Hamilton, but does not credit her with too great an influence on his naval career. Index.

Booklist 45:260 Ap 1 '49

"The sad and pathetically human story of the Sicilian years is frankly and honestly placed in its true perspective, hindering not the final call, still leaving Nelson's last words on the Battleship Victory—'God and my country'—as the true hallmark of his character and service. One closes this volume feeling it to be a truthful and consoling book, one that may well outweigh in general usefulness many of the more discursive volumes." Leila Flower

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 31 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 37:39 Ja 8 '49 650w

"This is a first rate biography, and as with all such biographies, it is a fascinating example of history at its best. Nelson and the British navy have been done a real service by the presentation of unbiased facts in such brilliant fashion. Admiral James may have destroyed many old legends, but he has revived and redecorated, in true colors, one of England's greatest heroes." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 19 '49 600w

"A concise and well-balanced narrative of Nelson's career and an appreciation of his character which, although falling short of being profound or original, are almost wholly acceptable as far as they go. . . It is questionable whether Admiral James's claim to have cleared away the rubbish amounts to very much. But a single volume of three hundred pages necessitates, in any case, a strict concentration on the main events, and leaves little space for the lesser details most open to dispute; so that no revolutionary results have been produced by these methods of selection." G. P. Griggs

+ — Spec 181:566 O 29 '48 950w

Time 53:114 Ap 11 '49 850w

"There was need for a new short biography of Nelson which should, so to speak, bring Southey up to date, and Admiral James's version goes far towards filling that need, for it is eminently readable and of handy compass. But the latter-day biographer, even though he corrects errors of many of his predecessors, ought not to ignore the work of others who have done the same thing. . . The perfect short biography of Nelson has not yet been written, but Sir William James's essay should have a wide appeal."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p627 N 6 '48 470w

JAMES, SIR WILLIAM MILBURNE. Influence of sea power on the history of the British people. 72p $1.50 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

359 Sea power. Great Britain—History, Naval [48-9336]

The Lees Knowles lectures on military history given at Cambridge in 1947. The first traces the pattern of British naval history up to the end of the Napoleonic wars. The third lecture brings the story to June, 1944. The intervening chapter is a personal study of Nelson. Index.

"One of the best features of this book is the emphasis which Admiral James places on the proper study and understanding of history. . . This is an outstanding historical work." J. B. Heffernan

+ Am Hist R 54:918 Jl '49 480w

"This survey, which contrives to be clear and well-balanced in spite of its necessary brevity, establishes beyond doubt the influence of sea power on our ability to wage war. . . [The lecture on Nelson] corresponds almost word for word with passages in the author's recently published biography, and its inclusion here is difficult to justify." G. P. Griggs

+ — Spec 181:782 D 10 '48 550w

"One [lecture was] devoted entirely to a study of Nelson. . . The other two lectures were designed to illustrate that generalization by surveys—perforce greatly condensed—of the wars before Trafalgar and of the two wars of our own time. They seem to bear traces of hasty preparation; as the author is at times carried away by the fascination of the narrative, the story-teller in him prevails over the strategist, and he includes detail irrelevant to his theme, without always verifying his references."

Times [London] Lit Sup p627 N 6 '48 600w

JAMESON, STORM (MRS GUY CHAPMAN). Moment of truth. 179p $2.50 Macmillan

49-7551

A novel of the third World war. The scene is an English airfield after the defeat of all of Europe by the Russians. One last plane, which can take five people, is about to take off. The story is concerned with the struggle for places on that plane.

Booklist 45:186; 210 F 1 '49; F 15 '49

"The varying personal reactions of the characters are exposed with a minimum of emotional display. Similar restraint is shown in the rare incidental references to the unspeakable horrors of atomic warfare taking place to the south. Understatement and the use of inference, are always an effective means of throwing into sharp outline the full significance of a message. They are used here by an author who has turned all of her considerable skill to a study of the crisis which she believes will confront the British people if they enter upon another war. By extension, it is seen that the same crisis will face all mankind, if such a war should come to pass." M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 800w

Kirkus 16:647 D 15 '48 170w

"This is a thought provoking little book because so many people are faced with the necessity of choosing between escape from, or continued life in a defeated country." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 80w

"If it reads like a film trailer it has to be said that the virtues of this book, with its brilliant, disquieting close-ups and its unfaltering technique, are precisely those of a superior film. What it sets out to do could scarcely be done better. But we jostle the technical virtues these days at many a street corner, and the tables of reviewers groan beneath their assault. There is always the feeling that Miss Jameson could produce something better than an upper-middlebrow thriller." Norman Shrapnel

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 1 '49 230w

"The weakness in this novel and interesting device is that the character is too exclusively defined by his choice; the choice in turn, is not demonstrably the logical choice of that character. So that the climax, when it comes, strikes one as arbitrary." John Farrelly

New Repub 120:26 Mr 7 '49 270w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott

— New Statesman & Nation 38:105 Jl 23 '49 180w

"Written with suspense, in Miss Jameson's taut, sensitive prose, 'The Moment of Truth' is an effective novel. It is surprising, however, that it is not even more effective. Perhaps the reason is that the imagined situation itself—Europe and Britain overrun, the West in collapse—makes the ideas or feelings of any individual seem unimportant." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 20 '49 500w

"At their best, there are compassion and authenticity in Miss Jameson's portraits: one is never mistaken about the essence of her characters. Yet one listens to rather than watches them. And, however brilliant the scientist's final speech in defense of freedom of thought, it hardly matches the silent eloquence of Galsworthy's victimized hero of another day, pounding his fists on the wall of his prison cell." Nona Balakian

N Y Times p12 Mr 20 '49 360w

New Yorker 25:90 Mr 5 '49 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 10 '49 390w

"In the human story, all the loose ends are neatly tied, except one. Breuner consistently refuses to depart and leave his wife because life without her is intolerable. At the end he silently changes his mind, and if we enter his thoughts earlier, why not then? But these are insignificant objections to a book which as a piece of craftsmanship is superbly written, and as a discussion of ideas is brilliantly illuminating." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 F 19 '49 700w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques

Spec 182:866 Je 24 '49 500w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p9C Ap 10 '49 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p441 Jl 8 '49 130w

JANELLE, PIERRE. The Catholic reformation. (Science and culture ser) 397p il $4.50 Bruce pub.

270.6 Counter reformation 49-9356

"A history of the Catholic church during the last of the fifteenth and the sixteenth centuries. The author particularizes the abuses that called for a reformation and the way in which individuals and groups, particularly the Society of Jesus, were instrumental in instituting reforms. Contention is that Catholic reformation was underway before the Protestant. For large and special collections." (Booklist) Bibliographies.

Booklist 45:384 Jl 15 '49

"Despite the vast area covered in less than 370 pages, the reader here and there comes upon information not usually circulated. . . But the treatment of some topics is sketchy. . . In view of the type of person who will profit by the reading of this book, it seems unfortunate that the number of English titles in the bibliographies was not increased, even at the expense of eliminating some of the undoubtedly valuable French titles." Joseph McSorley

+ — Cath World 170:155 N '49 300w

"Janelle offers an easy-to-read, irenic, conciliatory, modest yet definitely Catholic narrative of what non-Catholic historians have long been calling Reformation and Counter-Reformation and discussing at much greater length. . . The story of the missions is rather sketchy. One is however pleased to find reference made to the communistic experiment of the Jesuits in Paraguay. . . On the whole, however, this is the best history of the Roman Catholic Church by a Catholic that we have read in some months." C. H. Moehlman

+ — Christian Century 66:1294 N 2 '49 1200w

"This is a most useful book and should be welcomed by all interested in Church history, especially by university and seminary students. . . It can be taken for granted that no single volume, or series of volumes, on

JANELLE, PIERRE—Continued
this great topic will please all who are interested in it as a whole or who have a special interest in particular phases or aspects of it. Some will be critical of the very interesting chapters on art, literature, education, and the different schools of spirituality, and others will disagree with the author's estimate of the relative importance of various forces in the ranks of the Catholic Reformers. If such critics accept this book as a challenge to develop and improve the work of the author they too can render a great service. They have a wide field open to them, but will have to produce something notably good if they wish to equal or supersede this book." F. D. Cohalan

+ Commonweal 50:516 S 2 '49 450w

"This is a scholarly contribution to church history by a Catholic theologian. . . Protestant Church historians will not accept the thesis of the book, but it is a well written and cogently argued presentation, of interest primarily to Church historians."

+ Kirkus 17:293 Je 15 '49 170w

"Interesting and scholarly account . . . The chapters devoted to the influence of the Catholic Reformation on education and scholarship, literature and art are particularly informative. As the first monograph in English upon a complicated and controversial subject, the book deserves a place in the college, university and reference library." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 74:955 Je 15 '49 140w

JANEWAY, MRS ELIZABETH (HALL). Question of Gregory. 309p $3 Doubleday
49-10312

Psychological study of the effects of their only son's death in the war upon John and Ellen Gregory. The death of President Roosevelt a few days after their first blow is too much for John and he enters upon a period of wandering, while Ellen returns to her wealthy family in Connecticut. The scene is Washington, D. C., New England, and Detroit.

— Cath World 170:80 O '49 160w

Kirkus 17:308 Je 15 '49 340w

"Expert characteristizations of conflicting personalities. . . Written with warmth and insight. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 80w

" 'The Question of Gregory' is skilfully written. Rarely does Miss Janeway muff a point or miss an opportunity. But in spite of all the skill and intelligence displayed in it, the novel remains synthetic. It is not the rooted, living, growing thing that a real and deeply felt novel must be. It is a plastic—a piece of ultra-modern plastic of the very best design, with precisely the virtues and the faults of plastic. Its form is neat and tolerant; its surfaces smooth and glossy, unmistakably it is a machine-turned job." F. H. Bullock

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ag 21 '49 1000w

"This is both a superior novel and a superior attempt to assess our times. Since Mrs. Janeway has previously enjoyed both critical and popular success, it is right that she should now be evaluated as a contender for major place among our younger novelists. She writes beautifully, filling her pages with fresh observation." J. A. Michener

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 21 '49 900w

New Yorker 25:64 S 3 '49 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 30 '49 500w

"This is a competently constructed novel. . . There are admirable episodes, one being set in White River Junction, where the wandering Gregory pauses to work in a factory and to come into contact with New England operatives, Cap Richards in particular being three-dimensional and human. The style is everywhere lucid. . . But the author seems to me never to overcome the fundamental ambiguity of the theme." H. M. Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:11 Ag 20 '49 700w

Time 54:65 S 5 '49 500w

JANNEY, RUSSELL. Vision of Red O'Shea; a melodrama in rhyme; woodcut by Hans Alexander Mueller. 48p $1.50 Coward-McCann 811 49-11657

"Written in approximately the rhythm of The Ballad of Reading Gaol, in spirit, also approximately, of one of John Masefield's verse tragedies of the disinherited, the story is set in a Harlem bistro, and extols the love of God for all classes, creeds, sexes and occupations." Kirkus

---

"The author of The Miracle of the Bells has written a melodrama in rhyme this time. Perhaps on the name value, with the incredible success of the novel, this will be off to a big start. But to us it seems a pseudo-religious tear jerker."

— Kirkus 17:570 O 1 '49 130w

"Of interest only to large religious collections as it does not stand up either as poetry or drama." George Freedley

Library J 74:1759 N 15 '49 40w

"The melodrama in rhyme carries conviction of the sincerity the author claims for it, and that it lays a spell upon the reader—which is what the best poets used to do, and what was done superlatively by those two, once not so highly rated by some moderns—Kipling and Coleridge. This reviewer leaves it at that and gives Russell Janney the credit." H. I. B.

N Y Times p56 D 4 '49 200w

Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ja 14 '50 240w

Reviewed by M. Russell

Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 190w

"Not since Edgar Guest lit his Harbor Lights of Home and Robert Service thumped through Songs of a Sourdough has a versifier shown such loving absorption in platitude and meticulous attention to cliché."

— Time 54:114 N 14 '49 280w

JAPAN. Ministry of education. Kokutai no hongi (Cardinal principles of the national entity of Japan) tr. by John Owen Gauntlett; and ed. with an introd. by Robert King Hall. 200p $4 Harvard univ. press

370.952 Japan—Nationality. National characteristics, Japanese

"As the tension grew in Japan in the thirties, the 'ethical' propaganda by the Bureau of Thought Control in the Ministry of Education increased. In 1937 it published a pamphlet called 'Kokutai No Hongi' (Cardinal Principles of the National Entity). This was prepared by fourteen professors working on an original draft by the Professor of Japanese Literature at Tokio Imperial University, and is an official statement on the nature of the Japanese State and destiny. Two million copies were printed, and it was made compulsory reading for school teachers and for pupils in all schools above secondary level. This book has also been edited in English by Mr. Hall." Manchester Guardian

---

"The clarity of the translation makes this brief but comprehensive exposition of the national cult a literary work of charm and interest. . . The book as a whole exhibits the Oriental inclination to state as fact what is known to be as yet unrealized but is believed to be capable of realization. Its publication in translation, with an explanatory introduction, footnotes, and seven appendices, is a valuable contribution to our understanding of mass psychology in Japan." H. S. Quigley

Am Pol Sci R 43:1070 O '49 380w

"Any list of the half dozen most important books of the twentieth century almost certainly should include Kokutai No Hongi, the latest and (it is to be hoped) the most short-lived of the 'sacred books of the East.' . . A more thoroughgoing statement of the charter of jingoism would be difficult to imagine. The editor's introduction, textual footnotes, and seven appendices provide useful aids in understanding not only the document itself but also its relations to the language, to religion, to education, and to the present military government."

Am Soc R 14:570 Ag '49 200w

"'Kokutai no Hongi,' an official prewar textbook of Shinto philosophy, extolling nationalism and militarism, still merits careful study by the serious student of modern Japan. For while the naive Shinto mythology is today discredited, and while militarism and nationalism have at least gone into hiding, the obscure, mystical concepts embodied in the book, which borrows heavily from Buddhism and Confucianism, still lie behind the thinking of many contemporary Japanese." Takashi Oka
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 3 '49 800w

Current Hist 17:37 Jl '49 50w

"It is a far more full-blooded affair than the 'Shushin-Sho,' and shows the Japanese at their worst. . . What would be of interest is to know how seriously the book, with its mental cloudiness, was taken by educated Japanese. Mr. Hall says little about this. . . A curious thing is that nearly all the copies of the book have disappeared during the occupation." G. W.
Manchester Guardian p4 O 25 '49 230w

JARECKA, LOUISE (LLEWELLYN) (MME TADEUSZ JARECKI). Made in Poland; living traditions of the land; il. by M. S. Nowicki. 289p $3.50 Knopf

914.38 Poland—Civilization 49-8468

The American-born wife of the Polish musician, Tadeusz Jarecki, presents the story of the Polish people, their customs and arts and crafts. Includes chapters on festivals, marriage customs, weaving, ceramics, music, cookery, and needlework. Altho not intentionally historical the contributions of ancient Poland are considered. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:297 My 1 '49

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 28 '49 210w

"This is a notable addition to a series of books on national arts." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:290 Jl '49 90w

"There is only incidental historical significance, and nothing of political or contemporary social significance, but the feel of the life, the music, the arts, the folk customs, and their expression in native crafts makes an informative and often moving book. Fairly solid reading, but the mid teens and upper teens and young adults should find plenty of reference value here."
+ Kirkus 17:210 Ap 15 '49 150w

"Delightful line drawings by M. P. Nowicki have delicacy and imagination. . . For adults and young people's departments in larger libraries." Siri Andrews
+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 130w

"Altogether this is an admirable book. Strictly speaking, a review of it does not belong in these pages since only four of its thirty chapters deal with music. It is to be hoped, however that the review will bring the book to the attention of some who might otherwise have missed it. What we have here is a political and cultural history of Poland written for young people. The literary style is unusually fine, being lively and vivid without a trace of 'sugar-coating.' The book contains a wealth of factual information, with fascinating anecdotes and folk tales interspersed." Virginia Cunningham
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:625 S '49 240w

"Mrs. Jarecka has written a joyous record of a truly gifted people, who have survived wars and partition, a people temperamental, dramatic and invincible. . . It is obviously a book for the older of the young readers, and for adults, too." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 5 '49 350w

"Mme. Jarecka brings to this study a scholarly knowledge and a profound admiration for the achievements of the Polish people. . . So much information is included here that it is not always easy reading, but readers of 12 and up (and adults, too) who are interested in how other people live will find this a fascinating record. The stylized illustrations done in the Polish manner by the Nowickis, a husband-and-wife team, are equally interesting and very decorative." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p14 My 29 '49 220w

New Yorker 25:185 D 3 '49 50w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 120w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 40w

JARRATT, ELIZABETH ANN. Smart Mr Tim; pictures by Nell Stolp Smock. [24p] $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury

49-9808

Mr Tim is a shiny black cocker spaniel who lives with Mrs Green. Mr Tim can be smart, helpful and brave about some things but when it comes to a bath, poor Mr Tim is only a much distressed little dog.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 50w

Kirkus 17:426 Ag 15 '49 60w

"Most appealing pictures and simple text. Ages 4-6. Recommended." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 40w

"This is an excellent story for youngsters who are timid with animals. Full-page, two-color illustrations that run the gamut of Tim's expressions make the book a pleasant addition on the shelf of any 3 to 5 year old." Lillian Gerard
+ N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 130w

Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 40w

JEANNERET-GRIS, CHARLES EDOUARD (LE CORBUSIER, pseud). Concerning town planning; tr. by Clive Entwistle from the French. 127p il $2.75 Yale univ. press

711 City planning 48-8330

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The effect on the reviewer was to arouse in him great respect for Le Corbusier's originality and incisiveness, and his unremitting warfare on stodgy conservatism in the planning of towns, and yet to leave him totally unconvinced as to the practicality of the new ideas proposed." William Anderson
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:166 F '49 550w

Reviewed by L. S. Greene
Ann Am Acad 262:232 Mr '49 400w

"His book is definitely French and nationalistic in its tone. A reader who had not been in Paris would find the first part most difficult to understand. This is partly due to the local character of the discussion, plus the rather scattered and incoherent statements based on a series of impetuous and staccato phrases which have always been characteristic of Corbu's style. Part of the problem is that he always suffers through translation. His French is exceedingly vivid and he uses many words which, because of their idiomatic character, cannot be easily translated." Carl Feiss
Sat R of Lit 32:25 Ap 23 '49 900w

JEFFARES, ALEXANDER NORMAN. W. B. Yeats, man and poet. 365p il $5 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Yeats, William Butler 49-10491

"Neither a biography nor a critical study, but a book in which the poet's life and works are examined side by side, in order that they may explain each other, for without this kaleidoscopic view, so Dr. Jeffares maintains, both are liable to be misunderstood." (Manchester Guardian) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:62 O 15 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun N 28 '49 60w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 600w

JEFFARES, A. N.—Continued

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

Reviewed by Vivian Mercier
Commonweal 51:48 O 21 '49 700w

"Packed with facts and documented with over 800 notes, often from unpublised sources, it does not make easy reading, for the details, however relevant, sometimes choke rather than clinch the argument. But if the reader is content to work slowly through this rich storehouse of material he should be amply rewarded, for he will find that Dr. Jeffares illumines a great many hitherto dark passages and brings the man before us where we had formerly only seen words."
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 3 '49 400w

New Repub 121:20 N 7 '49 180w

"It is our singular good fortune that Dr. Jeffares, who lectures in English at the University of Groningen, interested himself in Yeats. He writes with refreshing detachment, quite as if he were the postmaster of a village inhabited by people with rather odd names and were tucking the mail into sundry boxes. Nobody else has seen so much unpublished material by and about the poet, generously made available by Mrs. Yeats and others. . . I believe that any one who thinks that Yeats is a great poet will dwell over every page of it, questioning, comparing, enjoying and sometimes doubting." G. N. Shuster
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 D 4 '49 900w

"I have before me an extraordinary book. Extraordinary because its format is among the esthetic horrors of our time. This is all to the bad—but the actual reading of the book is another matter. Since Yeats' death in 1939 —and there have been two other biographies of Yeats and many commentaries on his poems —this is the first to speak with full authority on the elusive relationship between the man himself and the poetry that made him one of the three or four great writers of his age." Horace Gregory
+ — N Y Times p4 D 25 '49 1050w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 150w

"The most recent writer on the poet is too humble in the presence of his subject. The deification of a man brings him out of the range of healthy, human criticism, makes him a bone of contention for violent partisans. . . The best thing about Dr. Jeffares' book is that it is mostly quotations, a sort of bedside book of Yeats' prose and verse held together by a running commentary that is generally a paraphrase of the unquoted bits. The quotations are splendid, and one cannot dip here without being forced to admit that Yeats was both a great man and a great poet." Patrick Kavanagh
+ — Spec 182:650 My 13 '49 750w

"Dr. Jeffares is less attracted than others by the deliberate sophistry in which Yeats indulged throughout his life, but realizes the artistic value of all that speculative ingenuity. His book presents no difficulties to the general reader and has one pleasant novelty. At the end of each chapter there are small black-and-white sketches of places associated with the memory of the poet, such as the Rectory at Drumcliffe, Riversdale House, and the Lake Isle of Innisfree."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p363 Je 3 '49 1700w

JEFFRIES, GRAHAM MONTAGUE (PETER BOURNE, BRUCE GRAEME, BRUCE JEFFRIES, pseuds). Flames of empire. 434p $3.50 Putnam
49-10973

Historical novel based on the story of the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. The hero is an American from New Orleans who narrowly escaped being shot by Santa Anna when he was a boy. Martin Ravenel, partly educated in Mexico, became a Confederate agent, became a friend of Maximilian, and met a tragic death because of that friendship.

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 25 '49 190w

"The story is overcrowded, the canvas too broad, the emotions too surface charged for reality; the characters are stock characters. But the author does succeed in taking the reader behind the scenes for the manipulation of the puppets of fortune. Not as freshly conceived a novel as his first, Drums of Destiny, though perhaps a better written book."
— + Kirkus 17:438 Ag 15 '49 280w

"Well-written, detailed historical novel. . . Will undoubtedly make the best-seller list. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:1461 O 1 '49 80w

"Certainly backing the Mexican enterprise was one of the Confederacy's more jejune strokes, but our author makes it respectably reasonable. And to make Maximilian a sympathetic character is even more difficult, but this book does well enough at that. . . Any reader knows how the history turned out; the novelist's business is to give it the feel of flesh and blood and a sense of participation. If that is the measure of such a romance as this, 'Flames of Empire' is a good one." E. B. Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 O 2 '49 600w

"The bare bones of the Maximilian story are a moving, almost tragic record of one man's egocentricity, weakness and perhaps criminous ambition at the expense of a nation. Mr. Bourne, the author of a previous novel about the Haitian Revolution, does little to animate those bones." R. C. Lewis
— N Y Times p30 S 25 '49 360w

"The amazing thing about a book like this is the accuracy of the historical information crammed into its pages—which yet does not manage to prevent its historical figures from appearing about as real as its fictional cardboard hero and his beloved." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:14 N 26 '49 370w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p7C N 6 '49 240w

JENKINS, ELIZABETH. Jane Austen. 410p $4 Pellegrini & Cudahy
B or 92 Austen, Jane 49-48867

"A full-fledged biography and a book of criticism as well. Though she tells substantially nothing new, she has performed a useful service in pulling all loose threads together, giving as faithful a portrait of a woman as the relatively meager material will allow and at the same time providing an adequate background against which the elusive personality of Jane Austen moves, thinks and observes." (Commonweal) Index.

Booklist 46:157 Ja 1 '50

"Miss Jenkins' critical biography is a fitting book for all potential Janeites, and to such it may be heartily recommended." John Cournos
+ Commonweal 51:220 N 25 '49 430w

"While there is no feeling of particular brilliance, it is satisfactory to have such a meticulous, attentive biography."
Kirkus 17:498 S 1 '49 150w

"With practically no external events to dwell upon, Miss Jenkins has ample elbow-room to develop her biography along other lines. She is wisely skeptical as to the amount of autobiographical allusion to be detected in any of the six novels or in the fragments; and she does not pretend to possess any key wherewith to unlock the heart which Miss Austen kept hidden from the world. But she sets this quiet and rather mysterious figure against a background painted with elaborate care." S. C. Chew
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 18 '49 1150w

"The most readable, scholarly, lovingly documented biography of that author that I have had the good fortune to come across. When I say 'scholarly' I do not mean that it is pedantic or swarming with footnotes. On the contrary, this book is as ingratiating as any novel; no smell of the lamp lingers on any page." Phyllis McGinley
+ N Y Times p5 O 23 '49 700w

"Miss Jenkins' impeccable presentation will undoubtedly make this biography as indispensable to American Janeites as it has been for some time to those on the home ground."
+ New Yorker 25:132 N 26 '49 240w

"Miss Jenkins has, I think, provided an ideal introduction to the life Jane Austen lived and the lives she created. More than an introduction, she has given us a critical biography to which we may return profitably long after we are fairly familiar with the ground she covers. Her book, in short, is just about what a book of its kind should be. Her knowledge of Miss Austen's life is as thorough as the available facts permit; she conveys her information with charm, economy, and an exact sense of proportion." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 D 10 '49 1000w

JENKINS, GLADYS GARDNER, and others. These are your children; how they develop and how to guide them. 192p il $2.50 Scott
136.7 Children—Management. Growth
49-4485

"[This book] describes the typical behavior of normal, everyday children from five years of age to adolescence. To make the material presented to parents seem more realistic, case histories of children are used to illustrate typical behavior at each age level. Photographs of children in home, school, and neighborhood settings, doing things characteristic of their ages, add another lifelike touch to the scientific material." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"Professional workers as well as parents can verify what to expect and aim for if equipped with a quick-reference manual such as this. The authors have used cross-sectional studies, i. e., comparisons of large groups at certain age levels and so-called 'longitudinal studies' of individual children over several years. These are compact, not presented with the multiplicity of scrutinized detail characteristic of psychiatric-educational case histories, and here the studies are admirably illustrated by photographs." M. C. Gould
+ N Y Times p11 Jl 31 '49 450w

Reviewed by E. B. Hurlock
Sat R of Lit 32:38 S 10 '49 260w

"Warmly written, delightfully readable."
+ School & Society 70:176 S 10 '49 20w

JENNISON, KEITH WARREN. New York and the state it's in; stories and picture arr. by [the author]. 111p $2.95 Sloane
917.47 New York (city)—Views. New York (state)—Views 49-11859

Photographs and twenty-four anecdotes about the Empire state and its people.

"New York and the State It's In is fresh and amusing and the sort of volume that invites return visits and repeat chuckles." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 11 '49 170w

Kirkus 17:644 N 15 '49 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 4 '49 300w

"Mr. Jennison's technique of picture-with-brief-comment is disappointing. There are some good shots—the best of them rural—but how much it would all mean to one who doesn't know the state is a question the present reviewer cannot answer." Allen Taylor
— + N Y Times p13 D 25 '49 80w

"Each photo here is captioned with a short anecdote. The former are fresh and clear; the latter cliches. . . Only a bad case of nostalgia for the East Coast should bring you to this one, however." A. K.
— + San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 27 '49 110w

"The method, if deftly followed, produces a unity and sequence rare in picture books, and the unity in this instance is not disturbed by the fact that the Empire State Building and an upstate silo stand cheek by jowl. This book will be equally at home and equally appreciated on a Third Avenue window-seat or in a Schaghticoke front parlor." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Ja 21 '50 130w

"The present volume is somewhat less intriguing because of an attempt to combine New York City with New York State by homespun humor, making a mismatched team that simply won't pull together. As always, Mr. Jennison has chosen some excellent photographs, and his anecdotes have the necessary popular appeal." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 60w

JEPSON, SELWYN. Golden dart. 221p $2.25 Doubleday
49-10144

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 26 '49 110w

"Romantic values here, which include a certain foolhardiness as well as glamor."
+ Kirkus 17:283 Je 1 '49 80w

"Entertaining romance and riddles." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 14 '49 110w

"This tale of derring-do is told by one Eve Gill. . . Taking the law into her own hands, she leads the field in exploits of mind and body that may tax your credulity to the limit, but you will certainly not be bored—and, as you hold on to your hat, you will still have time to admire the author's adroitness with characterization and dialogue." E. B.
+ N Y Times p21 Ag 14 '49 180w

"Diverting, in a haphazard way."
New Yorker 25:68 S 3 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 11 '49 60w

Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ag 20 '49 40w

JEREMY, SISTER MARY. Dialogue with an angel. 47p $2 Devin-Adair 811

A volume of poems by a Roman Catholic nun, a member of the English department at Rosary College, River Forest, Illinois.

"Sister Jeremy's work commands respect by its dignity, grace, and elevation." Milton Crane
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 14 '49 380w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 18 '49 50w

"Among the distinctive marks of a good lyric are tension of rhetoric, musical identity, the single, sustained flight, and the half-heard overtones which flow on like the ripples of a pond where a stone is dropped. In the majority of the poems in this book, Sister Mary Jeremy makes her lyric meet the test. . . There are a few technical faults in the book. Sister Jeremy has repetitious pet words such as 'fainting' and 'remembered,' but they are the minor blemishes of a fine book." A. M. Sullivan
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Ag 20 '49 400w

JESSEY, CORNELIA. Teach the angry spirit. 249p $3 Crown
49-10547

Life in the Mexican quarter of Los Angeles forms the background of this novel. The two oldest Garcia children, Angel, who wants to be an actor, and Mercy, who wants to forget and deny her Mexican origin, are the central characters. The time is during the recent war, and the zoot-suit riots are the climax of the book.

Booklist 46:63 O 15 '49

JESSEY, CORNELIA—Continued

"A warm understanding of the ways of a Mexican community and its family life and an interest in the problem at hand give an honesty to what is not a top flight novel."

+ — Kirkus 17:480 S 1 '49 160w

"The dilemma of the Mexican in California is presented clearly and at times dramatically, but the story is not well written and the frequent inclusion of Spanish words and phrases adds to the difficult style. However, the book should be recommended for it will help toward understanding one of our minority groups." Anne Whitmore

— + Library J 74:1322 S 15 '49 100w

"'Teach the Angry Spirit' is, obviously, a novel of anger and protest, its plot is conceived and worked out with balance and intelligence. Unfortunately, however, Mrs. Jessey's prose is merely standard, adding nothing to what she has to say, flattening out her effect, and her constant and unnecessary use of Spanish phrases is often irritating. 'Teach the Angry Spirit' is a good and sensible book. It is not, however, skillful enough to be as deeply moving as its subject suggests."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 20 '49 410w

"A simply told, swiftly paced and profoundly moving story. . . No book with such a theme can escape social overtones; but despite the author's concern with some of our most difficult problems, this is neither a tract nor an editorial. Her weapons are those of the storyteller: an engrossing narrative, a cast of fascinating characters, the translation of group tensions into personal terms." Aaron Traister

+ N Y Times p6 O 2 '49 320w

"An honest novel, a story that will carry the reader along with it in spite of the author's often innocent awkwardnesses." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 12 '49 750w

"'Teach the Angry Spirit' is a rather repetitive piece of fiction, not very well organized by any means. To this reader's mind it suffers from the continuous use of Spanish phrases which, meant to give great realism to the dialogue, only mar it. In short, the reader of this first novel will be interested in what its author has to tell but scarcely fascinated by the means she employs to tell it." Robert Pick

— + Sat R of Lit 32:17 O 1 '49 440w

JEWETT, A. C. An American engineer in Afghanistan; from the letters and notes of [the author] ed. by Marjorie Jewett Bell. 335p il $5 Univ. of Minn.

915.8 Afghanistan 48-11490

Letters and explanatory notes recording the experiences of an American in Afghanistan from 1911 thru 1918. Illustrated with photographs. Glossary.

Reviewed by R. H. Heindel

Ann Am Acad 264:138 Jl '49 290w

"These letters and notes . . . are a worth while contribution to an understanding of people and conditions in a remote area since they give details of habits and customs that no doubt persist today. May be advisable for large libraries only."

Booklist 45:208 F 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 28:169 O '49 10w

"Changes have come to Afghanistan with the years. It is now a constitutional monarchy and a member of the United Nations. But complete change comes slowly in the East, and much of what Jewett noted still remains. Simply written, in matter-of-fact prose, this volume will have importance as a documentary of recent yesterdays in that forbidden land." H. A. Littledale

+ N Y Times p25 Ja 23 '49 430w

Reviewed by Hassoldt Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:26 Mr 5 '49 650w

"This narrative, embellished with many fine photographs, is composed of a diary and of letters to the author's niece, who is also his posthumous editor. Off to a slow start, the story mounts in pace as it unfolds, the subject matter becomes less trivial, and local color is, eventually, laid on with bold strokes. . . Unfortunately for the reader, a superfluity of foreign words in the text necessitates constant reference to the glossary of Persian terms."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:181 Je '49 280w

JEWETT, ELEANORE MYERS. Mystery at Boulder point; il. by Jay Hyde Barnum. 281p $2.50 Viking 49-11397

Mystery story for grades five to seven.

Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:531 N '49 70w

"Plot far-fetched though good reading; dialogue uneven and ragged."

Kirkus 17:473 S 1 '49 160w

"Will keep readers of 9 to 12 absorbed." L. R. Davis

+ N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 180w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 13 '49 320w

"This is an unusual story, well written, alive with the salty atmosphere of the New England Coast, peopled with characters that ring true." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 N 12 '49 230w

"Fine human and family relationships give added value to a well-written mystery."

+ Wis Lib Bul p11 N '49

JEWKES, JOHN. Ordeal by planning. 248p $3.75 Macmillan

338.91 Great Britain—Economic policy. Industry and state 48-4871

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Professor Jewkes' book is a politico-economic tract, effective in its purpose of revealing the seamier side of planning from the British record, and kept on a high level of polemical morality." Redvers Opie

Am Econ R 39:529 Mr '49 700w

"Much of the discussion either misses the point or betrays a lamentable blindness of view. Thus, when the author states that 'unemployment of five or six per cent should not be a matter for concern,' it is pertinent to observe that it concerns very vitally those who are included within that number, and their families. Furthermore, what is to be said of the statement that 'no planned economy has yet operated without suppressing free speech, destroying representative government, robbing the consumer of free choice, and virtually abolishing private property'? The experiences of Sweden, Norway and New Zealand, quite apart from Britain herself, are an adequate answer to such silly exaggerations." Leslie Lipson

— Am Pol Sci R 43:383 Ap '49 500w

"Ordeal By Planning deserves serious consideration. Its 'solutions' of our economic ills, such as complete reliance upon central financial devices to do away with the problem of unemployment, may lack originality and be oversimplified, but the book's central message deserves attention." S. A. Levitan

Ann Am Acad 263:235 My '49 600w

Foreign Affairs 27:341 Ja '49 20w

Reviewed by George Soule

Nation 168:447 Ap 16 '49 1550w

JOAD, CYRIL EDWIN MITCHINSON. Decadence; a philosophical inquiry. 430p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

901 Civilization—Philosophy 49-8338

"The central theme of this [book] is: whether, in its present phase, Western Civilization shows marked symptoms of decadence. The answer is a decided Yes. The author approaches his subject from a definite viewpoint—the classical and high conception of philosophy as guide to life. . . And wherein lie the remedies? Undoubtedly, in the recognition that man is spirit as well as body, that there are objective standards; that there is an ideal structure in thought, art, and morals, which in one sense, is more than human." (Churchman) Index.

"Comprehensive, penetrating, and lucid inquiry." J. A. Leighton + Churchman 163:17 Ag '49 500w

"This is an erudite, original, yet singularly earnest plea. . . An interesting book of substance which must be read to discover the author's use of terms such as 'object' 'dropping of the object' and 'decadence'. Recommended." G. O. Kelly
+ Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Randall
+ N Y Times p15 Jl 24 '49 1000w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 11 '49 200w

"Though the book is a jeremiad, it is that odd sort of lamentation which it is a pleasure to read. Joad's irrepressible gusto and his gift for clear and easy writing make him unfailingly interesting." Brand Blanchard
+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 Jl 16 '49 950w

JOBE, MRS MABEL LYON. Handbook of day-camping. 189p il $3 Assn. press

796.54 Camping 49-9001

Information on the organization and operating of a day-camp for children. Contains advice on programs and activities. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 45:331 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 20w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY. Department of writing, speech and drama. Lectures in criticism [by] R. P. Blackmur [and others] introd. by Huntington Cairns. 209p $3.50 Pantheon bks.

801 Literary criticism 49-8281

"The six lectures in this volume were delivered at a symposium held at Johns Hopkins a year ago. In the introduction Huntington Cairns states its general problem: an inquiry into the bases of modern criticism. John Crowe Ransom's paper on Aristotle and Allen Tate's on Longinus reexamine the two great documents of classical criticism. Herbert Read, in a heavily annotated paper, traces the influence on Coleridge's criticism of his intense interest in philosophy and metaphysics. Henri Peyre's paper looks ahead to the future, asking critics to devote themselves to writers of their own time, and Benedetto Croce's contribution, 'The Condition of Criticism in Italy,' looks to the past, really, for it is mostly about the forerunners to his own theory of esthetics. Finally, R. P. Blackmur's 'A Burden for Critics' calls for modern criticism to enlarge its scope, and to add to analysis, elucidation, and comparison the important function of judgment based on rational standards." Sat R of Lit

"Like most lectures, these deserve study on the part of those who are interested in the subject, for they do not make easy reading. Doubtless, they seemed more flavorful when delivered by the eminent persons who conceived them. With one exception, they are aimed at an academic audience and will seem relatively obscure to those who are not familiar with Aristotle, Longinus, Coleridge, and De Sanctis (examined by Messrs. Ransom, Tate, Read, and Croce, respectively). Students of criticism, on the other hand, will find in these discussions important conclusions which they can ill afford to overlook. The clearest and most appealing lecture for the general reader is 'The Criticism of Contemporary Writing,' by M. Peyre." C. T. Houpt
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 22 '49 450w

Reviewed by F. O. Mattheissen
+ New Repub 120:21 Je 6 '49 1350w

"Although the lectures are uniformly excellent, one must suppose, in the absence of any indication to the contrary, that the critics, whose main purpose in meeting was to see if they could draw up a list of critical principles acceptable to them all, departed Johns Hopkins in the probable manner of their arrival—by separate and distinct trains."
New Yorker 25:105 Ap 2 '49 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 22 '49 200w

"The level of these papers varies. At their best they flash with acute insights into critical matters, at their worst they are exhibits of what is wrong with criticism today." Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ap 30 '49 200w

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. Dilemma of postwar Germany. (Reference shelf) 304p $1.50 Wilson, H.W.

943.086 Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany. Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 48-8428

"Much in the postwar policies undertaken in Germany has proved to be highly controversial and debatable. The leading problems—zonal divisions, reparations, deindustrialization, decartelization, reestablishment of a stable economy, denazification, reeducation—have been dealt with by authorities of varying points of view. The readings presented here have been chosen out of the mass of discussion to furnish background material for better general understanding of the problem as a whole and for more specialized study of various aspects." (Pref) Bibliography.

Booklist 45:69 O 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '49

School & Society 69:47 Ja 15 '49 50w

Social Studies 40:144 Mr '49 10w

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. Federal world government. (Reference shelf) 280p $1.50 Wilson, H.W.

321.04 International federation 48-8986

A selection of articles on the central theme of a world government, including contributions by Walter Lippmann, Charles A. Beard, J. P. Warburg, Robert M. Hutchins, John La Farge, General Marshall, John F. Dulles, Warren Austin, and others. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:105 N 15 '48

Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 50w

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. Should the Communist party be outlawed? (Reference shelf) 313p $1.50 Wilson, H.W.

329 Communist party of America. Communism—U.S. 49-9541

"Follows format and organization of previous volumes in this series. Emphasis here is not on Communism per se but on the party and the question of whether it is to be allowed free operation in this country. Presents a series of general discussions on the party in America, then reprints arguments for and arguments against outlawing." (Library J) Bibliography.

"The general discussion opens with an article from the Stanford Law Review summarizing present statutes and proposals for controlling Communists. Several of the selections do not deal directly with the issue, but are germane because they consider whether the CP is Moscow-controlled, whether it seeks violent revolution, and other questions relevant to the issue. This cannot be said for all of Part I, which is a catch-all for articles concerning the CP and the wisdom of witch-hunts. . . Miss Johnsen's first-rate bibliography suggests that she could have selected articles more germane to her question." R. C. Silva
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:1065 O '49 300w

Booklist 45:395 Jl 15 '49

Current Hist 17:98 Ag '49 40w

"Not essential." R. E. Kingery
Library J 74:1028 Jl '49 140w

JOHNSON, ALLAN CHESTER, and WEST, LOUIS CAULTON. Byzantine Egypt: economic studies. 344p $5 Princeton univ. press

330.962 Egypt—Antiquities. Egypt—Economic conditions 49-8592

"Under the four principal topics of land, people, defense, and taxation, the authors present more or less detailed analyses of economic materials found in papyri, literature, and excavations from the late fourth to the mid seventh century. The materials are often fragmentary and frequently incapable of being dated more precisely than within a certain century; but from the mass emerge the practices and trends current in this section of the Empire as its own particular economic problems made it less Roman, Greek, or Byzantine and more Egyptian." (Ann Am Acad) The period covered is from the reforms to Diocletian in 297 to the Arab conquest of Egypt in 641.

"This is by no means a mere collection and analysis of economic data, but a study of challenging interest both to papyrologists and all other students of the Late Roman Empire, since the general picture of economic conditions in Byzantine Egypt presented by the authors differs in many important aspects from that hitherto generally accepted. . . Although greatly impressed by the arguments of the authors, the reviewer is not wholly convinced of the validity of all of their generalization, in particular their favorable picture of economic conditions in the Byzantine Empire. On this, and on other points, further investigation is called for." A. E. R. Boak

+ — Am Hist R 55:106 O '49 500w

"As the editors state in their Preface, a thorough economic study of Byzantine Egypt has yet to be made. Such a study, when it is accomplished, will undoubtedly owe much to the present volume, which is an invaluable source for the materials of the period published up to 1946. . . This study includes a good index and an excellent bibliography. It will prove very useful to the student of Byzantine Egypt or of economic conditions in the pre-Islamic Eastern Empire." M. E. Nickerson

+ Ann Am Acad 265:198 S '49 280w

JOHNSON, ALVIN WALTER, and YOST, FRANK H. Separation of church and state in the United States. 279p $4.50 Univ. of Minn.

377.1 Church and state in the U.S. Church and education. Religious education. Bible in the schools 48-11603

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The concerted drive being carried on today to breach the wall of separation between church and state gives to the book of Johnson and Yost a relevance and an urgency that should make it a welcome addition to one's library." M. R. Konvitz

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:376 Ap '49 700w

Reviewed by O. C. Cox
Am Soc R 14:437 Je '49 360w

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
Ann Am Acad 263:257 My '49 420w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 49:596 Mr 25 '49 550w

Reviewed by Paul Blanshard
Nation 169:285 S 17 '49 50w

"It is of sufficient value in identifying and presenting a contemporary problem that it warrants a careful reading, even by those persons who are familiar with the earlier editions." G. W. Brown

+ School R 57:181 Mr '49 800w

"The main contribution of the book lies in bringing together in convenient form an immense amount of factual information culled from the scattered sources indicated. Marred but occasionally by obiter dicta of the authors, the book should be especially valuable to school administrators, church officials, editors, and others who find themselves in need of a composite treatise on its important subject."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:89 Mr '49 350w

JOHNSON, CHARLES. Growth of twelve masterpieces. 106p il col pl $5 Chanticleer

759 Paintings [48-10124]

"Author, official lecturer at the National Gallery in London, develops his theme by recourse to 'works by the artists' predecessors that influenced them or preparatory sketches or earlier versions by themselves.' Pictures selected for discussion range from religious paintings beginning with the fourteenth century Ugolino Da Siena 'Deposition' to 'La Montagne Sainte Victoire' of Cèzanne." Library J

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '49

"Admirable gallery-talks preserved in type. Most useful for the ubiquitous club member struggling to prepare a paper. Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:894 Je 1 '49 110w

"In general, Mr. Johnson provides a useful summary of all the available information about each picture and his apt comparisons of various pictures are made with the help of an excellent choice of reproductions."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p276 My 15 '48 340w

JOHNSON, CHARLES. Language of painting. 276p pl $6.50 Cambridge

750 Painting. Paintings. Art criticism [49-10192]

Designed to explain the art of painting to those who know something about it, and want to know more. Illustrated with examples of European painting from Duccio to Renoir. Most of the paintings are in the National Gallery, London, where the author has been official lecturer for seventeen years. Index.

"Sensible and nicely detailed study." Lincoln Kirstein

+ New Repub 121:26 D 12 '49 90w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
New Statesman & Nation 38:340 S 24 '49 90w

"Mr. Johnson has brought to his task a wide cultural background and an extensive knowledge of art history; and he has made his book readable without sacrifice of scholarly standards." Howard Devree

+ N Y Times p25 Ag 21 '49 320w

"Mr. Johnson knows what he is talking about and he writes with rare clarity. I can think of no term or idea frequently encountered in art literature which he leaves undefined. Every generality is illuminated by a pointed reference to one or more of the eighty well-chosen reproductions in the book. . . An invaluable handbook." L. R. Sander

+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 O 1 '49 200w

JOHNSON, EDNA, and others, comps. Anthology of children's literature. 2d ed 1114p il $5.50; il. in full color by N. C. Wyeth $7.50 Houghton

808.8 48-7250

"New and revised edition [which] covers all children's literature from the earliest to present-day books. The different types are appraised critically and examples given. Selected bibliography; index by type, grade, age, author, and selection. Graded reading list and biographies of authors. Children's illustrators are included and a section has been added on stories and music." (Library J) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1935.

Booklist 45:196 F 1 '49

"This is a new and revised edition of a book that is indispensable to all who deal with children's books. A mere glance at the contents will substantiate that statement. . . This book is a treasure chest for ready reference and a fine tool for book selection. . . Recommended for all libraries and book stores and for parents who wish to guide the reading of their children. The format with fine pictures of N. C. Wyeth equals the excellence of the text." M. D. Read

+ Library J 74:134 Ja 15 '49 200w

"The one thing against it is its heft. Everything else is for it: its collection of the best in children's literature, thoughtfully selected, attractively arranged, brightly illustrated. Many parents, many teachers, many fond aunts and uncles, will be grateful for this revision of a volume that seems the complete answer to the demand, 'Read me a story!' " Eleanor Breed

+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 14 '48 250w

School & Society 67:431 Je 5 '48 10w

Wis Lib Bul 45:51 Mr '49

JOHNSON, GERALD WHITE. Our English heritage. (Peoples of America ser) 253p $3.50 Lippincott

973 U.S.—History. U.S.—Civilization. British in the U.S. 49-2350

A survey of the donations England made to the early development of the United States. Beginning with Raleigh and the early colonists the author writes of the first-comers—the expendables, who made the beachheads, then of the indispensables, artisans and tradesmen, and finally of the gentlemen of quality who brought over English ideas of law and government. These chapters are followed by chapters on the institutions that came from England in the fields of language, law, religion, the arts, sciences, and philosophy. Index.

Booklist 45:365; 374 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by Robert Lasch

Chicago Sun Ag 16 '49 450w

"After the manner of the age, Mr. Johnson is journalistic and exaggerative in style (he compares Sir Walter Raleigh with Dutch Schultz and dubs the Earls of Essex and Leicester 'swaggering buckos'), but beyond his prowess as an entertainer, he makes a serious and instructive attempt to grapple with a great problem of American history, taking a worthy place in the Peoples of America series." Henry Sowerby

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 25 '49 1250w

"Effective in its simplicity, directness of approach and 'Modern English' style, this book is absorbing and challenging throughout. Every chapter is rich in suggestiveness, for the author, like all intelligent writers, does not tell us all he knows." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ag 21 '49 1600w

"Perhaps the most serious inadequacy of the book is chronological—Mr. Johnson's ignoring of the nineteenth century. . . But an appreciation of the continuing impact of Britain would require another volume, and it is ungracious to ask for more than Mr. Johnson has given us in the space allotted to him. What he has given us is all to the good." H. S. Commager

+ — N Y Times p6 Ag 28 '49 1200w

New Yorker 25:108 S 24 '49 220w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 550w

"Mr. Johnson has approached his formidable task with gusto, and has written a long essay that is interesting from beginning to end. He has subjected himself to two limitations which seem rather unfortunate: he deals with the English alone of the British stocks, and he keeps pretty rigidly to the colonial period. . . Within its limits, however, the book is informed, urbane, and sparkling. It can touch only the higher spots of the subject, but it touches them deftly and expertly. Its essays on the language, the laws, the religious faith, the arts, and the sciences that the English transplanted to America are accurate as well as penetrating." Allan Nevins

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:15 Ag 20 '49 1400w

JOHNSON, GYNETH YOUNG. How the donkeys came to Haiti, and other tales; retold; il. by Angelo di Benedetto. 87p $2.50 Devin-Adair

398.2 Folklore—Haiti 48-7727

"Retells folk tales which probably came from Africa long ago, and have with the years acquired Spanish and French embellishments. They are replete with demons, people turning into donkeys or other animals, children eaten by werewolves, with a few tamer tales such as 'How the Peacock Lost His Voice.' " San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 46:190 F 1 '50

"Twelve Haitian folk tales are here retold with much of the idiomatic and melodic expression of the native speech, while the stories themselves have an exotic quality, lacking the sly humor so often characterizing tales from less intense peoples."

Kirkus 17:602 N 1 '49 120w

"Recommended for storytelling shelves in public and private libraries." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 74:1828 D 1 '49 70w

"The collector of these eleven folk tales heard them told at native 'sings' when she lived in rural Haiti. The reader needs but little imagination to catch the humming and chanting that accompany the tales, and to see moonlight shining through mango trees on a circle of dark faces. . . But primitive harshness is dispelled by humor and justice and by the delightful illustrations." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p22 N 13 '49 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49

JOHNSON, IRVING, and JOHNSON, HARRIET ELECTA (SEARCH). Yankee's wander world; circling the globe in the brigantine Yankee. 277p il $5 Norton

910.4 Yankee (brigantine). Voyages around the world 49-11892

"[This] is the story of [a] brigantine journey around the globe, with stop-overs at some of the most glamorous and bizarre places on earth. . . The Yankee, a 96-foot German-built schooner, was purchased from the British, who had seized it as a war prize, refitted in England and rigged as a brigantine, complete to stunsails. It was sailed to Gloucester, and started from there on Nov. 2, 1947, going through the Panama Canal into the Pacific. The cruise then went to the Galapagos, Easter Island, Pitcairn, Rapa, Tahiti, Hawaii and Tincan, followed by a month of visiting South Sea Islands and some of the famed battlegrounds of the second World War. The wanderers then visited Siam, Singapore and Bali, eventually getting to Zanzibar for a look at the African veldt. They rounded Capetown, crossed the Atlantic up to Devils Island and the West Indies, took a look at Bermuda, and then returned to Gloucester." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 46:156 Ja 1 '50

Library J 74:1921 D 15 '49 60w

"The authors did all the things we'd like to do. They sailed around the world, took pictures (many in color reproduced here along with a lavish spread of black-and-white), had a tremendously good time with their more-or-less amateur crew of friends, and this book tells the story with a verve and enthusiasm that're catching. . . Anyone with the desire to do a little Getting Away From It All will relish the Johnsons' yarning immensely." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 21 '49 800w

"It is a well-told and thoroughly satisfying story, and has a generous number of photographs, including many in full color, to supplement the text. . . For those who wish to gloat over the Yankee's equipment and measurements there is a special chapter, complete with diagrams. For everyone there is enjoyment of a splendid trip, perhaps a more pronounced enjoyment now because of the desire of most people in civilization to get out of it. If the Johnsons make another cruise to faraway places they will have to tow the Queen Mary behind them to make room for all the passengers." R F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 550w

JOHNSON, J. RICHARD, and NEWITT, JOHN H. Practical television servicing. (Murray Hill bks) 334p il $4 Rinehart

621.38836 Television 49-7669

"Experience gained in the operation of a television servicing organization is claimed by the authors as the chief source of information for this book, and the claim is borne out by the very practical information included on such problems as the installation of antennas. The book is intended for the instruction and guidance of men preparing to become television installers and servicemen already at work in the trade; and it covers basic theory briefly, and the operating principles of receiving apparatus, maintenance techniques, etc., in more detail." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

JOHNSON, J. R.—Continued

Booklist 45:276 Ap 15 '49
Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:823 My 15 '49 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:15 Ja '49

JOHNSON, LEE HARNIE. Slide rule. 242p il $4 Van Nostrand
510.78 Slide rule 49-9467

"The special feature of this new book is the author's interest in teaching not merely how to use a slide rule, but how to use it efficiently. Typical operations on the rule are not only described step by step but are illustrated. The book is primarily for engineering students and graduate engineers. It deals chiefly with the Duplex slide rule, but there is some material on the Mannheim and the Polyphase slide rules." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1330 S 15 '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:59 Jl '49

JOHNSON, MARGARET SWEET. Snowshoe paws; il. by [the author]. 63p $2 Morrow
Cats—Legends and stories 49-7846

Story of Lanny, the six-toed kitten, who lost his good home because he could not get along with his mistress' Pekingese. But when he later rescued the puppy from a bigger dog, he earned the right to be forgiven. For grades two to three.

Booklist 45:265 Ap 1 '49
Kirkus 17:58 F 1 '49 190w

"It is a warm and pleasant story. Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 74:556 Ap 1 '49 70w

"Lanny's adventures make absorbing reading for the 7 and 8 year olds and exciting listening for the younger child. Excellent black and white illustrations and large type doubly increase the value of this delightful book." Elena Baker
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 27 '49 110w

"The story of Lanny is told simply and realistically. The full-page black and white drawings will please boys and girls who like animal stories." R. H. Viguers
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 140w
Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 90w
Wis Lib Bul 45:67 Ap '49

JOHNSTON, JAMES A. Alcatraz Island prison, and the men who live there. 276p il $3.50 Scribner
365.9794 U.S. Penitentiary, Alcatraz island, California 49-5269

"A history of Alcatraz from the time when it was set up as a maximum security prison for habitues, incorrigibles and escape artists. There is something of the prison, its regime and routine, and the penological methods Warden Johnston applied. There is even more of the inmates which were screened from all prisons and taken to the 'Rock' from which escape was considered impossible: their star boarder, Al Capone: the stormy petrel, Roy Gardner: Machine Gun Kelly and the Karpis-Barker gang; these and many other criminal characters." (Kirkus) The author was warden from 1934 until his retirement in 1948. Index.

Booklist 46:27 S 15 '49
Reviewed by Ray Brennan
Chicago Sun p8X S 25 '49 230w

"A contemporary crime documentary, for those that like theirs factual rather than fictional."
Kirkus 17:379 Jl 15 '49 120w

"Warden Johnston is not a stylist, but he writes a clear, straightforward narrative and is evidently an able and humane penologist. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1089 Ag '49 120w

"The book makes fascinating reading." Jack Foisie
+ N Y Times p15 Ag 28 '49 450w

"The author is a lawyer and a banker as well as a penologist, but fluidity of style is not among his talents, and he tells his story with very little humor, which is perhaps as it should be."
+ New Yorker 25:136 O 15 '49 140w

"Warden Johnston writes in a frank, straightaway, matter-of-fact style, which gives his book far greater conviction than the slicker job that might have been turned out by a magazine-trained 'collaborator.' I believe that many will be honestly surprised at the fascination his book holds for the average reader who may have no special interest in crimes or criminals but who knows when he is listening to an expert talk on his subject." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 31 '49 850w

Reviewed by E. H. Sutherland
Sat R of Lit 32:13 S 10 '49 600w

JOHNSTONE, DON, and CROSS, WILLIAM PERRY. Elements of applied hydrology. 276p il $5 Ronald 551.57 Hydraulics. Water 49-8875

"Hydrology is a science dealing with the occurrence and movement of water on and under the land areas of the globe. The hydrologist measures the flow of streams and ground water, analyzes the action of rivers, makes predictions of flow, floods and drought, and studies the development of water resources. This book is intended to assist the student in this phase of civil engineering." (Library J) Indexes.

"The book is a worth-while contribution to the study of the behavior of surface streams, but the choice of title unfortunately leads one to expect a much wider treatment of the subject of hydrology than is given." C. F. Park
+ — J Geol 58:82 Ja '50 850w
Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:45 My '49

JOHNSTONE, VERNEY LOVETT. Learning to pray with the church; with a foreword by the Bishop of London. 95p $1.25 Longmans
264.03 Book of common prayer [A49-9866]

An essay interpreting the English Book of Common Prayer, by the late Canon of St Nicholas Cathedral, Newcastle upon Tyne.

"While [the] discussion is addressed specifically to members and clergy of the Anglican Church, it has value also for the host of Christians outside that communion who have found spiritual uplift in that great treasury of corporate and individual devotions."
Christian Century 66:241 F 23 '49 70w

"[The book] is deeply devotional, most interesting, novel in its manner and matter, and practical in that it will send most readers to church the next Sunday with something to do and well equipped to do it."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 28 '49 120w

JOHNSTONE, VERNEY LOVETT. Story of the prayer book in England and America; with add. chapters by Ernest Evans and Leicester C. Lewis. 117p $2 Morehouse
264.039 Book of common prayer 49-8585

An account of the origin, history, and contents of the Book of Common Prayer in England and America. The book was written in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the publication of the first complete prayer book in English.

Reviewed by F. J. Moore
Churchman 163:17 S 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p14 Je 19 '49 200w

JOLAS, EUGENE, ed. Transition workshop. See Transition (periodical)

JONES, ALLETTA. Peggy's wish; il. by Mary Stevens. 176p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury 49-9807

Story of an orphan girl's summer on a Kansas farm. Peggy's one big wish was to remain with the Merediths as their little girl. In September after a busy summer of farm doings, friendships, and small adventures her wish was granted. For grades 4-6.

Booklist 46:52 O 1 '49

"Little girls, who love stories about orphans, will find Peggy a very human and likable child, whose adventures make fine reading and sharing." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 20 '49 200w

Horn Bk 25:409 S '49 50w

"Well written, lively story with a happy ending."
+ Kirkus 17:466 S 1 '49 120w

"An unimportant story with a transparent plot but filled with the kind of happenings that please little girls from 7-10." Claire Nolte
Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 80w

"Alletta Jones' story is about an orphan, true enough, but it has no maudlin stuff. Here, instead, is a healthy, natural situation, treated with sympathetic humor, full of variety and unhackneyed as the author brings in details from a Kansas childhood of her own." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p58 N 20 '49 190w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:26 N 12 '49 50w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 60w

JONES, ARNOLD HUGH MARTIN. Constantine and the conversion of Europe. (Teach yourself history lib) 271p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Constantine I, the Great, emperor of Rome. Church history—Primitive and early church [49-20182]

One volume in a series which has as its purpose "by way of a biography of a great man to open up a significant historical theme." "Preliminary chapters discuss the relations between paganism and Christianity in the 2nd and 3rd centuries, the persecutions, and the predicament of the decaying empire. Constantine's personal and political story is told more at length." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

"Professor Jones has written a well-balanced and well-placed account of the chief events—political, military, economic, and religious—from Diocletian's accession to Constantine's death. The author's skill in narrating the complex course of events in those years, the resultant clarity and readability, are admirable." M. E. Agnew
+ Am Hist R 55:188 O '49 250w

"Again the 'Teach Yourself History' series justifies its name by offering a volume that is a marvel of competence, clarity, compactness, and—within the limits of its small size—completeness, on one of the most important periods in the history of Christianity." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1266 O 26 '49 390w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 169:628 D 24 '49 180w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun
Sat R of Lit 32:13 D 13 '49 110w

"Professor Jones's book is a remarkable feat of clarity and compression."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p368 Je 3 '49 1100w

JONES, ARTHUR FREDERICK. Care and training of dogs; il. by Arthur Wallace. 311p $2.50 Prentice-Hall

636.7 Dogs 49-9786

This book is in six parts: Parts one thru four cover How to choose a dog, feeding, training, care and handling. Part six deals with maladies. Part five, 141 pages, contains descriptions and histories, each a page or so in length, of the 111 purebred dogs recognized by the American Kennel Club. Index.

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 30w

"This publication can be highly recommended to dog enthusiasts and especially those who want to know more about 'man's best friend.'" Leo Marceau
+ Springf'd Republican p8B S 4 '49 250w

JONES, E. WINSTON. Preaching and the dramatic arts. 123p $2 Macmillan

251 Preaching 48-9572

"In his fear of revivalistic emotionalism and theatricalism the average modern preacher deliberately shuns 'oratory' and usually talks in the pulpit about as he would in his study to a person seeking advice on an occasion when he has to do most of the talking. But this author doubts whether this 'naturalness' is the most effective method of reaching a congregation. The author discusses The Limitations of Reason, The Role of Imagination, The Dictates of Art, The Art of Using Story-Material, etc. There is a simple but convincing discussion of the psychology of influencing character. While the preacher must not consciously 'act,' the actor has much to teach him in making his message effective." Churchman

Christian Century 66:529 Ap 27 '49 210w

"Every preacher would profit by the reading of this little book." W. L. Caswell
+ Churchman 163:15 Ap 1 '49 150w

"In a way it may be called a book on the psychology of preaching and of audience reaction. As such it is, indirectly, a manual for the preparation and delivery of sermons. Unfortunately it is the kind of book usually thought of for advanced study, while actually the material and the point of view are entirely basic to preaching. The question is not whether a minister shall or shall not use the dramatic arts—he cannot help using them. The question is how much and how well he uses them. If we are to handle skills by necessity, we should employ them skillfully. It would be very difficult to imagine a preacher who does not need the chapters of this book. There is one personal comment: the material seems to lack the use of the dramatic arts it argues for preaching whenever the psychologist is called in to be coauthor with the dramatist." R. E. Keighton
+ — Crozer Q 26:179 Ap '49 450w

"It is a stimulating discussion of how preaching may be made more effective today, based on true psychological principles and artistic standards. Every preacher who wishes to be a good craftsman in his chosen calling should read it."
+ Kirkus 16:512 O 1 '48 160w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 120w

JONES, EDWARD SAFFORD. Occupations unlimited. 249p $2.95 Foster & Stewart

371.425 Occupations 49-7036

A study of job improvement by the director of personnel research at the University of Buffalo. "The emphasis is not so much upon getting a better job as upon making one's present job better by doing it better. But the discussion ramifies into many related subjects which concern not only individual workers but also administrators and personnel directors, and professional workers and the self-employed as well as time-clock punchers." (Christian Century) Selected bibliography. Index.

JONES, E. S.—Continued

"A highly intelligent book. . . The author has a high, but not sentimental, conception of occupational ethics." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:21 Ja 5 '49 140w

"For those able to go ahead on their own initiative, the rules for 'self-training' should be stimulating. . . Little is offered, here, for the man of less than average ability, lacking strong drives, who presents a placement problem not only to himself but to personnel administrator or vocational counselor as well. . . While 'Occupations Unlimited' is full of valuable and provocative material, it is somewhat difficult to determine for whose use it is designed: personnel director, vocational counselor, or the worker himself. The final chapter on open or undeveloped occupations can be used by all three. It emphasizes the importance of an occupational dream and its follow-through. It analyzes a number of so-called 'made' jobs where a new occupational opening is created or a formerly small service is built up to significance." Alma Klaw

Survey 85:114 F '49 600w

JONES, ELI STANLEY. Mahatma Gandhi; an interpretation. 160p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand 48-8515

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Dr. Stanley Jones was asked by the publishers to write the book. . . They could not have made a better choice. Dr. Jones had close association with Gandhi for very many years and has performed his difficult task with sympathy, yet also with judicious criticism. His book is valuable for its description of Gandhi and his teachings, but even more so for its attention to the important events later than those covered in the Autobiography." A. G. Widgery

+ Crozer Q 26:152 Ap '49 150w

Foreign Affairs 27:691 Jl '49 10w

Reviewed by Elsie Weil

Nation 168:160 F 5 '49 320w

"Mahatma Gandhi: An Interpretation by E. Stanley Jones has special value. It is the work of an American Christian missionary who befriended Gandhi and regarded him as one of the few persons who have tried to live a Christlike life. At the same time the author thinks that Gandhi, who was not baptized and did not give up his own religion of Hinduism, could not receive the grace of God through Christ. The chapter on 'Gandhi and the Christian Faith' will be of some interest for all Christians, for it contains a discussion of Gandhi's reasons for opposing the Christian missionary movement of mass conversion." Taraknath Das

+ Pol Sci Q 64:146 Mr '49 550w

JONES, FRANCIS CLIFFORD. Manchuria since 1931; issued under the auspices of the Institute of Pacific relations and the Royal institute of international affairs. 256p maps $5 Oxford

951.8 Manchuria. Japanese in Manchuria

"This is a survey of Japanese activities in Manchuria since the coup d'état of September 1931, with a concluding chapter on the situation during 1945-47. It is concerned primarily with internal developments and touches on the foreign relations of Japan and 'Manchukuo' only in so far as they affected Japanese policy in the puppet State." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:61 O 15 '49

Reviewed by H. P. Linton

Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 130w

"Mr. Jones, who is Lecturer in History at the University of Bristol, has set himself rigid limits in his book on Manchuria. Within those limits he had done a workmanlike job, obviously painstaking and more than usually valuable to specialists in the field." R. A. Smith

+ N Y Times p46 O 23 '49 400w

JONES, HOWARD MUMFORD, ed. Primer of intellectual freedom. 191p $2.75 Harvard univ. press

323.443 Liberty of speech 49-11931

"This book is a collection of significant pronouncements running from the year of its publication back to 1605 when Bacon issued The Advancement of Learning, the first formal claim of the research worker to labor in freedom toward professional ends. These pronouncements are in the nature of a casebook, even if the cases are all on one side. They show how for three centuries and a half distinguished minds have met innumerable threats to intellectual freedom. The selections have been edited and condensed for ease of reading and for clarity. In their light the reader is asked to make up his mind as to proper policy in such matters as, let us say, the right of the House Committee on un-American Activities to act as it does, the toleration to be extended to Communists, the privilege of college presidents and governing boards to fire teachers whose views they do not like, and the legislative duty to put down opinions held by the majority to be 'subversive.' In this sense the book is a primer of intellectual liberty." Introd

"A timely, exhilarating book, boldly tackling the problems occasioned by the threat of communism. . . Every librarian should read, and then make widely available." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:1753 N 15 '49 150w

"'Primer of Intellectual Freedom' renders little service to the cause of maintaining intellectual freedom in the present tragic world." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

— N Y Times p3 D 11 '49 750w

School & Society 70:336 N 19 '49 40w

JONES, HOWARD MUMFORD. Theory of American literature. 208p $2.75 Cornell univ. press

810.9 American literature—History and criticism 48-11948

"These essays, which were originally part of the Messenger Lectures at Cornell, do not deal with American literature directly. Nor do they present a close analysis of the various histories of American literature that extend from Samuel Knapp's 'Lectures,' in 1829, to the recent 'Literary History of the United States.' Mr. Jones is concerned with the theory—or theories—of history behind these books, and similar European works." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Current Hist 16:231 Ap '49 70w

Reviewed by J. D. Jump

Manchester Guardian p3 D 30 '49 120w

"The mind shrinks from contemplating the amount of dull and wrong-headed writing Mr. Jones has mastered, from the utterances of the Connecticut Wits and obscure college lecturers, through innumerable magazine articles to the latest outpourings of the New Criticism. Where he has found intelligent scholarship, as in Moses Coit Tyler and Vernon Parrington, he pays it just tribute; where he has found folly he hangs it up for all to see. In reducing to order this mass of material he has kept his balance, his sanity and his sense of humor." Delancey Ferguson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 30 '49 1000w

"Probably no literary history can summarize the whole truth about a writer and his work, and we are forced to be grateful for even a part of the truth. The real value of 'The Theory of American Literature' is in the attention it pays to the cultural background of our literature, particularly during the earlier periods of our history. In this area it is a useful contribution to scholarship." Maxwell Geismar

+ N Y Times p14 F 13 '49 600w

"In six lectures, delivered at Cornell in December 1947, Howard Mumford Jones of Harvard attempted an historical review of the theories held by Americans about their own literary tradition from colonial times to the present. Even revised and documented for print, so ambitious an undertaking could hope only to be provocative rather than definitive; yet this book defines much. . . The editorial connection of Mr. Jones with the new cooperative 'Literary History of the United States' adds pertinence and zest to his analysis." R. E. Spiller

+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Mr 5 '49 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:15 Mr '49 320w

JONES, IDWAL. Vines in the sun; a journey through the California vineyards; drawings by Albert J. Camille. 253p $3.50 Morrow

663.2 Wine and wine making 49-8481

"The history of California is a specialty with this author, so with authentic data about the complex subject of wines goes a running account of pioneer days in California with the people who were interested in making the state another sunny France with its viticulture, the whole highlighted with numerous anecdotes and bits of personal history concerning those involved in this chapter of California's development." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 45:308 My 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '49

"Written by an epicure and an authority, in informal style, rich in detail, almost lyrical at times."

+ Kirkus 17:48 Ja 15 '49 90w

"A book which is pleasantly desultory, anecdotal, and as rambling as the vine. . . The Camille line-drawings are evocative, and the index exasperatingly inadequate. Recommended to all but the most austere libraries." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 My 1 '49 900w

"In his quite short book Mr. Jones has compressed an entirely charming and little-known cycle in American history." Ruth Page

+ N Y Times p3 My 15 '49 320w

"The thing to do, if you have any interest at all in good wines and in California, its past and present, is to sip 'Vines in the Sun' slowly, relishing the full savor of the author's full-bodied style, appreciating the bouquet of the book, enjoying afterward the recollection of Jones' way with an anecdote, his knack at informing you and keeping you entertained at the same time." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 24 '49 1200w

"'Vines in the Sun' is not alone a subtle, highly-refined treatise on the California grape, which all the initiate will welcome. Because of its wealth of anecdote, character sketches, and rare descriptions of scenes and places, it is a fascinating book even for the layman. If imagination seems at times to run beyond plodding fact and historical allusion rest on questionable foundation, who is the poorer? The tale at least is good." R. G. Cleland

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Je 18 '49 550w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 360w

JONES, JACK. Some trust in chariots. 381p $3.50 Sloane

49-7932

Novel of the Tewdwrs of a Cardiff (S. Wales) haulage business. The two main characters are the God-fearing Rhys and his worldly nephew Harry. For sixty years they disagreed in their business and personal affairs; but as old men they found peace together on the family farm.

Booklist 45:234; 262 Mr 15 '49; Ap 1 '49

"The diction is that of a Welshman speaking English with Welsh idioms, strangely rhythmic sentences and a haunting inverted word order. The novel is inchoate, without doubt intentionally so, like an old man's reminiscences that go forward and backward." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 Mr 24 '49 360w

"A diffuse tale, with too many names and intricate interrelationships."

Kirkus 17:160 Mr 15 '49 120w

"Reminiscent of How Green Was My Valley and thoroughly enjoyable. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:547 Ap 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Walter Allen

New Statesman & Nation 37:15 Ja 1 '49 120w

"'Some Trust in Chariots' is written with a kind of easy-going garrulity that is a bit disconcerting at first but becomes pleasant as one becomes accustomed to its pace and to the rhythm of what I suppose is the Welsh turn of its sentences. It is a warm-hearted, overflowing book in which the author keeps his multitude of characters and events distinct and, through the breadth and sincerity of his own interest in them, makes many different kinds of people understandable and appealing." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 27 '49 600w

Reviewed by J. P. Quehl

N Y Times p16 My 1 '49 270w

New Yorker 25:105 Ap 16 '49 180w

"They say this book is having a great vogue in England. Its lusty vigor, its headlong rush, the knowledge and understanding it gives of a whole country-side, a way of life, a people, over a long period of time, may make it read popularly here. But for me now, let me catch my breath." M. S. Douglas

Sat R of Lit 32:14 My 28 '49 500w

"A book of the generation-spanning type that is often a pleasure to read. . . Mr. Jones has succeeded in breathing life into this by force of his own warm humanity and deep sincerity." Robert Kee

+ Spec 182:26 Ja 7 '49 500w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 550w

"Both in the fine gusto of Mr. Jones's writing, and in his creation of a gallery of characters, Some Trust in Chariots is a considerable achievement."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p693 D 11 '48 220w

JONES, LLOID, and JONES, JUANITA NUTTALL. Holiday mountain. 208p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

49-8593

A novel for young people. It depicts the cooperation of the members of a family in their efforts to raise $750 in four months in order to save their Rocky Mountain home and tourist camp.

Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Je 11 '49 160w

"Well-told story of young people faced with the responsibility of carrying on a business." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:294 Jl '49 120w

"[The Campbells] are likable, lively people, and the suspense is well-sustained and real."

+ Kirkus 17:180 Ap 1 '49 150w

"This story seems very real. Although there are no very exciting episodes, the interest is well sustained, characterization is good, and the background is convincing. Recommended for older boys and girls." R. O. Bostwick

+ Library J 74:558 Ap 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 My 8 '49 170w

"A family of young people working together against adversity is always a challenging theme to both writer and reader. Mr. and Mrs. Jones have made excellent use of it in this stimulating novel for teen-aged readers. . . This is a fine, well-rounded book." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p34 Ap 24 '49 230w

"It is a fine story of family unity and courage, with a dash of humor added to make it more entertaining."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 9 '49 110w

JONES, MARC EDMUND. George Sylvester Morris: his philosophical career and theistic idealism. 430p $3.75 McKay

B or 92 Morris, George Sylvester 49-7314

"This study is inescapably as much an outline of the author's own thinking as an analysis of George Sylvester Morris and the dynamic idealism developed at the University of Michigan. Morris is here presented in the form of a wholly sympathetic exposition of his philosophy, instead of a critical rejection of his point of view or an historical evaluation of ideas he worked out. It is the result of converging personal compatibilities in the social matrix of American thought." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"The biography is not a report of a sensational discovery, but is a solid contribution to the history of American philosophy. . . The book is rendered more valuable by the inclusion of two articles by Morris. In this age of one-sided and uncritical naturalism and abstract positivism, it is encouraging to find a writer like Dr. Jones who appreciates the solid arguments of Morris for a theism based on experience. Morris is not a helpful guide either in social philosophy or in confronting the problem of evil. But he had a mind of integrity and insight, and is worthy of the attention of us moderns." E. S. Brightman

+ Christian Century 66:305 Mr 9 '49 700w

School & Society 69:287 Ap 16 '49 90w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:170 Je '49 300w

JONES, RUSSELL K., and NORTON, C. McKIM. The cruising cookbook; easy-to-cook meals on a two-burner stove. 302p $2.95 Norton

641.5 Cookery 49-9102

Guide for those who cook meals in the galley of a small craft. The authors stress the most direct and efficient course to hearty meals. Includes menus, recipes, advice on how to buy, and store food and equipment, etc. Index.

"In effect a galley Bowditch and, whether or not the authors intended it, a handy book in a city kitchenette." Austin Stevens

+ N Y Times p20 Jl 17 '49 220w

"It is not often that a cookbook can be intemperately described as fascinating, but a more cautious word would hardly give an idea of the ingenuity, the originality and the sound common sense of this volume. . . The landbound reader may imperfectly grasp some of the nautical problems under discussion, but that is perhaps just another tribute to the functional practicality of this refreshing work."

+ New Yorker 25:102 Je 11 '49 80w

JONES, TOM BARD. South America rediscovered. 285p il maps $4 Univ. of Minn.

918 South America—Description and travel 49-8028

"The objectives of this book are twofold: first, to reconstruct southern South America as foreigners saw it in the years from 1810 to 1870, and second, to enumerate and to discuss briefly the sources that may be employed for such a task." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"The able selection by the author, his talent for evaluating and integrating the mass of observations—certainly of differing value—make the book a welcome source of information for all classes on Latin America." Alfred Manes

+ Ann Am Acad 264:143 Jl '49 320w

Booklist 45:390 Jl 15 '49

"This book reads like the notebook of a novelist who has been gathering local color, incident and episode for some historical novel that is going to embrace over a half century of time and all of the middle and farther South America. But though Dr. Jones's tastes may be gay, his intention is fundamentally serious. What emerges is a picture which, if one-sided, is yet illuminating, of the South America which his several score travelers visited. He adds a valuable bibliography which, like the rest of the book, is full of colorful comment." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 17 '49 600w

"Names of famous travelers—Humboldt, Darwin, Agassiz—crop up in his pages. But he has also drawn freely on obscure observers who kept their eyes and ears open when they traveled. In all, scores of foreign writers are laid under tribute. From their writings the author has gleaned an immense amount of data—vivid and varied, humorous and revealing." T. R. Ybarra

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 27 '49 500w

School & Society 69:326 Ap 30 '49 40w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:211 Je '49 240w

JORDAN, ALICE MABEL. From Rollo to Tom Sawyer, and other papers; decorations by Nora S. Unwin. 160p $3.75 Horn bk

028.5 Children's literature—History and criticism 48-9996

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The book is beautifully printed. Designed by Nora S. Unwin, her choice of blueberries for the motif of the endpapers and decoration perfectly supplement the text. The reader will close the book to reopen it often with a richer knowledge and appreciation of the literary heritage of the children of today." J. F. Carter

+ Library J 74:655 Ap 15 '49 450w

"In tracing the beginnings of sound literary standards in children's books in America, Miss Jordan gives a careful and well-developed picture. Since these papers were written separately, they lack some of the continuity that one would look for if this book were presented as a history of children's literature. At the same time, it remains balanced and clear and represents a notable contribution to the subject. It is an informed and well-assimilated account of Miss Jordan's study of the period, but this alone does not always make for eager reading, so that one must look a little further into these essays to discover the reason for the undoubted charm of the book." L. H. Smith

+ — Library Q 19:302 O '49 1000w

"Delightful book. . . All who read its twelve essays will gain a splendid background of this subject, and will be eager to read or re-read some of the outstanding older books described. Miss Jordan passes on a contagious enthusiasm for her favorite authors, and the many quotations are skillfully chosen." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 3 '49 350w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p32 Mr 6 '49 320w

"The book, carefully written in interesting detail (and also beautifully designed, decorated, and printed) contains a series of papers dealing with persons and literary enterprises contributing to American books for children. . . One is impressed by the diligence, respect and interest with which Miss Jordan has read the books once read and now forgotten, and come to an evaluation of their historical, if not often literary significance." R. G. Kahn

+ Survey 85:121 F '49 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:156 Je '49 300w

Wis Lib Bul 45:92 My '49

JORDAN, HELEN ROSALIND. See Ashton, H.

JORDAN, WEYMOUTH TYREE. Hugh Davis and his Alabama plantation. 177p $3 Univ. of Ala. press

B or 92 Davis, Hugh. Plantation life 48-10271

"This monograph centers attention on the career of Hugh Davis and his plantation, Beaver Bend, located on the Cahaba River ten miles from Marion, Alabama. . . An introductory chapter sketches Davis' ancestry, his career as a lawyer, and the social and economic development of Alabama in its formative years. The detailed story of operations at Beaver Bend from 1848 to 1862 requires six chapters covering Davis' interest in scientific farming, his relations with overseers, the purchase, care, management, and work of slaves, subsistence farming, and marketing operations. A concluding chapter carries the story of Beaver Bend from 1862 to 1901." (Am Hist R) Bibliography. Index.

"The writer has been modest in his claims and has held himself within the limits of his purpose. The monograph is accurate, thorough, and well put together. It is unfortunate, however, that the writer did not see fit to generalize more in regard to the significance of his material for the general history of the South. In the reviewer's estimation, he is unduly modest. . . By refusing to develop the possible significance of his story, the author limits the usefulness of his work." L. E. Atherton
+ — Am Hist R 54:699 Ap '49 360w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p18 O 30 '49 120w

"If Mr. Jordan has not edited and checked quite as carefully as he might, he has, nevertheless, put to good use an extraordinary variety of research materials."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:74 Mr '49 350w

JOSEPH, BERNARD. British rule in Palestine [an intensive study of Anglo-Jewish relations between 1917 and 1947]. 279p $3.75 Public affairs press

956.9 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. Palestine—Politics and government 48-8708

"This book, written by a McGill graduate, who is now the military Governor of the Jewish-held part of Jerusalem, is a brief by a lawyer on behalf of the legal rights of his people to a homeland in Palestine. The question of legal rights and wrongs may have little bearing in the present situation in the Holy Land, but from a historical point of view it is important. As a lawyer pleading a case, Dr. Joseph does not attempt to be unprejudiced. He believes that the Jews have both a moral and legal right to the state which they have now won by military action. This legal right is based on the invitation to the Jewish people by both British and Arab government leaders to resettle Palestine and create a Jewish National Home." (Canadian Forum) Index.

"The work has certain defects of a technical nature. There is no bibliography. The editing is at times lax, leading to misspelled words and the omission of parts of sentences. Footnotes are frequently incomplete, especially as to edition and date of publication. On the whole, however, the book is scholarly, stimulating, and interesting." J. B. McConaughy
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:180 F '49 380w

"This study of the Palestine problem will be of value to the specialist who is well informed on Near Eastern affairs and who wishes to analyze the various types of propaganda dealing with the Zionist program. However, the student who is seeking an objective and impartial treatment would do well to steer clear of Mr. Joseph's monograph." T. W Wallbank
Ann Am Acad 262:201 Mr '49 500w

Reviewed by Martin Lipset
Canadian Forum 28:262 F '49 600w

Foreign Affairs 27:517 Ap '49 20w

Reviewed by Quincy Wright
— Harvard Law R 62:1428 Jl '49 400w

Reviewed by R. B. Guinness
Social Studies 40:183 Ap '49 1200w

JOSEPH, MICHAEL. Adventure of publishing. 207p $3 Bowker

655.5 Publishers and publishing [49-6160]

"As a new, general publisher who weathered the straits of the thirties, Mr. Joseph belongs, very sensibly, to the alarmist school of thought that is bracing for a crisis in publishing, of which, in spite of continuing record turnovers, the symptoms can already be seen. His prescriptions for these symptoms are always practical and often very stringent. They include, for instance, compulsory pulping of certain books which do not sell an agreed minimum in two years . . . and substantial increases in subscription rates of circulating and public libraries. . . Mr. Joseph also pleads for a much more adequate and co-ordinated treatment of contemporary writing from the B.B.C., to generate that word-of-mouth discussion which, he maintains (like most experienced publishers), alone sells books." (Manchester Guardian) No index.

Booklist 46:29 S 15 '49

"Provocative, outspoken, informative book by a British publisher which should interest more readers than its specialized audience." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1089 Ag '49 100w

"The bible of the book trade has been for twenty-odd years Sir Stanley Unwin's 'The Truth about Publishing,' and compared with this Mr. Michael Joseph's new book, The Adventure of Publishing is largely, and avowedly, a tract for the times." A. M. P.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 14 '49 360w

"I felt myself wanting to exclaim 'Hear, hear,' time after time, as I read through his judgments on the follies we have all committed, the illusions we have all entertained at one time and another, publishers, booksellers, agents, critics and authors. . . I would make Mr. Joseph's book compulsory reading for those innumerable youthful fanatics who are determined to get into publishing at all costs." John Lehmann
+ New Statesman & Nation 37:620 Je 11 '49 1150w

"Lively and engaging, though some of the precautions suggested against the uneasy future of the trade have alarming implications. . . Mr. Joseph is seldom dull. . . And the book culminates in a chapter written ostensibly with detachment, actually in defence of the literary agent. This naive salute to the past will delight every publisher." Michael Sadleir
+ Spec 182:766 Je 3 '49 630w

"Mr. Joseph's two hundred pages combine liveliness, ingenuousness, inconsequence and a journalistic appreciation of the shock-value of the platitude. He can bolster up an economic argument, such as that oversea trade is essential to a publisher's survival, with high-sounding phrases about the British way of life and 'books, a country's best ambassadors'; but he lacks either a knowledge or a sense of history . . . and above all he lacks the virtue of priggishness."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p430 Jl 1 '49 1200w

JOSEPHSON, HANNAH (GEFFEN) (MRS MATTHEW JOSEPHSON). Golden threads; New England's mill girls and magnates. 325p $3.75 Duell

331.76772 Lowell, Massachusetts. New England—Economic conditions. Women—Employment 49-10770

A history of the New England textile industry founded by Francis Cabot Lowell in Lowell, Massachusetts, in the first half of the nineteenth century. Special attention is given to young women, many of them from solid New England families, who tended the machines in the mills. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:59 O 15 '49

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 5 '50 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

"Business men, students of economics, sociology, history, workers everywhere will find this easy and profitable reading."
+ Kirkus 17:383 Jl 15 '49 150w

"The story of local industry is the best way to present social history of a country, and Miss Josephson has done this particular industry very well. Buy it." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 100w

JOSEPHSON, H. G.—Continued

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 170:18 Ja 7 '50 1000w

"Mrs. Josephson's book is an interesting swatch of textile and literary history—unfortunately less valuable than if she had seen fit to document it—and nobody could have made it more pleasant to read." E. H. Smith
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 O 16 '49 750w

"Mrs. Josephson's research is extensive and she has thrown much light on a neglected chapter of New England history. However, owing to the author's enthusiasm for textile economics, 'The Golden Threads' reads more like a textbook than a book for the average reader." Cleveland Amory
+ — N Y Times p29 O 23 '49 470w

"An able handling of almost forgotten material that is well worth resurrection."
+ New Yorker 25:110 O 8 '49 200w

"Here is a discriminating study of the infancy of big business in the United States." Adrienne Koch
+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 Ja 21 '50 700w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 360w

JOUGHIN, GEORGE LOUIS, and MORGAN, EDMUND MORRIS. Legacy of Sacco and Vanzetti; with an introd. by Arthur M. Schlesinger. 598p $6 Harcourt

343.1 Sacco, Nicola. Vanzetti, Bartholomeo 48-8820

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by Otto Kirchheimer
Am Hist R 54:633 Ap '49 650w

"A wide-ranging, highly readable book which first discusses the legal twistings of the case and then selects the most significant items from the spate of writing that flowed from the trials." McAlister Coleman
+ Nation 168:189 F 12 '49 1000w

"To a reviewer who is not trained in the law but has waded through most of the legal documents and commentary connected with the case, Professor Morgan's study seems monumental for the poise, clarity, and succinctness with which it develops for laymen the significance of incredibly slippery and tangled issues of jurisprudence. Such a feat of disciplined intelligence gives more than ordinary authoritativeness to Professor Morgan's recommendations for improving the justice meted out in American courts under the adversary system of litigation by which Sacco and Vanzetti were mistried." L. S. Hall
+ New Eng Q 22:99 Mr '49 1700w

"I may be ungrateful to ask for more from a book which gives as much as this one does, and yet I do. I want to know what makes us go on witch-hunts. I want to know how we can put an end to the witch-hunt that currently involves us. The book struck me as being too objective, and I was left with the uncomfortable feeling that objectivity is not enough. . . Maybe I am expecting too much of a good book. After all, the technique which these authors employ is new." O. J. Rogge
Survey 85:123 F '49 700w

"Materials for a comprehensive survey of the Sacco-Vanzetti case are rich and available; these materials have been used here with a skill and thoroughness that will no doubt establish this book as the definitive account of a remarkable episode in American history."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:75 Mr '49 440w

Reviewed by J. G. Leyburn
Yale R n s 39:171 autumn '49 800w

JOUVENEL, BERTRAND DE. On power; its nature and the history of its growth; pref. by D. W. Brogan; tr. by J. F. Huntington [Eng title: Power]. 421p $5 Viking

320.1 State, The. Authority 49-8896

"M. de Jouvenel, a French journalist and historian, who finished this book in exile during the war, maintains that all power is corrupt, no matter what political philosophy it is dedicated to. Even revolutions, which break up special privilege in the name of the common good, are the products of a desire for power, he believes, and the iniquities of power cannnot be prevented by putting philosophers, scientists, and 'men of good will' in high office, for as soon as they are on top, they become politicians." (New Yorker) Bibliographical notes. No index.

"On the whole, the writer is far stronger in his doubts and fears, in his pessimistic view of modern social relations, than in constructive implementation of the ideals he affirms." C. E. Merriam
Am Pol Sci R 43:842 Ag '49 1050w
Booklist 45:385 Jl 15 '49

"On Power is historical, perspicacious, universal in outlook, and hortatory only after long passages of analysis. It was written by one who has acquired the detachment not to believe that the revolution he has been through is the revolution, or that the war he has witnessed is the war." R. M. Weaver
+ Commonweal 50:466 Ag 19 '49 1350w

"A brilliant, learned and ponderous analysis."
+ Kirkus 17:135 Mr 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 74:660 Ap 15 '49 100w

" 'On Power' has plenty of flesh, but no lack of bones and sinews. It is confused only because of its richness and honesty. I fail to agree with its conclusion, but I found the discussion a welcome challenge. I'd rather read Maritain or Niebuhr than the local Ingersoll; I'd rather wrangle over power with Jouvenel than nod weary assent to the orthodox democrats." Albert Guérard
+ Nation 168:664 Je 11 '49 1200w

"This hodge-podge of an essay is prejudiced, absurdly conceived, filled with contradictions, yet not without eloquence and force. Admirably translated from the French by J. F. Huntington, On Power has won a better press in England than here. Leading British historians and political scientists have applauded it even when they announced themselves in profound disagreement with its main conclusions. And whatever its defects, it is a book to stir controversy: its theme, I agree with Brogan, should be 'on the agenda of every modern society.' " J. R. Newman
+ — New Repub 120:21 Je 20 '49 3450w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 15 '49 1150w

"In facing so serious a problem one intellectual quality is essential. It is clarity—clarity of expression, clarity of thought. Mr. de Jouvenel and his collaborators lack this gift. Instead they possess an unfortunate substitute: pretentiousness. D. W. Brogan's foreword, and the translator's epilogue both suffer from this defect; and the work of Mr. de Jouvenel, which lies between these two even more dispiriting essays, suffers even more seriously, since it makes higher claims." H. R. Trevor-Roper
— N Y Times p13 My 15 '49 950w

"The book is not a tract but a fully considered line of thinking, and has caused a great deal of commment in Europe. An important work, brilliantly written."
+ New Yorker 25:114 My 14 '49 140w

Reviewed by Lyman Bryson
Pol Sci Q 64:429 S '49 1000w

"It is easy to agree with Mr. Brogan that the theme of the book 'is, or should be, on the agenda of every modern society,' and to find in it many brilliant aperçus that make it worth reading. Yet is has serious faults. It is too long. It badly needs an index. It carries the personalization of power to absurd extremes. More importantly, it offers deterministic conclusions for Anglo-American democracy based on premises and evidence almost exclusively French." A. W. Griswold
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:11 Jl 30 '49 800w

JUDSON, CLARA (INGRAM) (MRS J. M. JUDSON). Green ginger jar [they came from China] a Chinatown mystery; il. by Paul Brown. 211p $2.50 Houghton
49-10169

A mystery story which is also another title in the author's "They came from" series. The setting is Chicago's Chinatown. For grades 6-9.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 1 '49 230w

Reviewed by Agatha Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 90w

"This is an appealing story of the boys and girls in Chicago's Chinatown. Their family and school life, with their problems and pleasures, are convincingly and sympathetically pictured; and the mystery of the green ginger jar and what it contains lends excitement and suspense." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:413 S '49 50w

"Of all the long list of books in which Clara Judson has introduced children of many nationalities, this is outstanding."
+ Kirkus 17:300 Je 15 '49 170w

"The mystery of the ginger jar will make this popular, but also the book gives a good understanding of the Chinese-American people and their way of living. Recommended for junior-high readers." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 74:1208 S 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1541 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 9 '49 300w

"Another one of Mrs. Judson's stories about Americans of foreign extraction, is always a delight. She has the gift of creating human, lovable American children who yet manage to retain the flavor and charm of their parents' old-country ways. . . The atmosphere is so real, the adventures so plausible, that the young reader will close the book reluctantly, wishing it could go on and on." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p28 O 2 '49 200w

JUDSON, LYMAN SPICER, and JUDSON, ELLEN. Let's go to Colombia; il. with 52 original phot. and 19 maps by the authors. (Judson guides to Latin America) 332p $4 Harper

918.6 Colombia—Description and travel
49-7141

First of a projected series intended to introduce North Americans to the separate countries of Latin America. Intended for both the actual traveler and the armchair variety, the text is set in two kinds of type—all of interest to the first, only the large type for the second. Index.

Booklist 45:191 F 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"It has its points but, like most guidebooks, it should be better." Hubert Herring
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ap 10 '49 220w

"It is an unpretentious, well-illustrated, useful book, written by a man and his wife who have really seen the country they are writing about, and have photographed it thoroughly. Accuracy of detail is one of its principal virtues. And while it could not, in the nature of things, tell all, or anything like all, about a country as rich and varied as Colombia, the visitor will find it comprehensive and trustworthy." Herschel Brickell
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 30 '49 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 3 '49 110w

"A well-planned, excellently organized guide that seems assured of becoming the standard."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 Ja 15 '49 150w

"A book both to read and pack for the trip."
Survey 85:450 Ag '49 200w

JUDSON, LYMAN SPICER, and JUDSON, ELLEN. Let's go to Guatemala; il. with 53 original phot. and 23 maps by the authors. (Judson guides to Latin America) 327p $4 Harper

917.281 Guatemala—Description and travel
49-9549

Using the same technique as in their Let's Go to Colombia, the authors here provide a guidebook both for the armchair and the actual traveler to Guatemala. Maps, diagrams, photographs and an index.

Booklist 45:374 Jl 1 '49

"The prose cannot be described as distinguished, but since the whole idea of prose style in guide books is relatively unimportant and highly novel, the point could probably pass without mention, were it not for the fact that 'Let's Go to Guatemala' is both guide book and informal essay. In any event, the book fulfills its purpose admirably and should prove almost as useful to the tourist as a Baedeker or a Blue Guide, and considerably more readable." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 4 '49 700w

Sat R of Lit 32:39 S 3 '49 110w

"The authors do a bang-up job of making this colorful little country understandable to the reader who has never been there and their pleasant, narrative style makes their book highly entertaining." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 28 '49 180w

JUENGER, FRIEDRICH GEORGE. See Jünger, F. G.

JUNGER, FRIEDRICH GEORG. Failure of technology; perfection without purpose [tr. by F. D. Wieck]. (Humanist lib) Am ed 186p $2.75 Regnery

601 Technology—Philosophy 49-7552

"Herr Juenger's book, written in Nazi Germany in the spring and summer of 1939, has had to wait seven years for publication in the United States. . . The author's thesis is that the advance of human technology during the last hundred and fifty years is the expression of 'a demonic impulsion' which drives it forward to develop ever greater degrees of what he calls 'perfection.' . . Since the book was written the trends to which he draws attention have proceeded apace, and the growing exploitation of natural resources, the increase of soil erosion and the diminution of fertility, combined with a rapidly increasing world population have carried several stages farther the process of 'technology perfection' which, Herr Juenger prophesied, would ultimately bring about the destruction of our civilization." (Times [London] Lit Sup) No index.

"This vigorously sustained and fluent jeremiad, excellently translated from the German, will strongly fascinate those persons, now numerous, who feel that the 'machine,' its creators' mentality, and the influence of machine technology on culture are at the root of most of the modern world's sorrow and disorder. In my judgment, however, Juenger's book serves unmistakably to darken counsel on supremely important practical and intellectual issues. Even if it will beneficially shock the overcomplacent by its vivid invective and instruct the literal-minded by its occasional intuitive insights, nothing in its cardinal contentions concerning the inevitability of the failure of technology merits rational assent." H. A. Finch
— + Ann Am Acad 265:201 S '49 600w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 66:626 My 18 '49 1200w

"Despite its air of philosophic profundity, this is a superficial work rooted in a romantic nostalgia for the life of leisure and beauty the ruling classes of antique states are said to have enjoyed." Ernest Pisko
— Christian Science Monitor p16 My 10 '49 160w

JUNGER, F. G.—Continued

"This book is not light or 'easy' reading, and scarcely could be recommended for persons who dislike to make unnecessary use of their cerebral faculties. But for philosophical and lively-minded readers it should prove interesting and stimulating." H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8B Mr 13 '49 300w

"As a commentary on the present age the book has a sombre power, which is enhanced by the writer's persistent refusal to suggest remedies that can at best be only superficial."

Times [London] Lit Sup p205 Mr 26 '49 1100w

JUTA, JAN. Look out for the ostriches! tales of South Africa; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 177p $2.50 Knopf

916.8 South Africa—Description and travel 49-11077

Twelve sketches of the author's childhood on the hills and veld of South Africa. The title chapter has appeared in print before in the Atlantic and Reader's Digest. Glossary.

Booklist 46:142 D 15 '49

Reviewed by Agatha Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 30w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 17 '49 300w

"Older boys and girls whose imaginations have already been stirred by their natural surroundings will enjoy the exotic flavor of Look Out for the Ostriches; kids hemmed in by steel and stone stand in daily, positive need of it, or another book like it."

+ Commonweal 51:193 N 18 '49 130w

"The fascination of this book is hard to analyze; it has much of the magic of W. H. Hudson's Green Mansions and Little Boy Lost. . . It is a rare experience in reading. The Henry Pitz illustrations have the strength, the poetry, the imaginative quality it needs."

+ Kirkus 17:475 S 1 '49 170w

"A beautifully told recollection of the author's boyhood. Although there are tense and dramatic moments with snakes, ostriches, and quicksands, this book will appeal most to the nature lover, the reader who enjoys the Teale books." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1549 O 15 '49 90w

"This book is a series of essays centering around the author's boyhood in Capetown. Written in a quietly beautiful style, they reveal keen powers of observation, a genuine love of nature, and a remarkable penchant for hair-raising adventure. . . Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 100w

"This unusual book, beautiful in both text and illustrations, is primarily for adults, but also for intelligent teen-agers with an interest in the fascinating wild animals of South Africa." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 13 '49 290w

"Here is an informing picture of South Africa, interpretive of its Dutch colonial way of life as well as of its rich nature lore. Discriminating high school readers will find it both unusual and satisfying." I. S.

+ N Y Times p28 N 13 '49 130w

"An artist looking back nostalgically on his childhood in South Africa writes a rambling, flavorsome book on its people, animals, and folklore. The information and personal history are interesting, and both the writing and the illustrations are delightful."

+ New Yorker 25:185 D 3 '49 50w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 70w

"A sensitive and often beautifully expressed record of birds and snakes and animals." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 40w

K

KABERLEIN, JOSEPH JAMES. Triangulation short-cut layouts; a textbook and working guide and practical and modern methods for laying out and forming patterns used for blower-exhaust systems, heating and air conditioning; mathematical formulas applied to sheet-metal work. 290p $5 Bruce pub.

621.792 Sheet metal work—Pattern making 48-10506

"Step-by-step processes developed out of author's practical and teaching experience. Clear, simple explanation makes it possible and easy to follow the layout steps in the illustrations. 151 plates present modern methods for laying out and forming patterns by use of triangulation for blower exhaust systems, heating and air conditioning. Useful tables." Library J

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1824 D 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:552 Ap 1 '49 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:90 N '48

KAFKA, FRANZ. Diaries, 1914-1923; ed. by Max Brod. 343p $3.75 Schocken

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (48-6432)

The second and final volume of the diaries of Kafka, containing the entries made during the last nine years of his life.

Booklist 45:209 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 D 4 '49 140w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 30 '49 1150w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle

Commonweal 50:227 Je 10 '49 750w

Kirkus 17:42 Ja 15 '49 60w

"Presents the same good editorial technique accomplished in the first volume published last year. Essential for understanding the abstractionist author, this volume is naturally more mature in its determined and exceptionally descriptive writing. Although the stylistic gloom of its author is sometimes overwhelming, book is interesting for its highly imaginative sketches." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:197 F 1 '49 130w

"If anything, the diaries seem to me to vindicate that approach to his work which has, in different ways, been suggested by Hannah Arendt and some of the French existentialists: that Kafka constructed models of universalized reality; that he was concerned largely with the human side of the man-God, man-nature, and man-society relationships; and that it is always the human situation raised to the purity of its essential function and stripped of secondary contingencies rather than any idea about or explanation of that situation which is at the core of his work." Irving Howe

Nation 168:248 F 26 '49 900w

Reviewed by Harry Levin

New Repub 120:25 F 7 '49 550w

Reviewed by Giles Romilly

New Statesman & Nation 38:390 O 8 '49 450w

Reviewed by J. B. Martin

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 1 '49 900w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory

N Y Times p15 Ap 10 '49 500w

"Max Brod has handled the material with great care, even to the point of passing for publication several passages in which Kafka expresses dissatisfaction with his friend Max Brod."

+ New Yorker 24:96 F 5 '49 120w

Reviewed by Claude Hill

Sat R of Lit 32:37 F 26 '49 600w

Time 53:106 F 14 '49 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p490 Jl 29 '49 1350w

KAFKA, JOHN. Sicilian street. 212p $3 Coward-McCann
49-6145

Story of a street in New York city populated by Sicilians who retain many of the manners and customs of the old country. Central in the life of the people and influencing strongly the course of one girl's love affairs, is the puppet theatre where a play based on Orlando Furioso goes on for months and years.

Booklist 46:83 N 1 '49
Kirkus 17:437 Ag 15 '49 180w

"The background which the author has chosen for 'Sicilian Street' is fascinating, and the idea behind the novel has great imaginative value. Unfortunately, however, the point of the book is almost totally lost in a welter of bad, frequently amateurish, writing. The book's narrative structure is inexpert. The characters remain unreal and wooden throughout, and the colorful quality of the setting is never adequately brought to life." Blythe Morley
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p31 S 25 '49 280w

"This nimble author may gloss over the dire poverty of these migrant peasants a bit too glibly; his actual hero and heroine may seem rather pale, when matched with the antics of 'Orlando Furioso.' The charm of the past, dictating the destiny of these people in advance, more than atones for the dusty present. So, for that matter, does the author's own easy style—and his calm assurance that any good story can be fun, no matter how often it repeats itself." C. V. Terry
+ — N Y Times p36 S 11 '49 360w
San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 20 '49 400w
Sat R of Lit 32:27 D 17 '49 230w
Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 180w

KAGEN, SERGIUS, comp. Music for the voice; a descriptive list of concert and teaching material. (Field of music) 507p $5 Rinehart
781.97 Songs—Bibliography 49-7316

"Sergius Kagen, teacher, coach, and famous accompanist [is] now on the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music. . . Here, in convenient, sensible arrangement, are hundreds of pages of useful information about vocal repertoire. The purpose and limitations of the book as a guide for singers, teachers, and coaches are specified in the preface. The book lists, by composers, the titles of thousands of songs, arias, and miscellaneous vocal compositions. In addition, it furnishes explicit details as to the compass of the voice part, and gives a general idea of the tessitura involved. Editorial descriptions of the nature of the music are found in adjoining columns." Music Lib Assn Notes

"Minor errors in giving the compass of songs have been noted fairly frequently, but not enough to detract from the over-all worth of the book. It should be given to all young singers with serious intentions with the requirement that they learn a previously unfamiliar good song at least once a month." Paul Hume
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:316 Mr '49 480w
Reviewed by Roland Gelatt
Sat R of Lit 32:62 Ja 29 '49 50w

KAHMANN, MRS MABLE (CHESLEY). Gypsy melody. 313p $2.50 Random house 49-11040

This novel for older girls tells the story of Reni, the gipsy, her love for Kashi and her hate for non-gipsies, and how her music and Kashi's will power finally brought her to understanding of Gajo ways.

Booklist 46:84 N 1 '49

"A fine story for older girls." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:422 S '49 60w

"A mature story, humorous at times, with excellent characterization and topnotch writing. An unusual story for middle teens."
+ Kirkus 17:363 Jl 15 '49 160w

"There is plenty of humor in the book, as well as a colorful picture of a strange way of life." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1553 O 15 '49 40w

"All the incidents of gypsy travel, fortune-telling, knowledge of horses, taking part in a cheap Southern carnival, sound convincing and add interest to a good love story." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 N 13 '49 140w

"This is a romantic book in both senses of the term. Its racy characters move against a rich background of gypsy lore, described with a knowledgeable humor and affection. For teen-age girls." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 180w
Wis Lib Bul p15 D '49

KAHN, ELY JACQUES. Who, me? [introd. by Irwin Shaw; il. by Whitney Darrow, jr]. 238p $2.75 Harper
818 49-7694

A collection of thirty of the author's short New Yorker pieces, dating from 1937 to 1948. The topics range from the problem of a mouse in the radiator to the experience of attending a Newport debut. At the end of each article is a note sometimes explanatory, often autobiographical.

Booklist 45:239 Mr 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"For gentler tastes in humor, these have an easygoing, effortless charm, [and] are at all times relaxing."
+ Kirkus 16:653 D 15 '48 160w
Reviewed by E. P. Nichols
Library J 74:124 Ja 15 '49 100w

"In his gentle mockery there is an irony that is free from venom; a response to life composed of geniality, sharp observation and a sort of deference. He knew what he was about when he called this book Who, Me?. . The author has added footnotes to his compositions and confessions. They make a smooth mortar for his variegated bricks that are never brickbats." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 13 '49 360w

"'Who, Me?' is considerably more than a book of funny stories. It is, in its reportage of odd minutiae in the news, an urban and entertaining mirror of our times." Al Hine
+ N Y Times p20 F 27 '49 400w

"All in all, it's a civilized collection, and those who know Mr. Kahn already for his magazine writing will need no further tip to go get the book." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 25 '49 600w
Reviewed by Horace Sutton
— Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ap 9 '49 550w

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. Education of free men. 332p $5 Farrar, Straus
370.1 Education—Philosophy 49-49023

"An essay toward a philosophy of education for Americans." (Subtitle) In it the author reports progress in an inquiry upon which he has been engaged for many years. During his career Professor Kallen has taught at Princeton, Harvard and the University of Wisconsin, and is now Chairman of the Department of Philosophy and Psychology at The New School for Social Research in New York City. Index.

Booklist 46:151 Ja 1 '50

"This volume reflects a passionate and fervent faith in the validity for education and for civilization of that conception of the equality of all men which was first announced to the world in the Declaration of Independence. Like the authors of that document, Professor Kallen has a fundamental belief in the rationality of men and a deep-seated optimism about their

KALLEN, H. M.—Continued
ultimate perfectibility. This is why he stresses the importance of making our system of schools worthy of free men and capable of preserving and extending their freedom. It is to be hoped that his fine American idealism will be justified by the future course of human events." S. W. Rudy
+ Christian Science Monitor p24 D 1 '49 700w

"Of first-rank importance." M. E. Monroe
+ Library J 75:106 Ja 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by Benjamin Fine
N Y Times p7 Ja 1 '50 500w

"This is a book about America and the education it needs to carry out the American Idea. It is a searching book, a critical book, but also a constructive one." A. D. Henderson
+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 D 17 '49 1100w
School & Society 70:336 N 19 '49 30w

"This is a book of scholarship and profound insight. It says scores of things that need to be pondered. If, in the civil war of the spirit, the idea of a society of free men is to win, it is considerations like these that must help us to the victory." H. A. Overstreet
+ Survey 85:611 N '49 2000w

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. Liberal spirit; essays on problems of freedom in the modern world. 242p $3 Cornell univ. press
323.4 Liberty 48-7953
For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Anyone acquainted with Mr. Kallen's writings will be prepared to find concepts carefully defined which are commonly employed loosely or vaguely. The present book is typical in this respect. It is rich in sharp definitions, definitions which do not end the quest for insight, but point the way to further exploration." M. C. Otto
+ Ann Am Acad 263:256 My '49 360w
Current Hist 16:102 F '49 50w

"The material is too random in both style and content to provide either satisfactory reading or a clear picture of just what it is that Professor Kallen wants done toward the preservation of freedom. There are, to be sure, flights of oratorical prose which resound with a fervor of praiseworthy conviction. But the struggle for freedom today needs more than enthusiastic acclamation; at this game, the enemies of freedom can beat us hands down." Glenn Negley
— + Ethics 59:228 Ap '49 120w

"Though written and delivered at various occasions over an unspecified period of time, [these essays] fit together nicely as a book. The argument seldom wanders from the point, and the style though encumbered here and there with Latin and some few verbal acrobatics, never loses dignity or takes you far off the ground." A. W. Griswold
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:37 My 14 '49 950w

"These nine essays are a stimulating analysis of the problem of liberty in the modern world."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:432 D '48 200w

KANDEL, ISAAC LEON. Impact of the war upon American education [prepared under the auspices of the Am. council of learned societies]. 285p $4.25 Univ. of N.C. press
370.973 Education—U.S. World war, 1939-1945—Education and the war 49-261

A study of the effect of the war on the schools and colleges of the United States, and the role of education in helping to win the war. The author is an authority in the field of international education. Material is arranged under headings: Leadership in time of crisis; Educational deficiencies revealed by the war; Secondary education for all; Higher education; Liberal education and the college curriculum; Education and the armed forces; International cultural relations; Lessons of the war. Index.

Reviewed by William Barrett
Atlantic 183:91 Ap '49 420w

Reviewed by L. R. Miller
Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 140w

Reviewed by Benjamin Fine
N Y Times p6 Ja 30 '49 800w
School & Society 69:22 Ja 8 '49 270w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:201 Je '49 280w

KANE, FRANK. Green light for death. 218p $2.50 Washburn
49-2903
Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 29 '49 20w

"Pretty tough, very fast, and a good Grade B." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p33 Ap 24 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 1 '49 100w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS. Queen New Orleans, city by the river. 374p il $5 Morrow
976.335 New Orleans 49-10862

Informal history of New Orleans stressing picturesque, colorful personalities and events from its founding in the early 18th century, to the present day Carnival season. Index.

Booklist 46:24; 46 S 15 '49; O 1 '49

"Of all the books about New Orleans, this is surely the best." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun O 10 '49 500w

"I don't believe a poor book could be written about New Orleans, most glamorous of American cities. But despite the competition, and there have been any number of good books in the last three years, Harnett Kane's is right out in front. He seems to have inherited the mantle of Lyle Saxon."
+ Kirkus 17:417 Ag 1 '49 290w

"When you've finished you will realize that not only is New Orleans a unique city but that Mr. Kane has held you engrossed with its story. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 100w
Nation 169:450 N 5 '49 20w

"There have been so many New Orleans books—four or five a year is a regular thing—that we cannot expect any New Orleans book to be new. 'Queen New Orleans' is not. There is nothing in it that has not been told before, not once but many times. . . Still, somehow just as New Orleans is perennially young, in spite of demonstrably flaking walls and demonstrably sagging galleries—there is always a welcome for another New Orleans book." E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 O 9 '49 700w

"Mr. Kane writes with clarity, humor and understanding. The result is a book for those who know New Orleans as well as for those unfortunates who do not." Allan Taylor
+ N Y Times p40 O 23 '49 600w

"In place of the usual bibliography, Mr. Kane appends to his text a chapter on suggested trips in and around New Orleans. Because he knows his city so well, he has been able to show it in all of its manifestations, as a great genre picture, as an attitude, as a gallant gesture. The book is illustrated with fine photographs." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 30 '49 650w
Sat R of Lit 32:52 N 19 '49 100w

KANE, HENRY. Hang by your neck. 237p $2 Simon & Schuster
49-9611
Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 16 '49 50w
Kirkus 17:444 Ag 15 '49 80w

"If you're fed to the teeth with the besotted and besexed antics of the tough boys, you'd better steer clear of Henry Kane; he's determined to outdo anything else in the field, so resolutely that I've sometimes suspected him of deliberate parody. But if you insist on bosoms and brandies with your murders, you'll find Kane far more rewarding than most of his competitors. . . Toughness has become by now as mannered and artificial as the British house-party murder; but on Kane it looks pretty good." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p29 S 18 '49 270w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p33 O 16 '49 60w

Sat R of Lit 32:41 S 24 '49 40w

"Mr Kane writes with verve and with understanding of plot and timing. Even if you don't particularly like the author's case-hardened detective, Peter Chambers, he rings true and solves the problem before the house, which is most of what matters." D. F. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 50w

KANE, HENRY BUGBEE. Wild world tales. 130p il $2.75 Knopf

591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 49-8655

Contains the complete text and illustrations of three stories previously published: The Tale of the Whitefoot Mouse (1940), The Tale of the Promethea Moth (1942) and The Tale of the Crow (1943).

Booklist 45:360 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun My 28 '49 50w

"Knowledge, humor, patience, and love of wildlife all went into the making of this book. The photographs will interest younger children, but the book is not limited to any special age group. Eight to eighty will find it interesting and rewarding." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 14 '49 240w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:297 Jl '49 40w

Kirkus 17:208 Ap 15 '49 70w

New Yorker 25:165 D 3 '49 60w

KANT, IMMANUEL. Critique of practical reason, and other writings in moral philosophy; tr. and ed. with an introd. by Lewis White Beck. 369p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

193.2 Ethics 49-7500

New translations of most of Kant's major works, except his Metaphysics of Morals, and there are selections from that. Included are The Critique of Practical Reason; Foundations of the Metaphysics of Morals; An Inquiry into the Distinctness of the Principles of Natural Theology and Morals; and Perpetual Peace. Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 45:226 Mr 1 '49

Christian Century 66:439 Ap 6 '49 140w

"An excellent version, in excellent English, of Kant's moral philosophy, but it is also an ideal introduction to Kant's philosophy as a whole." H. W. Schneider

+ Crozer Q 26:279 Jl '49 300w

"Check of two or three key passages seems to indicate that the translator has succeeded very well in constructing an English version which is readable, intelligible, and at the same time faithful to the original." Charner Perry

+ Ethics 59:229 Ap '49 110w

Reviewed by Arthur Child

J Religion 29:245 Jl '49 650w

"Lewis White Beck, of Lehigh University, has done a fine, scholarly job in his translation and editing of Kant's Critique of Practical Reason. . . His introduction alone makes this book of great value." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 D 11 '49 90w

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Good family. 150p $2 Coward-McCann

49-8913

A novelette describing the life of a family during the depression years. The mother, Martha, "pawned her engagement ring to pay for the abortion she felt she must have since her husband was without a job. Finally, unable to bring herself to have the operation, she gave birth to twins and never regretted it. And when the daughter married, Martha extracted a promise: no matter how tight the budget she would not destroy a life." (Booklist)

Booklist 45:254; 314 Ap 1 '49; My 15 '49

Chicago Sun p6X Jl 3 '49 60w

"Mr. Kantor has always written with sympathy, and that quality is certainly not lacking here; but the small, daily details of family life, which may amount to a good chapter, do not build up a whole, rounded book where characters are not merely affectionately presented but are developed to the fullest capacities of the theme."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 My 12 '49 180w

"This seems to lack the integration and rounded quality of most of MacKinlay Kantor's writing—almost it reads like the skeleton of a larger project rather than a finished book. . . Nice human touches of life in a small town. . . But one feels that at no point does [Kantor] cut below the surface of a superficial story of a happy marriage and parenthood."

— + Kirkus 17:119 Mr 1 '49 160w

"A sweet and homely story written with delicacy and warm sympathy, but too brief, too sketchy to hold interest or allow the reader to become intimately acquainted with any member of the family." Anne Whitmore

+ — Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 100w

"By a little trick of plot, Mr. Kantor ingeniously turns a concrete, very human little story into a bold affirmation of his faith in life itself, whatever the cost in woe or worry." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 1 '49 550w

"The plot of this short novel is the plot of life itself. Yet as written in 'The Good Family' it seems curiously unreal. The characters do not emerge as real people; the locales have no distinctive flavor. And instead of showing how his characters develop, the author simply tells us that they did. The book is like a well-written movie scenario which needs mood lighting, sensitive directing, warm acting and a good dialogue writer to bring it to life." Betty Smith

— N Y Times p24 My 8 '49 320w

"Warm-hearted, vaguely nostalgic, this is a story which moves along pretty much the same way life itself moves along for most families. And for that reason, though it is rather ordinary, it will leave you feeling faintly happy. . . For all its good intentions, 'The Good Family' does not manage to be at all important. Its characters, though they lead a credible life, might well have escaped from second-rate magazine fiction, and the solid sentiment in which they were conceived deteriorates, as they are born and grow, into mere sentimentality. They lack fire and sparkle, these people, and the very quality which makes them potentially important—that is, their averageness—defeats the purpose of their story, because it is improperly utilized. There is no effective climax—no depth, no dimension." N. G. Chaikin

— + Sat R of Lit 32:36 My 7 '49 430w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 170w

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Wicked water; an American primitive. 216p $2.75 Random house

49-7139

Character study of a western bad man, a killer hired by some of the big cattlemen to rid the country of the homesteaders who were beginning to move into the range country. For a time a goodhearted woman loved him, but when Bus Crow killed a child, she would stand no more, and the killer was hanged as a murderer.

Booklist 45:97; 192 N 15 '48; F 1 '49

KANTOR, MACKINLAY—Continued

"Kantor has a gift for making his period and background live. And beneath a cruel story, there's a tenuous thread of compassion."
Kirkus 16:580 N 1 '48 230w

"Unpleasant novel. . . It might have more merit as a script for a western movie of the gory type. No, the story is not a complete failure. There is suspense, realistic atmosphere, at least one good characterization (Bus Crow), and a fast-moving, if too pat, plot; yet it is unworthy of this author who has done considerably better before." Clarence Gorchels
— + Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 80w

"MacKinlay Kantor's killer is not a particularly rewarding figure except as a highly competent murderer. 'Wicked Water' was written, no doubt, to chill the reader's marrow. Somehow, it doesn't penetrate."
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Ja 30 '49 270w

"Despite the author's half-hearted attempt to unite all the conflicts in the final roundup, he seems not to know what, if anything, he has demonstrated. The story ends in a jumble of irrelevant little ironies—ironies which have been so mechanically effected as to be pointless. And just where Mr. Kantor's sympathies lie is anybody's guess." MacLennan Farrell
— N Y Times p25 F 6 '49 320w

"Not the best novel that has been written about the West, and not quite on a level with Mr. Kantor's best work, being underkeyed and a little mechanical in some of its contrivances, 'Wicked Water' is still an interesting and honest piece of writing that leaves the reader with something to think about." D. L. Morgan
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:17 F 12 '49 500w

KAPLAN, MILTON ALLEN. Radio and poetry. 333p $4.50 Columbia univ. press 791.4 Radio plays. Radio and literature
49-10577

"The use of poetry and the techniques of the newly evolved radio verse play are studied to determine the reasons for poetry's successes and failures on the air. The author thinks that poetry has a possibility for popular appeal but that the commercialism of radio has been the greatest handicap to its development. The section on the techniques of verse plays and adapting verse to radio are valuable for radio writers or program planners." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:44 O 1 '49

"The history of poetry on radio, and the relation of poetry to this art form, is minutely and valuably studied in 'Radio and Poetry.'" Leo Kennedy
+ Chicago Sun p53 D 5 '49 150w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 169:426 O 29 '49 850w

KARASZ, ILONKA, il. Twelve days of Christmas [song] in pictures. [29p] $1.50 Harper 783.65 Folk songs, English 49-11875

"Ilonka Karasz has set the verses of [this] lovely old carol against twelve pictures which combine modern technique with the exuberance of the medieval tradition. The first picture is of one partridge in a pear tree, then to the succeeding pictures is added, in order, each of those gifts which 'my true love sent to me,' until we see in grand finale the twelve drummers drumming, the lords a-leaping, the maids a-milking and all the other thoughtful presents." N Y Times

Booklist 46:129 D 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p17 D 10 '49 170w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 D 11 '49 120w

+ Commonweal 51:188 N 18 '49 90w

"An exquisite book, too fragile for general handling, and with an appeal that is perhaps at an adult level—or anyhow at the level when appreciation of folk material is beginning. . . A beautiful piece of book-making."
+ Kirkus 17:626 N 15 '49 160w

"A distinguished piece of bookmaking. Recommended." R. O. Bostwick
+ Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 80w

"It is a charming, unusual book, fortunately with the music at the end." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 11 '49 110w

"One of the most beautiful books of the year. . . If there be any fault at all it is that the colors are a shade too pale for the vigor of the lines, but to many eyes that will seem to be quibbling, for the whole effect is as charming and gay as is the music, which is also included." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p42 D 4 '49 140w
+ New Yorker 25:162 D 3 '49 60w

"A charming and delightful version of the traditional English Christmas song, this beautiful book shows Miss Karasz' artistry at its highest."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '49 150w

"Ilonka Karasz will be remembered for her design and illustration of 'The Heavenly Tenants,' although more people probably know her through her cover designs for The New Yorker. In this book she has taken one of the loveliest and most popular of the old Christmas carols and made it into a thing of beauty and a joy forever. . . The color is soft and rich, and on the last two pages is the music for the song. Here are art and music and an old tradition for young and old, all between the covers of one book. Surely it is a book that few people can resist." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 N 12 '49 180w

"There is perfect harmony between the delicate, pastel colored drawings and the flavor of this well-beloved old-English carol."
+ Wis Lib Bul p12 D '49

KARASZ, MARISKA (MRS D. A. PETERSON). Adventures in stitches [a new art of embroidery] phot. by R. B. Allison. 95p $3.85 Funk
746.44 Embroidery 49-10469

Using simple diagrams and brief text, gives step-by-step explanations of the basic stitches in creative embroidery. Index to stitches.

Booklist 46:30 S 15 '49
Bookmark 9:27 N '49 40w
Kirkus 17:507 S 1 '49 90w

KARIG, WALTER, ed. Pig in the parlor; not to mention turtles, skinks, skunks, canaries, cats, ocelots, dogs, white mice & bulbuls; being the story of the Karigs' experiences with what are often referred to as household pets; with pungent & fragrant comment & profuse il. by the several authors; Eleanor, Patty, Keating, Alexis & Robin and whispered asides by Walter Karig. 177p $2.50 Rinehart
636 Pets 49-11542

A humorous chronicle of the animals, domestic or otherwise, belonging to Captain Karig, and the various members of his family—his wife, his two daughters, and the two children of one of the daughters. Illustrated with sketches.

Booklist 46:93 N 15 '49
Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 40w

"Altho the Karigs like animals and vice versa, they do not become stickily sentimental in their tales, thank heaven, and scrambled among the gaily written paragraphs are down-to-earth rules for keeping animals and owners healthy and happy. Anyone of any age who owns, has owned, or longs for a fish, fowl or quadruped friend, will undoubtedly spend Christmas day reading this book if Santa is thoughtful enough to leave it." Marge Lyon
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 20 '49 550w

"A friendly family solidarity here, a genuine feeling and respect for their pets, qualified by their limitations, and some advice makes this an appealing account."
+ Kirkus 17:527 S 15 '49 120w

"This is an exceedingly light book, charming and humorous, if, as I say, you really like animal stories." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:1600 O 15 '49 130w

"It is not necessary to love animals in order to like this book, but anybody who can read any six pages of it without laughing must have a secret sorrow. . . For all the hilarity, these experiences give beginners in breeding, swapping or otherwise dealing in animals more concentrated advice than most manuals for this purpose." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 D 4 '49 380w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p26 N 6 '49 450w

KARIG, WALTER, and others. Battle report [v.5] Victory in the Pacific; prepared from official sources [il. sel. and ed. by E. John Long and others, charts and maps drawn by Thomas J. Salane]. 548p $5 Rinehart

940.545 World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations (44-47969)

"Now the story ends. The fifth volume of 'Battle Report,' prepared like its predecessors from official sources, carries the adventures of the United States Navy in World War II from Leyte to Tokyo, and its final words are Halsey's final words to the men of his fleet: 'Again and again—God bless you and "Well done." ' " (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 46:187 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler
Chicago Sun p35 D 28 '49 20w

"A masterly summary with enough of news value, enough of anecdotal and human interest, to add color, drama, motion to the record of history."
+ Kirkus 17:527 S 15 '49 130w

"Earlier volumes have been well received and this one is recommended for larger libraries." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 74:1754 N 15 '49 130w

"To me it seems that Captain Karig's series, taken as a whole, constitutes a monument worthy of the men whose great deeds and sufferings it records. One may look elsewhere for the technical analyses: but here is what the naval war was like and it is an amazing and an endlessly thrilling story." Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 1 '50 1000w

"To the authors 'Well done.' For the massive labor they set out to do they have done very well indeed." Ira Wolfert
+ N Y Times p47 N 30 '49 650w

+ New Yorker 25:60 D 24 '49 120w

Time 54:86 N 28 '49 280w

KAROLYI, ERNA M. Summer to remember; il. by [the author]. (Whittlesey house publication) 128p $2 McGraw

49-7693

"A Hungarian-born artist, now an American citizen, has looked back into her own childhood for this story of a ten-'and-a-half'-year-old girl. It was after the first World War that the generous Swiss people opened their homes as they have done again more recently to children from war-torn countries who were in need of nourishing food and invigorating air. Margitka was one of those children and her lovely holiday with the Heim family, for whom she did an important service, is happily recorded." (Horn Bk) For grades 4-6.

Booklist 45:248 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Je 4 '49 130w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12A Ap 14 '49 270w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:133 Mr '49 80w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 25:198 My '49 80w

"There is mutual respect between grown-ups and children, a warm picture of wholesome family life, a glimpse of how other people are living today."
+ Kirkus 17:59 F 1 '49 130w

"Good characterization, plausible plot, and a child's point of view of post-war Hungary and Switzerland. Attractive black-and-white illustrations by the author. Recommended for ages 8-11." M. M. Smith
+ Library J 74:556 Ap 1 '49 100w

"Little girls will enjoy Margitka, whose success in the well-to-do home, especially in teaching the little sister to talk, makes a pleasant piece of character study. The book has both a thoughtful and a cheerful atmosphere." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 5 '49 180w

"A very tender, a lovely story for little girls of 8 to 11." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 20 '49 140w

"This is a moving, well-told story that is especially timely today."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 9 '49 110w

Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 100w

KARR, JEAN. Zane Grey, man of the West. 229p il $2.50 Greenberg

B or 92 Grey, Zane 49-11953

The life story of this writer of popular western stories, sport stories, and books for boys. Contains a list of Zane Grey's books. No index.

Booklist 46:158 Ja 1 '50

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 11 '49 140w

"Millions have read his more than sixty Western novels and a sympathetic, wellrounded biography of the man could be a genuine contribution to current literature. This book falls far short of those requirements. No sources are given and the material seems to have been gleaned almost entirely from Grey's own books of his travels in the West and his hunting and fishing adventures." Hoffman Birney
— N Y Times p20 Ja 8 '50 400w

Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 260w

KASENKINA, MRS OKSANA STEPANOVNA. Leap to freedom [tr. from the Russian]. 295p $3 Lippincott

B or 92 49-11181

Autobiography of the Russian teacher, Oksana Kasenkina, from her childhood in Russia under the Czar, thru the years of her marriage, describing the loss of her husband and children, her teaching experiences in a Soviet school in America, and finally her escape from the Soviet consulate in New York City.

"Her story is a poignant and convincing one, translated into delicate and charming prose." Clorinda Clarke
+ Cath World 170:320 Ja '50 250w

Reviewed by Agnes Jacques
— Chicago Sun N 17 '49 470w

"Interesting, but the emotional style detracts from its effectiveness." Donald Wasson
Library J 74:1600 O 15 '49 100w

" 'Leap to Freedom' is not, and could not be, an objective record. . . No one who has undergone the sorrows, suffering and humiliations of its author could be expected to write objectively. It is an apparently sincere and often moving record of personal experience in a world so terribly topsy-turvy that it will have the quality of a nightmare for readers, as it has had for Mrs. Kasenkina herself." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 30 '49 600w

KASENKINA, O. S.—Continued

"Her story of her first faint glimmering of the idea of breaking away from the soul-crushing tyranny which surrounded her, of the slow growth of her hope and determination, of her first abortive attempt to pull free and of her final desperate plunge from a window of the Soviet Consulate into the courtyard below, and into the welcoming arms of America, make up the best part of the book. Even though you know that she did escape, the suspense at the end is terrific." Oriana Atkinson

+ N Y Times p26 O 23 '49 450w

"An unpretentious and candid record that has all the marks of moral sincerity." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 25:74 Ja 7 '50 1300w

"The hand of an experienced sob sister can be seen through the sleek, dramatic and even purple prose. The very title of the book betrays this collaboration. It is a pity for Mrs. Kasenkina is a simple woman who, if permitted to write in her own simple way, might have produced a truly moving story of an ordinary citizen of the Soviet Republic who did not belong to the party." A. B. Simon

— San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 30 '49 800w

"A simple, moving, horrifying book." Martin Ebon

Sat R of Lit 32:25 O 22 '49 550w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 370w

KATKOV, NORMAN. A little sleep, a little slumber. 248p $2.75 Doubleday

49-10145

Portrait of a good man, Lev Simon, as seen thru the eyes of his four sons as he lies on his deathbed. Lev had left Russia, had arrived in Canada, crossed the border into the United States illegally, but there his transgressions ceased. He was a man of honor, proud of his American citizenship, who managed to give his four sons college educations. And so as their father lay dying his sons, grateful and loving, remembered their lives and his.

Booklist 46:34 S 15 '49

"In Lev Simon, Russian Jewish immigrant who brings his wife and child across ten borders to freedom, Katkov creates a father who is worthy of all the honor that four stalwart sons can give. . . With such a protagonist as Lev, it is unfortunate that the profanity, coarseness and vulgarity of many passages in the book prevent its wholehearted recommendation." Clorinda Clarke

+ — Cath World 170:79 O '49 140w

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 18 '49 240w

"The book does give an impression of real people participating in real events, and the writer is concerned not merely with the effect that his characters will have on the readers, but also with the credibility of these people and the seriousness of their predicaments. Because of this, and because he knows intimately the things about which he writes, his book overrides the sentimentality and surpasses the usual run of popular novels." George Miles

+ — Commonweal 50:540 S 9 '49 600w

"It is not easy to convey the very special quality of this in a brief report. It is the sort of book from which you want to tell this story, or that, in much the same way this reader wanted to share the stories that made up I Remember Mama. Too bad it hasn't a title that catches the heartstrings as that title did, for the text has the same sort of pull."

+ Kirkus 17:280 Je 1 '49 170w

"To anybody who is sick of the slick, well constructed, but tinny novels written by the literary engineers of today, this novel is recommended wholeheartedly. It is built a little clumsily; . . . its strong and legitimate emotional content occasionally spills over into sentimentality; there are a few patches of overwriting. But it is immensely readable. . . This account of a Jewish immigrant peddler who gave four sons a college education deserves a place in the truly representative stories of the complex American heritage." Hiram Haydn

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ag 7 '49 600w

"If there is sentimentality in this portrait, there is also honesty; if the pigment has been applied lavishly, the form has lost neither clarity nor verisimilitude. Mr. Katkov's nervous, extremely informal prose is serviceable enough to move his story along briskly. One cannot help wishing, however, that the style had more distinction, more poetry. Lev Simon deserves it." Aaron Traister

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 7 '49 320w

"In 'Eagle At My Eyes,' Mr. Katkov's first novel, there was Joe Goodman, and his Pa. Here we are reading of Lev Simon. But Pa Goodman and Lev Simon are the same. They are not merely similar—it is the same man. . . Katkov is good. He can probably do it again and again. . . But I want to ask if he ought not to turn now from doing what he has already done perfectly once and twice. . . I ask Mr. Katkov to consider these things, along with my heartfelt admiration for his work." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Ag 13 '49 550w

KATTSOFF, LOUIS OSGOOD. Philosophy of mathematics. 266p il $5 Iowa state college press

510.1 Mathematics—Philosophy 48-6084

"This book presents a survey of contemporary theories of the foundations of mathematics and expounds in considerable technical detail the ideas of many authors whose contributions are not readily accessible to students of the field. The Preface explains that the book 'is based upon courses in philosophy of mathematics given at the University of North Carolina to students whose knowledge of mathematics was that of an undergraduate senior and whose philosophy was of equal order.'" (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Indexes.

"This book offers a survey, presumably for beginning students, of recent contributions to the foundations of mathematics, and only incidentally (chiefly in the final chapter on 'Mathematics and Reality') does it present any definite 'philosophy of mathematics' such as the title promises. It is not a valuable performance on either score, and testifies more to Professor Kattsoff's extensive reading than to his powers of comprehension and careful exposition." E. N.

J Philos 46:24 Ja 6 '49 800w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:375 S '48 380w

KATZ, HYMAN H. Technical sketching and visualization for engineers; il. by the author. 163p $5 Macmillan

744.42 Mechanical drawing 49-11004

"A good exposition of the techniques of freehand pictorial sketching which are useful in visualizing mechanical ideas and designs. There is also some discussion of clay and cardboard models. Methods which can be followed to produce the fairly precise sketches which are most useful in the representation of machines and machine parts are emphasized. The book is intended for draftsmen and engineers already familiar with mechanical drawing." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 46:139 D 15 '49

N Y New Tech Bks 34:39 N '49

KAUFFMANN, STANLEY. Hidden hero. 342p $3.50 Rinehart

49-10295

"A novel about a man and a woman who each must make a kind of atonement and reassertion for past cowardice." (Publisher's note) The scene is Mexico, and Connecticut.

"Physical and psychological action, sustained at a highly readable, popular level."
+ Kirkus 17:370 Jl 15 '49 180w

"Problems are finally resolved but author's suggestion of a 'happy ending' detracts from the serious aspect of story. Not a must but larger collections will include it." E. S. Brown
Library J 74:1322 S 15 '49 140w

"In many ways 'The Hidden Hero' is an engrossing novel. Mr. Kauffmann has made his search so tense that the reader is sucked into examining every clew and reading quickly on to discover what comes next. The author reveals skillfully in absentia the character of the quiet, conscience-stricken man whom Eleanor is hunting through the back country of Mexico. Only in the final meeting, the final comparison and absolution of Eleanor's and Seastrom's problems is the reader let down with a disappointing thud by a pat, easy solution. One regrets the moral absurdity which concludes 'The Hidden Hero,' otherwise an exciting and ingenious book."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 O 2 '49 410w

"Containing all the paraphernalia of a good thriller, 'The Hidden Hero' rises above mere shock to present a picture of the decent human being's hunger for emotional, intellectual and moral integrity. Though the story seems contrived, it has been plotted with finesse. . . Mr. Kauffmann's novel is enhanced by a discerning eye for the imponderables of human behavior, and an ability to etch portraits whose individuality makes them stick in the memory. His prose is lucid, graceful and precise; one regrets that he did not stray from his narrative to give us more pictures of Mexico and its people. 'The Hidden Hero' has all the elements of popularity. Yet it is as intellectually stimulating as it is emotionally satisfying." Aaron Traister
+ N Y Times p6 S 18 '49 340w

"There is an air of contrivance in 'The Hidden Hero' that is glossed over by Mr. Kauffmann's gifts as a story-teller. Nevertheless, it is a dangerous experiment to keep the reader from meeting the hero of a novel until the next to the last chapter. . . Another difficulty with the story is that the entire course of the novel leads to a scene that never comes off, like a melodrama in which the last act is missing. . . The last act would have been worth waiting for if Mr. Kauffmann had chosen to write it." Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:21 S 24 '49 450w

KAUFMAN, LENARD. Tender mercy. 257p $3 Creative age
49-7338

A story of blackmail. The Ballards were so dependent on Elizabeth Powell's care of their feeble-minded son that when her husband appeared on the scene Mr Ballard paid out large sums of money to keep him from taking Elizabeth away. It is Mrs Ballard who finds the tragic solution to the problem.

"An admirably tense, suspenseful piece of storytelling. . . The ensuing drama of blackmail is adroitly underwritten and excitingly plotted. The characters, without being deeply explored, are firmly defined and psychologically persuasive. Mr. Kaufman's is a modest but effective novel."
+ Atlantic 183:92 My '49 210w

"This is Grand Guignol presented by the publishers (and perhaps by the author) as a Serious Work of Art. It isn't." James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun Mr 18 '49 80w

Kirkus 17:35 Ja 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by R. E. Kingery
Library J 74:126 Ja 15 '49 130w

"Mr. Kaufman's short novel, a psychological horror story, moves with clarity and speed, and as each character steps into the light each assumes a full length proportion. Yet it is as a study of evil that 'Tender Mercy' is best read, of evil as it enters an atmosphere of comfort and benevolence." Marya Zaturenska
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 27 '49 600w

"The despair of Aaron's mother, the dreams with which she drugs herself; his father's more patient suffering; their groundless feeling of guilt; their devotion and pity—these things are all very real. And Aaron and the nurse are especially well done. But the villainy and evil are so extreme that 'Tender Mercy' degenerates into melodrama." Catharine Brody
— + N Y Times p24 F 27 '49 180w

"Mr. Kaufman's style has a nice drive to it and he knows not only how to pose an interesting moral problem but how to make a narrative of it."
+ New Yorker 25:93 Mr 5 '49 180w

"Mr. Kaufman is first-rate, a novelist with a sense of responsibility to himself and to his craft. Because he is, he has made a fine, if heart-breaking, novel of this. And his climax, inevitable as it is, will twist the heart strings almost unbearably. Yet it is the only honest way to end the novel." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 18 '49 700w

"Any general conclusions about 'Tender Mercy' would have to admit that it is an immensely readable novel, but not the memorable one which it might have been. Mr. Kaufman has failed to supply enough pertinent details for his characters. He has taken hold of a fascinating situation, led the reader up to a point where a problem has to be faced honestly, only to evade the solution by a melodramatic twist." Siegfried Mandel
Sat R of Lit 32:14 Mr 5 '49 500w

KAVANAGH, PATRICK. Tarry Flynn. 256p $2.75 Devin-Adair
49-11429

Picture of life in a tiny Irish village where Tarry Flynn struggles to live two lives, a peasant farmer and a poet.

"All of this lackadaisical tale is told in a Gaelic-centered prose which is sometimes pleasantly musical; at others, merely imitative of better Irish writings.
Cath World 170:235 D '49 180w

Commonweal 51:254 D 2 '49 80w

"There is almost no plot; the lilt of Irish dialect has charm but is difficult for American readers. And the pattern of Catholic thinking that runs through makes it largely a book for Catholic as well as Irish-American readers."
Kirkus 17:481 S 1 '49 150w

"This is the tender and touching tale of a poor Irish farm and a young peasant, who dreams of the winged Pegasus as he follows a plodding plow horse over his mother's scraggy field. It is told with insight and sensitivity by Patrick Kavanagh, a talented new Irish novelist." Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 N 13 '49 400w

"While Mr. Kavanagh is obviously well acquainted with the Irish earth, his descriptions of what keeps that world going round, instead of being 'of the earth, earthy,' are lamentably close to what a phrase-coiner once called 'Up the garden path, pathy.'" James Stern
— N Y Times p44 N 27 '49 270w

"If there is a fault in the book, it is that Mr. Kavanagh's determination to make his people's speech natural sometimes leaves them spluttering instead of talking. It is worth observing, as a sidelight on Mr. Kavanagh's contrary attitude toward his characters, that while he likes to describe their ragged work clothes with minutest care, he never wastes a syllable on their Sunday attire."
+ — New Yorker 25:132 N 5 '49 200w

"Here is a story whose only fault is that it's perhaps a little too long for its breadth. It is written in the easy, natural style of all good Irish writers. It is a book rich in humor and up to its knees in life, a book which Synge would have relished because its phrases have the apple-and-nut savor, the joy and reality he put into his plays." Horace Reynolds
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 Ja 21 '50 320w

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA (MRS PENROSE FRY). Happy tree [Eng title: Treasures of the snow]. 279p $3 Harper
49-8932

Love story of a lonely English farmer. Some time after his wife's death he realized that he was falling in love with the wife of a neighbor. The absence of the husband, a blizzard and an accident contrived to bring the woman into Kemp's home. The result was Kemp's disillusionment, and after the situation had been explained to the satisfaction of all, Kemp settled down to his spring planting and thoughts of a more suitable wife.

———

Booklist 45:336 Je 1 '49

"Superb economy of words, and plotting and characterization make this latest of Sheila Kaye-Smith's novels seem deceptively simple. It is the smooth-reading simplicity which comes from practiced craftsmanship."
+ Cath World 169:317 Jl '49 200w

"This familiar theme is richly embroidered with descriptions of the southern English landscape, its fields, its weathers, its farmers and their talk. Unfortunately, the vivid circumstantial detail does not quite atone for the central deficiencies in portraiture."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 My 12 '49 150w

"The romance is staidly old-fashioned, but the feel of the English countryside is here again."
+ Kirkus 17:156 Mr 15 '49 200w

"This is a novel that may be recommended with no reservations for its style and content." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:735 My 1 '49 140w

"'The Happy Tree' has the serenity and unassuming integrity that have marked the long line of Sheila Kaye-Smith's novels. As in the earlier books, there is delight in her picture of the countryside and people whose lives are interwoven with it. The simplicity of the story is deceptive, for there is subtlety in her progressive revelation of the conflicts in Alice and in Kemp's relationship to her and to the other three women important in his life." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 15 '49 550w

"This is a pleasant and competent novel which rather lacks warmth and is, for all its polish and sincerity, a little too objective. Too little tension and emotional impact make it a rustic vignette rather than a full-scale painting." Anne Schakne
+ — N Y Times p24 My 22 '49 310w

"Really only an attenuated short story, but the author sketches both the wintry scene and the couple's diffident confusion well."
+ New Yorker 25:111 My 14 '49 130w

"There is in 'The Happy Tree' a pleasant little episode in which the hero and heroine have tea out of an old set of Coleport china. Something of the character of that traditional English ware pervades the newest of Sheila Kaye-Smith's novels. It is surely and delicately turned and its strength is of native earth. In its gentle underglaze is enshrined the idyllic charm of the English countryside." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 My 28 '49 600w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 130w

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA (MRS PENROSE FRY), and STERN, GLADYS BRONWYN. More about Jane Austen. 270p $3.50 Harper
823 Austen, Jane 49-10436

More essays on the life, novels, and times of Jane Austen, similar in character to those in the author's Speaking of Jane Austen (Book Review Digest 1944). Partial contents: "What is it about Jane Austen?", by G. B. Stern; "Her fine eyes . . . were brightened by the exercise", by G. B. Stern; "A complete party of pleasure", by Sheila Kaye-Smith; "The labours of her inferiors", by Sheila Kaye-Smith; Walking-on parts, by Sheila Kaye-Smith and G. B. Stern; Personal appearance, by Sheila Kaye-Smith.

———

Booklist 46:94 N 15 '49

"Probably the best essay in the collection is the first one in which Miss Stern attempts to explain to a 17-year-old friend why Jane Austen gets such a hold on people. Embedded in the humor of this essay is the most perceptive analysis of what makes Jane Austen great that has yet been written." James Brown
+ Chicago Sun N 16 '49 300w

"Miss Kaye-Smith's contributions are perhaps more interesting in content than deft in style, and the book's last chapter, in which she has Jane materialize as one of her novels is acted over the radio, doesn't quite come off. It is a measure both of Jane Austen's excellence and of these writers' insight that, after collaborating on Talking of Jane Austen six years ago, they were able to fill another book with fresh and discerning remarks on the same subject." W. E. G.
+ — Christian Century 66:1200 O 12 '49 210w

"This is a delightful book, much of it like good talk over the teacups. Certainly it is a book primarily for those who have read Jane Austen, all of her. Those who haven't will miss half its fun, for they won't know the people about whom the authors are talking. It is a book by two women about a woman, which, this reviewer is tempted to say, only women will enjoy to the full. It creates a cozy, female world, in which any man, no matter how great his love for Jane, feels a little lubberly and out of place, perhaps because he knows he is there too well understood." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 29 '49 650w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 51:47 O 21 '49 200w

"Happy commentaries, enthusiastic reporting, this is a special hobby book for Austen devotees."
+ Kirkus 17:346 Jl 1 '49 100w

"As in the earlier book the writers have alternate chapters and the talk is easy and informal. When all is read and contemplated however, the Janeite speedily returns to the ineffable novels themselves and wonders why so much is written about the gay author!" K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 130w

"Altogether lovely [book]. . . No Janeite would let the book out of his hand till he had gobbled up every word." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 2 '49 800w

"All very professional, very intramural and, I cannot help feeling, a trifle impertinent. Not that the pair are lacking in perspicacity; they intersperse their literary ping-pong game with some keen observations. . . But what they have done is a stunt, a sort of vaudeville show which I feel the author of 'Pride and Prejudice' would be the first to deplore. You see, I happen to belong to the second school of devotees who wish the crowd would not keep breathing down either my neck or Miss Austen's." Phyllis McGinley
N Y Times p35 O 23 '49 360w

"The authors have written a sequel to 'Speaking of Jane Austen,' which turns out, as so many sequels do, to be slightly less fascinating and slightly more forced than its delightful forerunner. Several of the chapters have the high quality of the first book. . . However, the authors' endless preoccupation with what happened after Emma and Knightley were married, and with what meals were served to whom on what occasions, eventually gets to be a bore."
+ — New Yorker 25:137 O 15 '49 120w

"Speculating upon what may happen to some of the Austen characters seven years after their story ends, Miss Stern lets her imagination run riot in a way that would scarcely please Miss Austen. Delightful though G. B. Stern is in almost everything she does, this is one time she lacks the light touch which speculation of this kind demands. Recently we have had many fine appreciations of Jane Austen by such writers as Elizabeth Bowen, Lord Cecil and Edwin Muir. The pieces in this book scarcely aspire to such distinguished company. But they will bring pleasure to all Janeites." J. V.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p29 O 23 '49 450w

"Even those readers who think they know their Jane Austen thoroughly will find instruction as well as entertainment in Miss Kaye-Smith's and Miss Stern's company." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 D 10 '49 950w

KEELER, MRS KATHERINE (SOUTHWICK). Winter comes to Meadow Brook farm [story and pictures]. 40p $2 Nelson
49-10029

The author's fourth story about Meadow Brook Farm. During the long hard winter, lightened only by Christmas festivities, Farmer Allen thinks of selling the farm; but when spring comes he realizes that no other place would suit him so well.

Kirkus 17:359 Jl 15 '49 80w

"Quiet book, no plot, but much kindness and enjoyment of little things. Attractive format, illustrations which follow the story. Recommended. Second and third-graders will enjoy hearing it, and fourth-graders can read it easily." K. H. MacAlarney
+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 80w

"Mrs. Keeler uses the sort of simple incidents children like, and employs a kind of gentle realism they appreciate. Whether it is farm children who love her stories because they recognize themselves in them, or city children who read them for information that seems romantic, is hard to tell." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 13 '49 180w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 7 '49 180w

KEENAN, JOSEPH HENRY, and KAYE, JOSEPH. Gas tables; thermodynamic properties of air, products of combustion and component gases, compressible flow functions, incl. those of Ascher H. Shapiro and Gilbert M. Edelman. 238p $5 Wiley
536.7 Air. Gases. Thermodynamics
48-11927

"This collection of sixty-four tables is intended primarily for engineers concerned with making calculations of gas-turbine processes. It supersedes an earlier work entitled Thermodynamic Properties of Air [Book Review Digest 1945] The tabulated properties of air, found in the 1945 volume, have been expanded to cover air at lower temperatures; and a base temperature for which enthalpy is zero on the absolute Fahrenheit scale, has now been used in making the calculations. The volume has been further enlarged to include the properties of products of combustion of hydrocarbons, and tables of functions used in analyzing the flow of compressible fluids." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1597 N 1 '48 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:36 N '48

KEENE, DAY. Framed in guilt. 218p $2.50 Mill
49-7010
Detective story.

Kirkus 16:582 N 1 '48 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ja 16 '49 80w

"The story is a great deal better than the atrociously punning title might lead one to hope." I. A.
+ N Y Times p31 Ja 16 '49 130w

"You'll be expecting a lot of things that happen in this one." E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 6 '49 90w

"Agreeable."
Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 30 '49 210w

KEENE, FRANCES W. Keene party book; il. by the author. 253p $2.50 Farrar, Straus
793 Entertaining. Games
49-7553

"A guide to successful parties written by a mother who has evidently had much experience and pleasure in giving parties for her children. Replete with rules of etiquette, menus, party favors and decorations, games and dances." (Library J) Index of games.

Booklist 45:265 Ap 1 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49
Kirkus 16:640 D 1 '48 210w

"Very valuable guide to anyone planning parties for children. Recommended for ages 8-14." J. S. Watts
+ Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 70w

"Mrs. Keene is the mother of four children and has actually accomplished all the things that she tells of in this attractive and informing book. The key to her success is a sentence or two in her foreword: 'The best parties are the result of careful preparation which produces a smoothly-running affair—and need not cost a fortune, either.' "
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Mr 12 '49 180w

KEITH, SIR ARTHUR. New theory of human evolution. 451p $4.75 Philosophical lib.
572 Evolution
49-8725

"This eminent British scientist, now well past his 80th birthday, has been a student of evolution all his adult life. He has given attention not only to the origin of the human species as a development from lower forms of life, but also to the differentiation of man into races and nations (nations, he holds, are anthropological as well as political structures), and to conflicts culminating in large-scale war. . . His theory is 'new' only as a modification of Darwinianism and a supplement to it, not as a substitute for it. His distinctive contribution is his insistence that the evolutionary process takes place only in relatively small groups, isolated from others either by territorial limits or by factors of social repulsion. He therefore calls his doctrine the 'group theory.' The presumption throughout is that the entire process is carried on by natural and resident forces." (Christian Century) Index.

Am Soc R 14:700 O '49 140w
Booklist 45:387 Jl 15 '49

"Waiving the questions of 'design' and motive power, one must say that this treatise, written at or near the close of a great career in science, is a profound study of the evolutionary process." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:654 My 25 '49 550w

Reviewed by John Nance
Hibbert J 47:199 Ja '49 1100w

Reviewed by H. J. Fleure
Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 20 '48 440w

" 'A New Theory of Evolution' does not envision an end to evolutionary change, but it exudes, nevertheless, an air of finality. That may be due to the character of the basic scheme involved. Evolution is sometimes described as a kind of Jacob's ladder, or as a kind of circle in which man crawls to meet himself. It is here described rather as a straight-line equation, the answer to which Sir Arthur has had all the time." Bernard Mishkin
N Y Times p21 Je 12 '49 700w
New Yorker 25:67 Jl 9 '49 200w

"Many of the anthropological viewpoints advanced in this book are strikingly at variance with those held by the majority of Sir Arthur's colleagues and contemporaries (for example, what the author has to say about the Jews as a nation and as a race); but the British scientist is frank enough to admit this disparity. Nonetheless, even when forced to disagree with Sir Arthur's interpretations, the reader will still respect his erudition." D. H.

KEITH, ARTHUR—Continued
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '49 230w

"Sir Arthur is so good and clear an expositor of his doctrines that this book will arouse not only the interest of the general reader, who has been brought up with all the prejudices of his grandfather, but the opposition of anthropologists. But what higher praise can be lavished on a book than that it provokes thinking? This reviewer hopes that Sir Arthur will be widely read not only because he is provocative, but because of his literary skill, his power of persuasion, the courtesy with which he treats his adversaries, and the utter lack of anything that remotely resembles bias or truculence in his treatment of controversial anthropological problems." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 Jl 16 '49 750w

Reviewed by V. G. Childe
Spec 181:146 Jl 30 '48 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p496 S 4 '48 2300w

KEITH, DAVID, pseud. See Steegmuller, F.

KEITHLEY, RALPH. Buckey O'Neill, he stayed with 'em while he lasted. 247p il $3.50 Caxton printers

B or 92 O'Neill, William Owen 49-9510

Biography of William Owen O'Neill, famous in Arizona as newspaper man, editor, businessman, miner, soldier, sheriff, and politician. He first arrived in Arizona territory in the late 1870's, and was killed at San Juan Hill, July 1, 1898. Index.

Booklist 45:398 Jl 15 '49

"This will appeal to the wide western action adventure market—old and young."
+ Kirkus 17:224 Ap 15 '49 150w

"Not too important for the ordinary public library." L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 140w

"The book is a worthwhile addition to Western Americana; a swift-moving action yarn of solid facts; and a confounding document for those who sneer that the West-that-Was never existed except between the gaudy covers of 'Gunsmoke Stories' and its self-perpetuating kindred." W. H. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 25 '49 320w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. This is my son. 236p $2.75 Harper

49-7317

Story of a tenderfoot's experiences with love, murder, lottery rackets, and marijuana rings in Arizona.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49

"'And what is the use of a book,' thought Alice, 'without pictures or conversations?' Mr. Kelland's book has no pictures but it is practically all conversations—brisk, story-telling conversations by an experienced hand, and sure to afford a full evening's entertainment for grown-up Alices and Alecks." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 24 '49 150w

Kirkus 16:604 N 15 '48 120w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 My 1 '49 220w

"Larded with slang, laced with cactus, and basted with conjecture, this is indeed a fit dish for any self-respecting 'Western' palate." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 F 19 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

KELLER, JAMES GREGORY. Three minutes a day; Christopher thoughts for daily living. 365p $2 Doubleday

242 Yearbooks (devotional, etc) 49-11057

"Rev. James Keller, founder of the Christophers . . . has compiled a book of brief modern parables, one for each day of the year. These 365 pieces present moral and spiritual ideas in simple, everyday terms. Each takes no more than a page, some only half a page, and each is followed by a one-sentence suggestion for prayer derived from the particular parable." N Y Times

"It is the kind of book that would appeal to many different types of people; indeed, it must have already registered in the consciousness of a numerous and varied public, for the publishers quote approving comments from Bob Hope, Fulton Oursler, Irene Dunne, Taylor Caldwell, Patrice Munzell, Gene Autry."
+ Cath World 170:161 N '49 120w

"Those looking for a book of devotions for personal use or for reading aloud in the family group will find this a practical and most helpful book."
+ Kirkus 17:540 O 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p38 O 16 '49 180w

KELLEY, JANET AGNES. College life and the mores. 308p $3.75 Teachers college

371.8 Students. U.S.—Social life and customs. Social psychology 49-8119

An analysis of the college campus as a culture and a society. "Patterns of college life are described, with special emphasis on the structure and function of groups that compose the campus community. Students, faculty, and administration receive their due, along with the interrelationships among them." (Am Soc R) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The specific questions set by Dr. Kelley raise doubts as to the worth of her suggested technique in the analysis of campus society and culture. Many are naive and superficial. . . The chief limitation of this book is its apparent failure to realize the difficulty and complexity of the study of society and culture. Schedules cannot take the place of sophisticated knowledge. . . Dr. Kelley deserves real praise, however, for crossing departmental academic lines in pursuit of her problem." H. L. Smith
+ — Am J Soc 55:313 N '49 500w

"To people in academic life, some of this will be painfully familiar. To non-sociologists and people outside the colleges, the book will probably bring new insights and understanding. In that sense, there is something of genuine value to be found here. Sociologists, however, will be annoyed by several things: the indiscriminate conceptual borrowings from their field; the paucity of concrete data (which, perhaps, may not be a fault of the author); and curious terms and usages such as 'cultural mores' (what other kinds are there?) Thus while the book may have a certain educational and administrative value, sociologists are likely to feel that the author has learned the language of sociology without gaining much of its meaning."
Am Soc R 14:570 Ag '49 190w

"It makes fascinating reading for anyone, and should be required reading for everyone directly concerned with the fate of higher education." Carl Withers
+ N Y Times p16 My 15 '49 750w

Reviewed by K. K. Carmichael
Social Forces 28:228 D '49 750w

KELLEY, WALTER PEARSON. Cation exchange in soils. 144p $4.50 Reinhold

631.41 Soils. Cations Agr49-400

"The understanding of cation exchange, a process which enables soils to take up potassium and ammonium, hold them against leaching, and yet make them available for plant food, has undergone considerable change since it was first discovered and named 'base exchange.' This monograph discusses and summarizes present-day knowledge regarding the theories and basic principles of this process." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:552 Ap 1 '49 30w

"It is based on the author's own research and upon a thorough study of the literature of the subject."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:15 Ja '49
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:119 Mr '49 280w

KELLINO, PAMELA (OSTRER), and MASON, JAMES. Cats in our lives; with drawings by James Mason. 199p $2.50 Current bks.
636.88 Cats 49-8201

Sketches of the personalities and lives of the cats which these two authors have loved.

Booklist 45:276 Ap 15 '49

"In form of digressive dialog, this has some humor and not a little information for cat fanciers."
+ Kirkus 17:76 F 1 '49 170w

"This reviewer, an inveterate dog-lover, enjoyed the book thoroughly, and recommends it to almost anyone. You can't help but be entertained." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 150w
Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 30w

"The book is generously illustrated with drawings done by James Mason that I think are remarkably fine cat pictures. For cat lovers the interest of the book is chiefly in the well-known owners of the cats and how they have managed to maintain their family moving about England and from New York to Hollywood and back." John Beecroft
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 17 '49 320w

"The form of the book is most engaging. Mr. Mason writes one chapter, Miss Kellino the next, and these alternations continue throughout. Experiences, for the most part, are joint experiences, and the manners of writing, even to the vocabularies, are not too dissimilar, so that the book has unity and the chapters harmonize agreeably." Carl Van Vechten
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 10 '49 700w

KELLOR, FRANCES ALICE. American arbitration; its history, functions and achievements; foreword by James R. Angell. 262p $3 Harper
347.4 Arbitration and award. Arbitration, Industrial 48-7409

"This historical survey of the American Arbitration Association outlines issues, theories, and practices in various types of arbitration—commercial and industrial, national and international. Supplements the author's Arbitration in Action [Book Review Digest 1942]." Booklist

"The story of the American Arbitration Association is well told—not only its origin, structure, functioning, and achievements, but its underlying philosophy, its impact upon domestic and foreign relations, and its vision for the future. It is a contribution to the literature of arbitration which a wide variety of readers would find profitable." P. S. Peirce
+ Ann Am Acad 262:227 Mr '49 320w
Booklist 45:6 S 1 '48
Columbia Law R 48:1274 D '48 130w
Kirkus 16:249 My 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by Andre Maximov
Management R 38:57 Ja '49 290w

"Anyone interested not only in the historical development but the machinery of arbitration systems will find this book of prime importance. In addition to commercial arbitration, it covers labor arbitration and the arbitration of accident cases; and also international commercial arbitration and the efforts to make such processes a reality." G. W. Alger
+ Survey 85:114 F '49 400w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:90 Mr '49 340w

KELLY, ERIC PHILBROOK. Amazing journey of David Ingram. 272p $2.50 Lippincott
Ingram, David—Juvenile literature 49-11292

"Story of three young Englishmen who crossed, in 1568-69, those lands of the new world which later became the United States of America. They crossed from Tampico, Mexico, to St. John, Canada." (School & Society) Based on David Ingram's account in the first edition of Hakluyt's Voyages. Bibliography.

Booklist 46:101 N 15 '49

"Almost as absorbing as the story, which reads like a saga of old, are the extensive notes that are appended. If librarians still have 'Voyages of Hakluyt' on their shelves, they should see its circulation mount when young people find that this book is related to it." A. R. Brooks
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 13 '49 310w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:537 N '49 120w

"A fascinating adventure, full of hardship, danger and strangely beautiful moments, all liberally spiced with humor." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1547 O 15 '49 100w

"Incidents are developed with care and imagination, and a good picture is drawn of the impression made by the white man, but many unfamiliar tribes and place names slow up the reading. The final triumph is satisfying, but story flattens out at end and only better readers will follow through." Lesley Newton
+ — Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 100w

"This unusual bit of American history is highly recommended as one of the best boys' books of the year." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 18 '49 290w

"The action of this story is fast, the characterization is good, and elements of suspense and surprise are generously added. This account of a most unusual journey should appeal to boys of 12 and up." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 190w

"The author has won one Newbery award—the judges might decide to make it two for this story."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 13 '49 110w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 40w

"This is a fascinating story."
+ School & Society 70:240 O 8 '49 30w
Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 80w

KELLY, FRANK K. Edge of light. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 308p $3 Little 49-7011

"An examination of postwar gloominess among the intelligentsia in New York. . . The beleaguered people Mr. Kelly takes up are some employees of one of the big American press wire services, a Soviet foreign correspondent, and a British diplomat. The time is 1946, and everyone is concerned, in one way or another, with the question of whether the United Nations will get through the Iranian crisis." New Yorker

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 24 '49 140w
Kirkus 16:576 N 1 '48 150w

"Recommended for those collections which aim to include the bulk of serious current fiction." R. L. Kingery
Library J 73:1743 D 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Ja 30 '49 600w

Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p18 Ja 16 '49 500w

"At the end of the book . . . the author perks up a little. His writing is as quick and economical as the teletype messages he often quotes, and his fears for our future are obviously deeply felt."
New Yorker 24:77 Ja 8 '49 140w

KELLY, F. K.—Continued

"This is an excellent first novel. . . The characters here are well drawn, their conversations are, for the most part, credible and their actions wholly understandable. Mr. Kelly has concealed the relative slightness of his plot by some excellent writing, and the result is a thoroughly enjoyable first novel." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 27 '49 400w

"A significant theme and a missionary motive are fine attributes of a novel, but they are not enough. . . Unfortunately the fictional characters never come alive. Their emotional and amatory vicissitudes, their hardboiled sentimentalities, are dull and banal, and excite in the reader neither sympathy, revulsion, nor even interest. The compensating virtue of the book lies in its expert picture of the newspaper world and in its exploration of some of the effects that world has on our culture." Robert Halsband
— + Sat R of Lit 32:10 Ja 8 '49 750w

KELLY, JOHN. Alexander's feast. 303p $3 Harcourt
49-11293

"An assortment of fascinatingly detached and disembodied characters swoop, like a roomful of rare moths, about each other in front of rich architectural backgrounds for three hundred pages. The chief figure in the book is a New England millionaire whose hobby is politics and who is ordinarily as appalled by normal human emotion as he is by vulgarity. When he is defeated in his efforts to treat the members of his household, including his wife and daughter, as a set of carved ivory chessmen, he commendably kills himself." New Yorker

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p16 N 28 '49 500w

Kirkus 17:590 O 15 '49 170w

"With [a] key in hand, resolute readers may some day be able to work their way through this maze of highly allusive, relentlessly oblique, and thoroughly mystifying prose. Without it, they are likely to be as baffled as this reviewer, who has just read and reread all 300 of John Kelly's pages without once knowing what the book was really about or what the author was trying to say. If pressed, I'd guess that Mr. Kelly was just playing a great big private joke on the book reviewers." Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 O 23 '49 750w

"'Alexander's Feast' is primarily a detective story of minds and motives. The action, except for changes of locale, is almost entirely on a Freudian plane. The dialogue (and inner monologue) of the characters is stilted and artificial, peppered with classical and other literary allusions. The atmosphere is airless. But for a reader who likes to hound a psychological clue as well as any, Mr. Kelly's book has its fascinations; and Mr. Kelly, once he has acclimated the reader to his style, does succeed in binding him fast to his devious narrative." A. S. M.
N Y Times p32 O 23 '49 550w

"Mr. Kelly's prose, like his cast of characters, is pithy, erudite, and coolly precise."
New Yorker 25:123 O 22 '49 100w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin
Sat R of Lit 32:17 O 29 '49 850w

KELLY, JOHN FREDERICK. Early Connecticut meetinghouses; being an account of the church edifices built before 1830, based chiefly upon town and parish records. 2v 332;360p il maps $40 Columbia univ. press

726.5 Church architecture. Churches—Connecticut
48-7952

History of the Connecticut meeting houses built before 1830. "The story of architectural development covers four periods, from that of the earliest crude and temporary structures to the full tide of the Greek Revival about 1830. The general technical discussion, and the essays on eighty-seven individual buildings include remarks on plans, foundations, framework, and exterior and interior finish. Each essay describes the existing edifice, often with vivid details of its history, and gives an account of its predecessors. The text is illustrated by nearly 400 photographs—including delicate details of ornament—and over 200 floor plans and structural diagrams drawn by the author. The locations of the eighty-seven meetinghouses, nearly all in country towns, are indicated by a map in each volume." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"This work, monumental in scope and accomplishment, is so well done that it is hard to see how it could be superseded. . . The illustrations show the technical accuracy of a professional architect instead of the fanciful pictures which often embellish such works. . . The photographs, whose large size determines the dimensions of the book, are beautiful in themselves and will perhaps be a main interest of the casual lay reader, while the many technical descriptions and diagrams, such as those of roof structure and foundations, will appeal more especially to architects and builders." M. H. Mitchell
+ Am Hist R 54:368 Ja '49 800w

"From both the literary and technical points of view, these volumes are probably the finest study ever made of the old churches in any state. The people of Connecticut, and Americans generally, may well be proud, also, of the few native architects and many obscure carpenter-builders who designed and executed such beautiful and enduring work."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:407 D '48 1000w

KELLY, JUDITH (MRS WILLIAM D. ENGLISH). Diplomatic incident. 277p $2.75 Houghton 49-9143

Novel describing a Russian peace party mission to Washington. John Wilson of the U. S. State department rejects their offer; his son sympathizes with the Russians, especially with Anya; but Anya is returned to Russia to be "processed."

Booklist 45:325; 336 Je 1 '49

"Altruistic motives obviously prompted A Diplomatic Incident, but it fails sadly in providing any key to Russian culture or personality. Sadder still, it fails to tell an interesting, entertaining story."
Cath World 169:479 S '49 200w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 8 '49 110w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 650w

"Not quite, as claimed, a thriller, but a nice neat job."
+ Kirkus 17:90 F 15 '49 130w

"Realistic, engrossing; sympathetic presentation of various Russian and American attitudes." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 100w

"In the beginning Miss Kelly takes the reader into the minds of so many characters that the focus is not always clear. Tempo and interest quicken as the story moves on to the glitter of a formal diplomatic party. . . 'A Diplomatic Incident' should not be attacked as a mere fairy tale of wishful thinking. It is a novel that offers provocative suggestions and no easy answers. Miss Kelly knows that too many people find it simpler to kill than to understand." John McGiffert
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 19 '49 440w

"Miss Kelly's notion of an anti-Kremlin Russian underground is not, to be sure, inconceivable, but about the most that may be said of her use of it is that it provides her with an effective means of contrasting attitudes and personalities. Well removed from the vital contemporary issues with which it deals, 'A Diplomatic Incident' holds the reader through a combination of excellent intentions and a technique not unlike that of Graham Greene's 'entertainments.'" Elena Zarudnaya
+ — N Y Times p4 Je 26 '49 550w

"It is impossible to take completely seriously a piece of fiction of such obvious wishful thinking, written as it is with an elaborate flowing style reminiscent of the elegant spy-dramas of the late E. Phillips Oppenheim and a kind of passionately sincere innocence. One can only say, 'It is the greatest pity that Judith Kelly had to make this up.' As fiction, no matter how sincere, it fails to convince." M. S. Douglas

Sat R of Lit 32:30 Je 11 '49 360w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 50w

KELSEN, HANS. Political theory of bolshevism; a critical analysis. 60p pa $1 Univ. of Calif.

335.4 Communism A48-6472

"The purpose of this study is to show the paradoxical contradiction which exists within Bolshevism between anarchism in theory and totalitarianism in practice, and to defend the true idea of democracy against the attempt to obliterate and to adulterate it by presenting a party dictatorship as the political self-determination of a free people. Particular stress is laid upon the proof that the slogan of the two democracies—a formal-political and a substantive-economic one—is wrong." (Introd) Selected bibliography.

"Unfortunately, Professor Kelsen's analysis produces the impression that the issue, as he presents it, really is largely terminological. . . Apparently the upshot of the pamphlet would then be that Communists use words in queer ways, some of which are emotionally repugnant to Professor Kelsen. Quite obviously, if this were all that he intended, the pamphlet would not have been written." G. H. Sabine

Ann Am Acad 263:216 My '49 370w

Foreign Affairs 27:679 Jl '49 30w

"The author has provided a learned and fully documented analysis of the Communist view of democracy. His work deserves careful study, particularly by all those who tend to accept the tactical slogans of communism in place of day-to-day action and performance." Martin Ebon

N Y Times p15 F 13 '49 600w

KENDRICK, BAYNARD HARDWICK. The tunnel. 223p $3 Scribner

49-11122

"A psychological novel which deals with the groping of a woman's mind for security and happiness and the remedy that saved her —putting down on paper all her thoughts about her father, her lustful first husband, her mother-in-law, her jealousy of her second husband, and her hatred of the home which had belonged to her mother-in-law." Library J

"An interesting adaptation of the case history type of story, the market here is the psychological-confession story, rather than the experience type of story of The Snake Pit."

+ Kirkus 17:518 S 15 '49 200w

Reviewed by Anne Whitmore

Library J 74:1460 O 1 '49 80w

"Frankly an excursion into morbid psychology, the book comes close to people one has observed, thoughts one has shrunk from acknowledging to one's self, and sustains suspense. Mr. Kendrick writes simply and effectively. Obviously 'The Tunnel' isn't everyone's novel. It will quicken the sympathies and extend the imagination of readers who are willing to admit its subject matter." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 23 '49 550w

"The story is absorbing, although at times Mr. Kendrick's style becomes so oblique as to make the reader almost as confused as Natalie." Jane Cobb

+ — N Y Times p36 O 23 '49 180w

"Mr. Kendrick handles his heroine's near-madness with feeling and originality, but her case isn't quite so original."

+ — New Yorker 25:113 O 29 '49 100w

Reviewed by Fritz Peters

Sat R of Lit 32:22 D 3 '49 600w

KENNEDY, RUTH WEDGWOOD (DOGGETT) (MRS CLARENCE KENNEDY). Renaissance painter's garden. ltd ed [135p] il 60pl $30 Oxford

758.42 Plants in art. Gardens. Paintings, Italian 48-11685

"Score of illustrations in text, three-score plates, these pleasantly commented upon. Appeal to garden-lovers, to those interested in glories of past and to nicely literate person of today. Discussion of Renaissance garden, 'an architectural garden; in it the casual had no place.' Description of the Italian garden as 'a room where all was fair, a miniature Utopia islanded away from the tumult of the world.' Paragraphs on roses, lilies, violets, 'the poet's flowers;' also lesser plants of Italian lawns and fields; marigolds, columbines, dandelions. Anecdotes, documentation, interpretation." Library J

"Recommended even if necessary to stretch several points to include in budget. Typography by Bruce Rogers." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:62 Ja 1 '49 140w

"This in some ways delightful book is based on the principle of Sir Kenneth Clark's Hundred Details from the National Gallery. . . A finely produced gift-book. . . There are, however, some criticisms which should be made. It is necessary to be severe on books of this kind. The quality of reproduction in some of the plates, for instance, is not comparable in sharpness and clarity with the plates in Sir Kenneth's details. The fact that his details were a pre-war production should not now be allowed to stand as an excuse. . . Then, this book was surely intended to be of value to gardeners and botanists, as well as to art lovers? It should thus fulfil a double rôle. It should, above all, be seriously and not whimsically annotated."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p471 Jl 22 '49 750w

KENNELLY, ARDYTH (MRS EGON V. ULLMAN). Peaceable kingdom. 375p $3 Houghton

49-11583

A first novel, portraying life among the Mormons in Utah during the years after Brigham Young's death, when the government was beginning to outlaw plural marriages. The central character is Linnea, second wife of Olaf Ecklund. Linnea with her five children, envied Sigrid, the first wife, but her indomitable courage and good sense carried her thru all her troubles. The book closes with the day of days when Olaf promised her a home of her own.

Booklist 46:76; 98 N 1 '49; N 15 '49

Reviewed by Florence Medow

Chicago Sun N 15 '49 360w

"That the Literary Guild chose 'The Peaceable Kingdom' for its members this month does not necessarily mean that Ardyth Kennelly has found out how to write a novel. That she has found out how to create one magnificent character and how to give life to a series of amusing and dramatic episodes in that character's life is undeniable. And that both the author and her earthy, rich-hearted Linnea will give pleasure to countless thousands of readers is also undeniable." Fanny Butcher

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 13 '49 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

"A warm and revealing picture of a unique way of life. There were complications within complications, and the story is told through episodes, flash pictures, an understanding analysis of the conflicts, the contradictions, the occasional rejections and rebellions. . . Linnea

KENNELLY, ARDYTH—Continued
emerges as a living personality; some of the other characters are shadowy; but the portrait of a people is rounded out with insight that, while not always sympathetic, is fair and challenging. An unusual story, slow getting under way, but worth reading."
+ Kirkus 17:589 O 15 '49 340w

"Impartial, yet sympathetic story that should be enjoyed by many." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 74:1675 N 1 '49 80w

"The talk talks, and the people move around on the pages, which is to say that Ardyth Kennelly knows how to write whether she knows how to write 'a novel' or not. . . The background of this book I unhesitantly call authentic, and in the good folk sense. . . One of the rare traits of Ardyth Kennelly is that most of the time she does not intrude herself, but remains faithfully within the people she creates. There are unfortunate places where she fails in this overall design. . . It doesn't happen often, thank goodness, and one can skip such flows and come to something that Linnea herself would call 'absolute Gospel.'" Virginia Sorensen
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 N 6 '49 950w

Reviewed by George Wells
+ N Y Times p46 N 13 '49 270w

"A chatty, episodic chronicle of Mormon life around the end of the nineteenth century."
New Yorker 25:131 N 26 '49 120w

"No one who reads it can resist the temptation of reading aloud some of the passages that are sheer delight and which go on quoting themselves in your mind whether or not you are able to pass them on to an appreciative audience. Miss Kennelly, this is an extraordinarily fine job. If you have another such grandmother up your sleeve, let's hear about her." D. L. Morgan
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 D 31 '49 800w

Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

KENNEY, GEORGE CHURCHILL. General Kenney reports; a personal history of the Pacific war; with maps by the author. 594p $4.50 Duell

940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Pacific ocean. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 49-48158

"This is the history of the Fifth Air Force in the Pacific from 1942 when General Kenney took command, up to the day the Japanese surrendered. It is a detailed story, obviously based on diaries." (Library J) Index.

Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 50w

Kirkus 17:461 Ag 15 '49 150w

"The writing is poor and careful editing would have been helpful, but the facts are well worth reading." Donald Wasson
+ — Library J 74:1458 O 1 '49 130w

"A highly readable and often exciting account of his experiences." A. E. Talbert
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 20 '49 1250w

"Among books by the commanders of World War II, this one gets a high place—for fairness, for straightforward admission of inefficiencies when there were inefficiencies, for old-fashioned general readability, for absence of the griping tone in which so many memoirs are couched." Fletcher Pratt
+ N Y Times p47 O 30 '49 700w

New Yorker 25:169 N 19 '49 120w

"It is regrettable, but necessary to report that General Kenney's writing does not even have the primary military virtue of terse, clear, lean, English." C. W. W.
— San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 27 '49 1100w

"Written in the form of a popularized history running to almost 600 pages, Kenney's account is so detailed that it reads at times like a summary of operational reports, replete with statistics of number of aircraft dispatched, tonnages dropped, bombing results, and enemy aircraft destroyed. But these heavy slugs of factual data, of special interest to anyone who served in the Pacific, if not to the average layman, are leavened with spicy personal asides and pithy anecdotes. . . On the plus side, Kenney's book gains immeasurably by frankness." Beirne Lay
Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ja 14 '50 650w

"Readers looking for high-level inside stuff on the war in the Pacific will not find it here. General Kenney Reports is essentially a fighting man's story, the day-to-day record of jobs to be done, the planes sent up to do them, U.S. and enemy losses. But in at least one respect, brusque George Kenney is more forthright than any of the high brass have been in books so far. Those he considered incompetent he calls by name, and some of them were generals."
Time 54:80 O 31 '49 700w

KENNY, JOHN B. Complete book of pottery making; with phot. and drawings made especially for this book by the author. 242p $7.50 Greenberg

666.3 Pottery 49-4712

"Both the text and the illustrations are very well suited to their purpose as instruction for the beginner. Casting, wheel, coil, slab, and molding methods are described, as are the essentials of firing, glazing, and decorating. Short section on pottery as a vocation." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:29 S 15 '49

"It is clearly written, and the illustrations are well placed in relation to the text. The layout must be the result of a great deal of thoughtful work on the part of the designer of the volume, Fay Travers. . . This reviewer will not presume to judge the esthetic values implied in Mr. Kenny's volume. Purists may be offended by some things in it but probably not by the basic approach, which is simple and honest." R. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 20 '49 270w

KENT, HENRY WATSON. What I am pleased to call my education; ed. by Lois Leighton Comings. 208p il $7.50 Grolier club, 47 E. 60th st, N.Y. 22

B or 92 49-9721

"Henry Watson Kent was a historic figure in the American museum world. Librarian of the Grolier Club, secretary of the Metropolitan for many years, he was a student of Bode in Berlin and master of many of our museum men. These memoirs of a pioneer in organization and display, in the thought that changed nineteenth-century whatnot collections to legible demonstrations of art and science, show much of Kent's wit, honesty and useful knowledge." New Repub

"The engrossing story of the reawakening of a wide public appreciation of America's historic and artistic heritage runs as a leitmotiv through the book. It is an American story, but one of interest to all who share Mr. Kent's enthusiasm for art and, especially for the art of their own country."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 19 '50 180w

"No reader of this book can fail to rejoice that such a record of such a useful life has been given us in such a form. One regret, the only one possible, might be that the author of the book was not able to see just what shape was taken by this message of his. He would have appreciated the introduction by Fiske Kimball of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, would have rejoiced at the admirable editing of his words by Miss Comings, would have marvelled at the number of published writings recorded by the editor, would have studied carefully and commented sagely on the charm of the work done by Joseph Blumenthal and his Spiral Press." H. M. Lydenberg
+ Library J 74:1309 S 15 '49 650w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein
New Repub 121:25 D 12 '49 120w

KENT, MONA. Mirror, mirror on the wall. 307p $3 Rinehart
49-10420

Character study of an emotionally unstable, unscrupulous woman. She is a successful writer of soap operas, and a nationally known figure, but her private life is just the opposite of the lives she portrays in her programs. She succeeds in ruining the lives of her husband, her lover, and her adored son, and at the peak of her success her misdeeds catch up with her.

"Some familiar, feminine ingredients here, this goes at quite a clip, puts a possible personality through some rather impossible paces, and includes some sex scenes which are more than a little rumpled."
— Kirkus 17:371 Jl 15 '49 180w

"The unnecessarily outspoken sex passages unfit this novel for most public libraries." H. R. Forbes
— Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 100w

"Miss Kent knows her background thoroughly and reconstructs what seems to be the authentic workings behind the scenes. But this is, above all, Dell's story and whether or not she is typical of the qualifications needed to get to the top of her profession, she is full-blooded as a creation." Janet Schane
N Y Times p43 O 2 '49 150w

"Dell's story sounds anxious, melodramatic notes in our tired ears, and the writing is pretty poor. The dialogue—Miss Kent has presumably had considerable experience in dialogue-writing—manages to come off smoothly, but the rest is rather clumsy, labored stuff. Only her discussions of radio writing and procedure manage to ring true. And doubtful phrases, not infrequent, like 'Logical illogicality,' make one wince." N. G. Chaikin
— + Sat R of Lit 32:41 S 24 '49 270w

KENT, NIAL, pseud. See Thomas, W. L.

KENT, SHERMAN. Strategic intelligence for American world policy. 226p $3 Princeton univ. press

351.74 U.S.—Foreign policy. Intelligence service 49-8503

"This is a book about intelligence—not the intelligence that psychologists try to measure in a given human mind—but the kind a strategist must have to lay his plans and carry them out. Intelligence, as I am writing of it, is the knowledge which our highly placed civilians and military men must have to safeguard the national welfare." (Pref) Index.

"The discussion of intelligence as activity deals with the different methods of intelligence and with the relation between producers and consumers of intelligence. Here the author is sometimes in danger of losing himself in details and academic exercises in classification. All in all, however, the book is an indispensable guide for the understanding of a vital and neglected branch of governmental activity." H. J. Morgenthau
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:1046 O '49 450w

"This book is an able and seemingly exhaustive analysis of the work that goes on within the Government of assembling information about other countries and making it available for policy makers. The knowledge that is sought is the knowledge vital for national survival, and Mr. Kent essays to make it clear to the reader why a vast network of intelligence agencies is necessary and how it is made to operate." R. W. Van Alstyne
+ Ann Am Acad 265:175 S '49 320w
Booklist 45:385 Jl 15 '49
Current Hist 16:289 My '49 50w
Foreign Affairs 28:161 O '49 40w
Nation 168:620 My 28 '49 40w

"O.S.S.'s Sherman Kent, now a Yale history professor, has used his wartime experience in intelligence work for a purpose far removed from romancing. In terse pages illumined by apt illustrations and only occasionally burdened by professional jargon, he has produced a first-rate monograph on how coordinated foreign intelligence can best serve a nation at peace no less than in war time." W. H. Hale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 My 20 '49 500w

"Sherman Kent, Professor of History at Yale University and a wartime intelligence director in the OSS, brings thorough scholarship and practical experience to the consideration of a subject of primary importance to those charged with the responsibility for the foreign policy and security of this country and of vital concern to the rest of us who would suffer the awful consequences of their failure. . . Many readers will discover points of disagreement. For example, Dr. Kent seems to conceive of national estimates, the end product of intelligence, as being prepared piecemeal by the various intelligence agencies with the general conclusions drawn by the Central Intelligence Agency. . . Such points of difference need not detract from the merit of a very remarkable book. This book should be read by all high officials charged with responsibility for the security of the country and by all those who work in the field of intelligence." W. H. Jackson
+ — N Y Times p4 My 1 '49 1450w

"At a period in our history when major policy decisions are the daily fare, the present book is timely. It deals not with the policy issues themselves but with the problems which must be resolved if policy-makers are to make informed decisions. . . Mr. Kent has written a stimulating book. He has a genuine enthusiasm for his subject and his willingness to cross swords upon the many controversial issues makes for lively reading." L. H. Chamberlain
+ Pol Sci Q 64:431 S '49 750w

"Scholarly study. . . This book is at once required reading for the professional practitioners of the science of Intelligence, a fascinating study for the host of ex-practitioners whose direct connection with that science formally ended nearly four years ago, and an important educational experience for all other thoughtful citizens." B. R. Shute
+ Sat R of Lit 32:24 My 14 '49 750w

"Dr. Kent makes out a good case for the type of organization in which he believes, but he fails to demonstrate conclusively that his organization is the best one possible, or that other concepts are not as good as the one he advocates. Professor Kent has, however, written a book which should be required reading for anyone engaged in intelligence operations."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:231 Je '49 240w

Reviewed by W. L. Langer
Yale R n s 39:365 winter '50 650w

KERNER, ROBERT JOSEPH, ed. Yugoslavia; chapters by Griffith Taylor [and others]. (United Nations ser) 558p il maps $6.50 Univ. of Calif.

949.7 Yugoslavia 49-1741

Chapters by various authorities which together provide a summary of Yugoslavian social and political history. Contains a detailed chronology; a selected bibliography, and an index.

"Fifteen historians, political scientists, and other scholars have contributed chapters to this book, designed to introduce contemporary Yugoslavia to the general reader. The result is uneven. This reviewer feels that bad judgment has occasionally been displayed in the choice of materials. Many of the individual chapters, on the other hand, are highly rewarding." R. L. Wolff
Am Hist R 55:142 O '49 900w

Reviewed by E. C. Helmreich
Am Pol Sci R 43:619 Je '49 230w

"A timely volume on Yugoslavia. . . This book contains an excellent chronology and a good bibliography. Its typographical presentation is worthy of high praise." Hans Kohn
+ Ann Am Acad 263:219 My '49 550w
Booklist 45:279 Ap 15 '49

"According to this reviewer, several chapters of the book give too much credit to Tito

KERNER, R. J.—Continued
and fail to do justice to Mikailovich. Especially Chapter XX, written by Wayne S. Vucinich of Stanford University, contains statements which, in my opinion, are not those of an objective observer. . . The early sections of this study supply some well documented material on the 'prehistory' of this state. . . The most useful feature of the book seems to me the chronology, done with admirable care and precision by Professor Harry N. Howard of Miami University, Ohio. . . Few readers will be able to follow the chapters of this book without personal sympathy for this brave nation and the extreme sufferings she has had to endure." Max Fischer

+ — Commonweal 49:620 Ap 1 '49 490w

Current Hist 16:229 Ap '49 50w

Foreign Affairs 27:689 Jl '49 50w

"The book is remarkable for its scholarly lack of the emotionalism which Yugoslavia usually arouses in our days. The book needs a detailed political and physical map. It would have gained greatly by devoting more attention to Russia's relations with Yugoslavia, by adding a well documented chapter on the ever explosive Macedonian problem, and another one on the Trieste problem, treated now in the epilogue as an editorial afterthought. A brief history of the non-Serbian parts of the country would have demonstrated the difficulties of fusing Serbian Oriental and Croat-Slovene Occidental civilizations into one organic unit. A chapter on the impact of the panorthodox idea would have been more fruitful than the present chapter on the Moslem faith." Emil Lengyel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 15 '49 900w

"Eschewing glib generalities, [the book] presents a rich and rewarding fare, in twenty-two chapters which, taken together, illuminate the most important aspects of modern Yugoslavia. . . Yugoslavia's continuing campaign to secure possession of Trieste and of part of Austrian Carinthia is recounted in vivid detail by Professor Kerner, who was actively involved in these questions as a member of the American delegation to the Paris Conference of 1919. In reviewing the same issues in the new postwar settlement Dr. Kerner has oversimplified the issues in favor of the Yugoslav claim." P. E. Mosely

+ — N Y Times p3 My 1 '49 950w

"Nothing, it would seem, has been overlooked in the way of maps, historical chronology, photographs, notes, bibliography, and index to make the book an essential reference work. Here in simple and readable form we have the complex history of the south Slavs. . . The chapters of the book deal preponderantly with Yugoslavia before the break, with the Cominform. But the insight that they give into the history and national psychology of the south Slavs makes that feud logical. And no matter what turn events may take in Belgrade the light that the authors have thrown on Yugoslavia's geographical importance, military and economic potential, and revolutionary dynamics will render more understandable her strategic position in the East-West cold war." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 32:57 My 14 '49 470w

Times [London] Lit Sup p707 N 4 '49 2000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:211 Je '49 200w

"Ideally, of course, a political history of the kind referred to should not be confined to one chapter but should run through and inform the whole work. Probably this ideal is impossible to achieve in a collaborative study, but a section devoted to political events would add greatly to the value of the book. Without it the reader has difficulty grasping the full significance of many of the blocks of information confronting him." H. L. Roberts

Yale R n s 39:178 autumn '49 900w

KERNODLE, PORTIA B. Red cross nurse in action, 1882-1948. 524p il $5 Harper

361.506 Red cross. U.S. American national Red cross. Nurses and nursing 49-48270

"A history of the Red Cross Nursing Service from its inception under the directorship of Clara Barton to withdrawal in 1948 from military nursing to devote itself to community and disaster activities." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:136 D 15 '49

"Although chiefly a reference book, this should be interesting to anyone who wants to know more about this country's history, the Red Cross or nursing." Lucy Freeman

+ N Y Times p47 N 13 '49 130w

KESSELMAN, LOUIS COLERIDGE. Social politics of FEPC; a study in reform pressure movements. 253p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

331.11 National council for a permanent FEPC. Discrimination in employment. Politics, Practical 48-11611

"Study of the Fair Employment Practices Commission, and the efforts of those behind the movement. Dr. Kesselman (University of Louisville), is interested in showing the value and the operation of a reform pressure movement as a safety valve in the democratic process." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"This book should rank high among those of its type. Its limitations are largely those of the field as a whole. Without a consistent conceptual scheme of group politics, one has no hypotheses to test and is confined to illustrating certain unsubstantiated legends dealing with the subject. Professor Kesselman's study would have gained considerable strength from the use of hypotheses and propositions such as those developed by Robin Williams in the area of minority group conflicts. As it stands, the book is a useful addition to our knowledge in a documentary sense, but it does little to advance our knowledge at a higher level of generalization." D. B. Truman

+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:377 Ap '49 600w

"The work is well written. . . The publishers have done a commendable job, and it is a sign of the times that this book was published by the University of North Carolina Press." F. S. Loescher

+ Ann Am Acad 262:226 Mr '49 480w

Booklist 45:151 Ja 1 '49

Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 50w

Reviewed by E. E. Schattschneider

Harvard Law R 63:190 S '49 900w

"Though Mr. Kesselman is fully aware of the rich potentialities of his subject, he has not realized them in this book. He tantalizingly suggests important, fascinating problems, and occasionally he even touches on them; but this contact only whets an appetite left unappeased. Yet, as one of the few studies of a 'humanitarian' pressure group, 'The Social Politics of FEPC' is helpful in establishing the conditions for a comprehensive statement of the relations among the community, formal associations and the political process." Morroe Berger

N Y Times p23 Ap 24 '49 1000w

"This study will be of interest mainly to specialists in the various subjects on which it touches. Perhaps its value to them would have been enhanced had it gone into greater detail, particularly in parts two and three. It should also serve as a guidepost to possible pitfalls for future reform pressure movements, and particularly for its reorganized successor." Frances Jay

Pol Sci Q 64:309 Je '49 750w

Reviewed by Mark Starr

Sat R of Lit 32:14 F 5 '49 800w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:241 Je '49 300w

KETCHAM, HOWARD. How to use color and decorating designs in the home. 251p il col pl $3.95 Greystone

747 House decoration. Decoration and ornament. Color 49-10163

"Many suggestions for designs and techniques that anyone can use in decorating furniture, tinware, pottery, tiles, glass, and fabrics. Instructions are not elaborate but adequate. Designs are, for the most part, adaptations of the popular peasant styles. Some of the designs have appeared in magazines." Booklist

Booklist 46:30 S 15 '49

"The author's advice is sound and easy to follow. And you will profit by it if you are wise enough to stop painting before your home acquires the folksiness of a Walt Disney nightmare." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 11 '49 70w
+ School Arts 49:adv D '49 240w

KEY, ALEXANDER. The wrath and the wind. 366p $3 Bobbs
49-7653

"This is a historical romance set in the Florida of the 1840's, when money was to be made in contraband slaves. Its principal scene is the once flourishing port of St. Joseph, rival of Apalachicola in the cotton-boom days, and the proud possessor of one of the first railroads in that part of the country. Mr. Key's hero is a physician named Maury St. John, who has abandoned his profession to engage in slave-running from Cuba." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sun Mr 16 '49 280w

"Mr. Key's novel has the advantage of an unexploited background. . . Storm at sea, hurricane on shore, palmettos, coral reefs, black swamps, and baroque mansions, are combined with unfailing vigor and dexterity, but with more feeling for story value than for the finer shadings of character." W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 21 '49 90w

"A glorified dime thriller of slave trade and Florida land boom." R. W. Henderson
— Library J 74:197 F 1 '49 80w

"It is too easy to be captious with such a novel as this, but at the same time it is difficult to overlook the time-worn situations which apparently, plague nineteenth century novels laid in the South. . . All in all I found it not quite worthy of the talent which Mr. Key displays now and then in too infrequent passages." Robert Wilder
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Mr 6 '49 700w

"Mr. Key tells all this in a style reminiscent of the pulp magazines or the lending library shelves. At intervals he struggles valiantly to lift his story above these categories, but he never quite succeeds." Theodore Pratt
N Y Times p32 Mr 27 '49 180w

"Mr. Key characterizes by types, and is more interested in action than thought. The result is a novel that reads easily, has some good descriptions, both by sea and by land, but makes no deep impression because of its lack of originality and distinction." Herschel Brickell
— + Sat R of Lit 32:30 Mr 5 '49 320w

KEY, SYDNEY. John Constable: his life and work. (British painters ser) 128p 51il 4 col pl $4 Chanticleer
759.2 Constable, John [49-15093]

A monograph on the English painter, John Constable. It contains a short account of Constable's life, art, and influence, and fifty illustrations in half-tone and four in color. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 90w

"The colour-plates—notably those of Salisbury Cathedral and the sketch of Locks and Cottages on the Stour—give good impressions of the original paintings. But the majority of the plates in half-tone suffer deplorably from extreme reduction in size. . . The text provides an accurate and, for the most part, a readable account of Constable's life and work. It is a virtue in the writer that he has been content to allow Constable to tell a considerable amount of the story in his own words, in extracts from his letters to his friend John Fisher and others; for he had a literary gift only inferior in degree to his genius as a painter." Jonathan Mayne
+ — Spec 180:744 Je 18 '48 550w

"Workmanlike short account. . . Mr. Key summarizes the facts of Constable's life clearly, and he comments usefully and with judgment upon his artistic development. The final chapter, dealing with the painter's imitators and forgers, and with his influence both here and abroad, brings out effectively the curious fact that Constable's immediate influence in England was much less than in France, where his direct approach to nature greatly affected the Barbizon school."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p374 Jl 3 '48 900w

KEY, THEODORE. Here's Hazel! 128p il $2 Dutton
741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 49-10296

A new collection of cartoons about Hazel, the ubiquitous maid of all work who appears in The Saturday Evening Post.

Booklist 46:1; 10 S 1 '49

"Like the broom that drags around with her, not for sweeping but for support, this species of maid of all work is slightly obsolescent. And the jokes built around her are necessarily limited in variety, like her occupation." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 4 '49 90w

"Hazel is the most uninhibited, self-sufficient maid who has ever made her presence in any home a doubtful blessing. She stomps through this volume insulting guests, intimidating her employer, who no longer has any illusions of being king of his own castle, and completely delighting her fans." A. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 27 '49 90w

KEY, VALDIMER ORLANDO, and HEARD, ALEXANDER. Southern politics in state and nation. 675p il maps $6 Knopf
975 South—Politics and government
49-10825

"State-by-state survey of the South, where one-party politics takes many forms in constant adjustment to the Negro problem and changing economics. Material was gathered by a staff working under a Rockefeller Foundation grant at the University of Alabama's Bureau of Public Administration. Author, a Southerner, deals with the ethnic, social and economic issues; the political mechanisms used in primaries; franchise under the poll tax; elections; and personalities insofar as they represent underlying principles." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:94 N 15 '49
Reviewed by Walter Johnson
Chicago Sun p44 Ja 5 '49 300w

"Professor Key has written an objective, authoritative and sometimes incisive study of the South's political problems. It is probably the most important book on the South since the late W. J. Cash's 'The Mind of the South,' published over a decade ago. Though at times the material is rather heavy, the book is must reading for anyone who wants to understand the South and why it is as it is." Henry Lesesne
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 25 '49 750w
Kirkus 17:522 S 15 '49 220w

"Well-documented, illustrated with graphs and photos, the survey was undertaken to identify the region's political problems. It is essential for understanding national as well as sectional politics. Highly recommended." Scott Adams
+ Library J 74:1458 O 1 '49 130w

"Fascinating pictures, which any young and aspiring politician should study devotedly, for they will reveal to him a vast number of tricks of the trade. Besides, they are written with a dead-pan humor that greatly lightens what would otherwise be pretty heavy going. Not that the book is light reading; it is a volume for the student's shelf, but it should be on every shelf." G. W. Johnson

KEY, V. O.—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 O 23 '49 1050w

"This picture of Southern political practices is almost unrelievedly depressing. It is no blind and sensational indictment, but a thorough, impartial and even compassionate study. Dr. Key, like many of his fellow Southerners, has hope for future political growth. 'Southern Politics' will contribute measurably to that growth. It can be greatly useful, not only to students and practitioners of politics alike, but to all who are concerned with democracy's chinks." Hodding Carter
+ N Y Times p5 O 2 '49 1550w

Reviewed by Templeton Peck
San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 16 '49 750w

"The book, while dismaying, is not an indictment. It is a document so basically sound it may hurry the political reformation. And certainly it is a valuable book to all interested in the future of American democracy." Ralph McGill
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 D 3 '49 800w

"This book belongs on the shelf with Vance's 'Human Geography of the South' and Odum's 'Southern Regions' as one of the major myth-dispellers of Southern scholarship. Instead of theorizing and speculating about Southern politics, Key has investigated. Instead of telling you what the laws say he has discovered what the man at the courthouse does. Professor Key has done some vivid things with statistics, charts, and maps, but he has not stopped with them. He has sent his helpers throughout the region to work the beats and precincts and bring in the raw truth of Southern political behavior. He has reported his findings in no spirit of muck-raking but with candor and compassion. His style is informal, his humor dry, and his sense is of the best horse variety." C. V. Woodward
+ Yale R n s 39:374 winter '50 1000w

KIANG, WEN-HAN. Chinese student movement. 176p $3 King's crown press
371.83 Students. Youth movement. China—History 48-7286
For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"A more correct title of the present volume would be 'Ideas behind the Chinese Students' Movements from the Beginning of the Republic to the End of the Antiaggression War.' In his Foreword, Kenneth Scott Latourette states that it is 'a comprehensive review of the Student Movement.' It definitely is not. . . But, within a limited scope, the author has done a good job, and readers may find some partial satisfaction." Ch'eng-hsin Chao
Am J Soc 54:471 Mr '49 900w

Reviewed by David Cheng
Ann Am Acad 262:203 Mr '49 480w

"The author calls this work 'a study of modern Chinese thought with the students as the axis.' He has written not so much an intellectual history of modern China as a valuable paraphrase of sources for such a history. . . A tremendous amount of material is packed into this short book—so much, in fact, that the text seems generally dehydrated." J. R. Levenson
+ — Pacific Affairs 22:92 Mr '49 650w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 69:390 My 28 '49 220w

KIBRE, PEARL. Nations in the mediaeval universities. 240p $5; to members $4 Mediaeval acad.
378.4 Colleges and universities. Education, Medieval 48-4296
A study of the institution of the nation in medieval universities. "The 'nations' make their appearance in Bologna at the beginning of the 13th century as subdivisions of the collegia of foreign law students formed for mutual protection and collective security against the local authorities. In Paris, on the other hand, the 'nations' emerged into the light of official recognition in the 13th century as masters associations within the faculty of arts, the most numerous of the four faculties of the university." (School & Society)

"Some studies of the institution exist, for example, the excellent account by Professor Gray C. Boyce of the English-German nation in the University of Paris. This book is the first vue d'ensemble, and it is thorough and definitive. It is definitive, I should say, on the nations as institutions. . . The work belongs to institutional history—but not to legal history. . . As institutional history, however, the work is a model of its kind. . . One ambiguity may be pointed out: on page 5 the author seems to imply the existence of nations as a result of the Authentica Habita of 1158, while at the outset the author has stated that the nations appeared at Bologna in the early thirteenth century. Otherwise the book is carefully done and is remarkably free of errors." Gaines Post
+ Am Hist R 54:572 Ap '49 370w
School & Society 69:47 Ja 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 69:390 My 28 '49 180w

KIERAN, JOHN, and DALEY, ARTHUR. Story of the Olympic games, 776 B.C.-1948 A.D.; profusely il. and with an index. enl ed 406p $5 Lippincott
796.4 Olympic games 48-9669
A revised and enlarged edition of the book of the same title first entered in Book Review Digest 1936. The revision consists of an account of the London Olympic games, and its records. Index.

Booklist 45:179 Ja 15 '49

"The best 'popular' history. A standard reference book." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:64 Ja 1 '49 40w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ja 16 '49 50w

KIEVE, RUDOLPH S. Sorcerers. 438p $4 Houghton
48-9694
A long, detailed novel about German social and political conditions during the first two decades of the twentieth century. The chief characters are members of two families, a Prussian Junker family and a wealthy Rhenish Jewish family.

Booklist 45:225 Mr 1 '49

"There is, in Rudolph Kieve's deep and moving story . . . much of the slow, cumulative effect that one finds in the novels of Reymont or Hamsun; a quality not so much of people as of incidents, that, in the end, leaves one with the impression of actuality. . . Where the strength of the book lies is not in its argument but in the force and vitality of its occurrences. Something at least of the dark destiny of Germany is made a little more explicable in these pages." Francis Russell
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 29 '49 550w

"A novel of considerable scope and substance, which pursues the psychological motivation of its characters as well as the political mainsprings of the era with fidelity. But of doubtful popular attraction."
Kirkus 16:579 N 1 '48 210w

"Author deserves considerable respect, even though this novel is hardly a literary masterpiece. Recommended for larger libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ — Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 80w

" 'The Sorcerers' is notable for its freedom from any clinical approach to people and situations. . . Unfortunately none of the characters in Dr. Kieve's book has very great novelistic stature; but this is one of those subtle failures of art rather than a failure, as in most contemporary fiction, of the author's respect for himself and his fellow-creatures. 'The Sorcerers' is serious, workmanlike, readable, eminently decent. It is the kind of novel which, without itself breaking new territory, holds and honors the traditional grounds of fiction." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 168:192 F 12 '49 220w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner

New Repub 120:21 Ap 11 '49 1300w

"While the characters in 'The Sorcerers' are unusually rounded and alive and the thousand shocks they suffer have the inevitability of life, the book is not so much the work of a novelist as of a student of the soul. Yet there is none of the shoddy superficiality so often found these days in so-called psychiatric fiction. Mr. Kieve is obviously a doctor, but he is also a moralist. He pursues with pity and indignation the reasons for the new fall of man transpiring in our times." Virgilia Peterson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ja 16 '49 850w

"Kieve's seriousness makes "The Sorcerers' humanly convincing, though his sensibility as a writer is not original or intense. The book contains clear visions of the last days of imperial Germany, which Kieve himself knew as a boy. Thematically and intellectually 'The Sorcerers' is less firm, perhaps just because of the author's honesty." R. G. Davis

+ — N Y Times p4 Ja 16 '49 900w

New Yorker 24:80 Ja 22 '49 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 13 '49 150w

"Dr. Kieve, whose first novel 'The Sorcerers' is, is a practising psychiatrist. His professional experiences stand him in good stead wherever he is satisfied with telling the stories of human beings, which he does very well with a great many minor figures. As a social novelist and interpreter, he fails." Robert Pick

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:20 Ja 15 '49 500w

KILE, ORVILLE MERTON. Farm bureau through three decades. 416p il $3.50 The author, Nat. press bldg, Washington, D.C.

338.1 American farm bureau federation

48-4550

"Development of one of the huge and powerful farmers' organizations in the United States is here chronicled by a former member of its staff and a well-known agricultural writer. The twenty-six chapters of the main text are grouped under six headings: I, The Historical Background; II, The James R. Howard Administration: 1920-21-22; III, The Oscar E. Bradfute Administration: 1923-25; IV, The Sam H. Thompson Administration: 1926-March 1931; V, The Edward Asbury O'Neal Administration: 1931-47; VI, The Allen B. Kline Administration: Dec. 1947-." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"The book will be a valuable reference for students interested in agrarian history, the development of agricultural policy implemented by government, and the study of pressure groups in our society, and for students of social institutions and social processes." Lowry Nelson

+ Ann Am Acad 261:208 Ja '49 300w

Booklist 45:46 O 1 '48

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:458 D '48 220w

KILLINGSWORTH, CHARLES C. State labor relations acts; a study of public policy. 328p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

331 Labor laws and legislation—U.S.

48-7437

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"In view of the presently unsettled nature of federal policy toward national labor relations, this book will serve as a helpful and practical guide to concerned citizens. A detailed state by state survey of union regulatory laws in the appendix will be of value to the student of labor relations."

+ Columbia Law R 49:150 Ja '49 170w

"The detail with which statutory provisions, court interpretations, etc., are described is unfortunate, because it appears that the book will find its chief use among economists rather than among labor lawyers and industrial-relations practitioners. Nonlabor economists, particularly, will find it difficult to see the forest for the trees. . . Withal, the author has performed a useful service. Until now the discussion of state labor relations laws has been carried on chiefly in the law reviews. It has now been rounded out and presented in a form suitable for use by the nonlegalistic reader."

+ — J Pol Econ 57:174 Ap '49 800w

"Professor Killingsworth's task, performed with great industry and analytic precision, was to examine and expound these laws. In doing this, he has rendered a great service; for only fragmentary information, or material difficult to get at, was available before. His indefatigable pursuit of factual data through interviews, correspondence, official reports, rulings of boards and decisions of courts has produced a work of immediate and lasting value." J. A. Fitch

+ Pol Sci Q 64:455 S '49 1100w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:340 S '48 260w

KIMBROUGH, EDWARD. Secret pilgrim. 314p $3 Rinehart

49-6776

"An abiding antagonism was born that day in their childhood when Jay Fleming and Kinsman Todd met for the first time. The hate and fear in Jay's heart were easily nourished as the years rolled on until finally he turned upon Kinsman with a knife. The small Mississippi town was shocked by the fear and found it inexplicable, but the reader is taken back through the years, and watches the hatred grow from its inception." Library J

Kirkus 17:442 Ag 15 '49 180w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 74:1602 O 15 '49 80w

"'The Secret Pilgrim' has in it the elements of a tight psychological drama, but these are dissipated by Mr. Kimbrough's reliance on melodramatic cliches and love of lurid rhetoric. There is no subtlety, nor any real depth to his people." J. J. Maloney

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 27 '49 320w

"Mr. Kimbrough is pretty profligate with the English language, which flows lushly from him in working out this story. But if you can believe in a hero so golden as Kinsman, you will be moved by his pilgrimage, which Mr. Kimbrough relates with sentiment and considerable emotional power." Charlotte Capers

+ — N Y Times p53 O 30 '49 170w

New Yorker 25:154 N 12 '49 120w

"The narrative is agreeably written. Mr. Kimbrough's style is everywhere competent and easy; the difficulty is that he creates too many echoes in his book. I found myself saying from time to time—yes, here is the Hergesheimer, here is the Fitzgerald, here is the Faulkner touch." H. M. Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ja 28 '50 450w

KING, ALEXANDER HYATT. Chamber music. (World of music ser) 71p il col pl $2.50 Chanticleer

785.7 Chamber music [48-9513]

A brief historical sketch of chamber music, "the music of friends," in Europe from the sixteenth century to the present. The book is illustrated with seven plates in color, and thirty-three in black and white. The author has been in charge of the music room in the British Museum since the end of 1945. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:212 F 15 '49

"Well-written by [a] recognized authority, beautifully illustrated. . . Especially recommended for college and public libraries." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 73:1819 D 15 '48 40w

KING, A. H.—Continued

"This is a remarkably fine little book. . . The book was obviously prepared for popular consumption, but it was so thoughtfully and carefully written that it can be read with interest by the serious student as well. This does not mean that one must necessarily agree with every opinion expressed by Mr. King." Harold Spivacke

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:307 Mr '49 320w

"Mr. King writes in a rather too donnish style about chamber music; but if he is a trifle pedantic, he is also very sound." Gerald Johnson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 F 13 '49 190w

Reviewed by Howard Taubman

N Y Times p27 F 13 '49 30w

"As a model of historical selectivity and concise, meaningful expression it surely merits kind commends, but both author and subject deserve considerable more than a scant seventy pages." Roland Gelatt

Sat R of Lit 32:62 Ja 29 '49 40w

KING, CLARENCE. Organizing for community action. 202p $3 Harper

361.8 Charity organization. Social work 48-9258

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The book is useful and stimulating. It will be valuable in the classroom and as a guide for lay and professional leaders in planning community action. Although the emphasis is on social work problems, the contents of the book are also applicable to such fields as adult education, agricultural extension service work, school administration, civic improvement, public health, and housing. . . The major criticism of this reviewer is that the principles of community organization are frequently only implied in the discussions of the case material rather than explicitly stated." R. A. Polson

+ — Ann Am Acad 262:241 Mr '49 470w

"The reviewer would have liked more local color in the community case histories. Details giving the earthy flavor of setting, characters, their conversations, maneuverings between them, and living incidents would have spiced up the narrative to advantage. Be that as it may, he certainly recommends the book to all community workers, for its wise counsel and its hard-headed optimism." Arthur Katona

+ Social Educ 13:204 Ap '49 400w

Wis Lib Bul 45:44 Mr '49

KING, RUFUS. Case of the redoubled-cross. 188p $2.25 Doubleday 49-7926

Detective story.

"The marriage of a fantastically silly plot and a manner designed laboriously to point it out is not the most attractive union of the season." James Sandoe

— Chicago Sun Mr 25 '49 50w

Kirkus 17:40 Ja 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Weekly Bk R p18 Mr 13 '49 180w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p26 Mr 27 '49 180w

"Unimpressive."

— New Yorker 25:108 Mr 19 '49 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 3 '49 100w

"Diverting no end."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:35 Ap 2 '49 50w

KING, WINSTON LEE. Holy imperative; the power of God and the good life. 224p $2.50 Harper

171.1 Christian ethics 49-9176

"This is a discussion of religion and ethics, their relation to one another and their dependence upon one another. The author disclaims any attempt to outline a system of Christian ethics, but his discussion of 'religion and morality', 'morality in a religious context,' 'the religious apprehension of moral values,' and the elaboration of his definition of Christian ethics as personal fellowship with God and man will be stimulating to religionists and students of ethics. In the course of the book the author deals with many current ideologies, such as Marxism, Barthianism, existentialism and pacifism, from the standpoint of liberal Protestantism." (Kirkus) Index.

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor

Churchman 163:18 N 1 '49 270w

"This is, in many regards, a scholarly book in the best sense, but its vitalizing and energizing purpose and its persuasive and excellent style raise it above the level of an intelligent theoretical debate. The college teacher will find it as useful a handbook and guide as the educated layman who is looking for a well-informed and clear thinker who separates vague notions from logical argumentation and will support him with the warm sense of a firm conviction in these days of confusion." William Hubben

+ Crozer Q 26:357 O '49 700w

+ Kirkus 17:295 Je 15 '49 110w

KINGMAN, LEE (MRS ROBERT H. NATTI). Best Christmas; il. by Barbara Cooney. 95p $1.50 Doubleday 49-48328

The story of an affectionate family of Finnish-Americans living on Cape Ann. When the oldest brother, who always supplied the toys to put under the Christmas tree for his many younger brothers and sisters, was reported lost at sea just before Christmas, it promised to be a most unhappy time. But Erkki, aged ten, took things in hand, and started the ball rolling for the "best Christmas."

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p25 D 17 '49 120w

"Children should love this appealing Christmas story of a large and loving family in which a self-reliant little boy finds out for himself the joy of making and giving and so having the best Christmas he'd ever had. The pictures are enchanting." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 4 '49 160w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p16 D 15 '49 270w

"Delightfully illustrated with true feeling of place and of Christmas." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:531 N '49 70w

"A warm and appealing little Christmas story."

+ Kirkus 17:467 S 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid

Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 70w

"A good addition for those libraries wishing to enlarge their collection of modern Christmas stories. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 74:1828 D 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 11 '49 180w

"A tender story which captures the real essence of giving. Barbara Cooney's crisp little black and white drawings are just right for this snowy New England story. For 8-to-12-year-olds and the rest of the family." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p42 D 4 '49 220w

"Barbara Cooney's fine drawings make this a lovely volume. The story, too, is a treat for any child above kindergarten age."

+ New Yorker 25:186 D 3 '49 90w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 13 '49 60w

+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 D 10 '49 130w

"Close family relationships, pleasure in simple things and a perfect Christmas spirit throughout make this an excellent reading aloud Christmas book, and for 9 to 11 year olds to read."

+ Wis Lib Bul p11 N '49

KINGSLEY, SIDNEY. Detective story; a play in three acts. 147p pl $2.50 Random house

812 49-11584

Play based on life in a New York city police station. The chief character is Detective Jim McLeod who, in the course of a day, is confronted with a serious flaw in his nature—lack of mercy.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 4 '49 450w

"Good melodrama, set in a New York police station, with a not too obvious social angle."

+ Kirkus 17:320 Je 15 '49 60w

"Recommended for all drama collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:1910 D 15 '49 30w

Dramatic criticism by J. W. Krutch
Nation 168:424 Ap 9 '49 950w

Dramatic criticism by J. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:50 Ap 16 '49 1500w

KINNEY, HARRISON. Lonesome bear [il. by Harold Price]. (Whittlesey house publication) 79p $2 McGraw

49-10492

The bear was a tame one, escaped from a circus. He took a fancy to Stephen who lived in a small town in Maine, and attached himself to the family. All efforts to dislodge him proved useless, altho Stephen's mother laid down the law about bears. The day he helped capture some bank robbers he became an acceptable member of society, tolerated even by Stephen's mother. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 46:52 O 1 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:526 N '49 70w

"Amusing enough story with humorous black and whites by Harold Price. Not important, but for third and fourth grade readers a story they can read to themselves, with enough plot to carry them over some vocabulary hurdles. Sturdy cloth binding."

+ — Kirkus 17:469 S 1 '49 180w

"One of the funniest books we have read for a long time." N. L. Rathbun

+ Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 60w

"This well-written nonsense tale is told with a dead-pan humor that makes you believe it, and small-town details that are most engaging. The pictures, realistic lithographs, might be photographs from the town paper. All small boys who read it probably will go about with marshmallows hoping they will meet a bear to bring home." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 2 '49 180w

"The author's poker-faced understatement accents the comedy of the situation and Harold Price has illustrated it with realistic expressiveness." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p34 S 18 '49 140w

"An original and well-handled story, with good deadpan humor and illustrations."

+ New Yorker 25:177 D 3 '49 80w

KINNEY, LUCIEN BLAIR, and DRESDEN, KATHARINE W., eds. Better learning through current materials. 182p il $3 Stanford univ. press

371.3 Education—Experimental methods

"Current situations of local, national, or international interest, as well as current materials, are recommended as the starting point for subject studies. The book is based on a workshop and project in which a group of California teachers took part to develop and evaluate procedures and materials. For education collections." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:42 O 1 '49

School & Society 70:144 Ag 27 '49 50w

"Teachers of secondary-school youth who want to enrich their instructional procedures by using current materials in their classes will find a valuable teaching aid in [this book]." R. L. Henderson

+ School R 57:401 O '49 550w

KIPPENBERGER, SIR HOWARD KARL. Infantry brigadier. 384p il maps $4.75 Oxford

940.5412931 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, New Zealand 49-11366

"Who will forget the British Eighth Army? As a symbol of the greatness that comes from mixing all kinds of people there was nothing like it even in the United States Army. It comprised South Africans, Indians, Canadians, British, Australians—and New Zealanders. This is the story of the New Zealanders, told by an infantry officer. Their activities are a clarion of battles: from Greece in the hard days, through Crete, Libya, Syria, Alamein, Mareth, Tunisia, the Sangro in Italy and Cassino." N Y Times

"This is a good book, absorbingly interesting for anyone who wishes to go over the ground again; yet it seems a pity that General Kippenberger does not give more space to summing up and drawing his own conclusions. Clearly and tactfully as he covers his field, one wants to know more of the gossip and prejudices which, agreeable or not, were an essential part of these battles and especially of so independent a force's relations with its British superiors." J. W.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 26 '49 240w

Reviewed by Herbert Mitgang
N Y Times p18 N 6 '49 230w

"The book presents the war in the context of one man's experience, which means that, although it is immensely exciting, it is necessarily episodic. Scenes and characters pass rapidly into view and out again just when one wants to know more of them, to see them rounded off and completed. . . It may seem captious to ask for more than General Kippenberger gives, but his mirror is so faithful that this is inevitable." C. M. Woodhouse

Spec 183:116 Jl 22 '49 550w

"His book is one of the most vivid from the operational point of view, and in some respects one of the most melancholy, of those which have so far appeared on the campaigns in the Middle East. . . This is primarily a soldier's story, since he does not give much space to personalities, but it is an interesting and instructive one."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p531 Ag 19 '49 750w

KIRK, GEORGE EDWARD. Short history of the Middle East; from the rise of Islam to modern times. 301p maps $3.75 Public affairs press

950 East (Near East)—History 49-8775

"Commencing with a brief sketch of the ancient history of the area, the author describes how the Arab followers of Mohammed wrested the Middle East from the disintegrating Eastern Roman and Persian Empires. Then follow chapters on the resulting Islamic civilization, its extension from Northern India to Spain, and its contributions to the Renaissance in Western Europe." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by P. K. Hitti
Am Hist R 55:100 O '49 400w

"Teachers will find it a useful, though somewhat condensed, textbook, lack of which has been hitherto acutely felt. Diplomats and journalists will appreciate it as an excellent reference source, and the general reader will find in it an amazing amount of information not contained elsewhere within the framework of a single, easily readable volume." George Lenczowski

KIRK, G. E.—Continued

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:856 Ag '49 300w

"Unquestionably, Mr. Kirk has written one of the best single, general volumes dealing with the Middle East, its history and its problems, to be published with-in recent years. Naturally, a work of this character is bound to be sketchy in spots, and there will be differences of opinion as to the selection and presentation of materials and as to interpretations." H. N. Howard

+ Ann Am Acad 265:197 S '49 480w

Booklist 45:333 Je 1 '49

Canadian Forum 29:92 Jl '49 480w

"It seems to this reviewer that the author has kept himself as free from prejudice and partisanship as anyone has a right to expect of any author. Some readers may think he might have shown more enthusiasm about Zionism, or more indignation about the mixture of oil with politics, or more alarm about this or that. But this is not a book of enthusiasms or alarms. It is a history, as cool and fair as the author could make it. While contemporary history is always controversial, Mr. Kirk seems to have thrown a clear cold light on the history of some very hot spots." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:738 Je 15 '49 290w

Reviewed by S. V. McCasland

Crozer Q 26:252 Jl '49 1250w

Current Hist 16:343 Je '49 50w

Foreign Affairs 27:517 Ap '49 20w

"'A Short History of the Middle East' is a useful book but one that should not be read uncritically. It is history with a cultured British, not to say Anglican, accent." E. A. Speiser

+ — Nation 169:113 Jl 30 '49 650w

"This concise yet comprehensive study is the best Near Eastern manual I have yet seen, in any language. It is practical as well as outspoken, stimulating the reader to a critical immediate interest in the daily news of this fateful region—and in the sometimes quaint refractions of Hansard." Ronald Storrs

+ New Statesman & Nation 37:14 Ja 1 '49 600w

"Mr. Kirk's history is crammed from cover to cover with relevant and revealing facts. . . What Mr. Kirk has written is a valuable footnote to the news. It is the sort of book that one wants to keep on the same table with today's newspapers. There is no special pleading in it. The author treats with equal honesty and bluntness the blunders of his own people, the British, in the Middle East, the inconsistencies of American policy and the imperialistic ambitions of Soviet communism." Clifton Daniel

+ N Y Times p7 My 15 '49 750w

"Educators, students, and the general reader alike have found that, while there is a considerable number of good studies on specific countries or special topics about the Near East, there has been no satisfactory general work dealing with the historical background and current problems of the region as a whole. George E. Kirk has endeavored with considerable success to supply the lack." P. L. Hanna

+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 My 21 '49 800w

"Mr. Kirk's short history is admirably balanced. In his first fifty pages he gives the general reader what is probably the best brief summary of the rise of Islam that has appeared in English." Edward Hodgkin

+ Spec 182:54 Ja 14 '49 650w

"Writing of social and economic trends today, the author reveals personal knowledge and appreciation of the Middle East, and well indicates the nature and the weaknesses of Middle Eastern society. . . The Short History of the Middle East is naturally not intended for the specialist, but the author has read, and read with discrimination, the standard works on the various aspects of his subject, and has avoided, very properly in a book of this sort, the unorthodox theory and the special viewpoint."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p36 Ja 15 '49 900w

KIRKBRIDE, RONALD DE LEVINGTON. Spring is not gentle. 271p $3 Doubleday
49-7512

Sequel to Winds, Blow Gently (Book Review Digest 1945). In this novel of the Quaker Jordan family, the father has died and the sons are attempting to carry out their father's ideals. David and Nina are married, and for a time are happy in their work for the Welfare House. But the two finally separate because Nina disagrees with the Jordans on the question of the cooperative they have started to help the impoverished farmers. The scene is a southern town in the late 1930's.

Booklist 45:149; 210 Ja 1 '49; F 15 '49

"As a study of a way of life, and people living it, the book has the same appeal of Winds Blow Gently. But for my taste, Ronald Kirkbride seems strangely old fashioned and labored in style."

Kirkus 16:644 D 15 '48 170w

"This is a quiet story, told in flowing rhythmic language, pleading for the gentle steadfast integrity of the Quaker precepts." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:198 F 1 '49 140w

"Mr. Kirkbride writes vividly and persuasively of the oddly assorted people who came to live in shacks on the Jordan place and pooled their labor and trifling resources. . . Here, as in the preceding novel, Mr. Kirkbride writes with freshness about aspects of the South little seen or known by Northern visitors. 'Spring is Not Gentle' is more effective as a picture of a place and ways of living and thinking than as a story of the individual relationship of David and Nina. Nina and her friends are far less actual than the Jordans, resolutely living the faith of the Friends, and the dispossessed people with whom they worked. I, for one, hope that a further book will tell more of the people who stayed in Ruston." David Tilden

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 20 '49 550w

"David Jordan is presumably a modern young man; certainly the problems which he faces are modern American problems; yet he emerges as nothing more than the unreal sugar-and-high-purpose visioning of a Victorian maiden aunt. Unfortunately, the other characters follow his example." Blythe Morley

N Y Times p24 F 27 '49 100w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ap 9 '49 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p261 Ap 23 '49 120w

KIRKELL, MIRIAM H., and SCHAFFNIT, IRMA K. Partners all—places all! forty-four enjoyable square and folk dances for everyone; il. by Deirdre Baird. 129p $3.95 Dutton

793.34 Dancing—Folk and national dances
49-8021

"'Calls' and coaching instructions for the dance as well as simple piano arrangements of the music are given along with illustrations. Appropriate records, which may be used in place of the piano, are listed by title and number for each dance. There is a bibliography of records, books and magazines." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 45:238 Mr 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

"Even a 'caller' will find the proper instructions—and helpful hints."

+ Kirkus 16:657 D 15 '48 120w

"Easy piano accompaniments and suggested recordings should make the book especially useful to beginners and club leaders. Included are circle, long ways, straight line, and square dances, ranging from simple to very complex." Maria Cimino

+ Library J 74:669 Ap 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Phyllis Hogan

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 27 '49 200w

Reviewed by Rosalyn Krokover

Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 30 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:45 Mr '49

KIRKLAND, EDWARD CHASE. Men, cities and transportation; a study in New England history, 1820-1900. 2v il maps $12.50 Harvard univ. press

385 Transportation—New England. Railroads—New England 48-7564

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Here is a contribution not merely to the synthesis of the hitherto known history of the New England transportation system, but one which also adds in significant ways to our knowledge of that history. Moreover, it is a well-written and consistently interesting account." E. W. Williams

+ Am Econ R 39:569 Mr '49 1350w

"It would be highly desirable if investigations similar to this could be made for other sections of the country. A better model than Professor Kirkland's study could hardly be found." D. L. Kemmerer

+ Ann Am Acad 264:154 Jl '49 750w

" 'Men, Cities and Transportation' is a comprehensive, scholarly, and interestingly written account of the evolution of transportation in New England during the period of its major industrialization. . . To the geographer, the work is of especial interest, because, more than most historians, the author recognizes throughout the importance of the environment in which the evolution took place. Several small maps trace the expansion of the railroad pattern. Unfortunately, they show merely the locations of the terminals and junctions and the general directions of the routes; they would have been more significant had they shown also something of the terrain. There is a thorough documentation by footnotes, but the sources have not been listed in a bibliography." H. M. Mayer

+ — Geog R 39:342 Ap '49 800w

"There is no question but that Men, Cities and Transportation is indispensable for the economic, social, maritime, or railway historian, as well as for the sociologist. Although of prime interest to New Englanders, the pages contain many an idea and event of national relevance. And because Professor Kirkland is a Yankee genius at mixing vinegar and molasses, his sprightly narrative will appeal widely to the general reader."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:322 S '48 380w

KISER, MRS MARTHA GWINN. Gay Melody; decorations by Jane Castle. 214p $2.50 Longmans

49-7478

This novel for girls tells the story of a young schoolteacher, friend of Louisa Alcott, Thoreau, and other Concord celebrities a hundred years ago when women schoolteachers were a novelty.

Booklist 45:248 Mr 15 '49

"A charming story for older girls and will please adults who love to reconstruct by-gone days." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun Ag 8 '49 110w

"The personages in Miss Kiser's book make a vivid impression upon the reader. And her story about the days of McGuffy's Readers; and daguerreotypes and Mrs. Farragut's Charm School for fashionable young ladies moves right along brimful of rollicking good fun." H. F. Griswold

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 10 '49 210w

Kirkus 17:5 Ja 1 '49 190w

"Very entertaining and instructive story. . . Recommended." C. W. Field

+ Library J 74:558 Ap 1 '49 80w

"Teen-age girls will like 'gay' young Melody, and will be delighted at Louisa Alcott's share in the story. This author's style varies between being clear and lively, being overladen with small historic detail, and being oversentimental. But the material is good, and the book offers an easy way to absorb a worth-while point of view toward teaching." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ap 24 '49 250w

"The story, told with gay humor, has action, romance, and plenty of suspense. Girls from 12 upward will especially relish the delightful descriptions of Melody's wardrobe. They will learn a great deal about the customs and the 'real' people who appear briefly. Mrs. Kiser has authenticated her historical background with footnotes and a bibliography." N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 13 '48 180w

"Melody is a dear. Her irrepressible humor, her pretty clothes, the details of her love affair have a great appeal. It is an entertaining picture of New England at a time when the New England people were establishing a tradition that will never be forgotten."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Mr 12 '49 180w

School & Society 69:63 Ja 22 '49 30w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 45:50 Mr '49

KISER, MRS MARTHA GWINN. Sunshine for Merrily; il. by Eloise Wilkin. 130p $2 Random house

49-8351

Story of the Thanksgiving and Christmas spent by three poor-house orhpans at Miss Allie's home. Their gay times in the small house attract the attention of Miss Posey, a "Big Bug," and Uncle Richey, fisherman; and they join the fun. By Christmas night Miss Posey has provided a way for the "family" to stay together.

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 170:210 D '49 20w

"Sunshine for Merrily is just right for the 6-10 year olds to read to themselves and is light-hearted reading aloud." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun My 7 '49 130w

"The story is full of kindliness, good humor and fun and in the end it brings lonely people together in warm affection and simple comfort." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:286 Jl '49 80w

"School life, small town events, Thanksgiving merriment, the Christmas decoration contest with its surprise finish, hold much that will interest children. Merrily, herself, seems less real than the other children. While not measuring up to Rainbow for Me, [Book Review Digest 1948] Sunshine for Merrily has warmth and color and a lesson all its own."

+ — Kirkus 17:59 F 1 '49 230w

"A rather sentimental, nostalgic, but heartwarming story. . . Recommended for grades 4-6." N. L. Rathbun

+ Library J 74:826 My 15 '49 70w

"A beautiful little book." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 My 8 '49 320w

"Seeking by way of pious devices and colloquial charm (plus some captivating period line-drawings by Eloise Wilkin), to edge into the folksy tradition of Mrs. Wiggs, Polly Pepper and Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Mrs. Kiser's story is a coy anachronism. However, since girls from 8 to 10 love a marzipan strawberry, this one will not seem oversweet but exactly right." S. C. Gross

+ — N Y Times p28 Je 5 '49 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 13 '49 100w

"The pictures by Eloise Wilkins share the poetic and humorous qualities of the story. It is printed in an especially clear and attractive type. Sensitive little girls who enjoy a simple and old-fashioned story will like this one." B. W. Shaffer

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 S 17 '49 200w

Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Kalak of the ice; il. by Bob Kuhn. 201p $2.50 Holiday

Bears—Legends and stories 49-9043

A story of the Arctic Circle, its Eskimos and animals, and what happened when the mightiest

KJELGAARD, J. A.—Continued
hunter went out to get the mightiest bear, Kalak. For grades 6-8.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Jl 9 '49 210w

"Children who like to read about animals as individuals will follow with zest Kalak's search for food and security for her cubs. Though the Eskimos, too, are hunting for food—caribou, whales, polar bears and seals—a reader's sympathy lies with Kalak and we are glad she swims away from even a courageous hunter. Jim Kjelgaard travels and hunts much in the wild and brings reality into his writing." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:288 Jl '49 120w

"An exciting adventure story."
+ Kirkus 17:208 Ap 15 '49 100w

"The material has not as popular an appeal as the author's other books, but it should be as well read as Biggest Bear on Earth by McCracken [Book Review Digest 1943]. Format is excellent and the illustrations by Bob Kuhn satisfactory." J. F. Carter
Library J 74:896 Je 1 '49 80w

"As usual, Holiday House gives us superb book-making, a type page easy for young eyes and a format very pleasant to hold." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 31 '49 180w

"Here is a vivid picture of the grim struggle for existence in the Far North. The descriptive passages, particularly of the ice pack, are excellent. Kalak is well portrayed, and there are fine accounts of the seals, walruses, wolves and a remarkable old whale. Wildlife enthusiasts of 12 and upward will thoroughly enjoy this dramatic story which will add much to their knowledge of the Arctic." Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p30 Je 19 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 12 '49 50w
Wis Lib Bul 45:108 Je '49

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Nose for trouble. 250p $2.50 Holiday

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-11129

An adventure story telling how Tom Rainse and his bloodhound capture the Black Elk poaching ring. For grades 7-9.

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:211 D '49 40w
Chicago Sun p8X N 13 '49 240w

"There are many thrills in this tale of two determined men fighting against unequal odds, aided only by their courage and wits and a dog's keen nose." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 25 '49 200w
Kirkus 17:430 Ag 15 '49 80w

"A good piece of writing and a fine picture of mountaineering life." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1614 O 15 '49 40w

"Above-average outdoor story of the early days of conservation when game wardens were regarded with hostility. . . Good writing and direct approach of author make this excellent for boys of grades 7-10. Recommended." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 74:1830 D 1 '49 80w

"The swift tempo of the story is sustained by a succession of plausible dramatic episodes, climaxing in a slugging free-for all inside an abandoned silver mine. The mountain folk talk and act like real backwoodsmen, and the breezy banter of the young game wardens rings true. Boys of junior high age and up will enjoy this book and will be convinced of the need for wild-life conservation." Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 140w

"Humor lightens the story. It is very well told." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 140w
Wis Lib Bul p12 N '49

KLEE, PAUL. On modern art; with an introd. by Herbert Read [tr. by Paul Findlay]. 55p 24il $2.50 G. Efron, 41 W. 83d st, N.Y. 24

759.9494 Art, Modern [49-7269]

"In Klee's lecture On Modern Art the selection of his pen-drawings with which (presumably) the Swiss editor has interlarded it is a far lighter affair than the careful, serious text. His thesis is that a painter must juggle with color, tone, and line to produce a balanced expression, not of facts or things but of some fleeting wisp of a fantastic idea, some secret which he alone can track down and expose. Klee could in fact do this, and on the alternate pages Klee the draughtsman knocks any pomposity out of Klee the thinker with his subtle irrelevancies." Manchester Guardian
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 25 '49 130w

"Although primarily a book for students, its technical definitions are so clear that everyone should read it. Sobriety, patience and sweetness are in every line. . . Only poets like Baudelaire can write so well of painting; only painters like Klee about technique and morale." Lincoln Kirstein
+ New Repub 120:28 Ap 18 '49 90w

Reviewed by Aline Louchheim
N Y Times p7 F 13 '49 650w

"This lecture is not so much theory as practice, for Klee's teaching, at the Bauhaus and after, was based on inculcating into others his own technical principles. Provided his pupils knew how to make a pure work of art the rest was a question of inspiration. That is why Klee was (and is) a dangerous master. What is important, however, is the clarity with which he defines the purposes that various elements serve for him during the creative process and the particular effects that they obtain. This has been his contribution to the new artistic language, to the art of the next hundred years."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p40 Ja 15 '49 3250w

KLEIN, DAVID, and JOHNSON, MARY LOUISE. They took to the sea. 342p il $3.75 Rutgers univ. press

797.14 Sailing. Voyages and travels 48-11442

"Including personal accounts of the voyages of Joshua Slocum, Jack London, Rockwell Kent and other small-boat voyagers." (Subtitle) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:258 Ap 1 '49

"A well edited summarizing. . . Nicely annotated bibliography." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:64 Ja 1 '49 40w

"Some notable voyagers are missing from the manifest. . . But that is a small quarrel. Altogether authors Klein and Johnson have put together a kindly sea book for any one who travels by subway and dreams of the sea." Felix Riesenberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Mr 13 '49 410w

KLEM, MRS GRACE (NEUBAUER). Serena and the cookie lady; story and pictures. 32p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury 49-7734

When the cookie lady nearly lost her little house because she had no money, her cat, Serena, found a way to solve the problem. For ages four to eight.

Booklist 45:321 My 15 '49

"Gentle tale and unsophisticated pictures by the author."
Kirkus 17:84 F 15 '49 90w

"This little book still has a sort of quiet charm that is very inviting. Recommended." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 74:556 Ap 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 20 '49 130w
Wis Lib Bul 45:49 Mr '49

KLENKE, WILLIAM WALTER. Furniture book. 173p il $3.25 Manual arts

684 Furniture. Cabinet work 49-1181

"Over fifty complete plans for making reproductions and modern adaptations of Chippendale, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Duncan Phyfe styles of furniture. Sections on use of small machines, upholstering and wood finishing." (Library J) "Most of the projects from one of [the author's] previous books, Selected Furniture Drawings, [Book Review Digest 1931] have been retained . . . and many new ones have been added." (Pref)

Booklist 45:308 My 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1670 N 15 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:39 My '49

"Anyone who wants to try makng a Duncan Phyfe chair in his own basement should be able to obtain as much assistance from 'Klenke's Furniture Book' as printed instructions can give." Mary Roche
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 27 '49 110w

KLOEFFLER, ROYCE GERALD. Industrial electronics and control. 478p il $5.50 Wiley

621.38 Electronics. Control equipment 49-976

"Text for students of electrical engineering. A survey of industrial electronic applications. Early chapters explain principles of electronics and the last concern electronics and its application to practical industrial problems. Important chapters on the treatment of thyratrons and gaseous tubes and seven concerning servo-mechanisms." (Library J) References at end of some of the chapters. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:130 Ja 15 '49 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:5 Ja '49

KLUCKHOHN, CLYDE. Mirror for man; the relation of anthropology to modern life. (Whittlesey house publication) 313p $3.75 McGraw

572 Anthropology. U.S.—Civilization 49-7012

"The author, writing for the non-technically trained reader, describes the many ramifications of the science of anthropology and shows how the study of human behavior can aid in breaking down the prejudices which now exist between peoples of different nations and cultures. He lays bare the fallacious thinking which underlies the popular concept of race and points out the stupidity of any policy or plan for a new world order 'that emphasizes political or economic factors.' " Library J

Am Soc R 14:568 Ag '49 170w

Reviewed by J. S. Slotkin
Ann Am Acad 263:261 My '49 260w

Booklist 45:169; 188 Ja 15 '49; F 1 '49

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 10 '49 800w

Current Hist 16:289 My '49 30w

Kirkus 17:20 Ja 1 '49 250w

"Highly recommended." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 74:125 Ja 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by Bruce Bliven
New Repub 120:23 Ap 11 '49 1050w

"A diagnostic study of our own national character and, in spite of its brevity, one of the best which has been made to date. Mr. Kluckhohn has culled from earlier works the conclusions which seem to be sound and added several of his own. The reader will not be altogether flattered by the resulting picture, but it can serve as a basis for some profitable introspection. The last chapter, An Anthropologist Looks at the World, is in some ways the least successful in the book." Ralph Linton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 30 '49 1300w

"In the face of the new approach and content of the new anthropology, it is good to remember that the basic science is still concerned with the history of human culture and the record of mankind's evolution. . . It is when Professor Kluckhohn is treating this fundamental subject-matter of anthropology that he scores brilliantly. These chapters contain, perhaps, the best recent statement of an anthropological contribution to our understanding of the meaning and working of culture." Bernard Mishkin
+ N Y Times p15 Ja 30 '49 700w

"One detects in the author's phrases in describing the culture of the United States what is perhaps a bit of unconscious national conditioning. The urge to debunk is very well developed in our writing and is perhaps carried farther here than in any other literature. One wonders if it is this national tendency that accounts for the phrase 'a cult of bodily cleanliness' when the author lists some of our traits, implying by the use of the word 'cult' a kind of abnormality. But these are minor reservations that should not detract from the major premise of 'Mirror for Man.' This is eloquently set forth in the final purview of the world of today with its cultural conflicts and threats of war." H. L. Shapiro
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:11 Ja 29 '49 1000w

School & Society 69:15 Ja 1 '49 70w

"There are a few features of the book that may irritate the cautious scientist. The very enthusiasm of the writing may alienate readers who will feel that the author is guilty of claiming too much for his discipline. To the reviewer such sins are venial and have not prevented his assigning the book widely to students in the hope that the enthusiasm which it contains will be contagious and thereby stimulate learning." J. J. Honigmann
+ — Social Forces 28:95 O '49 290w

Social Studies 40:336 N '49 10w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith
Springf'd Republican p22A F 20 '49 950w

"The book is eminently readable, contains few technical terms, and provides a clear account of what anthropology is trying to do."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:189 Je '49 240w

Wis Lib Bul 45:85 My '49

KLUCKHOHN, CLYDE, and MURRAY, HENRY ALEXANDER, eds. Personality in nature, society, and culture. 561p $6 Knopf

137 Personality 48-3750

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Important and handsome volume." A. L. Kroeber
+ Am Anthropol 51:116 Ja '49 1350w

"This reviewer believes the [author's conception of personality] to be markedly confused, weird, unworkable and constituting a sorry hostage to eclecticism. . . In sanctioning and shielding the deficiencies in the separate studies and schemes, it serves no benficial purpose and is, indeed, detrimental to the development of sound social psychological theory. To this reviewer it is regrettable that a distinguished anthropologist and a distinguished psychologist should abet such an unfortunate trend in contemporary social psychology." Herbert Blumer
— Am Soc R 14:563 Ag '49 1600w

"This volume suffers somewhat from its attempt to be all-inclusive. . . The selection is too small and too uneven to be of use to people seriously interested in these subjects. The greater part of the material is, however, novel and interesting both in subject matter and treatment. . . The editors have supplied a long original paper on the Outline of a Conception of Personality; despite the 'scientificese' jargon in which it is written, it represents the clearest thinking on this confused subject which has appeared since our knowledge of the implications of the term has been so greatly extended." Geoffrey Gorer
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:200 Ag 20 '49 850w

Reviewed by Kimball Young
Social Educ 13:138 Mr '49 500w

KLUCKHOHN, CLYDE—Continued
Reviewed by J. J. Honigmann
Social Forces 27:314 Mr '49 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p775 N 25 '49 1350w

"Many of the articles will be of general interest, particularly those in the final section, which discuss applications of scientific work on personality to present-day social problems."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:478 D '48 210w

KNAPP, LEWIS MANSFIELD. Tobias Smollett: doctor of men and manners. 326p il $5 Princeton univ. press
B or 92 Smollett, Tobias George 49-7424

"Of the important eighteenth-century English novelists, Tobias Smollett is perhaps the least known and the least read today. . . It has remained for Mr. Lewis Knapp, chairman of the Colorado College English Department, to give us the first trustworthy, full-scale picture of the man and writer. It is not Mr. Knapp's method to make a frontal attack on the old legends, to argue with the unsympathetic critics of the past—although he does insist in his preface that he has tried to produce a portrait 'freed from Victorian distortions.' Instead, he patiently assembles all the facts and lets the reader make up his own mind about Smollett." N Y Times

Booklist 45:261 Ap 1 '49

"The person of Smollett and his personal relations are excellently handled in this biography. But the age itself in the larger sense is hardly presented in this study of men and manners. Such omission is certainly uniform in biographies of this kind, and perhaps it is inevitable. But Smollett especially was a social novelist, and he is perhaps best seen as a critic of swelling and rascally Whig commercialism, on sea and on land. We should have been even more rightly in Mr. Knapp's debt had he taken some time to show us this writer within the flux of the economic revolutions of the eighteenth century." Kenneth MacLean
+ — Canadian Forum 29:93 Jl '49 600w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 38:44 Jl 9 '49 350w

"Smollett intended his novels as serious satires on humanity. They have rarely been appreciated in this sense even when they were diverting a large public. But the glimpses this book gives of the sprawling, richly populated and crudely realistic cosmos of his fiction will doubtless impel many readers to a rewarding acquaintance or rereading of at least 'Roderick Random' and 'Humphrey Clinker.' Our unawareness of Smollett is the greatest gap in our knowledge of the eighteenth-century English novel. A revival of interest may be imminent and is much to be desired." C. G. Stillman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Je 19 '49 750w

"It is high time that Smollett's vigorous realistic fiction should be more widely read. As a prelude to such a revival Mr. Knapp's excellent factual biography is to be heartily welcomed." J. L. Clifford
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 30 '49 900w

"One can have only respect for Mr. Knapp's encyclopedic erudition. No smallest item but has been caught in his dragnet. Every page bristles with names, dates, titles, and references to specific events. . . But the question is: what becomes of Smollett? Does he appear, solid and three-dimensional, amid this crowd of characters, most of them forgotten, amid this swarming mass of factual evidence? Who, aside from the specialist, is going to read this book? . . What the reader longs for is Carlyle, is Macaulay, is Gamaliel Bradford, is anybody who will put first things first in biography. Important as accuracy is, art is also important, and the difficulty with scholarship of this sort is that it sacrifices art to accuracy." H. M. Jones
Sat R of Lit 32:19 F 26 '49 800w

"In this fine piece of scholarship Mr. Knapp has assembled all the materials relating to Smollett which are at present accessible, and it is unlikely that his biography will ever be superseded. If Mr. Knapp's book has a fault, it is the generous fault of undiscriminating sympathy." C. E. Vulliamy
+ Spec 182:792 Je 10 '49 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p552 Ag 26 '49 1600w

"The method in this biography is scholarly and exhaustive, so exhaustive, indeed, that occasionally the material included seems trivial. Mr. Knapp has adhered strictly to his determination to present all the biographical details as objectively as possible, and only the sixteenth and final chapter evaluates Smollett's contribution to the novel. Thus for the analysis and criticism of Smollett's works the student must turn elsewhere. The limitation to objective biography is, doubtless, fortunate for the scholar, and this work will be definitive in its field for some time."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:182 Je '49 210w

KNAPP, SALLY ELIZABETH. Eleanor Roosevelt; a biography. 185p $2.50 Crowell
B or 92 Roosevelt, Eleanor (Roosevelt)—Juvenile literature 49-11201

A short biography of Eleanor Roosevelt written for children of twelve to sixteen. Index.

Kirkus 17:432 Ag 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1549 O 15 '49 50w

"Recommended for school and public libraries for readers ten years old and up—through high school probably." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 74:1682 N 1 '49 70w

"The book is not burdened with editorializing or heroine worship, it is amusing and straightforward, an excellent job, and one which will lead readers of 12 to 16 to Mrs. Roosevelt's volumes of autobiography." M. F.
+ N Y Times p30 N 13 '49 170w

KNIGHT, BRIGID, pseud. See Sinclair, K. H. N.

KNIGHT, CHARLES ROBERT. Prehistoric man: the great adventurer. 331p il $5 Appleton
573.3 Man, Prehistoric 49-4859

"Popularization of the story of prehistoric man by an artist-naturalist, well known for his restorations of prehistoric human and animal life, his illustrations forming the backbone of the book. He describes early man and animals, listing in detail the various anthropological 'finds' and their influence in shaping modern ideas." Library J

Booklist 46:8 S 1 '49

Reviewed by H. B. Nichols
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 29 '49 110w
Kirkus 17:345 Jl 1 '49 140w

"The author is more artist than scientist, and his attempt to popularize is at times vague and inconsistent." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1089 Ag '49 130w
Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 20w

"Unfortunately Mr. Knight is a far better artist with the brush than with the pen; and so, in spite of his knowledge and enthusiasm, his writing, while serious and lofty in intent, is marked by incredible lapses in grammar and literary quality, many of which, one supposes, could have been eliminated by proper editing, although nothing could rescue the author from the stilted phraseology that marks his style throughout." H. M. Parshley
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 S 11 '49 550w

"This is restoration in the grand manner. But Mr. Knight achieves his object: In viewing his portraits of Java, Heidelberg and Peking men, one feels that the artist has got them right, that we have met them somewhere before and will meet them again. Each of the twenty-one paintings reproduced in Mr. Knight's new book tells a story, happily without symbolic overtones. . . Mr. Knight's paintings of prehistoric life, unfortunately, are reproduced here in halftone—a process which gives a blurred effect." Bernard Mishkin

+ — N Y Times p8 S 4 '49 650w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 25 '49 190w

"Mr. Knight's venturesomeness is vastly greater than the erudition necessary to write a book such as this. It is unmitigatedly bad. It is worse. It is dangerous. It perpetuates the myth of man's inborn naughtiness. It belongs to the luminous-numinous school of popular-science writing, the less of which we have the better." M. F. Ashley-Montagu
— Sat R of Lit 32:21 S 17 '49 650w

KNIGHT, CLAYTON. Skyroad to mystery; il. by [the author]. 243p $2.50 Knopf 49-11079

"Pepe and Ronnie Gregory again fly into danger and see that wrong is righted and honor upheld. Flying the Wanderer, a round-the-world freight ship, they unwittingly carry a spy from Turkey to Teterboro in the U.S. and his reports from Alaska to Dutch Guiana. The spy is captured with help from the F.B.I." Library J

"The author uses a rapid-fire journalistic prose, which is most effective in his well-handled flying sequences. Characterization is thin; the young aviators and their dialog are practically interchangeable, which leads to some confusion. Foreign scenes and characters flash by too fast to leave much impression. But these are trifles to boys who like their adventure breathless." Vernon Ives
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 150w

"High adventure, competently told, but somehow more contrived than its predecessors."
+ — Kirkus 17:511 S 15 '49 160w

"Fast-paced; good characters; exciting reading." Ruth McEvoy
+ Library J 74:1920 D 15 '49 70w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Dark abyss. 222p $2.50 Dutton
49-7019

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 7 '49 230w
Kirkus 16:582 N 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ja 2 '49 110w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p22 Ja 9 '49 150w

"Standard stuff, sleekly presented."
New Yorker 24:80 Ja 8 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 23 '49 60w

"Below par."
— Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 40w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Hangman's choice. 224p $2.50 Dutton
49-9980

Mystery story.

Kirkus 17:283 Je 1 '49 70w

"The novel of suspense is replacing the straight detective story to such an extent that even so old a hand at the deductive problem as Clifford Knight is abandoning it for the pursuit formula. He brings to the new field his one real virtue, a vividly communicated sense of locale (in this case Los Angeles, Lake Arrowhead, and the Arizona desert), and all his familiar vices of wooden characterization, unlikely dialogue and preposterous plotting." A. B.
— + N Y Times p15 Jl 31 '49 170w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 14 '49 90w

KNIGHT, EDGAR WALLACE, ed. Documentary history of education in the South before 1860; 5v; v. 1, European inheritances. 744p $12.50 Univ. of N.C. press
370.975 Education—South (49-8813)

The first volume in a proposed five volume series. It covers European influences on the education of the South, from the founding of Jamestown to the American Revolution. Index.

"The editor had a vast amount of material to choose from, and he has selected wisely. Some of it was readily accessible, but much of it came as the result of an arduous search. A sizable portion has never before appeared in print. The minutes of Dr. Bray's Associates, for example, were never published before; while countless excerpts from colonial newspapers are here reproduced for the first time. Incidentally, the University of North Carolina Press, so far as format and printing are concerned, reinforces the high level of scholarly presentation that characterizes Dr. Knight's editorial contribution." J. E. Pomfret
+ Am Hist R 55:152 O '49 550w

Reviewed by T. P. Abernethy
N Y Times p57 N 20 '49 380w
School & Society 69:303 Ap 23 '49 50w

"Reference libraries and collegiate departments of education will find Knight's documentary history a distinct asset to teaching and research." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 69:454 Je 25 '49 1100w

KNIGHT, JOHN ALDEN. Black bass. 200p il $4 Putnam
799.1758 Bass fishing 49-8259

"A comprehensive work, by a well known expert on habits of bass, methods of catching and handling, tackle, lures, etc." Library J

Booklist 45:309 My 15 '49

"This has everything the black bass fisherman could desire—unless he be that low species (according to John Alden Knight), the bait fisherman. Even then, he'll enjoy this, and probably emerge from reading it a convert to angling."
+ Kirkus 17:77 F 1 '49 100w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 30w

"John Alden Knight is one of our few really top-flight writers on hunting and fishing. He is an excellent observer blessed with a mind both analytical and experimental, and is a notably clear, concise writer. All these qualities are evident in 'Black Bass.'" J. R. de la Torre Bueno
+ N Y Times p24 My 15 '49 230w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 8 '49 150w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Bass derby murder. 224p $2.25 Doubleday
49-11058

Detective story.

Bookmark 9:55 D '49 30w

"Fishing atmosphere injects major interest into somewhat humdrum 'least likely suspect' murder puzzle."
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 N 20 '49 60w
Kirkus 17:409 Ag 1 '49 60w

"A New England fishing background gives a little color to Miss Knight's new mystery. But the story is pretty routine."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 O 23 '49 140w

"The plot is mechanical and of questionable legitimacy; the characters are the most hastily carved puppets with all their strings showing.

KNIGHT, K. M.—Continued
The technical details of Massachusetts bass-fishing are of some interest; otherwise we are offered only the dry bones of a novel—and Elisha is no Ezekiel to clothe them with living flesh." A. B.

— + N Y Times p20 O 23 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p32 D 4 '49 60w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Dying echo; adventure and death in the ancient Maya cities of Yucatan. 185p $2.25 Doubleday 49-8387

Detective story.

"Good handling of the background and neat attention to characters make this a competent crime record."
+ Kirkus 17:97 F 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 17 '49 110w

"An excellent travelogue, with a mystery story thrown in for good measure." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p33 Ap 24 '49 140w

KNIGHT, RUTH ADAMS (YINGLING) (MRS DICKSON JAY HARTWELL). It might be you. 206p $2 Doubleday 49-10567

A book of short stories designed for reading by students of high school age. The basic theme of the stories is intolerance as it has been suffered in all ages from early Christian times to the present; in many countries from Rome to Mexico.

Booklist 46:49 O 1 '49

"A superb book which every teen ager in the land should read."
+ Kirkus 17:396 Ag 1 '49 160w

"In each story sympathy for the individual is skillfully aroused and injustice allowed to condemn itself. Absorbing reading carrying a quiet plea for understanding and fair play. High school. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 74:1466 O 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1615 O 15 '49 70w

"These are disturbing stories, and the author intended them to be so. . . Although intended for the high school age, the style and the age of the characters would indicate an upper intermediate and junior high level. For this latter age group it is particularly important that the reading of the stories should be followed by a healthy discussion." A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p26 O 16 '49 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 13 '49 400w

KNOP, WERNER GUSTAV JOHN. Prowling Russia's forbidden zone; a secret journey into Soviet Germany. 200p $2.75 Knopf

943.086 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945-
49-8731

"Perhaps you have heard this story before. The best parts were published last December in 'The Saturday Evening Post.' In any case it's the first-person narrative of a German-born British subject who now lives in Washington, describing the two months he passed last summer in that part of Germany which is occupied by the Soviet Army. He went without permission. He traveled on forged papers. He came out with a first-rate account of how he had fared—and recollections of conversation with many non-Communist Germans." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

Booklist 45:333 Je 1 '49

"During his three weeks in the Soviet zone Mr. Knop lost 40 pounds in weight. It was worth it. His book is a thrilling piece of informative and balanced writing." Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 14 '49 550w

"Some sections of the book have appeared in a serial form in the Saturday Evening Post—and this explains perhaps the split character of the book. Some parts of it are written like the serious report of a secret agent and others in the way of a super-thriller, compressing within its pages as many hair-raising events as possible. I have to confess that I have a prejudice against mixed stuff." Max Fischer
Commonweal 50:228 Je 10 '49 480w

Foreign Affairs 28:164 O '49 40w

"This record of a secret journey into Soviet Germany is as exciting reading as a spy thriller."
+ Kirkus 17:192 Ap 1 '49 300w

Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 40w

Nation 169:18 Jl 2 '49 140w

"If you want to read a good adventure story of life in the Soviet zone of Germany, read Werner Knop's 'Prowling Russia's Forbidden Zone.' But if you want to know what's happening in that part of the world, supplement it from your daily newspaper. For this is adventure—illegal border crossing, forged papers, fear of arrest, hiding at night and clandestine talk, not a report on the Soviet zone." Walter Kerr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 15 '49 550w

"An important addition to the melancholy literature about the lost peoples of central and eastern Europe." Drew Middleton
+ N Y Times p27 My 8 '49 550w

"This colorful story of one man's secret travels through the Russian-occupied zone of Germany is well worth preserving between the covers of a book. . . Possibly the most informative part of the book deals not with the author's impression in the Soviet zone, but with his talks in the Moschendorf camp in the U.S.-controlled region." Martin Ebon
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 My 21 '49 700w

KNOWLAND, MRS HELEN DAVIS (HERRICK). Madame Baltimore. 210p $2.50 Dodd 49-2535

Murder story.

"A regrettably loose-jointed sample of the 'suspense' story by the woman scorned. . . The quintet of characters principally involved (insofar as they come to life at all) seem tedious. Mrs. Knowland's manner has only dubious distinctions of manner." James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun Ap 29 '49 380w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 My 1 '49 140w

"This book has some minor structural flaws, but its principal drawback is the first-person narration, with Harriet as the narrator. Since she is not only a philanderer but also a petty liar and cheat, and since you learn the story through her or not at all, the amount you can take of it will depend on the amount of interest you have in what makes Harriet tick." Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p24 Je 26 '49 200w

Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ap 9 '49 40w

Reviewed by W. R. Manchester
Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 170w

KNOWLTON, MRS EVELYN HOPE (PUFFER). Pepperell's progress; history of a cotton textile company, 1844-1945. 511p il $5 Harvard univ. press

677.21 Cotton goods industry. Pepperell manufacturing company
49-7354

A record of the Pepperell manufacturing company, organized at Biddeford, Maine, in 1850. The history traces the growth and development of Pepperell during the years when other cotton manufacturing companies were failing, and brings the story down to 1945. Notes and references. Index.

Reviewed by J. B. Hedges
Am Hist R 55:165 O '49 400w

"This [is a] valuable survey." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 25 '49 550w

"A remarkable piece of economic history. . . Mrs. Knowlton's careful account of the fortunes of the two halves of the company's business is most valuable, as is her description of its trading methods over the century. It was a successful pioneer in branded lines and textile advertising."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 22 '49 480w

"Scholarly methods have been well used in preparing the text; it seems unfortunate, however, that, in a book which will be read chiefly by academic or business professionals interested in analyzing the techniques and possibilities of business history, the footnotes are grouped at the end of the book and no bibliography is provided."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:212 Je '49 240w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. Creed in slow motion. 238p $2.50 Sheed

238.1 Apostles' creed 49-6285

In twenty-seven short sermons the author explains the Creed of the Roman Catholic faith, clause by clause. The sermons were first delivered to the girls at the Assumption Convent, when they were evacuated to Aldenham Park, Bridgenorth, during the war.

"Not little girls merely, but adult men and women, highly trained teachers and clerics, can profit by the reading of this book, which could serve as an exhibit in the art of instructing children."
+ Cath World 170:321 Ja '50 200w

"Much of the argument is relevant to the Christian faith wherever professed. All of the argument—childlike without being childish—challenges issues that test the thinking of the most mature intelligence." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p38 O 30 '49 250w

"The sermons are 'jolly' and chatty in the English manner but at the same time they are thoroughly and soundly Catholic." E. M. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 23 '49 150w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. Trials of a translator. 113p $2 Sheed

220.5 Bible. Whole—Versions 49-9023

Monsignor Knox spent nine or ten years engaged on an authorized Roman Catholic translation of the Bible into English. In these essays he discusses the problems he had to meet, and defends some of his decisions.

"The essays are erudite, entertaining and lucid. . . As far as the translation's intelligibility is concerned, these essays convict Ronald Knox of his own success. Without boasting, he makes his talents very clear." John Hay
+ Commonweal 50:277 Je 24 '49 320w

Reviewed by Justin O'Brien
N Y Times p12 Ag 7 '49 470w

"Since the articles were originally all published separately, there is a certain amount of repetition from chapter to chapter, but each chapter by itself is witty and lucid, revealing equally the scholarship and the mastery of English that Monsignor Knox brought to his task. He makes it very clear that you can't simply translate word by word, as both the Authorized and Douay translators did, and make good sense, principally because words in one language do not usually have exact equivalents in another." E. M. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 10 '49 270w

"Whether or not he has solved [his problems], he has been teased into a discussion that is fascinating because of his keen intellect and muscular charm. Only one short essay, the fourth, is unrelievedly dull and technical, and in a way that is fortunate. It shows how refreshingly bright and amusing the others are." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 My 28 '49 180w

KNOX, WILFRED LAWRENCE. Acts of the apostles. 120p $2.75 Macmillan

226.6 Bible. New Testament—Acts 48-10347

A course of lectures delivered at the Vacation school of biblical study at Oxford in 1946. Contents: The author of Acts; The sources of Acts; Galatians and the Council of Jerusalem; The Acts and history; The theology of Acts.

Reviewed by T. F. Opie
Churchman 163:17 F 1 '49 110w

"In general, the book combines a thoroughly critical treatment of Acts, with a tendency to smooth over inconsistencies in the picture of Paul and the early church found, respectively, in it and in the Epistles." Allen Wikgren
J Religion 29:61 Ja '49 500w

KOCHER, ALFRED LAWRENCE, and DEARSTYNE, HOWARD. Colonial Williamsburg; its buildings and gardens. 104p il maps $2.75 Colonial Williamsburg

975.5425 Williamsburg, Virginia 49-5744

"A study of Virginia's restored capital—whose statesmen formulated the tenets of democracy—whose builders created a notable architecture." (Subtitle) Contains a 44-page photographic tour with some small illustrations in the text. Map on end-paper. Index.

Booklist 46:31 S 15 '49

"It seems to fill a real need for a book that combines history, description, photographs."
+ Kirkus 17:462 Ag 15 '49 110w

"An exceedingly useful book especially as so much material on the subject is to be found only in unexpandable magazines and out-of-print books. Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:45 Ja 1 '50 80w

KOEPKE, CHARLES AUGUSTUS. Plant production control. 2d ed 568p il $5.50 Wiley

658.5 Factory management 49-9156

"This text discusses primarily the concepts and problems of controlling and planning production, that is, the flow of materials through a commercial enterprise. . . The first edition was published in 1941 [Book Review Digest 1942], and this edition has been extensively rearranged and also revised to incorporate the current practices for controlling production." (N Y New Tech Bks) Chapter bibbliographies. Index.

Booklist 45:357 Je 15 '49
Chem Eng 56:260 D '49 70w
Management R 38:588 O '49 140w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:56 Jl '49

KOESTLER, ARTHUR. Insight and outlook; an inquiry into the common foundations of science, art and social ethics. 442p il $5 Macmillan

192.9 Science—Philosophy. Art—Philosophy. Social ethics—Philosophy (49-7339)

"This first of a proposed two-volume study offers a system of ethics derived from the assumption of man's instinctive drive toward integration with a larger whole. It attempts to show all of man's creative activities as part of a common pattern and to establish a unifying theory of humor, art, and scientific discovery. The clash between man's self-assertive and self-transcendant or integrative instincts is used as a basis for this investigation." (Library J) Selected bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by B. E. Nelson
Ann Am Acad 266:240 N '49 400w

"Though written by a layman, Insight and Outlook is an exceedingly difficult book, bristling with scientific terminology. But the strenuous demands made on the reader's time and concentration pay an abundant return. There is much in the book that is brilliantly illuminating, much that is persuasive and important, and a great many speculative ideas which stimulate further thought." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 182:114 D '48 1250w

KOESTLER, ARTHUR—Continued
Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:99 D '49 800w

Booklist 45:219 Mr 1 '49

"What the author achieves is profoundly disappointing. . . For the most part his exposition unfolds like a cloud of smoke, obscuring to himself and to his readers what he seeks to understand." D. P. Dryer
— Canadian Forum 29:186 N '49 210w

Reviewed by M. J. Ward
Chicago Sun F 8 '49 230w

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel
Christian Science Monitor p11 F 24 '49 1900w

"Though it is not referred to as such, Insight and Outlook may be regarded as a general effort to substantiate and fortify the intellectual positions advanced in the novels. But the total effect of the book, simply as a vehicle of ideas, is considerably less real, less whole, less convincing, than the total effect of one of the better novels, in the sense that 'poetic incompleteness' expresses much more than rational enlargement: we are willing to understand more through the novel than through any justification of it." J. H. Johnston
— Commonweal 49:451 F 11 '49 600w

"The book is a tour de force of planning and presentation. The appendices and bibliography are a valuable contribution in themselves. Juicy meat for the expert on matters psychological, and no barrier to interested laymen."
+ Kirkus 16:469 S 1 '48 250w

"In his ambitious, difficult, and provocative book, Koestler draws upon the terminology and conclusions of the biological sciences to discuss, among other subjects, the nature of the comic and the tragic, Freudianism, and the history and prospects of our civilization. Recommended." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 73:1742 D 1 '48 140w

"Considering the book as a whole, I find that Mr. Koestler overworks his basic concepts. They come to mean too little because they are made to do too much. He is at his best when he turns aside from the larger generalities to argue particular questions of psychology or aesthetics. It should, however, be remarked that he has attempted no more in this book than to present a general outline of his system. A second volume is promised which will go into greater technical detail; and it is largely on the contents of this second volume that the scientific value of the system will have to be assessed." A. J. Ayer
New Statesman & Nation 38:127 Jl 30 '49 1500w

"Naturally, no one expects Mr. Koestler or any other individual to produce a workable recipe for salvation. With his literary gifts, however, he could have made his recipe more stimulating, more diverse in its application, more specific in its examples and therefore more attractive. He might have done with bisociation what Remy de Gourmont did with the equally clever idea of dissociation; he is capable of wielding his dichotomy of self-assertion and self-transcendence as brilliantly as Emerson wielded the One and the All and the many other opposites in the essay on Compensation. Literature would have been the richer and science none the poorer." Marvin Lowenthal
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 6 '49 1100w

"In the past this reviewer explicitly in print has praised Mr. Koestler's sensitive and reflective mind. As one who respects the attempt of a man of letters to make his peace with fundamental philosophical issues, I find it embarrassing now to have to express extremely serious reservations about the success of this grandiose enterprise of Mr. Koestler's. The book now and again comes out with shrewd and perceptive comments on some aspect of life, of knowledge or of art. But it is impossible, at least for this reviewer, to take with anything approaching the seriousness of Mr. Koestler himself the 'principles' which he offers with a bland and sometimes arrogant dogmatism and with a mixture of uncritical metaphysical assumptions and a rag-bag of psychological references and jargon—the characteristic luggage of the 'intellectual' living beyond his intellectual income." Irwin Edman
N Y Times p1 F 6 '49 1400w

"Very stimulating stuff."
+ New Yorker 24:93 F 5 '49 100w

"It is impossible to read anything that Arthur Koestler writes without receiving some kind of enlightenment. There are magnificent sentences and paragraphs in this book that open new vistas and clarify old ideas. These alone are worth the effort of reading the book. But the system Mr. Koestler promises remains vague; somehow it never comes into focus. Most of Mr. Koestler's admirers, we are certain, hope he will go back to teaching by indirection." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 20 '49 650w

"Where Koestler is particularly good, however, is in the literary sections of the book, and what 'Insight and Outlook' does illuminate, even by its evasions, is the present position of the artist in his society." Maxwell Geismar
— + Sat R of Lit 32:13 F 19 '49 800w

School & Society 69:215 Mr 19 '49 70w

"Mr. Koestler has given us something to think about. It is true that there is a long-windedness about the book which is unexpected from so practised a writer; it is over-elaborate, and its argument is encumbered, not only with jargon, but also with an over-weighty apparatus of technical psychology; but I do not think anyone interested in the subject will read it without excitement as well as profit." Michael Oakeshott
+ — Spec 183:20 Jl 1 '49 1200w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p9B Mr 6 '49 210w

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch
Survey 85:176 Mr '49 2200w

"Insight and Outlook is likely to be gobbledygook to the average reader and without much meat even for the most dogged philosopher."
— Time 53:100 F 14 '49 800w

"In general, the reader is driven to the conclusion that in entering the field of psychology, Mr. Koestler has contracted the regrettable tendency of psychologists so to overwork their conceptions that they cease to serve the purpose for which they were originally invoked. He has also unfortunately become infected with psychological jargon. In The Yogi and the Commissar some of his writing was a model for philosophers and psychologists; it was simple, clear and pointed. But in this book he is all too often polysyllabically obscure."
Times [London] Lit Sup p539 Ag 19 '49 2400w

KOESTLER, ARTHUR. Promise and fulfilment; Palestine, 1917-1949. 335p $4 Macmillan
956.9 Palestine—History 49-11430

"Part I is a philosophical and psychological history of the years between the Balfour Declaration with its promise that could not be fulfilled, and the sorry end of the British mandate; Part II is firsthand record of events in the author's own closeup view of the first eight months of the State of Israel; Part III is general observation on many facets of language, religion, politics, culture and the contradictions in the development of the new nation." Kirkus

---

Booklist 46:94 N 15 '49
Bookmark 9:53 D '49 50w

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler
Chicago Sun N 21 '49 750w

"History, when written by novelists, is seldom good history or good literature, but when it is written by a man of Arthur Koestler's ability, it is undeniably well worth reading." J. G. Harrison
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 O 19 '49 500w

Commonweal 51:246 D 2 '49 70w

"It is hard to say which of the three parts of this provocative and brilliant book is the most stimulating reading. . . This is no easy road to knowing all about that difficult small country and its people. The text demands full participation on the part of the reader, and presumes at least a basic understanding of the troubled history. While fully sympathizing with the goals of Zionism, Koestler is objectively critical of the leadership, the controls, the grim determination to hold the inflexible line of tradition. He may even be accused by Zionists of presenting now the British, now the Arab side of the controversy. Actually, while he does not condone, he does understand."

+ Kirkus 17:600 O 15 '49 230w

"The table of contents is so carefully set up that one does not miss the index the book lacks. Recommended." C. W. Roth
+ Library J 74:1676 N 1 '49 100w

"Mr. Koestler's emphasis on psychological factors hardly adds up to a philosophy of history, but he has thoroughly succeeded in composing a chronicle from which the author's, rather than history's, 'emotive bias' is rarely absent. Readers of 'Thieves in the Night' are familiar with Koestler's rancors and disenchantments. The novel could be admired as brilliant and often moving fiction, but a history, no matter how subjective cannot claim the latitude of a work of the imagination. This book, despite its superficial air of unsweet reasonableness, is so pervasively partisan that it becomes primarily a political tract." Marie Syrkin
Nation 169:399 O 22 '49 1700w

"It is both a moving and brilliant book." Leonard Woolf
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:490 O 29 '49 600w

"Arthur Koestler's account of what has been happening for a generation in Palestine, thirty-two years of drama extraordinary in a land noted and sacred for its drama, is itself graphic, often remarkably perceptive in details an unimaginative observer would overlook, and on occasion inspired with genuine narrative power. But it is not history. Instead, it is an essay on a still incompletely recorded episode of history, written by a wide-ranging, critical, highly speculative and self-distraught mind." Marvin Lowenthal
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 25 '49 1150w

"Koestler brilliantly and thoroughly analyzes the political and economic forces which brought about the unhappy conflict in that stretch of arid land as large as a county but with the problems of a continent. Being Koestler, he also investigates the psychological aspects, the irrational and emotional factors that impelled so many illogical actions on the part of all concerned. One can have read everything ever written about Palestine and modern Israel and still find much that is new in this work." Quentin Reynolds
+ N Y Times p3 O 23 '49 1850w

"In spite of its highly personal tone, or maybe because of it, the book is without doubt the most dramatic and thought-provoking of all the recent books about the Israelis and their new nation."
+ New Yorker 25:155 N 12 '49 200w

Reviewed by G. G. Stevens
San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 13 '49 750w

"Perhaps the book was hastily written; if so, it should have been rewritten. Its style is a mixture of slang, psychological terminology, and political jargon. Its middle section, which is the heart of the story, is inexcusably bad. After a fashion it tells the Palestine story from 1917 to 1949; it should be filed, however, under K for Koestler, not I for Israel." Thomas Sugrue
— Sat R of Lit 32:12 O 29 '49 1200w

"Every writer on modern Palestine has blind spots of prejudice or anger which vitiate his analysis. Mr. Koestler has his full share, but he tries hard to be dispassionate, and one can only hope that he will often return to Israel to assess and prophesy. But it would be a good thing if in future he left the hack-work of propaganda to less able pens than his." Edward Hodgkin
Spec 183:394 S 23 '49 1250w

"It is regrettable that Mr. Koestler has contented himself with 'explaining' the more disagreeable qualities of the Palestine Police by repeating the old story that they were Mosleyites. It is no explanation of anything merely to label it 'Fascist.' . . For all this, he has written one of the best books that has yet appeared on Jewish Palestine. The language in which it is written is a subject for a separate study. It is a sort of silver English, heavily larded with a jargon which is presumably technical—'psychosomatic' is a recurrent expression."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p691 O 28 '49 1450w

KOHN, HANS. Twentieth century; a mid-way account of the western world. 242p $2.50 Macmillan

901 Twentieth century 49-10687

"A guide for understanding our times and civilization; an attempt to 'draw a balance sheet' of the past 50 years." (School & Society) Index.

"Professor Kohn is a historian who writes a book only when he has something worth while to say; and he always says it well. A man of wide erudition, meticulous scholarship, and deep insight, he has given us in his several studies a rational and clear-eyed view of the ideological conflicts of our time. His new book focuses these qualities on a midway evaluation of the twentieth-century Western world." David Spitz
+ Ann Am Acad 266:226 N '49 430w
Booklist 46:46 O 1 '49

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 25 '49 800w

"Many chapters are interesting and all are well written. It is however dubious whether the author's approach really contributes much to the understanding of the crisis of our age. First of all, his classification of destructive forces is not clear and is overlapping. Nationalism is hard to distinguish from imperialism, racialism is the backbone of national socialism, anti-individualism is strong in fascism and communism has been blended with the Russian tradition, and so on. Second, the catalogue of constructive ideas is surprisingly short." N. S. Timasheff
+ — Commonweal 51:273 D 9 '49 550w

"Simplicity of style and acknowledgement of the human factor make a book for laymen as well as scholars."
+ Current Hist 17:286 N '49 60w

"A brilliant book, in its analysis and interrelationship of the major issues and ideologies of this century, this will reach an accumulative rather than immediate market."
+ Kirkus 17:353 Jl 1 '49 190w

"Book is good reading, historical, analytical, hopeful; it should be widely read." A. B. Lindsay
+ Library J 74:1089 Ag '49 130w

Reviewed by Theodore Norman
New Repub 122:20 Ja 23 '50 320w

"Professor Kohn is one of the great teachers of our day. In 'The Twentieth Century' he has packed an amazing amount of information, freshly presented and enlivened by quotations of unusual excellence. His interest in politics and ideas causes him at times to glide over economic problems. I think, for example, that the phenomenon of industrialization deserves more explicit treatment than Mr. Kohn gives it as a source of contemporary difficulties. In my judgment, too, he joins uncritically in the currently fashionable hue and cry against nationalism. . . But 'The Twentieth Century' is continuously trenchant and stimulating. It states our contemporary dilemma with force and supplies sober reassurance that with courage and conviction we may yet overcome it." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 18 '49 1150w

"We, all of us, do a good deal of grumbling about the semantic obscurities of the word 'liberal,' and about the perversity of other people's use of it, but most of us know a liberal

KOHN, HANS—Continued
when we meet one. Certainly few would begrudge this word—still a word of praise—to Hans Kohn, Professor of History at Smith and one of our most persevering liberals. . . In so brief a resumé, Professor Kohn may sound more abstract, more devoted to the kind of prophetic exhortation so common in works on the plight of mankind, than he actually is. He has the historian's respect for the concrete, and a full awareness of the complex interactions of interests, sentiments, and principles which move men in group-action." Crane Brinton
N Y Times p4 S 18 '49 650w

New Yorker 25:135 O 15 '49 120w

"In a book written with such insight and inspiration it is captious to quarrel with details. One would wish, however, that a few maps had been included. . . The quotations incorporated are always well chosen and are often so arresting that many readers will wish to run them down. More precise notes would simplify this task by always indicating the source and by specifying the cases in which the author has made his own translation." Geoffrey Bruun
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 S 24 '49 750w

School & Society 70:176 S 10 '49 20w

Reviewed by R. B. Holtman
Social Educ 41:42 Ja '50 450w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p16A Ja 15 '50 390w

"Essentially this work constitutes a defense of Western liberalism and a call for the revival of that tradition as a guide for meeting contemporary problems. Therefore fundamental criticism hinges on one's acceptance or rejection of that ideology. One is left with an uneasy feeling that Professor Kohn has credited the noble virtues of the last century to Western middle class liberalism, while seeming to imply that the evils are largely confined to those countries which have rejected that influence. He provides no adequate explanation for the revolt against the values of a middle class society, a revolt which has occurred in Western societies as well as in those outside the pale." Hugh Wilson
Survey 85:492 S '49 2100w

KOHT, HALVDAN. American spirit in Europe; a survey of transatlantic influences. 289p $3.75 Univ. of Pa. press

327.73 U.S.—Relations (general) with Europe. Europe—Relations (general) with U.S. 49-8752

"The plan of the book is to present a comprehensive view of the effect of American activities, struggles, and efforts upon European life and progress." (Pref) Selected bibliography. Index.

"Although Professor Koht expresses his indebtedness to others and in no sense regards his work as definitive, the book is a very creditable and important achievement. It will certainly stimulate further investigations. If some may feel that Professor Koht has been too flattering in his treatment of the American spirit abroad, we may nevertheless be grateful that the first synthesis of this material has been made by one who wishes us well and by so perceptive and skillful a historian." Merle Curti
+ Am Hist R 55:96 O '49 950w

Reviewed by W. E. Rappard
Ann Am Acad 266:218 N '49 750w

Booklist 45:386 Jl 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 28:156 O '49 20w

"Dignified, cogent, well written, this carries a frank admission of the necessary superficialities as the coverage is wide. American politics, wealth, ventures in invention, literature, economics and social affairs are outlined chronologically, with succeeding testimony of their repercussion on European life and thought. A selected bibliography is valuable."
+ Kirkus 17:78 F 1 '49 130w

"Sound, sober and of limited interest."
Nation 169:142 Ag 6 '49 30w

"This book is engaging, useful, and sometimes disappointing. Its content is of diverse value; the author's concept of his theme is vague and his analysis is sometimes superficial. On the other hand, this is a book by Halvdan Koht, a fact which, as a purely practical matter, needs to be weighed. . . Many other more genuinely comprehensive books will be written in this largely unexplored field of American influences, but it is important that we should have this statement of Halvdan Koht's feeling for the problem. He is venerable, wise, and brave and his opinion will weigh with both European and American readers." G. L. Joughin
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Je 12 '49 650w

"Mr. Koht's study of the impact of American inventions and techniques abroad is lively and appreciative. Many Europeans regarded American preeminence in the technological field either as a dangerous threat to Old World prosperity or as evidence of American materialism; something of these attitudes still lingers on. Mr. Koht, however, is enthusiastic about the beneficent effect. . . It is a pity that Mr. Koht did not expand this particular investigation to include the influence of American literary and historical scholarship. Yet we should not ask too much. This is a pioneer study." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Times p9 Je 19 '49 1250w

Reviewed by H. F. Graff
Pol Sci Q 64:449 S '49 700w

"What the author has to say within the pages of this illuminating book should be of much interest to us today. The book is marred, however, by a certain unfamiliarity with the details of American history, the neglect of American influence upon Russia, and a too-pervasive flavor of Norwegian nationalism." D. H.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 22 '49 220w

"In his detail Dr. Koht leans rather heavily on Scandinavian history. Some readers may also wish he had quoted less frequently from the various encyclopedias and gone to more primary sources. But these are minor flaws in an admirable work opening a field that for too long has lain sadly neglected." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:32 My 14 '49 800w

"There is no pretense that any of the subjects dealt with are thoroughly covered. This is an adventure, exploring the communication of ideas, and the reader is assured of an enjoyable experience in joining the expedition." Michael Kraus
+ Social Educ 13:393 D '49 320w

KOKOSCHKA, OSCAR. Oskar Kokoschka, a retrospective exhibition; with an introd. by James S. Plaut, and a letter from the artist; 48 pl. in photogravure, 8 pl. in color; pub. for the Inst. of contemporary art, Boston; Museum of modern art, N.Y; Phillips memorial gallery, Washington; City art museum, St Louis; M. H. De Young memorial museum, San Francisco. 87p $3.50; ltd de luxe autog ed $12.50 Chanticleer

759.3 48-10917

"Monograph on the sixty-two-year-old Austrian painter's life and work, illustrated with 48 plates, eight of which are colored. Designed for the current Kokoschka exhibit in this country." Booklist

Booklist 45:84 N 1 '48

"This competent catalog will be most useful in acquainting this country with the fantastic, yet logical, development of the Austrian artist. . . Excellent plates, a few in color, chronology, and selected bibliography which in itself reveals the usefulness of this present catalog. Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:1744 D 1 '48 150w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 25 '49 60w

Reviewed by L. R. Sander
Sat R of Lit 32:33 My 7 '49 90w

"Well produced, with eight plates in colour, forty-eight in monochrome, and two lithographs specially done for the occasion, it provides a lavish catalogue of an exhibition that has plainly entailed no little effort on the part of the Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston and that furnishes, in the artist's own words, 'characteristic examples of more or less all periods of my development.' "

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p54 Ja 22 '49 500w

KOLLSMAN, LULI. Come, take my hand. 223p $2.75 Duell
49-11059

Story of a modern young woman whose married life is complicated when her husband, traveling thru the West in search of uranium deposits, falls prey to a scheming medium.

— Kirkus 17:406 Ag 1 '49 130w

"A mediocre romance." Elizabeth Nichols
— Library J 74:1322 S 15 '49 70w

"Confusing."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by J. P. Quehl
N Y Times p49 N 20 '49 180w

Reviewed by Marc Rivette
San Francisco Chronicle p28 O 23 '49 100w

"A modern novel as light as a summer breeze."
Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 50w

KONEFSKY, SAMUEL JOSEPH, ed. Constitutional world of Mr Justice Frankfurter. See Frankfurter, F.

KONVITZ, MILTON RIDVAS, and MURPHY, ARTHUR EDWARD, eds. Essays in political theory; presented to George H. Sabine. 333p $4 Cornell univ. press

320.4 Sabine, George Holland. Political science 48-8639

"The seventeen essays here collected were written by colleagues and former students of Professor Sabine upon his retirement from teaching at Cornell University. They form, in a sense, a series of elaborate footnotes to the history of political philosophy, treating successively of such things as the development of the theory of democracy in ancient Athens, Vico on Roman law, John Morley's ideas on liberty and compromise, and Professor Sabine's own philosophy of value. The pervading influence of Professor Sabine's 'scientific detachment and integrity' has produced a uniformity of tone remarkable in a work by so many hands." (Columbia Law R) Bibliography. No index.

"Not many masters of political philosophy, greeted with a festival volume, can have such cause for pride in the quality of the tribute as Professor Sabine. Seventeen of his former students and colleagues, under the editorship of two of them, have joined here to produce a group of essays, chiefly distinguished for widely ranging interests, a liberal impulse, and most of all, for hard clear thinking. These are characteristics that those who have come within his acquaintance will be quick to identify also in the object of this homage." H. C. Mansfield
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:130 F '49 700w

"One of the most fitting and gracious ways of honoring a great scholar upon his retirement from active teaching is the publication of a presentation volume of essays by his former students and professional colleagues. Such is the book here under review, and it is one which signally honors both the recipient and the authors." C. C. Maxey
+ Ann Am Acad 262:208 Mr '49 170w

"Lawyers will find intellectual stimulation throughout the volume and particularly in the concluding piece, ' "Clear and Present Danger" in Free Speech Cases: a Study in Judicial Semantics,' by Professor Cushman."
+ Columbia Law R 48:1274 D '48 140w

"This volume deserves the high praise that it is worthy of the distinguished scholar to whom it is dedicated." Alan Gewirth
+ Ethics 59:303 Jl '49 750w

"As in most collections of this kind, various readers will find their chief interest in different papers. The collection as a whole reflects sound scholarship, but a more rigorous editorship might have improved the style of some of the essays."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:471 D '48 240w

KORB, ARTHUR. How to write songs that sell; foreword by Irving Caesar. 179p $2.95 Greenberg

784 Music, Popular—Writing and publishing 49-8934

A handbook on song writing. The material is divided into three parts: Analyzing songs, Writing songs, and Selling songs. The appendix contains lists of music publishers and recording companies.

Booklist 45:331; 359 Je 1 '49; Je 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"For the amateur song-writer of minimum musical literacy this book should be a treasure." Leonard Burkat
+ Library J 74:956 Je 15 '49 110w

"The book is a model of style for self-instructional material. The principles of clarity, simplicity, repetition, and interest are admirably exemplified. The would-be song-writer cannot fail to profit by reading it. I just can't help thinking, however, that he might profit even more by spending a couple of hours in silent meditation over the latest semiannual issue of the unpublished music section of the Catalog of Copyright Entries." C. S. Spalding
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:625 S '49 480w

KORMENDI, FERENC. Happy generation; tr. by Claud W. Sykes. 635p $3.50 Crown 49-5618

Chronicle of a middle-class Hungarian family from the birth of Paul, the principal character, on New Year's day, 1900, to 1933. The work was first published in Hungary in 1934.

"The scope is broad, the characters well drawn, and the whole has unity but the total effect is of excessive length."
+ — Kirkus 17:401 Ag 1 '49 210w

"Fewer words and careful editing would have added much to the book's effectiveness." Donald Wasson
Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 70w

"Internally, the story of Paul Hegedüs's awakening, his fears, passions, hopes and dreams, while never muddied with the terminology of psycho-analysis so prevalent today, is strongly influenced by the Freudian point of view. . . Quite often the author loses control of the structure of his novel and some of his dialogue—perhaps the error is the translator's—falls into the totally absurd. Yet 'The Happy Generation' is a substantial social history, a navigable bridge between our world over here and that other world in Central Europe which was veiled from us long before the Iron Curtain fell." Virgilia Peterson
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 4 '49 850w

"Ferenc Kormendi's rambling semi-autobiographical novel appears a decade too late here. Possibly the essential charm of his novel lies in the tender nostalgic mood it recaptures for Europeans who once knew happier days on the Continent. For the rest of us, who have never summered at Ostend on the brink of World war I, nor lived through those pre-Hitler, hectic years, 'dancing on the volcano' in Paris, Vienna and Budapest, the personal appeal is lost." Richard McLaughlin
N Y Times p36 S 11 '49 290w

New Yorker 25:130 O 15 '49 80w

"The search for personal happiness which makes Paul withdraw from his wife, his success as executive, and finally from the whole

KORMENDI, FERENC—Continued
way of life his father's generation has known—that conflict, though involving a number of dramatic turns, leaves one reader at least fairly cold. Still, here is a rich novel, brimful of choses vues at once earnest and diverting, sincere, and far from nihilistic. The translation is fine." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:17 O 29 '49 550w

"There is a wealth of intimate family detail in the story which gives the reader an insight into lives hitherto unknown. As well, it delves into the innermost thoughts of the characters and explains their actions with complete thoroughness." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 300w

KORSON, GEORGE GERSHON, ed. Pennsylvania songs and legends. 474p il $5 Univ. of Pa. press

784.49748 Folk songs, American. Folklore—Pennsylvania 49-9849

Chapters on the songs and folklore of the entire state of Pennsylvania, each chapter by a specialist. Includes folk songs, with music, of nationality groups, such as the British, Pennsylvania Dutch, and the Amish, as well as those inspired by the various industries of the state. Indexes.

Booklist 46:30 S 15 '49
Kirkus 17:81 F 1 '49 190w

"Recommended." H. E. Bush
+ Library J 74:1099 Ag '49 130w

"The book is the first authoritative state folklore symposium by a group of specialists to present a fully documented and illustrated survey of a state's folklore by ethnic and occupational groups. It is a model of its kind." B. A. Botkin
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:113 D '49 1750w

"It will probably be long before another book appears on the traditions of any state, so authoritative, so informative, and so entertaining as this one. . . The symposium is necessarily selective, and we learn little of speech habits, proverbs, games, dances, or habits. But there is a generous sampling of various musical traditions, and much of it appears here for the first time." B. H. Bronson
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 25 '49 700w

KRAMER, ANDREW WILLIAM. Industrial electronics; elementary principles and applications. 311p $6 Pitman

621.38 Electronics

"This book provides nonmathematical explanations of the fundamental principles of electronics and clear descriptions of typical industrial applications of electron tubes and related devices. It is especially suited to the needs of workers who come in contact with industrial applications of electronics, in the course of their work, and desire to acquire an understanding of them by means of home study. Although elementary and intended for persons who probably will not undertake formal study of the subject, the writing is factual and the author has not gone out of his way to simplify terminology." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 46:185 F 1 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1758 N 15 '49 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:90 N '49

KRAMER, DALE. Heywood Broun; a biographical portrait. 316p il $3.50 Wyn

B or 92 Broun, Heywood Campbell

Portrays "the inexhaustible and immeasureable" Heywood Broun, thru all the phases of his life. Covers his childhood in Brooklyn and New York; his years at Harvard; his newspaper work in New York as sports editor, book reviewer, and columnist; his marriage to Ruth Hale; the years on the New York World; his turning socialist; the divorce from Ruth Hale; his second marriage; and his death at fifty-one in December, 1939. Index.

Booklist 46:123 D 1 '49
Bookmark 9:53 D '49 40w

"Dale Kramer, a newspaper man, has collected most of the fascinating Broun anecdotes and in good measure has recaptured the great heart and spirit of the man who gave so much of himself in serving others." Chandler Forman
+ Chicago Sun p49 D 20 '49 750w

"Any serious attempt at appraisal is clearly lacking here. There is little in the way of examining Broun's influence on the development of the personal newspaper column in America, little to indicate his real role in the formation of the Newspaper Guild, little weighing of the consistency of intensity of Heywood Broun's political convictions. As a pleasant and colorful account of the embattled Broun career Mr. Kramer's sketch is more in the direction of entertaining reading." E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 51:326 D 23 '49 330w

"I don't know just how much interest there is in Heywood Broun today, but for those who followed the man, or his writing, this will provide a many-sided portrait."
Kirkus 17:568 O 1 '49 170w

"In his biography of Broun, Dale Kramer has handled a difficult assignment in a workmanlike fashion that would have met with Broun's approval. Incidentally, he was wise, I think, to avoid the psychoanalytical openings which Broun's leftist career so obviously exposed. I would recommend this good book even if I didn't appear in it quite frequently." McAlister Coleman
+ Nation 169:600 D 17 '49 800w

"Dale Kramer has written a vivid and human biography of this vivid and human man. He is frank about Broun's weaknesses, of which there were plenty; but he likes his subject, and communicates his liking to the reader."
+ New Repub 121:21 D 5 '49 230w

" 'Heywood Broun—A Biographical Portrait,' is far happier than his friends had anticipated. Kramer knew Broun but he wasn't a member of the family as the rest of us were, and he was able to approach his job with a certain amount of irreverence. Only one test can be applied to a biography as intensely personal as this one. Is this the Heywood Broun we knew? A thunderous affirmative will I am sure come from those who knew Broun well. . . Those who knew Broun will find the book delightfully nostalgic. Those who didn't know Broun will have a chance to meet him, and to know Broun through the pages of a book is better than never to have known him at all." Quentin Reynolds
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 20 '49 1600w

Reviewed by Gene Fowler
N Y Times p3 O 30 '49 2000w

"The author calls this a 'biographical portrait,' apparently being aware of its thinness as a biography. Although the work is a labor of love—almost of idolatry—and although it abounds in anecdote, the central character never quite comes to life. Mr Kramer has been generous with background . . . but a good, round account of Broun, his times, and his legend remains to be written."
New Yorker 25:158 N 12 '49 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p30 N 20 '49 600w

KRAMER, JOHN ALBERT. How to win at tennis; phot. by Arthur E. Haug. 182p $3 Ziff-Davis

796.34 Tennis 49-8620

An amateur tennis champion, now a professional, gives detailed advice, illustrated with photographs, on "how to win at tennis." Glossary.

Booklist 45:318 My 15 '49
Chicago Sun p8X My 15 '49 30w

+ Kirkus 17:231 Ap 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 10w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
N Y Times p14 My 22 '49 140w

KRASNER, WILLIAM. Walk the dark streets. 214p $2.50 Harper 49-9259

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 10 '49 140w

"Exciting and effective."
+ Kirkus 17:161 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 My 29 '49 190w

"While this book by a new writer has both mystery and suspense, it is actually a full-fledged novel based on a crime. . . A number of people will come into your life to remain in your thoughts at least for a few days after you've read the book. To evoke such response constitutes an achievement for even veteran writers. It is especially noteworthy in a first novel which will be sold on mystery-fiction counters." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p9 My 29 '49 200w

"A nice, realistic piece of work."
+ New Yorker 25:96 Je 4 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 12 '49 110w

"Grim and good."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 My 28 '49 40w

KRAUSS, RUTH (MRS DAVID JOHNSON LEISK). Big world and the little house; pictures by Marc Simont. [42p] $2 Schuman
49-11639

A story of how one family turns a broken-down house into a home. Gradually the family feels at home, and then feels like part of the world.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p25 Ja 7 '50 140w

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 13 '49 170w

"This is a book with a purpose, but not too emphatically that to lose out as a quite charming story."
+ Kirkus 17:603 N 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 60w

"Uninspired account of a deserted old house that was reclaimed by a family of eight and made part of the big world. The gay pictures by Marc Simont are the distinguishing feature of the book. Without them it would be nothing." D. M. Blasco
— + Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '50 180w

"A good example of a fine idea poorly executed, this well-illustrated book is slangy, ungrammatical, and lends encouragement to such generally frowned upon habits as writing on the walls, putting feet in chairs, and rude yelling."
— + San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 13 '49 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 30w

KRAUSS, RUTH (MRS DAVID JOHNSON LEISK). Happy day; pictures by Marc Simont. [31p] $1.50 Harper
49-10568

A picture book describing the animals leaving hibernation on the first day of spring.

"This is far and away the best of this year's picture books." Jane Cobb
+ Atlantic 184:103 D '49 90w

"The full page pictures in this big book could tell their own story. In black and white, their delicate shadings and strong design give an impression of full color. A rhythm sweeps through which resembles symphonic music, beginning softly, wakening to swift movement, swelling to a full crescendo, then pausing abruptly on an amazed note of gasping laughter."
+ Chicago Sun p6X N 13 '49 160w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 15 '49 130w

"It will be a happy day when this one arrives at the home with very young children."
+ Commonweal 51:188 N 18 '49 60w

"A distinguished book." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:406 S '49 70w

"I think it a picture book children will love to own as a welcome change from activities to nature itself." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 25:522 N '49 90w

"A lovely book, which scarcely needs the captions, for the idea is evident in the enchanting pictures."
+ Kirkus 17:463 S 1 '49 100w

"One could wish that such exciting pictures as those done by Marc Simont for The Happy Day could have been accompanied by a less tiresome text. . . However, pictorially the book is so well worth the price that what it lacks in other respects can be forgotten (if not forgiven) quite easily." Mary Strang
+ — Library J 74:1464 O 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 30w

"The wonderfully snowy black and white scenes, the fuzzy creatures so well drawn and printed make a lovely winter picture book for the nursery age." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 150w

"Though the recurring word patterns in large type are excellent for beginning readers, these older children are generally too scientifically minded to accept such things as snails who run, sniff, and dance unless the miraculous is built up to an even greater degree than in this book." Elena Baker
N Y Times p32 S 25 '49 150w

New Yorker 25:166 D 3 '49 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:21 N 12 '49 70w

KRECH, DAVID, and CRUTCHFIELD, RICHARD S. Theory and problems of social psychology. 639p il $4.50 McGraw
301.15 Social psychology 48-4869

"The plan of the book moves from a consideration of underlying behavior theory in individual psychology to a study of beliefs, attitudes, and the structure of social groups. It ends with an application of the principles to three social issues: race relations, industrial conflict, and international tensions. . . Extensive, up-to-date bibliographies accompany each of the fifteen chapters. There are a few relevant pictures, graphs, charts, and tables." (Am J Soc) Indexes.

"Like other fields, social psychology is experiencing a postwar flood of new textbooks. This is one of the relatively newer, longer, and better of them. Despite the ponderous format, the book proves reasonably easy to read. Thorough organization, a clean style of writing, and persistent efforts to summarize and integrate materials contribute mightily to that end. . . On the basis of this information one might conclude that this is a distinctly better-than-average text. As a survey in psychology, it is. It is of doubtful value for social psychology—especially as sociologists conceive that area." G. E. Swanson
+ — Am J Soc 55:228 S '49 800w

"Despite the publisher's blurb, this is a routine kind of text book. . . The fact that the book is not a landmark should not detract from its obvious merits. . . It is carefully organized and clearly written. Each chapter has an excellent summary and bibliography. To sociologists, it provides an antidote to the behaviorist

KRECH, DAVID—Continued
cult. They will find particularly valuable the chapters on the field and problems of social psychology, social groups, and leadership."
+ — Am Soc R 14:568 Ag '49 150w
Social Studies 40:240 My '49 20w

KROEBER, ALFRED LOUIS. Anthropology; race, language, culture, psychology, prehistory. new rev ed 856p $7.50; text ed $5.50 Harcourt
572 Anthropology 48-6956

"A comprehensive college textbook, first published in 1923 [Book Review Digest 1924], has been rewritten and has several new chapters bringing it up to date." (Booklist) Index.

"Reading clear through this revised edition, about twice the length of the first, is no light chore for a lazy summer afternoon. If you are an average-speed reader and also wish to jot down an occasional note as you go along you will have to set aside about forty hours of your time. But it's worth it. . . The most important new contribution, in the reviewer's judgment, is the author's presentation and elaboration of his theory of culture. . . The book is written in Kroeber's customary limpidly clear style, without circumlocution and without what he refers to here and there as jargon. In spite of the simple direct style, the work is not such easy reading. Mere mastery of its contents will require on the part of even the superior student some very hard thinking. He who runs may read, but if he really wants to get out of the book what is in it he will have to sit down quietly and think. All of which will be excellent for the student. As a textbook the revised edition is, we believe, in the top rank. And there too we should put it for the educated general reader who wishes to get a bird's-eye-view of the field of anthropology." J. M. Cooper
+ Am Anthropol 51:98 Ja '49 700w

"It is difficult to see such a book being as useful as a text in introductory courses as the older edition was. It is better described, and undoubtedly will be used more, as an encyclopedia of anthropology than as a textbook. . . In such a full and lengthy book there are bound to be many debatable points. . . There are bound to be some errors of fact, but remarkably few obtrude themselves. . . Slips like these are trivial matters. Kroeber's book is a magnificent compendium of accurate and up-to-the-minute information on every aspect of anthropology—except social organization, which is conspicuous by its complete absence." C. W. M. Hart
+ — Am J Soc 54:572 My '49 1100w

"This book is more than simply a revision of the 1923 volume which became a standard American text in general anthropology. So much of it is entirely new that it deserves to be considered a new book, and one which will secure the same respect the earlier volume enjoyed."
+ Am Soc R 13:647 O '48 140w
Booklist 45:35 S 15 '48

"Its wide perspective including findings from research in many scientific studies will provide an excellent text for survey courses in social studies. Recommended for college and reference collections." D. F. Lucas
+ Library J 73:947 Je 15 '48 100w
School & Society 68:128 Ag 21 '48 10w

KRUTCH, JOSEPH WOOD. Comedy and conscience after the Restoration. 300p $3.75 Columbia univ. press
822.09 English drama—History and criticism. Theater—Moral and religious aspects 49-9465

"A study of the English comedy of manners of the Restoration period, of the society which produced it, the influences that led to its decline, the development of literary criticism and the various specific attacks on the evils of the stage." (Book Review Digest 1925) "This study was originally published as a Columbia dissertation in 1924 [Book Review Digest 1925] and has long been out of print. . . The text, the bibliography of the Collier controversy are reproduced exactly as they originally appeared. The book now has, however, two additions: an index, and the bibliography of relevant modern discussions of the immediate subject, prepared by Professor G. S. Alleman of Rutgers University." (Pref to 2d ptg) Bibliography. Index.

"One of the most important books written on English Eighteenth Century comedy. The author is an authority on the period as well as being a distinguished dramatic critic. . . Any library making any pretensions towards a drama or theatre collection will want this volume if it does not have first edition. Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:33 S 24 '49 50w

"The first edition of his book, which came out inauspiciously as a Ph.D thesis in 1924, is here considerably revised and extended, and its singular value to all students of the theatre and of the period increased. Alas, it is still no great pleasure to read. . . The merit and importance of Mr. Krutch's work reside in the extent of his researches. His book is packed with information not easily found elsewhere, and it is all well ordered and presented. The bibliography is, I believe, unique." Maurice Cranston
+ — Spec 183:832 D 9 '49 500w

KRUTCH, JOSEPH WOOD. Twelve seasons; a perpetual calendar for the country; il. by Armin Landeck. 188p $3 Sloane
814 Nature. Country life 49-8482

Contemplative and philosophical essays on nature, one for each month of the year. In them the author considers not only the aspects of nature, but also the relationship of man to the universe.

Booklist 45:292 My 1 '49

Reviewed by J. W. Lane
Cath World 170:74 O '49 180w

"There is a curious and refreshing wisdom to 'The Twelve Seasons' which may make the reader look a little more closely, listen a little more sharply and think a little more conclusively about this world in which he lives." Elizabeth Yates
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 28 '49 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"An aware and sentient commentary (which is never guilty of sentimentality) offering thoughtful pleasure."
+ Kirkus 17:163 Mr 15 '49 130w

"A simple, yet subtle, appeal to anyone who has watched with a fellow-feeling the purposeful activities of the caterpillar or the beetle in their preparations for winter and for future generations, or who has responded to the joy of returning life as expressed by the insistent call of the spring peeper." B. B. Libaire
+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 140w

"Part of the charm of this book, part of the value, is what it says of common things. Rain. Heat. A hurrying caterpillar. The first peeper of the spring." Gustav Eckstein
+ Nation 168:587 My 21 '49 900w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 169:39 Jl 9 '49 2000w

"It is difficult to convey the charm, to identify the quality of this book. . . The book is filled with a delight in the whole natural scene." Irwin Edman
+ New Repub 121:19 S 12 '49 900w

"He avoids all the fussy prettiness of the average country book. He writes like a charming, and slightly quixotic, Roman Epicurean, in soft-cadenced prose." Richardson Wright
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 24 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Hal Borland
N Y Times p3 My 15 '49 300w

"An agreeable and stimulating discourse."
+ New Yorker 25:117 My 14 '49 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '49 170w

"The delight that the reader has in these pages is delight in watching the exercise of its freedom by a speculative mind to which education has given wings. It is something like the delight with which one watches the swallow describing distance or the hawk circling into space." L. J. Halle
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 My 21 '49 750w

Springf'd Republican p6D Je 19 '49 330w

Wis Lib Bul 45:85 My '49

KUCZYNSKI, ROBERT RENE. Demographic survey of the British colonial empire; v. 1, West Africa [pub. for the Royal institute of international affairs]. 836p $21 Oxford

312 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. 49-7355

"The first of four contemplated studies, this is a monumental statistical analysis of the population problems of the Gambia, Sierra Leone, Gold Coast and Nigeria." Foreign Affairs

"Kuczynski had a well-earned reputation for criticism, ranging from ironic to biting, of the standards of census enumeration and vital registration in areas that interested him. He was always a strong exponent of the view that figures must not be taken at their face value without examining how they were manufactured. The present volume amply demonstrates his concern with the statutes, administrative regulation, methods of enumeration, reporting procedures, and reliability of results." W. E. Moore
+ Ann Am Acad 263:262 My '49 400w

Foreign Affairs 27:519 Ap '49 30w

"The study is abundantly annotated and full of direct quotations from many sources otherwise difficult to find. Some readers, however, may question the author's practice of presenting at such length, often in quotation, evidence of limited value from inexperienced observers. Nonetheless, the book is certain to remain the standard reference work on the historical aspects of the subject, even though future statistical information may modify some of the conclusions. It should also serve a useful purpose in helping colonial officials to avoid some of the pitfalls in census taking." Vernon McKay
+ — Geog R 39:684 O '49 800w

"Anyone who hopes to find in the present volume a definitive survey of population developments in British West Africa is bound to be disappointed. What he will find instead is a comprehensive collection of the relevant data available, with copious comments upon the way in which they have been collected and the extent to which they can be accepted as indicating the condition and trend of the populations concerned. That in itself is a work of very great value. It is even more valuable as providing the incentive to, and the basis for, those improvements in colonial demography essential to any plan for economic and social progress in West Africa." D. V. Glass
+ Spec 181:878 D 31 '48 950w

KUHN, ANNA. Watching at my gates; biographies of Rose Hawthorne, Francesca Xavier Cabrini and Theresa Martin; il. by Brian P. Burnes. 160p $2 Bruce pub.

922.2 Lathrop, Mrs Rose (Hawthorne) (Mother Alphonsa). Cabrini, Frances Xavier, Saint. Thérèse de l'Enfant Jésus, Saint 48-9460

Short biographies of Rose Hawthorne, Frances Xavier Cabrini, and Theresa Martin. They were all women of modern times, from different social backgrounds; but all were known for their saintly characters and deeds. For seventh grade thru high school.

"The author is particularly successful in handling the story of Nathaniel Hawthorne's daughter, Rose, who became Mother Alphonsa Lathrop."
+ Commonweal 49:150 N 19 '48 30w

"Of special interest to Catholic children, but these women are so often referred to that children of any religious affiliation will be interested in their high ideals and courage. Needed in libraries working closely with parochial schools and should be considered for other types of children's rooms." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 74:205 F 1 '49 100w

KUHN, HELMUT. Encounter with nothingness; an essay on existentialism. (Humanist lib) 168p $3 Regnery

111 Existentialism 49-9116

"To swell the flood tide of books on the subject, along comes this one subtitled, 'An Essay on Existentialism,' volume XI in The Humanist Library. In extremely simple language designed more for the reader than the philosopher, Helmut Kuhn—at present professor of philosophy at Emory University in Georgia, and formerly with the Universities of Berlin and North Carolina—sets about investigating Existentialism not only from its philosophical antecedents but also from its literary ones." San Francisco Chronicle

"By all means buy and read Kuhn's book if you have any interest in existentialism—or if you want such an interest kindled." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:1234 O 19 '49 900w

"His tracings in literature are most new and startling, involving, as they do, Doestoevsky, Eugene O'Neill, Maxwell Anderson and W. H. Auden. It is this last viewpoint that distinguishes this book from the host of others; and certainly it, together with Professor Kuhn's clarity, makes the essay worth while reading to those who would understand the influence of the philosophy upon modern writers."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 31 '49 170w

KUIPER, GERARD PETER, ed. Atmospheres of the earth and planets; papers presented at the fiftieth anniversary symposium of the Yerkes observatory, Sept, 1947. (Chicago. Univ. Com. on publications in the physical sciences. Publications) 366p il $7.50 Univ. of Chicago press

551.5 Atmosphere

"Eighteen well-known astronomers, geologists, chemists, physicists, and meteorologists are represented in the thirteen articles comprising this volume. Recent progress in research on planetary atmospheres renders very timely the issuance of these contributions, which were presented at a symposium sponsored by the University of Chicago on the occasion of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Yerkes Observatory." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Indexes.

"The Atmospheres of the Earth and Planets poses numerous problems, which may require years of research. The very formulation of these problems represents a distinct advance and will make the book one of lasting value." Thornton Page
+ J Geol 58:87 Ja '50 900w

Reviewed by J. B. Irwin
R of Scientific Instruments 20:692 S '49 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:267 Je '49 200w

KULANDRAN, SABAPATHY. Message and the silence of the American pulpit; foreword by Douglas Horton. 220p $2.50 Pilgrim press

250.973 Preaching. U.S.—Religion. Christianity. Christianity and other religions—Hinduism 49-6334

"The 'Congregational' bishop of the Church of South India comments incisively on the state of Christianity among us. But the book

KULANDRAN, SABAPATHY—Continued
is far more than the title suggests. Bishop Kulandran contributes significantly to the orientation of Christianity to today's world." Churchman

"This book is a warning and a rousing challenge to the Christian world. Its author, a deeply fervent Christian of India, clearly has experienced the quickening and transforming effects of Christianity. Having become acquainted with American Protestantism in an official capacity, he now appraises it with frankest objectivity. There is not a harsh or carping note, no particle of self-righteousness or nationalist superiority in the entire volume. But what he says will provoke American churchmen to deep thought." DeWitt John
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 4 '49 800w

"'Cast thy bread upon the waters. . .' Here some of the missionary 'bread' of many years comes back to us. . . If more 'bread' of this quality comes back to us, our own Christianity will rise to higher levels of life and thought." E. W. Harris
+ Churchman 163:18 N 1 '49 120w

KUYKENDALL, RALPH SIMPSON, and DAY, ARTHUR GROVE. Hawaii: a history. 331p il $3 Prentice-Hall
996.9 Hawaiian Islands—History 48-9650

A one-volume, popular history of the Hawaiian Islands from legendary times to the post war period and the fight for statehood. Bibliography. Index.

"The proper proportion of subjects is a matter of personal taste—this reviewer would have liked a little more of political and constitutional history—but no topic is neglected. . . There are some useful statistical tables at the end of the text, an extensive though not critical bibliography and a very full index. This book is a model of its kind. It may serve as the complete Hawaiian collection of a little public library or as an introduction to the resources of a large one or a university." T. M. Spaulding
+ Am Hist R 54:945 Jl '49 400w
Booklist 45:155 Ja 1 '49

"With the question of statehood perennially before the people of the United States, the authors of this study make a valiant attempt to show why the territory is ready for that great step. It is not, in any broad sense, an objective work. It is essentially a one-viewpoint history. But since such a viewpoint is unquestionably that of the majority—in the islands, at any rate—this will undoubtedly prove to be a useful reference book in arguments over statehood." Guy Halferty
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 26 '49 390w
Current Hist 16:168 Mr '49 70w

"An able historical survey, weighted perhaps on the positive values, but more exhaustive in coverage than other available histories."
+ Kirkus 16:499 S 15 '48 130w

"This very fine history of the Hawaiian Islands includes a great deal of economic and social information, arranged in chronological order. Unlike many of the recent books on the Pacific islands, there are no lyrical descriptions, but rather, the book is factual and material is presented in a simple, straightforward manner which is highly informative and worthwhile." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:1664 N 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Nation 169:65 Jl 16 '49 600w

"Manages to get the whole story told, although somewhat at the expense of readability. The authors, both professors—and both Hawaiians by adoption—are obviously in love with the Islands and their people. . . Their enthusiasm, along with some good photographs, helps to enliven their fact-ridden book."
+ New Yorker 24:95 F 5 '49 100w

"Only when discussing the controversial present do the authors depart from rigid impartiality; they do not endorse statehood but their evidence in its support infuses their treatment of the subject with a warmth and conviction that would have appeared to advantage earlier in their book, without sacrificing accuracy or perspective." Joseph Barber
Pacific Affairs 22:217 Je '49 380w
San Francisco Chronicle p9 D 26 '48 130w
Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 8 '48 180w

"Striving for brevity and for the inclusion of all pertinent facts, the authors have not found space in which to tell the fascinating story of Hawaii in a way which will attract the casual reader. Less careful workmen might have yielded to the temptation to dwell more upon the romance and glamour of the story, but the authors of this book have been content to produce a somewhat routine but valuable summary of Hawaiian history."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:75 Mr '49 200w

KYD, THOMAS, pseud. Cover his face. 212p $2.50 Lippincott 49-9306

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 22 '49 240w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 17 '49 180w

"This is Thomas Kyd at his best, and if you find yourself confused, disbelieving and a little tired of some of the whimsical situations, you will still have a very good time." E. B.
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 17 '49 170w

"Funny, in spite of its inconsistencies."
New Yorker 25:64 Ag 6 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 70w

KYLE, ELISABETH, pseud. See Dunlop, A. M. R.

L

LABAREE, LEONARD WOODS. Conservatism in early American history. 182p $3.75 N.Y. univ. press
973.2 U.S.—History—Colonial period
48-7475

"Modern historians have usually given most attention to colonial tendencies toward liberalism, and have tended to neglect the men who clung to the status quo. In examining the attitudes and behavior of the conservatives of the eighteenth-century English colonies in North America, this volume fills a gap in historiography, and casts much new light on the period. In five chapters the book takes up the conservative influence of the ruling families in the New World settlements, the position of the landowners, the pressure towards conservatism exerted in religion, especially by the Anglicans and the New England Puritans, and the opposition often shown toward new ideas in education. The last chapter is an analysis of The Tory Mind, which relates the loyalists of the Revolution to the conservatives of the preceding century." U S Quarterly Bkl

"In view of the growing tendency in the teaching of American history to neglect the early period it is to be hoped that these interesting and valuable essays may be widely used as supplementary reading. They would certainly win friends for colonial history. The synthesis itself, moreover, is valuable to scholars by bringing together a large body of material, by presenting it succinctly, and by interpreting it thoughtfully." Merle Curti
+ Am Hist R 54:611 Ap '49 500w

Reviewed by Walton Bean
Ann Am Acad 262:230 Mr '49 330w

"Another important book on the colonial period." R. A. Preston
+ Canadian Hist R 29:414 D '48 320w

"Since such words as radical, liberal and conservative have varying connotations, it was necessary for Mr. Labaree to make his own definitions. If there is a serious weakness in his generally admirable study, it arises from the inclusiveness of his definition of conservatism: 'the attitude of a person who tends to support the existing state of affairs in any particular aspect of social relationships in opposition to efforts toward modification. Conservatism, as here used, is an attitude of mind that tends to promote resistance to change.' Throughout the greater part of his work, Mr. Labaree uses a more precise, less generalized conception of conservatism. He associates the attitude principally with the men of greatest wealth. . . The above criticism should not detract from the fact that Mr. Labaree has made a contribution of the first rank. His study is interesting to read and highly provocative of thought." C. P. Nettels
+ — Pol Sci Q 63:625 D '48 1150w

"The last chapter puts the book into a broad frame of reference by pointing out how all the history of Western civilization may be interpreted as a struggle between conservatism and liberalism. Read in this light, the book will have interest for anyone interested in modern history, however little he may be specially concerned with the American colonies."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:323 S '48 200w

LA FARGE, CHRISTOPHER. All sorts and kinds. 301p $3 Coward-McCann
49-8258

"Collection of Mr. La Farge's more recent short stories, seventeen in all, including three previously unpublished. Stress is on character rather than plot and action." Library J

Booklist 45:234; 295 Mr 15 '49; My 1 '49

"Each of the 17 stories carries an author's note at its conclusion, describing why and how the story was written and setting up the standards by which the author feels it should be judged. Not only is this a profitable idea for potential authors, it gives any reader a chance to be his own reviewer."
Chicago Sun p8X Ap 10 '49 90w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"In the course of reading these seventeen tales one is forever being tempted to say 'Relax!' to the author: they are self-conscious, they are shrewdly contrived, they are mannered, they are brittle, and they are, usually, interesting. . . There is only one that rings wholly true. It is 'Mary Mulcahy,' and it is very good." M. H. Ley
— + Commonweal 50:77 Ap 29 '49 390w
Kirkus 17:91 F 15 '49 120w

"Recommended." G. W. Hill
+ Library J 74:495 Mr 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 3 '49 850w

"Here are wartime jottings, expanded to short-story length. . . And here, too, are some unashamed pot-boilers, side-by-side with milky improvisations. . . It would be pleasant to add that these stories are as rewarding as their surface brilliance would indicate. All are readable: Mr. La Farge describes his settings nicely, and he's a good man with a narrative hook. But the color of reality is strangely absent." C. V. Terry
— + N Y Times p4 Mr 27 '49 380w

"At their best, they are carefully constructed and resourcefully plotted, but for the most part they are more artificial than convincing. Mr. La Farge has appended a note to each story, telling how it came to be written and what he was aiming at, and letting the reader in on other introspective musings. This turns out to have been a bad idea all around, for it denies the stories the opportunity of standing on their own feet."
+ — New Yorker 25:122 Ap 9 '49 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 19 '49 850w

"They are about mature people and mature conflicts, and in his notes Mr. La Farge makes the complaint that we as a people tend to glorify the adolescent and youthful too much, and that we do not have time for patience for the mature. I find myself wanting to demur mildly here by saying that it is always the author's obligation to make his material compelling. He has on occasion, it seems to me, failed. But when Mr. La Farge is good (and compelling) as he very often is in these stories, he masterfully succeeds in a number of worthwhile intentions." Hollis Alpert
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:24 Ap 16 '49 750w
Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 110w

"Most of them restrained in manner, the stories are all smoothly written, with the deftness and aptness of phrasing that identify practiced craftsmanship."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:164 Je '49 220w

LA FARGE, OLIVER. Eagle in the egg. 320p il $3.50 Houghton

940.544 World war, 1939-1945—Transportation. U.S. Air transport command 49-10030

An account of the organization of the Air Transport Command: its origins; strategic importance in World war II; its future possibilities; and brief sketches of some of its outstanding personalities. The author was a lieutenant colonel in the organization, and the head of its historical section. Index.

"This was a service to be proud of, and this is the book to make you so."
+ Atlantic 184:80 S '49 550w
Booklist 46:11 S 1 '49
Bookmark 9:4 O '49 40w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 170:74 O '49 450w

"There is a feeling of youthfulness and romance to the book, appropriate to the story of a new and significant phase of the air age. But it occasionally develops into a kind of coyness you might find in the annual report of a troop of Girl Scouts. . . Also irritating, if unimportant, are the wrong definitions and misuse of common Army terms, misspellings and typographical errors that dot the work. In the spirit of unification, however, let's forgive the colonel and let the judgment stand. 'Eagle in the Egg' is an outstanding piece of organizational history." Paul Farrell
+ — Commonweal 50:490 Ag 26 '49 460w

"Frankly, I expected to be somewhat bored with this meticulous record of the spectacular growth of this mighty system of airways from a tiny nucleus. La Farge has made the story fascinating, even when it gets technical and statistical."
+ Kirkus 17:225 Ap 15 '49 180w

"The relation of A.T.C. to the air commands of the Navy and Army is discussed very fairly. Considering the confusion which existed in the minds of both civilians and military concerning this relationship, this alone is quite an accomplishment. Examples of individual operations give the story liveliness and add to its readability." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 130w
Nation 169:237 S 3 '49 50w

"The writing has the whir of high movement in it; it took an anthropologist to record so thoroughly the folkways of the air and a novelist to make its warring sights and accents come back so close to mind." W. H. Hale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 31 '49 800w

"With Colonel La Farge as historian, the Air Force, the Air Transport Command and the reader are fortunate. To his job he brings

LA FARGE, OLIVER—Continued
the professional writer's competence, the fullest access to factual information, and the great advantage of a military service whose duties allowed or required him to go everywhere and see everything . . . The result is a narrative of authority, of often gifted expression of exact eyewitness reporting, of unobtrusive but copious documentation. That it is pretty clearly also a labor of love is not allowed to be to its disadvantage. The partisan warmth is not doting. The loyal wish to give credit where credit is overdue is not uncritical. . . This is a good 'war book'; worth the time, and worth the money." J. G. Cozzens

+ N Y Times p1 Jl 24 '49 1250w

+ New Yorker 25:67 Ag 20 '49 200w

"This is a sensitive, humorous and beautifully written story. It is the type of thing which all the forces deserve, but which few have so far been given in the way of military history. It is the moving story of world-encircling wartime aviation." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 25 '49 500w

"A first-class writer before he became a first-class officer, La Farge has written the story lovingly, but with artistic detachment, and the result is not only an accurate history but also a very moving and significant piece of prose." St. Clair McKelway

+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 Jl 30 '49 700w

Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 500w

LAIRD, CHARLTON GRANT. Thunder on the river. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $2.75 Little

48-28177

Historical novel about the period of the Black Hawk wars in Illinois. The story opens in 1813 with the arrival of Mark Eldridge in Goshen, Illinois, a trading station. He is captured by Black Hawk, who adopts him as a son, and induces him to marry an Indian girl.

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 F 3 '49 180w

Kirkus 16:604 N 15 '48 190w

"Descriptions have an air of authenticity; the account seems neither anti nor pro Indian and holds one's interest closely." R. P. Bartolini

+ Library J 73:1743 D 1 '48 70w

"Mr. Laird's story rings as true as a frontierman's axe when he shows Mark living among the Sauk Indians, fighting in Indian wars, and working out the problems of his marriage to Little Turtle. His dramatic success with Sauk braves is not equaled by his handling of a domestic triangle involving the whites. But he tells an engrossing story of a dying Indian civilization and the effort of Black Hawk to preserve Indian lands against the encroachments of the white man." Edgar Brooke

+ — N Y Times p25 F 6 '49 220w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:37 F 19 '49 140w

LAIRD, DONALD ANDERSON, and LAIRD, ELEANOR CHILDS (LEONARD). Strategy of handling children: questions-and-answers on parents' problems [sketches by Catherine Hayes]. 276p $3.85 Funk

649.1 Children—Management. Children—Care and hygiene 49-11640

Questions asked by parents about the common problems of raising children, answered by a doctor of science who has taught psychology for fifteen years. Index of subjects, and one of famous people used as illustrations.

Bookmark 9:53 D '49 40w

"The point of view, and the recommendations, are physically, psychologically sound."

+ Kirkus 17:525 S 15 '49 110w

"While much of the material is helpful, the answers tend to be trite and incomplete. No attempt is made to provide the reader with the background necessary to deal intelligently with a youngster's problems. On the contrary, one is encouraged to turn to the guidebook for the solution of all difficulties." M. R. Brown

— + N Y Times p10 Ja 8 '50 90w

School & Society 70:303 N 5 '49 20w

LAMB, CHARLES. Portable Charles Lamb; ed. and with an introd. by John Mason Brown. (Viking portable lib) 594p $2 Viking

828 49-8063

A selection of Lamb's letters; autobiographical writings; a section on London; tales; comments on persons, books, and paintings; poems; and notes on playgoing. There is a long biographical and critical introduction by the editor, John Mason Brown.

Booklist 45:282 Ap 15 '49

"The arrangement does a genuine service in clarifying the world in which Lamb's mind moved and exhibiting the qualities with which he set forth the various aspects of it as they struck him. . . I am not ordinarily a Lamb enthusiast, but I have found him more agreeably presented here than in any collection I know."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Mr 27 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:107 Ap 16 '49 90w

"One of the best in the long series. . . Mr. Brown takes pains to recall some of the nicer examples of Lamb's wit. . . One of the most difficult aspects of Lamb to understand has been his relationship with his unfortunate sister Mary. Here Mr. Brown shows himself extraordinarily sympathetic and wise; his account of this part of Lamb's life is as gently perceptive as you can imagine. Yet the other sides of Lamb are not ignored." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 6 '49 800w

"This volume would prove good reading anywhere, but I happened to enjoy it while overlooking the Pacific, during a week end at Laguna, so it will always be pleasantly associated in my mind with a blue sea and a blue sky and white gulls flying." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:40 Ap 23 '49 130w

LAMBERT, JANET. Treasure trouble. 189p $2.25 Dutton

49-2151

Continues the story of the Draytons begun in Where the Heart Is (Book Review Digest 1948). In this, Christy finds a treasure map in the chimney of their house and she and her friend Roger spend most of a summer looking for the treasure.

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 9 '49 300w

— Kirkus 17:209 Ap 15 '49 120w

"Recommended for teen-age girls for light reading." G. E. Cartmell

+ Library J 74:739 My 1 '49 60w

"It is good enough writing and offers a kind of pass-the-time reading comparable in the adult field with the serials in the better women's magazines." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 My 8 '49 140w

LAMONT, CORLISS. Humanism as a philosophy. 368p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

144 Humanism 49-7777

"Elaborating on his current lectures at Columbia University, Professor Lamont gives an apologia for humanism instead of theism as a creed—for groups as well as individuals. Contemporary humanism is defined as 'a philosophy of joyous service for the greater good of all humanity in this natural world and according to the methods of reason and democracy.' Historical antecedents in classical and renaissance thought are traced; but the emphasis is on a modern interpretation of ethical principles." (Library J) Selected bibliography.. Index.

Booklist 45:274 Ap 15 '49

"With this book Dr. Lamont provides the reader with an excellent opportunity to inform himself concerning a philosophical standpoint which determines the atmosphere of many an institution of higher learning in the United States. American humanism is the natural outcome of an emphasis on the sciences and an undervaluation of the overall view which religion and philosophy are capable of giving." H. W. Steiger

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 28 '49 1200w

"This enthusiastic and able 'introduction to the Humanist philosophy' is a welcome relief in the recent stream of pessimistic, and sometimes cynical, otherworldly and 'realistic' philosophical literature. . . In spite of a few deficiencies, which in the book are mainly theoretical, and because of the vigor and clarity of style and the wide range of information which gives it substance, the book seems to me to accomplish well its purpose of introducing the reader to an important and growing humanist movement today." H. S. Fries

+ — Crozer Q 26:368 O '49 700w

"Humanism as a Philosophy can be regarded as the best presentation and analysis of its subject to be found in contemporary philosophy." W. P. Montague

+ J Philos 46:504 Ag 4 '49 2500w

"Recommended for its clear and generally convincing presentation, but possibly limited to liberal-minded communities." L. R. Miller

Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 140w

"In these days of guilt by association and of concerted efforts to stigmatize secularism and Humanism as insufficiently anti-Communist, it is doubly unfortunate, to say the least, that so able and forceful a statement of the general philosophical position of Humanism should be marred by the eccentric politics of its author. For he knows how to make philosophy both readable and persuasive; and his sixty-page survey of 'The Humanist Tradition' from Protagoras to John Dewey is unusually rich in its appreciation of esthetic and literary values." H. A. Larrabee

+ — N Y Times p4 S 4 '49 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 1 '49 170w

"In an age when philosophy itself has become a highly technical and almost exclusively academic discipline, it is refreshing to have a book on that subject which is addressed not to the professor but to every person who makes an intellectual response to the problems of human life and destiny." Robert Bierstedt

+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Je 11 '49 500w

School & Society 69:160 F 26 '49 70w

"In times when unreasonableness is on the offensive and cleverly conceals its offensiveness, it is important for all humane persons to cultivate a sense of basic unity and moral fellowship. In this cause this volume should be of the very greatest service." H. W. Schneider

+ Survey 85:283 My '49 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:171 Je '49 270w

LAMPELL, MILLARD. The hero. 298p $3 Messner

49-7430

The "hero" is young Steve Novak, a football star in high school sought after by colleges intent on building up their reputations for sport supremacy. Honest, sincerely desiring education, Steve makes his choice of a school and is gradually disillusioned during two years of study and footballing when the other intangibles of college life are denied him.

Booklist 45:186; 192 F 1 '49

Reviewed by Feike Feikema

Chicago Sun S 22 '49 750w

"Here is a book in which honesty of intention and a knowledgeable youthful idealism ring very true." R. C.

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 S 15 '49 700w

"Possibly not for conservative tastes, this has however pace and vitality and levels its assault with validity and without belligerence."

Kirkus 17:338 Jl 1 '49 200w

"Obvious and insignificant story." Donald Wasson

Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 70w

"When the football players are carrying the ball for Mr. Lampell his story is brisk and hard-hitting; when the thinkers and theorizers take over, it slows down a bit." Herbert Kupferberg

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 S 11 '49 650w

"The author's narrative style is sharp and his dialogue is unencumbered. . . His poetic feeling is not always sustained. Yet Mr. Lampell's first novel does display two valuable traits auguring well for his future development—keen interpretation and sincerity." Herbert Mitgang

+ — N Y Times p36 S 11 '49 320w

"Sure, it's a bitter book. . . Mr. Lampell portrays a slice of American life, and extremely well. The book is authentic; he has been there, has seen, felt, lived much of this. Notice, please, that 'The Hero' is not a football story, but an important segment of modern America. Neither is it just a reporter's job; there is indignation in it. Mr. Lampell doesn't solve the problem, indeed who can? Nor does he finish the easy way with a happy issue out of all our afflictions. The book has defects. It is a young novelist's work and uneven." J. R. Tunis

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:22 O 8 '49 600w

Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 120w

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Treasure mountain; il. by Richard Bennett. 207p il $2.50 Doubleday

49-10164

Hoxie and Irene Chubfish, half-Indian orphans, leave the government school to spend a summer with their aged great-aunt, who lives alone in a small hut on a river bank between mountains and sea in Oregon. At first the children are repelled by their aunt, her way of living, and her memories of old times, but gradually things change, they learn much from her and are able to help her in return before they go back to school.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

"Unusual and appealing story." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 22 '50 260w

"The author tells a story that rings true, with quiet beauty and conviction and we, too, believe in her characters. The reader will find it hard to forget Hoxie and Irene and even harder to forget old Della, with her strength, her independence. Richard Bennett, who, like the author, knows the Nehalem country has made strong and sympathetic drawings." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 15 '49 360w

"The interest is well sustained throughout the book." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:413 S '49 100w

"The search for the legendary treasure buried in the mountain provides some suspense, but the story is memorable largely for the sympathetic, warm handling of the characters and the problem of the American Indian in contact with the white civilization today."

+ Kirkus 17:361 Jl 15 '49 190w

"Good story well told with a surprise ending." Anne Izard

+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 70w

"Fine characterization and a touching study of the changing of human values give strength to this well-written book." Alice McQuaid

+ Library J 74:1538 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey

Library J 74:1547 O 15 '49 60w

LAMPMAN, E. S.—Continued

"The tale has an unusually good style, an atmosphere of reality, and a rare understanding of the point of view of the modern Indian in relation to white people. . . Mr. Bennett's pictures are, as always, distinguished and truly interpretive." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 28 '49 220w

"The treasure hunt of the title is disappointing, but the story as a whole will not disappoint boys and girls from 9 to 12." N. B. Baker

+ — N Y Times p18 Ag 14 '49 130w

"It is good to have a story of American Indians in a modern setting that is as convincing and as interesting as this one is." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:47 O 22 '49 200w

LANCASTER, OSBERT. Classical landscape with figures; il. by the author. 224p $4 Houghton

914.95 Greece, Modern 49-7131

"Mr. Lancaster is the political cartoonist of the London Daily Express, but he is also a painter of striking originality and a humorist of the first order. Illustrated beautifully with color plates, and wittily by many line cuts, this journey through modern Greece is aptly described by author as 'not a ramble, nor a travel book, nor yet a guide, but a description in the eighteenth-century meaning of the term.' " (Library J) Index.

Chicago Sun p8X F 13 '49 170w

"His witty sketches have the pleasant appeal of the casual moment casually rendered. The full-page colored plates are more formal in mood, but retain a joyous, sunlit quality." Theodore Kalem

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 13 '49 650w

"This is a book for anyone interested in Greece, who has been there or who hopes to go there—or by anyone who enjoys superlatively good writing. It tells you everything; and, while offering a brilliant display of verbal fireworks, sheds light on every nook and corner of the scene." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 15 '48 550w

"A most satisfactory book, not only for content but for looks and illustrations. . . Although the humor does not outweigh the serious aspects, it adds a deft touch to the illuminating pictures of the country today and the glimpses of its history, for the author's artist's eye is ably translated by his cogent, crisp style, and the overall effect is one of fresh perspective and a certain bright charm. There should be a pleasantly special market for this."

+ Kirkus 16:651 D 15 '48 120w

"He is a first-rate reporter and a stylist; the fabric of his prose is tightly woven but will repay the closest attention. A delight from beginning to end." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:56 Ja 1 '49 100w

"Probably the most entertaining and the best informed travel-book of the last ten years." Val Gielgud

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ja 23 '49 900w

"Mr. Osbert Lancaster's 'Classical Landscape' is a rather dull book of travel. This is unfortunate, for Mr. Lancaster . . . who spent eighteen months in Greece as first secretary to the Athens Embassy, is clearly an intelligent, erudite, far from dull man. On the history and architecture of Greece he is a walking dictionary. His charmingly illustrated pages reveal facts that should fascinate both the Philistine and the Philhellene. Even his generalizations on national character, usually suspect and often a bore, sound valid. . . Such information makes lively reading, but, unfortunately, Mr. Lancaster has compressed most of it into the first forty pages of his book, as a prelude to his travels. It is when he begins to move . . . that our eyelids begin to droop." Andrew St. James

N Y Times p4 F 6 '49 600w

New Yorker 24:81 Ja 15 '49 160w

"If you approach Mr. Lancaster expecting an 'Inside Greece' you'll be disappointed; he does not operate in the literal, or Guntherian, manner, and doesn't pretend to. What you will find here is a sympathetic, intelligent, stimulating reflection of Greece and the Greeks, written with all the warmth and dry sparkle of which the cultivated, humane Englishman is capable when he is at his best. If you approach the book in this expectation I believe you will be enormously pleased with it. And you'll leave it knowing perhaps a good deal more about Greece and its people than you realized the author was telling you." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 6 '49 900w

"Lancaster wears his considerable knowledge of Greek history and architecture without pretension, and his first-rate drawings in line and color make Classical Landscape a far more attractive guide than the standard authorities. What gives Lancaster's book its special quality is the easy and pertinent shuttling from present to past and back to the immediate."

+ Time 53:93 Ja 17 '49 440w

LANCASTER, OSBERT. Saracen's head; or, The reluctant crusader; il. by the author. 68p $2 Houghton

49-9963

A burlesque tale of derring-do and courage celebrating the adventures of William de Littlehampton, crusader under Richard the Lion-Heart. For children and grown-ups.

Booklist 46:101 N 15 '49

"A most refreshing and amusing tale of the Middle Ages." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 8 '49 250w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:533 N '49 80w

"This is one of those books that I, personally, dislike for the junior market. The Crusades and the Age of Chivalry are so intimately a part of youth's growing up, that the cynicism, the irony, are lost on them, and yet they haven't the authentic background to give it due balance. . . Before giving it to teenagers, be sure of their grounding in the period."

— Kirkus 17:302 Je 15 '49 210w

"Entertaining but not important book for adults and older children. It is regrettable that the publisher did not correct capitalization of 'Negro' and eliminate 'nigger' to describe the Moors. Recommended with that reservation for limited purchase only." Clara Adams

Library J 74:1466 O 1 '49 80w

"Osbert Lancaster's Saracen's Head is below his admirable best. It is a pleasant children's story told in a rather Wodehousey style and embellished with many of the author's familiar guardees, A.T.S. brigadieresses, and clubmen, who look remarkably at home in their crusading garb. The black-and-white drawings are delightful, but the colour reproductions are not a success." J. W.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 14 '49 50w

"When this tale was serialized in 'The Atlantic Monthly,' I found it boring. I still think it a rather unworthy effort from the brilliant author of 'Classical Landscape With Figures.' However, the book contains priceless pictures, the black and whites of the serial have been cleverly arranged, some as two-page color spreads. The faces, the medieval detail, the obvious learning so carefully turned to humorous and satiric effect, provide a worthy exercise of wits for its American audience, whose size it is impossible to guess." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 S 4 '49 210w

"More good old-fashioned horseplay would have made this story more acceptable to young readers, although some boys and girls of junior high school age may enjoy this parody of knighthood in flower. It is a pity that the story hasn't more of the robust humor of Mr. Lancaster's excellent drawings which caricature medieval heroes in no uncertain terms." E. L. Buell

— + N Y Times p32 S 25 '49 270w

"An extremely enjoyable kidding of the Middle Ages. . . Mr. Lancaster tells the story straight and has illustrated it captivatingly."
+ New Yorker 25:135 O 15 '49 90w

"The author's illustrations are as funny as his story, which is recommended for all of all ages who enjoy bright satire, deftly and delicately laid on. More, please, Mr Lancaster!"
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 13 '49 200w

"This is really a burlesque. It is however, a rather stirring tale of twelfth-century England and the Crusades, and it will probably amuse as well as inform the boys and girls who read it." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:42 N 12 '49 160w

Reviewed by Philip Trower
Spec 181:672 N 19 '48 550w

Time 54:64 S 5 '49 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p712 D 18 '48 1600w

LANDAU, MARK ALEKSANDROVICH (M. A. ALDANOV, pseud). Night at the airport. 224p $3.75 Scribner

49-10437

A collection of seven long short stories. "The stories group themselves quite neatly. There are the satires, 'A Night at the Airport' and 'The Ruby'; four stories of wartime Europe, 'Darkness'—a tight, grim episode of French resistance in German-occupied Paris; 'Number Fourteen'—an account of the capture and execution of Mussolini at the hands of the Italian Partisans; 'Exterminator'—wherein the Yalta conference provides the backdrop, and 'The Astrologist'—a glimpse of Goetterdaemmerung as the Nazi hierarchy destroys itself in the Führersbunker underneath Berlin; and, finally, as a kind of belated nod in the direction of the faithful, there is 'The Belvedere Torso,' a return to the vistas of the past and the Renaissance world of Michelangelo." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R)

"Mr. Aldanov's projections have a credibility that seems to be based on careful documentation and intelligent hazard. Coupled with this, Mr. Aldanov writes with a simplicity of line and a complexity of idea and detail that makes urbane reading. Nonetheless, it is the purely fictional title piece of the book, 'A Night at the Airport,' that makes the most provocative and best-rounded story."
+ Atlantic 184:87 S '49 200w

Canadian Forum 29:238 Ja '50 280w

"Surface and subsurface writing where verbal and mental fireworks take precedence over the physical, this is primarily for his established market."
Kirkus 17:368 Jl 15 '49 150w

"'A Night at the Airport' is a civilized fable, a spoof of human nature which finds Mr. Aldanov at his witty best. The most fully realized characterization is to be found in 'Exterminator.' . . Taken as a whole, the book is enigmatic in the same way that the author's last work, 'The Tenth Symphony,' was. At times he meanders woefully, and his passion for understatement often obscures the point; and yet such stories as 'A Night at the Airport,' 'Darkness' and 'Exterminator,' are worthy of a writer of Mr. Aldanov's talent and stature." J. J. Maloney
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 28 '49 800w

"It is difficult to assess the quality of Mr. Aldanov's work. It is at once accomplished and ungainly, entertaining and enervating. His easy and informal handling of historic characters and events, without a twinge of the costumed pomp of 'historical fiction,' is masterly. So is his projection, in his imaginary episodes, of the random width of rhyme, reason and haplessness which go to make up the indirect train of thought. Mr. Aldanov is always intelligent; he is never vulgar. These are rare attributes to find in the welter of the historical genre. . . Nevertheless, however expertly they are pinned down, Mr. Aldanov's people do not come to life: their joints move stiffly and their hearts are missing." A. S. Morris
+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 28 '49 500w

"Ingenious and gracefully written stories."
+ New Yorker 25:65 S 3 '49 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p35 D 4 '49 500w

Reviewed by Hollis Alpert
Sat R of Lit 32:16 S 3 '49 700w

LANDIS, BENSON YOUNG. Rural welfare services. 201p $3 Columbia univ. press

360.973 Charities—U.S. Public welfare—U.S.
49-9763

"This book is presented as an interpretation of important social welfare services available to persons living in the rural communities of the United States. The activities taken up are those for aid to persons in need, for prevention of unwholesome conditions, and for promotion of social security, health, and stability in rural areas. In order to make the book of as wide use as possible, a list of agencies has been compiled for the volume, and the selected references have been arranged as a guide for those who wish to do further study." (Pref) Index.

"The data on public health organization and coverage are well presented, but the account of the difficulties in rural medical care is somewhat topical, rather than comprehensive. . . As a brief manual for health workers who want a birdseye view of welfare programs in their communities, the book should prove useful." M. I. Roemer
+ — Am J Pub Health 39:1587 D '49 270w

Booklist 46:7 S 1 '49

Current Hist 17:227 O '49 70w

School & Society 70:15 Jl 2 '49 40w

"In considering this book, the reader should remember that the author, of necessity, has based his generalizations on data often several years old. This is unfortunate, because of the dynamic nature of social welfare services. Governmental welfare services are relatively new, and all social services for people change as the needs of people change. With this in mind, therefore, the reader should examine the book for general trends and not attempt to use it as a guide to any local situation. Likewise, the reader will have to remember many of the recent and rapid developments in the whole welfare field, rural and urban, in America." Loula Dunn
Survey 85:617 N '49 550w

LANDIS, JUDSON TAYLOR, and LANDIS, MARY G. Marriage handbook [Text ed: Building a successful marriage]. 513p il $3.50; text ed 559p il $4.50 Prentice-Hall

392.5 Marriage 49-541; 49-346

"This book is written for those who are not yet married and for those who are married and are concerned with achieving a high level of happiness and success in their marriages. Our purpose is to present in readable form the scientific knowledge which exists about mate selection, the courtship process, and the adjustment problems of marriage." (Pref) Text edition contains an additional appendix: Review questions, suggested readings, special programs and activities, socio-dramas. Indexes.

"The authors state that they have attempted to present their material in 'readable' fashion. It is the reviewer's judgment that in this attempt they have succeeded very well—in fact, too well. Their style has the simplicity and intelligibility of dinner-tâble conversation. It has, however, the defects of simple informality, such as failure to distinguish fact from opinion, research findings from value-judgments, and to put limits upon generalizations." R. F. Winch
Am J Soc 55:221 S '49 650w (review of text ed)

"This is one of the better of the many books on marriage which have recently appeared on the market. . . At the same time, because these researches are considerably defective or limited in number, our lack of tested knowledge concerning many phases of marriage and family living is reflected in this book. The authors, who state that their volume is based on the experience of teaching marriage courses to some 7,500 college students, have addressed their book to readers at the high school level, and invited a certain dullness because of the elementary nature of their approach."

LANDIS, J. T.—Continued

Am Soc R 14:445 Je '49 110w (review of text ed)

Reviewed by E. P. Link
Social Educ 13:348 N '49 500w

Reviewed by D. S. Klaiss
Social Forces 28:222 D '49 650w

"A valuable and comprehensive addition to the literature on family relations which should be found equally useful by young people planning marriage, newly weds and older married couples. Unlike many studies of marriage, it covers practically every aspect of the relationship rather than concentrating exclusively on one phase. . . Consequently it is a good single volume for the family bookshelf."
+ Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 300w

LANDIS, PAUL HENRY. Man in environment; an introduction to sociology. 684p il $4 Crowell

301 Sociology 49-4480

"This is one more new textbook for use in the 'general introductory' college course in sociology. . . Pitched at a fairly elementary level as compared with some other texts now current, it is clearly organized and, for the most part, clearly formulated throughout. Professor Landis has indicated in his preface that one of his purposes in writing this book was to reduce somewhat what he considers to have been the excessive emphasis on culture and related concepts characteristic of some of the textbooks published in the recent past." (Am J Soc) Chapter references. Film bibliography. Subject and author index.

"I judge that college students will find this book intelligible and at least moderately interesting; on the other hand, the author does not seem to have taken any special pains to be provocative or stimulating. The device of illustrating various concepts and generalizations by the use of passages drawn from student's autobiographies seems to me likely to be effective. The book is marred by rather numerous evidences of insufficient care in the preparation of final copy for the printer and in proofreading." F. N. House
+ — Am J Soc 55:314 N '49 240w
School & Society 70:15 Jl 2 '49 50w

LANDMAN, JOAN, and LANDMAN, DAVID. Where to ski; ski guide to the U.S. and Canada. 359p maps $3.50 Houghton

796.93 Skis and ski running 49-48812

Information on where to ski in the United States and Canada, how to get to various points, where to stay, what to wear, what to pay, and how to talk like an expert. Index.

Booklist 46:154 Ja 1 '50
Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 40w
Kirkus 17:381 Jl 15 '49 60w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 20w

"A thoroughly practical book." Robert Meyer
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 8 '50 220w

Reviewed by Leo Marceau
Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 180w

LANDMAN, SOLOMON, and EFRON, BENJAMIN. Story without end; an informal history of the Jewish people. 279p $3 Holt

296 Jews—History 49-2402

A concise history of the rise of the Hebrew people, beginning with the leadership of Moses, four thousand years ago, and bringing their story up to the present. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:233; 274 Mr 15 '49 Ap 15 '49
Canadian Forum 29:92 Jl '49 490w

"An extremely able and simple history of the Jews. . . An objective, historical treatment, avoiding special interests and special pleading."
+ Kirkus 17:47 Ja 15 '49 150w

"Because of the tremendous sweep of history covered, the work of necessity is uneven in interest, quality and style. Nevertheless, a good, readable history—useful tool in building understanding." C. W. Roth
+ Library J 74:548 Ap 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner
N Y Times p17 My 29 '49 600w
San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 8 '49 60w

"Though it is difficult to say at which age group and at what educational level the authors were aiming in writing the book (much of it will strike the adult reader with an average education as too elementary), they have succeeded in presenting an eminently readable story. . . It is only natural that in such a book which encompasses so many centuries in so little space, every reviewer will find some points to disagree with. . . The benefits of the Roman Empire and of a universal civilization are little appreciated. . . Turning to the present scene, the authors seem to overestimate the cultural freedom of the nationalities in the Soviet Union. . . Within its set purpose and self-imposed limits, the little book, which is extremely well printed, fulfills a useful function." Hans Kohn
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:14 My 7 '49 650w

LANDON, KENNETH PERRY. Southeast Asia; crossroad of religions. 215p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

290.959 Asia, Southeastern—Religion 49-840

"Examination of the way in which religions from China, India, and now the Occident—all the major religions of the world—have been brought to the peoples of the Indochina Peninsula, the islands of the East Indies, and the Philippines, and the manner in which they have influenced or been transformed by the native customs. Ethnical, historical, and religious interest." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

"Doctor Landon is particularly well qualified to open the door to the cultural motivations that are mixed up with the political and economic demands. He combines in a happy way the results of years of specialized study with those of keen personal observation. And so he can tell us not only what the diverse peoples and groups believe, but how their beliefs and their moral zeal are connected with their historical experience." Bruno Lasker
+ Ann Am Acad 263:258 My '49 280w
Booklist 45:219 Mr 1 '49

"The distinctive value of his book is in the lucid descriptions of the religious factors in the culture of southeast Asia. . . Incidentally, a rare gem of information is the author's translation of 'Observations on the Customs of Cambodia' by a Chinese witness in the Mongol dynasty. . . More than eight pages of bibliography attest the author's wide knowledge of appropriate scholarly literature. This book should interest anthropologists and sociologists as well as all students of the history of religions. For the general reader it is the discovery of a new world." C. H. Hamilton
+ Christian Century 66:432 Ap 6 '49 950w

"This is one of the most interesting books I have read recently—fascinating in spite of its pedestrian and too specialized writing. . . Appended to the book are a very useful bibliography, unfortunately a rather incomplete index, and the first English translation of the description of the Khmer capital of Angkor in 1296, by the Chinese ambassador Tcheou Ta-Kuoan. His observations are the only extensive eye-witness report that has been preserved of this civilization, now being buried beneath trees, underbrush and jungle grass. Since the only other translation of this report—in a French historical bulletin of almost fifty years ago—is inaccessible to most American readers, they will welcome the inclusion of the principal part of this unique source material." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 49:594 Mr 25 '49 700w

"The chief criticism of the book is due to an unavoidable defect. The author is obliged to assume a knowledge of Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, and Chinese religion which an ordinary reader, and indeed few scholars, would possess. The reader is expected to understand references to the school of Shāfi'i, Mt. Meru, characters of the Ramayana, and Lou Pan, with little or no explanation. However, the book is of great value, providing a reliable study of what is, from the view of the diffusion of religion, the most important area in the world." J. K. Shryock

+ — Crozer Q 26:372 O '49 500w

"Well-constructed, eminently readable work." Martin Ebon

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 17 '49 470w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:171 Je '49 240w

LANDON, MRS MARGARET DOROTHEA (MORTENSON). Never dies the dream. 309p $2.75 Doubleday

49-48290

"Her selflessness and integrity acting as a challenge to her more worldly associates, India Severn runs her mission school at Bangkok in her own compassionate, unorthodox way. This is the engrossing and moving story of her search for spiritual good and of her special influence on a lovely American girl, told against the colorful, authentic background of Siam in 1930." Bookmark

Booklist 46:125 D 1 '49

Bookmark 9:55 D '49 70w

"There is no stickiness in this novel, and none of the old platitudes." Olive Carruthers

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 11 '49 450w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 8 '49 650w

"The plot is elusive and relatively unimportant; Miss Landon is not inherently a novelist, but she does leave the impress of place and people on her readers."

Kirkus 17:484 S 1 '49 230w

"The atmosphere of 'Never Dies the Dream' is almost entirely feminine, and this is probably fortunate, for nearly all the men who appear are largely stock characters. . . Here, as in 'Anna and the King of Siam,' Mrs. Landon's writing sometimes lacks distinction, but, just as in her earlier book, she keeps her narrative going with considerable drive." J. J. Espey

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 20 '49 800w

"The main theme of the book—the salvation of American Angela, widow of a Siamese prince—is never as absorbing as the vivid scenes that surround her, for Angela is presented as a creature of such purity and virtue that she is always a symbol of righteousness rather than a flesh-and-blood woman. Her mother-in-law, the Old Princess, is an authentic bit of human nature, brilliantly drawn. But since she represents the Dark Forces from which Angela must be saved, she disappears early from the novel and a good deal of pungency goes with her. India and her story draw their greatest strength from the Bible, which renders this book a testament of faith, rather than a human drama played at the level of human nature." Jane Martin

+ — N Y Times p48 N 20 '49 420w

"A reverent, crowded novel. . . There is an enormous amount of detail about Siamese of high and low birth, but none of them, and none of Mrs. Landon's long procession of Europeans and Americans, ever receive the spark of personality that might bring them to life and make their story worth reading."

New Yorker 25:153 N 12 '49 100w

"With humor and understanding Margaret Landon writes about the routine life at the mission school. She has insight into the compulsions and pressures which rule Siamese action. . . What Miss Landon tries to convey to her reader is the fact that fashions in religious practice may change but people and their problems remain much the same." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 27 '49 450w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 480w

"The fruity, feathered hat of glamorous romance is not one that sits comfortably on the head of ex-Missionary Margaret Landon. Her virtues are the warmth of her religious faith and the frankness with which she discusses such delicate matters as jealousy and rivalry among missionaries. The general result is too honest and heartfelt to be scoffed at, but too artless to make a good novel."

Time 54:91 N 28 '49 330w

LANE, ARTHUR. Early Islamic pottery; Mesopotamia, Egypt and Persia. 52p 96pl 4 col pl $7.50 Van Nostrand

738.3 Pottery, Mohammedan 48-9602

A survey of seven centuries of pottery-making in Persia, Samarkand, Egypt, Syria and Mesopotamia, beginning with the foundation of Islam and ending with the thirteenth century. The author is connected with the Victoria and Albert Museum. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 74:549 Ap 1 '49 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Jl 3 '49 60w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull

San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 19 '48 50w

Spec 179:812 D 26 '47 90w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 40w

LANE, ARTHUR. French faience. 49p 96pl 4 col pl $7.50 Van Nostrand

738.37 Pottery, French 48-9601

"Traces the course of the 'secret' method of tin-glaze from the Islamic potters with whom it originated, through Spanish to other, later European potters who developed it to its fanciest Rococo form in the 18th century. Mr. Lane goes into considerable detail in discussing various types of faience, its development and its factory marks as well as color, design, etc." (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 74:549 Ap 1 '49 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Jl 3 '49 60w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull

San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 19 '48 90w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 40w

LANE, CARL DANIEL. Cruiser's manual; with il. by the author. 432p $3.95 Norton

797.14 Yachts and yachting. Sailing

49-9103

"A complete handbook of yacht cruising under sail and power." (Subtitle) Partial contents: The boat; Rest—awake and asleep; Illumination; Plumbing; Ventilation; Cooking and dining; Ship's medicine chest; Housekeeping afloat; Seagoing clothing; Safety at sea; The social side of cruising; Children, pets, and pests; If you are a guest (inside dope); Offshore and deepwater cruising. Index.

Booklist 45:351 Je 15 '49

"An extremely practical book, with illustrative diagrams, encyclopedic in range. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 10w

New Yorker 25:102 Je 11 '49 100w

LANE, CARL DANIEL, and MONTGOMERY, JOHN H. Navigation the easy way. 126p il maps $2.95 Norton

527 Navigation 49-10090

"An elementary approach to navigation in which an attempt is made to visualize all the problems in simple drawings and to explain the basic principles and methods without recourse to technical language." (Booklist) Bibliography. Glossary-Index.

Booklist 46:8 S 1 '49

"A very clever, elementary text, abundantly illustrated." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 30w
+ Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 40w

LANE, FERDINAND COLE. Earth's grandest rivers. 305p maps $3.50 Doubleday

551.48 Rivers 49-7247

Complementary volume to the author's earlier works The Mysterious Sea and The World's Great Lakes (Book Review Digest 1947, 1948). The rivers treated in particular include those of all the continents—such as the Yangtze Kiang, Ganges and Euphrates of Asia, the Congo and Nile of Africa, the Murray-Darling of Australia, the Danube, Rhine and Volga of Europe, the Mississippi, Columbia, Amazon, etc. of the Americas. Supplementary chapters deal with rivers in general and their influence on human life and history. Index.

Booklist 45:205 F 15 '49

"There's even a department to delight the quiz kids. It tells the most dangerous river, the most commercialized river, the most romantic river, and all the other mosts that delight 'geographiles' and winners of radio program sweepstakes. It's worth reading." H. B. Nichols
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 F 23 '49 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49
Kirkus 16:609 N 15 '48 180w

"Recommended as a recent book on the subject, for the general reader." H. A. Wooster
+ — Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 60w

"The account of the rivers, replete with information, makes the interesting and absorbing part of the book. Unfortunately, there are two additional chapters of the author's miscellaneous thoughts about rivers. They do not deserve a place with the scholarly material of the other chapters. But except for this appendix the book is a grand one." Roderick Peattie
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ja 23 '49 750w

"This is the third book by Dr. Lane about the marvels of the physical world. . . Both previous works were welcome contributions to the field of popular science, very much superior to the general run in fluency, grasp and power of image. And so, against this background of success, it is pleasant to report that Dr. Lane's current effort is, if anything, even better than its forerunners." E. B. Garside
+ N Y Times p27 Ja 16 '49 900w

"To produce under the handicap of so unmanageable a plan a book on the whole as coherent and briskly informative as this one, with so much of current interest and so few pages altogether stale and flat, is no small triumph of literary skill." Garrett Mattingly
+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ja 29 '49 450w

LANE, HOMER TYRRELL. Talks to parents and teachers; insight into the problems of childhood; pref [by] A. S. Neill; introd [by] A. A. David. 217p $2.75 Hermitage

136.7 Child study

Studies of the problems of childhood "by an American who spent his life in education, both in the U.S. and in England, and who sums up for his readers his precepts for the education of young people." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

"Homer Lane was sensitive, as some progressive idealists are not, to the wrong ways of extending freedom and to the peril of making success too easy. His excellent practical recommendations on many questions from choice of toys to teaching sex and religion quite outweigh his theoretical limitations. . . This book is a product of the gratitude of men and women whose powers were liberated by Lane and who persistently urged him to write." Goodwin Watson
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 1 '50 650w

"Mr. Lane talks sound sense, on the old-fashioned side sometimes, though the kind of old-fashionedness to which the modern experts are nowadays returning." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 7 '49 250w
School & Society 70:224 O 1 '49 30w

LANE, JEREMY. Murder spoils everything. 253p $2 Phoenix

Mystery story.

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 17 '49 50w

"Characters are on stuffy side. Time-passer."
Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ag 20 '49 40w

LANE, MERVIN L. Successful practice of insurance. 308p il $5.35; to schools $4 Prentice-Hall

368 Insurance 49-3756

"A book by the head of the Lane Agency in New York explaining how to establish and conduct a successful general insurance agency. Setting up an office, office routines and systems, advertising, how to budget your time, chain selling, and how to build your clientele and develop business through conscientious service." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:7 S 1 '49

"Interesting as biography, packed with cases, hints and tips, it is well written and well organized, and should help anyone entering the field, as well as the man who finds himself in a rut." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1756 N 15 '49 90w

LANG, MRS LUCY (FOX) ROBINS. Tomorrow is beautiful. 303p $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 48-9447

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"This narrative mirrors a warm heart and generous spirit rather than reflects an intellectually consistent political philosophy." Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Je 26 '49 360w
Social Studies 40:192 Ap '49 20w

"An entertaining account of the extraordinary life of the author, Lucy Robins Lang." G. E. Lyon
+ Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 420w

"Mrs. Lang emerges from her own pages a purposeful organizer, sensitive to injustice, aware, too, of the innumerable and conflicting theories about its cause and cure. Of doctrine as such, the book has little to say, it does characterize richly some of the holders of firm doctrinaire positions, men like Eugene Debs and Gompers."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:46 Mr '49 300w
Wis Lib Bul 45:29 F '49

LANGER, WILLIAM LEONARD, ed. Encyclopedia of world history. See Encyclopedia of world history

LANGSAM, WALTER CONSUELO. Francis the Good [v1] The education of an emperor, 1768-1792. 205p $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Francis I, emperor of Austria (Francis II, Holy Roman emperor) 49-9325

"This volume tells the story of the first twenty-four years in the life of the man who, as Francis II, was the last Holy Roman Emperor, and, as Francis I, the first Emperor of Austria. . . Francis was strongly opposed to political change, but he did much to encourage economic and social development. He favored strict punishment for those who sought to deprive him of what he regarded at his just rights, yet it was his own subjects who named him Francis the Good. . . In any case, Francis was the product of the education imposed upon him by a father and an uncle who were supposedly among the most forward-looking men of their day. And it is this education, this specific preparation for the life of an emperor, which is the subject of the present volume." (Foreword) Index.

Reviewed by S. B. Fay
Am Hist R 55:138 O '49 400w

Reviewed by Albert Hyma
Ann Am Acad 266:233 N '49 400w

Reviewed by Egon Kaskeline
Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 21 '49 390w

Current Hist 17:226 O '49 50w

"A learned contribution to history in a limited field."
Kirkus 17:168 Mr 15 '49 180w

"A pleasant portrait of the archduke's household for anyone interested in this branch of the Hapsburgs." K. T. Willis
Library J 74:815 My 15 '49 140w

"Professor Langsam's work . . . is a conscientious and scholarly job." Emil Lengyel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 21 '49 550w

"Professor Langsam could hardly have chosen a less lovable, less shining hero than Francis. This, however does not detract in any way from the value of his work, which is based entirely on original sources—letters, memoirs and court reports. Historians will find much to interest them in his thorough analyses of the political administration, the financial, intellectual and social affairs of the Habsburg monarchy toward the end of the eighteenth century." Alfred Werner
+ N Y Times p21 Jl 10 '49 450w

"A rather specialized bit of scholarship, at first glance, but a very interesting book nonetheless. . . Francis was a link between two momentous periods in history, and this story of his coming of age provides a lively footnote to his times."
+ New Yorker 25:27 Je 18 '49 160w

"Lucid, erudite, and thorough are the words for this account. It will be hailed by everyone interested in the different aspects of the eighteenth century, and the succeeding volumes will be awaited with equal interest. One ventures a final observation. What the author gains by selection, he occasionally loses in precision by repeating illustrations of a given point. For non-specialist readers this kind of documentation encumbers the presentation. The general reader will be grateful in any case that the profuse and invaluable footnote and bibliographical references are all compactly bundled together at the end of the volume." Leo Gershoy
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:28 Jl 2 '49 850w

LANIER, HENRY WYSHAM. Greenwich Village: today and yesterday; phot. by Berenice Abbott. 161p $5 Harper
974.71 Greenwich Village, New York (city) 49-11616

The story of New York's Greenwich Village, told in text and photographs. Includes a list of places to dine and books to read. Index.

Bookmark 9:53 D '49 40w

"The immediate appeal of this book is in its photographs, adroitly taken and admirably reproduced, which will by their fidelity delight outsiders and wring the hearts of exiles. But its lasting value is in the text, which for the first time manages to catch, perpetuate and in some measure explain the special atmosphere of this region."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 27 '49 380w

"Berenice Abbott's 64 wonderful pictures show the Village in moods of sun and shadow—Washington Square, Macdougal Alley, Minetta Street, antique shops, markets, restaurants, book shops, the bar at Joe's, and a great variety of actors, painters, sculptors, writers and dancers." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p36 N 20 '49 200w

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH CARLETON (HUBBARD) (MARTHA JOHNSON, pseud). Rider on the mountains. 278p $2.50 Crowell 49-11720

In order to prove herself as good as her rival, Lexie Littleton, Boston society girl, takes a job as a courier for the Frontier Nursing Service in Kentucky. The hardships and setbacks of the life mature her and bring her reward in the end.

Booklist 46:142 D 15 '49

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1553 O 15 '49 40w

"Splendidly told. The spirit of this superb service should make a deep impression on young readers."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 80w

LAPP, RALPH EUGENE. Must we hide? 182p il $3 Addison-Wesley
623.45 Atomic bomb. U.S. Defenses 49-2845

"Doctor Lapp has been concerned with the problems of atomic defense since the end of World War II. . . His book considers the results of the Japanese bombings and translates these effects to American cities. It points out which of our cities are most vulnerable and what defenses may be prepared against possible future attacks." Publisher's note

---

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 183:87 Je '49 900w

Booklist 45:308 My 15 '49

+ Bookmark 9:27 N '49 50w

"Dr Lapp's book is a result of the author's conviction that a people well-informed on the question of atomic warfare is an unconquerable people. The old bogey of Orson Welles' invasion of Martians is dusted off to show the reactions of Americans in the face of an attack by unknown powers, the conclusion supposedly being that had we known more about Martians, we would have been less scared. This is by no means obvious from reading the book. When the author says that atomic defense is a challenge to our democratic way of life, we are inclined to agree. In fact, after reading the book one gets the impression that its title should be, 'We Must Hide.'" A. J. Burggraff
Cath World 169:314 Jl '49 400w

"Dr Lapp does not support the view that an atomic war would destroy the human race; but he agrees that it would be terrible, and that the best defense against it is peace. A very sane and informing book." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:626 My 18 '49 280w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 29 '49 480w

Reviewed by Ralph Lane
Commonweal 50:301 Jl 1 '49 550w

Eng N 142:80 Je 9 '49 250w

Kirkus 17:192 Ap 1 '49 280w

"Thought provoking book." Jack Brown
+ Library J 74:660 Ap 15 '49 160w

"A coolly factual presentation, illuminating rather than alarming."
Nation 169:19 Jl 2 '49 50w

"This is a book tightly packed with factual evidence, and closely reasoned for military policy and civilian education. It should convert the present public attitude, part over-confidence in our mere possession of the bomb

LAPP, R. E.—Continued
and part hysterical fear of it into the calm necessary for living with the bomb." Gerald Wendt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 5 '49 900w

" 'Must We Hide?' is infinitely superior—not in terms of literary quality, for the style is jerky, or in human interest, but in terms of data and deductions—to David Bradley's well-known study, 'No Place to Hide.' Dr. Lapp's book comes closer to clarifying the facts and military implications of the atom bomb than any other book this reviewer has seen." H. W. Baldwin

+ — N Y Times p1 Jl 3 '49 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 15 '49 120w

"Dr. Lapp has written a good book. He covers what the layman should know about atomic weapons in a thorough and level-headed way, and he uncovers many misconceptions. His text is an excellent answer to his title which poses, of course, the big problem of the day." David Bradley

+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Je 18 '49 1450w

LAPP, RALPH EUGENE, and ANDREWS, HOWARD LUCIUS. Nuclear radiation physics. 487p il $6; to schools $4.50 Prentice-Hall

539.1 Nuclear physics. Radiation 48-8922

"A good text on nuclear physics. Intended not only for the student, but also for non-physicists and those working with radio-isotopes in the medical, biological, and industrial fields. Deals with waves and particles, atomic structure, X-rays, radio-activity, nuclear radiation, reactions, chain reactions, and finally health physics." Library J

"That the book is intended as a textbook of instruction and information rather than a treatise replete with nuclear theory and discussion is evident throughout. Each chapter closes with a list of problems or questions. While the work is primarily for the newcomer to the nuclear field, it nevertheless contains much in convenient form for the more experienced worker. . . Regrettably, the field of radiation chemistry receives no attention. [However] an author who will undertake a text in this rapidly developing field where obsolescence can and often does arrive overnight renders a real service to science. The authors are to be congratulated on producing a truly useful text in this most active and important field." S. C. Lind

+ J Phys Chem 53:595 Ap '49 220w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

+ Library J 74:823 My 15 '49 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:58 Jl '49

LARKIN, OLIVER WATERMAN. Art and life in America. 547p il $7.95; text ed $6 Rinehart

709.73 Art—U.S. 49-11231

Discussion of the development of American painting and sculpture, from its beginnings to the present. Architecture, interior decoration and allied arts are considered less fully. The author is a professor at Smith college. Bibliographical notes. Index.

Booklist 46:119 D 1 '49

"It is a competent, well illustrated reference book that will be read as much for enjoyment as information." P. L. Nothstein

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p43 D 4 '49 50w

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 5 '50 300w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:45 Ja 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by Benjamin Rowland

Nation 170:42 Ja 14 '50 1500w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein

New Repub 121:25 D 12 '49 120w

"Each scene is played against settings which give an interesting impression of the cultural and economic life of the epoch in which the action originally took place. . . Previous books which reflect this research have all covered a considerably smaller range than 'Art and Life in America.' Not since 1929 has any one published a comprehensive discussion of all the visual arts. Thus Mr. Larkin's book is aimed at supplying a real need. A synthesis in a single volume of the most up-to-date scholarship, it is intended to serve both as a college text and as an introduction to the subject for the general reader." J. T. Flexner

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 6 '49 1100w

"A lack of critical proportion is frequent throughout the book. And the character of prejudice which, though never baldly admitted, underlies the flippant running style, comes out very clearly in the fact that the author can (to take a chance example) give two and a half pages to John Singer Sargent and at the same time write off Alexander Calder in less than two sentences." J. J. Sweeney

N Y Times p6 O 23 '49 800w

"By far the finest general history of the visual arts in America that has yet been written, and one that might very well supercede all other general histories. It does not supercede specialized studies, but should be used as a springboard toward them; its bibliography fills 31 pages and is a model of its kind." Alfred Frankenstein

+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 O 16 '49 950w

LAROM, HENRY V. Mountain pony and the rodeo mystery; il. by Ross Santee. (Whittlesey house publication) 228p $2.50 McGraw

49-5594

A third story in the Mountain Pony series about Andy Marvin, horse wrangler of a Wyoming dude ranch. This time he chases after a horse thief and catches him in New York's Madison Square garden. For grades 7-9.

"In spite of the unnecessary melodrama which reduces this to the ranks of a radio or movie western, the story is acceptably written and will provide fast and thrilling action for the reluctant reader."

Booklist 46:69 O 15 '49

Reviewed by Will Davidson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 13 '49 70w

"If you clamor for more good westerns and horse stories, this is the tale for you." H. F. Griswold

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 S 29 '49 190w

Kirkus 17:397 Ag 1 '49 130w

"Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 110w

"This is a fine, fast-moving story for teen-aged boys, with excellent illustrations by Ross Santee." H. B. Lent

+ N Y Times p24 N 6 '49 230w

LARRALDE, ELSA. My house is yours. 250p $3 Lippincott

917.24 Mexico—Social life and customs 49-8203

The author describes her experiences in building a home in a tiny Mexican village near Cuernavaca. She tells of her experiences with lazy workmen while her house was being built, and the part she played in village affairs.

Booklist 45:260 Ap 1 '49

Chicago Sun p8X My 22 '49 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '49

"Her vivid description of Mexican customs in that locality and her keen sense of humor make this not just another book about Mexico, but one which should appeal to many readers. . . Recommended." E. S. Brown

+ Library J 74:548 Ap 1 '49 130w

Nation 168:620 My 28 '49 40w

"It would seem to repeat the pattern of many another book such as any woman who builds herself a house and has trouble with plumbers and contractors might have written. But Elsa Larralde is no ordinary dream-house builder and Acapantzingo is no ordinary main-street village. . . The author is a natural story teller. Her adventures are continuously entertaining, spiced with romance, violence, accidents, illnesses, domestic troubles and triumphs over, and defeats by, the generally refractory rural Mexican Indian environment." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 10 '49 600w

"The value of 'My House Is Yours' lies in the wealth of detail it supplies on native customs and the author's ability to portray characters with true compassion. One wishes that it had been written in a style less monotonous to the ear and with a more deft handling of comic situations." Hilda Osterhout

+ — N Y Times p32 My 8 '49 320w

LARSON, HENRIETTA MELIA. Guide to business history; materials for the study of American business history and suggestions for their use. 1181p $12 Harvard univ. press

650.9 U.S.—Industries and resources—History 48-7565

"This book, begun in 1931, contains an annotated list of some 5,000 references to books, pamphlets, leaflets, and articles, most of which are concerned with the policies and actions of specific businessmen or the development of specific business enterprises. In addition to some forty pages of introductory discussion . . . each of the main and many of the subsidiary subsections are introduced by a brief discussion of the nature of the materials and the viewpoint from which the researchers embarked upon their tasks. The balance of the book is divided into six main divisions as follows: the general historical development of business and the historical background and setting of American business; autobiographies, biographies, and other materials about individual businessmen; historical development of business firms; aspects of the history of the functional divisions of business and of selected industries; general topics in business history; and the final section is devoted to reference and research materials. Index." Am Hist R

"The book is a demonstration of masterful craftsmanship and scholarship, indispensable for future historians of business history. The individual critical comment on the 5,000 references is sharp and relevant." E. P. Schmidt

+ Am Hist R 54:367 Ja '49 550w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:951 Je 15 '48 50w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:513 D '48 300w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. American democracy: a commentary and an interpretation. 785p $6.50 Viking

917.3 Democracy. U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Politics and government 48-2654

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"That goodly company which reads as a matter of course everything Laski writes, even the fairly lightweight peregrinations into which his political pamphleteering sometimes leads him, will find in The American Democracy that he has lost none of his wit nor flair for forceful exposition, and that his sonorous rhetoric abides with him yet. Despite its intolerable length and at times intensely tedious repetitiousness, the book is extraordinarily readable, immensely learned, and brilliantly encyclopedic in its analysis of American politics, culture, and society. It is, alas, not Laski's unassailable position as the ranking litterateur among contemporary students of political science that is skidding dangerously, but something far more fundamental—the integrity of his value judgments and the coherence of his intellectual processes. He appears, in short, a profoundly confused man." Rowland Egger

— + Am Hist R 54:613 Ap '49 750w

"It is probably safe to assert that Professor Laski's large and meaty book is the most important commentary on American institutions, traits, and ideals by a foreign observer since James Bryce's American Commonwealth was published in 1888. It takes its place with Alexis de Tocqueville's Democracy in America and Bryce's classic work as one of the three epoch-making efforts of intelligent and sympathetic outsiders to estimate the nature, operations, and future prospects of the civilization of the United States." H. E. Barnes

+ — Am J Soc 54:476 Mr '49 2100w

Reviewed by H. D. Lasswell

Am Soc R 14:431 Je '49 750w

"That Laski fails in this earnest attempt to understand the culture and people of the United States is not due to want of ability but to the distorted perspective of his intellectual position. The nature of his failure uncovers the weakness of the assumptions with which an important group of writers have approached the problems of America and of modern society in general." Oscar Handlin

+ — Atlantic 183:59 F '49 3850w

"With his data it is hard to quarrel, but not with some of the interpretations into which his devotion to Marxian dialectic has led him."

+ — Foreign Affairs 27:157 O '48 50w

"The book is of extraordinary vitality, striking the placid assumptions of American liberalism with stunning impact. It will, I believe, prove to be far and away the most important book on the civilization of America which has been produced in the first half of the twentieth century. If the second half sees its equal it will be extraordinarily fortunate. . . Being a remarkable book, The American Democracy will raise serious questions in the mind of each critical reader." M. D. Howe

+ — Harvard Law R 63:338 D '48 3150w

Reviewed by Alistair Cooke

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 29 '49 1300w

Reviewed by Norman MacKenzie

New Statesman & Nation 37:186 F 19 '49 1300w

"Professor Laski's key opens many doors, and happily, in practice, he is far less of a doctrinaire than he sets out to be. But he does thrust his key into locks it will not open, and the key bends. As I share the late Morris Cohen's scepticism about these universal pick-locks I am not surprised, but—to conclude—this one does open a good many locks and Professor Laski happily walks through many open doors to our profit." D. W. Brogan

+ — Spec 182:330 Mr 11 '49 1350w

"There are many sections of the book which throw valuable light on the details of American democracy; but the impression remains that they are but sidelights. The new American democracy that has come of age since the Wall Street crash of 1929 seems oddly unfamiliar to Professor Laski. He treats Congress, the Courts, the universities and education, and religion as though they and their problems had 'stayed put' in the 1920's."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p164 Mr 12 '49 1950w

Reviewed by F. W. Coker

Yale R n s 38:569 spring '49 1500w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. Liberty in the modern state. rev ed 175p $2.75 Viking

323.44 Liberty. Political science 49-9456

A new edition of a work first published in 1930 (Book Review Digest 1930). In his Preface to this edition the author says he has made "very considerable changes both in the introduction and in the original text."

Reviewed by N. E. Taylor

Am Pol Sci R 43:1077 O '49 170w

Booklist 45:396 Jl 15 '49

Kirkus 17:225 Ap 15 '49 360w

"Substantial in scope and depth, provocative in thought and expression. Dealing with perhaps the crucial subject of our times. Recommended." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 130w

LASKI, H. J.—Continued
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 14 '49 410w
New Yorker 25:86 Je 25 '49 100w

Reviewed by R. G. Colodny
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 21 '49 950w

"The critical reader of this volume is likely to feel that the author has created for himself an almost insoluble dilemma: on the one hand, he values freedom so highly that he defends with force and eloquence the right of individuals and groups to reach mistaken conclusions and to misinterpret the scale of civilized values; on the other hand, he believes so ardently in the principles of Socialism that he considers that the destruction of capitalist institutions is necessary if civilization is to survive. I suggest that the difficulties of reconciling the two faiths are greater than Professor Laski in this volume admits them to be, and that his diagnosis of current ills and his prescription of remedies will continue to be somewhat ambiguous until he faces the problem of reconciliation more squarely than he has in any of his recent writings." M. D. Howe
Sat R of Lit 32:19 Jl 9 '49 900w

Reviewed by Hillier Kreighbaum
Survey 86:41 Ja '50 250w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. Trade unions in the new society. 182p $3 Viking 331.88 Trade unions 49-11202

Four lectures delivered in the United States at the invitation of the Sidney Hillman Foundation in March and April, 1949. Contents: The changing significance of trade unionism; Trade unions and the public; Trade unions and the law; Trade unions and democracy.

Booklist 46:183 F 1 '50
Canadian Forum 29:238 Ja '50 160w

"Laski doesn't translate well into American. . . A good many thousands of words are gathered together in this volume, to present in the United States a message with not more than partial relevance. This is not a dead language, even from an American point of view, but it is replete with archaic terms." C. W. Morgan
— Christian Science Monitor p14 O 17 '49 600w

"Much of this is worth listening to, although one may wish that it were said with less exaggeration of the threats to labor and less simplification of the problems involved. But the basic tenet of the book is essentially unsound." C. H. Weiss
— + Commonweal 51:249 D 2 '49 800w

"These lectures must have been hard to listen to for they are far from easy reading, understanding or accepting. . . Laski has developed a lot of ideas in these lectures but from the way things are developing in socialist English and in American labor unions it would appear that his ideas are not acceptable over here."
— Kirkus 17:418 Ag 1 '49 270w

"Few can be detached about Laski. The radical will draw little comfort from his keen diagnosis of the social ills of Sovietism. The conservative may well boggle at his thesis that labor has advanced in spite of a persistent preference by the Common Law for law and order and rights of property as against the rights of humanity. . . A stimulating book." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1825 D 1 '49 110w

"Laski's analysis and arguments deserve the thoughtful attention of American trade unionists, but I doubt that he will convert many—yet. For one thing, some of them are disturbed about the position of the trade unions in Socialist Britain. Are they losing their independence? Are they becoming mere organs of the state? These are questions that might have claimed more space in this book." Keith Hutchison
Nation 169:382 O 15 '49 750w

"If I understand Professor Laski correctly, obtaining control of legal apparatus of the state by the labor party must be followed by nationalization of the basic means of production in order that the state power may be wrested from the owners of the present means of production. It is on this score that Professor Laski is sharply critical of the Political Action Committee of the CIO. . . I would suggest that Professor Laski has misstated his case. . . Professor Laski's discussion of the nature of sovereignty and the relation of the coercive power of the state to existing property relationships is not new to readers of his previous works. What is new and—having voiced my objections—valuable is the discussion of the role of trade unions within that framework." Jack Kroll
+ — N Y Times p8 O 2 '49 1050w

"This book is as confused and irritational as a jigsaw puzzle without a pattern. What Mr. Laski is trying to say is constantly obscured by what he is trying not to say." D. R. Richberg
— N Y Times p8 O 2 '49 1150w

"At times, Professor Laski's reputation as a social thinker is easier to understand than his reputation as a writer. . . As an indication of the general lines of thinking behind the British Labour Party, however, the book is clear enough."
+ — New Yorker 25:157 N 12 '49 160w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 6 '49 450w

LASKI, MARGHANITA. Little boy lost. 248p $2.75 Houghton
49-50340

Hilary Wainright, a young English poet, had lost his wife and child in France during the war. He knew his wife had been killed by the Gestapo but he was not sure about his little son. The novel describes his search for the child in postwar France, and his uncertainties over the child he ultimately found.

Booklist 46:141 D 15 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p6X D 25 '49 500w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 21 '49 550w

"As a story Little Boy Lost has distinction and a memory that lingers." E. V. R. Wyatt
+ Commonweal 51:372 Ja 6 '50 450w

"An inescapably affecting story where sentiment is edged by bitterness."
Kirkus 17:661 D 1 '49 190w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1904 D 15 '49 100w

"Where, exactly, the ring is false it is difficult to say, for the writing is always accomplished; but the background of the Gestapo and its horrors sounds forced (though nothing could exceed the reality), and the episode of the prostitute, whose seductions almost persuade the father to abandon the child, does not convince." Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 S 23 '49 270w

" 'Little Boy Lost' deals with themes that are inherently touching and could easily have been sentimentalized. Miss Laski's discriminating characterization of Hilary and of the French people and scenes in the story and her direct portrait of the child make it a distinguished as well as an extremely appealing book." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 18 '49 550w

"The material is carefully organized: background scenes have a fresh, firsthand coloring, and no detail is wasted. The people, too, are sharply sketched, whether they are nuns or black marketers. . . Yet one finds it difficult to meet them all the way—a third dimension is always absent. 'Little Boy Lost' has all the arresting quality of a good charity-bazaar poster. It is never quite alive." C. V. Terry
N Y Times p32 D 11 '49 700w

"The story can't help but be touching, but Hilary is such an unattractive character that it's difficult to have patience with him or his self-indulgent meanderings."
New Yorker 25:59 D 24 '49 90w

"I wish that 'Little Boy Lost' could be required reading for every junketing Congressman, and forcibly put into the hands of gripers, the over-privileged, or the bored. Lovers of France, the compassionate, the Gallicized among us will not need to have it put into their hands. They will buy it and try to keep it on their shelves, for this is a book which will be frequently borrowed, seldom returned." Evelyn Eaton

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 D 31 '49 550w

"Little Boy Lost has a simplicity like that of the Blake poem—less naïve than ultimate. . . Character, action and atmosphere are as one here." Sylva Norman

+ Spec 183:438 S 30 '49 190w

"The bleakness of the orphanage, where the children have neither toys nor place to keep them in, the mean squalor of the northern town, and the appealing nature of little Jean are well conveyed; the weakness of the novel lies in the handling of Hilary, who remains throughout the guilt-torn and indecisive intellectual made only too familiar in scores of English novels."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p613 S 23 '49 300w

LASKI, MARGHANITA. Toasted English. 212p $2.50 Houghton

49-7933

Satire on English society. It pictures the lives of a group of repatriated English men and women, who returned to an England they had never known. A Tory victory had been won and all aristocrats were Class A, with endless perquisites accruing to them. But freedom was another matter, as soon became apparent.

"Entirely by indirection, and with unfailing wit, Miss Laski has fashioned a scorching indictment of a hierarchical society." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 183:84 My '49 1050w

Booklist 45:234; 242 Mr 15 '49

"As Miss Laski expands her description of this Tory heaven she becomes more than a satirist; she is able to make a most competent defense of the 'new England' as we see it today. . . 'Toasted English' is satire in the tradition of Jonathan Swift, that is to say literate, enjoyable and with a purpose." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun Ap 27 '49 550w

"Miss Laski is betrayed by her own system. . . Her satirical intent has been blurred by her sheer delight in reconstructing the mores of the Victorian upper classes. . . Towards the end, Miss Laski suggests that the inevitable reaction to such a regime is a class system in reverse—communism; but she constructs no real case of any kind for the underdog." Ruth Chapin

— Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '49 370w

"Adroit satire—entertaining reading."

+ Kirkus 17:38 Ja 15 '49 190w

"Interesting, sometimes amusing and very English. Popularity in this country doubtful." G. W. Hill

Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 100w

"Satire of a good-tempered kind. . . Miss Laski's perception is keen, her pen pointed: this is an effective tract." Iris Barry

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 1 '49 800w

"Miss Laski appears to know her economic and social relationships. She also has imagination. . . If one considers the book as having a moral, it becomes ridiculous in its attempts to demonstrate the obvious. As a game it is interesting, but like most such games of 'let's suppose,' whatever brilliance it has comes from a rather static ingenuity, not from the exhibition of characters or ideas through action." Charles Weir

— + N Y Times p6 My 1 '49 340w

"Miss Laski comes nowhere near the social satire that she seems to be trying for. . . Instead, she has written a high-spirited political extravaganza, which has about as much subtlety as a varsity show. The laws and social customs, the snooping officials, and the caste system of her invented country are all pretty comic, but Miss Laski describes them so smugly, with such embarrassing delight in her own cleverness, that she almost spoils the fun."

— + New Yorker 25:106 Ap 30 '49 120w

"The thing has its dull spots; after all, it would require something little short of genius to sustain anything of this kind throughout 200-odd pages. But for the most part the humor is unforced, and the simple romance which results in a few not-quite-fully regimented individuals finally kicking over the traces, is pleasantly handled if a trifle reminiscent of the ending of Mr. Aldous Huxley's latest novel, of another sort of regimentation, 'Ape and Essence.'" J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ap 26 '49 900w

"Marghanita Laski, who is a niece of the redoubtable Harold, had a good idea, a trick title, and what was plainly a lot of fun doing this exuberant and somewhat over-blown satire on the English caste system, with particular attention to the erstwhile ruling class, a section of the British body politic so often the target of such potshots that it must by now be as porous as a loofah. In fact, it struck me that a little less ebullience and considerably less self-satisfaction on Miss Laski's part ('Look, Uncle, I'm dancin'') would have sharpened the satire and bettered the book." John Woodburn

Sat R of Lit 32:11 Je 4 '49 800w

LASSER, JACOB KAY, ed. Handbook of cost accounting methods. 1344p $12 Van Nostrand

657 Cost accounting 49-1897

"This exhaustive work on all the fundamental principles and practices of cost accounting provides the facts, form, methods and procedures necessary in order to apply cost accounting methods to any business anywhere. Experts in each field take into account the new developments of the past few years and apply them directly to 61 businesses and industries. Contains complete charts on production unit costs, pricing and labor costs, tables, and profit and loss statements, together with comprehensive information on general methods of analysis and control, on reporting procedures and techniques, and on systems of costing, costing practices, and governmental experience." (Management R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:330 Je 1 '49

Management R 38:590 O '49 90w

LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT. Power and personality. 262p $3 Norton

137.3832 Leadership. Psychology, Applied

48-7325

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by V. O. Key

Am Pol Sci R 43:385 Ap '49 450w

"As in all his writings, Professor Lasswell here offers incisive discussions, marked by serious commitment to the practical application of scientific intelligence." Discussion by Alan Gewirth

Ethics 59:136 Ja '49 2900w

Foreign Affairs 27:332 Ja '49 20w

Reviewed by W. W. Hollister

J Philos 46:679 O 13 '49 480w

"The ten chapters of the study attempt to relate the political man first to the underlying personal motives that describe personality, and then to the kind of societal pressures that make difficult a change in these underlying motives. Two chapters, VIII and IX, attempt to recommend therapy."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:348 S '48 280w

LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT, and others. Language of politics; studies in quantitative semantics. 398p $5.75 Stewart

320.1 Political science—Terminology

49-1893

"A study of propaganda with an approach as studious as that of the scientist. A report on

LASSWELL, H. D.—Continued
methods that have been devised to aid in detecting and analyzing the modern propaganda of our 20th century world. A summary of the power inherent in the correct use of language and the styles most effective in molding public opinion to certain desired lines; the problems met in a quantitative method of analysis, the extremely complicated and well constructed methods needed for correct quantitative breakdown of language, and a few examples of the formulas developed in Communist propaganda since the 1917 Revolution. Many of the sections appeared earlier as part of the work done under the auspices of the War Communications Research Project." Kirkus

"In our kind of society, where suspicion is rife among conflicting interests, the value of such analysis, if properly used, cannot be overestimated. If it is democratically channeled, it can act as a means for the clarification of issues, a dissolvent of distortions, and hence an aid in reestablishing faith in democratic procedures." J. F. Wolpert
+ Ethics 60:69 O '49 1100w

Foreign Affairs 28:157 O '49 20w

Kirkus 17:20 Ja 1 '49 130w

" 'The Language of Politics' is cast, in the pompous, prolix style often affected by social scientists nowadays, but its value and originality are beyond dispute." Oliver Selfridge and Walter Pitts
+ — N Y Times p38 Je 19 '49 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 15 '49 100w

"The introductory section cogently urges that the style and content of political discourses are worthy of analysis, and it states the case for quantification as well as it has ever been stated. . . Unfortunately this notable book is spoiled by two blemishes. It has been carelessly edited. Each of the contributors has his own jargon which may or may not be the same as, or relatable to Lasswell's terminology. Before the language of politics is analyzed, the language of the analysis itself should be standardized." L. W. Doob
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:37 Ap 16 '49 550w

LASSWELL, MRS MARY. One on the house; with il. by George Price. 263p $2.50 Houghton
49-11894

The three beer-drinking friends—Mrs Feeley, Mrs Rasmussen, and Miss Tinkham—who have figured in the author's earlier books spend some time in New York, and finally reach Newark practically broke. They take over a bankrupt barroom while the proprietor is in the hospital, and make so much money for him that there is enough left to finance their own return to California.

Booklist 46:141 D 15 '49

"While I see no reason to doubt that this will please the readers who became acquainted with the Girls in Mrs. Lasswell's previous stories, it must be confessed that I find this story even more contrived. . . But there's enough life in the old gals to provide plenty of hilarity and some good, honest, if corny, sentiment. It's certainly the sort of cheerful reading that is good for these times and this time of year." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 11 '49 420w

"As cheerful, good natured, free flowing as its predecessors."
+ Kirkus 17:562 O 1 '49 120w

"Full of fun and good sense. Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1602 O 15 '49 80w

"Miss Lasswell plays for the laughs, with a pretty good average."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 27 '49 290w

"Blessed with a fast plot, sturdy characters, sentiment, relentless mirth, and a moral purpose, this novel has all the ingredients of a pleasing movie. But it will be read—and probably at one sitting—as one of the most riotous books of the year." N. L.
+ N Y Times p48 N 20 '49 270w

"They are very funny women. Once they get started, the story gallops along on its own momentum, with Mrs. Feeley's broad and unabashed humor giving her the jump on all the hoodlums and heroes she encounters."
+ New Yorker 25:161 N 19 '49 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ja 8 '50 350w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 32:32 D 31 '49 320w

LATHROP, WEST. Keep the wagons moving! il. by Douglas Duer. 337p $2.75 Random house 49-631

This historical novel for boys and girls follows the adventures of two young brothers who, by different routes, travel over the trail from Independence, Missouri to Oregon in the summer of 1846.

Booklist 45:229 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun Jl 23 '49 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:216 My '49 90w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 25:283 Jl '49 80w

"This is the sort of 'bridging book' we need, to lure youth from the dare devil comics. Try it!"
+ Kirkus 17:3 Ja 1 '49 160w

"Above average of stories set in this scene. Good characterization, considerable historical information without the feeling that it is wedged into the cracks of the story, and plenty of action and incident combine to make it desirable for public and school libraries. Recommended for boys, grades 7-10." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 74:500 Mr 15 '49 80w

"An interesting, lively, well written story of covered wagons on the Oregon Trail." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 F 20 '49 230w

"Here is a pioneer story to rank with the best. West Lathrop, who brought colonial New England vividly alive in 'Black River Captive;' has done an equally effective job with the Oregon Trail." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p24 F 20 '49 180w

"The author has used reliable data for the background of his book. [She] shows, as in 'The Black River Captive,' that [she] is familiar with the ways of the Indians and of adventurous white pioneers. With its familiar background, its two well-drawn boy characters, one villain who is finally caught, the discovery of gold and plenty of adventure, this makes an absorbing and satisfying story." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 Mr 12 '49 260w

Wis Lib Bul 45:50 Mr '49

LATOURETTE, KENNETH SCOTT. Emergence of a world Christian community; pub. for the Rice institute. 91p $2 Yale univ. press
280 Church unity 49-7529

"In three lectures, delivered at Rice Institute, Dr. Latourette surveys the past, present and future. . . The Christian past includes the rise of the Christian tradition and organization, the medieval ecclesiastical monarchy and the socio-religious synthesis. . . The rise and spread of Protestantism are studied, with note of its strengths and weaknesses. Other topics are Protestant and Catholic missions, the rise of native Christian leaders in non-Christian lands, and the modern movement toward Christian unity. In the section on the present, the author considers war, secularism, science, nationalism, the obstacles to Christian unity, and the indications of a 'world Christian community' in process of formation. As to the future, his position is one of patient optimism." (Christian Century) Index.

Christian Century 66:627 My 18 '49 280w

"When all the facts are put in perspective, the evidence is almost overwhelming, and yet this reviewer feels that Dr. Latourette's optimism is based more on faith than fact." R. C. Miller

Churchman 163:16 Jl '49 60w

"One views this small book with admiration yet also with a touch of doubt. That a new type of world Christian community is emerging is fully demonstrated by the author, but his evaluation of its present position and future prospects is open to question." J. C. Brauer

+ — J Religion 29:326 O '49 370w

"Packed into the ninety-one pages of the book is much information concerning the spread of Christianity, the impact of Christianity on non-Occidental peoples, the historic gulfs and disunities within Christianity, the development of organizations and councils preceding the World Council of Churches, and other related matters. Easy to read, the book should command a wide audience among those interested in the history and prospects of the movement toward Christian unity."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:172 Je '49 240w

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Davy of the Everglades [il. by the author]. 127p $2 Morrow

49-7851

Story of Davy and his pets—the baby alligator from the Everglades pond; the turtle found on the highway by two friends; and the fawn, the gift of a Seminole Indian boy. For ages 6-9.

"An enjoyable story, simply and effortlessly told."

+ Booklist 45:248 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Je 18 '49 100w

Churchman 163:3 Je 15 '49 20w

"This easily told story with its different animals and a real little boy will find many readers." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:214 My '49 100w

Kirkus 17:84 F 15 '49 100w

"Recommended." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 74:556 Ap 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 27 '49 180w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross

N Y Times p24 Mr 13 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 100w

Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Deborah's white winter [il. by the author]. 124p $2 Morrow

49-4522

A story of Deborah's winter of snow. Many exciting things happened to her: she was the wingless angel in the Christmas play, she froze her nose, she was accidentally locked in the cellar, and she won a prize as the youngest ski jumper in the Snow carnival. For ages 5-8.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:409 S '49 80w

Kirkus 17:300 Je 15 '49 90w

"Recommended for all libraries." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 74:1334 S 15 '49 80w

"It is a good read-aloud book, also good practice reading, with its big type and many appealing, simple pictures." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 13 '49 150w

"Quietly humorous pictures and prose." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p41 S 11 '49 150w

"A pleasant book, intended for beginning readers, that will gladden little girls as old as nine."

+ New Yorker 25:176 D 3 '49 80w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 80w

LATTIMORE, OWEN. Situation in Asia. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 244p $2.75 Little

950 Asia—Politics. Eastern question (Far East) 49-2218

The Director of the Walter Hines Page school of foreign relations at Johns Hopkins University, and a specialist on the Far Eastern question here gives his views on that portion of the globe. His theme is "the West can no longer control events in Asia. In all but a few negligible states nationalism is in the saddle. The West simply does not have the strength to restore the old colonial order under any disguise, and the United States is doing itself and democracy a disservice when it backs Netherlands, British or French efforts to 'restore order.'" (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by H. A. Steiner

Am Pol Sci R 43:1053 O '49 900w

Booklist 45:293 My 1 '49

"This book should be required reading for congressmen." Graham Peck

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 21 '49 850w

Foreign Affairs 28:170 O '49 100w

Reviewed by W. G. Fletcher

Geog R 39:679 O '49 850w

"An interesting book."

+ Kirkus 17:124 Mr 1 '49 240w

Reviewed by E. D. Hawkins

Nation 168:562 My 14 '49 900w

"Behind its somewhat pedantic title this turns out to be a lively book sparkling with penetrating observations. It brings meaning to the surrealist world of social and political birth and death around us and offers some hope for the future. One suspects that Mr. Lattimore deliberately sought—he certainly found—a completely neutral label for this reiteration of his own refreshing and far from complacent views concerning the highly controversial events of revolution and counter-revolution in Asia." Edgar Snow

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 10 '49 1650w

"It is doubtful whether the United States has another man so well informed on northeastern Asia—and at the same time so literate—as Owen Lattimore. . . Many who read 'The Situation in Asia' quickly will feel that Mr. Lattimore is backing the Soviet line. Actually, he is not. He appears to have tried to maintain complete objectivity and to paint the picture as he sees it. Often he seems to feel that Russian policy is sounder, more astute and/or more progressive than that adopted by the United States—and he says so. He thinks we are frequently confused and occasionally plain wrong. . . Much as this reviewer admires Mr. Lattimore, it seems necessary to say that 'The Situation in Asia' represents something of an inflationary trend." Stuart Lillico

+ — N Y Times p5 Ap 10 '49 1050w

Reviewed by Kingsley Martin

Pacific Affairs 22:320 S '49 1550w

"'The Situation in Asia' is small, tight packed, refreshing for its temperate climate, after many high blood pressure books on the fate about to befall Asia. Lattimore from his long experience shows us another point of view. . . Lattimore's book should help us cast the beam out of our own eye, and should, if read as widely as it deserves, bring clearer vision and wiser action." Eleanor Breed

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 3 '49 1100w

"As usual, Lattimore makes a difficult subject so clear that even our Congressional 'experts' should, technically, be able to cope with it. . . Although this book was quickly put together, with some of the resulting virtues of spontaneous writing and drawbacks of hasty organization, there is nothing slapdash about the thinking. 'Situation in Asia' is must reading for everybody who wants to do his own thinking." R. E. Lauterbach

LATTIMORE, OWEN—Continued
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 Ap 9 '49 950w

"Compact, reliable little book." Frederick Reinstein
+ Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 750w

Reviewed by T. A. Bisson
Survey 85:455 Ag '49 700w

Wis Lib Bul 45:87 My '49

Reviewed by G. E. Taylor
Yale R n s 39:151 autumn '49 900w

LAUBENGAYER, ALBERT WASHINGTON. General chemistry. 528p $4.25 Rinehart
540 Chemistry 49-9787

"An introductory textbook, designed for first-year college students who require a sound knowledge of the fundamentals of chemistry for further work in the subject or for work in such fields as physics, engineering, or the biological sciences. Throughout the work the exposition is closely related to the modern knowledge of the atom and other physical principles on which chemistry is based. The author is Professor of Chemistry at Cornell University." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1331 S 15 '49 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:51 Jl '49

LAUTERBACH, ALBERT T. Economic security and individual freedom; can we have both? 178p $2.50 Cornell univ. press
338.91 Economic policy 48-7135

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Professor Lauterbach has a commendable sense of the urgent necessity for mankind to learn its lessons quickly, but the precise content of the lessons to be learned remains obscure. He is firmly convinced that economic security and individual freedom are not inconsistent, and rightly insists upon the confusions of thought which the uncritical use without precise definition of words like socialism and freedom often encourages, but there is no penetrating analysis of the implications of the widespread and quite understandable claims for economic security, and little help is given to the unskilled reader who is anxious to avoid the confusions of thought against which he has been warned." A. G. B. Fisher
+ — Am Econ R 39:532 Mr '49 850w

"While not always inspiring or original, the author's argument is generally cogent. In order to prove the compatibility between economic planning and individual freedom, he sometimes overstates his case." H. J. Morgenthau
+ — Am J Soc 54:567 My '49 550w

Current Hist 16:101 F '49 50w

Foreign Affairs 27:331 Ja '49 30w

"The book will be found informative and interesting for the general reader who, having read Hayek's Road to Serfdom, remains sufficiently broad-minded and inquisitive to investigate the other side of the argument. Professor Lauterbach has contributed one of the better booklets of economic essays in the current series of polemics, but, most probably, many of his colleagues in the profession share my hope that after the market demand for this type of writing is satiated he will turn to the scientific research and the laborious process of empirical investigation and thorough analysis which will provide the only sound foundation for an effective system of democratic economic planning in which security will be reconciled with liberty in a nice institutional balance of distributive justice." W. G. O'Donnell
+ Pol Sci Q 64:303 Je '49 900w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:302 S '48 240w

LAVENDER, DAVID SIEVERT. Golden trek. 265p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.
48-7964

Story of the California gold rush of 1849 and of Joe Gordon, aged sixteen, who joined his uncle as an advance scout. The hardships they endured and Joe's discovery of his uncle's selfishness, complicated by trouble with the Mexicans, are related in this story for older boys.

Booklist 45:162 Ja 1 '49

"Interesting material, well-handled details, graphic descriptions, and a gripping yarn from a novel slant."
+ Kirkus 16:441 S 1 '48 150w

"A better than average western of the Gold Rush days. Recommended for older boys, aged 11-16." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 74:134 Ja 15 '49 70w

Wis Lib Bul 44:216 D '48

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. Letters to Bertrand Russell; ed. with introd. by Harry T. Moore. ltd ed 111p $5 Gotham bkmart
B or 92 Russell, Bertrand Arthur William Russell, 3d earl 49-7125

Twenty-three letters, written by D. H. Lawrence to Bertrand Russell, which have never been published in book form. "The relationship between Lawrence and Russell, which endured for about a year, in 1915-16, was brought crashing over the question of whether the world could, as Russell apparently believed, be gradually tidied up or whether, as Lawrence repeatedly screamed, all extant social phenomena had forthwith to be junked." (New Yorker)

"They constitute a small treasure, and for at least three reasons. They are, firstly, concentrated Lawrence. . . Secondly, the letters tell a complete story—though a one-sided one—that of the ill-fated relations between two immense contemporary figures. And, finally, this compact sequence (the first letter is dated February, 1915, the last March, 1916) gives a turn of the screw to the heads-on clash between poetry and science, intuition and reason. . . As good as the letters, is Appendix A, Lawrence's corrections and comments on Russell's manuscript. And Mr. Moore's introduction is a quiet, informed, necessary springboard for the Lawrencian fireworks that follow." Harvey Breit
N Y Times p26 Ja 23 '49 1300w

"These letters, like everything else Lawrence wrote, are in about equal portions stimulating and exasperating."
New Yorker 25:107 Mr 12 '49 140w

Time 53:66 Ja 3 '49 1050w

LAWRENCE, HILDA. Duet of death. 131;110p $2 Simon & Schuster
49-7130

Two mystery stories: Composition for Four Hands, and The House.

Booklist 45:194 F 1 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 21 '49 140w

"Quality class."
+ Kirkus 16:583 N 1 '48 70w

"Amateurish and implausible plots, an almost total lack of characterization and a general air of feverish witlessness produce a major disappointment." E. H.
— New Repub 120:27 F 7 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ja 16 '49 180w

"Hilda Lawrence writes a smooth, insidious kind of chiller, one that doesn't need bangs and shrieks to achieve its effects. Two such tales are combined in 'Duet of Death.' . . Both stories are Grade-A shockers. They inspire hair-raising fear in a genteel, immensely effective way." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p31 Ja 16 '49 360w

"Slick-magazine stuff, by an author who in the past has done some fine work in the suspense field."
New Yorker 24:88 Ja 22 '49 100w

"'Composition' struck us as the better of the two, although we are carefully refraining from recommending it to the faint-hearted... Don't think for one moment that you are going to be able to start either one of these yarns and then lay the book aside. Hilda Lawrence doesn't like readers to do that." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 6 '49 190w

"Highly atmospheric horror-suspense tales—American scene—whose clever typographical juxtaposition is not quite equaled by plot ditto."
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:34 F 5 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 70w

LAWRENCE, ISABELLE. Two for the show; a story of Shakespeare's England. 283p $2.50 Bobbs 49-11280

The scene of this novel for boys of eleven to fifteen is England during the reign of Elizabeth. It is concerned with young Nat Horne who wanted to be both an actor and a member of Sir Walter Raleigh's exploratory trip to the New World. Acting won out, and the story concerns his adventures in London, playing Shakespeare before "Good Queen Bess."

Booklist 46:145 D 15 '49

"Crammed with details of the times—the scenes, costumes, life in manors and inns, and the Court—this story makes a past day vivid." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun N 5 '49 200w

"Steeped in the fabulous period of illustrious names and events that was Elizabethan England, and possessing a true story-telling gift, the author combines these happy assets to create an absorbing tale for 10 to 14 year olds." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 13 '49 230w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 26 '50 200w

Reviewed by C. W. Field
Library J 74:1920 D 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 8 '50 140w

"The cultural and historical background of Gloriana's reign, accurately portrayed with many scintillating personages of that golden age of literature and exploration, forms the framework of this exciting and spellbinding adventure story. . . Miss Lawrence has made ancient Greece and Rome live again in earlier books; now she has achieved equal finesse and vividness with this later period." J. W. M.
+ N Y Times p34 N 13 '49 140w

"As long as they are under the protection of Sir Walter Raleigh, the journey to London runs smoothly. It is when the boys lose Raleigh's favor that trouble develops. Young readers should enjoy this story of a spirited boy of Shakespeare's day and his encounters with actors, dramatists, sea dogs and great lords and ladies."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '49 100w

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE (MRS ARTHUR PLATZ). My heart shall not fear. (Whittlesey house publication) 301p $2.75 McGraw 49-8375

"Around the hospital bed of a young mother three generations gather in person or in recollection, while her troubled introspections reveal her own sheltered life. Through flashbacks the reader understands the motives of typical Americans—parents with married sons living at home and unconsciously depleting the old-age savings; the gallant sister-in-law secretly wasting away with cancer; gay grandma contented to live with others of her generation. Anxieties plague them all, but few lose heart." Library J

Booklist 45:202; 281 F 15 '49; Ap 15 '49

"The fact that the right to determine the if and when of parenthood is taken for granted in this book makes it dubious reading for Catholics."
Cath World 169:319 Jl '49 100w

Christian Science Monitor p15 My 12 '49 210w

Kirkus 17:65 F 1 '49 120w

"Recommends itself to feminine readers who want old-fashioned virtues to triumph over psychologically reasonable frailties." L. R. Miller
+ Library J 74:495 Mr 15 '49 110w

"This novel seems to me less effective, in general, than some of Miss Lawrence's preceding stories because of the diffusion of interest. . . Like her earlier stories, 'My Heart Shall Not Fear' does have a warm human appeal, and it gives a clear and sympathetic picture of many dilemmas that confront young people and their parents in A.D. 1949." Mary Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ap 17 '49 650w

Reviewed by Marie Neville
N Y Times p17 Ap 17 '49 550w

New Yorker 25:99 Ap 23 '49 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 12 '49 270w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:28 Je 4 '49 180w

"This is an entertaining and quietly thoughtful story." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 270w

Wis Lib Bul 45:106 Je '49

LAWRENCE, MRS MILDRED. Sand in her shoes; il. by Madye Lee Chastain. 211p $2.25 Harcourt
49-10407

Story of the Brooks family's first year in Florida, where "Daddy" had gone to run a weekly newspaper in a small town. In the beginning Sandy and Dorrit were not sure they liked Florida, but by the end of the year, even tho it was climaxed by a hurricane, things looked very different and they were glad to stay on.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:210 D '49 20w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p13 O 13 '49 300w

+ Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 130w

"Children of eight or nine will like this regional story with its minor mystery." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:526 N '49 80w

"A satisfactory story with regional values."
+ Kirkus 17:467 S 1 '49 120w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 74:1609 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 30 '49 150w

"The story is as bright and lively as its several characters. The 8-to-12-year-olds will enjoy all they learn about Florida and running a weekly newspaper." G. C. Castor
+ N Y Times p28 O 2 '49 150w

"As in 'Peachtree Island,' Mildred Lawrence has peopled her story with very different and likable personalities. With a larger cast of characters in this story the interest is more diffused, but boys and girls will enjoy the experiences of the three Brooks children and can identify themselves readily with them." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 N 12 '49 230w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 110w

LAWSON, ROBERT. Fabulous flight; il. by the author. 152p $2.50 Little 49-10193

A fantasy told in the author's straight-faced manner. Peter Peabody Pepperell III was a normal sized boy at seven years of age, but at thirteen, after six years of growing down, not up, he was only four inches tall. Peter's size and his friendship with Gus the Gull, made it possible for him to do a great service for his country and mankind.

"An absorbing story, with just the right combination of modernism and magic." Jane Cobb
+ Atlantic 184:103 D '49 100w

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 24 '49 500w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 10 '49 240w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:410 S '49 120w

"There will be a good deal of pro and con discussion about this story this fall wherever children's book trade people and librarians gather, very much the way there was about Stuart Little. After two readings we feel that most children are going to be charmed with its story about Peter. . . The encounter with the mad scientist is thrilling and what happens when Peter gets rid of the deadly grains is well told. Kids will like it and it can be used as an antidote for the comics. And the author's pictures get better and better as the story progresses."
+ Kirkus 17:394 Ag 1 '49 220w

"Although the writing is clever and the story will be accepted happily by children, the undertone of adult satire seems out of harmony with the quality of fantasy." Alice McQuaid
+ — Library J 74:1542 O 15 '49 60w

"Lawson nearly equals Mr. Twigg's Mistake in this satire, but at times the humor seems heavy-handed, and one regrets reference to 'dusky assistants,' but Lawson fans will be satisfied. Recommended." E. A. Groves
+ — Library J 74:1682 N 1 '49 90w

"Illustrations by the author are the best part of the book. Several situations are strained to the point of incredibility. The fantasy doesn't quite come off: hasn't that spark of the unusual found in Stuart Little. Not recommended." M. J. Meade
— + Library J 74:1682 N 1 '49 120w

"Here are combined many dreams of modern children. . . The total effect is—well, upsetting. The book is purposely devised by the author to offer children reading that matches comics and movies for excitement. Possibly they will like this, but to most of them it will seem a strange melange, only part of which is their well loved Mr. Lawson at his best." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 S 18 '49 400w

"The minutiae of Peter's Lilliputian life are worked out with an imagination and precision that will delight children of 7 to 12 and also the grown-ups who read with them. And they will enjoy, too, the abundant drollery, not particularly subtle but on the level which a child can wholly appreciate." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p40 S 11 '49 230w

"The author of so many noteworthy juveniles fails spectacularly when he tries to roll under one cover talking animals, a midget hero, spies, and the atomic bomb."
— New Yorker 25:162 D 3 '49 180w

"It contains some of the best writing found in the current crop of children's books; for Mr. Lawson is never talking down to his readers like so many writers for children. . . It's so much a natural that the adult reader will go on reading it for himself long after the child has absorbed the first chapter and is sound asleep in bed." Marc Rivette
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 13 '49 650w

"Not the least of the joys of this fascinating story is the conversation of Gus. It is slightly tough and characteristically American. It will bring chuckles from young and old. Here is an adventure story, funny, exciting, and original. The drawings are as only Robert Lawson can make them."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 S 17 '49 290w

LAWTON, GEORGE. How to be happy though young; real problems of real young people. 300p $3 Vanguard
170 Conduct of life. Adolescence 49-48846

The author, who is a practicing psychologist, discusses the problems of youth in a series of papers grouped under the headings: Yourself; Your family; People; The opposite sex; Friends; Your career; School; Society; The universe. Many of the articles have appeared in Scholastic, to which Dr Lawton was a contributing editor.

Booklist 46:127 D 1 '49

Kirkus 17:477 S 1 '49 170w

"Teen-agers who want to be 'well adjusted' will enjoy this. Recommended." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 60w

"As far as mental hygiene goes, there is good sound advice here, but it seems a bit skimpy when it comes to questions on race problems, sex, religion, and morals." Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1614 O 15 '49 100w

"Here is sound, straightforward, friendly advice on problems of human relationships by a practicing psychologist. . . Few young people will read this through at a sitting, but they will look up answers to questions closest to their own problems. It's a good book for libraries and for the home shelf." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 280w

LAZARSFELD, PAUL FELIX, and KENDALL, PATRICIA L. Radio listening in America; the people look at radio—again; report on a survey conducted by the Nat. opinion research center of the Univ. of Chicago, Clyde Hart, director. 178p $2.50 Prentice-Hall
791.4 Radio broadcasting 49-450

"Paul F. Lazarsfeld and Patricia Kendall interpret a 1947 nationwide survey conducted by the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago. The aim was to ascertain radio listeners' attitudes toward broadcasting. . . Asked to appraise common social institutions for the job each is supposed to do, the 3,529 persons interviewed rated radio slightly below the church but above the press and considerably above the schools. The survey uncovered a shift from wartime to peacetime radio listening. In an earlier study in 1945, two out of three persons said they got most of their news from the radio. Two years later, those interviewed favored the newspapers by a slight margin." (Survey) Index.

"The Research Center, located at the University of Chicago and directed by Clyde Hart, has developed techniques that seem reliable. Those interested had better read the book. It does not give many dogmatic or hard-and-fast answers, but it is helpful to any who want to criticize and improve the radio." W. E. G.
Christian Century 66:306 Mr 9 '49 200w

"The present volume serves no public purpose to the listener and perhaps was not intended to. It charts a little of what everybody who listens at all has the hang of, contains no bright declarative suggestions, and no vivid picture of what the 'better radio' (toward which it is hinted we are extending our ears) is going to be. . . I [am] allergic to set questions and anonymous answers, however tabulated, as likely to lead anywhere but to more of a status quo." Ernestine Evans
Commonweal 49:525 Mr 4 '49 330w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:552 Ap 1 '49 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 24 '49 140w

School & Society 69:358 My 14 '49 40w

"Polls may be unpopular after their failure during the last election, but the survey 'Radio Listening in America' gives an accurate picture of the radio audience. Without repeating the error of election polls in trying to predict behavior, Lazarsfeld and Kendall make a second contribution to a pulse-taking of the radio audience." S. B. S.

Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 130w

Reviewed by Hillier Krieghbaum
Survey 85:179 Mr '49 200w

LAZARSFELD, PAUL FELIX, and STANTON, FRANK NICHOLAS, eds. Communications research, 1948-1949. (Columbia univ. Bur. of applied social res. Publications) 332p $4.50 Harper

380 Communication and traffic

"Three major sections—'American Mass Media in Action,' 'Progress in Communications Research,' and 'Mass Media Abroad'—provide a framework for the eight articles contributed by various authors. Included are studies of comic books and children; radio programming; characteristics of the radio audience; the 'role' of the newspaper in the community; magazine reading; reactions to prejudiced cartoons; communication behavior and influence in a local community; and broadcasting in Russia." (Am Soc R) Index.

"Here is required reading for all specialists in communications. Parts of it, moreover, can be recommended to the general social scientist. . . Special mention should be made of three of these studies. 'The Analysis of Deviant Cases in Communication Research' and 'Patterns of Influence' (the latter by Merton) should be of interest to all social scientists by reason of their theoretical discussions. And the study of 'Domestic Broadcasting in the U.S.S.R.' is probably the finest analysis of that subject yet published."

+ Am Soc R 14:569 Ag '49 200w

"As a collection of significant research papers, this first volume of what should be a useful series will be welcomed by students of mass communications as a stimulating addition to the literature on the subject." A. M. Lee

+ Ann Am Acad 265:216 S '49 440w

Booklist 45:347 Je 15 '49

"Interesting though perhaps for a specialized audience. The whole subject of public opinion testing is before the bar of public opinion; perhaps this makes a positive contribution to what it is achieving."

Kirkus 17:26 Ja 1 '49 170w

LAZARSFELD, PAUL FELIX, and others. People's choice; how the voter makes up his mind in a presidential campaign. 2d ed 178p $2.75 Columbia univ. press

324.73 Presidents (U.S.)—Election. Political parties—U.S. 48-8605

"First published in 1944 by Duell, Sloan and Pearce [Book Review Digest 1945] this book reports on the study by Lazarsfeld and his associates of how the voters in Erie county, Ohio, made up their minds in the Roosevelt-Willkie campaign of 1940. The present edition, a reprint of the original report apparently timed for the election year, is introduced by a new preface which presents in 20 pages a valuable general summary of fundamental problems in the field of communication research." Am Soc R

"The study is fundamental, but we need others of like character for verification purposes." C. A. M. Ewing

Am Pol Sci R 43:170 F '49 230w

"The preface should be read by everyone working in this field; it alone is worth the price of the book."

+ Am Soc R 13:792 D '48 90w

"Valuable panel study. . . Especially significant in the study are data on group compulsions during a campaign toward greater uniformity and homogeneity, concomitant with attitude change toward greater diversity and polarization in the community as a whole." A. M. Lee

+ Ann Am Acad 261:194 Ja '49 280w

Current Hist 16:101 F '49 40w

"It has all the qualities of a good whodunit as it penetrates the statistical record to find out how the voter behaves. . . But more than anything else, The People's Choice is important as a study of the things that sway the voter. More than half the voters have made their minds up before the nominating conventions." Harold Wolff

+ New Repub 119:23 Jl 19 '48 320w

Reviewed by Crawford Sensenig
Social Studies 40:274 O '49 320w

LEA, TOM. Brave bulls [title page painting and decorative drawings by the author]. 270p $3 Little

49-7577

The action of this novel about bull-fighters takes place in Mexico. The central figure is Luis Bello, a famous fighter. Luis' past life is reviewed in passing, but the focus is on one special fight. There for the first time Luis knows fear and shows it; but when the final moment comes he and his younger brother are conquerors. The author, who is a painter, was born in El Paso, and saw his first bull fight at the age of eight.

Booklist 45:254; 262 Ap 1 '49

"The physical action of the crucial fights at La Cuena is well and vividly realized—though one suspects slightly sentimentalized in its denouement. But Lea does make his point that we can never know great courage until we have had to overcome fear, and that in a successful demonstration of physical courage we receive our greatest emotional exhilaration." Emmett Dedmon

+ — Chicago Sun p8X Ap 17 '49 400w

"There is, within these covers, a tale of originality, freshness, and strong impact. . . In most cases, the book will make an impression and, in most cases, be read with interest. But there will recur the question as to whether this record of brutality, of extreme cruelty to men and animals, this completely inhuman practice of bullfighting, justifies the skill which Mr. Tom Lea has devoted to it." Margaret Williamson

Christian Science Monitor p18 My 6 '49 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"An extraordinary and very unusual book, but a book nonetheless which will take some degree of salesmanship to overcome the idea a good many readers would have that a book about bullfighting might appeal to someone else—but not to them. I confess I should have been in that category before Hemingway broke down my resistance. But Tom Lea does something Hemingway never did for me; he takes me inside the minds of the people intimately connected with bull fighting. . . Don't overlook this."

+ Kirkus 17:93 F 15 '49 210w

"Whether one approves of bullfighting or not, this is an excellent book. . . Very well done with feeling and simplicity." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 100w

"A tale set down with the dazzling colors of Mexico, with the intense emotion of a man who has seen and—more important—has respected what he is writing about; who has the artist's eye for movement and spectacle and the perception that looks through that spectacle to its mysterious essence. For 'The Brave Bulls' is, as any real story of bullfighting must be, primarily a story of death." J. K. Hutchens

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 24 '49 800w

"Read as a straight story, this is a vivid, intense, colorful narrative, with its technical details impressively accurate. It is bullfighting from the inside, the way it looks to the people who make it a profession, and not even Ernest Hemingway at his best has ever done a better job of getting the whole thing on paper, including the lingo." Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 24 '49 450w

LEA, TOM—Continued

"One of the most dramatic and impassioned fictional treatments of bullfighting that have so far appeared—in English, anyway. . . In addition to his spirited words about the fascination of the great Latin pastime, the author has provided a series of appropriate pen-and-ink decorations."

+ New Yorker 25:97 Ap 23 '49 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 17 '49 1650w

"This is a beautiful book. It is a distinguished book. Quite possibly it is a great book. Certainly it could be read at any time in history by readers of any nationality or cultural background and lose none of its depth, validity, or universal appeal and timelessness; and that is one of the profound tests of a great book." Louis Bromfield

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 Ap 23 '49 1100w

"'The Brave Bulls' is sometimes talky, sometimes technical. It is a well-told, plausible and colorful story, however." W. R. Manchester

+ — Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 300w

"Nobody has written as well as this about toros and toreros since Hemingway's Death in the Afternoon. Unlike Hemingway's masterpiece, which was part fine reporting and part esthetics, The Brave Bulls is a novel written up to the classic hilt, with the sweat of honest craftsmanship; it goes a long way toward being, like the corrida that is its climax, 'a combat without adornment, all tragedy, all truth.'"

+ Time 53:107 Ap 25 '49 650w

"Mr. Lea's pictures of the life of the bullfighters, of the methods used to breed and train bulls for bravery, and of the deadly action of the bull-ring are all good. The Brave Bulls is fun to read, even if it is not so substantial an achievement as Mr. Lea tried to make it." Orville Prescott

+ — Yale R n s 38:766 summer '49 230w

LEAF, MUNRO. Arithmetic can be fun [il. by the author]. 64p $1.75 Lippincott

511 Arithmetic—Juvenile literature 49-6793

"Some of the whys and hows of arithmetic—counting, addition, subtraction, telling time, reading the calendar, measurement, money. . . Ages 5-8." Booklist

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun O 15 '49 50w

"A worthwhile addition to any collection on elementary arithmetic." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 74:1761 N 15 '49 70w

"To tell the truth, we have all seen arithmetic practice books that look a lot like [Mr Leaf's] pages. But as you read, it is his words, his lively approach, the nonsensical little stories, the irresistibly funny pictures, like those of a clever child, that make this the most painless arithmetic ever invented. One can only hope that every child who is starting this horrible subject can have a copy." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 13 '49 180w

"Parents and teachers will appreciate the educationally sound technique used here. Six-to-9-year-olds enjoy the imaginative line sketches and the simple, entertaining style in which Mr. Leaf tells them about counting, measuring, adding and subtracting, and about money and telling time." A. L. Seekamp

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 220w

School & Society 70:240 O 8 '49 40w

LEAHY, FRANK WILLIAM. Notre Dame football; the T formation. 244p il $3; to schools $2.25 Prentice-Hall

796.33 Football 49-2554

"The head coach who has turned out outstanding college teams describes and diagrams in detail the system of play that he has developed so successfully. A book for coaches, players, and fans." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:45 O 1 '49

Reviewed by J. R. Hunt

Chicago Sun p8X S 18 '49 180w

Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 20w

"It was written, I gather, primarily for coaches; it is none the less quite valuable for anyone interested in watching football." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p10 O 9 '49 70w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 16 '49 550w

LEARSI, RUFUS, pseud. See Goldberg, I.

LEARY, FRANCIS W. This dark monarchy. 316p $3 Dutton

49-6694

"A horror tale, mild in the telling, that relates the story of Christine who rebels at her stepmother and one-time governess and subsequently murders her five-year-old half-brother. In prison, on trial and finally in a French convent after acquittal, Christine struggles with her knowledge of the deed." Library J

"'This Dark Monarchy' is written at an emotional pitch that is all but exhausting. Seldom have I seen hysteria so completely sustained. And yet that pitch was the only proper pitch. Ordinarily, witchcraft does not interest me but I found this curious novel fascinating." V. P. Hass

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 6 '49 420w

"A heavy, brutal, sinister Gothic tale."

— Kirkus 17:408 Ag 1 '49 160w

"Not a strong picture of an insane mind; however, the author has succeeded in creating a shadowy and bewildering personality which reaches its denouement in suicide." M. P. McKay

Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 80w

"A first novel by an American author, 'This Dark Monarchy' is an arresting minor work, not alone because of the polish with which it is written or the skill with which the rural Somerset background and the flavor of Paris in 1860 are conveyed. Some of its situations and conversations come perilously near being ludicrous, there is high color as well as mannerism, and the narrative is maintained throughout at extreme emotional tension. Yet the tortured personality of the twenty-year-old heroine is concrete and credible." Iris Barry

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 16 '49 500w

"Mr. Leary is an excellent writer, able to do full justice to the hideous experiences, physical and mental, through which Christine passes on her dark, doomed journey. There are scenes which, taken from their context, would be masterpieces of beauty and horror intermingled. One flaw in this engrossing book is that Mr. Leary's approach to Christine, while frequently sympathetic, is entirely external." Jane Cobb

+ — N Y Times p44 N 27 '49 230w

New Yorker 25:162 N 19 '49 100w

Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ja 14 '50 110w

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 130w

LEAVIS, FRANK RAYMOND. Education and the university; a sketch for an 'English school.' 171p $2.75 Stewart

378.01 Education, Higher 49-7704

"Gives to American readers five papers published, under the same title, in England in 1943, with a sixth paper now added. The author's suggestion for the winning of unity resembles in external form that of the Experimental College. A good program, he thinks, might be constructed by combining studies of several related cultural episodes. But those studies, he contends, should be primarily literary. Not too clearly, he tells us that the discipline of literature would make use of 'all other subjects.' 'The point is,' he says, 'that everyone would have been required to come to fairly close terms—the work must be thorough enough to justify that claim—with other fields of study, other trained approaches and other disciplines, than the literary.' " New Repub

---

"As the reviewer attempts to grasp the meaning of this undeveloped idea, he is, first of all, impressed by the vigor and sanity of the writer's own theory and practice of literary criticism. Leavis is saying something which deserves, and is getting, serious consideration. The long and strenuous campaign of Scrutiny is winning ground. And one cannot help wishing that, either at Cambridge or elsewhere, Leavis might be given the chance—and the heavy burden—of transforming his notion into a concrete plan of teaching procedures. One wonders what it would be like. . . But, second, the evidence presented does not make clear that the 'discipline of literature' is adequate to the task which Leavis assigns it." Alexander Meiklejohn

New Repub 120:24 My 2 '49 750w

School & Society 69:287 Ap 16 '49 80w

LEAVIS, FRANK RAYMOND. Great tradition: George Eliot, Henry James, Joseph Conrad. 266p $4.50 Stewart

823.09 Eliot, George, pseud. of Mrs Mary Ann (Evans) Cross. Conrad, Joseph. James, Henry. English fiction 49-557

Essays, many of them reprinted from Scrutiny, in which the English critic attempts to demonstrate his belief that the works of Jane Austen, George Eliot, Henry James, and Joseph Conrad have a common heritage. Following a first chapter devoted to a study of "the great tradition," he traces the works of Eliot, James and Conrad from early stages to maturity, and closes with an analytic study of Dickens' Hard Times. "Dr. Leavis suggests a persuasive parallel in Daniel Deronda and The Portrait of a Lady, adding, however: that James's 'thought of himself as attempting a variation on George Eliot's theme, seems to me very unlikely.' Further, the stature of the writers is a claim which, having been made, can be safely left to the novels to argue for themselves." (New Repub) No index.

Reviewed by Chester Duncan

Canadian Forum 29:44 My '49 350w

"'The idea of establishing links is commendable but, in this instance, does not quite come off, for Mr. Leavis fails to make clear just what he means by 'the great tradition.' That it implies work of technical excellence, sensitive awareness of life, and highly developed moral feeling is evident; but beyond that the critic does not go. The result is a book unsatisfactory to the reader who is left with no concrete premises as points of departure." J. L. Bradley

Christian Science Monitor p16 F 9 '49 310w

"This is a salutary book. Its canons, being exacting, are also exclusive, and there will undoubtedly be many readers to make a case for novelists to whom the author, at best, gives a bouquet only back-handedly (though they are given more freely than some have come to expect of him: there is even a posy for Charlotte). Fewer readers will be able to dissent from its central, very reasonable thesis, which, properly considered, is a stringent and invigorating challenge to them to tighten the bolts on what Dr. Leavis would call their 'critical apparatus.' " A. M. P.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 4 '49 390w

"Mr. Leavis has been called an unattractive critic, and it is clear that he enjoys neither a polished style nor a serene soul. But Leavis is not simply nasty. Quite properly he suspects mere polish. Moreover, he thinks deeply, feels obliged to believe what he thinks, and does not care to be laughed out of his opinions by the casual irresponsibility that passes for moderation, urbanity, and good fellowship. Mr. Leavis is tough and querulous because he wants to rouse his opponents out of a sleepy gentility that accepts everything and demands nothing. Accordingly, the only valid criticism of Mr. Leavis's attitude is that it ill serves his ends. . . Mr. Leavis's critical judgments are similar to his manners: brusque and direct, concerned mainly with the right and wrong of a thing, and not bothered by shades, tones, or mere conventions." Joseph Kraft

Nation 168:279 Mr 5 '49 650w

"A book wide in range and at the same time refreshingly specific. Lest something less than justice be done, it must be said that not only does the book provide a corrective to 'the inertia of conventional valuating' of the novelists considered, but it is one of the very few first-rate works on the art of fiction." John Farrelly

+ New Repub 120:25 F 14 '49 950w

"The most exciting and possibly the most important book on the English novel to appear in the last three decades." Herbert Barrows

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 24 '49 1150w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling

New Yorker 25:98 S 24 '49 1300w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones

Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 16 '49 600w

"Most of these studies were written at different times for periodical publication, and this may perhaps account for a certain shapelessness in the book as a whole. More unfortunate is the lack of balance caused by omitting any detailed study of Jane Austen, who clearly has a central importance in the whole discussion. It is hardly sufficient to refer the reader to articles, however valuable, in the back files of Scrutiny. . . Dr. Leavis is sometimes inclined to rely too much upon the reader's catching his tone of voice, and to concede too little to those unfamiliar with his assumption and methods. . . It is to be hoped, however, that superficial mannerisms and errors of tact will not blind readers to real merits. Such an urgent concern to see the novel fulfilling its highest potentialities, such an awareness of the responsibilities of criticism, and so delicate a sense of discrimination between genuine imaginative grasp and its counterfeit—these form a combination of qualities rare at any time and vitally important to-day. In The Great Tradition it is hardly too much to say that Dr. Leavis has thrown more light upon the aims and methods of the novel than any previous critic."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p104 F 12 '49 3150w

LEAVITT, DOROTHY. Adventure on the Potomac. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 229p il $2.75 Little

49-10194

"A newly elected Congressman from Connecticut takes his family to Washington. Susan, Gary, and Joel Cabitor explore the city. This is the story of what they saw and the people whom they met." (Sat R of Lit) For grades six to eight.

Booklist 46:69 O 15 '49

"Thin plot and even a bit of a mystery worked into a story really designed to paint life in Washington. . . But it all seems fairly artificial and contrived. Use with lower and middle teens."

Kirkus 17:359 Jl 15 '49 100w

"Try this on your favorite teen-ager who is having trouble with American history."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 13 '49 120w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 30w

LEAVITT, HELEN SEWALL, and FREEMAN, WARREN SAMUEL. Recordings for the elementary school. 127p $2.40 Durrell

371.333 Phonograph records. Phonograph in education 49-8583

"In this book we have tried to show how records can be used in the teaching of elementary school subjects. Music, of course, is the subject most dependent on the use of records, but we have tried to show how records can be of service to instructors of other subjects as well as in the elementary school curriculum. The book contains chapters describing the illustrative possibilities of records and certain suggestions for teaching procedures in the various subject fields." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

LEAVITT, H. S.—Continued

Booklist 45:348 Je 15 '49

"So far as I know, Recordings for the Elementary School is the only book of its kind, and it should be a boon to all elementary school teachers. For that matter, a good deal of the material it contains would also be useful to junior high and high school teachers. The greatest strength of the book is its practicality. . . The philosophical approach to the subject is weak in that it tends to regard music too much as an experience imposed from without, not felt from within." Virginia Cunningham
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:474 Je '49 320w

LE CORBUSIER, pseud. See Jeanneret-Gris, C. E.

LEDERMAN, MINNA, ed. Stravinsky in the theatre; ed. with an introduction. 228p il $3.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy

B or 92 Stravinskii, Igor Fedorovich 49-9691

Articles, photographs, and musical scores in brief make up this study of the place of Stravinsky and his music in the theater in Europe and the United States. The articles are by critics, musicians, and others who have known and worked with Stravinsky. The book includes lists of stage productions of Stravinsky's works and of recordings of his music; and a bibliography, but no index.

Booklist 45:375 Jl 1 '49

"Of special value, in a specialist's market, largely ballet."
Kirkus 17:133 Mr 1 '49 140w

"Brilliantly written as well as being authoritative. Recommended for theatre, dance, and music collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1100 Ag '49 40w

"Credit for the excellent editorial job is due Minna Lederman, whose hand formerly guided Modern Music, the valuable magazine which unfortunately has ceased publication. But Stravinsky in the Theatre indicates that Miss Lederman has partly compensated for the loss in this new expression of her devotion to modern music. She has coped well with the difficult problem of making a book out of an assemblage of heterogeneous articles, which is not always the most successful form of treating a topic. Here, in a most readable and provocative volume, the artistic atmosphere of Stravinsky is really caught." Frederick Dorian
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:617 S '49 750w

"Would be of great value for its illustrations alone. The numerous photographs and drawings provide an extremely rich Stravinsky iconography, with portraits and caricatures of the composer at various stages of his career, ballet sets, costume plates, and other things of that sort. Despite its title, the book is not by any means limited to the theatrical aspects of Stravinsky's work. Some of the papers it contains seem to be quite old, but that only adds to their flavor and interest." Alfred Frankenstein
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 18 '49 360w

" 'Stravinsky in the Theatre' has the necessary objectivity for a study of such a controversial figure and is a timely re-evaluation of his art. . . Minna Lederman displays her editorial talents to advantage in her astute choice of contributors. Included among these are Ernest Ansermet, Aaron Copland, Darius Milhaud, George Balanchine and Pierre Monteux. The text is enhanced by rare photographs and reproductions of designs and sketches by Picasso, Chagall, Tchelitchev and Cocteau." H. G. Lawrence
+ N Y Times p6 My 29 '49 450w

Reviewed by Cecil Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:29 Je 25 '49 1000w

LEE, ALFRED MCCLUNG, and LEE, MRS ELIZABETH (BRIANT), eds. Social problems in America: a source book. 741p maps $4 Holt

301.153 Social problems. U.S.—Social conditions 49-2921

" 'As nearly as possible, the list of social problems taken up in this volume contains those most frequently studied in college courses in social problems, social pathology, social disorganization, and social deviation.' A book of readings tailored to this end inevitably has the distinguishing characteristics of the problems course as it is now taught; encyclopedic coverage, discursiveness, and fragmentation of both fact and theory in consequence. . . Each of the 26 chapters is headed by a brief foreword which attempts to give continuity to the readings which follow. An extensive list of questions, special projects and reports, together with cross-references to standard texts tie up the topic neatly before leaving it." (Am Soc R) Bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by F. N. House
Am J Soc 55:233 S '49 300w

"Given [the book's] limitations, it is hard to see how the Lees could have done a better job. . . A variety of other sources are tapped, and for quality of writing and freshness of interest these are often superior. . . Probably no volume of this sort can compete in pedagogical effectiveness with a well chosen reserve shelf. But in the many colleges and universities where this is a physical impossibility, these readings should be a welcome addition to the course text."
+ Am Soc R 14:701 O '49 200w
Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

LEE, MRS EDNA L. (MOONEY). Queen bee. 295p $3 Appleton 49-4526

The "queen bee" is Eva Avery, a beautiful, selfish, ruthless woman, who holding to the faith that she can get anything she wants, brings ruin into the lives of her husband, niece, and sister-in-law, and finally accomplishes her own destruction.

"A tale of popular appeal, as was her earlier The Web of Days (which reached a million copies) even though it nearly overbalances in its unbelievable exaggeration of the central character."
+ — Kirkus 17:332 Jl 1 '49 160w

"Miss Lee has laid her scene in her native Atlanta, but for all her attention to regionalism it could as well be New York or San Francisco. More local color and a clearer relationship between characters and setting would have brought the novel into focus and made it a whole equal to its separate parts." J. P. Quehl
+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 14 '49 270w
San Francisco Chronicle p26 S 25 '49 60w

"The self-centered woman, insatiable in her search for admiration, is not new in fiction. Around her can be written terrifying stories of destruction. But 'The Queen Bee' is a melodrama without the dimensions of reality and since the ill-starred Averys never come to life sufficiently to move us either to pity or horror, their final tragedy seems futile and irresponsible, no more." Pamela Taylor
— Sat R of Lit 32:20 S 24 '49 500w

LEE, ERNEST GEORGE (EDWARD DODGE, pseud). Mass man and religion. 160p $2.50 Harper

270.8 Religion. Christianity 49-7232

"This book [which] won the £10,000 United Nations literary competition analyzes the causes of division among men and prescribes some medicine for unifying them. The author emphasizes the terrible loneliness of modern man, who has banished God from the heavens and has found no cement in his secular culture to bind him to his fellow man. Mr. Lee contends that both the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches as organized institutions have failed to exercise a moral force great enough to control human society. He criticizes the inadequacy of the myths of liberal Protestantism, Pauline Calvinism, and Catholicism." Christian Century

---

Reviewed by Neil Crawford
Christian Century 66:272 Mr 2 '49 370w

"There is meat on every page; it is too bad to bury material of such significance and pertinence in turgid language. Nevertheless, read it." J. H. Titus
+ — Churchman 163:15 Je 1 '49 190w

"This book by an English editor, novelist, and lay theologian was the prize-winning essay in the United Nations Literary Competition. There is a forthrightness and vitality about it that commands serious attention, for it deals with a hackneyed theme in a fresh and arresting fashion." E. E. Aubrey
+ Crozer Q 26:265 Jl '49 750w

"Mr Lee writes about mass man, but for mass man, too. He does not despise those who are so reduced in their spiritual condition, but by appeal and argument presents their condition to them. The language is simple, direct and forceful, the manner sincere. It is the spiritual autobiography not only of Mr Lee, but also of all of us who have tried to preserve a sense of value in a mass civilisation." J. C. G. Burton
+ Hibbert J 46:94 O '47 1100w

"The book is closely written. Theologians, philosophers and students of Christian ethics will find it illuminating as will intellectuals in and out of the churches."
+ Kirkus 17:140 Mr 15 '49 150w

LEE, IRVING J., ed. Language of wisdom and folly. 361p $4 Harper
149.9 Semantics 49-8257

"Background readings in semantics." The selections are arranged under nine headings: The recognition of words as such; The functions and purposes of language in use; Matters of fact, fiction and opinion; Questions and answers; The ambiguous word; The recognition of differences; Verbal fascination; The structural patterns and implications of a language; Escape from verbalism. Presupposes a knowledge of the terminology of science and semantics. Index.

Booklist 45:290 My 1 '49

Reviewed by Bess Sondel
Chicago Sun p8X My 22 '49 320w

"I do not recommend these readings as a beginner's course in semantics. The beginner must take the course elsewhere. Then the book will serve to reinforce what he has learned and give it a rich background. To a reader already familiar with the subject it offers new perspectives and hours of enjoyment." Stuart Chase
+ Nation 168:535 My 7 '49 850w

Reviewed by Oliver Selfridge and Walter Pitts
N Y Times p38 Je 19 '49 800w

LEE, KATHRYN DEAN, and BURCHWOOD, KATHARINE TYLER. Art, then and now; picture ed: Marion Howe. 392p il pl $6; text ed $4.50 Appleton
709 Art—History 49-10104

"[This volume] is designed to be an introduction to ancient, medieval, and modern art with emphasis upon brevity, clarity, and readability of text. The material for this book has been gathered from many sources. . . What the authors have attempted is to consider the manifestations of art as they have appeared at various times and in various places and to relate them one to another, so that the reader may attain an overview of the art of the world." (Pref) Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:61 O 15 '49

"Attractive, succinct introduction to ancient, medieval and modern art, copiously illustrated."
+ Bookmark 9:53 D '49 30w

"The readable text is supplemented by a splendid selection of first-rate photographs, Marion Howe having served as picture-editor. Indeed this volume is worth its price as a picture-book alone." Dorothy Adlow
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 10 '49 80w

"Since the appearance of Salomon Reinach's 'Apollo' early in this century, we have been offered many one-volume histories of art, most of them written by members of college art departments for use in their classes. This first-rate example of the species should prove useful not only to college students but to anyone seeking a concise, lucid, and readable survey from ancient times to the present." L. R. Sander
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 O 1 '49 90w
School & Society 70:64 Je 23 '49 20w
School Arts 49:2a D '49 60w

LEE, OTIS HAMILTON. Existence and inquiry; a study of thought in the modern world. 323p $4 Univ. of Chicago press
190 Philosophy 49-952

"The purpose of this book is to tell how philosophy came to be where it is today, to discuss its present state, and to offer suggestions for its future advance. The author interprets philosophy from Descartes to the present in terms of the subject of inquiry into existence. He divides the development into three periods. The first period regarded the world as a structure of elements and developed the method of analysis as the basic form of inquiry. . . The second period discovered process and formulated dialectic as the logic required to deal with existence conceived in the new terms. . . Contemporary philosophy is dealt with in terms of pragmatism." (Publisher's note) Index.

"Existence and Inquiry is a posthumous book. It gives much evidence of the effectiveness of it's author's teaching powers, but still more evidence of his remarkable gift for synthesis and sympathetic penetration. American philosophy will be poorer for his untimely death, but will take courage from his own genuine and growing wisdom." Roger Hazelton
+ Christian Century 66:1455 D '49 500w

"This volume serves a double purpose: it is both an introduction to types of philosophic thought and a critique of current philosophy. A beginning student could read and understand most of it and would acquire from it a sense not only of the methods of philosophic thinking, but also of the difficulties, ambiguities, and confusions which are actually troublesome today. . . It is evident from this book even to those who did not know him personally that in Otis Lee's untimely death, Vassar College suffered the loss of an extraordinary teacher whose acumen and candor led his students to appreciate the real problems of philosophy in all their seriousness and intricacies without bewildering them or making methodology an end in itself. If it were nothing else, this volume would be a noteworthy demonstration that it is possible to reduce philosophy to its elements without making it elementary." H. W. Schneider
+ J Philos 46:675 O 13 '49 1250w
School & Society 69:118 F 12 '49 50w

"The book is the work of a learned and deeply brooding mind. It moves at a level of rarefied generality where the air is rather too thin for those not already familiar with the positions discussed. It is Professor Lee's first book and, unhappily, his last, for he died while it was in press."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:172 Je '49 220w

LEE, ROY STUART. Freud and Christianity. 204p $2.50 Wyn

201 Psychology, Religious. Psychoanalysis. Freud, Sigmund 49-4504

An attempt to show "how psychoanalysis can cleanse Christianity of non-Christian elements and can give it deeper insights into the true qualities of human life." (Pref) Index.

"It is a book which will scarcely be acceptable in toto either to psychologists or religionists but many will find it interesting and suggestive."

+ — Kirkus 17:298 Je 15 '49 180w

"Modest, simple and fairly convincing." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:1027 Jl '49 130w

"In a clear, brief, well-written book Dr. Lee has fulfilled a long felt want by showing that the teachings of psychoanalysis have something to contribute to the religious life of the average, normal person." Smiley Blanton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 23 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

N Y Times p23 Jl 10 '49 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 4 '49 250w

LEE, MRS RUTH WEBB. Price guide to pattern glass. 331p $3.50 Barrows

748.2 Glassware—Prices 49-10004

A guide to evaluating American pattern glass, with prices based on sales of the last three years. Line drawings of a sample of the pattern accompanies each price list. "The old forms listed in this book are all taken from Early American Pressed Glass [Book Review Digest 1932] and the plate numbers refer to that volume in which the designs are fully illustrated and the authentic history of each pattern is given whenever such information has been available." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 46:10 S 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '49

LEE, MRS RUTH (WILE), and BOLENDER, LOUISE T. Fashions in furnishings; a guidepost to decorating [prepared] with G. A. Lenoir; foreword by Jean Austin; line drawings by Helen Edell Sloan. (Whittlesey house publication) 214p il $5.95; text ed $4.50 McGraw

747 House decoration 48-11182

"Basic information on architectural styles, furniture construction and styles, color, fabrics, floor coverings, bedding, and accessories, with advice on tastefully combining them in living quarters suited to individual needs. Useful to users in various income brackets." Booklist

Booklist 45:154 Ja 1 '49

"Clear style, large type, and matte-finished paper make for good readability. On the whole, the volume is very attractive in appearance. . . Both authors are well known in the field of interior decoration." Evelyn Metzger

+ J Home Econ 41:214 Ap '49 300w

LEE, THORNE. Monster of Lazy Hook. 221p $2.50 Duell

49-4280

Detective story.

"A quiet, intelligent performance."

+ Kirkus 17:160 Mr 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 19 '49 90w

"Some of the agonizing detection seems pretty elementary, but the plot at least is off the beaten track." Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p29 My 22 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 3 '49 50w

LEE, TINA. Fun with paper dolls; designed by [the author] pictures and charts by Manning Lee from models by the author. 64p $2.25 Doubleday

649.55 Paper work. Dolls 49-11023

"Instructions for making a family of paper dolls and their clothes, various characters and kinds of paper dolls, stands and showcases, a stage, and doll houses. Includes ideas on care of paper dolls, games to play with them, and on paper doll collections. . . Grades 4-6." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:86 N 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p17 D 10 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:545 N '49 60w

Kirkus 17:551 O 1 '49 200w

"Another gay, attractive little book in the tradition of previous titles by this author. . . They are not too difficult for older children to make and with the assistance of adults some can be made by younger children. Recommended for all ages." J. S. Watts

+ Library J 74:1761 N 15 '49 60w

"A delightful book for the little girl who takes her paper dolls seriously."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:50 N 12 '49 20w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Games with playing cards; plus tricks and stunts. 224p il $2.95 Watts, F.

795 Cards. Card tricks 49-11895

Contains a brief history of playing cards, card games old and new, and some card tricks and stunts. For beginners young or old. Index.

Booklist 46:143 D 15 '49

"Good family fun." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun p17 D 10 '49 40w

"Adults will find some new ones here, and yet the diagrams and instructions are simple and clear enough for the early teens."

+ Kirkus 17:476 S 1 '49 70w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Jobs that take you places. 240p $3 McKay

371.425 Occupations 49-7067

A survey of the many ways the ambitious, travel-loving young American might find of earning a livelihood in foreign lands and the United States territories. The style is informal and the advice is from time to time enforced by an illustrative "case history." Chapter bibliographies. No index.

Booklist 45:160 Ja 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '49

"Useful to counselors in high schools and junior colleges." E. A. Groves

Library J 74:316 F 15 '49 90w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Papercraft; how to make toys, favors, and useful articles; drawings by Jessie Robinson. 83p $2.50 Lippincott

745.54 Paper work . 49-8339

A book of paper amusements: paper folding and cutting, paper toys and games and useful articles, stunts with paper. For grades 6-9.

Booklist 45:285 Ap 15 '49

"If you are planning a party, there are directions for making at least a dozen articles that can be used as favors. The directions are easy to follow, the diagrams large and clear. 'Papercraft' will provide fun and entertainment for a rainy day or for holiday time." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 12 '49 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"Recommended for ages 7-12." J. S. Watts

+ Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 60w

"The very clear descriptions and drawings, the terse yet pleasant style, the variety of objects—some easy to make, some harder—all make the book appealing. . . Fun for the family to share, with a minimum of tools and materials." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 8 '49 190w

N Y Times p19 Jl 31 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:50 N 12 '49 20w

LEEMING, JOSEPH, and GLEESON, MARGARET. Complete book of showers and engagement parties, by Jo-Ann Leeming [pseud]; il. by Helen Disbrow. 241p $2 Garden City pub. co.

395 Entertaining 48-6559

"Although ostensibly a collection of parties for the about-to-be married there are also suggestions for wedding anniversaries, baby showers, and other parties where gifts are involved, a check list of household items suitable for gifts, and a section of simple party recipes. Many of the plans could be used for other occasions." Booklist

Booklist 44:296 My 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '48

LEEMING, JOSEPH, and LEEMING, AVERY. It's easy to make music; how to play all the popular instruments. 204p il $3 Watts, F.

780.77 Music—Instruction and study 48-9665

Directions for the amateur musician, describing in text and diagrams, the fundamentals of learning to play a number of musical instruments. Includes the piano, and various string, wind, and percussion instruments. There is a section called "Maybe it isn't music," in which the author discusses such things as: The comb kazoo; A pin piano; A rubber band harp; Home-made cymbals; Tin can tom toms; Musical washboards; A rubber band banjo.

Booklist 45:143 D 15 '48

Commonweal 51:193 N 18 '49 40w

"Clear, well-written, practical book for the young enthusiastic reader on how to learn to play many musical instruments. . . Recommended for ages 12-16." S. J. Robinson

+ Library J 74:134 Ja 15 '49 80w

LEEPA, ALLEN. Challenge of modern art; with a foreword by Herbert Read. 256p il pl $6 Beechhurst press

701.16 Art, Modern 49-6449

Attempts to explain modern art for the layman. Gives the artist's point of view. Illustrated with nearly 200 diagrams and reproductions. Index of names.

Booklist 46:61 O 15 '49

"We do not agree with the author or with Herbert Read, who wrote the foreword, that modern art 'has made a decisive break with tradition,' and that it demands new criteria of judgment. If our critical canon is on a good broad basis, we can find modern art not only relevant to modern life, but stemming organically from a branch of tradition. The sponsors of modern art do not strengthen their position by underestimating the art of the past. The leaders of the modern movement are more humble in their approach to the past than their votaries."

Christian Science Monitor p15 N 10 '49 210w

"Mr. Leepa has constructed an edifice that a future lot of barbarians, however well dressed or unkempt, will not so easily penetrate with their shots. His illustrations, both as diagrams and out-and-out reproductions, repeatedly bolster the text and further insure its value as a sure guide through the thicket of present misunderstandings." Jerome Mellquist

+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ja 7 '50 700w

Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 190w

LE GALLIENNE, EVA. Flossie and Bossie; pictures by Garth Williams. 210p $2 Harper 49-11812

"It is the story of two bantam hens, both of whom 'longed to be mothers.' Flossie, gentle, dowdy, is an outrageously patient Griselda. Bossie, the barnyard beauty, is vain, arrogant and a bully. How each according to her temperament bears the trials and joys of motherhood may be read as a sly comment on similar human types. It is, indeed, a moral story in the purest Victorian sense." N Y Times

"A charming, skillful story. . . There is something happening on every page, the book is written with tenderness and humor, and the underlying satire will be a blessed relief to parents reading it aloud. Miss Le Gallienne's gift for employing vivid contrast is guaranteed to grip even the most laggard attention." Jane Cobb

+ Atlantic 184:103 D '49 140w

Kirkus 17:468 S 1 '49 150w

"The story is disappointing. It is more adult than childlike in its theme of female jealousies among the hens, and the world of comfortably feathered hens becomes too often an adult world of bitterness and frustration." F. C. Sayers

— Library J 74:1530 O 15 '49 130w

"This is an exasperating book because there is so much in it that is funny and appealing and so much that is flagrantly sentimental. . . Miss Le Gallienne writes gracefully, creating a barnyard world that is amusing, satirical and sometimes sophisticated, but her effect is often spoiled by a cloying sweetness. Whatever the faults of the story, there is not a false note in Garth Williams' inspired illustrations." E. L. B.

— + N Y Times p20 N 13 '49 140w

"There is humor and great charm in this chronicle. It is not for the very young. It is for everyone of any age who enjoys sensitive writing and gentle satire. Garth Williams has contributed drawings that illustrate the characters to perfection." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:23 N 12 '49 300w

LEGER, ALEXIS SAINT-LEGER (ST-JOHN PERSE, pseud). Exile, and other poems; tr. by Denis Devlin. bilingual ed 166p $5 Pantheon bks.

841 49-3310

"St.-John Perse, who is Alexis Léger, once Permanent Secretary of the French Foreign Office under the Third Republic and now a resident of Washington is fortunate in his translator. . . This collection of four recent (1941-44) poems, written in the United States, was first published in Buenos Aires, in 1944. It is here beautifully presented, in the original French and the English counterparts." (New Yorker) Contains essays on Perse by Archibald MacLeish, Roger Caillois and Alain Bosquet, and a bibliography.

"Excellent translations. . . Perse's [poetry] is rank and lush, a tropical luxuriance of vocabulary even when his subject is the snow, the line proliferating, creeping and stretching out, it seems to me at times, beyond the intensity of poetry into oratory or rhapsodic prose." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 169:44 Jl 9 '49 140w

"With all its faults, the translation is well worth having, and the presence of the original text is a check upon it. The book is well designed, ample in format, with good print and appropriately generous margins. Here is unmistakably great verse for a little clan, but, it is to be hoped for a growing one." Babette Deutsch

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ag 14 '49 900w

Reviewed by Herbert Barrows

N Y Times p4 Jl 17 '49 550w

+ New Yorker 25:119 My 21 '49 160w

"The study of St.-John Perse is rewarding. It responds better than most contemporary work to our constant need of redefining the meaning of poetry, of rediscovering its value. The reading of such a work as Exile demonstrates how, to logical thought, poetry opposes analogical thought. In the creation of his metaphors, the poet draws from himself and from his familiar world analogies and 'correspondences.' The symbol is a synthesis of his experience, and the word, in becoming a symbol, reveals its full power and force. St.-John Perse proves once again that poetry is the metaphorical expression of the universe. Even when there is no palpable symbol in his verse, his lyricism seems to be urging him toward its discovery, prophesying the presence of the symbol about to be uttered." Wallace Fowlie

LEGER, A. St-L.—Continued
+ Poetry 74:343 S '49 1400w

"No one more than Perse detests the literary ritual. No one more than he despises the comparison of incomparable beings. Nevertheless it is impossible to put down this book without asking oneself where among living men—in what nation or what tongue—a poet equal to this poet may be found." Archibald MacLeish
+ Sat R of Lit 32:8 Jl 16 '49 1550w

"'Exile,' will be only his third to appear in this country. It is by far the most sumptuous of his American books. . . Perse's great talent lies in the vast torrent and range of his imagery. It is brilliantly conveyed by the present translator, although it is inevitable that one may differ with him on various passages." Eugene Davidson
+ Yale R n s 38:727 summer '49 420w

LEGMAN, GERSHON. Love and death; a study in censorship. 95p pa $1 Breaking point, 858 Hornaday pl, N.Y. 60

804 Sex in literature. Literature, Immoral. Comic books, strips, etc. 49-10742

"The argument of Love & Death is that censorship laws are exerting a dangerously immoral effect on American popular literature. Forbidden to describe the act of sex, authors have been seeking an equally thrilling substitute. They have found that the only substitute complete in itself is sadism in its various literary forms." New Repub

"The case he makes is entirely negative but readers (particularly voracious consumers of the detective story) ought to examine this telling if unsound, often meanly brilliant, wise-foolish and intemperate essay." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 16 '49 250w

"Legman is the sort of critic who likes to ride his argument over fences and into the ground. . . He is often blind to social meanings; indeed, he seems to imply that sex and its substitute, death, are the only valid themes for literature. . . Of the four long chapters in Love & Death, the most impressive is the one that deals with comic books." Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 121:18 O 10 '49 1600w

LE GRAND, pseud. See Henderson, Le G.

LEHR, LEWIS C. Cookbook for men [with recipes contributed by fifty famous men; pen and ink il. by Leon Winik]. 208p $3.75 Didier pubs.

641.5 Cookery 49-5238

"A collection of recipes by 50 famous men, including some contributions by the author from his experience as a male adventurer in the field of amateur cookery where females usually hold undisputed sway." (Springf'd Republican) Index to recipes.

"Some sound recipes turn up. I know they're good because you can find most of them in Mrs. Beeton or Fanny Farmer or The Good Housekeeping Cook Book. But, for my taste at least, there's a bit too much of the just-a-scream kind of thing." J. H. Jackson
— San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 2 '49 370w

"The choicest offering by the author is his characteristic humor, seen at its best in what he says at the expense of the women of the kitchen and about placing the male amateurs on a pedestal from which they may easily tumble." J. W. Culver
+ Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 300w

LEIFFER, MURRAY HOWARD. Effective city church. 232p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

260 Church 49-8632

"The purpose of this book is to acquaint the reader with the patterns of city growth, the influences of urbanization on people and the church, and methods by which the church may develop its program effectively to reach people in different types of city communities. It is concerned with the interrelations between the community and the church to the end that the Christian message may be more adequately presented and that churches may not only be well placed but also maintain so vital a relation to the community that they will not need to withdraw from it when population changes." (Foreword) Selected reading list. Index.

"For anyone who knows the long period of time which Dr. Leiffer has spent in the study of the city church, and the way in which he has worked with many groups which have been studying these churches, regret can be expressed only that he was compelled by his publishers to make his volume so brief. . . It is certain that any man in this field would want more space than has been allocated here. Some books should be shorter; this book should have been longer. All pastors, church workers and community workers are under obligation to Dr. Leiffer for his careful, painstaking work." S. C. Kincheloe
+ Christian Century 66:917 Ag 3 '49 1000w

"To anyone concerned with the interrelation between population trends and institutional life this book will prove interesting. Its story will be most useful to city planners and church extension boards." R. D. Hershey
Crozer Q 26:278 Jl '49 400w

LEIGH, PERCIVAL. God's Englishmen. See Doyle, R.

LEIGHTON, ALEXANDER HAMILTON. Human relations in a changing world; observations on the use of the social sciences. 354p $4.50 Dutton

301.8 Social psychology. Psychological warfare. World War, 1939-1945—Japan 49-8753

"The foundation of this book is a particular experience in applying some of the principles and methods of social science, especially cultural anthropology, sociology and psychiatry, to the wartime analysis of Japanese morale. The work was done for policy makers in the Government who needed to know about the nature of Japanese morale, its strength, what changes were occurring and what, if anything, could be achieved by psychological warfare. After victory it became possible to re-examine many of the conclusions with the benefit of later information; early diagnoses were compared with how things did, in fact, turn out. Now, due to the lifting of security restrictions, it is possible to report the result." (Foreword) Index.

Reviewed by R. C. Angell
Am J Soc 55:305 N '49 800w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Am Soc R 14:559 Ag '49 1000w

"A book which is timely because it concerns the current problems, readable because it is well written, and important because it supplies the background of a great debate in the social science field." J. S. Roucek
+ Ann Am Acad 264:189 Jl '49 290w

"Mr. Leighton is basically a man of action, despite his M.A. and M.D. and his respected position among academic social scientists. He can also express himself plainly. These facts make his book valuable for the interested layman as well as for the social scientist, for whom it is an indispensable landmark." R. D. MacCann

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 7 '49 550w

"While aimed at the general reader, this would appeal first to those interested and working in this field."

+ Kirkus 17:104 F 15 '49 150w

Nation 168:690 Je 18 '49 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 11 '49 250w

"Dr. Leighton believes profoundly in social science as an effective instrument for human welfare. The present book is an important contribution to that end." F. E. Merrill

+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 Jl 30 '49 700w

"This reviewer is enthusiastic about 'Human Relations in a Changing World.' It is, I believe, a prophetic pronouncement and a sign of hope. Dr. Leighton is a forerunner of the new breed of social scientists who will sooner or later come to realize that they cannot assist in solving important human problems unless they merge their specialized disciplines in a concerted attack. He is himself trained in three disciplines—sociology, anthropology, and psychiatry—and has thus given evidence that the process of integration begins at home. And, although he seems to wish to disavow it, he is moving towards becoming also a social philosopher." E. C. Lindeman

+ Survey 85:332 Je '49 1900w

LEIGHTON, ISABEL (MRS HERBERT LEDERER), ed. Aspirin age, 1919-1941 [written by Samuel Hopkins Adams, and others]. 491p $3.95 Simon & Schuster

917.3 U.S.—Social life and customs 49-9336

Twenty-two articles on headline personalities and events between the two world wars. Partial contents: The forgotten men of Versailles, by Harry Hansen; The noble experiment of Izzie and Moe, by Herbert Asbury; Aimee Semple McPherson: "Sunlight in my soul", by Carey McWilliams; The timely death of President Harding, by S. H. Adams; My fights with Jack Dempsey, by Gene Tunney; The last days of Sacco and Vanzetti, by Phil Stong; The Lindbergh legends, by John Lardner; The crash—and what it meant, by Thurman Arnold; The first hundred days of the New Deal, by A. M. Schlesinger, Jr; Full house: My life with the Dionnes, by Keith Munro; The peculiar fate of the Morro Castle, by William McFee; The man on the ledge, by Joel Sayre; The night the Martians came, by Charles Jackson; Pearl Harbor Sunday: the end of an era, by Jonathan Daniels.

"The book, though failing to satisfy the deeper needs, does satisfy on a number of counts. The events dealt with are various and fascinating, the writing is of the highest journalistic excellence, and the choice of writer-to-subject is, with very few exceptions, intelligent and even spritely." Harvey Breit

+ — Atlantic 184:82 S '49 650w

Booklist 45:381; 390 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by Herman Kogan

+ Chicago Sun Ag 22 '49 550w

Christian Century 66:1013 Ag 31 '49 390w

"The trouble with 'The Aspirin Age' is that as a book it has no point of view, no underlying thread of unity. Its contributors are not in fact collaborators but strangers accidentally brought together between its covers. However interesting the individual selections may be, there is nothing that holds them together. . . In comparison with such passing-show studies of the same period as 'Only Yesterday' or 'The Long Week-End,' Miss Leighton's book fails to give any coherent picture of the period it claims to represent." Francis Russell

+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 20 '49 550w

"As various as the Only Yesterday series, but a more thorough exploration of the period. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 140w

"Easy reading and pleasantly nostalgic although one could wish that the selection of subjects had been a little less haphazard and the treatment a little less superficial."

+ Nation 169:189 Ag 20 '49 100w

"To compose her book Miss Leighton assembled no less than twenty-two writers, each and every one of whom can write! It is a performance almost, if not quite unprecedented in symposium-making, and should be hailed with glad cries by the critics." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ag 21 '49 1200w

"This is a surprisingly good book, and when I say 'surprisingly,' I mean just that. . . I will not pretend that all twenty-two outstanding writers write outstandingly, but enough of them do to make the book very much worth your while. Several of them, I think, deal with their material in really definitive fashion." R. H. Rovere

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 28 '49 800w

New Yorker 25:111 O 8 '49 140w

"Instead of a bits-and-pieces job, this is a new and fresh appraisal of the two decades of headaches the U.S. weathered between one World War and the next. The editor chose her contributors carefully and shrewdly assigning each the task he was best qualified to do. Out of the 22 chapters in the book, only four have appeared in print before this; the others are entirely new. The result is a vigorous and significant look at the high lights of those two decades. . . It all makes first-rate reading, too, as many thousands will discover." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 28 '49 1300w

"Naturally, it is uneven, and lacking in any particular viewpoint; for the same reason it has a lively and commendable variety. . . Inevitably in a book of this sort some customers will complain. . . Even so, every piece in the book is readable, and some have much vigor and flavor." Stanley Walker

+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ag 27 '49 700w

"Although this remarkably fine book has a rather flippant name, it is actually serious in tone and quite intelligently critical. Some of the articles are so derisive, in fact, it almost seems they were picked as show pieces, but a few minutes of reminiscence over the inflation-depression era proves there actually wasn't much that could be praised. This comes close to being a 'must' book for Americans interested in their country, and might well be a college textbook for study of a wild and fascinating age." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 360w

LEMAITRE, GEORGES EDOUARD. Beaumarchais. 362p $4 Knopf

B or 92 Beaumarchais, Pierre Augustin Caron de 49-8727

"A biography of the author of 'The Barber of Seville' and 'The Marriage of Figaro,' who was also a secret agent for Louis XV; a thorn in the ample flesh of Louis XVI and a favorite of his queen; an international financier and intriguer, who lent important sums to the American Revolutionists; a literary precursor of the French Revolution, who worked for the Terror and almost lost his head in it; a witty pamphleteer; and, of course, a lover." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. M. Brace

Am Hist R 55:124 O '49 550w

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 9 '49 800w

"It is excellent reading."

+ Current Hist 16:344 Je '49 50w

"A good steady seller, this, for not only is it thrilling adventure, but Beaumarchais' important role in the birth of the United States gives him significance here."

+ Kirkus 17:197 Ap 1 '49 250w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 40w

LEMAITRE, G. E.—Continued

Reviewed by René Blanc-Roos

Nation 168:715 Je 25 '49 430w

"Upon finishing Mr. Lemaitre's packed, rapid and lucid account of Beaumarchais's career, the reader will be impelled to exclaim, 'What a biography it would make!' For a biography of this great Frenchman, in the sense of imbuing the man and his times with life, neither Mr. Lemaitre nor, so far as I know, any one else has written. . . The details and the gaiety, everything to give flesh, blood and verisimilitude to the wildest episodes, can be found in the sources Mr. Lemaitre lists in his bibliography. . . But considering the wealth of sources to be drawn upon, there seems little excuse for tantalizing the reader with a scenario when he could be given a drama." Marvin Lowenthal

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 22 '49 1600w

"An excellent short life of Beaumarchais by a French scholar and man of letters now established in a professorship at Leland Stanford University and known already to American readers for his work on modern French literature. . . It is very easy for a biographer to get bogged down in details of such a life, to make plots and counter-plots seem more obscure, and love affairs more repetitious, than they were in reality. . . Professor Lemaitre does avoid this pitfall. The most involved episodes of Beaumarchais' life . . . all are disentangled calmly, clearly, judiciously." Crane Brinton

+ N Y Times p6 My 8 '49 600w

"M. Lemaitre has handled Beaumarchais's intricate and exciting life story very well, relying solely on verified sources and letting the astonishing richness and variety of the subject matter speak for itself."

+ New Yorker 25:114 My 21 '49 120w

"There is reason to believe that this biography presents a legendary Beaumarchais based on Beaumarchais' own version of the legend. Even so, Lemaitre is less gullible than some earlier biographers. In two regards at least, he detects in Beaumarchais a deep-dyed, if fascinating, scoundrel—the first, when he connived, unsuccessfully, with one of his mistresses to seduce the Spanish King Charles III, and the other, when he got handsomely remunerated for trailing a blackmailer who existed chiefly in his own imagination. . . Perhaps the finest tribute to Beaumarchais' personality is nothing his biographers say about him explicitly but rather the unstinted admiration he excites in them. No matter how much of a rascal he may have been, he seems to have been able to win apologists generation after generation." Louis Gottschalk

Sat R of Lit 32:15 My 21 '49 800w

LENCZOWSKI, GEORGE. Russia and the West in Iran, 1918-1948; a study in big-power rivalry. 383p il maps $4.50 Cornell univ. press

955 Russia—Foreign relations—Persia. U.S.—Foreign relations—Persia. Persia—Politics and government. Persia—Foreign relations
49-5043

"The purpose of this book is to acquaint the reader with Big-Power rivalry in Iran between 1918 and 1948. . . The conflict between Soviet Russia and the West is the essence of this study. The author has attempted to describe and analyze, on the one hand, the program and techniques of Soviet expansion, which constitute a novelty in the traditional pattern of diplomacy, and, on the other, the methods employed by the West to counteract this expansion. . . The author derived his information from four main sources. These were the original documents, such as treaties, Comintern publications, and memoirs; the existing literature covering various aspects of the period here investigated; the press, both Iranian and Western; and personal observations made during the author's three-year stay in Iran in the crucial period between 1942 and 1945." (Pref) Index.

Current Hist 17:161 S '49 100w

"'Addressed to the general public but with an eye to the specialist,' this book is a valuable study of Big-Power rivalry. . . Recommended." Kurt Schwerin

+ Library J 74:1098 Ag '49 130w

"Mr. Lenczowski gives Americans who do not understand our State Department's interest in a country so 'remote' and 'unimportant' a really solid and comprehensive account of recent Iranian diplomatic history." Clifton Daniel

+ N Y Times p9 S 4 '49 650w

"Although Iran has receded into the background of the world's news during the last two years, it is unlikely to remain there for long, and Professor Lenczowski's study will be of value to those who wish to follow the next stage in the development of this crucial area. From the point of view of the historian of international relations, however, the book has its limitations, perhaps inevitable ones. . . Nevertheless, the book's virtues outweigh its faults which are those of omission rather than of commission—although one wonders where Professor Lenczowski got the idea that Theodore Rothstein, the first Soviet envoy to Iran, was 'a former editor of the Manchester Guardian.'" Max Beloff

+ — Pol Sci Q 64:611 D '49 1000w

"For American readers, the analysis of the American role in Iran is particularly illuminating. Professor Lenczowski believes that the development of an American policy for Iran has come just in time to support that country's determination to run her own affairs. The ins and outs of her efforts to do so during the last 30 years are set down here in sufficient detail to make this book serviceable not only to general readers but to foreign-affairs specialists as well." Georgiana Stevens

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 420w

L'ENGLE, MADELEINE. And both were young. 232p $2.50 Lothrop
49-9068

A novel for older girls. The scene is a girls' boarding school in Switzerland, not long after the war. The heroine, an American girl, who has lost her mother and cannot always travel with her artist father, enters the school grim with determination to hate it. The story is of Philippa's first year, and its happy ending.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

"Philippa's adjustment to the new life is well handled. . . Her friendship with the French boy, Paul, and the element of mystery in their meetings, enrich a story which is above the average in its lack of sentimentality and its understanding of school life." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 11 '49 230w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 25:283 Jl '49 70w

"Different types of girls and teachers are skillfully portrayed against a background of winter sports and a fine feeling for the beauty of the country." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:293 Jl '49 110w

"A well-written story. Occasional emotional abysses provide a touch of melodrama. . . To many girls the setting will be fascinating, and the boarding school background is usually a popular one."

+ — Kirkus 17:253 My 15 '49 100w

"Some adult overtones, but realistic picture of boarding-school life and atmosphere of romance will appeal to thoughtful girls of 12 and up, in spite of the unfortunate title. Recommended." R. O. Bostwick

+ Library J 74:1036 Jl '49 90w

"This is a book for more thoughtful girls of twelve and over. Flip is the sort of gauche, unhappy heroine they will like, and her change in personality is believable. It is the talent inherited from her father that brings her popularity at last, doing caricatures for all the school. It is that artistic sense too which gives us the beauty of the Alpine country through her eyes. The title seems to me not at all alluring, but the book will give youngsters who have longed to go abroad to school a pretty honest picture of that not always so gay experience." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 12 '49 270w

"There are poignant overtones in this story, for the time is today, and the shadows cast by the war give depth and veracity to Philippa's enlarging perspective. The ending seems a little anti-climactic, following as it does a dramatic and significant episode. But teen-aged girls will find this a satisfying story, sensitive, understanding and stimulating." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 190w

"The author has succeeded in the difficult art of writing a convincing story of a girl's inner growth in which adventure and romance are interwoven." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 Ja 21 '50 210w

LENS, SIDNEY. Left, right and center; conflicting forces in American labor. 445p $4 Regnery.

331.88 Trade unions. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 49-8858

An organizational director of the Building Service Employees Union (AFL) of Chicago makes a plea for more progressive-minded American labor leaders to unite against the "big brass" in order to revitalize the labor movement. Bibliography. Index.

"This book is an excellent example of an ideological approach to the politics of labor." Avery Leiserson
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:831 Ag '49 1000w

"Occasionally an American labor leader writes a provocative, interesting, and frank volume on the labor movement. Such volumes invariably are packed full of practical observations derived from militant, sacrificial experiences. These are what give them the quality of authenticity and command a readers interest. The present volume is a worthy addition to the list of such books." G. S. Watkins
+ Ann Am Acad 265:211 S '49 1050w

Booklist 45:348 Je 15 '49

"Though controversial in many of its tenets, this book qualifies, I think, as recommended reading for union and industry partisans and for students of labor problems generally. Well-organized and simply written, it describes the dynamics of the American labor movement today against a wide back-drop of historical development." James Peneff
+ Chicago Sun My 23 '49 400w

"Because of its discursiveness and lack of clear organization, not of much use to the general reader. Will be of interest to specialists in and out of labor; on this score recommended." R. E. Kingery
— + Library J 74:816 My 15 '49 130w

"Too often [the author's] account of things is disjointed and desultory. His book would be much more valuable if he gave his references —or even said when he was speaking of his own knowledge,—and his bibliography contains too many secondary authorities. What a book the Webbs or the Hammonds could have made of this material!" P. J. M.
— + Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 8 '49 270w

"Sidney Lens has produced a provocative, thoroughly readable estimate of American labor at the crossroads. His book will stand worthily alongside the output of such familiar trade-union historians as Dr. David Saposs, Herbert Harris, and the late Edward Levinson." Oliver Pilat
+ Nation 168:714 Je 25 '49 600w

"Mr. Lens, standing on the extreme left, is at his best in portraying the shortcomings and excesses of labor bureaucracy and 'business unionism,' and in pursuing his thesis that Stalinism is not revolutionary but reactionary. . . Mr. Lens is mistaken when he claims that the issue between John L. Lewis and William Green, which led to formation of the CIO, was not over objectives but method; that both agreed on the need for 'circumscribing the increasing militancy of the men in the basic industries.' Nothing could be farther from fact, so far as Lewis was concerned. He is also incorrect in saying that 'no one in the AFL and CIO was under any illusions that Lewis, Murray, Hillman and Dubinsky were out to build a radically new kind of movement.' Nothing less was their intention. One must not minimize, as does Mr. Lens, the 'assist' given labor by a sympathetic New Deal, by the Wagner Act and by the beneficial rulings of the National Labor Relations Board, belated as they too frequently were." Louis Stark
— + N Y Times p29 Je 5 '49 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '49 250w

"This thoughtful volume bears abundant evidence of the unusual courage of its author, as well as of his extensive knowledge of labor relations and his deep insight into the problems that American unions face. While the book shows the results of wide reading, the author draws liberally for illustrative material upon his own practical experience. . . Unfortunately some errors of fact have crept into the book. Thus the 60,000,000 gainfully employed are treated as though all were employes, and Robert Owen is confused with his son, Robert Dale Owen." Joel Seidman
+ — Survey 85:495 S '49 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p524 Ag 12 '49 2450w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Cotton in my sack; il. by [the author]. 191p $2.50 Lippincott

49-3884

This story of Joanda is a picture of the life lived by the cotton-pickers of Arkansas, sometimes with money to buy necessities and "purties" in town on Saturday, sometimes with little or nothing. During the course of this story Joanda and her parents come to an understanding of a better way of living.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

"Vivid, sympathetic picture of the joys and struggles of the Arkansas cotton pickers."
+ Bookmark 9:7 O '49 30w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 10 '49 450w

"One of her best books. Joanda, her family and friends may be imaginary people but they will seem real to all boys and girls who read about them in this fine regional story." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:413 S '49 80w

"Another fine regional story. . . Suitable for intermediate grades and up. Special appeal for girls." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 70w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 40w

"The author deserves praise for putting down this unusual picture from the children's angle, and also for reflecting honestly the whole adult and economic picture, mixing the good with the bad, fun with sorrow, and bringing into the story, besides the work, the school, teachers, books, the boss, the store, the bank account—giving a rounded world, not a slanted view." L. S. Behtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 28 '49 360w

"Written at the request of Arkansas country children, this book is a revealing account of life among the sharecroppers, tenants and farm owners of the Cotton Belt. While gathering material for the story Miss Lenski lived among the farm families, picking cotton with the children, listening to their stories, and making on-the-spot sketches of characteristic scenes. The result is a book equally as authentic and understanding as the author's five preceding regional stories." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p13 S 4 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:177 D 3 '49 60w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 20w

"The author through regional stories is doing a great work of drawing the children of America together in understanding and friendship.

LENSKI, LOIS—Continued
This is about the cotton picking children in Arkansas who work alongside their parents."
School & Society 70:78 Jl 30 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 190w
Wis Lib Bul p11 N '49

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Cowboy Small [il. by the author]. [48p] $1 Oxford 49-8493

A picture book describing the life of a cowboy. End paper illustrations show accoutrements of both cowboy and horse. There is also a one-page glossary. For ages 4-7.

Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49
Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:209 D '49 30w

"The success of Mr. Small's story as a hard working cow puncher lies half in the pictures. They are simple in line, full of strictly accurate detail, popping with action." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun Ap 23 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:285 Jl '49 50w
Kirkus 17:206 Ap 15 '49 100w

"Will be useful and undoubtedly popular with small boys." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 74:826 My 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 8 '49 130w

"This is as clear a picture of ranch life as any would-be Roy Rogers could wish." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p34 Ap 24 '49 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

LEONARD, CHARLES L., pseud. See Heberden, M. V.

LEONARD, IRVING ALBERT. Books of the brave; being an account of books and of men in the Spanish conquest and settlement of the sixteenth-century New World. 381p il $5 Harvard univ. press
980 America—Discovery and exploration—Spanish. Latin America—Intellectual life. Book industries and trade. Spanish literature—History and criticism 49-9836

"This is a book about books, particularly books of fiction. The chief characters of this story are not the heroes of the Spanish conquest and settlement of the sixteenth-century New World but, rather, the books which they and their descendants knew and read, the entertaining writings which fired the imaginations of these pioneers, stimulated their unparalleled achievements, amused their restless leisure, and consoled their bitter disillusionment. . . This book about books of the Conquistador and his decendants strives to serve a threefold purpose: first, to explore the possible influence of a popular form of contemporary literature on the mind, attitudes, and actions of these sixteenth-century Spaniards; second, to describe the mechanics of the associated book trade in the New World, including the related legislation and routines of shipping and conveying these wares to purchasers in the Western Hemisphere; and third, to indicate the universal diffusion of Spanish literary culture throughout the expanded Hispanic world of that great age." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:31 S 15 '49

"The idea of showing the development of New Spain through the literature of the times would appear to bear promise. Unfortunately, either the records are too sparse or the author has failed to give enough detail about the plots and contents, except in a general way. . . The character of the Spanish literature imported into colonies and its influences, if any, on colonists and natives could be told in fewer pages." Roy Hillbrook
— + Current Hist 17:160 S '49 550w

"Mr Leonard gives many pages of analysis and documentation; inventories from ships' lists, booklists from Mexico and Peru and Manila. The casual reader gets the substance of the argument from the first ninety pages. If he stays by the book to its end, he will emerge a bit breathless but awed by the patient thoroughness with which Mr Leonard has prepared one more important brief against the 'Black Legend.' " Hubert Herring
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p58 S 25 '49 1150w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
N Y Times p5 Ja 1 '50 470w
Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 7 '49 240w

LEONARDO DA VINCI. Paragone; a comparison of the arts; with an introd. and English tr. by Irma A. Richter. 112p il $5.50 Oxford
751 Painting 49-8814

"Foreshadowing the development of comparative criticism this re-issue of notes by Leonardo on painting and science; painting and poetry; painting, poetry and music; and painting and sculpture are proof that his 'mind was able to grasp the unity of the arts.' Volume in Italian with parallel translation into English and with comment by the learned editor makes available a wealth of material which otherwise must be searched for in out-of-print volumes. Index and bibliography are combined and there are a dozen illustrations." Library J

"Definitely useful to advanced students." A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1821 D 1 '49 90w

"Students of the period will find the book of great interest, and Miss Richter's introduction, editing, and translation are very well done, but it is possible that the ordinary reader may feel some sympathy for Michelangelo when he speaks of 'these disputes that waste more time than is needed to make a statue.' " S. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 19 '49 150w

"Leonardo's Paragone has been out of print for some time, and this new scholarly edition is to be welcomed." Michael Swan
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:466 O 22 '49 1050w

"The really signal virtue of this new and valuable edition of 'Paragone' is that, apart from accurate and sympathetic translation, it not only interprets and stresses the authors' ideas by letting them speak for themselves; it proves his profundity and genius by introducing later corroborations without suffocating Leonardo beneath the adulation and uncritical sentimentality which so many of his biographers and interpreters have lavished upon him—as if he ever needed such lily-gilding." A. M. Frankfurter
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 24 '49 1050w

"Since the author's main purpose was to rerank the artist a little higher in the scale—something long since achieved, of course—a good deal of his argument has the disadvantage of hammering away at a fait accompli. But the book is valuable for the oblique view it offers of the conditions of its day, as well as for the insight it gives into the astute and flexible mind of its author."
+ — New Yorker 25:103 My 28 '49 180w

"Miss Richter's introductory essay is an important contribution to Da Vinci literature. . . Miss Richter's translation could not easily be improved upon."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 O 1 '49 90w
Times [London] Lit Sup p376 Je 10 '49 800w

LEOPOLD, ALDO. Sand County almanac; and, Sketches here and there; il. by Charles W. Schwartz. 226p $3.50 Oxford
574 Natural history—U.S. 49-11164

"There are some who can live without wild things, and some who cannot. These essays are the delights and dilemmas of one who cannot." (Foreword) The essays in the first section of the book are arranged by months, showing the changes in nature during a whole year, as observed by the author on his Wisconsin farm. In the other two sections are personal experiences ranging over a wide expanse of country and forty years in time. The author was a leader in the conservation movement.

"If, by some incredible stroke of fortune, I could have had my choice of authoring any book published in America in 1949, this is the book I would have chosen. 'A Sand County Almanac' is one of the most beautiful, heart-warming and important nature books to appear in years." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 25 '49 450w

"Aldo Leopold signed and dated the foreword of this book only a little more than a month before his death last year. We may count ourselves lucky to have this final testament of a man who was not only an expert in forestry, ecology and game management, but an exceptionally sensitive and subtle appreciator and communicator of earth-values. . . Every reading countryman will want to add this thoughtful and lovely book to his library." Alan Devoe
+ Commonweal 51:77 O 28 '49 270w
Kirkus 17:567 O 1 '49 170w

"By a born naturalist, true sportsman and able writer. Delightful essays. . . Author develops a fine concept of conservation, not economic, but basically ethical, urging need for an ecological conscience. Recommended."
+ Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 169:628 D 24 '49 550w

"There will be many readers who will be contented with the charming nature vignettes and the attractive illustrations, closing the book hurriedly when they discover the knotty philosophical problem in the last part. That will be a pity, for these ideas were the man's life, and because of them we can place this book on the shelf that holds the writings of Thoreau and John Muir." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 27 '49 490w
Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

LERNER, MAX. Actions and passions; notes on the multiple revolution of our time. 367p $3.50 Simon & Schuster
973.918 U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Politics and government—1945-. U.S.—Economic conditions 49-7554

"Two hundred journalistic essays and commentaries, originally published in the New York newspaper PM-Star, November 1944 to August 1948 and chosen by Lerner as illuminating (from a liberal point of view) our culture and ethics, our economics and politics, and our place among the world powers. Because of his sense of event coupled with his understanding in the breadth and depth of sociology, Lerner rightly regards and presents this material in more permanent form as 'footnotes' to recent history." Library J

Booklist 45:223 Mr 1 '49
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 13 '49 140w
Christian Century 66:790 Je 29 '49 280w

"Max Lerner's fluency, brilliance, vitality, and range are adornments of the American scene. Incisive and daring, impatient yet not irresponsible, he is perhaps the most widely read and certainly the most articulate of the writers who are trying to redefine the liberal tradition in terms of the undeniable advance of collectivism. Perhaps because they come out of a daily newspaper grind, the pieces in this book are not so valuable as some of his earlier writings for the liberal weeklies. But even these free-wheeling comments show, as he hoped, that events can be dealt with within the 'large frame of cultural values and as part of the long campaign of history.'" R. D. MacCann
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 750w

"There are few editorial writers who challenge one's thinking so frequently as Lerner. Much of this volume bears the acid test of re-reading."
+ Kirkus 16:641 D 1 '48 150w

"Current interest probably clusters close to New York; long range value should be weighed for collections elsewhere. Subject indexed." R. E. Kingery
Library J 74:380 Mr 1 '49 140w
Nation 168:368 Mr 26 '49 40w

"Actions and Passions is akin to the documentary literature that formed a special genre in the 1930's, and that, when they are as well done as this one, are invaluable source books for the social historian. But meanwhile we should all take another look at the national scene, and there is no other recent book that has described it so well." Maxwell Geismar
+ New Repub 121:19 Ag 8 '49 550w

"If the present collection did not justify itself on its merits, it would still have an interest as a summing up and a reminder of an adventure in journalism. . . But there remains here a distillation of many brave hopes, and of an honorable effort to make journalism humane, intelligent, sprightly and at the same time close to the people." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 3 '49 550w

"Most of the essays stand up remarkably well on re-examination. They reflect a rich and well-stocked mind, wide-ranging interests and warm human sympathies. As is to be expected, Lerner writes to the beat of the news, but the search for the topical is never permitted to become an end in itself. The ideological compass by which he steers is his faith in democratic collectivism, but it is a faith which is neither doctrinaire nor inflexible." Merle Fainsod
+ N Y Times p13 Mr 20 '49 410w

"The whole is an 'Only Yesterday' written by a man who sees sermons in stones and qualified good in everything, but it might be a bewildering book to one seeking enlightenment on the revolution of our time."
+ New Yorker 25:123 Ap 9 '49 140w

"Whatever the response to this book and his forthcoming 'America as a Civilization,' Max Lerner's role as an interpreter of events helps fill a great need in America. His scholarly background and hard-hitting journalism combine to bridge the gap between the layman and the academician. Not many writers can successfully discuss Toynbee, Stalin, Byrnes, Wallace, the Marshall Plan, the Brooklyn-Durocher episode and the 1948 political conventions, and do it in a refreshingly literary but concise layman's language." R. H. U.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 My 1 '49 400w

"Radical in tone, it is only occasionally shrill. Repetitious in theme, it is not dull. It is further evidence of Mr. Lerner's sincere belief in the all-time righteousness of the left-wing cause; and it is another exhibition of his mastery of the dialectic of the revolutionary cult. . . In all fairness it should be remarked that the book is one of the less strident works of its genre, and that as an expression of faith by a warm human being it is an acceptable addition to contemporary social-political literature." Wellington Roe
Sat R of Lit 32:15 Mr 26 '49 800w
School & Society 69:300 Ap 23 '49 90w

LESLIE, JEAN. Man who held five aces. 222p $2.25 Doubleday 49-10470

Detective story.

"Pace will probably keep readers busy at it in spite of contradictions of character." James Sandoe
+ — Chicago Sun S 23 '49 150w
Kirkus 17:341 Jl 1 '49 70w

"The publishers label it hard-boiled, presumably because it is set in the Chandler territory and deals with the proprietors of a gambling casino. But there is nothing of the tough school either in Miss Leslie's quietly intelligent writing or in the sympathetic probing of her police detective, who is more interested in truths of character than in a conviction. Deftly plotted and warmly written, psychologically convincing without falling into glibly mechanistic jargon, the book still has one major flaw; that Miss Leslie's first-person style never quite rings true in the mouth of her embittered gambler hero." A. B.

LESLIE, JEAN—Continued
+ — N Y Times p43 S 11 '49 230w

"Fair."
Sat R of Lit 32:38 O 1 '49 40w

LE SUEUR, MERIDEL. Nancy Hanks of Wilderness road; a story of Abraham Lincoln's mother; il. by Betty Alden. 88p $2.50 Knopf
B or 92 Lincoln, Nancy (Hanks)—Juvenile literature 49-48002

A biography of Nancy Hanks, told in the form of a folk legend made up of incidents remembered by the narrator's grandmother and Dennis Hanks, Nancy's cousin.

"This story of Lincoln's mother has in it the feel of the wilderness, the frontier that was his background, the richness of the relationship—too soon ended—between Nancy Hanks Lincoln and her small son—and a realistic, vigorous portrait of his father. So much to the good. To the good, also, is the saga quality in the telling, though now and again there's a repetitiveness characteristic of folk legends that results in a sense of indirection, confusion. What I take exception to, however, is the acceptance of the role of Nancy Hanks' mother, as 'the talk of the town.' "
+ — Kirkus 17:510 S 15 '49 100w

"A beautiful story. . . Recommended." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 80w

"Lyric style prevails and turns the brief biography into a poetic elegy. Printed in large type for younger children, it is better suited to the emotional understanding of those at least eleven or twelve years old. It also takes a more adult reader to follow the conversational throw-backs of the grandmother and great uncle whose memories of the Lincolns were told to the author. They add charm, but not clarity. However, the final effect is touching and memorable, whatever the age reader concerned. The pictures with their gay colors will attract young readers." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 6 '49 230w
San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 13 '49 110w

LETZ, HANS, comp. Music for the violin and viola. (Field of music) 107p $2.50 Rinehart
781.97 Violin music—Bibliography. Viola music—Bibliography 48-10152

"The material in this volume is presented in outline form under four sectional headings: (1) Violin and piano or violin alone; (2) A graded course of teaching material for the violin; (3) Viola and piano or viola alone; (4) Technical study material for the viola. In the first and third sections four columns of information appear—Composer (alphabetical order); Title, Key and Op.; Gr. (grade of technical difficulty); Remarks. Progressive teaching material for nine years of violin training and advanced study material for viola are listed in the second and fourth sections respectively." Music Lib Assn Notes

"How personal Mr. Letz's approach has been is revealed by comparing his list of violin music—which fills some 90 of the 107 pages of text—with a similar list found in Bachmann's An Encyclopedia of the Violin. Under the A's Mr. Letz lists works by 7 composers while Mr. Bachmann lists works by 57 composers; under B, Mr. Letz 15 composers, Mr. Bachmann 113; under C, Mr. Letz 7, Mr. Bachmann 55; and so on. . . Grading music solely on the basis of technical difficulties is always a questionable practice. . . The sections devoted to viola music are likewise incomplete and of doubtful value. As a matter of fact, there is little that can be said for this compilation other than that it represents one of many, many lists of works, accompanied by classified bits of information, which could be selected from the complete repertory." Joseph Kirshbaum
Music Lib Assn Notes 6:315 Mr '49 600w

"This is a useful little reference book. . . The compiler can speak with some authority since he has had many years experience as an instructor at the famed Juilliard School of Music, and his book should be of great use to teachers as well as performers in reminding them again of the great wealth of classical and modern compositions available for study and concert use." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 27 '49 120w

"I cannot believe that [it] will be of much real use except, perhaps, to teachers of limited musical culture. The listings are by no means exhaustive." Roland Gelatt
Sat R of Lit 32:62 Ja 22 '49 50w

LEVIN, DAN. Mask of glory. (Whittlesey house publication) 278p $3 McGraw 49-10408

"The brief career of Glen Manson, a son of Polish immigrants, who aspired to be a chemist, but who answered the call to glory and fulfilment of the Marine Corps, is the subject upon which the novel is focused. Following him inevitably from 'boot' camp to advanced training to combat—and death, the author reveals a compassionate, yet realistic, understanding of his hero." Library J

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

"All the four-letter words and assorted obscenities of men at war are here, closely interwoven with passages such as the one describing Glenn's reactions to a volume of Plato he picked up by chance aboard the troop transport. . . Many of the scenes of life and combat with the Marines are convincing, but neither Glenn nor any other of the leading people in the book emerges as a well-defined character. . . Whether discipline and restraint are necessary in the Marine Corps might be open to argument in some quarters, but Dan Levin will do better after this first novel if he learns they are basic to good literature." Paul Farrell
— + Commonweal 50:610 S 30 '49 450w

"A book primarily for a masculine audience which has not yet been jaded by war stories."
Kirkus 17:402 Ag 1 '49 180w

"For those who flinched at The Naked and the Dead, this work will probably also be unpalatable—for all others—recommended." A. J. Gaines
Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 100w

"The sympathy which Mr. Levin so obviously feels and so subtly expresses for these lost men gives 'Mask of Glory' a dimension of reality often missing from war books. He tells his story without dressing up the war in fancy excuses or surrounding his men with heroic auras, and this, one feels, is the way it was." Herbert Kupferberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p60 S 25 '49 750w

"In Dan Levin's first novel, 'Mask of Glory,' the strain shows. Not everywhere. At his high point Levin can use his hard, scraping words to reach a kind of tender poetry. His combat descriptions hit with the shock of truth. A test of fine writing is to make the reader feel the author's exact emotion, and here Levin succeeds brilliantly. You can smell the death of this war, taste the fear of it with a bitter sharpness." R. G. Martin
+ — N Y Times p36 O 16 '49 400w

"This fictional frontal assault on a Japanese-held Pacific island is distinguished by even more gore than was shed during a similar operation in Norman Mailer's 'The Naked and the Dead' and by as unglorified and penetrating a view of life in the Marine Corps as is likely to be written."

New Yorker 25:106 S 24 '49 120w

" 'Mask of Glory' becomes another war novel in which the author's observations of war, vividly and terrifyingly communicated, are placed at the service of a theme which does not grow organically out of the book. Glenn Manson, American Marine, does not succeed in being both man and symbol, because, as a man, he is insufficiently characterized, and, as a symbol, he is made to mean too many things. But his creator's account of the war in which he took part is memorable enough almost to redeem the novel." Milton Crane
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 O 1 '49 600w

LEVINE, MILTON ISRA, and SELIGMANN, JEAN HORTENSE. A baby is born; the story of how life begins; il. by Eloise Wilkin. 54p $1.50 Simon & Schuster

612.6 Reproduction. Sex instruction 49-9209

"A book for parents to read to younger children, of six to ten, written by two authorities in the fields of child psychology and sex education. It has been discussed with and approved by representatives of the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant clergy. It gives physiological facts, with pictures, about the egg, the inside of the mother's body, the sperm, the father's body; it compares animal and human parents; shows the baby growing in the uterus; very briefly describes the act of human birth; talks about growing up. Happy parenthood and family life are emphasized." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"Public health people and educators will be able to tell mothers, 'There is a new book that will help answer the "How did I get here?" questions.' Much credit for its attractiveness goes to Eloise Wilkin, artist, whose illustrations of babies and children are charming. It is written primarily for early elementary years. . . It is good to find the love of father and mother for each other and their wanting children emphasized. Depending on their cultural backgrounds some parents will find the book useful; others will not be able to use parts of it." D. B. Treat
Am J Pub Health 39:1590 D '49 380w

Booklist 45:378 Jl 1 '49

"Experience in connection with the City and Country School and the Bank Street schools in New York, has provided the basis of the method used in this book."
Kirkus 17:271 Je 1 '49 130w

"Excellent presentation of the facts of mating and the birth of a child, told simply and without sentimentality. A book to be used by parents and teachers or even by the child himself. . . Highly recommended." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 60w

"The facts should be given before adolescence, and for all hesitating parents, here is the easiest, clearest, least sentimental handling so far offered." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 29 '49 180w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p19 Jl 31 '49 290w

"The book . . . has already been tested on a group of children. Eloise Wilkin's attractive illustrations, which appear on every page, supplement the excellent text and help to make 'A Baby is Born' about the best book of its kind that has been published to date." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p6D Je 26 '49 270w

LEVINGER, MRS ELMA C. (EHRLICH). Albert Einstein. 174p il $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Einstein, Albert—Juvenile literature 49-8318

"This biography of the world's greatest living scientist is the story of a boy who hated school because he could not ask 'why' and of the man who, when asked to explain his theory of relativity, offered to play the violin which he felt sure his questioner would appreciate much more and understand much better." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:264 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p12 My 26 '49 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

"The approval and confirmation of Einstein's family have been given to this excellent and absorbing biography." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:218 My '49 80w

"Although simple, almost documentary in style, this serves as an adequate introduction."
Kirkus 17:87 F 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by F. L. Morrison
Library J 74:669 Ap 15 '49 110w

"To an adult reader at first the personal detail might seem irksome and undignified. Gradually, however, the picture becomes absorbing; the brief bit on 'E=MC²' deludes you into thinking you approach an understanding of relativity; the main themes are the great ones, moral, racial and international." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 8 '49 200w

"An excellent book. Her story is well organized and the characterization is strong. The bibliography and index add to the volume's value." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p14 My 29 '49 90w

"After starting out badly with an overfictionalized treatment of the early years (which, however, older children will probably not mind), the author builds up an absorbing portrait. . . The brief explanations of how his thinking revolutionized our concept of the world are satisfactory, too."
+ — New Yorker 25:186 D 3 '49 60w

"An awe-inspiring scientist becomes a very human being in a new biography of Albert Einstein, written for young people and handled so skillfully that adults will enjoy it too." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 24 '49 470w

Reviewed by W. G. Tyrrell
Sat R of Lit 32:35 Ag 13 '49 100w

Wis Lib Bul 45:69 Ap '49

LEVISON, JACOB JOSHUA. Home book of trees and shrubs. 2d ed rev enl 524p il $10 Knopf

635.976 Landscape gardening. Trees. Shrubs Agr49-415

"A complete guide to the design, planting, and care of the home grounds, with information on lawns, woodlands, flower borders, garden accessories and the identification of trees." (Subtitle) A revised and enlarged edition of a book which first appeared in 1940 (Book Review Digest 1940). Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:316 My 15 '49

Reviewed by R. S. Lemmon
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 7 '49 150w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 60w

LEVY, MARION JOSEPH. Family revolution in modern China; issued in cooperation with the Institute of Pacific relations. 390p $6 Harvard univ. press

392.3 Family. China—Social conditions 49-8876

"Description of the complex kinship structure of the Chinese family and its contemporary transitional stage." (Survey) Bibliography. Glossary of Chinese transliterations. Index.

"Levy's study is an important, substantial, and necessary contribution to knowledge in three fields: anthropology, sociology, and Sinology. As an example of interdisciplinary work it is of great interest. Levy has given us some lucid and valuable analyses of Chinese society; he has also raised questions which merely in their statement have indicated and illuminated new fields of inquiry." M. H. Fried

LEVY, M. J.—Continued

+ Am J Soc 55:306 N '49 1100w

"The organization of the book and the author's way of presentation will probably be appreciated more by professional sociologists than by the average intelligent reader. The style of the book is rather involved. It abounds in technical terms which are often not explained. The index is not elaborate enough to offer much guidance." Olga Lang

Ann Am Acad 265:199 S '49 420w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

LEWELLEN, JOHN BRYAN. You and atomic energy, and its wonderful uses; drawings by Lois Fisher. [56p] $1.50 Childrens press

541.2 Atomic energy—Juvenile literature 49-9764

"Cartoon-like drawings, diagrams, and nontechnical text outline the development of the atomic furnace, explain how atomic energy is released, and show how atomic power can be adapted to peacetime needs. An appendix includes an illustrated glossary of terms related to atomic energy and a periodic table of elements, atomic numbers, and symbols. Technical adviser on the book was Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg. Grades 6-8." Booklist

---

Booklist 45:400 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Jl 30 '49 50w

Horn Bk 25:421 S '49 70w

"Highly recommended for ages 12-16." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 74:1106 Ag '49 40w

"The book is labeled for those from ten years up. It is impossible to guess what would be its real audience. Many adults would be grateful for it and would want to know no more than it tells. On the other hand, many high school pupils have gone much farther than this into the subject." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 S 4 '49 200w

Reviewed by Israel Light
Social Educ 13:349 N '49 150w

LEWIS, ALUN. In the green tree; with a pref. by A. L. Rowse; a sonnet by Vernon Watkins; drawings by John Petts. 141p il $2.50 Macmillan

828 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. [49-10170]

"Brings together six of Alun Lewis' stories which have hitherto appeared only in periodicals. . . Even more important than the stories are the forty-odd letters here collected, written from India and Burma to Lewis' wife and parents in the months preceding his death in March, 1944, at the age of 28. The book also includes a preface by A. L. Rowse, a postscript by Gwyn Jones, a sonnet by Vernon Watkins and drawings by John Petts." N Y Times

---

Booklist 46:155 Ja 1 '50

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 37:619 Je 11 '49 1200w

"To readers who know his earlier volume, 'The Last Inspection' (1942), that will be enough to recommend this book. They are good stories, moving from the England of 'The Last Inspection' to India. Customarily they select a moment of temporary equilibrium, before action or between actions before civilian problems have been settled or after these have had time to fall into perspective." Herbert Barrows

+ N Y Times p5 S 4 '49 850w

"There is no self-pity in this poet, and very little in his letters that calls for pity. But he is writing to his wife and to his parents, and of course he does not wish them to be anxious for him. In the stories and poems the comment is sharper, but it is not personal." Stevie Smith

+ Spec 182:616 My 6 '49 950w

"Mention must be made of a shrewd critical preface by Mr. A. L. Rowse, and of a brief biographical sketch by Professor Gwyn Jones. Thus In the Green Tree belongs to the order of heterogeneous posthumous volumes; but it is a good example, of considerable value for the time being. All the stories should be collected one day, and there may be other and earlier letters worth adding to these. The poet's parents explain that the intimate passages have been removed from all those here published, except from one—the last they received. We must respect that decision, though regretful that it had to be enforced so rigorously; for by revealing more of Alun Lewis's courage than his tenderness—and he was rich in both—it probably upsets the balance of the picture we form."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p408 Je 24 '49 1400w

LEWIS, CECIL DAY-. See Day-Lewis, C.

LEWIS, CLEONA. United States and foreign investment problems. 359p maps $4 Brookings

332.6 Investments, Foreign. 48-4989

"First Miss Lewis surveys the changed position of the world's debtors and creditors from 1938 to 1947. . . She then gives special attention to problems of providing capital for economic development and the many factors that make investors hesitate to venture their money abroad. The final third of the book is a comprehensive survey of the policy of the United States Government as a foreign lender and in relation to its private investors and their property abroad." Foreign Affairs

---

Reviewed by Carl Remer
Am Econ R 39:1035 S '49 1150w

"In connection with the implementation of the 'Point Four Program' of President Truman's inaugural address, this is going to be the most useful single volume to have on one's desk and to consult again and again. It is to be hoped that Miss Lewis will keep the book up to date, and that the Brookings Institution will add to the debt of gratitude we owe it by bringing out such revisions every two or three years." M. A. Heilperin

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1043 O '49 550w

"This is a very solid contribution."

+ Foreign Affairs 27:507 Ap '49 110w

"The adequacy and reliability of the information naturally differ from country to country, but the balance sheets represent an extremely comprehensive and useful body of data. . . All this is excellent material, carefully treated. It suffers from the limitations of the sources of such data, no doubt; but every student of international relations will be grateful for this painstaking and critical compilation. The remainder of the book is less useful." Moses Abramovitz

+ — J Pol Econ 57:266 Je '49 1250w

"The chief criticism to be made of the factual presentation in the book is that it does not give a complete picture of the current and prospective private investment position. For example, fully two-thirds of recent American foreign investments have been in oil production, refining, and transportation. How these new private petroleum investments can be continued at recent rates, or be replaced by new foreign investment possibilities, is a critical topic not developed. The strength of the study lies not in new contributions to the subject nor in new methods of handling it, but in its value to the newcomer in a not too well understood field."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:447 D '48 320w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES. Weight of glory, and other addresses [Eng title: Transposition, and other addresses]. 66p $1.25 Macmillan

204 Theology 49-6869

"Here is a new collection of sermons and lectures by C. S. Lewis, the Oxford don and the author of 'The Screwtape Letters.' . . The title sermon, 'The Weight of Glory,' is easily the most memorable part of the collection. It concerns one of Lewis' favorite themes: heaven and the inborn hunger for heaven." N Y Times

"Since these are occasional pieces, anyone unfamiliar with the author is likely to gain only a limited view of his powers from this volume. But to the faithful Lewis reader there are many pleasant reminders of his wider range." M. R. Grennan

+ Cath World 170:153 N '49 370w

Churchman 163:18 N 1 '49 160w

"Mr. Lewis speaks out with sagacity and purpose and though at times one may quibble with doctrine, on the whole his arrow flies straight to the mark." Frederick Goode

+ Commonweal 51:196 N 18 '49 150w

"The name of C. S. Lewis will no doubt attract many readers to this volume, for he has won a splendid reputation by his brilliant writing. These sermons, however, are so abstruse, so involved and so dull that few of those who pick up the volume will finish it."

Kirkus 17:545 O 1 '49 80w

"Recommended for personal, public, theological, and college libraries." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:1089 Ag '49 130w

"It is not necessary to agree with Mr. Lewis to enjoy him. I do not at all agree with his treatment of the gift of tongues at Pentecost. One reads him for sheer joy in his workmanship."

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 28 '49 60w

"The literary quality of the five addresses is high, as one has come to expect in the writings of C. S. Lewis. The present work would never have established his reputation, but it will be rightly welcomed by readers already acquainted with his more important books." Chad Walsh

+ N Y Times p3 S 18 '49 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 O 16 '49 170w

LEWIS, DOMINIC BEVAN WYNDHAM. Four favourites. 234p il $3.50 Longmans

920 Pompadour, Jeanne Antoinette (Poisson) marquise de. Melbourne, William Lamb, 2d viscount. Godoy Alvarez de Faria Rios Sánchez y Zarzosa, Manuel de, principe de la Paz. Potemkin, Grigoriĭ Aleksandrovich, kni͡az 49-8459

Character sketches of three men and one woman, each of whom was a royal "favourite." They are Madame de Pompadour, Lord Melbourne, Don Manuel Godoy, and Prince Potemkin. Bibliography. No index.

"Four Favourites is polished and urbane portraiture by a distinguished stylist. Mr. Lewis's historical views, however, are extravagantly colored by his fierce clericalism and anti-democratic bias."

+ — Atlantic 183:90 Je '49 130w

Booklist 45:293 My 1 '49

"There is here really no explanation of mental affinities, no interpretation of circumstances, although the amorous liaisons are acknowledged. The rise of the favorite is usually inexplicable because the reasons reside not so much in the favored one as in the one who favors. At any rate, these four never reveal concrete qualities of magnetism. And the writing does not help in overcoming the book's other deficiencies." George Miles

— Commonweal 50:152 My 20 '49 330w

"A personal interpretation which has charm of writing and stimulating ideas, and which will be of interest to the discerning audience for literary biography."

+ Kirkus 16:194 Ap 1 '49 180w

"Mr. Lewis' book is historically interesting and may be read to advantage by the present politically ambitious. Certainly all libraries will purchase." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:660 Ap 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 4 '49 160w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft

Nation 169:160 Ag 13 '49 1050w

"There is in Great Britain a long tradition of courtly ironical historical writing. Mr. Wyndham Lewis' essays lack depth, but they are in that tradition, models of polite entertainment: they are the pale but elegant flowers of a P. G. Wodehouse world." Albert Guerard

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 1 '49 1000w

"I am sure that Mr. Lewis was concerned above all to make his portraits entertaining. The canvas in each case is large, and crowded with the figures who surrounded the favorite and his sovereign, often in violent action. Taken together, the four portraits satisfy the literary sense which craves multiplicity of detail, high (and varied) color, and movement, rather than that which seeks the close revelation of a character interesting in itself rather than in its relation to external events. This is merely to say, perhaps, that these are historical portraits rather than strictly biographical ones." Herbert Barrows

N Y Times p6 My 29 '49 600w

"This is perfectly delightful, witty and urban series of four essays, done in the best eighteenth century mannner, by one of the leading contemporary exponents of that difficult, but most pleasant style." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 8 '49 600w

"Mr. Lewis is not trying to prove anything, but he does offer the conclusion that charm is the common denominator of all four of his subjects. Their stories make engaging reading. This is a searching and civilized book." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 25 '49 100w

"Mr. Wyndham Lewis has the great advantage of not being dull. These studies give a full opportunity of considering that engaging style of his, that arch blend of Belloc and Benchley, with which, persumably, he allures readers of the Bystander equally with readers of the Dublin Review. Many will think, however, that his vivid historical sense and capable scholarship deserve to be better served than by such phrases as 'Mme. de Pompadour remains Exhibit A for all feminine careerists.' "

Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ja 1 '49 650w

LEWIS, EDWIN. The Creator and the Adversary. 279p $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury

231 God. Good and evil. Sin 48-3972

"In this reconsideration of the idea of God underlying the conflict of good and evil, Dr. Lewis holds that God is everywhere faced with a malignant opponent, and that all existence must be understood as a struggle between God and this Adversary. But the battle is not hopeless, for God offers men resources whereby they may realize a new creation beyond the power of the Adversary to destroy." (Publisher's note) Index.

"This is a daring, creative, imaginative title, and original approach to the problem of evil by a competent theologian. The reader may not agree with the solution here presented, but it will stimulate one's own thinking about a basic problem of the place of evil in God's (or the Adversary's) economy." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 163:17 My 1 '49 80w

"In this otherwise excellent book there are lapses into carelessness. . . The closing chapter on the church deserves wide and careful reading, and the call for Christian 'irregulars' is superb." J. H. Cotton

+ — J Religion 29:156 Ap '49 500w

LEWIS, FRANKLIN A. Cleveland Indians. 276p $3 Putnam

796.357 Cleveland. Baseball club (American league). Baseball 49-2989

The story of the Cleveland baseball club, from its first professional game in 1869 when it was known as the Forest Citys; thru its various careers as the Cleveland Spiders, Blues, Bronchos, and Naps; and finally to its present popularity as the Cleveland Indians. The author is sports editor of the Cleveland Press. No index.

Booklist 45:233; 388 Mr 15 '49; Jl 15 '49

"Well written interest-sustaining history of the team. Basic for sporting libraries." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 10w

Reviewed by J. K. Hutchins
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 My 29 '49 50w

Reviewed by D. M. Mankiewicz
N Y Times p12 Jl 3 '49 130w

LEWIS, HAROLD MACLEAN. Planning the modern city. 2v 284;224p il maps ea $6 Wiley

711.4 City planning 49-7402

"The son of Nelson Peter Lewis has rewritten his father's one-volume work, The Planning of the Modern City [Book Review Digest 1916] and brought it up to date with consideration of recent trends, research, and problems such as parking and airport facilities. The engineer's point of view is maintained throughout. References and questions at the end of each chapter." (Booklist) Indexes.

Booklist 45:283 Ap 15 '49

"It is the considered opinion of this reviewer that these volumes on planning the modern city are the best working tool that is now available in the city planning field." G. H. Herrold
+ Eng N 142:64 Mr 3 '49 400w

LEWIS, MRS HILDA WINIFRED. Case of the little doctor [Eng title: Said Dr Spendlove]. 248p $2.50 Random house 49-494

A retelling, in fiction form, of the Crippen case. It is the story of a harassed English doctor who killed his nymphomaniac wife, and fled to America with the woman he had come to love.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 21 '49 130w

"A precise and passionless portrait of a criminal and the crime to which he was driven."
Kirkus 16:580 N 1 '48 130w

"For true crime connoisseurs, addicts of the Joseph Shearing school of murder fiction and sundry." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 6 '49 190w

"The reader's sympathy is with the doctor and the girl rather than with the officers of the law. The author has succeeded in spinning a plot which resembles a Greek tragedy—relentless Fate playing a leading part." I. A.
N Y Times p16 Ja 16 '49 100w

"A good job of imaginative reconstruction (although, as is apparently now fashionable, no credit is given to the authors from whose factual accounts of the case certain portions of the novel are obviously drawn), done in this author's rather inept but nonetheless moving style."
+ — New Yorker 24:84 Ja 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ja 30 '49 180w

"Good job of writing."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 40w

LEWIS, LLOYD, and PARGELLIS, STANLEY MCCRORY, eds. Granger country; a pictorial social history of the Burlington Railroad. [246p] $5 Little

917.8 West—Description and travel—Views. West—History. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad company 49-3891

"The last work of Lloyd Lewis, like his co-editor a staff member of Chicago's Newberry Library. Many of its 425 illustrations were selected from the archives of the century old Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad deposited there. Pages are packed with drama, human interest, and picturesque scenery, as Indians, buffaloes, and trappers make way for the railroad and the wheat, livestock, peaches, and contented housewives it now carries." Library J

Booklist 45:348 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by R. A. Billington
Chicago Sun p18X Je 19 '49 350w

"Splendid picture book. . . Certain to be popular in county library collections, as elsewhere in the library world." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:890 Je 1 '49 130w

"The running text is direct, highly informative but never stodgy, and is wholly equal to the wonderful collection of prints and photographs, the latter of which come from several sources but include many pictures that doubtless appear here for the first time, thanks to the historical conscience of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, a line no less for grangers than for lovers of American history at its very alfalfa roots." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 12 '49 900w

"It is a proud story and proudly told in these pictures. And if the running commentary of the editors is never inspired, it is always adequate. The illustrations they have chosen are sometimes extraordinarily apt—as when they interrupt a series of more or less conventional photographs to use Thomas Hart Benton's striking 'Custer's Last Stand.' " V. P. Hass
+ N Y Times p36 Je 19 '49 600w

"Using remarkably well selected pictures and a meaningful, often amusing running commentary, the editors have taken in the whole sweep of westward migration that populated the American plains from the Mississippi to the Rockies. The focus of the book is upon the people—the people who fought their way into the country and created the need for transportation, then supported it with the wealth of their production." Ruth Teiser
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 11 '49 420w

"Normally there is nothing duller, less read, and less necessary than a history of an American railroad. Brilliantly reversing the field, the Burlington road has scored with an excellent photographic history that is also a social history of the country." Horace Sutton
+ Sat R of Lit 32:35 Jl 2 '49 140w

LEWIS, OSCAR. California heritage. 186p il maps $5 Crowell

979.4 California—History 49-11988

A collection of pictures, with text, which together summarize the early history of California. List of picture credits.

"Mr. Lewis very rightfully shows how the present personality of the state draws more from the rough and tumble of those times than from the easeful days of the Dons. He does not slight the Latin era, but he does not, as so many writers do, over-emphasize its importance. Typographically, California Heritage is a pleasure. While the historian would be more interested in the pictures than the text, for the layman who wants a quick, just story of California and how it came to be what it is, it seems to me that California Heritage is what he is looking for." J. L. Duff
+ Commonweal 51:422 Ja 20 '50 280w

"It is written in a clear style suitable for either young or adult readers. The text is too brief . . . to do more than hit the higher and more familiar of the high spots so its function is primarily to serve as a general running commentary for a series of a hundred and sixty-odd illustrations. . . 'California Heritage' is just another book about California; what makes it disappointing is that Oscar Lewis has shown himself elsewhere so competent to write popular history that is both thoughtful and absorbing." J. D. Forbes

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 8 '50 800w

Reviewed by Allan Taylor
N Y Times p13 D 25 '49 60w

"It is not simply a romantic arrangement of text and pictures designed to reflect 'color' and nothing more. Throughout, Mr. Lewis has been conscious that what happened, decade by decade, in the California of the early period was establishing a pattern for the State's development, stamping the State in many ways with a character that it still retains in many of its customs, habits of thought and institutions." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 6 '49 950w

School & Society 70:336 N 19 '49 50w

LEWIS, OSCAR. Sea routes to the gold fields; the migration by water to California in 1849-1852. 286p il $4 Knopf

979.4 California—Gold discoveries. Voyages to the Pacific coast 49-1093

An account of the journey by sea to the gold fields of California in 1849. The book is based on old diaries, and other original documents, and on books old and new. Illustrated by contemporary prints. Bibliography. Index.

"As light reading this book is excellent; for the student of maritime history there is little of value." B. F. Huff
Am Hist R 55:243 O '49 160w

Booklist 45:259 Ap 1 '49

"Oscar Lewis makes the most of his material, and interprets it with spirit."
+ Kirkus 17:23 Ja 1 '49 160w

"Interesting because of its original slant. Not too important except in historical libraries and special collections." L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by H. N. Doughty
Nation 169:18 Jl 2 '49 60w

"Mr. Lewis provides here a fine and vivid picture of the sea story. . . This is a book that has long waited to be written, and any one who has read Mr. Lewis's 'The Big Four,' or his 'Silver Kings,' will know the scholarship and the broad knowledge of background he brings to it, and the simple and highly readable fashion in which he sets his story down. With its notes on sources and its careful documentation throughout, 'Sea Routes to the Gold Fields' should remain one of the standard accounts of the episode for those who would like to get the atmosphere and general feel of this aspect of the rush." J. H. Jackson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Mr 6 '49 1350w

Reviewed by Jack Foisie
N Y Times p11 My 15 '49 200w

"The book is fine reading, and a genuine piece of scholarship in its field as well." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 27 '49 1000w

"A book of historical significance and of surprising and unexpected interest. Lewis writes with pleasing consideration for the reader." R. G. Cleland
+ Sat R of Lit 32:22 Mr 12 '49 360w

Springf'd Republican p9B Mr 6 '49 170w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:213 Je '49 250w

LEWIS, PEARL. Eating for health. 121p il $2.25 Macmillan

641.1 Nutrition. Diet 48-3728

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"This book is good reading and worth keeping for reference. College students majoring in foods and nutrition and beginning medical students should find helpful the author's clear and brief explanations, the index, and the carefully selected bibliography." Pauline Murrah
+ Am J Pub Health 39:246 F '49 370w

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '49

"The vocabulary is technical and the style terse. The author considers food only and ignores interrelationships of other factors in the dynamics of an individual and his food practices. The book will serve better as a good introduction to physiology than as a nutrition handbook." R. M. Leverton
+ — J Home Econ 41:97 F '49 250w

LEWIS, SINCLAIR. God-seeker. 422p $3.50 Random house
49-418

"Historical novel, set in Minnesota 100 years ago. Aaron Gadd, carpenter, volunteers for service among the missionaries to the Sioux Indians; alienated by the community's bigotries, he becomes a builder in St. Paul, and at the novel's end is organizing a union among his employees and asserting the right of Negroes to join." Library J

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 183:78 Ap '49 900w

Booklist 45:202; 225 F 15 '49; Mr 1 '49

Cath World 169:158 My '49 120w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 6 '49 550w

"The novel is loose-jointed, disconnected and padded out with extraneous chapters. . . More often than not the characters are types; and the book itself more dull and disappointing than otherwise." Horace Reynolds
— Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 17 '49 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"Somehow, the story seems remote, lacking the impact of his approach to contemporary life."
Kirkus 17:12 Ja 1 '49 270w

"As novel, not likely to be ranked with Babbitt or Arrowsmith; but its hero is one of Lewis's most sympathetic portraits—a craftsman-businessman with the liberal's conscience; and its reconstruction of mid-western beginnings is done with the verve and energy, and the mingled affection and impatience, which have distinguished his work." H. W. Hart
Library J 74:198 F 1 '49 130w

"A robust addition to the literature of conversion. . . The line of the story loses itself in too many twists and torrents, but the talk is superb." Norman Shrapnel
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 29 '49 240w

"I wish I could say that Sinclair Lewis's latest novel, 'The God-Seeker,' is a book to cherish. Its theme is interesting and moving. . . The story moves steadily and straight ahead in the first part of the book—and incidentally Lewis's picture of a New England Puritan household and of Aaron Gadd's fierce father who dominated it is extremely good. But shortly thereafter the tension slackens, and the story begins to slow down. One gets the feeling that Lewis himself has become a bit bored, that he is writing on out of doggedness rather than delight and is very easily distracted." Margaret Marshall
— + Nation 168:393 Ap 2 '49 700w

"The God-Seeker is an embarrassingly bad book by a reformed satirist. With it, I fear, Sinclair Lewis has joined the ranks of the less promising older writers." John Woodburn
— New Repub 120:16 My 16 '49 800w

"Mr. Lewis's picture of society on the frontier is one of his most remarkable achievements. Founded on obviously painstaking researches in local history, it collects as varied and rewarding a group of characters as he has ever portrayed. Each of them, even to the most minor, is vividly created. Each stands out, concretely and tangibly, in full relief. . . Readers who remember 'Babbitt' and 'Arrowsmith' and 'Dodsworth' may agree with this reviewer that—in a very different fashion—the Old Master has done it again." Lloyd Morris

LEWIS, SINCLAIR—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 6 '49 1100w

"One of the minor faults of this novel is that its author is not content to let the record speak for itself: he has to poke his face round the door and draw comparisons, contrast his hero with his modern descendants, or make a face at some contemporary attitude which he thinks less good than that of his hero. . . A more serious fault is the burking of all the real crises in the book." David Daiches
N Y Times p5 Mr 6 '49 1250w

"For all his earnest effort, Mr. Lewis has merely added another historical novel to the already groaning shelves."
— New Yorker 25:100 Mr 19 '49 160w

" 'The God-Seeker' is a novel of many facets, as the reader will discover. That all these facets do not sparkle with equal brilliance is perhaps because the author has tried to pack a bit too much into a single novel. Those who have liked him for his savage satire will find flashes of it here, but these are too often dimmed by the overplus of facts about Minnesota in its early days; indeed there are times when 'The God-Seeker' reads like a popular history rather than the novel it sets out to be." J. H. Jackson
— + San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 10 '49 700w

"This novel has bounce and energy, as if Sinclair Lewis had a good time writing it, an energy that carries the reader through the ups and downs of a curiously uneven book. . . It is when Gadd gets to his frontier missionary settlement that ambiguity sets in. . . The tight, abnormal life of the missionary settlement is written in still another key, admirable in its kind but not easily fused with the Indian episodes. . . Herein, I think, lies the old fascination of 'The God-Seeker.' Mr. Lewis is torn. On the one hand, he rightly admires the humble, unsung, heroism of these missionaries, who, with all their incredible ignorance, helped create a state. On the other hand, he cannot help spoofing their naive and ridiculous ideas." H. M. Jones
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:11 Mr 12 '49 600w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong
Spec 183:218 Ag 12 '49 170w

Time 53:110 Mr 14 '49 950w

"At its best the novel rises to the level of a competent historical costume film: at its worst, it is formless, facetious, and sadly lacking in that sense of conflict that might have invested the narrative with the qualities of a straightforward romance. One of the most disturbing aspects of this new departure in Mr. Lewis's writing is a patronizing jocosity of the style, which—not specially inviting in a book with a contemporary theme—seems indefensible in a historical setting."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p501 Ag 5 '49 550w

Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

LEWIS, WYNDHAM. America and cosmic man. 247p $2.75 Doubleday

917.3 U.S.—Politics and government. National characteristics, American 49-8965

"The salvation of the modern world, Wyndham Lewis says, can come about only through world government, and only the American people are in a position—morally, socially, and economically—to lead this salvation. It is only in America that a new type of man—Cosmic Man—is being developed, a man free from tradition and racial prejudice, a man who is the hope of the world. . . In developing his thesis, Mr. Lewis cuts and rips his way through many of our fondest illusions." (Publisher's note) No index.

"The book has some brilliant writing, along with some of the most careless and turgid imaginable. It has an occasional insight; for instance, that bigness, such as ours, does not make the individual feel bigger, but smaller. . . But, with all its unresolved contradictions and its barber shop generalities unspoiled by evidence, the book still fails to make its case of back-handed flattery of America as the womb of the new cosmic man." Milton Mayer
— + Chicago Sun Jl 25 '49 650w

"Americans may not like this book, in which English litterateur Wyndham Lewis, with his scalpel of scorn, has tried to stir our blood—even draw a little—by pointing with one finger at the tremendous destiny awaiting us, and with the other calling attention to our incongruities, our politics, our humor, our great figures. . . Wyndham Lewis does not write for a general audience, but among the intelligentsia, he has his following."
Kirkus 17:132 Mr 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 169:234 S 3 '49 1050w

"As recent British writing on the United States goes, this book ranks pretty low. In the sense that Denis Brogan, for instance, has been able to understand the United States, Mr. Lewis does not understand us at all. And probably does not want to, since an attempt to understand would queer his style completely." Crane Brinton
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 10 '49 1000w

"If Mr. Lewis' intent is to compliment American readers—and he submits that his book 'is the work of a great friend of America'—then I hope that he will not be disturbed by whatever ungenerous responses it may provoke. . . Mr. Lewis' first stumbling block is political organization, to which he devotes the disproportionate amount of space needed to explain it abroad. . . He does not find a place for Lincoln in his trio of Presidents. . . There are bright portraits in the gallery . . . but the America he knows is the Eastern seaboard and the Americans he understands are tidewater aristocrats like Hamilton and Gouverneur Morris; Lincoln does not come clear." Eric Larrabee
N Y Times p8 Je 19 '49 750w

"One may be of two minds regarding the author's estimate of the American psyche, but on the question of Mr. Lewis's current standing in this country there can be no disagreement whatsoever; with this book he takes his place as the keenest, the best-mannered, the most extravagantly charming British guest we've ever had."
New Yorker 25:86 Je 18 '49 150w

Reviewed by Vance Bourjaily
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 24 '49 1000w

"Mr. Lewis has written a book full of ideas, but ideas so badly arranged that his volume seems confused and repetitive. He has included in it many reflections upon American history without knowing anything whatever about that history, so that the sections which deal with our past are simply grotesque. . . In short, he has written a misshapen, misinformed, and incomplete book, which yet is worth reading because it is witty, because it contains some shrewd insights into the problems of America and the world, and because its central message is worth thinking about." Allan Nevins
— + Sat R of Lit 32:14 Je 25 '49 900w

"All the merits of this book come from Mr. Lewis's independence of judgment, his occasional felicities of phrase and repeated flashes of understanding of American society. But the one thing that Mr. Lewis is deeply indifferent to is history, at any rate to American history. Indeed, seen as an introduction to American history, this book is one of the oddest and, for the British reader, most misleading productions put on the market for a good many years past. . . To be frank, Mr. Lewis has not shown much respect for his future readers or much realisation that an author of his rank owes the public more than the slapdash outpourings of his notebooks which make up so much of this short book."
Spec 182:60 Ja 14 '49 400w

Time 54:70 Jl 4 '49 750w

LEWISOHN, LUDWIG, ed. Goethe, the story of a man. See Goethe, J. W. von

LEY, WILLY. Conquest of space; paintings by Chesley Bonestell. 160p $3.95 Viking

629.1388 Interplanetary voyages. Moon. Planets 49-10790

"Willy Ley—an authoritative writer about rockets, and a former member of the German Rocket Society—describes the geography and atmosphere of the planets and their satellites, transcontinental rocket flights, and trips to the moon and beyond. The descriptions are heightened and dramatized in a series of 58 reproduced paintings by Chesley Bonestell." (N Y Times) No index.

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

Bookmark 9:27 N '49 50w

"If you have the adventurous spirit, or a liking for popularized science with a little prophecy thrown in, the text should appeal. Even if you lack these interests, even if you can't read, Mr. Bonestell's pictures may make this book rewarding. Vivid, imaginative, painted with a sure hand and as wide a knowledge of the subject as (presumably) any artist on earth possesses, these landscapes and skyscapes on or about Saturn, Jupiter, and the other planets of our system make such pictures, surely, as never were on land or sea." A. S.

+ Canadian Forum 29:188 N '49 350w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun O 7 '49 50w

Kirkus 17:382 Jl 15 '49 150w

Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 50w

"The author's lucid and convincing text combined with the equally convincing paintings by Bonestell make space travel seem to be almost a reality. Only after reading much of the volume does one realize that there is nothing new here but the visualization. The facts about rockets and about planets can be found elsewhere, but the precisely realistic renderings of landscapes of the moon and of certain planets are worth the price of the book." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1607 O 15 '49 100w

"This volume of what might be called responsible fantasy makes fascinating looking as well as fascinating reading and is a remarkably handsome book for the price. . . The manner of this book is admirably suited to the layman who wants something more responsible than Jules Verne or science fiction. The technicalities are presented in a form not difficult to understand at the cost of a reasonable degree of attention." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 169:330 O 1 '49 650w

Reviewed by Gerald Wendt

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 11 '49 650w

"This book is the latest and, in many respects, the most fascinating popular account of rocket travel and what people may see when they reach various landing-places in the solar system. It would be difficult to find two men better qualified to collaborate on this subject than the co-authors of the present book. . . The combination of [Mr Bonestell's] picture gallery and Mr. Ley's text makes this one of the year's best popularizations of science." J. E. Pfeiffer

+ N Y Times p29 S 25 '49 550w

"An exciting book, and a handsome one."

+ New Yorker 25:137 O 15 '49 130w

"Willy Ley is both a well-known popularizer of science and an engineer—a rocket engineer, with practical experience spanning a quarter of a century. He writes with wit and gentle humor, and has a happy ability for stating technical facts so simply that a child may understand, yet an expert will be neither bored nor annoyed. . . Children will take to this book as eagerly as adults, for it speaks of far journeys to romantic places." R. A. Heinlein

+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 D 24 '49 750w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. Modern wonders and how they work. 216p il $3.50 Dutton

608 Inventions. Technology 49-1889

Explanations of the basic principles and operation of several inventions in the fields of nuclear physics, aeronautics and electronics: atomic fission and power, rockets and jets; guided missiles; automatic pilot and controlled airplane landings; radar; and full-color television. Index.

Booklist 45:297 My 1 '49

"A book like this is almost a 'must' for anyone who would keep up with the times." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 25:240 My '49 40w

Kirkus 17:6 Ja 1 '49 150w

"His non-technical descriptions of the mechanics of atomic fission, rockets, guided missiles, radar and automatic pilots, will be readily understood by the layman having a knowledge of elementary physics and chemistry. . . Although there is considerable repetition of scientific facts, the net result is to make each chapter complete in itself." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 30w

"Timely selection of often-sought material."

+ Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:47 My '49

L'HOMMEDIEU, MRS DOROTHY (KEASBEY). Tyke, the little mutt; il. by Marguerite Kirmse. 62p $2 Lippincott

49-10513

The story of a little mutt in search of a home. In rescuing a pekingese who had fallen from a truck he found a place for himself near a kennel—the one wise dog among a pack of pure-bred dogs. For ages 8-10.

"Tyke is merely white and wooly and rather nice. The 5 to 10 group should love him." Marcia Winn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 13 '49 90w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 20 '49 130w

Reviewed by Juanita Walker

Library J 74:1465 O 1 '49 60w

"This simple story is told in a way just right for early readers who are already dog lovers. The pictures in line and full color are most attractive." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 25 '49 180w

"The drawings are irresistible." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 12 '49 20w

LI, CH'IAO-P'ING. Chemical arts of old China; with a foreword by Tenney L. Davis. 215p il $5 Journal of chemical educ.

540.9 Chemistry—History 48-9827

"The theory, method, and history of the various branches of chemical manufacture in ancient China are discussed, and many translated passages from old Chinese works are included. Professor Li's text, originally written in Chinese and first published in 1940, has been translated by the author, with the advice of an American chemist and an American sinologist." N Y New Tech Bks

"In general, the book is interesting. It does not cover any subject in too great detail. To people interested in the history of chemistry and Oriental culture, the book may seem to be brief. As Professor Tenney L. Davis has stated in the foreword, 'Its principal defect is in not being long enough.' " M. C. Sze

+ Chem Eng 56:311 F '49 350w

"The author, a professor of chemistry, has delved with respect and admiration deep into Chinese history. The inclusion of delightful legend and quaint folklore keep the text of his book from being too scholarly for the average reader; many handsome sketches and photographs make it exceedingly attractive." D. L. Fisher

LI, CH'IAO-P'ING—Continued
+ Library J 74:1914 D 15 '49 130w

"A work which will be of considerable interest to sinologists, chemists, and historians as many of the topics are not covered by any other book in English."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:85 N '49

LIBER, BENZION. Psychiatry for the millions. 307p $2.95 Fell

616.8 Psychology, Pathological 49-7177

"The subject matter covers a wide range of topics and includes chapters on bringing up the child, juvenile delinquency, psychosomatic medicine, sex and marital problems, alcoholism, and on war and post-war mental health. Descriptions of various types and degrees of psychoneuroses and psychoses are included and briefly discussed. The final chapter is devoted to prevention and treatment." (Am J Pub Health) Glossary. Index.

"This book has greater interest for the layman than for the professional worker, and its chief value resides in its avoidance of mumbo-jumbo and in the assurance that it will give to many individuals the concept that emotional instability can be treated and controlled." H. B. Makover
+ Am J Pub Health 39:805 Je '49 550w

"The coverage here is adequate; the prose—which runs to 'Nay' and 'Alas' is not; and this science has had a better presentation at a popular level."
— + Kirkus 16:651 D 15 '48 130w

"Dr. Liber illustrates his points with case histories where they are useful, and produces a highly readable book, one in which the lay reader may find clues to many things, from why a child stutters to how a neurosis can produce a physical pain." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 4 '49 380w

Reviewed by Patrick Mullahy
Sat R of Lit 32:35 O 15 '49 140w

Springf'd Republican p14A Ja 23 '49 330w

LIDDELL, ROBERT. Last enchantments. 273p $2.75 Appleton

49-10771

An English university town is the setting for this quiet story. It is told by one of a pair of devoted brothers, who lived near an endearing elderly woman, Mrs Foyle. In developing Mrs Foyle's story, the author describes the life of one section of town during the years just before World war II.

Booklist 46:83 N 1 '49

"Robert Liddell is a master stylist. This story is told in faultless prose, as balanced as Fielding's, as pure as Jane Austen's, as precise as Flaubert's. Its only flaw is the occasional lack of individuality. Together with the novels of Charles Williams, 'The Last Enchantments' is the most exciting literary importation from England since the war." Hayden Carruth
+ Chicago Sun p72 O 12 '49 500w

"Too much of the book is devoted to silly conversation at silly, dreary teas. I closed 'The Last Enchantments' with a sense of frustration. I had listened to this English writer for some hours and, despite my close attention, he had told me hardly anything, had bored me excessively with aimless small talk and had left me, chiefly, with the impression of stuffy lodgings, bad teeth and sour breath. A novelist should have more to offer than that." V. P. Hass
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 11 '49 550w

"Despite the quotations on the dust jacket this book shows little evidence of any unusual talent. There are not many signs of an ability to use words effectively. The conception, which was not common, has suffered here a common treatment." George Miles
— Commonweal 51:42 O 21 '49 550w

"An eccentric, cloistered world, cleverly and sentimentally recalled, this has its talents for a fairly special audience."
+ Kirkus 17:439 Ag 15 '49 160w

"Truly distinguished writing, a highlight in fiction literature." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 74:1322 S 15 '49 80w

"Myth and fact, high comedy and real pathos are beautifully blended. It is a work of sensitive understanding and rich entertainment." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 2 '48 120w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 36:118 Ag 7 '48 290w

" 'The Last Enchantments' received high praise in England: as a novel of Oxford life it was compared with 'Jude the Obscure.' It is an enchanting story, told as if it mattered to no one but the narrator. Its touch is light but the brush of its prose leaves a burn; in its British way it says a great deal without appearing to say anything at all." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 2 '49 850w

"Mr. Liddell's novel is not in tone a 'tragic' book. Its tone is satiric, gentle, supremely civilized, and hardly ever angry. It is a book full of nostalgia (it takes place on the eve of World War II), wit, and exciting perception. No point is pressed home—although all strike there. No character, however peripheral, fails to achieve, however briefly, 'character.' If one's heart is shaken by deformed, undeserving little Mrs. Foyle's fate as profoundly as it might be were she fair and deserving it is because Mr. Liddell is master of a compassion that is unmixed with sentimentality." A. S. Morris
+ N Y Times p34 O 9 '49 400w

"Mr. Liddell writes in a sprightly way, treating Christminster, its inhabitants and its visitors with vast assurance and a sort of offhand wit. The only exception to this is Mrs. Foyle, whose pathos grows increasingly false as the book wears on. At the last, she seems to have developed into a kind of peg from which all the sorrows of the world depend. Mrs. Foyle is the only sour note in a very lively story, but she is a most important note, so it is rather a pity."
+ — New Yorker 25:106 O 8 '49 200w

"A quiet and restrained, yet extremely sharp, novel. . . On the whole, Mr. Liddell writes remarkably well. Whether his plot is up to his writing in this case is debatable, but so far as this reviewer is concerned he has turned out an unusually good book." R. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 27 '49 380w

" 'The Last Enchantments' may be a literary phenomenon. Very possibly it contains elements of greatness. There is no other novel I know of where the author, aloofly refusing to grant his main character a modicum of good sense or charm, none the less slowly but surely creates an atmosphere of pity and compunction because that character is a human being. This is a literary miracle and very especially a Christian one in a world that has steadfastly evaded the essence of its faith." Struthers Burt
Sat R of Lit 32:21 N 19 '49 900w

"This is Mr. Liddell's fourth novel, and his steadily maturing gift for English comedy keeps alive in present-day literature the tradition of Jane Austen and Mrs. Gaskell." Olivia Manning
+ Spec 181:90 Jl 16 '48 360w

"Mr. Liddell's new novel is a highly entertaining tragi-comedy set in North Oxford, embellished with a really memorable piece of comic portraiture—an elderly, fusty, immensely eccentric librarian. It will make all discriminating readers look forward to his next book and prompt those who have missed his earlier work to snatch at it if it comes their way."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Jl 10 '48 420w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:383 winter '50 70w

LIE, TRYGVE, and others. Peace on earth. See Peace on earth

LIEB, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Outwitting your years. 278p $2.75 Prentice-Hall
618.97 Old age 49-2296

A book of advice for those aged fifty or older, written by a specialist in the science of geriatrics. Index.

Booklist 45:387 Jl 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

"Geriatrics, at a popular level and continuing along the general lines of Martin Gumpert."
+ Kirkus 17:79 F 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by A. H. Weiler
N Y Times p17 Ag 7 '49 320w

"A solid bookful of good advice, and 'fifty-uppers,' of which there are more every year, will find it both soothing and sensible. . . This [is a] calmly written wholly sensible volume." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 5 '49 700w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 390w

LIEB, FREDERICK GEORGE. Story of the world series; an informal history. 333p il $3.95 Putnam
796.357 Baseball 49-8520

"Accounts of every World Series, going back to 1903, when the present big leagues started their autumn play-offs, and even before that to the contests of their predecessors, in the last century. Every game, almost every inning, is scrupulously summarized, and the result is more than three hundred meaty historical pages, neatly garnished with sports clichés, exactly the way the baseball faithful like their annals. Numerous photographs." (New Yorker) No index.

"Perhaps too strenuous except for the most ardent fans as each series is described game by game and almost pitch by pitch. But with the interest in this sport, which reaches its climax of excitement in this series, there will be a faithful following for its written record."
+ Kirkus 17:79 F 1 '49 90w

"An entertaining and authoritative story." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 20w

"A sound, descriptive performance, complete through 1948." J. K. Hutchens
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 My 29 '49 170w
+ New Yorker 25:114 My 7 '49 80w

LIEBLING, ABBOTT JOSEPH. Mink and red herring; the wayward pressman's casebook. 251p $2.95 Doubleday
071 Press—U.S. 49-9550

Articles originally printed in the New Yorker, all but four of them dealing with the vagaries of the New York press, especially with its handling of the news about the Un-American Activities Committee. The four not about our newspapers are brief essays on the papers of England and France.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:84 Ag '49 800w
Booklist 45:367 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Je 30 '49 230w

"There's some pretty brilliant stuff here, which is very funny too, but one questions whether the no longer topical interest in many of the subjects scored may not limit the appeal of the volume."
+ — Kirkus 17:226 Ap 15 '49 220w

"Mr. Liebling manifestly performs a real service for American newspapers. Or, more accurately, largely for New York papers. Nothing is more valuable than a relentless, acute and diligent critic. He is all of that. But he is beginning to get biased and bilious, and this weakens his effectiveness. He is like a testy old gentleman in a Fifth Avenue club, querulously and ceaselessly complaining about 'That Man.' For Mr. Liebling, it is 'Those Publishers.' There is no sin or stupidity they do not commit, in his book." E. D. Canham
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 3 '49 700w

"Liebling's manner often tends to get in the way of his matter. Often the dirty work he documents calls for blazing indignation rather than a cute epigram. Indeed, several of this book's highest points are the few occasions when he does lay aside his chuckle and blasts at some of the foulest jobs of journalism. But he lacks the change of pace of a Heywood Broun, who knew when to laugh and when to blast, and had a greater capacity for indignation." L. M. Lyons
N Y Times p6 Jl 10 '49 1300w
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 11 '49 470w

" 'Mink and Red Herring' doesn't measure up to Mr. Liebling's first book, 'The Wayward Pressman,' because it contains less original material, less general discussion of newspaper practice, but perhaps this is not too important. The important thing is that we be reminded from time to time by case histories of specific examples of journalistic malfeasance rather than by generalizations on the subject. The reader of 'Mink and Red Herring' will be reminded sharply of a number of things which have slipped his mind, and which without question have also slipped several editors' minds." Don Hollenbeck
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 Jl 2 '49 600w

LIGON, ERNEST MAYFIELD. A greater generation. 157p $2.50 Macmillan
377.2 Character education 48-7551

"[This book contains] a program for building a better world by applying scientific methods to character education. Dr. Ligon is a recognized authority in the field of scientific character analysis. Formerly professor of psychology in Yale and Connecticut College, he is now on the faculty of Union College, and director of its nationally known Character Research Project." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

"No longer can churches say the path has not been made clear to them. This book and its message must permeate the minds and hearts of clergymen and responsible laymen." H. E. Allen
+ Crozer Q 26:267 Jl '49 550w

"Interesting and significant contribution to the field of religious education."
+ Kirkus 16:286 Je 15 '48 180w

"Whether or not we agree with Dr. Ligon that if his methods are followed it is 'possible to bring up a greater generation of good will with strong character sufficient for the task of world leadership so needed today,' his message is worth the attention not only of clergymen and parents, without whose aid nothing can be accomplished, but above all of teachers who have so far only roughly tried to adapt their methods of imparting knowledge to the mental ages of their pupils. It is good to read a book which tries to supplement pulpit preaching with a system of positive action." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 Ag 14 '49 700w

Reviewed by Henry Borzo
Social Studies 40:40 Ja '49 480w

Reviewed by H. H. Wagner
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 210w

LILIENTHAL, DAVID ELI. This I do believe. 208p $2.50 Harper
321.8 Democracy 49-11214

"From his years of experience as a public servant [David Lilienthal] makes clear his belief in 'the capacity of democracy to surmount any trials that may lie ahead' and on this credo he develops the background of the fears that threaten our freedom, the necessary relationship of technology and human understanding, the possibility of unity in spite of growing specialization, the important usefulness of atomic energy for the people and the issues of public services and public utilities. It is a book urging citizen participation and information, the application of knowledge and experience to expanding horizons, and a wholesome avowal of belief in his country and fellow men." Kirkus

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:94 D '49 750w

Booklist 46:41; 78 O 1 '49; N 1 '49

Bookmark 9:27 N '49 30w

Canadian Forum 29:234 Ja '50 700w

Reviewed by T. L. Reettger
Chem & Eng N 27:3814 D 19 '49 300w

"His book is a notable brief of coming utterances by a great and practical believer in democracy. The nation should well note the elaboration of this remarkable profession in democracy when Lilienthal once again is a private citizen." T. F. Reynolds
+ Chicago Sun p10 D 4 '49 450w

"The book is a sound, sober and thoughtful book, a testament of faith in the democratic process and in the possibility of attaining good ends by good means—and by no other kind. Naturally, it is written from the author's known standpoint, which might be called the TVA standpoint." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:51 Ja 11 '50 360w

"This reviewer was disappointed that the outline of 'a greater America' in the last chapter was not more specific. He would also have reservations on some aspects of TVA, and questions Mr. Lilienthal's belief that Americans should do more bragging. But these are small things to weigh against one's great admiration for this noble statement of a democratic credo and particularly for its emphasis on the ethical and spiritual wellsprings of American progress." Donovan Richardson
+ Christian Science Monitor p20 O 20 '49 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '49

"An intense, sincere, thoughtful series of logically progressive essays. . . A book which strengthens one's faith in a great American."
+ Kirkus 17:453 Ag 15 '49 160w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown
Library J 74:1603 O 15 '49 140w

"David Lilienthal is one of America's most useful civil servants. . . What he has to say about the problems of democracy, the role of government and of the citizen in such enterprises as regional economy and atomic energy merits the closest attention." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 O 9 '49 1350w

"These ideas were manifestly not conceived in a vacuum. They come from a man who has proved himself a good administrator as well as a good thinker. They reveal a tendency, which may grow stronger as this nation has to deal with new and strange problems, to be less concerned about institutional frameworks and devices and more concerned with human realities. This is a sort of pragmatism of which, one suspects, the late William James would approve. Its roots are deep in the American experience. The kind of philosophy Mr. Lilienthal expounds may well be a more powerful weapon in our defense than the furious and expanding atom. And it has the advantage of not being a secret weapon." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p3 O 9 '49 1050w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 20 '49 950w

"This volume ought somehow to be made available to all of American youth, the proper time depending upon the ideological age of consent in each case. (I say 'made available' instead of 'required reading' because compulsion and comprehension don't mix). Young people like affirmation; this book throbs with it. Young people like compassion; this book glows with it. Young people hate defeatism; this book demolishes it. Here, then, is democracy's answer to the absolutism of the extreme left and right both. . . 'This I Do Believe' should do much to straighten out some of the public misconceptions about its author." N. C.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:24 O 8 '49 1700w

Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 900w

"Mr. Lilienthal's freedom of mind, his unwillingness to follow a party line, his candor on points where most officials hedge—these are heartening features and they tend to disprove the current belief that those who think have no authority and those in authority have no time to think." C. W. Ferguson
+ Survey 86:41 Ja '50 450w

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM. Uncollected works; his letters, addresses and other papers; assembled and annotated by Rufus Rockwell Wilson and others; v2, 1841 to 1845. 693p $6 Primavera press
308.1 (47-30301)

"Continuing his impressive enterprise which will require many more years and at least three more volumes for its completion, Dr. Wilson presents 700 pages of hitherto uncollected and for the most part unpublished Lincoln documents. These cover four years during which Lincoln was practicing law in Springfield, taking an active part in Whig politics, and feeling his way toward nomination for a seat in Congress. Most of the documents have to do with lawsuits in which Lincoln took part as an attorney. Dr. Wilson's copious annotations (printed in italics for easy distinction between text and notes) furnish the historical background and context." (Christian Century) For volume one see Book Review Digest 1947.

"Dr. Wilson has uncovered surprisingly little personal correspondence of Lincoln, and the few such letters included here have for the most part been previously published. . . A good number of items included might more properly be considered notes for a Lincoln biography than writings of Lincoln. . . Apparently the effort has been made to include every scrap in Lincoln's handwriting, regardless of its significance, and Dr. Wilson's compilation is certainly the most complete of its kind. . . The general editorial introductions are somewhat mawkish, and the preliminary chronology inaccurate. . . In short, Dr. Wilson's Uncollected Works of Abraham Lincoln is a vast and indigestible jumble, which George Fort Milton correctly describes as composed of 'full, partial and sometimes "iffy" Lincolniana.' " David Donald
— Am Hist R 54:889 Jl '49 750w

"The almost day-by-day chronology of Lincoln's movements during this period will be useful to students. The whole is an important body of source material for Lincolnians."
+ Christian Century 66:81 Ja 19 '49 140w

"Because of its comprehensive scope, and by reason of its ambitious purpose, it is a matter of general interest that this vast enterprise has now progressed as far as volume two. Certainly it deserves, if it does not require, careful consideration. In his scholarly introduction, Mr. George Fort Milton pays fitting tribute to Dr. Wilson, 'whose comprehensive understanding of the Emancipator's life, times and works stems from an intimate study of his career,' and praises him as an 'earnest, industrious and imaginative historian.' " D. C. Mearns
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 6 '49 1750w

Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 300w

LINCOLN, MIRIAM. Danger! curves ahead! how to prevent and correct overweight; il. by Florenz Clark. 138p $2.50 Macmillan

616.39 Corpulence. Diet 48-11930

"Dr. Lincoln first points out the disadvantages of overweight and how it can endanger good health. She explains how overeating results from (and, indeed, is even the cause of) certain social and psychological maladjustments. She further explains how emotional problems, anxieties, and frustrations may be more pertinent to solution of the weight problem than the matter of balancing calories, minerals and vitamins in the daily diet. Using various case histories, Dr. Lincoln illustrates how reducing can be accomplished. She also offers a number of corrective diets. . . Miriam Lincoln is a practicing physician in Seattle, Washington and an assistant professor of clinical medicine, School of Medicine, University of Washington." Publisher's note

"Obesity, its causes, dangers, and best methods of correction are discussed in a simple and interesting style. . . The nutritional advice given is sound but rather too brief for those with inquiring minds. The simple table of calorie values of foods and well planned reducing menus for different seasons of the year should be helpful. A unique feature is in the list of low-calorie company menus for use when entertaining one's obese friends. The reviewer does not hesitate to recommend this little volume to any woman without scientific background who is interested in maintaining, or reestablishing, her normal weight for her height and build." H. S. Mitchell

+ — Am J Pub Health 39:541 Ap '49 230w

Booklist 45:152 Ja 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '49

Kirkus 16:357 Jl 15 '48 80w

LINCOLN, ROBERT PAGE. Guide to best fishing. 305p $2.50 Paul, Richmond & co, 227 W Washington st, Chicago 6

799.11 Fishing Agr49-2

"Information about fresh-water fishing in western and some central states of the U.S., Florida, British Columbia, and western Ontario. Data on specific streams and lakes, kinds of fish, bait and other equipment, and accommodations. Good inexpensive guide for the areas covered. Author has been a sport and travel editor for many years. No index." Booklist

Booklist 45:174 Ja 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '49

"The 'guide' is a handy source of information for the vacationist and should be helpful in planning new trips." T. S. Sweedy

+ N Y Times p27 Ja 30 '49 90w

Reviewed by G. S. Arnold

San Francisco Chronicle p21 D 12 '48 450w

LINCOLN, VICTORIA ENDICOTT (MRS VICTOR AUGUSTUS LOWE). Celia Amberley. 370p $3 Rinehart

49-10974

A detailed character study of Celia Amberley from the age of four, thru her high school and college years, until she reaches her early twenties. The time is during the Taft and Coolidge administrations; the setting Rhode Island, Philadelphia and Cambridge.

Booklist 46:98 N 15 '49

"For the discriminating reader."

Bookmark 9:56 D '49 50w

"Celia Amberley's story is handled far better than most, but there are still places where analytic terms obtrude to the detriment of the style and to the realization of the main character as a person rather than as a 'patient.' Still, Miss Lincoln is to be congratulated on the way in which she has used Celia's childhood experiences, remembered or suppressed, to explain the young woman Celia later becomes." Clare Jaynes

+ — Chicago Sun p11X O 23 '49 650w

"A distinguished piece of fiction. . . Behind the authoritative accuracy of personal detail in 'Celia Amberley' lies an equal, though less obvious, fidelity to the cultural climate of New Rich and Radcliffe in the war years and the '20's, a climate which still has contemporary meaning. Miss Lincoln makes, and possibly intends, no direct indictment, but the utter inadequacies of this environment, its failure to provide Celia with any kind of yardstick beyond her own integrity, are its own unanswerable indictment." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 18 '49 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

"A quite different type of novel from February Hill, and in its way as perceptive, though perhaps not as unusual. . . Celia's loneliness, her frustrations, her clutchings at the trappings of popularity are superbly conceived, convincingly presented. A searching psychological novel directed toward the adolescence of a girl much closer to the norm than the average heroine of modern novels."

+ Kirkus 17:440 Ag 15 '49 210w

"A leisurely, probing novel showing all the thought processes of Celia Amberley's mind. Huge, reflective, substantial. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:1202 S 1 '49 70w

"'Celia Amberley' is an excellent study of a girl's growing up—any girl's—her growing, developing, reverting and developing again, responding to the changing impulses within her and the changing environment that the years and the changes within herself produce. It is also a masterly and subtly observed report on social snobbery and the impact of social class upon the mores of an American high school. . . Miss Lincoln's inclination to use the lingo of the psychiatrists mars, occasionally, the generally persuasive naturalness of the novel." F. H. Bullock

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 23 '49 1250w

"To analyze this novel is to do it an injustice. 'Celia Amberley' stands as sound imaginative fiction, lively and penetrating, instructive and enjoyable." Nancy Lenkeith

+ N Y Times p4 O 16 '49 470w

"Miss Lincoln's intelligence and humor are such that she has caused us to follow her heroine every foot of the way. She has even managed to lure us past Celia's four years in high school—from a reader's point of view, the dreariest uphill years of life, full of acne and anguish—with a minimum of impatience and discomfort on our part. . . This is plainly not a major theme for a novel, and Miss Lincoln never mistakes it for one. 'Celia Amberley' may be small in scale, but it is in scale. Miss Lincoln's success is due in part to her adroit use of materials at hand." Brendan Gill

+ New Yorker 25:128 O 15 '49 650w

Reviewed by M. S. Douglas

Sat R of Lit 32:20 N 19 '49 550w

"Would interest mothers of teen-age daughters."

Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

"Celia Amberley is born in Philadelphia, grows up in Rhode Island, and goes to college at Radcliffe, falling in and out of love with various people along the way. That is about all there is to it, except for the fine-grained, humorous, sympathetic intelligence, the common sense, the excellent taste, and controlled, expert writing Miss Lincoln brings to bear on her narrative throughout. If this book has a fault, it lies in an excess of taste, in too much control. One wishes, perhaps, that the author would let herself go a little more." Paul Pickrel

+ Yale R n s 39:382 winter '50 220w

LINDBLOM, CHARLES EDWARD. Unions and capitalism. 267p $3.75 Yale univ. press

331.88 Capitalism. Trade unions 49-10401

"A study of economic trends induced by the growing power of unions, tending toward monopoly . . . 'an anti-competitive institution in a competitive environment'. Thesis is that

LINDBLOM, C. E.—Continued
mass unionization by industry rather than on a craft basis, with increasing government intervention, accelerates the process of controlling competition, overcoming employer resistance, cutting down the power of management; thus weakening the competitive price system, promoting syndicalist practices within industry to the disadvantage of consumers including union members. Authors sees some signs that the new union leadership, in formulating its longtime objectives, is recognizing the general good as an element in labor's own interest." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by A. J. Lien
Am Pol Sci R 43:1296 D '49 380w

Reviewed by Robert Dubin
Am Soc R 14:812 D '49 1550w

Booklist 46:43 O 1 '49

"A gloomy but thought-provoking book. The author knows and has studied the union movement in the United States. It is his gloomy conclusion that the unions are too powerful and will remain so." C. O. Rice
Commonweal 51:52 O 21 '49 460w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 17:224 O '49 1200w

"Not an easy book to digest, for it is a subject that requires the best thinking of economists, labor leaders and government officials, if the American worker is to continue to have the advantages in abundance and security which the American capitalist system has provided."
Kirkus 17:380 Jl 15 '49 190w

"Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1196 S 1 '49 140w

"Professor Lindblom's case is well presented and is fairly convincing. Yet [there] are a few reservations." S. E. Harris
+ — N Y Times p52 N 20 '49 490w

Reviewed by H. L. Lutz
N Y Times p52 N 20 '49 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 S 25 '49 400w

"This is far from an anti-union book, but it has little in its pages to cause joy among those unionists and intellectuals who contend that the presence of gargantuan labor organizations is an unqualified blessing to the nation or that the new power of labor unions has been, is or will be used beneficently for society as a whole." Wellington Roe
Sat R of Lit 32:13 O 1 '49 1100w

"Mr. Lindblom provides strong documentation for all his points. Though commonplace to those familiar with labor situations, his examples are fairly chosen and extremely well described. While this reviewer cannot agree with the extremes of the author's position, this readable and well-organized book raises a question which every thoughtful American and every trade unionist must consider and be prepared to treat realistically in the not too distant future." Frances Perkins
+ Yale R n s 39:349 winter '50 1500w

LINDHOLM, RICHARD WADSWORTH. Introduction to fiscal policy. 235p $2.75 Pitman

336.73 Finance. Finance—U.S. 48-9702

"The analyses in this volume are aimed at providing the student with a . . . discussion of the economic impact of government collection and creation of funds and the expenditure of these funds for goods and services or debt repayment. The discussions largely revolve around (1) the determination of what are desirable price levels, consumption levels, employment levels, and distribution of national income; and (2) the examination of how prices, consumption, employment, and distribution of the national income have been and can be influenced by fiscal activities." (Pref) The author is assistant professor of economics, Michigan State College. Suggested references and additional reading. Index.

"This book is a sincere effort to bring the problem of fiscal policy down to the level of the elementary student. If care is taken to supplement its materials with classroom discussion of the relevant underlying monetary and business cycle theory, it should fill a needed gap. The question may be raised, however, whether even in an 'Introduction' it would not have been advantageous to include some discussion of the latter along with the treatment of fiscal policy proper." K. E. Poole
+ — Am Econ R 39:785 Je '49 1150w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:823 My 15 '49 30w

LINDHOLM, RICHARD WADSWORTH. Public finance of air transportation. 178p $2.75 Ohio state univ. Bur. of business res.

387.713 Aeronautics, Commercial. Industry and state 48-45431

"A study of taxation and public expenditures in relation to the air transport industry. Gives a summary of tax and growth trends and analyzes the development, present status, and legal aspects of the principal types of taxes that affect the industry." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"An interesting and useful analysis. . . The book deserves study by those who are interested in public finance and taxation in the air transportation industry, and in the struggle of a new industry to expand at a relatively rapid rate." C. E. Puffer
+ Ann Am Acad 262:220 Mr '49 280w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:552 Ap 1 '49 40w

LINDMAN, MAJ JAN. Little folks' life of Jesus; stories; il. by [the author]. [26p] $2 Whitman, A.

232.9 Jesus Christ—Juvenile literature 49-421

A life of Jesus told in episodes: The wise men; The flight into Egypt; Jesus at the age of twelve in the temple; Jesus blesses little children; The Good Shepherd; Feeding the multitude; Jesus walks on the sea; The good Samaritan; Jesus rides into Jerusalem; Jesus before Pilate; The resurrection and ascension. Each story is accompanied by a full-page illustration in color.

Kirkus 17:109 Mr 1 '49 90w

"Twelve episodes in the life of Christ are simply told and beautifully illustrated in color. The material, carefully edited by the original Bible text, is nonsectarian, the wording is simple with short and concise sentences, and each story is accompanied by its own picture." Ethel Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 150w

"Beautifully and reverently told in picture and words, the book will be useful for little children in home, church and story telling groups. Also, third and fourth graders will be able to read it themselves."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:67 Ap '49

LINDSAY, HOWARD, and CROUSE, RUSSEL. Clarence Day's Life with mother; made into a play. 240p $3 Knopf

812 49-10536

The text of the play based on the sketches called Life With Mother.

Booklist 46:45 O 1 '49

Kirkus 17:345 Jl 1 '49 60w

"This latest rendering of the Clarence Day stories is delightful. More tenuous, but better constructed than Life With Father, it will have wide amateur production once the 1949-50 tour is over. Recommended to the larger drama collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1328 S 15 '49 50w

"The Day Family is here again set forth with the same rich humor and fundamental gentlemanliness. A delightful play, but sounding as if you had read it before—which to some of us, in this case, is no objection." W. P. Eaton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p34 S 25 '49 90w

Reviewed by Rochelle Gibson

Sat R of Lit 32:30 D 31 '49 150w

LINDSTROM, DAVID EDGAR. American rural life; a textbook in sociology; with an introd. by O. E. Baker. 385p il maps $4 Ronald

323.354 Sociology, Rural. Country life

48-3407

A textbook in sociology for students and professional workers in rural sociology. Discussion questions at end of each chapter. Suggested readings, maps, charts, and photographs. Index.

"While designed primarily for students of rural sociology, this study can be a valuable source book for all public health workers in rural areas. It would be hard to find a volume which could so well orient the newcomer in rural health service on the total setting of rural life in which he works. As health agencies have awakened to the importance of gaining the widest community understanding of public health programs, books of this type become as indispensable as manuals of communicable disease control." M. I. Roemer

+ Am J Pub Health 39:90 Ja '49 500w

"This 'rural sociology' is good but not excellent. . . The book is strong on social action and weak on theory, much of the material appearing in outline form with limited and superficial elaboration. . . Lindstrom does not over-emphasize any particular region; in fact, he shows the lack of any direct 'southern exposure.' His style is simple, and his illustrations are well chosen. The book should appeal to agricultural extension workers, vocational agriculture teachers, and rural community leaders generally." R. T. McMillan

Am Soc R 14:187 F '49 220w

"The work contains a great deal of useful information both for the student and the layman interested in rural life. However, it makes extensive use of evaluative and imprecise terminology which may cause some concern to social scientists. The book is sprinkled throughout with such terms as 'good,' 'bad,' 'better,' 'more,' and 'most.'" N. L. Whetten

+ — Ann Am Acad 261:208 Ja '49 370w

School & Society 68:79 Jl 31 '48 10w

"There are a number of things of a critical nature to be said about the volume; entirely within the orbit of the general objectives set forth by the author. Certainly the text could be more inclusive than it is. . . The extended treatment of rural institutions is unquestionably the strongest feature of the book. . . The chapter on rural population is spotty and uncritical. No indication is given of the difficulties involved in the census classification of the rural farm and rural non-farm populations. . . Perhaps some of these criticisms are of minor importance. The book possesses merit as a compilation of useful data and practical suggestions. It may also prove to be useful as a text, particularly in a community organization course." Vernon Davies

+ — Social Forces 27:443 My '49 550w

"Should enable rural young men and women to become acquainted with the basic sociology of rural life, in a national rather than a local setting."

+ Social Studies 39:380 D '48 40w

LINEBARGER, PAUL MYRON ANTHONY (FELIX C. FORREST, CARMICHAEL SMITH, pseuds). Atomsk; a novel of suspense. 224p $2.50 Duell

49-2999

A spy story about Major Michael Andreanov Duggan, a U. S. army espionage agent, and his attempt to penetrate behind the iron curtain, leave evidence of his visit, and return to the United States.

Booklist 45:314 My 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun My 13 '49 140w

"Snappy, fast moving and fast thinking thriller."

+ Kirkus 17:97 F 15 '49 70w

"Seems that Carmichael Smith is the pseudonym of a former government espionage expert. He speaks five languages. His English could be improved by less frequent use of the verb 'to stare' when he means 'to look,' though to be sure that is correct usage in the lower whodunit brackets." Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 My 29 '49 180w

"The idea might come through more clearly if the author were capable of portraying any people at all, let alone the Russian; as it is, he offers merely a crowd of wooden stereotypes in a singularly lifeless story. The one possible exception is his protagonist: Major Michael Andreanov Dugan (half-black Irish, half Aleut), the most superhumanly spectacular secret agent since Tommy Hambledon or even since Cleek of the Forty Faces—with the difference that his exploits are written with deadpan seriousness." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p11 Je 12 '49 230w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

— San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 17 '49 50w

LINKLATER, ERIC. The pirates in the deep green sea; a story for children; il. by William Reeves. 398p $3.50 Macmillan

[49-5189]

A fantastic story of two small boys whose home is on a small island off the coast of Scotland. Timothy and Hew, and their friend and guardian Sam Sturgeon, in their search for pirate treasure become acquainted with a number of curious and unusual characters—Cully, the singing octopus, and his friend Miss Dilly, Davy Jones and Gunner Bolles who is a veteran of the Battle of Trafalgar, among others.

Booklist 46:52 O 1 '49

"It is all very jolly and exciting, as well as excellently written." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:411 S '49 120w

"A specialty book for more imaginative children."

Kirkus 17:324 Jl 1 '49 170w

"Though limited in its appeal, the tale has such vigor and originality that the children who accept it will undoubtedly ask for more." Mary Strang

Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 80w

"Agreeable, home-spun magic." Aylmer Vallance

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:530 N 5 '49 240w

"Hurrah for another long, richly fantastic, nonsensical and wholly English story by the author of that rare book, 'Wind on the Moon.' The Library Association of England awarded this one its Carnegie Medal, which is their parallel to our Newberry Medal." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 14 '49 360w

"Those who read 'The Wind on the Moon,' whimsically published in this country as an adult's book, know how exuberant is Mr. Linklater's fantasy. In this book, however, it is more controlled, and much better scaled to the interests of 8-to-12-year-old readers. Mr. Linklater is rather longwinded but his action is brisk, his details are amusing and ingenious, and his nicest quality is the way he shares his highly individual humor with youngsters just as if they were grown up." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 31 '49 250w

"You may puzzle over this one from England, but eight- to eleven-year-old children, especially comics addicts, won't. Overlong but well written and much more convincing than it sounds in summary. . . The pen-and-ink drawings are fanciful, yet precise and droll."

+ New Yorker 25:172 D 3 '49 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 20w

LINKLATER, ERIC—Continued

"The incidents are as rich in invention as the characters, and the quality of the writing, the illustrations and the whole production set a standard which very few children's books can touch."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p iii Jl 15 '49 370w

LINTNER, JOHN VIRGIL. Mutual savings banks in the savings and mortgage markets. 559p $6.50 Harvard univ. Division of research

332.24 Savings banks. Mortgages 49-7233

"The first part of this study has chapters on such topics as the changing position of savings banks in the savings market, the limited area served by mutual savings banks, the importance of insurance as a competing medium of saving, the changing position of mutual savings banks among private savings depositories, and services and policies which might improve the position of mutual savings banks among private thrift institutions. Part II opens with chapters on the investment policies and operating position of mutual savings banks. There follows a thorough analysis of the mortgage loan business of these banks." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"Altogether, Professor Lintner has presented an enormous and comprehensive mass of valuable material in what appears to this reviewer a definitive form. It is unlikely that this book will be superseded in the foreseeable future." W. F. Stolper

+ Ann Am Acad 266:204 N '49 600w

"Although of necessity technical in many of its details, the study is clearly written, well organized, and constitutes a contribution to the field of financial and business research."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:195 Je '49 300w

LINTON, RALPH, ed. Most of the world; the peoples of Africa, Latin America, and the East today. 917p maps $5.50 Columbia univ. press

909.82 Africa. Latin America. East 49-161

Contents: Natural resources in most of the world, by H. A. Meyerhoff; World population trends, by S. W. Reed; Mestizo America, by John Gillin; Brazil, by Charles Wagley; Race relations and policies in southern and eastern Africa, by H. J. Simons; West and Central Africa, by W. R. Bascom; North Africa, by C. S. Coon; The Near East, by F. L. W. Richardson, Jr., with James Batal; India and Pakistan, by Daniel and Alice Thorner; Southeast Asia and Indonesia, by Raymond Kennedy; China, by F. L. K. Hsu; Japan and the Japanese, 1868-1945, by D. G. Haring. Index.

Reviewed by G. M. Foster

Am Anthropol 51:474 Jl '49 850w

Reviewed by W. J. Cahnman

Am J Soc 55:106 Jl '49 1250w

Reviewed by W. R. Crawford

Am Soc R 14:319 Ap '49 650w

Booklist 45:208 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 16:167 Mr '49 1100w

Foreign Affairs 27:682 Jl '49 20w

"A thorough and comprehensive study of the peoples and countries of most of the world."

+ Kirkus 17:20 Ja 1 '49 140w

"Timely reference book. Highly recommended." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 74:125 Ja 15 '49 110w

Nation 168:137 Ja 29 '49 70w

"This symposium contains a wealth of up-to-date information on the cultures and peoples of Africa, Latin America and the East. . . Inevitably some of the articles stand out from the others. The discussion of India and Pakistan by Daniel and Alice Thorner is excellent. . . Another exceptionally fine article is the one by William Bascom on West and Central Africa. . . Dr. Linton has succeeded in maintaining an exceptionally high level of quality, a tribute to the wisdom with which he chose the contributors to this volume." C. S. Ford

+ N Y Times p17 F 27 '49 650w

Reviewed by E. R. Leach

Pacific Affairs 22:318 S '49 550w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Mr 13 '49 950w

"This book will be of especial value to geographers because a reasonable knowledge of geography will explain so many of its unexplained statements of fact and explain its occasional errors." J. R. Smith

Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ag 27 '49 850w

School & Society 69:326 Ap 30 '49 40w

"The volume is packed with up-to-the-minute information on how people are living; the effects of the war; agricultural and industrial trends; political, educational, and religious features; racial mixtures and customs. It is a dependable storehouse for all concerned with the world social problems which we are bound to face in the years ahead." H. B. Stevens

+ Survey 85:117 F '49 400w

LINTON, RALPH, and LINTON, ADELIN SUMNER (BRIGGS) HOHFELD. We gather together; the story of Thanksgiving. 100p il $2 Schuman

394.268 Thanksgiving day 49-11932

Study of the background and history of the American Thanksgiving feast. Index.

Kirkus 17:568 O 1 '49 100w

"Though brief, this book should aid students, teachers, and librarians who need authoritative information on this unique American day of gratitude. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:1600 O 15 '49 100w

"It would be a good thing for the country if this little book should come to be read aloud in the family every year in Thanksgiving Week. . . Warmhearted, intensely American, it never slops over into sentimentality, keeps well within the record and yet weaves the celebration as we know it here with the harvest festivals of all time and all the world. An eminent anthropologist and a trained newspaperwoman collaborated on this book." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 27 '49 500w

"Useful as well as interesting."

+ Wis Lib Bul p4 N '49

LIPPITT, RONALD. Training in community relations; a research exploration toward new group skills. 286p $3.50 Harper

301.152 Group work. Leadership. Intercultural education 49-9632

"Second volume in the Research Center for Group Dynamics Series. Record of the Connecticut experiment in effective ways of teaching the individual and group skills required for dealing with problems of intergroup relations by combining the methodology of social research, social action, and education." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Kirkus 17:248 My 1 '49 220w

"Important, but organized and phrased for the specialist only. Therefore recommended for depth collections in education and sociology. Real need for translation of this material for popular use." R. E. Kingery

Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 90w

School & Society 69:455 Je 25 '49 30w

Reviewed by Hilda Taba

Social Educ 41:47 Ja '50 400w

"'Training in Community Relations' is a vital link in an important sequence of publications. It is not merely another interesting and instructive piece of writing. It constitutes an integral part of a dynamic sequence in the development of new group skills in the realm of social conflict and social change." C. E. Hendry

+ Survey 85:687 D '49 600w

LIPSON, LESLIE. Politics of equality; New Zealand's adventures in democracy. 520p $6 Univ. of Chicago press

342.931 New Zealand—Politics and government 48-6780

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"This volume is both a full length, critical study of the politics and administration of New Zealand and an important contribution to comparative government. Having served for eight years as professor of political science in the University of New Zealand, Mr. Lipson writes with an intimate knowledge of the democracy which is the focus of his study. He is also thoroughly familiar with the political institutions of Britain, Australia, and the United States." Louise Overacker

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:369 Ap '49 700w

"The book is one of the most scholarly studies of the subject that has been written, and the detailed evidence which it contains will be helpful to a few experts. But it would be more serviceable to the general public if it were about half its length, and if the author had omitted some of the detail and had avoided the wearisome repetition which so often clogs his narrative." D. J. McDougall

+ — Canadian Hist R 30:351 D '49 280w

Reviewed by A. G. B. Fisher

Pacific Affairs 22:104 Mr '49 1250w

"A thorough and comprehensive description of New Zealand government and politics."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:341 S '48 200w

LITTEN, FREDERIC NELSON. Treasure bayou. 223p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

49-11234

"The Cajun marsh country in Louisiana forms [the] background for this tale of oil production in 1935. Chris Lane, the 17-year-old protagonist, is not a Cajun but has grown up in the marshland, hating it. The discovery of oil on his land seems his chance for college and escape. But soon he is drawn into a violent conflict between the ruthless oil promoters, who cheat the Cajuns, and the idealistic efforts of his best friend to drill a cooperative well for them. When a tough driller resorts to sabotage, Chris lines up with the practical idealists." N Y Times

"The whole is smooth, seemingly effortless, succeeding neatly in the effect sought by the writer. For teenagers, 'Treasure Bayou' might be called one of this season's musts." H. T. Kane

+ Chicago Sun p6X N 13 '49 300w

"There is real feeling here for the Bayou country, much information on the oil-drilling industry, and a memorable character in the person of an old Cajun philosofer-trapper. Notable, too, is the author's attempt to present not only two sides, but all sides, of the natural resources problem. Unfortunately, he overdoes it." Vernon Ives

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 150w

"This is a profoundly shocking book,—ugly, snarling, vicious, permeated with race epithets and dog-eat-dog philosophy, with false standards, against a cynical, would-be masculine atmosphere."

— Kirkus 17:514 S 15 '49 210w

"The book has a fine feeling for the little people who get pushed around in the name of progress but manages to be fair to both sides in the conflict." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1553 O 15 '49 70w

"For older boys the book offers mature plot, action and characterization." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p42 D 4 '49 110w

LIVINGSTON, ROBERT STANLEY. Physico chemical experiments. rev ed 267p $3.50 Macmillan

541.072 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical —Laboratory manuals 48-10129

Contents: Measurements, errors, and computations; The gaseous state; The liquid state; The solid state; The structure of atoms; Physical properties and molecular constitution; Solutions; Thermochemistry; Equilibrium; Heterogeneous equilibrium; Chemical kinetics; Electrical conductance; Equilibria involving ions; Electromotive force; Electrolysis and polarization; Photochemistry; The colloidal state; Appendix. Index. "Two experiments have been added and one dropped, but no major change in either plan or concept has been made in the present revision of this college laboratory manual." (N Y New Tech Bks)

"The first chapter on measurement, errors and the error theory, is especially interesting." Julian Sohon

+ Library J 74:552 Ap 1 '49 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:19 Mr '49

LLOYD, MARGARET. Borzoi book of modern dance. 356p il $5 Knopf

793.32 Dancing. Dancers 49-7736

"Attempts to give an over-all picture of the development of modern dance in the U.S. through biographies of the people who, in the author's opinion, have made the greatest individual creative contributions to the dance. One section discusses unusual aid that has been given to dancing groups by critics, sponsors, directors, teachers, and magazines, and another section gives biographies of choreographers of stage, television, and movies." (Booklist) Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 45:217; 238 Mr 1 '49; Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by Ann Barzel

Chicago Sun Je 8 '49 20w

"Miss Lloyd's book is really several books. It is a well-organized genealogy (illustrated with 43 fine photographs), a discerning critical inventory, and an intriguing personality parade. Above all, it is the saga of an American adventure in esthetic expression." Theodore Kalem

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 17 '49 1150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

"A good reference book on this subject, with a worthwhile bibliography."

+ Kirkus 17:25 Ja 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 74:549 Ap 1 '49 20w

Library J 74:1616 O 15 '49 40w

"The pace is swift, the style informal; one senses discernment, critical enjoyment through long years of watching the modern dance. The all-pervasive knowledge of this art more than atones for a possible inaccuracy or occasional misstatement of some minor fact. Good photographs, a serviceable bibliography, and an index are added assets, but the book's the thing, provocative and delightful for layman and expert, for musician, composer, choreographer, costumer, artist—and, of course, for the modern dancer." A. S. Plaut

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:473 Je '49 500w

"The whole thing is informally and delightfully written, utterly feminine and altogether personal. . . Taking advantage of her feminine prerogative, Miss Lloyd is on occasion willfully obtuse. She dismisses Rudolf von Laban highhandedly—his dance notation system, in particular. . . She is also no model of factual accuracy. For example, Dalcroze Eurythmics did not precede but followed Isadora's beginnings. . . Whatever reservations one may have to make, this is a book of scope and authority. Not profound in any sense, but thoroughly aware; touched with bias here and there, as any honest work of opinion is almost bound to be; guaranteed to make everybody slightly furious about once in three pages. Written with a contagious pleasure in words and their manipulation, this is the first alive, provocative and creative (if Miss Lloyd will forgive the word) book on the dance that we have had in a long time." John Martin

+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 20 '49 800w

New Yorker 25:124 Ap 9 '49 100w

"Miss Lloyd has undoubtedly performed a valuable service by bringing together a great deal of factual data on the subject at hand. There is throughout the volume, however, an apparent superficiality, and a rather dubious gossipy quality." R. T.

LLOYD, MARGARET—Continued
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 17 '49 220w

"Margaret Lloyd, the dance reviewer of The Christian Science Monitor, has done valuable work presenting the modernists' side of the case, often in their own words. Hers is the first book of its kind, and it is subject to all the virtues and failings of the trailbreaker. Enough material is present, though, to make it a handy reference for the backgrounds and accomplishments of the leading modern dancers." Rosalyn Krokover
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:21 Ap 30 '49 360w
School & Society 70:207 S 24 '49 50w

LOBAUGH, MRS ELMA K. I am afraid. 185p $2.25 Doubleday 49-4525

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun Jl 1 '49 80w
Kirkus 17:219 Ap 15 '49 70w

"Unfortunately, the narrator is so unappealingly dullwitted and emotionally unbuttoned that it is hard to feel concern for [the heroine's] plight." Elizabeth Bullock
— N Y Times p13 Jl 3 '49 140w

"Almost any woman except the ninny named Dorothy who relates this tale would walk out abruptly on the household she describes, between fits of the vapors."
— New Yorker 25:68 Jl 9 '49 110w

LOBELL, NATHAN DAVID, and LOBELL, GRISELDA G. Shadow and the blot. 240p $2.50 Harper 49-7822

Detective story.

"A fresh and ebullient piece of writing, obviously done with high spirits and loving care. . . The novel has the profusion of inexperience but it has the excitement of discovery as well. I found it teasing, steadily absorbing for its carefully wrought puzzle and its use of a mass of learning all bent happily to the puzzle and its surprising solution." James Sandoe
+ — Chicago Sun Mr 18 '49 230w
Kirkus 17:15 Ja 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Mr 20 '49 230w

"The intricate plot is sound, but the distinction of this mystery lies in its style—polished, literary, allusive or straight Bronx. Slyly satirical and tricky writing; entertainment for the lit'ry set." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p14 Mr 13 '49 110w

"The book is well planned and interesting, but could have stood some toning down."
+ — New Yorker 25:107 Mr 19 '49 120w

"Excellent detecting, shrewd plotting, deep dissection of sundry neuroses (maybe too much), rich Manhattan backgrounds, rich and poor; and high suspense. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ap 9 '49 40w

LOCHLONS, COLIN. Stretch Smith makes a basket. 194p $2.25 Crowell 49-2205

Story of how a gangling country boy made good at basketball in a city junior high school. For boys from 10 to 13.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

"The characterization of the art teacher will exasperate any modern educator or parent and will, unfortunately, solidify many readers' antagonism to teachers." Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Jl 30 '49 450w

"It is a good story, with lots of sound basketball material, plus a fair balance of emphasis on school work, school activities, group spirit, self government, adult and junior interrelationship. The pattern of achievement is in the groove, but the pace of story and the naturalness of characters and situation will hold the interest of the average reader."
+ Kirkus 17:30 Ja 15 '49 160w

"A bit on the goody-goody side but not really objectionable. Authentic gymnasium and classroom atmosphere." Lillian Morrison
Library J 74:382 Mr 1 '49 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 10 '49 50w

"A fast-moving story filled with practical coaching hints for young basketball fans. The author himself is a coach. His realistic characterization of the pupils and teachers, with their faults but also with their fundamental goodwill, is admirable. The plot is worked out with real suspense yet without descending to melodrama. Wisely aimed at a younger audience than that of the Tunis and Harkins stories, the book has larger type and simpler language. Warmly recommended." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p30 My 8 '49 150w
Wis Lib Bul 45:91 My '49

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Dishonest murderer. 223p $2.50 Lippincott 49-48150

Detective story.

Bookmark 9:56 D '49 50w

"Like the others, its settings and its accents are urban and its principal characters a rather pleasing assortment. But while its pace and literacy and its diversity as well as its flicks of amusement will keep one reading contentedly, it seems a frail business as a novel and as a murder case. Its principal victim is a liberal senator who may have turned apostate. By keeping him and the rest of the cast just intangible enough to prevent any conclusions about them, the Lockridges postpone a still pretty obvious discovery until the murderer obliges with a confession." James Sandoe
+ — Chicago Sun p73 D 9 '49 150w

"A routine Mr. and Mrs. North mystery, which means a good one."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 D 11 '49 180w

"'The Dishonest Murderer' is well plotted, smooth and urbane. It has good suspense, and the delineation of the strengths and frailties of the human beings involved in the crime is interesting." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p10 D 25 '49 200w

"The characters are real and attractive, but the plot is not as tidy as some these authors have thought up."
+ — New Yorker 25:156 D 10 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 25 '49 100w

LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Matter of taste. 250p $2.75 Lippincott
49-10005

"Examines the thought processes of a middle-aged epicure who sets about committing a wholly motiveless murder mainly so he can savor the sensation of it. Approaching the matter much as he would a dinner at a faultless restaurant, the man . . . selects his weapon and his victim with a connoisseur's eye, gets away with his first violent experiment, and is about to conduct a second when he is forestalled by the unimaginative intervention of the police." New Yorker

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 18 '49 360w

"A slightly Jamesian, well-written exercise in morbidity and suspense following now well-established channels. This is Mr. Lockridge's first novel written 'solo', and its cold-blooded inhumanity is a far cry from the warmth and humor of the Mr. and Mrs. North mystery novels." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 74:1094 Ag '49 70w

"This solo performance by a collaborator, with Frances Lockridge, in the Mr. and Mrs. North stories, may strike you as a surprisingly cold-blooded affair. But then, that was the idea and Mr. Lockridge cushions it nicely with words for the polite customer." Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 21 '49 270w

"The book begins as the weariest of psychological thrillers, a still more pallid 'Against the Grain.' But it concludes as a competent and entertaining detective story." Albert Guerard, Jr.

+ — N Y Times p8 Ag 21 '49 600w

"The ending is weak, but the character study and style lift the work out of the thriller category."

+ — New Yorker 25:107 S 10 '49 120w

"There remains to be said only that Mr. Lockridge understands superbly well how to tell this kind of tale and get the most out of it. In some hands Oliver Hillard would become simply a monster, a creature in whom you just couldn't believe. As Mr. Lockridge does it—and perhaps this is the real secret of the book's success—you can't help believing in Oliver, even though you'd much rather not." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 15 '49 700w

"Mr. Lockridge has done an interesting job of it, within his own set limits. Oliver Hillard is an interesting figure without being an important one, and his history too is interesting without being profound. 'A Matter of Taste' rests easily in that shadowy realm just above murder thrillers and just below novels of character."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 Ag 27 '49 320w

LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD, and LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS) Spin your web, lady! 218p $2.50 Lippincott

49-7468

Detective story.

Booklist 45:337 Je 1 '49

"Here, while the Lockridges' week-end party materials are familiar, their use of them has been fresh." James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Ap 8 '49 140w

"Smooth writing lures you on and on." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Ap 3 '49 150w

"Even if the solution is surprisingly unsurprising, the Lockridges have again presented us with the civilized mystery of manners at its suavest." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p28 Ap 3 '49 180w

"A bit below par for the Lockridges."

— New Yorker 25:107 Ap 2 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

— San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 17 '49 70w

Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

LOEVINGER, LEE. Law of free enterprise; how to recognize and maintain the American economic system [pub] in association with Modern industry magazine. 431p $5 Funk

347.7 Capitalism. Commercial law 49-7064

"This book can be divided into three parts. There are two introductory chapters in which the author—a practicing attorney who writes for the general reader—traces the historical antecedents of free enterprise and the legal basis for governmental control of economic activity. The treatment of the subject-matter in these chapters is conventional. . . The second part of the book consists of five chapters in which the author attempts to summarize business practices which the courts consider violations of the various statutes commonly described as anti-trust laws. . . The third part of the book consists of a concluding chapter on the future of free enterprise." (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by B. F. Cataldo

Ann Am Acad 266:197 N '49 550w

"Written primarily for laymen, the discussion of trade practices common to our society should interest lawyers as well. The author's contention that 'free enterprise' is a dynamic and changing concept, capable of preservation through efficient administration of anti-trust legislation, is forcefully presented."

Columbia Law R 49:874 Je '49 100w

"Highly original work. . . In addition to its general social and economic interest, it is an excellent business man's guide to trade practices."

+ Management R 38:234 Ap '49 80w

"The book throughout is a curious blend of perceptiveness and naïveté. . . The deficiencies, if deficiencies they are and not just products of misplaced emphasis in my own reading of the cases, do not deprive the book of a major usefulness. Loevinger has made a notable attempt to bring clarity and predictability into a confused and disordered field. To the businessman he has pointed out many of the pitfalls that await the exercise of a judgment uninstructed in the laws governing business conduct. And he has brought within the reach of the persevering lay reader some understanding of the basic features and traditions of the laws of free enterprise." J. O. Levinson

+ — New Repub 120:22 My 23 '49 1350w

"Business men (especially those owning small firms and therefore unable to hire adequate legal counsel) will find [the] outline of trade practices very helpful; members of the legal profession should find Mr. Loevinger's book a handy reference guide. Students of economics specializing in industrial organization, marketing and social control of business will undoubtedly be grateful for the convenient summary of these complicated issues. . . The last chapter is disappointing because of the sketchy treatment of the complex procedures involved in restoring a competitive economy." Eli Shapiro

+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 16 '49 950w

LOEWENGARD, HEIDI HUBERTA (FREYBE) (MARTHA ALBRAND, pseud). After midnight. 248p $2.75 Random house

48-28176

An American, who had worked with the underground during the war, returned to the Italian island where he had been betrayed, this time in connection with legal proceedings over a lost Titian. There he met the girl he loved, whom he had thought dead. He was able to solve the mystery of the Titian, and clear the name of the man who was supposed to have betrayed the underground workers, but once more he lost Julia.

Booklist 45:113; 192 D 1 '48; F 1 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 210w

"The story has momentum, suspense, and glamour plus. Good popular reading at a high level."

+ Kirkus 16:579 N 1 '48 250w

"Plot cleverly developed, with plenty of action and tense situations, and solution to both problems. Excellent portrayal of aristocratic family and peasant characters. Good entertainment. Paramount will film." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 80w

"Miss Albrand tells a story as exciting as any thriller. Her suspense lies not so much in crime detection as in an emotional suspicion of guilt, but it is just as valid a theme. And Miss Albrand's knowledge of background, her portrayal of character, quite lift the novel out of the standard thriller class." Anne Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 F 6 '49 600w

"If writing is to be thought of merely in terms of putting words together, Miss Albrand writes well. Although it seems impossible that anyone could ever doubt that the happy ending is forthcoming, she has achieved at least a modicum of suspense." W. E. Preece

N Y Times p25 F 6 '49 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 20 '49 100w

LOEWENGARD, H. H.—Continued

"'After Midnight' is as delicately assembled as a Swiss watch, and it ticks along to its midnight hour with infallible accuracy. The characters . . . are soundly drawn, and their emotions and reticences are believable. Nevertheless, in spite of its charm, its emotional content, and its appealing to the imagination, it seems almost too deliberately contrived to sweep the reader off his feet, or perhaps to have it recalled to the memory in a year's time. There is an art in this kind of writing, and the creator and designer of it is thus, in her way, an artist. It is 'slick' writing at its best, and there are thousands who will read it with that momentary pleasure and satisfaction that comes from the achievement of any degree of perfection in literature." Harrison Smith

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:41 Ja 29 '49 650w

"There is a glowing romantic situation here, beautifully poised in the opening sequence, marred later by the intricacy of recapitulation and exposition that seem to have caught the author despite herself, until she labours through them to a keener climax." Sylva Norman

Spec 183:648 N 11 '49 170w

"The suspense gives the story a certain elementary entertainment value. The writing, however, is clumsy, and some of the characterization absurd. The aristocratic Italian family, for instance, is ruled over by a sinister matriarch who—in 1949!—refuses to allow her daughter to marry a prosperous young American on the grounds of unsuitability."

Times [London] Lit Sup p709 N 4 '49 200w

LOEWENSTEIN, F. E., ed. Bernard Shaw through the camera. 128p $4 Baker & Taylor

B or 92 Shaw, George Bernard

A volume of photographs of George Bernard Shaw, his family, and friends. Brief captions only; the pictures are undated. Includes a chronology of his plays and his personal life.

Booklist 45:177 Ja 15 '49

"The pictures are undated and inadequately documented. Nonetheless recommended." George Freedley

Library J 73:1821 D 15 '48 60w

Reviewed by Lewis Robbins

N Y Times p24 Ja 30 '49 400w

LOFTS, MRS NORAH (ROBINSON). Calf for Venus. 253p $2.75 Doubleday

49-7634

Novel describing a young doctor's unsuccessful efforts to rescue a waitress from a notorious English coffee house. The story is told against a background of early nineteenth-century smuggling.

Booklist 45:202; 210 F 15 '49

"Well told, dramatic in spots, and entirely mature in outlook, the author holds the readers' interest in a problem as old as yesterday and as new as tomorrow."

Cath World 169:79 Ap '49 170w

"The author's storytelling is paradoxically ingenuous and sophisticated, with, at times, a welcome acidity."

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 My 12 '49 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '49

"Within its familiar frame of decorative drama, good deeds and evil doings, this provides entertainment."

Kirkus 16:577 N 1 '48 150w

"Great excitement, fine medicine for post-holiday colds. Recommended." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 73:1743 D 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 20 '49 380w

"Miss Lofts has transported us comfortably back to an era where antiquity plays its own tricks on the imagination. This author is an old hand at summoning atmosphere from the past. Deftly she sets the stage for any amount of old English skulduggery. The settings are made with the same skill which Miss Lofts has used before to resurrect history. When her tale is all over, one is tempted to wonder whether there could be in all the world as lovesick a calf as Humphrey? . . It is a tribute to the skillful management of Miss Lofts (and, of course, Jupiter) that while the drama is in progress, none of these considerations is worth a moment's thought." Isabelle Mallet

+ — N Y Times p22 Mr 13 '49 320w

"The one halfway interesting person involved, an adventurer named Plant Driscoll, makes an appearance every once in a while, but not often enough to keep things lively."

— New Yorker 25:94 F 26 '49 100w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 9 '49 650w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe

Sat R of Lit 32:13 F 26 '49 600w

Reviewed by Robert Kee

Spec 182:492 Ap 8 '49 140w

LOFTS, MRS NORAH (ROBINSON). Women in the Old Testament. 178p $2.50 Macmillan

221.92 Women in the Bible 49-11604

"Psychological portraits" of twenty women mentioned in the Old Testament. Contents: The general background; Sarah and Hagar; Rebekah; Leah and Rachel; Potiphar's wife; Rahab; Jephthah's daughter; Deborah and Jael; Delilah; Ruth; Michal; Bathsheba; The woman of En-dor; A nameless woman; The Queen of Sheba; Jezebel; Naaman's wife's little maid; Esther.

Booklist 46:114 D 1 '49

"An unusually fine collection of Bible studies which Protestant preachers and Bible teachers should fall upon avidly."

+ Kirkus 17:545 O 1 '49 160w

"Well written biographies. . . Recommended for its sincerity of purpose and its vivid re-creation of Bible times." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 74:1196 S 1 '49 110w

+ Library J 74:1559 O 15 '49 70w

"Mrs. Lofts' has filled in her 'twenty psychological portraits' with such a depth and breadth that these women become moving, breathing persons, planning and thinking and loving, and acting their parts in the vivid drama of their people." G. R. Stephenson

+ N Y Times p26 D 11 '49 270w

"A group of intriguing character studies."

+ Wis Lib Bul p4 N '49

LOGAN, HAROLD AMOS. Trade unions in Canada, their development and functioning. 639p $5 Macmillan

331.88 Trade unions—Canada 48-3282

"While the trade union movement in Canada is more than a century old, its greatest advances have been made within the past fifteen years. . . The story of this growth is a vital part of our living history. . . Here at last the scattered threads are pulled together, and out of labor's early struggles, false starts, defeats and victories there emerges the picture of a flourishing and mature movement that is only at the beginning of its creative social function. . . The book is fundamentally a factual history, but including the attitudes and demands of labor bodies as well as the events that befell them. Substantial chapters are devoted to the development of unions in particular industries, so that the rise and fall of earlier unions becomes part of the background of those now operating." (Canadian Forum) Bibliography. Index.

"Careful analysis of trade unionism inevitably portrays complexity rather than simplicity. Professor Logan's latest volume offers a stout staff for the rugged upward climb of the serious student of the Canadian economy. For the fulfillment of this purpose the careful Index which the book contains is indispensable." V. C. Fowke

+ Ann Am Acad 261:207 Ja '49 400w

"Professor Logan, in this book, crowns a lifetime of research with an achievement that approaches the monumental. . . There are many ways in which so broad a subject might have been treated. Professor Logan has chosen to be descriptive and narrative rather than philosophical and interpretative. . . There is hardly a corner of the labor field that is not incorporated into the texture of this study." F. R. Scott
+ Canadian Forum 28:141 S '48 1250w

"Professor Logan's new book fills a long-felt need of the student of the labour problem in Canada. The product of prodigious research, it is much more than a revision of his earlier work on the same subject. . . One of the most important effects of Professor Logan's book will probably be the stimulus it will give to research into all phases of the Canadian labour movement. Almost any of his chapters could well serve as the basis of more extended investigation." W. K. Bryden
+ Canadian Hist R 29:430 D '48 1100w

"Logan has accumulated a welter of important information. Students of labor owe him a heavy debt for making available so many facts and figures about the Canadian labor movement. Since little had ever been done on this subject, the author set himself a gigantic task. It is no mean accomplishment even for a team of researchers to gather from original sources exhaustive information on all facets of a national labor movement. It is virtually impossible for any one individual to do so. It would, therefore, be unfair to expect Logan's book to exhaust all the subjects on which he touches. When viewed in that perspective, the numerous gaps become readily understandable and, what is more important, perfectly acceptable." Joseph Shister
+ — J Pol Econ 57:252 Je '49 650w

LOGAN, HARRY BRITTON, and COSPER, LLOYD CLAGGETT. Orchids are easy to grow; drawings by Lynette Arouni. 312p $6 Ziff-Davis

635.93415 Orchids 49-3867

The first part of this manual on orchid culture contains chapters on The rules of orchid culture; Orchids in the home: Greenhouses; Composts; Potting; Propagation; etc. Part two: Orchids you may grow devotes separate chapters to descriptions of various types of orchids. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49

"Competent volume, sufficiently authentic but not too technical, practical without lapsing into too great simplification." R. S. Lemmon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 6 '49 70w

LOGAN, MRS MILLA (ZENOVICH). Cousins and commissars; an intimate visit to Tito's Yugoslavia. 222p $2.75 Scribner

914.97 Yugoslavia—Description and travel 49-11123

An account, modest, warm-hearted, and humorous, of the author's visit to the tiny Yugoslavia village which had been her mother's childhood home. Tho an American born and bred, with an American husband, the author's life-time ties with her mother's people were so close that she conveys fully her feeling of "going home" on a visit.

Booklist 46:1; 62 S 1 '49; O 15 '49

Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 40w

"It offers a worthy companion piece to Live with Laughter [Book Review Digest 1947] and is a biographical-travel book which does not belabor political questions and does leave the answers to the reader. Very nice."
+ Kirkus 17:524 S 15 '49 190w

"Sincere evaluation of her experiences is lighted by a charming humor. Recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 74:1458 O 1 '49 130w

"One of the virtues of the book is that the author doesn't burden you with long and unpronounceable Serbo-Croat names as she introduces you to the members of her family. She refers to them instead as my White Cousin, my Lawyer Cousin . . . and so on. And she tells their stories with such clarity and sympathy that you feel when she has finished that you know and like them well." W. H. Lawrence
+ N Y Times p16 O 16 '49 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 18 '49 1000w

"If the reader wants the political and military low-down on the Tito-Stalin feud, he will be disappointed in this book. There is a minimum of politics and ideology, and no military or diplomatic exposés. The cousins, in short, far outnumber the commissars. But if the reader wants a close-up of some of the Yugoslav people, he will find this a highly enlightening volume." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 N 5 '49 800w

Wis Lib Bul p9 D '49

LOGAN, RAYFORD WHITTINGHAM. African mandates in world politics. 220p $4; pa $3 Public affairs press

960 Mandates. Germany—Colonies 49-1742

"The history of Germany's efforts to regain control of her former colonies in Africa between the two world wars, based in considerable part on the minutes of the British Parliament, the French Chamber of Deputies and the Reichstag. Mimeographed." (Foreign Affairs) Chapter references. Index.

Reviewed by Vernon McKay
Am Hist R 55:215 O '49 320w

"The book is marred by numerous errors in spelling and poor typing in the copy used for processing. Nevertheless, the author is to be commended for his objective and worthwhile study of an area that will assume increasing importance in world affairs, whatever happens to the trusteeship system." C. A. Timm
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:855 Ag '49 380w

Foreign Affairs 27:694 Jl '49 50w

LOGASA, HANNAH, comp. Historical fiction, and other reading references for classes in junior and senior high schools. 4th rev & enl ed 232p $3.50; to libs and educ insts $3.25 McKinley

016.823 Historical fiction—Bibliography 49-9334

"Many titles in the previous edition have been omitted and 900 new titles added. A section, Islands of the seas, and two sections on the second world war period have been added." (Booklist) For third edition see Book Review Digest 1941.

Booklist 45:357 Je 15 '49

School & Society 69:392 My 28 '49 30w

"This book should prove to be an invaluable aid to history teachers who are seeking materials for pupil guidance in extra-class reading. To librarians and teachers of Latin, English, and foreign languages, the book also has a wealth of suggestion for stimulating interest in the historical and cultural backgrounds of various nations and peoples." E. G. Weber
+ Social Studies 40:334 N '49 550w

LOGIE, GORDON. Furniture from machines; with an introd. by John Gloag. 150p 159il $4.50 Macmillan

684 Furniture. Woodworking machinery [48-22827]

Explains the manufacture of machine-made furniture of good design and durability from such materials as wood, plywood, sheet steel, metal tube, aluminum, and metal alloys. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:100 N 15 '48

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:552 Ap 1 '49 50w

LONDON, KURT, and IVES, KENT. How foreign policy is made 277p $3.50 Van Nostrand

327 International relations 49-9053

The purpose of this book is "to investigate the machinery by which foreign policies are evolved, formulated, and applied. It deals with problems preceding rather than following the adoption and execution of policies; or, as one may say, it approaches the great issues of world politics from below, not from above. It submits that a correct appraisal of foreign policies is difficult, if not impossible, without an appreciation of the apparatus used by sovereign nations to formulate principles and objectives for living in the world community." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

"This is an interesting book on a very important subject. . . Some rather sententious conclusions are inserted at the end of the volume." P. B. Potter

+ — Am Hist R 55:185 O '49 200w

"Not a profound or exhaustive study, but it is a useful survey for the general reader. It puts conveniently together a number of things and discusses them in terms of modern needs." Clyde Eagleton

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1294 D '49 340w

"This is a lucid and straightforward description of the day-to-day mechanics of the Department of State and the United States Foreign Service by one who has labored therein and knows whereof he speaks, but it is scarcely an adequate description otherwise of how foreign policy is made." S. F. Bemis

+ — Ann Am Acad 265:175 S '49 160w

Booklist 45:348 Je 15 '49

"One cannot help but wonder whether in 'How Foreign Policy Is Made,' the ideological factor is not overemphasized at the expense of the more widely accepted territorial, political, and economic determinants of national aspirations." S. P. C.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 15 '49 390w

Foreign Affairs 28:156 O '49 30w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 11 '49 480w

"Mr. London in his preface disclaims any intention of dealing critically with the content of policy. He writes: 'This book does not propose to offer one more critique of contemporary foreign policies, American or other. . . Its sole purpose is to investigate the machinery by which foreign policies are evolved, formulated and applied.' Within the limits of this definition, 'How Foreign Policy is Made' is sound. But one wishes that—at a time when the content of policy is so vital a matter—Mr. London had set his sights higher." John Desmond

N Y Times p10 Jl 17 '49 360w

"Well conceived and easy to read, this book contains an excellent introduction to the mechanics of foreign policy but presents a less successful discussion of the components of foreign policy." D. E. Lee

+ Pol Sci Q 64:435 S '49 800w

"A useful book for students of political science. . . The author makes no effort to sketch the history of foreign policy organizations. He does not even attempt to weigh the implications of the changes that have occurred in our own State Department in recent years. This is regrettable, since the historical experiences of governments often help to explain their present-day structures. More and more historians and political scientists are becoming aware of that fact. But this volume marks a forward step in its analysis of the agencies that help to formulate and implement foreign policy." Donald Derby

+ — Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 360w

LONG, AMELIA REYNOLDS. The corpse came back. 255p $2 Phoenix

49-8622

Detective story.

"Miss Long has managed, even at this late date, to ring some new changes on the old formula, including a very pretty fingerprint gimmick. Aside from the ingenuity of plotting, the book is routine and slightly dated." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p9 My 29 '49 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 1 '49 110w

LONG, EUGENE HUDSON. O. Henry, the man and his work. 158p $2.75 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Porter, William Sydney (O. Henry, pseud) 49-4499

Brief biography of William Sydney Porter, the American writer better known as O. Henry. Selected bibliography. Index.

"Since C. Alphonso Smith published the authorized biography, a generation ago, much additional information has come to light despite the care with which O. Henry sometimes covered his tracks. A new biography, assimilating this information and bringing critical judgment up to date, is overdue. Unfortunately Mr. Long has not written this definitive study." DeLancey Ferguson

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Jl 31 '49 600w

"This brief biography by a teacher at Vanderbilt University is the best-documented book thus far on William S. Porter, the almost legendary O. Henry." F. P. Adams

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 17 '49 1100w

"The facts alone of this colorful and unhappy man's life make absorbing reading, and Mr. Long has dug up some new ones to add to those in C. Alphonso Smith's earlier biography. But as more than a partial portrait of the man, as more than a cursory examination of the work, this study is altogether wanting." Hollis Alpert

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ag 13 '49 900w

LONG, LAURA. Oliver Hazard Perry, boy of the sea; il. by Paul Laune. 192p $1.75 Bobbs

B or 92 Perry, Oliver Hazard—Juvenile literature 49-10598

Tells the story of Perry's childhood, his early training for the sea, and his first voyage as midshipman under his father's command. His later career in the United States navy is more briefly sketched. For grades four and five.

Booklist 46:129 D 1 '49

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 13 '49 50w

LONGSTRETH, THOMAS MORRIS. Mounty in a jeep. 158p $2.50 Macmillan

49-11311

"Sam Acton, young member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, is offered a dazzling opportunity, financially speaking, by the father of his girl, to leave the force. But he decides to stay and feels rewarded after a long and difficult job of restoring law and order to a far outpost and bringing two ruthless men to justice. Incidental to the assignment, important to Sam, he succeeds in giving Louey, young outlaw, a healthy boyhood." Kirkus

Reviewed by P. H. Amsden

Canadian Forum 29:239 Ja '50 140w

"Plenty of action, but that is about all to recommend it. Longstreth has been writing long enough to deserve censure for slipshod writing, cumbersome sentence structure, obscure phraseology."

— + Kirkus 17:471 S 1 '49 90w

"This could be better written, but interest is well sustained." Esther Gorey

Library J 74:1552 O 15 '49 70w

"This version of the mounties will probably please your adolescent boy as much as any adventure story, but without particularly adding new ideas or concepts to his store of experiences."

San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 13 '49 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 50w

LONGUS. Daphnis and Chloe [tr. by George Thornley] woodcuts by Aristide Maillol. 175p $3.75 Pantheon bks.
49-11561

"Nothing is known of Longus; even the date of Daphnis and Chloe is obscure. It is thought to have been written between the beginning of the third century A.D. and the end of the fifth, and that its author, whose name, is open to doubt, was a native of the islands in the eastern Aegean Sea. George Thornley's translation was first published in 1657. It is here given in its complete, unbowdlerized form. As part of Book I of the Greek manuscript was discovered only in 1809, this lacuna in Thornley's version was translated for the present edition from the Greek by Professor Moses Hadas, of Columbia University, New York." Publisher's note

---

"For this column the illustrations are of course the primary concern. First published in a limited edition, now a rarity, we see in Maillol's sure incised line the figures of the young lovers, the flowering branches, the goats on the hill-side, the rushes at the edge of the pool, and we marvel at sculptor-draughtsman-illustrator, feeling that his figures and symbols are the perfect accompaniment for the ancient text, refreshing in its lack of prudery and archaic candor." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:45 Ja 1 '50 130w

"The pictures are both clumsy and charming, so that they admirably suit the story of the two inexperienced lovers. But is it worth reprinting a seventeenth-century translation in 1949?. . So much damage has already been done to the understanding of the Greek and Roman classics by the publication of awkward, affected, and old-fashioned translations that it is sad to see such careful printing and such original illustrations married to a version which, like second-rate wines too long in bottle, has changed to vinegar and lees." Gilbert Highet
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 25 '49 460w

LONYAY, KAROLY, grof. Rudolph; the tragedy of Mayerling. 244p il $5 Scribner
B or 92 Rudolf, crown prince of Austria
49-7199

"A biography of the Austrian Crown Prince who shot his mistress and himself at Mayerling in 1889. Count Lonyay, whose uncle married Rudolph's widow, the Archduchess Stephanie, has had access to secret state papers on the famous case, and he has written not only the most heavily documented account of the tragedy but also the least romantic one." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Biographical index.

"His biography, which makes lavish reference to original sources, is a thoroughly effective job—a fascinating chronicle and a spirited if minor addition to history." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 183:88 Mr '49 1050w

"In telling [the] story, the Count has allowed a rather unpleasant tone to creep into his voice—that of the male court gossip; so that however accurate and interesting his facts are, the reader is inclined to doubt his interpretation of them, and to suspect that his zeal in debunking the legend is less a concern for historical truth than an itch to pay off some obscure family scores with a little counter-scandal. And he writes abominably." D. H. M.
— Canadian Forum 29:72 Je '49 130w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ja 10 '49 550w

Kirkus 16:589 N 1 '48 130w

"He tells a straightforward story whose nature is so striking—and to many so unexpected—that a casual reader scarcely sees the little numerals scattered through the text. But every one of them means a citation, listed at the back of the book, in support of any statement calling for proof. Count Lonyay has little use for secondary sources, still less for say-so's: with an historian's dispassionate razor-blade he cuts the tissue of lies so long enwrapping Mayerling, and gets—as far as any one can—to the facts." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ja 30 '49 800w

"It is not a pretty picture: to this reader it is a much more intriguing one than that of the legend. Sometimes it seems as though Count Lonyay's aversion to most of the personages involved has gotten the better of him, and occasionally he becomes involved in a few contradictions. But on the whole his book is quite airtight. Everything is documented. . . Readers who like their history unsweetened will cherish this acid though dry chronicle." Richard Plant
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 23 '49 900w

"Count Lonyay, whose opinion of the entire Hapsburg dynasty could not be lower, has done an effective job of legend smashing, and his book sounds as though he knows what he's talking about."
+ New Yorker 24:81 Ja 15 '49 200w

"Count Lonyay tells the whole unpleasant story in detail, documenting it as he goes, and providing a vivid picture of a decadent monarchy on its last legs. As a matter of fact, the latter aspect of the book was a good deal more interesting to me than the story of the brief, shadowed life of the unfortunate Rudolph, and I have a feeling that others will be of the same opinion. By and large, however, Count Lonyay has done a first-rate job here, particularly in his devastating portrait of the Emperor Francis Joseph." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 7 '49 700w

"As far as the major facts it presents are concerned, Count Lonyay's book is by no means sensational. It is, however, interesting enough in episodes and in such details as the story of the ledgerlike 'Register of Conquest' the Crown Prince kept about his amorous pursuits. . . He is an emotional historian, but he has written a readable, swift-moving book." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 32:24 Ja 29 '49 750w

Time 53:91 Ja 17 '49 1050w

LOONEY, J. THOMAS. Shakespeare identified in Edward De Vere, the seventeenth earl of Oxford; introd. by William McFee; afterwords by Charles Wisner Barrell [new ed]. 476p il $5 Duell 822.33 Shakespeare, William—Authorship. Oxford, Edward De Vere, 17th earl of 49-11024

Reissue of a work first published in 1920 (Book Review Digest 1920) and long out of print. This publication contains a new foreword by William McFee and "afterwords" by Charles Wisner Barrell discussing the reception of the book by scholars and reasons for its present re-issue.

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1605 O 15 '49 80w

"I have never been able to be much impressed by the arguments, and I cannot say I care much who wrote the plays that go by the name of Shakespeare. They are still the same plays."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p31 N 6 '49 100w

"While all this may be important to professors and to very young college students, it would seem of so little import to the casual reader that the whole thing appears as a tempest in a university teapot." M. R.
San Francisco Chronicle p30 N 6 '49 170w

LORAC, E. C. R., pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

LORD, DAVID. Joey. 314p $3 Dutton
49-5037

Story of a Jewish family living in Los Angeles during the 1930s and '40s. The main character is Joey, American-born son of immigrants, whose experiences with life are followed from his birth to the coming of his own son.

LORD, DAVID—Continued

"Characters and incidents that ring true, a love and respect for Jewish emotional patterns, these combine into satisfactory novel."
+ Kirkus 17:307 Je 15 '49 180w

"An excellent piece of Americana. Recommended." C. W. Roth
+ Library J 74:1095 Ag '49 70w

"Countless novels have been written about your men who are 'mixed-up guys.' And many of these novels are just as childish, adolescent, and 'mixed-up' as the people they deal with. David Lord, however, has written his book from a mature point of view, simply and honestly." Doris Schneider
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 14 '49 320w

"Though 'Joey' contains some intellectual groping, a good deal of dramatic action and a wealth of emotion often boiling over into hysteria, the reader keeps wondering what the point is. It is not indicated that the community has significant impact on the life of the hero; and the events in the story furnish no underlying generalization that can help the reader carry away from the book anything beyond a mere summary of incidents in the life of Joey Levine." Aaron Traister
— + N Y Times p20 Ag 14 '49 340w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 7 '49 240w

"Mr. Lord's oversimplification and surface approach are followed throughout the novel. The people the author has chosen to write about have dignity and depth. They deserve a more thorough exploration and not just an eye massage." Robert Mende
— + Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ag 20 '49 550w

LORING, MRS EMILIE (BAKER). Love came laughing by. 274p $2.75 Little 49-11755

A novel of the excitement that ensues in Washington when a girl carrying secret papers from South America meets a Congressman with a dangerous political opponent.

Kirkus 17:486 S 1 '49 100w

"The credibility and vitality of the story are negated by the author's fondness for another lending-library ingredient—incidental chi-chi." M. S. Hurst
+ — N Y Times p16 D 18 '49 90w

"Glossy activity, languidly dramatic for all its gangling thrills." C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ja 28 '50 140w

"Romance and politics are blended deftly in this author's skilled manipulation and there's not a dull moment." W. M. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 100w

Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

LORINI, M. CAMPBELL, and WILLIAMS, HENRY LIONEL. How to restore antique furniture. 214p il $3.95 Pellegrini & Cudahy
684 Furniture—Repairing 49-2850

This book is divided into three sections. Section I deals with the tools and materials necessary to restoration. Section II describes in detail the operations involved in every conceivable type of repair, from kitchen chair to elaborate sideboard. The final section deals with refinishing. The book closes with a glossary of terms, index and bibliography for handy reference.

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49

"An excellent book to follow up the elementary Yates' book, How to Restore Antiques (Harper), but not a book for the beginner who knows nothing of the use of tools."
+ — Kirkus 17:126 Mr 1 '49 130w

"Extremely easy to follow drawings add value to the text of this volume." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 11 '49 70w

LOTH, DAVID GOLDSMITH. Chief Justice: John Marshall and the growth of the republic. 395p $5 Norton
B or 92 Marshall, John 49-1150

A popular biography of John Marshall, fourth chief justice of the United States. Bibliography. Index.

"In the light of the simplicity of style and the discipline of organization and other good qualities which this book possesses, it is a matter of regret that the author's imagination fails to catch fire and that keenness of insight seldom points up with adequate sharpness and clarity the significant aspects of John Marshall's career." C. B. Swisher
— + Am Hist R 55:225 O '49 280w

"Unfortunately, in however humble a spirit the reviewer approaches this book, it is difficult to say much in its favor. A good popular biography of John Marshall would certainly meet an important need. But Loth's volume is not the answer. The chief weakness of the book, even as a popular biography, is easily stated. In spite of his title, the author has committed the cardinal sin of letting the Chief Justice slip from sight. From start to finish, he is at least as interested (and I think it fair to say more interested) in Marshall the soldier, Marshall the politician, Marshall the diplomat, Marshall the husband, and Marshall the biographer of Washington, as he is in Marshall the judge." R. K. Carr
Am Pol Sci R 43:589 Je '49 800w

Reviewed by G. C. Osborn
Ann Am Acad 265:187 S '49 320w

Booklist 45:294 My 1 '49

"As Mr. Loth makes the old judge the human being that he was, this is not only a most readable but also a most timely book, the PhD's to the contrary notwithstanding." McAlister Coleman
+ Churchman 163:17 S 15 '49 450w

+ Current Hist 16:288 My '49 50w

"Readable account of the famous lawyer and justice whose life was so admirably written by Beveridge about thirty years ago. . . Popular and not well documented. Recommended for public libraries." Walter Hausdorfer
+ Library J 74:498 Mr 15 '49 70w

"The material is well-worn but always fascinating; the handling is lucid and competent. Recommended to the layman, who will find it less biased and forbidding than the four-volume Beveridge biography, but also less eloquent, detailed, and distinguished."
+ — Nation 168:368 Mr 26 '49 80w

"The book can be recommended as an accurate and pleasing account of Marshall's life and career. For those who seek a more exact understanding of his contribution to American law and economics than it provides, it should be supplemented, for example, by the pertinent chapters in Beveridge, or in the recent history of the Constitution by Alfred Kelly and Winfred Harbison." B. F. Wright
+ N Y Times p6 F 27 '49 900w

"Mr. Loth's amiable detachment in presenting this stormy figure has produced a biography that is a little flat and oversimplified. In other regards—the organization of material and the delineation of character—the author does well, but somewhere between this book and the stupefying, four-volume work on Marshall by Albert J. Beveridge there must be a proper middle ground."
— + New Yorker 25:106 Ap 2 '49 160w

"The single-volume life of Marshall seems short, for the style is clear and fast-moving, and the author has drawn an accurate, but lightly etched portrait that contrasts well with the immense, thorough, but unavoidable ponderous picture Beveridge left as Marshall's monument." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 9 '49 650w

"A new, deftly executed portrait of our greatest Chief Justice. It is a well-balanced work." P. R. Levin
+ Sat R of Lit 32:24 Mr 5 '49 800w

Social Studies 40:336 N '49 20w

Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 480w

"This book deserves a large audience not because it is the last word about Marshall as a great jurist but rather for the light it throws so interestingly upon an outstanding American who contributed so greatly to the shaping of the Republic's governmental fabric in an era of profound institutional change." H. J. Carman
+ Survey 85:284 My '49 700w

"The treatment of the subject is, in the main, objective, the presentation smooth, clear, and concise. By no means the least enjoyable feature of it is the entertaining way in which an occasional passage of dry humor or a sharp observation is made to lend color to the whole. The layman will find the volume both informative and interesting. For the lawyer, it may serve as a stimulus to review and perhaps to reorient his own appraisal of the work of the great Chief Justice."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:182 Je '49 210w

LOTHAR, ERNST. Return to Vienna. 332p $3 Doubleday
49-7927

A novel of conflicting loyalties. A young Austrian lawyer escapes from Vienna in 1938, settles in the United States, and becomes a citizen. In 1946 he returns to Austria to look after the family banking interest. Horrified by what he finds as the aftermath of war, he is torn between two loyalties: to his homeland and his new country. After the suicide of his wife he returns to America to plead for more fairness to Austria.

Booklist 45:295 My 1 '49

"This is a double-barreled problem story—an action-packed tale from the Vienna woods. Occasionally the plot grows so violent that it seems almost ready to break through the bounds of plausibility; but the author successfully manages to haul it back in time. Occasionally, too, an aroma floats through the air that seems to belong to Hollywood studio timber rather than to Vienna's belt of green forests." Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 5 '49 650w

"A pretty tiresome and wooden affair."
Kirkus 17:90 F 15 '49 190w

"Excellent characterization and clear presentation of an unusual problem by this well-known author make good reading. Recommended." Ruth Tubby
+ Library J 74:377 Mr 1 '49 80w

"Felix, surrounded by the somewhat stereotyped characters of his grandmother, his mother, his American girl, and his former love in Vienna, emerges from a good many highly improbable adventures as a real human being. . . In this novel, despite its shapelessness and occasional lapse into burlesque, Mr. Lothar has managed to lay bare the neurosis of the displaced persons who are the victims of our time." Virgilia Peterson
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ap 1 '49 470w

Reviewed by Eric Sjogren
N Y Times p21 Ap 3 '49 340w

"There's a lot of grim, exact detail about life in Austria, but Mr. Lothar becomes somewhat overtheatrical about his hero's problem of whether to be loyal to that land or to America."
New Yorker 25:102 Mr 12 '49 180w
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 9 '49 150w

LOVEJOY, ARTHUR ONCKEN. Essays in the history of ideas [pub. for the History of ideas club of the Johns Hopkins university]. 359p $5 Johns Hopkins press
104 Philosophy. Literature 48-8055

A collection of essays and papers, most of which have been contributed by Professor Lovejoy to the journals of learned societies during the last twenty-five years. Partial contents: The historiography of ideas; The supposed primitivism of Rousseau's Discourse on Inequality; "Pride" in eighteenth-century thought; The parallel of deism and classicism; The Chinese origin of a romanticism; Herder and the enlightenment philosophy of history; The meaning of "romantic" in early German romanticism; On the discrimination of romanticisms; Coleridge and Kant's two worlds; Milton and the paradox of the fortunate fall. Bibliography. Index.

"Diverse in their subject matter as these specialized articles are, they will attract and hold the interest of all who are concerned about exact analysis and discriminating evaluation of key ideas in early modern or early Christian thought." Sidney Ratner
Am Hist R 54:850 Jl '49 650w
J Philos 47:22 Ja 5 '50 480w

"The subject may sound dry, but many readers might be surprised to find how interesting an easy mastery of the materials can make it." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 169:210 Ag 27 '49 400w

"The most important essay of the collection is that entitled 'The Historiography of Ideas,' first published in the Proceedings of the American Philosophical Society in 1938."
Times [London] Lit Sup p369 Je 3 '49 1800w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:433 D '48 360w

LOVELACE, MAUD (HART) (MRS D. W. LOVELACE). Carney's house party; a Deep Valley story; il. by Vera Neville. 239p $2.50 Crowell
49-10403

A continuation of the Betsy-Tacy stories. The time is 1911 and Carney Sibley's home in Minnesota is the scene of the house party in which some of the boys and girls from the earlier books take part. There are three romances which will appeal to the teen-ager.

"Light and wholesome. . . The characters, however, seem not to have grown either intellectually or emotionally since their early high school days and therefore may appear rather silly to many modern readers."
+ — Booklist 46:38 S 15 '49

"An engaging and thoroughly likeable story."
+ Kirkus 17:301 Je 15 '49 130w

"There is good characterization and a love story well handled. Junior high and high school girls will enjoy this very much. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 74:1106 Ag '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 100w

LOVETT, ROBERT MORSS. All our years [autobiography]. 373p $3.75 Viking
B or 92 Teachers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-6986

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"A controversial figure throughout a large part of his life, particularly on account of his social views, Lovett has written an account which represents in actuality a chapter in American social and intellectual history. . . Whatever one's reactions to Dr. Lovett's opinions and actions, there will be little doubt about the author's sincerity and his ability to write English as it should be written." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 69:176 Mr 5 '49 160w

Reviewed by S. A. Wallace
Social Studies 40:190 Ap '49 550w

"As a public figure, Mr. Lovett was undoubtedly vital, friendly and active; as a writer, he quietly allows the reader to detect the Sturm und Drang behind a narrative done with humor, informality, and taste."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:289 S '48 300w

LOWIE, ROBERT HARRY. Social organization. 465p $4.50 Rinehart
301 Sociology 48-8176

"Divided into four parts, the book deals first with the fundamental principles of social grouping and with theories of economic de-

LOWIE, R. H.—Continued
terminism and social evolution; second, with the 'social institutions' of kinship, marriage, property, law, religion, and education; third, with 'social units,' namely, the family, unilinear kin groups, social classes, the state, and 'sodalities' (associations not primarily connected with kinship or common residence); fourth, with four specific instances of 'social organization in action'—the Crow Indians, the Buinese of the Solomon Islands, the Shilluk of the Sudan, and Hapsburg Austria from the early eighteenth century to World War I. Under each subject, in Parts II and III, the range of relevant phenomena is admirably indicated and illustrated, and the major possibilities of interpretation are carefully considered. There are few crucial problems of social structure to which the serious student, graduate or undergraduate, is not adequately introduced." (Am Anthropol) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The author's Primitive Society was an uneven book, containing a number of rash or dogmatic statements of both fact and theory with which others (including the reviewer) have felt compelled to take issue. In subsequent writings, Lowie has corrected or retracted these one by one. Of the original errors of commission not a single one survives in the work under consideration. Moreover, the author has thoughtfully assessed, and in large measure assimilated, the contributions of his younger colleagues. His attitude toward functional, correlational, and even psychological interpretations is temperate, reasoned, and fair. He draws substantially upon the sister sciences of sociology, economics, and political science in wrestling with his materials, and he makes a special point of canvassing historical and other sources for data upon the complex civilizations of Europe and Asia so that these can be aligned with the evidence from ethnography. The result is a volume markedly sounder and more mature than its predecessor." G. P. Murdock
+ Am Anthropol 51:298 Ap '49 1100w

"Since the publication of Professor Lowie's Primitive Society in 1920, anthropologists have vigorously continued the study of social organization among a wide range of different peoples. In his new book, Lowie has made not merely such additions and corrections as are necessary to bring Primitive Society reasonably abreast of current work, but has reordered his material, making much use of recent literature. He has produced a well-organized and smoothly written work that will be very useful as a classroom text, for which it is evidently intended." Alexander Spoehr
+ Am Soc R 14:175 F '49 2300w

Reviewed by E. H. Vaughan
Social Forces 28:96 O '49 440w

LOWITH, KARL. Meaning in history; the theological implications of the philosophy of history. 259p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

901 History—Philosophy. Philosophy and religion 49-1624

"The author analyzes the works of outstanding historians in antiquity and Christian times. He begins with the more easily accessible philosophies of history of the nineteenth and eighteenth centuries (Burckhardt, Marx, Hegel, Proudhon, Comte, Condorcet, Turgot, Voltaire) and works back to the theologies of history (Vico, Bossuet, Joachim, Augustine), in order to arrive at the biblical view of history, the ultimate source of Western historical thought." (Publisher's note) Bibliographical notes. Index.

Reviewed by Northrop Frye
Canadian Forum 29:138 S '49 1450w

"Professor Löwith's German publications, an admirably coherent literary work, provide a philosophically enlightened history of continental philosophy in the nineteenth century—a unique achievement which ought to be made available in English. In the present book the field of study is enormously expanded and, at the same time, the problem of historicism which underlies the earlier writings as their main philosophical concern is brought into sharper focus. To this widening and deepening of the author's thought we owe a book of distinction and great importance." Helmut Kuhn
+ J Philos 46:822 D 8 '49 1700w

"Professor Löwith's profound discussion of the philosophies of history is an important and profound contribution to the reorientation of modern man to the enigma of the drama of history." Reinhold Niebuhr
J Religion 29:302 O '49 500w

"His book is not to be entered upon lightly, but the serious reader will find it most rewarding. It is not merely a précis of the various philosophies, although it performs that service as competently as any brief volume of which I am aware. It is also a criticism. The introductory and two final chapters especially deserve several readings." K. S. Latourette
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 28 '49 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 15 '49 260w

"Mr. Lowith follows the progressive transformation of the Biblical view of history to Karl Marx and Jacob Burckhardt, in eleven short but truly brilliant and meaty chapters. . . His discussion of Marx, Hegel, Vico, and Joachim easily belongs to the very best that has been written in the field. Nietzsche's attempt to revive the classical doctrine of eternal recurrence and its failure are explained in a brief appendix in a most illuminating way." Hans Kohn
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 My 14 '49 800w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:213 Je '49 400w

LOWNDES, MRS MARION (SMITH). Manual for baby sitters; with a foreword by Gladys Romanoff. 168p $2 Little

649.1 Children—Management 49-7166

Useful information for both parents and baby sitters. Describes how to care for babies and young children, up to the age of eight and nine, both indoors and out. Includes a reference section which suggests books to read aloud; games for all ages; and simple meals and how to cook them.

Booklist 45:195 F 1 '49
Kirkus 16:609 N 15 '48 100w

"The manual suggests many games and ways of having fun with children of all ages, both indoors and outdoors. A section discussing common emergencies gives specific advice for dealing with each. Parents, baby sitters and, most of all, babies, will profit." L. G. Carson
+ N Y Times p31 F 6 '49 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 24 '49 160w

Wis Lib Bul 45:27 F '49

LOWRY, ROBERT JAMES. Big cage. 342p $3 Doubleday

49-11454

Autobiographical novel which follows the events of its hero's life from the time Dick Black is a small child in Cincinnati until he finally reaches New York, still under twenty, to embark on his chosen career as writer.

"Here is a novel for anyone who enjoys a swift and unpretentious tale told with a breezy sort of candor, and yet with emotional depth. For people who write, or hope to write, it is an absolute must." Nelson Algren
+ Chicago Sun O 31 '49 300w

Reviewed by G. H. Freitag
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 20 '49 320w

"It would seem that Robert Lowry, who has written well in the past, has here, rather sadly, attempted a portrait of the artist as a young man; more than that, the artist as a mewling infant in the crib, which is where we first meet him. . . From there on in, the author labors through a familiar routine. The first precocious sex comes just two pages later. Then the vague stirrings toward self-expression. . . 'What a long time it had taken me to discover these few simple truths!' he says on the last page. Amen, says the dogged reader, how right you are." John Cogley

— Commonweal 51:221 N 25 '49 350w

Kirkus 17:407 Ag 1 '49 250w

"Robert Lowry has written much better things than this book, which really isn't 'written' at all. It is less a novel than the raw material for one." J. F.
— New Repub 121:36 N 14 '49 140w

" 'The Big Cage' is written with all the sincerity and hard-hitting honesty that marked Mr. Lowry's previous work. The style is robust, and there is a freshness of approach reminiscent of the early Saroyan. It is an old, old story that Mr. Lowry tells, but he tells it well." J. J. Maloney
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 23 '49 700w

"Robert Lowry is a gifted and developing writer, but for all the keenness of observation and honesty of 'The Big Cage' it probably is more important to Lowry as a writer than it is as a novel in itself." Donald Barr
+ — N Y Times p32 O 23 '49 470w

"Richard is remarkable for his unbridled infatuation with himself and his works, and for his sensational lack of humor. . . He receives sympathetic attention from his mother and a lot of other middle-aged women, but it is painfully obvious that, as far as the rest of the world is concerned, Richard is and always will be a paralyzing bore."
— New Yorker 25:133 N 5 '49 120w

"Robert Lowry is a gifted writer, but he certainly lacks discipline and guidance." M. R.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 27 '49 350w

Reviewed by Jack Iams
Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ja 21 '50 360w

"As social history, The Big Cage is sometimes authentic, sometimes unconvincing. As fiction it is notable mainly for Lowry's ability to take sentimental and over-worked material and brighten it with a calm and matter-of-fact humor."
Time 54:108 O 24 '49 390w

LOWRY, ROBERT JAMES. Wolf that fed us. 220p $2.75 Doubleday
49-7962

Eight short stories, all but one about the troubles in love and war of American soldiers in Europe and America.

"Strong brew, whose harsh impact is not for delicate tastes."
Kirkus 17:94 F 15 '49 150w

"The title story is superb, an honest and revealing picture of Rome in 1944. . . 'The Terror in the Streets' and 'The Church' are also extraordinary stories in a collection which deserves recommendation." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 70w

"It reveals marked limitations in the scope of experience and the nature of its appeal. Yet, it carries a strange universality in meaning, for these stories portray not only the impact of a war on men, but deal with the deeper blows of human frustration in the face of life." Bennell Braunstein
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 24 '49 500w

"They are disappointing because they are on one level so good. Each of them shows careful construction, painstaking and smooth writing, accurate and convincing dialogue. But in too many of these stories the author merely uses a situation instead of coming to grips with a theme. . . These characters never really grow or decline; they only move." W. F. Weaver
— + N Y Times p31 Ap 24 '49 410w

"Mr. Lowry writes with a nice cadence and with strong feeling for his protagonists."
+ New Yorker 25:98 Ap 23 '49 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 7 '49 360w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:15 Jl 2 '49 500w

LOZOWICK, LOUIS, ed. Treasury of drawings; from prehistory to the present; with an introd. by [the editor]. 14p 82pl $3 Lear
741.9 Drawings 48-9425

A book of drawings representative of various periods, styles, and countries, from prehistoric man to twentieth-century experimenters.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:378 Mr 1 '49 70w

"Each page of this gallery breathes spontaneity and directness. . . Louis Lozowick's introduction enhances the appreciation of the sketches. This is a worthwhile addition to the library of the artist and art lover." H. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ja 30 '49 100w

LUCAS, JASON. On bass fishing. new enl ed 381p il $5 Dodd
799.1758 Bass fishing 49-9855

New and enlarged edition of this book on fresh water bass fishing and technique, by the angling editor of Sports Afield. For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1947.

Booklist 45:283 Ap 15 '49

"An important and basic book for the angler."
+ Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '49

LUCAS, SIDNEY. The Quaker story; foreword by C. E. M. Joad; pub. in assn. with Pendle hill. 144p $1.75 Harper
289.6 Friends, Society of 49-10975

A brief history of Quakerism and explanation of its beliefs and organization. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:59 O 15 '49

+ Christian Century 66:1488 D 14 '49 430w

Reviewed by R. E. E. Harkness
Crozer Q 27:72 Ja '50 1450w

"Not only Quakers but others who are interested in the motivating power which lies behind this small but influential religious group will appreciate this book."
+ Kirkus 17:542 O 1 '49 120w

"A small volume that offers easy and absorbing reading. . . The book explains how a sect without creed or formal organization has held together and spread, in ideas and influence. The appendix contains a selection of the 'Advices and Queries' which gives a key to the standard of behavior Friends have set for themselves." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 O 30 '49 230w

Survey 85:617 N '49 200w

LUCCOCK, HALFORD EDWARD, and HUTCHINSON, PAUL. Story of Methodism; with two final chapters by Robert W. Goodloe; il. by Harold Speakman. 528p $4 Abingdon-Cokesbury
287.09 Methodism—History. Methodist church (U.S.) 49-9876

A one-volume history of Methodism from the days of John Wesley to the present. Book was first published in 1926 and is now brought up to date with two new chapters on recent events. Index.

Booklist 46:174 Ja 15 '50

" 'The Story of Methodism,' full of rich pageantry and adventure, is the living story of a living church."
+ Chicago Sun p8X O 2 '49 150w

"Several considerations seem to justify a review of this new edition of an old book. There are millions of Methodists who ought to be interested in such a vivacious as well as veracious account of the rise and growth of their own church, and a large part of them have come to maturity since the book was first published 23 years ago. Besides, there are new chapters covering the events since 1926,

LUCCOCK, H. E.—Continued
one of the most important of which is the reunion of northern and southern Methodism." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:893 Jl 27 '49 1400w

LUCKMAN, SIDNEY. Luckman at quarterback; football as a sport and a career. 233p il $3 Ziff-Davis

B or 92 Football 49-10297

"Brooklyn born Syd Luckman describes his career as high school, college, and finally professional football star with the Chicago Bears." Library J

"Warmly written, full of humorous anecdotes, a football triple 'treat' by a prep and college triple threat who became one of the game's greatest passing specialists." Dick Hackenberg
+ Chicago Sun S 6 '49 600w

"A good story, with enough sentiment and enough of the spirit to win to give it punch."
+ Kirkus 17:316 Je 15 '49 130w
+ Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 70w

"Holds interest throughout."
+ Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 10w

LUDWIG, LOUIS. Do you know what you're buying? the family guide on how to get the best for your money. 411p il $2.95 Ziff-Davis

647.1 Buying 48-10540

Useful hints on how to get the most for your money in purchasing anything from a car to canned goods. Among the commodities discussed are: automobiles, canned foods, dinner- and glassware, drug and sundry items, electrical and other household appliances, floor coverings, fresh fruits and vegetables, furniture, furs, insurance, luggage and leather goods, meat, poultry and fish, radios, wearing apparel. Includes a table of when it is best to shop for different items. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:100 N 15 '48
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '49
Kirkus 16:429 Ag 15 '48 120w
Special Libraries 40:31 Ja '49 80w
Wis Lib Bul 45:11 Ja '49

LUNDY, MRS JO EVALIN. Tidewater valley; a story of the Swiss in Oregon; il. by Margaret Ayer. (Land of the free ser) 246p $2.50 Winston

49-11398

"The sixth in the Land of the Free Series, this is a story of the rich, fertile valleys of the Northwest Coast and the development of dairy farming and cheese-making. Its heroine is a Swiss girl, and the year is 1889." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 46:129 D 1 '49

"The characters emerge as real people, but the pace of story is slow."
+ — Kirkus 17:474 S 1 '49 180w

"Pleasant story. . . Good background and regional material plus story interest for girls. Useful especially for schools, grades 6-8." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 75:113 Ja 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 70w

"The antagonism between Swiss and American farmers, and the desperate need for better markets, are problems that find a happy solution. So, too, do Lisa's romantic perplexities. Girls will especially enjoy this one." N. B. B.
+ N Y Times p34 N 13 '49 130w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 40w

LUNN, ARNOLD HENRY MOORE (SUTTON CROFT, RUBICON, pseuds). Mountains of memory. 248p pl $4.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Skis and ski running. Mountaineering [49-10617]

Memories of fifty years of skiing and mountaineering, chiefly in the Alps. Anecdotes of people he has met, places visited are interwoven with philosophical musings, recollections of war and politics, to vary the recordings of mountains climbed.

Booklist 46:33 S 15 '49
Times [London] Lit Sup p171 Mr 12 '49 360w

LURAY, HOWARD LEE. Strobe, the lively light; with a foreword by Harold E. Edgerton. 128p il $4 Camera craft

771.447 Photography, Flashlight 49-9708

"High-speed, high-power electronic flash lamps are an important new source of illumination in photography. There is currently much demand for information about the lamps and their uses. This book is written from the viewpoint of practical photographers. It has a chapter on the basic electronics and another one on choosing a light. The rest of it deals with photographic matters such as exposure, development and filters in both black-and-white and color photography." (Library J) Glossary. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:388 Jl 15 '49

"A good book for the more serious amateur and all professionals. Valuably illustrated with diagrams and pictures."
+ Kirkus 17:388 Jl 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1331 S 15 '49 90w

LYASHCHENKO, PETER IVANOVICH. History of the national economy of Russia to the 1917 revolution; tr. by L. M. Herman; introd. by Calvin B. Hoover; maps redrawn under the supervision of Leonard H. Dykes. 880p $13 Macmillan

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions 49-49384

"The Russian Translation Project of the American Council of Learned Societies again makes available to the Anglo-Saxon world another authoritative work in the field of the social sciences. One of the few Russian pre-revolutionary economists to continue working under the Bolsheviks, includes necessary communist trimmings without impairing value of serious, scholarly work. Starting with the primitive economy of first centuries A.D. he pays great attention to the development of the various regions of the USSR., stressing correctly character as a multinational state." (Library J) Bibilography. Chronology. Index.

Christian Century 67:83 Ja 18 '50 410w

"Extensive bibilography, long, detailed index of the principal economic events and maps enhance value as reference tool. Subject matter as well as dry, factual style will limit appeal. Recommended for scholarly and large public libraries." H. H. Bernt
Library J 74:1318 S 15 '49 140w

"Written by a scholar who first achieved academic reputation before Lenin seized power, this work is representative of the finest kind of social science scholarship that can probably be achieved under Soviet conditions. The major blemishes disfiguring this book are the inevitable result of the author's compulsion to remain within the framework of Soviet ideology, both as regards methodology and conclusions. On the positive side, this is the most comprehensive single work on pre-Soviet economic history now available." Harry Schwartz
+ — N Y Times p6 D 11 '49 650w

LYNDE, H. H., pseud. See Huntington, H.

LYON, ELINOR. Wishing water gate [il. by the author]. 212p $2.50 Coward-McCann 49-10493

Mystery story for boys and girls. The scene is northern England.

"This is a book about real children, with real dialogue and fascinating goings-on in the bowels of a sinister mountain. We recommend it highly." Jane Cobb

+ Atlantic 184:103 D '49 40w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ja 15 '50 210w

"Well-drawn characters and realistic speech fortify the plot and make a book that is amusing and entertaining to older readers as well as children." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:534 N '49 80w

"Lively reading."

+ Kirkus 17:466 S 1 '49 120w

"A well-integrated plot, natural characterization, mystery, and suspense describe the young author's introductory book to American readers." Alice McQuaid

+ Library J 74:1538 O 15 '49 50w

"Written as a mystery story with little local color or characterization to balance the somewhat improbable plot. The children 9-13 seem young for their ages." E. W. Turpin

— Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 80w

"The story is very well written and, in this case, it's being very English in tone is less important than the fact that this author puts down real children with humor and understanding, and makes their solution of the mystery something useful and important. She brings a fine gift of intelligent writing to the mystery-readers under twelve years old." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 13 '49 150w

"The plot unfolds slowly but gains in excitement and the characterization and dialogue are excellent. The relationship between parents and children is not only exceptionally realistic and candid but at times deliciously funny. One wishes more English books of this type were published here." L. R. Davis

+ N Y Times p26 N 13 '49 140w

"This is a fast-moving story of considerable charm, with delightfully observed characters and dialogue that is refreshingly free from the obvious."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p3 Jl 15 '49 160w

LYON, JESSICA, pseud. See De Leeuw, C.

LYONS, DOROTHY. Harlequin hullabaloo; il. by Wesley Dennis. 264p $2.50 Harcourt 49-5257

Story of horses and the show ring in Kentucky. For older girls.

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 170:211 D '49 30w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 12 '50 200w

Kirkus 17:471 S 1 '49 130w

"For girls who are experts on horse stories, this will be a welcome addition. Story is well handled, and illustrations by Wesley Dennis add much to the flavor of the book. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 74:1466 O 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 70w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 110w

LYONS, EDWARD. Cities of the deep. 496p $3.50 Appleton
49-4936

"Kincaid Starling personifies the peculiarly American hero, the 'go-getter' with the 'know-how.' His story is the story of an American dream. At 14 he leaves a small Southern town to make a million in Wall Street. He amasses forty million there in the Twenties, only to learn that he has sacrificed himself for the false idols of the market place." N Y Times

Reviewed by Edward Uzemack

Chicago Sun p8X Ag 28 '49 230w

"Mr. Lyons puts no mute on the strings of his instrument but handles it with vigor and strong emphasis, showing an ability to portray scenes sharply all the way from Waccamaw to New York; to form a large concept and carry it through boldly and finally resolve some of the difficulties by bringing Kin into the light of clearer understanding."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 270w

"The heavy claims for this are not borne out by the writing but on content and ideas it has a certain impact and integrity worthy of note."

Kirkus 17:239 My 1 '49 190w

"Much of the story seems incredible but that doesn't detract from the vigor and action of this unusual tale. Writing is sometimes awkward but love interests and business details of the 1920's hold the reader's attention. A lusty, fast-moving novel. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:1095 Ag '49 80w

"As the study of a lonely unlettered, rebellious child growing up in a stagnant fishing village far down the Atlantic seaboard, 'Cities of the Deep' is an arresting first novel—notably mature and vigorous." George Conrad

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 S 4 '49 400w

"This subject-matter of 'Cities of the Deep' invites comparison to 'The Great Gatsby' but where Fitzgerald achieved a tragic, honest climax, Lyons has his hero sail out of New York harbor, his dream city, on a schooner with his girl. His closing passages are reminiscent of Hart Crane's 'The Bridge,' but a comparison, in so far as it is valid to compare prose and poetry, at once reveals Lyons' consistent flaw. He does not suggest. He labels. . . Certain other flaws are equally grave. . . Nevertheless, 'Cities of the Deep' is a hopeful first novel. One wishes it were better, since Mr. Lyons writes well and with gusto, and is a capital story-teller." Hilda Osterhout

— + N Y Times p20 Ag 21 '49 300w

New Yorker 25:109 S 17 '49 130w

"It is to the author's credit that all of this is not only entertaining but somehow plausible, once the reader is caught by the torrent. . . It is difficult to know which to admire the most, the gusto with which Mr. Lyons plunges into the heart of romance, or the realism and irony with which he endows his attack on the ruthless Wall Street gang who helped to bring about the Great Depression. In the future he may have to decide on which side of the fence he chooses to write. He has imagination, intelligence, and the gift for singing words. But he may not be able to repeat this kind of novel without asking too much of the reader's credulity." Harrison Smith

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:28 S 3 '49 600w

LYSAGHT, VINCENT E. Indentation hardness testing. 288p il $5.50 Reinhold

620.1126 Hardness. Testing 49-9153

"A discussion of hardness and its measurement, written chiefly from the viewpoint of engineers, inspectors and other persons who are concerned with the practical measurement of hardness in connection with the manufacture of industrial products. The greater part of it is devoted to detailed discussions of the principles, characteristics, and limitations of the principal instruments which are used for testing hardness. The instruments are shown in reproductions of photographs which are supplemented by drawings of mechanical details. Special problems such as the testing of hot metals are also covered. A number of useful tables are included. The author is associated with the Wilson Mechanical Instrument Company." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

LYSAGHT, V. E.—Continued

Chem Eng 56:282 Ag '49 30w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1331 S 15 '49 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:55 Jl '49

LYSENKO, TROFIM DENISOVICH. Science of biology today [Eng title: Soviet biology]. 62p $1.25 Int. pubs.

575.1 Biology. Heredity 48-11965

"An address delivered before the Soviet Academy of Agricultural Sciences earlier this year [1948]. Lysenko, an Academician himself, is a Michurinist (a follower of I. V. Michurin). . . His paper is dedicated to proving—in defiance of Mendel and of what are accepted as scientific facts by the non-Communist geneticists of the world—that it is possible for characteristics acquired by plants and animals in the course of their lives to be passed on to subsequent generations." New Yorker

"This book is utter trash. It is pure quackery and without scientific standing." Conway Zirkle
— Ann Am Acad 263:217 My '49 120w

"At a time when the Communist party apparatus is striving to unite Russian intelligentsia strongly against the West, Lysenko probably appeared like a real windfall. Unfortunately, windfalls, no matter how red and juicy looking from the outside, frequently prove a disappointment once you bite into them. Unless scientific opinion in the United States (and even within Russia itself) proves completely mistaken, the Communist party Central Committee may find the Lysenko windfall to be a very bitter fruit." Harrison Salisbury
N Y Times p3 F 27 '49 800w

"It is instructive to observe how an abstruse scientific theory can be argued on an almost wholly political plane. The pages are full of references to 'reactionary biologists' and 'Soviet biology,' and again and again the author praises Lenin and Stalin, who are here practically sanctified as biologists themselves."
New Yorker 24:117 D 18 '48 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p675 D 4 '48 650w

LYTEL, ALLAN HERBERT. TV picture projection and enlargement. 192p il $3.30 Rider

621.38836 Television 49-10514

"This book is concerned with a rather special aspect of television: the lens and mirror systems which are used in some receivers to project and enlarge the image. The range of topics is from the simple magnifying lenses which are placed between the picture tube and the viewer to increase the size of the image to the complicated arrangements of mirrors and lenses which are similar in principle to the Schmidt camera. It is not addressed to laymen, but rather to such persons as television service men. However, since the exposition is largely free of mathematics and is supplemented by numerous diagrams and photographs of projection and enlargement systems, the book should be of use to some non-professional television enthusiasts who are mechanically inclined, or just mechanically curious." Library J

Booklist 46:116 D 1 '49

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1607 O 15 '49 140w

"The book is rather generously illustrated with both diagrams and reproductions of photographs. It is suitable either for use in organized courses or home study."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:77 S '49

LYTTLE, EILEEN JEANETTE. See Garrett, E. J. L.

LYTTON, VICTOR ALEXANDER GEORGE ROBERT BULWER-LYTTON, 2d earl of. Bulwer-Lytton. (English novelists ser) 111p $2 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Lytton, Edward George Earle Lytton, 1st baron 49-9418

Brief study of this English writer, by his grandson. The book is largely biographical, with some attempt to determine Bulwer-Lytton's place in literature. List of biographical dates. Index.

Booklist 45:394 Jl 15 '49

"A stuffy, moralizing life of 'my grandfather,' Bulwer-Lytton. Lord Lytton bores with obscure family quarrels, confuses with inconsequential love affairs, and irritates with uncritical applause for Bulwer-Lytton's political career and literary production." Joseph Kraft
— Nation 169:186 Ag 20 '49 110w

"If this series as a whole is disappointing, several individual volumes have an independent interest of an unpretentious sort. The study of Bulwer-Lytton by his grandson has the pale, quaint charm of a family memoir. . . The author has a modest and just estimate of the attention due his grandfather's books." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 121:19 Jl 4 '49 230w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 28 '49 300w

"An oddly disproportionate affair. There is virtually no criticism in the book, which is a mixture of fragments of biography jerkily patched together and synopses of the plots of some of the novels. This is a pity, because few people read Bulwer-Lytton today, and we need a reasoned statement of his achievement as a writer of fiction and his place among English novelists." David Daiches
N Y Times p17 Jl 24 '49 130w

New Yorker 25:110 S 24 '49 60w

"All in all, Lord Lytton has done his duty with taste and discretion, and in the process he has told us just enough of his grandfather's domestic tragedy to make us understand the harrowing difficulties under which he worked." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ag 20 '49 650w

"This is an admirable introduction to Bulwer-Lytton but I doubt whether it can be taken as a representative modern assessment of his literary standing." C. E. Vulliamy
+ — Spec 181:146 Jl 30 '48 650w

"Brief, well-balanced study."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p444 Ag 7 '48 700w

M

MABIE, MARY LOUISE. Prepare them for Caesar. 376p $3.50 Little

Caesar, Caius Julius—Fiction 49-9503

A novel based on the adult life of Julius Caesar. It begins in Rome, when Caesar was not yet twenty, and had all his conquests before him, and ends with the day of his death nearly forty years later.

Booklist 45:346; 376 Je 15 '49; Jl 1 '49

"Miss Mabie declares herself to be devoted to Caesar in spite of his defects. The paradox of her book is that many readers may wonder why he should deserve honor and admiration, if the picture here delineated is a true one. It is true, of course—but only so far as it goes. Unfortunately, the author, in selecting from her material, left much of the good interred. What she does is to praise Caesar's valor and point up his ambition. It may be recalled that this is just what Brutus did, albeit with somewhat more drastic emphasis." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 8 '49 550w

"As holding as Robert Graves' Claudius' books, and as rewarding, in the recreation of a living, breathing Rome."
+ Kirkus 17:257 My 15 '49 150w

"Style is heavy with minute description of life at that time. Too long and too wordy for popular appeal. Otherwise recommended." Edith Crowell

Library J 74:495 Mr 15 '49 80w

"A series of vivid pictures of individuals and episodes in a period remarkable for both its splendor and sordidness. Possibly less of stylistic emphasis in the detail would have left the whole more coherent, but no one who reads this book is likely ever again to think of Caesar in terms of lessons and dusty history books and monuments." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 24 '49 700w

"Through it all is evident the author's admiration for the power and glory of Caesar—for his tough cruelty and calculated leniency. Yet this novelization of an epic tale somehow misses fire. Though it roams the limits of the known world, its pace remains pedestrian." Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p14 Jl 31 '49 320w

"Miss Mabie has evidently been through all the authoritative data available, from Plutarch on up, and has wisely stuck fairly close to it, even to insisting on having her characters pronounce, at appropriate times, almost all the historic quotations attributed to them. . . The author's chief success is her well-dimensioned estimate of Caesar. . . Miss Mabie doesn't clarify all the political twists of the era, but her views of Rome are lifelike."

+ New Yorker 25:61 Ag 6 '49 120w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 550w

MCALLISTER, CHARLES ELDRIDGE. Inside the campus; Mr. Citizen looks at his universities [prepared for the Assn. of governing boards of state univs. and allied institutions]. 247p $5 Revell

378 Colleges and universities—U.S. 49-7085

"The result of a year's survey made in 1946, by personal visits to 889 colleges in the nation. . . [The author] is chiefly concerned, since his personal interests are these, with the administration of colleges from the point of view of trustees, deans, presidents, and public relations men. He sees colleges mostly as enormous state-supported technical schools, turning out able technicians and professional men by the hundreds. He is pretty well convinced that specific data in tables can show what a college really is. The plan of his book is in three major sections. The first covers service objectives of colleges—are they politically controlled, do they foster communism (he says no), do they advance religious tolerance and understanding of industrial problems? The second section covers the relationships between governing boards and their agents and the faculty and students. . . The third section is a detailed set of tables showing what the universities allege in answering a questionnaire is true of tuition charges, salary scales, enrollment, entrance requirements, student 'mortality' rate, internal friction, assets, teaching loads, and so on." (Springf'd Republican) Bibliography.

"The concluding pages of this book contain a useful bibliography and a reproduction of the questionnaire used in the survey as well as extensive data obtained thereby which is arranged in tabular form. In all, this is a timely and useful book which deserves reading by a far wider group than that composed of those professionally concerned with higher education." J. H. Barnett

+ Ann Am Acad 263:260 My '49 480w

School & Society 69:88 Ja 29 '49 60w

"The vast task approached humbly and sincerely, has produced extremely interesting results. These results, however, are more limited than the title would indicate, and the point of view of the author has limited the matter further." H. L. Varley

Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 420w

MACARTHUR, KATHLEEN WALKER. Bible and human rights. augmented rev ed 95p $2; bds 60c Womans press

323.4 Civil rights. Church and social problems 49-10665

"Human rights have a Biblical basis and the author, examining the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights and the President's Civil Rights Report, finds their statements affirmed in the Bible. First issued in pamphlet form in 1948." (Booklist) Suggested readings.

Booklist 46:66 O 15 '49

"It is not easy to assess the significance and usefulness of this volume. Secular intellectuals who stand outside the Christian tradition will find it incomprehensible. Those who find the Bible a convenient sanction for the Status quo will probably be offended rather than challenged by Dr. MacArthur's use of biblical teachings. Sensitive Christians who have thought seriously about human rights will find her analysis of the theoretical basis of rights somewhat superficial and her suggestions more hortatory than illuminating for complex situations. If the book is regarded primarily as a devotional study, it will stand more favorable comparison." G. L. Abernethy

+ — Christian Century 66:1169 O 5 '49 700w

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor

Churchman 163:17 D 15 '49 180w

MACARTNEY, CLARENCE EDWARD NOBLE. Lincoln and the Bible. 96p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham 49-554

"Almost everyone who is familiar with the Lincoln saga knows that the Bible was one of the few books he had as a youth and that his knowledge of the Holy Scriptures was exceptionally full and accurate. What many do not know is the wide use Lincoln made of this knowledge and his own evaluation of the Bible. . . [Dr Macartney] shows that Lincoln was familiar with the Bible, that his references to the Scriptures in letters, documents, and speeches were plentiful and pertinent, and that passages were recalled by the President readily and with ease. Going through his speeches, state papers, letters and recorded conversations, the author finds 77 quotations from or references to the Bible." Christian Century

"Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, distinguished clergyman and close student of Lincoln and the Civil War period, has done a competent piece of work in small compass." E. D. Jones

+ Christian Century 66:271 Mr 2 '49 500w

"Dr. Macartney has done a fine piece of work, as he always does. The point is that Lincoln drew a line between the theory of religion and religion itself. The one can be very complex, the other is simple. He was not interested in theology—the theory—as he said more than once; it was the heart of religion—prayer, most of all—that sustained his heroic spirit." J. F. Newton

Churchman 163:15 Ap 1 '49 360w

MACAULEY, THURSTON, ed. The great horse omnibus, from Homer to Hemingway; introd. by Bing Crosby. 462p il $5 Ziff-Davis

636.1 Horses—Legends and stories 49-9221

Prose and poetry and illustrations celebrating the horse, chosen from the art and literature of all times and countries.

Kirkus 17:231 Ap 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 20w

"The 'Omnibus' has an excellent Footnote to Horse Racing by John I. Day, jr., which tells most of what most readers would like to know about it."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 14 '49 380w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Je 26 '49 140w

MACCABE, NAOMI, and MACCABE, LORIN. Cable car Joey [il. by Lorin MacCabe]. 61p $1.95 Stanford univ. press
49-9965

"A story of San Francisco's first cable car, its agonies of fear as it faced the long hill, the encouragement of its father, the horse-drawn car, and its mother, the mule-car, its pride of achievement, its despair during the earthquake. And finally its happy tour of the modern city." Kirkus

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Ag 27 '49 40w

Kirkus 17:358 Jl 15 '49 90w

"Joey is not another 'Little Toot,' but he has a charm of his own." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 130w

"This is a story that small boys and girls will enjoy. It tells them a great deal about one of the most fascinating cities in the United States of America." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 N 12 '49 130w

MCCALL, MARIE. Evening wolves. 279p $3 Day
49-9284

A story of the witchcraft hysteria in New England in the late seventeenth century. The scene this time is Boston; the principal characters are a Puritan minister, his lovely but somewhat unorthodox wife, Ann, and Dorcas Hubbard who loved the minister and tried to destroy his wife.

Booklist 45:355 Je 15 '49

"Puritanism is basically only an added titillation to this most usual triangular plot, a stereotype of human stupidity and narrowness. As an extremely complicated and important historical movement, it has received here neither sympathetic nor truly explanatory treatment."
— + Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 16 '49 180w

Kirkus 17:215 Ap 15 '49 180w

"An absorbing story. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:956 Je 15 '49 100w

"'The Evening Wolves' is too prolonged in its cruel progress. The tragedy does not need the action, like a sound track of wailing and weeping." George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 19 '49 290w

Reviewed by Joan Andrews
N Y Times p40 Je 19 '49 260w

"The witchcraft scare in seventeenth-century Massachusetts, given a competent, if somewhat cinematic, treatment. . . There is nothing unusual about the motivations, but the author's report of the hysteria attendant on the matter is relevant to our times."
New Yorker 25:85 Je 18 '49 90w

"The writing is skilful, the characterizations are effective and alive, the scene and period are excellently recreated. Accordingly, the book is enjoyable and offers good fare even if it does not depart from the conventions, traditions, and stock obligatory scenes of such a tale." Edmund Fuller
+ Sat R of Lit 32:22 Je 25 '49 430w

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 230w

MCCAMY, JAMES LUCIAN, and MCCAMY, JULIA TEXIE BOGGESS. Government publications for the citizen [a report of the Public library inquiry]. 139p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

025.173 U.S.—Government publications. Libraries—U.S.
49-11260

"Among the recommendations for more orderly organization in the printing and distribution of government publications, the author suggests that U.S. federal printing be transferred from legislative to the executive branch, and that all noncommercial libraries be given the right to select and receive, free of charge, documents they want. For better distribution to the public he recommends that public libraries become distributing and sales centers. Although federal publications receive most attention, there are also analyses of printing, methods of listing or reviewing, distribution, and use of state and local publications." Booklist

Booklist 46:90 N 15 '49

Reviewed by L. C. Merritt
Library J 74:1743 N 15 '49 550w

School & Society 70:240 O 8 '49 30w

MCCARTHY, MRS CATHERINE RIDGWAY. Definition of love. 339p $3 Houghton
49-10938

Just before Connie Trumbull returns to college for her senior year, her father fails in business and dies. This is the story of Connie's hard year, earning her way, learning new attitudes to life, experiencing the joy and bitterness of a love that ends tragically, of another love that holds promise for the future.

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 6 '49 200w

"An aware and appealing portrayal of a girl and the reversals of circumstances and values, convincingly communicated in a first novel."
+ Kirkus 17:370 Jl 15 '49 110w

"As a novel not a success, but some of the characters are individuals and do live. Recommended for large fiction collections only." E. S. Brown
— + Library J 74:1095 Ag '49 100w

"Connie's story adds up to an odd combination of melodrama and reflective analysis. There are many penetrating character studies in the book; there are many reflective, sensitive passages which explore the turbulent experience of a generation forced to renounce its middle-class heritage; there are many scenes which are excellently and evocatively written. Unfortunately, their total effect is vitiated by the over-use of melodrama and by a certain lack of coherence in the narrative structure." Blythe Morley
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p50 S 25 '49 320w

"Sensitive, moving story of a girl growing into maturity. . . The book's ending is a little abrupt. Even when repudiated, it is hard to feel that Connie would so soon fall out of love. . . But she was 21 and at that age miracles are still accomplished." Faith Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p30 S 25 '49 290w

Reviewed by Marc Rivette
San Francisco Chronicle p28 O 23 '49 150w

"The book, for all its title, suffers from a lack of definiteness. The nameless college and its students seem so far removed from Connie's orbit as to leave her without friends. . . There is a naive attitude toward 'the poor' that has a synthetic ring, but the most grievous mistake is the apparent acceptance of snobbishness as a fault that time will correct, or knowledge dissipate—whereas it is not a fault at all, but a defect of character, a congenital heart flow for which there is no real cure." Josephine Lawrence
— Sat R of Lit 32:58 O 8 '49 700w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 200w

MCCARTHY, JOHN WILLIAM. Naturalism of Samuel Alexander. 111p $2.50 King's crown press

192.9 Naturalism. Alexander, Samuel
48-7416

"The purpose of this work is to present Samuel Alexander's vision of the world. This unique man, emerging from an active generation of British philosophers mostly devoted to analyses, was first and foremost a great systematizer, resembling in his ethical urge his spiritual kinsman and co-religionist, Spinoza. . . In the author's opinion, Alexander's thought, through its scope and goal, demands hearing as an alternative to both Thomistic and Aristotelian syntheses. This report is directed at those features of Alexander's grand scheme which make for unification, especially the concept of nisus, which subsumes within itself the impulses for art, truth, goodness and worship; instincts for preservation and propagation; and the drive for acquisition. As a text in contemporary philosophy, this book will be found to be a good introduction both to Alexander and to the general topic of emergent evolution." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. No index.

"This is an ideal doctor's publication—ideal because it is so simply and understandably written and because it conveys in an admirable manner the thought of one of the major philosophers of our time." Vergilius Ferm
+ Crozer Q 26:67 Ja '49 1250w

J Philos 46:479 Jl 21 '49 280w

"A well-balanced and carefully documented exposition of Alexander's philosophy. . . The sympathetic exposé is occasionally enlivened by critical remarks. Since these criticisms fail to express a unifying point of view and leave the principles untouched, they might as well have been omitted." Helmut Kuhn
+ — J Religion 29:82 Ja '49 60w

"A clear, attractively written account. . . As an easy but incomplete introduction the book may be recommended. Mr. McCarthy does not seem to appreciate the best in Alexander, his constructive skill in developing his philosophy as a whole, or he would not stop short where he does. He too readily accepts the weakest aspect of his thought, his evolutionary optimism." A. D. R.
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 F 1 '49 180w

MCCARTHY, MARY. The oasis. 181p $2 Random house
49-10152

The scene is an abandoned hotel and adjacent cottages on a New England mountain top. A party of some fifty Americans, mainly intellectuals, decide to retire to this mountain Utopia. The community does not escape the perils of present-day life even there. The climax of the book comes when a family of stolid farmer people invade the colony fields to pick strawberries.

"This is a mild entertainment, stylishly written with glints of occasional wit. It fails in narrative power or clear character portrayal, but as a new variation on an ancient theme, it is a diversion for an evening's reading." Clorinda Clarke
Cath World 170:158 N '49 170w

"Forgive a pun—but in the desert of modern fiction it is refreshing to find an oasis of good writing, intelligence and wit. Instead of undisciplined passion and mediocre style, Mary McCarthy presents a study of liberals of our time with psychological insight, brilliant satire, awareness of the possibilities of the English language, and artistic polish." Florence Medow
+ Chicago Sun p8X Ag 7 '49 200w

"The book was first published in the English periodical, Horizon, and the present publishers are equipped with enthusiastic blurbs from very respectable sources. All proclaim the supreme humor of the book. Perhaps there is some. Traub is pathetic in his bumbling, almost puppy-like fashion—an image quite out of keeping with his concept of himself, and perhaps there is some pathos in Lockwood, the businessman turned painter. But those are small rewards for reading so many words." Denham Sutcliffe
— Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 23 '49 470w

Reviewed by Henry Rago
Commonweal 50:536 S '49 700w

Kirkus 17:282 Je 1 '49 160w

"For those who found delight in the recent political satires, this slight and stinging story will bring food for thought. It ranks with Menen's Prevalence of Witches (1948), Waugh's Scott-King's Modern Europe (1949), and Orwell's Animal Farm (1946)." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:1024 Jl '49 100w

Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 169:281 S 17 '49 800w

Reviewed by Alexander Klein
New Repub 121:19 D 5 '49 1300w

"What is delightful about this story is the infectious energy and enthusiasm of Miss McCarthy, who plunges gallantly in to the thick of so many complicated ideas and problems with the tonic species of rebarbative gusto." Julia Strachey
+ New Statesman & Nation 37:211 F 26 '49 420w

"Vigorously written, starred with brilliant phrases, yet distressingly dense and opaque in its total content and communication, Mary McCarthy's 'The Oasis' has all the air of a literary curiosity. . . It has been said that 'The Oasis' is drawn from life, in which case it would still appear rather more humorless than spiteful, since the characters (if not the scene) are so obscured by some reticence or astigmatism, on the part of the author, or by a combination of both, as to appear formless and unidentifiable, and therefore—except to some coterie of initiates—the presumed satire would seem rather pointless. More reasonably, therefore, this baffling and far from entirely successful little book might best be regarded as a philosophical disquisition with fictional trimmings." Iris Barry
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 14 '49 800w

"If a lucid style, sharp eyes and ears, an acute wit and the malice to propel it were the only things one needed to write a good satire, Mary McCarthy's new novel would be a very good satire. For certainly Miss McCarthy's style is almost perfect. . . But something more than style and intelligence is needed. . . The author's failure—it is a distinguished failure—is due to the lack of a story. We simply do not care whether Utopia fails or succeeds and she never defines success or failure. Related to this is her lack of sympathy for her characters. She remains aloof." Donald Barr
— + N Y Times p5 Ag 14 '49 650w

"An absolutely unmitigated triumph of wit and writing skill." Brendan Gill
+ New Yorker 25:65 Ag 20 '49 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 30 '49 850w

Reviewed by Gorham Munson
Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ag 20 '49 650w

"The writing is close, and demands our full attention. There is little narrative. . . The book depends on its insight and the texture of the writing. Both are remarkable. . . It is brilliant if a little chilly; and, sentence by sentence, the writing is a joy. I shall be eager to see how Miss McCarthy's gifts develop." L. A. G. Strong
+ Spec 182:302 Mr 4 '49 180w

"Author McCarthy's wit sparkles very nicely as long as she is standing the false gods of contemporary intellectualism on their heads and displaying her theory-ridden victims against a backdrop composed of the simple facts of life. Nonetheless, most of The Oasis has just the same fatal flaw as the Utopia it describes—it is built entirely of disembodied ideas and peopled with puppets. As an intellectual essay it tinkles some pretty bells, but as fiction it is about as robust and complete as a lopped-off head."
+ — Time 54:84 Ag 15 '49 700w

MCCLUNG, ROBERT M. Sphinx; the story of a caterpillar; il. by [the author]. [48p] $2 Morrow

Caterpillars—Juvenile literature 49-10006

Story describing the life cycle of a caterpillar, from egg to sphinx moth. For ages 5-9.

Booklist 46:16 S 1 '49

"The vocabulary will be difficult for beginning readers, but it reads well aloud."
Kirkus 17:358 Jl 15 '49 60w

"Recommended for school libraries and natural history groups." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:1465 O 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 40w

"Writing is sound and full of details most of us do not know about this strange creature's life progress. The large type and pictures on every page make it a useful addition to nature books for younger readers." L. S. Bechtel

MCCLUNG, R. M.—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 16 '49 100w
Wis Lib Bul p10 N '49

MCCLURE, JAMES D. California landmarks; a photographic guide to the state's historic spots; text, maps, and phot. by [the author]. 149p $3 Stanford univ. press
979.4 California—Views. California—Historic houses, etc. 48-9375

Descriptive text and photographs of historic landmarks, chiefly buildings, in California. Index.

" 'California Landmarks' will prove a useful and often-consulted companion for any tourist taking in the state's historic spots, whether he be a native son or a visitor from the outer darkness." Oscar Lewis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ja 9 '49 280w
Sat R of Lit 32:35 F 19 '49 150w

MACCONOCHIE, ARTHUR FRANCIS. Kinematics of machines. 217p il $3 Pitman
621.81 Machinery, Kinematics of 48-11943

"An introduction to the basic principles and theories underlying the construction and operation of machines. The theoretical aspects of the subject are stressed, and the nature of the motion of machine parts and the magnitude of the forces involved are examined in detail. Practical applications are illustrated largely by the problems given at the end of each chapter. The book is intended for use by second- and third-year engineering students who have had a course in elementary mechanics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:823 My 15 '49 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:9 Ja '49

MCCORD, CAREY PRATT, and WITHERIDGE, WILLIAM N. Odors: physiology and control. 405p il $6.50 McGraw 628.52 Odors 49-7737

"The authors have attempted in this book a summary of the latest knowledge of the perception, measurement, classification, control, and elimination of odors, and an appraisal of the significance of odors in relation to health, emotional life, economics and related legal problems." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"This volume is unique in many respects. The manner in which the data are presented not only makes it easy for the reader to understand a rather technical subject, but also adds interest. Many illustrations have been utilized, and the historical development of the problem has been traced by drawing considerably on ancient documents. This book should be a very useful tool not only to industrial hygienists and other public health workers, but also to architects, housing authorities, city planners, and the legal profession." J. J. Bloomfield
+ Am J Pub Health 39:805 Je '49 290w
Booklist 46:60 O 15 '49

"Particularly in those parts of the book dealing with engineering and again in two sections on the legal aspect of odor nuisances this reviewer knows of nothing that has been written that is the equal of the present book. [However] we must take exception to several unscientific passages. . . Many will no doubt admire the authors' bibliography, consuming upward of 100 pages, and containing what appear to be about 3,000 references. We doubt that so huge a bibliography, albeit arranged by subject, is a helpful guide to anyone except a student wishing to do equally thorough research on odor. No indication is to be found as to the value, if such there be, of any given reference; the most worthless mysticism is intermingled with the most significant scientific approach. . . Despite these serious shortcomings, the McCord-Witheridge book can be recommended as indispensable to all engaged in odor and allied fields." Edward Sagarin
+ — Chem Eng 56:333 My '49 550w
Management R 38:583 O '49 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:73 S '49

"The first half of the book is of interest to physicians and health officers and contains information they will not find readily elsewhere; the second half is of interest primarily to industrial and ventilating engineers."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:249 Je '49 160w

MCCORMACK, LILY (FOLEY) (MRS JOHN MCCORMACK). I hear you calling me. 201p il $2.75 Bruce pub.
B or 92 McCormack, John 49-50086

A biography of the great Irish tenor written by his wife. The book contains a McCormack discography. No index.

Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 30w

"With modest sincerity and an artlessness transcending art, [his widow] portrays him as a personality at once magnificent and endearing. We see not only the singer but the lover, husband, father, connoisseur and sportsman. What is proffered as a biography of an artist becomes, through the miracle of woman's devotion, also one of the beautiful love stories of our time." James Travis
+ Cath World 170:318 Ja '50 400w

"For those who enjoy a book of musical reminiscences with a goodly supply of sparkling anecdotes, there can be no more entertaining book than I Hear You Calling Me." H. E. Bush
+ Library J 74:1907 D 15 '49 80w

"In her wholly disarming and thoroughly absorbing reminiscences of her famous husband, Lily McCormack has some observations of special interest to the legion of the singer's recording enthusiasts."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:50 O '49 1250w

MCCORMICK, MRS ALMA (HEFLIN). Merry makes a choice; with drawings by Ruth King. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 243p $2.50 Little 49-1259

Merry Bates agreed to try one year at a teachers' college, at her parents' request, altho she was sure she did not want to be a teacher. This novel for older girls describes Merry's year in school, and her change of heart.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 14 '49 240w

"Not great literature, but an interesting story with a message, especially to young would-be teachers." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 74:896 Je 1 '49 70w

"Another teen-age novel, rather more interesting than most. . . There is much that is genuinely amusing in the dormitory life; much that is touching in Merry's first contacts with small children; and much to make high-school girls think of teaching in new ways." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 26 '49 150w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p30 My 8 '49 140w

MCCORMICK, CHARLES PERRY. Power of people; multiple management up to date; foreword by Eric A. Johnston. 136p $2 Harper
331.152 Employees' representation in management 49-10618

"The head of a Baltimore spice company brings up to date the explanation of his company's plan for employee participation in management which he first described in Multiple Management [Book Review Digest 1938]. The system is advanced as one aspect of better human relations in business and a defense against communism." (Booklist) Index.

"The book contains an excellent picture of management as seen through the workers' eyes. It is to be hoped that members of management in general will read it and be impressed by it." R. N. McMurry

+ Ann Am Acad 266:208 N '49 550w

Booklist 46:27 S 15 '49

Kirkus 17:248 My 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by H. H. Carey
Management R 38:571 O '49 800w

"There is as much excitement in this sober little book as in any war memoir or murder thriller. . . One of the weaknesses of Mr. McCormick's book is his apparent belief that the existence of a union is proof positive that management has fallen down on its job. His own strong recognition of the desire of workers for a sense of dignity and independence should make it clear that there is no necessary conflict between unionization and the kind of multiple management he practices." A. H. Raskin

+ N Y Times p28 S 11 '49 500w

Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 450w

MCCORMICK, WILFRED. Fielder's choice; a Bronc Burnett story. 180p $2 Putnam 49-1569

"Bronc Burnett and his Sonora, N. M., teammates are rolling on toward a national American Legion Junior Baseball championship. In this volume, the third in the series for teen-aged boys, they win the Regional play-offs at Denver and head for the Sectionals." N Y Times

Booklist 45:265 Ap 1 '49

Kirkus 17:31 Ja 15 '49 70w

"These are not Class A baseball stories, but they are recommended for younger readers in children's rooms because of their readability." M. D. Read

+ — Library J 74:315 F 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 10 '49 50w

"The action is always fast and dramatic, the characterization is becoming increasingly strong. The baseball know-how is the finest example of top-flight knowledge in sports fiction that this reviewer has seen. Each volume has a theme that gives it coherence and meaning." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p32 Mr 6 '49 150w

MCCORMICK, WILFRED. Flying tackle; a Bronc Burnett story. 184p $2 Putnam 49-10447

"Bronc Burnett, who has won the favor of thousands of adolescent boys with his ability on the diamond, turns to football in 'Flying Tackle.' The reader will meet the same old 'gang'—Coach Cap'n Al Carter, Fat Crompton, Fibate Jones, Nohtah—who won baseball fame for little Sonora High. Bronc starts as a back, shifts to tackle to strengthen a weak line, returns to the backfield to wreck the opposition in the crucial game, and finally wins that game with his quick thinking when he has been injured and is unable to carry the ball." N Y Times

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 5 '49 30w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 13 '49 150w

Kirkus 17:472 S 1 '49 110w

"Whether the material on football strategy makes up for the unconvincing plot and characterization is a question. Would recommend purchase only where the other Bronc Burnett books have been found popular." Lillian Morrison

Library J 74:1106 Ag '49 70w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
N Y Times p34 O 30 '49 100w

MCCRACKEN, HAROLD. Caribou traveler; il. by Rod Ruth. 204p $2.50 Lippincott

Caribou—Legends and stories 49-11182

"The story of Tuktu, a caribou of the Barren Grounds in the Arctic Islands. An authentic biography of a rare wild animal for children." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 8 '49 150w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 75:112 Ja 15 '50 70w

"There is an epic-like quality to this moving story and an air of reality that animal fiction does not always achieve. The tale is made poignant by the knowledge that the Barren Ground caribou has gone the way of the American buffalo. The author of this spirited book is a scientist and a veteran explorer of the lonesome land he describes so vividly. 'Caribou Traveler' is warmly recommended for readers of junior high age and up." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p29 N 13 '49 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 12 '49 30w

MACCRACKEN, HENRY NOBLE. Family on Gramercy park. 213p $2.75 Scribner

B or 92 New York (city)—Social life and customs 49-7165

The ex-president of Vassar writes these memories of his own boyhood in the 1890's. His father was Chancellor of New York university and the family lived in Gramercy Park in downtown New York. Each family "on" the park had a key and outsiders were not supposed to use it. But to a twelve-year-old boy the East side gangs led far more exciting lives. The book is a mixture of life in a moderately well-to-do family, and a small boy's attempts to make his way among the gangs, with a few gestures toward the ladies.

Booklist 45:97; 207 N 15 '48; F 15 '49

"In writing of his boyhood in and around the neighborhood of Gramercy Park, Henry Noble MacCracken, retired president of Vassar and director and chairman of many benevolent organizations, has reproduced, graphically and faithfully, not only a quaint corner of old New York, but a whole era. Here is a refreshing book, not only for its fun, but for its glimpses of historic personages and events, seen through very young, but not entirely guileless eyes." C. B. Burnett

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 11 '49 650w

"Written in a most engaging style, the book is, in its own way, every bit as American as Huckleberry Finn." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 163:17 F 1 '49 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '49

"A vividly remembered picture of early '90's in New York, colored by a rather precocious boy's feel for those years."

+ Kirkus 16:589 N 1 '48 190w

"Will prove utterly enchanting to lovers of the town and to men whose boyhood exploits may not have been so exciting. Boys too, will enjoy it. Sociologists will like to read about youthful gang members who later followed honorable careers. Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 74:56 Ja 1 '49 100w

"Gay and charming."
Library J 74:1560 O 15 '49 40w

"Dr. MacCracken records Noble's adventures mostly in the present tense and in the vernacular. . . This colloquialism is oddly upsetting. A backward look at the 1890s, with which we now have become so pleasantly familiar in lives of papa and mama, is obviously the prerogative of people whose childhood elapsed some time ago. And when an author writes of the actual past in the vocabulary of his childhood, the effect is a little as if he had reverted to baby talk." Mary Ross

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ja 30 '49 700w

MACCRACKEN, H. N.—Continued

"This reader doesn't pretend to know how it's done. He wasn't always, as he read, able to recover enough of his own boyhood—somewhat farther off in time and space—to keep the young hero company. But he cannot avoid the impression that the book is a remarkable achievement in the way of a period piece." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 16 '49 490w

"The author's reminiscences are amusing and sometimes quite salty; he should not, however, have persisted in using the present tense or in trying to write in schoolboy vernacular."

+ — New Yorker 24:82 Ja 22 '49 160w

"It must be granted that Dr. MacCracken is gifted with something like total recall; if it were all a matter of memory, he can qualify for high marks. The trouble is that Dr. MacCracken goes cute at the slightest opportunity, and since, as the author of the book, he can make his own opportunities, he's busy being cute-as-a-bug practically all the time. Someone, too, must have told him to get in a lot of dialogue, for most of the book is written that way. The result, I'm afraid, is something pretty like utter confusion." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 11 '49 800w

"The story is delightful reading whether viewed as a period piece of a vanished New York, or a blow-by-blow account of the street battles waged by the gang, fortified with strategems dug out from Caesar's 'Commentaries' and the 'Iliad,' or as a lively and heartwarming account of the fascinating family at 84 Irving Place." E. E. Calkins

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 F 5 '49 800w

School & Society 69:271 Ap 9 '49 60w

"These memories of old New York, touched still with some of the wonder of a small boy's world, and recreating the picturesque life of the city in a more leisurely age, make delightful reading, both appealing and informative."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:183 Je '49 240w

Wis Lib Bul 45:86 My '49

MCCRONE, GUY. Aunt Bel. 342p $3 Farrar, Straus

49-8319

Continuation of the chronicle of the Glasgow Moorhouses begun in Red Plush (Book Review Digest 1947). The time is the 1890's and Bel Moorhouse is the central character. She has become a sort of family social arbiter, and does not like any questioning of her right to say who shall marry whom. Yet in the course of the years she gives in to two young people, one of them her own son.

Booklist 45:218; 262 Mr 1 '49; Ap 1 '49

"Through some 342 pages, Mr. McCrone ably describes Aunt Bel's doings in a humorous and lively style. . . The book is truly a 'social record' as the author states, pleasantly readable, but neither too important, nor original."

+ — Cath World 169:240 Je '49 200w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p8X My 1 '49 250w

"With its brilliant character drawing and comedy, and its beautifully authentic presentment of Victorian manners, this is an exceedingly fine novel." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 5 '49 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '49

"A sequel to Red Plush—and for those readers who enjoyed that trilogy for the sense of pleasant intercourse with a family—likeable, irritating, human—it will be like going back for a week-end visit and picking up the threads of family news."

+ Kirkus 17:9 Ja 1 '49 160w

"Well done picture of the trivia that occupy the minds and time of people too superficial to be absorbing." Anne Whitmore

Library J 74:547 Ap 1 '49 100w

"The foibles of this pretty, snobbish woman are recorded with such fond relish as to assure us of her heart being in the right place. But middle-age is so much the keynote that the young people seem a little muted and out of tune." H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 18 '49 80w

"Considerably thinner than 'Red Plush'—Mr. McCrone seems to feel that he has already put us in possession of the Glasgow of the '90s—'Aunt Bel' stands on its own, nevertheless, as a pleasant, large-as-life portrait of a full-bodied Scotch Victorian." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ap 24 '49 700w

Reviewed by Ruth Page

N Y Times p24 My 8 '49 270w

New Yorker 25:108 Ap 30 '49 110w

"The Moorhouses may still be lacking in the sturdy qualities of Miss de la Roche's Whiteoaks or Galsworthy's Forsytes, but they have a core to them that augurs well for their future. The ease with which you'll recognize the members of the family is surprising. But characterization is one of Mr. McCrone's strong points." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 15 '49 420w

"In the burgeoning pages of 'Red Plush' the cheese merchants who were being graduated from the farmers' ranks and from the sordid levels of small trade, were still close enough to their economic roots, still so intimately an organic part of the industrial revolution as to possess a fascinating vitality. But now the quick flow of their ambitious blood has met the slightly hardened arteries that accompany success and conventional social attainments, and there is simply no bang left in the Moorhouse family." William Soskin

Sat R of Lit 32:10 Je 4 '49 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p213 Ap 2 '49 100w

Wis Lib Bul 45:66 Ap '49

MACDONALD, ALEXANDER. Bangkok editor. 229p $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Bangkok post. Siam—Politics and government. Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-11478

"Mr. MacDonald at the end of the war found himself in Siam where he was working for the O.S.S. When the time came for his discharge, he requested the Navy to release him from active duty in Bangkok where he had decided to establish a newspaper. The bulk of the book concerns his problems in getting personnel, supplies and equipment together, and the everyday problems of publishing." Library J

Booklist 46:135 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 30w

Reviewed by Walter Simmons

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 15 '50 400w

Kirkus 17:529 S 15 '49 190w

"Light. Unimportant." Donald Wasson

Library J 74:1673 N 1 '49 100w

"Lively, readable book."

+ Nation 169:525 N 26 '49 60w

Reviewed by H. R. Isaacs

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 6 '49 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 1 '50 400w

Wis Lib Bul p6 N '49

MACDONALD, AUSTIN FAULKS. Latin American politics and government. 642p il $4.40 Crowell

980 Latin America—Politics and government 49-9152

"Written as a textbook but useful for general reference on recent political history and present governmental setup in South and Central Americas. The author has visited most of the countries to observe conditions. References for further reading at the end of each chapter." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:374 Jl 1 '49

School & Society 69:358 My 14 '49 30w

MACDONALD, JOHN, pseud. See Millar, K.

MACDONALD, ZILLAH KATHERINE. Marcia, private secretary. 216p $2.50 Messner

49-1386

Vocational story for older girls. Marcia Lee is the heroine, and she has her share of disappointments until she gets a position at Christopher college. There she still has difficulties, but when she is instrumental in finding some lost college records and a valuable old book, her success is assured.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 14 '49 180w

"This has lots of pointers and hints for those interested in secretarial work, a romantic interest common to this type of book—and that something extra—good swift characterizations, so well delineated they escape being just 'stock' personalities. Even the touch of mystery is so understated that it doesn't detract from the growth of the central figure."
+ Kirkus 17:86 F 15 '49 130w

"A story that constantly holds the interest. Author is qualified to present this subject and does it in such a manner that it will be popular." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 74:669 Ap 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 12 '49 140w

"Miss Macdonald, formerly a secretary and now a member of the staff of the School of Business of Columbia University, writes with authority of her subject. There are also a touch of romance and a rather involved mystery to add human interest." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 13 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul 45:91 My '49

MCDOUGALL, WILLIAM H. By Eastern windows; the story of a battle of souls and minds in the prison camps of Sumatra. 349p $3 Scribner

940.548 World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons, Japanese. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American

49-8400

This sequel to Six Bells off Java (Book Review Digest 1948) tells of the author's three years in four Japanese prisons in Indonesia. Index.

Booklist 45:333 Je 1 '49

Kirkus 17:163 Mr 15 '49 170w

"It is an extremely interesting picture of the conditions under which the Japanese kept Allied prisoners, and portrays the brutality, ugliness and monotony which occur in such surroundings. In spite of this there is charity and kindness, and a lack of vindictiveness in the telling which adds much to the author's stature. While some of the details of such life are revolting, the language is never offensive. Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:660 Ap 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by H. M. Spitzer
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 My 15 '49 550w

"'By Eastern Windows' is well worth reading. It should give the reader pause to wonder at the fortitude of some men and to ponder anew our scale of values." Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p25 Je 12 '49 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 10 '49 450w

"Unfortunately, Mr. MacDougall has fallen short of his aim. From the technical standpoint, his story has been beautifully written: it bears the marks of the professional writer and it is done in the best tradition of reportage. In a series of vivid and unforgettable sketches we witness the frightful results of Japanese neglect and cruelty. . . It is particularly sad, therefore, that Mr. MacDougall, having so wonderfully exposed the prisoner's outer world, should have failed to disclose more fully the mental adaptation and the spiritual discoveries that came as a result of the conditions described." J. S. Ullmann
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 My 28 '49 700w

"'By Eastern Windows' is no dull record of daily routine. Entertaining stories of adventure or of capture heard from other prisoners, and vivid accounts of how men lived on faith and hope or died of hunger and disease, are underlined with regard to their attitude toward misfortune and to the strength—and luck—of their resistance." D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 600w

MCDOWELL, TREMAINE. American studies. 96p $1.50 Univ. of Minn.

378.73 Colleges and universities—Curricula. U.S.—Civilization—Study and teaching. Education, Higher 48-9983

"Acceptance of all the tenses, past, present, and future, is a major doctrine in the book. Its ultimate concern is with the broad pattern of higher education in the United States. The contemporary movement in education is a trend away from extreme academic specialization toward a synthesis of knowledge. The book's contents are gleaned from firsthand observation of procedures in more than 30 colleges and universities." (School & Society) No index.

School & Society 68:414 D 11 '48 80w

"Apart from a glancing blow at 'past-minded educators [who] . . . attempt to stop the clock' and minor hasty judgments, Professor McDowell succeeds, in a pedaguese-free style, in presenting a strong case for inter-departmental instruction." W. W. Brickman
+ — School & Society 69:130 F 19 '49 200w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:67 Mr '49 280w

MACFARLAND, CHARLES STEDMAN. Christian unity in the making. 376p $2.75 Federal council of churches of Christ in America, 297 4th av, N.Y. 10

273 Federal council of the churches of Christ in America

"This is the story of the first twenty-five years of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America." Churchman

"Here is valuable source material for students of the history of Christianity in 20th century America." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:626 My 18 '49 200w

"It is admirable and carefully documented. . . It should be noted that the book is essentially a source book. It will be of inestimable value to later students of the unity movement." E. L. Parsons
+ Churchman 163:16 Jl '49 360w

MACFARLANE, JANET. Family matter. 276p $3 Scribner

49-10578

"Here are the Irelands, living shabbily on a shabby city street; Mark, attractive, gentle, weak and ineffectual against the shrewd, suspicious, narrow minded, nasty minded tactics of his wife, Alice; Ellen, their older daughter, who escapes from the fights at home through her first beaux; and Jessie, six, who spends nervous days and terrifying nights as she is deliberately dragged into all the sordid scenes between her parents. When Mark falls in love with another woman, it is Alice who uses Jessie to spy out the proof of his infidelity and Jessie's last security disintegrates." Kirkus

Booklist 46:98 N 15 '49

"A first novel, indiscernibly so, which is a sharp-edged, realistically reminiscent portrayal of a soured marriage and the casualties it entailed, and which moves effectively from the monotony of daily discord to ultimate tragedy. . . An unsparing, moving story."
+ — Kirkus 17:404 Ag 1 '49 200w

"In this first novel Janet Macfarlane makes effective use of detail and turns of speech to give reality to this family and their setting,

MACFARLANE, JANET—Continued
and especially to the children. Except for them and for Mark, who is not strong enough to pull out alone nor yet to shield the children, most of the chief people in the book are thoroughly disagreeable or poisonously pleasant. They get under your skin, however, and one's interest in the fate of the youngsters deepens the suspense that makes this a telling novel." David Tilden
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 S 18 '49 460w

"Miss Macfarlane shows that she can handle a scene with simplicity and a good deal of power. She has talent, but it needs work. The reader, for example, might appreciate knowing more about Alice's background, and what made her the way she is." Jane Cobb
+ — N Y Times p34 O 9 '49 180w

"Miss MacFarlane's story of one virulently 'good' woman's corrosive influence on the lives which touch hers is powerful and dramatically compelling. Underscoring with her ironic title the terrible tragedy of betrayal which is her theme, she has documented fully that favorite observation of the psychologists that there are no problem children, only problem parents." Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 32:33 D 10 '49 270w

MCFEE, WILLIAM. Family trouble. 310p $3 Random house
49-7302

Mr Spenlove, retired from the English merchant marine, is now living happily with his wife in their beautiful English home. Another officer, Bannister, who lives nearby, has had quite a habit of rescuing damsels and often married them too. This led to what the sailors called "family troubles." Mr Spendlove's attempt to picture Bannister's life and character for his wife's entertainment forms the plot of the novel.

Booklist 45:186; 193 F 1 '49

"A book for the McFee addicts, who will be happy to meet this modern Ulysses again."
+ Kirkus 16:630 D 1 '48 120w

"Technique of developing narrative by rambling, garrulous, repetitive conversations delays action rather than creates suspense, and result is unfortunately tedious and disappointing." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 110w

"Into this modestly amusing account of a dream chaser's romances Mr. McFee has woven, in his usual amiable fashion, a good deal of Spenlovian comment. . . 'Family Trouble' will provide you an evening's pleasant, relaxing reading. Its faint, faraway flavor gives it, in these distressing days, a special charm." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 F 6 '49 420w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p23 F 6 '49 310w

"For the reader who dislikes tragedy and whose fiction must be entertaining and neatly wrapped up in a series of bright happy endings, this is the book. . . This is Mr. McFee's 25th novel since 1908 and the results show it. He writes with a glib and facile pen, scarcely allowing himself time for revisions, if one is to judge from some of his paragraphs and sentences which require rereading to determine exactly what the author is saying. However, there are relatively few of these, and the tale is certainly absorbing." M. R.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 6 '49 120w

Reviewed by Edmund Gilligan
Sat R of Lit 32:12 F 19 '49 550w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman
Spec 183:438 S 30 '49 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p581 S 9 '49 150w

MCGERR, PATRICIA. Save the witness. 219p $2.25 Doubleday
49-11678

Mystery story.

"This is the least effortful variation upon the original gadget and the tale is by that token her next-most-successful. But its manner, cumbered by an unnaturally dull-witted narrator, lacks the distinction of the plot's trick and only readers immune to style will find the narrative easy going before its conclusion." James Sandoe
— + Chicago Sun p51 N 25 '49 160w

"Slow, interest-lagging, but adequate detecting."
Kirkus 17:488 S 1 '49 50w

"Miss McGerr generally manages to give her mysteries an unusual twist, but this one is rather weak, and a complicated plot doesn't help to make matters any more mysterious."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p34 N 13 '49 150w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p45 N 27 '49 110w

MACGINITIE, GEORGE EBER, and MACGINITIE, NETTIE. Natural history of marine animals. 473p il $6 McGraw 591.92 Marine fauna. Marine biology
49-9159

"A beginner's book, for students and laymen. . . General descriptions of food available to sea animals, other features of habitat, and common, distinctive characteristics of marine animals precede descriptions of groups from single-celled to vertebrates. The most common and interesting animals from the various groups are selected and, since the authors work on the West coast, emphasis is on animals from the Pacific coast of North America." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:349 Je 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

MCGIVERN, WILLIAM P. Heaven ran last. 247p $2.50 Dodd 49-9954

Murder story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 15 '49 180w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 S 11 '49 150w

"Petty bigshot Johnny Ford, callous, vicious, yet oddly understandable, is a completely realized character; and the perfect murder which he conceives, the fumbling makeshift which he's forced to substitute, and his ultimate betrayal make a plot which Francis Iles would relish. The sexy, sardonic story is related to the school of James M. Cain; but McGivern's easy, fresh writing is free of the mannerisms of that school." A. B.
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 24 '49 250w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p33 O 16 '49 100w

MCGOVNEY, DUDLEY ODELL. American suffrage medley; the need for a national uniform suffrage [ed. by Edward L. Barrett, jr]. 201p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press
324.73 Suffrage 49-9160

"For several years prior to his death in October, 1947, Professor McGovney was engaged in the preparation of a long historical work under the general title, Our Eighteenth Century Heritage of Limited Democracy. In 1946 he decided that the need for a national uniform suffrage was so urgent if our democracy were to survive that he took his materials on that subject from the longer work in order to complete them for separate publication. This book is the result of that decision." (Foreword) Index.

"There is little new ground covered in the book. There are many wearisome passages and some arguments based on inconclusive evidence. However, the author did some thorough investigations and tedious compilations. . . The book is directed to laymen, but it is doubtful that many laymen will read it. It will be useful to civic groups, educators, and perhaps legislators in their quest for an ideal in universal suffrage rules." A. C. Breckenridge

— + Ann Am Acad 266:224 N '49 360w

Booklist 45:368 Jl 1 '49

"This is a scholarly study. . . The author, the late Professor McGovney of the University of California Law School, believes that only by an amendment to the Federal Constitution can the uniformity in voting requirements he recommends be adopted. The book contains detailed evidence and cogent arguments, although the organization of the material is somewhat loose." C. W. W.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 11 '49 150w

MCGREAL, WILLIAM. Andy, the musical ant; pictures by Nora S. Unwin. [46p] $1.75 Aladdin

49-11862

Story of how Andy the musical ant, a lazy outcast, saved his anthill from an invading army and thereby became his tribe's official musician.

Booklist 46:176 Ja 15 '50

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 15 '49 120w

"In this book, author and artist together have pictured for young children a fascinating small world in which important things are happening." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:406 S '49 90w

"Pleasant whimsical fiction in contrast to the routine animal stories which hold close to nature. The text hasn't the light touch of the drawings, but is adequate."
+ Kirkus 17:463 S 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 30w

"A charming nonsense story." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 100w

MCGUIRE, PAUL. There's freedom for the brave; an approach to world order. 309p $4 Morrow

341 International relations. World politics. International cooperation 49-7501

"Author, Australian newspaper correspondent who has written several political and literary books, reviews here major elements of conflict in international affairs rather concisely and proceeds then to outline direction of future course of world politics." (Library J) Index.

"The present work is . . . not profound or scholarly. . . McGuire's sense of history is good on the whole, but his generalizations are affected by a romantic view of the medieval synthesis, and by his belief that the energy of the Western states was due to their 'religious-philosophical-moral order.'" W. T. Perkins
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:610 Je '49 600w

Booklist 45:235 Mr 15 '49

"This book may have its inconsistencies, but to read it is a stimulating and refreshing experience." Henry Sowerby
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 24 '49 1000w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '49

"Paul McGuire's book will find many readers who will be stimulated by its wealth of ideas and pleased by its easy style. (Only rarely a tendency is to be observed to indulge in rhetorical emotionalism). . . He presents the case for the 'Open Society' in a very convincing way also for those who would be inclined to avoid identifying Christianity with Western civilization. But despite all question marks which the attentive reader will put on the margins of its pages, the book of Paul McGuire must be recommended as one of the most thoughtful attempts to investigate the deeper meaning of the political-social crisis of our time." Waldemar Gurian
+ Commonweal 49:568 Mr 18 '49 500w

Foreign Affairs 28:156 O '49 30w

"Persuasive, inspiring, challenging reading, which needs individual enthusiasm, plus the promised publisher backing, to reach the market it deserves."
+ Kirkus 16:656 D 15 '48 310w

"His remarks about role to be played by Britain and its Commonwealth of Nations are especially stimulating; chapters on Western Europe's future, on Russia and U.S. are full of interesting observations, and his forceful comment on the great moral issues of our times deserves attention. Provocative book will be useful, though not absolutely essential in larger public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 74:307 F 15 '49 130w

"This is an interesting book, the product of a fertile mind ranging over materials derived from an historian's knowledge of the past as well as from a much-traveled publicist's knowledge of the present. . . All in all, you will find few books on our present discontents as easy to read as this. The defects are there, too, and plain enough to scare away the more sensitive souls. Mr. McGuire repeats himself perhaps more than even a professional lecturer should. He exhorts us too much, in the half-bedside, half-barrack-room manner that is, for some of us, one of the more dispensable parts of the Anglo-Saxon inheritance. He seems a bit too anxious to avoid the acid flavor we Americans commonly find among intellectuals. His own flavor, carefully cultivated, is just a bit too mild and mellow." Crane Brinton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 F 27 '49 1150w

"This is not a blueprint for tomorrow's world, but it is an eloquent and stirring plea for human dignity." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p22 F 27 '49 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 22 '49 1050w

"Mr. McGuire is for the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic alliance, the Hull trade-agreements program, cooperation with the British Commonwealth and with Western Europe, the development of backward areas, freedom and opportunity for a variety of human energies and intelligences. He is against the police-state, economic regimentation, laissez-faire, Marxism, and the moral loneliness of industrial society. This wholly admirable and sympathetic catalogue of likes and dislikes, presented with many a flourish of well-turned phrase, still adds up to a rather undigested and confusing minor Jeremiad." P. E. Mosely
Sat R of Lit 32:15 Mr 12 '49 700w

Reviewed by H. H. Wagner
Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p822 D 16 '49 900w

Wis Lib Bul 45:84 My '49

MACHLUP, FRITZ. Basing-point system; an economic analysis of a controversial pricing practice. 275p $5 Blakiston

338.52 Prices 49-7852

"The Supreme Court's decision last year that cement manufacturers who had set their prices by a basing point system had violated both the Clayton Act and the Federal Trade Commission Act resulted in immediate demands by many businessmen that Congress legalize the system. This book is an attempt to answer some of the questions that Congress must consider in reaching its decision. After extensive economic analysis, the author concludes that the system reduces competition among manufacturers, raises the level of prices, facilitates the increase or maintenance of concentrated economic power, and tends to localize producing plants in one part of the country." (Columbia Law R) Index.

"Professor Machlup's new book on the basing-point system may be a disappointment to many in his wide circle of admirers among professional economists. Possibly, however, it will gain him new admirers in the wider audience to which it is also addressed. Present, as usual, are his pungent style, his sly humor,

MACHLUP, FRITZ—Continued
his gift for clear exposition of complicated matters, his masterful use of the analogy. The layman accustomed to dry and technical treatises from economists will find this a pleasant change. . . In advocating, to a general audience, a definite position on a subject of current public controversy, an economist has to try very hard to refrain from slipping into the tactics of a debater. Professor Machlup has largely avoided this temptation. That he has definite views is clear. Yet only occasionally does persuasion possibly interfere with enlightenment. Once or twice, making opponents look ridiculous seems to take precedence over discovery of the truth. . . Certainly, Professor Machlup has made some valuable contributions to the basing-point controversy; but he has not provided all of the answers, and we can be sure that the controversy will continue." Gardner Ackley
+ Am Econ R 39:1345 D '49 1750w

"The exposition is strongest in the more obviously economic pages of the text, and weakest in the discussion of political and legal matters. Occasionally the argument is self-contradictory. . . For students of politics, the materials examined by the author should be especially interesting, because they demonstrate the use of basing point systems as an instrument of control in the administration of systems of private government." Earl Latham
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:953 Je '49 550w

"Nobody interested in a vital economic issue between sectional interests and the common good can afford to neglect this great book." H. W. Spiegel
+ Ann Am Acad 264:171 Jl '49 430w

"Both his analysis of the economic consequences of the system and his clear description of its mechanics will be of value to the student of the trade regulation."
+ Columbia Law R 49:732 My '49 140w

"In summary, for business men The Basing-Point System contributes little towards clarifying the problems involved in mechanics and uses of this pricing system. The book's socio-economic indictment of the system merely parrots what the FTC trial examiners have preached for years." W. C. Caswell — Management R 38:345 Je '49 380w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:196 Je '49 360w

MACINNES, HELEN (MRS GILBERT HIGHET). Rest and Be Thankful. 368p $3 Little 49-10088

"Mrs. Peel, a wealthy widow, and Sally Bly, exploring America after many years spent in Europe, get caught in a rainstorm in Wyoming and eventually find their way to the nearest ranch. Here they fall in love with and buy the beautiful ranch house. The whole point of the story is how this peaceful way of life benefits the most sophisticated of their Eastern visitors." Library J

Booklist 46:13 S 1 '49
Bookmark 9:6 O '49 30w

"A delightful tale centering around a ranch of this tranquil name in the hills of Wyoming. . . The book is full of humor, and the diversity of the guests makes Rest and Be Thankful a mine for character depiction which the author does very adroitly."
+ Cath World 169:479 S '49 160w

"A smoothly-written, quietly entertaining novel." Marie Gibbons
+ Chicago Sun p8X Ag 14 '49 180w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 25 '49 180w
Kirkus 17:278 Je 1 '49 190w

"Pleasantly written and above the usual type of 'Western', but still unremarkable." Anne Whitmore
+ — Library J 74:1095 Ag '49 80w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 N 18 '49 90w

"She has shaped a story with precision, fine tolerance and manifest skill. If it displays more facility than force, and is sometimes tentative when it should have been trenchant, one must admire her resolution in the choice of theme. This was not a lazy self-assignment. . . Possibly 'Rest and Be Thankful' is a bit too concerned with the tea-cozy relationship of two heroines for whom life is so nicely smoothed. Next time, perhaps, the brew will be stronger." George Conrad
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ag 7 '49 700w

"As in her earlier books Miss MacInnes brings her characters to life and makes them good companions. In discovering America, she uncovers humor—but with a chuckle instead of a snort." Florence Crowther
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 7 '49 360w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 23 '49 750w

"Miss MacInnes might easily have turned this novel into a profound commentary on intellectual America, or a devastating satire on the meeting of East and West. Instead she has chosen to be cosy, good-tempered, and affectionate in this, her first look at Americans on their native heath. 'Rest and Be Thankful' may be superficial, but its author's deft pen has kept it entertaining from first to last." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 S 17 '49 500w
Springf'd Republican p8B S 4 '49 240w
Times [London] Lit Sup p805 D 9 '49 120w

MCINNIS, EDGAR WARDWELL, and REID, J. H. STEWART. The English-speaking peoples; a modern history. 513p maps $5 Knopf
942 Great Britain—History. U.S.—History
49-7303

"Professors McInnis and Reid are at present teaching in Canada; the first is a native of the Maritime provinces, and was educated at Toronto and Oxford; the second is a Glaswegian educated in Scotland and in Canada. . . This is straightforward political, social, and economic history, centered mainly on Britain, the United States, and Canada since 1689, but with the rest of the English-speaking peoples adequately considered, written rather in terms of movements, policies, political decisions, concrete environmental pressures, and group psychologies than in terms of personalities and intrigues." (Sat R of Lit) Selected bibliograpy. Index.

Booklist 45:208 F 15 '49

"There is remarkable evenness in style and treatment by the two authors. Both have practised with great skill the art of condensation and compression, and both are adept at saying much in a few words. Although this book is factual narrative it is weighty with meaning. Written with great clarity it gives within the limits of a single volume an admirable presentation of developments in half a dozen separate countries. . . Where the material is more remote from the special interests of the two authors, errors creep in." R. A. Preston
+ — Canadian Hist R 30:277 S '49 1150w

Reviewed by J. B. Brebner
Nation 168:162 F 5 '49 650w

"The originality of this book lies in its subject matter. . . It is the fashion in literary circles to fasten terms like 'academic' or 'textbook' on this kind of history, with intent to damn. One suspects that Professors McInnis and Reid would accept these terms without worrying over the pejorative intent of those who use them. There is a place, a very useful place, for this sort of generalized, balanced history." Crane Brinton
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 F 12 '49 650w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON, ed. Discrimination and national welfare; a series of addresses and discussions. (Inst. for religious and social studies. Religion and civilization ser) 135p $2 Harper
325.73 U.S.—Race question. Minorities
49-2279

"The material and moral acts of discrimination against minority groups in housing, employment, and churches in the U.S.; presented by 11 contributors, among them Elmo Roper, Robert C. Weaver, John La Farge, Roger Baldwin, and Adolf A. Berle." (Booklist) Index.

Ann Am Acad 264:183 Jl '49

Booklist 45:275 Ap 15 '49

Reviewed by J. M. Yard
Christian Century 66:680 Je 1 '49 240w

Reviewed by Margaret Hubbard
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 480w

Reviewed by Alva Taylor
+ Churchman 163:18 S 1 '49 300w

"As is inevitable when so broad a subject is so briefly covered, the book hardly more than states the problem."
Nation 168:424 Ap 9 '49 40w

"Professor MacIver, in his introductory chapter, estimates that 'in this country some forty million people suffer from some kind of serious discrimination.' The figure is not itemized and may seem high, but we would have to reconsider our situation if even ten million, or five million, or one million, so suffered. Disquietingly, Professor MacIver believes that we have slipped back from the nineteenth-century conception of 'the principle of equal rights of groups.' One might question this generalization, remembering the anti-foreign movements of a century ago, bearing in mind, too, the slow but fairly steady improvement in the lot of the Negro. Nevertheless, one need not go far in these latter days to hear opinions and witness acts that would have shocked Thomas Jefferson." R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p6 Ap 3 '49 900w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 31 '49 110w

School & Society 69:160 F 26 '49 50w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON. More perfect union; a program for the control of intergroup discrimination in the United States. 311p $4 Macmillan

325.73 U.S.—Race question. Antipathies and prejudices 48-7108

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948

Reviewed by R. M. Williams
Am Soc R 13:778 D '48 400w

"Professor MacIver wastes no words and every line he writes is worth reading. Hence, I can only urge all who see this note to read and inwardly digest this unique and most excellent book." P. H. Odegard
+ Ann Am Acad 261:210 Ja '49 460w

Foreign Affairs 27:335 Ja '49 20w

"As a case study of this methodological problem, Professor MacIver's book is excellent." E. N. G.
+ J Philos 46:368 My 26 '49 300w

"This volume is a good compendium of recent experiences in dealing with intergroup problems. Many of these are experiences which have not been too accessible to the general public, especially relevant army data and developments related to the Fair Employment Practice Commission. This book fills a real gap in this field and should be a welcome addition to the shelves of anyone concerned with policy in the area of intergroup relations." Hilda Taba
+ Social Educ 13:208 Ap '49 500w

"As I see it, this is one of the few books which rate a careful reading by every sociologist who seeks to explore the effectiveness of applied social theory in realistic situations, as well as by all those who seek amelioration of group conflict and control of intergroup discrimination. This book, together with Professor MacIver's cooperative efforts in intercultural and intergroup relationships in the last few years, along with his Toward An Abiding Peace, and his editing of other series, reinsure Professor MacIver's enduring high place among social scientists." H. W. Odum
+ Social Forces 27:315 Mr '49 1000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:355 S '48 320w

MACK, EDWARD CLARENCE. Peter Cooper, citizen of New York. 432p il $5 Duell

B or 92 Cooper, Peter 49-48402

Full length, scholarly biography of a nineteenth century American businessman and philanthropist, best remembered today as the founder of Cooper Union in New York.

Booklist 46:123 D 1 '49

Bookmark 9:53 D '49 40w

"Mr. Mack, who has had access to the archives of Cooper Union and the papers of the Cooper-Hewitt family, has written admiringly but honestly, fully and vigorously. His book is not only a definitive biography, but it is also a history of New York during the years when its population was multiplied four hundredfold." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 10 '49 480w

"It is quite apparent that this biography has been a labor of love with Edward Mack who, though by no means a skilled writer, has managed to produce an interesting biography, warmly written and well documented." John Cournos
+ Commonweal 51:301 D 16 '49 600w

Kirkus 17:525 S 15 '49 160w

"This life of the millionaire admirably measures up to modern standards of scholarly biography, and one whose footnotes often conceal golden nuggets of wit and discernment." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:1600 O 15 '49 100w

"The author deserves praise for a balanced presentation. There are many evidences of careful analysis and objective appraisal, and the author has not hesitated to correct the errors of famous historians." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p24 N 20 '49 400w

"Professor Mack has done such a painstaking—not to say remorseless—job of research that his subject, an estimable rather than an engrossing type, has been almost entirely snowed under by a wealth of reverentially presented detail about, for example, the technical side of the glue business and the exact composition of the structural beams used in Cooper Union."
New Yorker 25:167 N 19 '49 140w

"This life of Peter Cooper by Professor Mack is the definitive one. . . It is scholarly and complete; by treatment and subject matter, a necessary component of any reasonably crowded shelf on Americana. More than that, it is a highly readable account of a human life at once so simple it seems naive and at the same time so forceful its impact is still being felt on things as amorphous as New York, industry, and education." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 D 10 '49 600w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Social Studies 41:39 Ja '50 200w

Wis Lib Bul p10 D '49

MACKAY, MRS MARGARET (MACKPRANG). Give him my love. 273p $3 Day 49-9598

Mary Allistair, a young American woman, goes to England to try to learn the truth about her husband's disappearance during the war. There she learns from a physician that she is not likely to live long unless she takes care of her health. However, she persists in her quest, traveling to France and Italy, and finally finds happiness.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 21 '49 270w

Kirkus 17:241 My 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 7 '49 320w

Reviewed by J. P. Quehl
N Y Times p16 Jl 17 '49 150w

"Here, in between the prologue and the epilogue, is a fine novel. . . Miss Mackay has matured considerably in the last 10 years, not only in her writing, but in her understanding of humanity. And it is this that makes her present novel such a joy and delight. . . It is

MACKAY, MARGARET—Continued
Miss Mackay's resolution of the problem of Brett that is melodramatic and unbelievable. And it is for this reason that the epilogue is a bad part of the novel." Marc Rivette
+ – San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 17 '49 500w

"'Give Him My Love' is slick entertaining reading, even the parts that are overburdened with gratuitous platitudes." L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 28 '49 360w

MCKEAN, DAYTON DAVID. Party and pressure politics. 712p maps $4.75 Houghton
329 Political parties—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government 49-10110

A textbook for college courses in political science, with emphasis on pressure groups, public opinion polls, etc. Index.

"This book is a valuable addition to the literature of American political parties and politics, and supplements usefully the able contributions of Salt, of Odegard and Helms, of Merriam and Gosnell, and of Key. Both in arrangement and in emphasis, it has several excellent features which distinguish it from other competent works." T. S. Barclay
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1280 D '49 650w

"A thoughtful provocative work which should do much to increase the average citizen's understanding of the practical way in which our 'extra Constitutional' government functions." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 14 '49 240w

MCKEAN, ELSE. David's bad day; story and phot; with a foreword by Lawrence K. Frank; and an introd. by Mary Fisher Langmuir. [46p] $2 Shady Hill press
136.7 Child study

Story, with photographs, about a child's jealousy toward a new baby in the family. David had a bad day because he felt he wasn't loved any more, but his wise parents succeeded in showing him his importance to the family. The book is meant for children, parents and teachers of young children.

Booklist 46:17 S 1 '49
Kirkus 17:299 Je 15 '49 190w

"Recommended for parents' and teachers' bookshelf." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 74:1034 Jl '49 70w
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 13 '49 90w
Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 30w

MACKENZIE, CATHERINE. Parent and child. 341p $2.95 Sloane
649.1 Parent and child. Children—Management 49-8052

Advice on the bringing up of children by the authority on child development of The New York Times. Partial contents: Infancy; Pre-school age; School age; Teen age; Health; Emotional problems; Discipline; Mental health; Delinquency; The exceptional child. Reference and reading list. Index.

Booklist 45:349 Je 15 '49
Kirkus 17:22 Ja 1 '49 160w

"'Parent and Child' is not intended to replace such encyclopedic works as Dr. Benjamin Spock's books on baby and child care. It is not the kind of work one keeps in the nursery for consultation in case of emergency. What it offers is the best reporting of the best current thinking in the field. Its special quality derives both from Miss Mackenzie's personality and from her ability to offer a sustained, well-considered point of view. . . But the book is of interest to others besides parents. It is also for teachers and for nurses and doctors and psychologists and students—indeed for all who work with and care about children. There is an excellent 'Reference and Reading List' of a hundred or so titles at the end." Nina Ridenour
+ N Y Times p4 F 20 '49 750w

"This capable work should fill the need of thousands of present or prospective parents who still are 'people' and who naturally 'never understand' many things about parent-child relations until it happens to them. The work may also be recommended highly as a text in many of our ubiquitous courses on marriage and the family, where education on this practical level does not always get as good treatment as is given in this work." C. C. Zimmerman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 My 7 '49 290w
School & Society 69:198 Mr 12 '49 30w
Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 180w

"I, for one, am happy to have Miss Mackenzie's excellent articles in permanent form. Her writing is balanced and light in touch and she manages to steer through the maze of the often conflicting opinions of experts and to emerge with a clear philosophy regarding children's basic needs." Eleanor Reich
+ Survey 85:407 Jl '49 230w

MCKEON, CHARLES KING. Study of Summa philosophiae of the pseudo-Grosseteste. 226p $3.25 Columbia univ. press
189 Grosseteste, Robert, bp.—Summa philosophiae 48-9244

"This book is an exposition of a work written by an undetermined author probably between 1265 and 1275, and consisting of nineteen treatises and two hundred and eighty-four chapters. The Summa begins with a short history of philosophy and proceeds through the nature of truth, the problem of knowledge, metaphysics, theology, cosmology, and the philosophy of nature, thus covering the sum of human knowledge. An aim of the present study is to interpret the Summa philosophiae as exemplifying the principles of Christian Platonism." (J Philos) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. McKeon gives a careful and often clarifying exposition of the nineteen treatises. . . [His] book is a good model for the interpretation of a medieval philosopher. This reviewer can raise no objection, except the rather mild one that it was sometimes easier to read the original text of the Summa philosophiae than the present exposition." J. R. Cresswell
+ J Philos 46:651 S 29 '49 650w

"Much of the present summary makes difficult reading, and it is questionable whether the work will be very useful either for the nonspecialist or for the scholar in the field, who will prefer to consult the original source. At any rate, the interpretation offered is that the Summa exemplified principles of Christian Platonism. It is conceded that such a view cannot be made out with complete consistency and that the interpretation remains hypothetical and instrumental. It is difficult to find fault with such modest claims." William O'Meara
J Religion 29:307 O '49 800w

MCKINNEY, FRED. Psychology of personal adjustment; students' introduction to mental hygiene. 2d ed 752p il $6 Wiley
131.3 Mental hygiene. Students 49-4607

"This second edition has retained the purpose, style, and general organization of its popular and widely read predecessor [Book Review Digest 1941] and was revised to include the newer trends and expansion in the journal literature." (School & Society) Chapter references. Indexes.

"The tone is one of admonition and advice, buttressed with reference to supporting cases or research studies. The style is popular and pithy. It is a book which should be highly helpful, both to students and to those seeking to serve them." J. H. S. Bossard
+ Ann Am Acad 266:235 N '49 240w
Booklist 45:396 Jl 15 '49

"The book cannot fail to be of value to practicing psychologists and counselors, and it could be read to advantage by many college students and other young people of their age, married or single." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:824 Jl 6 '49 110w
School & Society 69:439 Je 18 '49 40w
Survey 85:408 Jl '49 10w

MCKINSTRY, HUGH EXTON. Mining geology; with sections by Stanley A. Tyler [and others]. 680p il $10; to schools $7.50 Prentice-Hall

553 Mining engineering. Geology 48-7720

"The intention of this important book is to describe the techniques of application of geology to metal mining. First it covers methods of collecting basic information by mapping and other means, then the relationship between ore and geology, methods of occurrence, developing prospects and valuation of mines, and last, methods of converting run-of-mine ore into marketable products. Book includes writing and reading reports. Chapter references. Glossary." (Library J) Index.

"While the experienced mining geologist who has read widely in his profession may find few new ideas in the book, I am sure he will benefit by the orderly presentation and logical development of the author's thesis. We need more books like this, which show the young geologist how to apply the theory that he has learned in school and how to develop the field application of his profession. I recommend the book to all graduate students in economic geology not only for the sake of its thesis but also as a splendid example of simple, well-organized, lucid, and interesting writing on a technical subject." O. N. Rove

+ J Geol 57:625 N '49 900w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:1598 N 1 '48 80w

"A well-written, comprehensive treatise on the application of geological principles and techniques to the locating, appraising and mining of mineral deposits. It is intended as a guide and reference manual, for the mining geologist in the field, who may not have access to other pertinent literature."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:26 Mr '49

MACKINTOSH, ELIZABETH (GORDON DAVIOT, JOSEPHINE TEY, pseuds). Franchise affair. 238p $3 Macmillan

49-7347

Detective story.

Booklist 45:170; 193 Ja 15 '49; F 1 '49

"The mysteries in my library crowd the room in which I work, sprawl into the hallway and fill most of the basement. But if I had to reduce these unruly holdings to a single shelf, one book certain to be on that shelf is 'The Franchise Affair.' Apart from its solid merits as a tale of detection it has the pungency and the vitality that is warm testimony of sound writing." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun F 11 '49 250w

"A more mysterious and less laughable case than Miss Pym Disposes... Dignified, disappointing, very British."

Kirkus 16:632 D 1 '48 70w

"Plausibility is not conspicuous in The Franchise Affair but the tale is vivaciously told... The whole makes lively entertainment." Harold Brighouse

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 27 '48 70w
New Repub 120:27 Ap 25 '49 160w

"Recommended to all those nice people who keep hollering for something first class." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 13 '49 230w

"The detail, although superabundant, is wittily handled." H. B. Parker

N Y Times p30 F 13 '49 180w
+ New Yorker 24:95 F 19 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 20 '49 120w

MCKOWN, EDGAR MONROE, and SCHERZER, CARL J. Understanding Christianity; a study of our Christian heritage. 162p $2.50 Ronald

230 Christianity 49-8029

"Deals with the basic questions now in the minds of students concerning the nature of the Christian faith and the implications of that faith for the issues of today." (School & Society) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Designed as a textbook for college students, this could be used equally well for study and discussion by non-academic groups of young or older people." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:564 My 4 '49 50w
School & Society 69:118 F 12 '49 40w

MCKOWN, HARRY CHARLES. Boy grows up; drawings by Roberta Paflin. (Whittlesey house publication) 2d ed 333p $3; text ed $2.40 McGraw

170 Boys. Conduct of life 49-8687

Enlarged edition of a book first published in 1940 (Book Review Digest 1940). New chapters are titled: How old are you to your girl friends?; Your new maturity; Should you continue your education?; What do you want in life?; Looking forward to marriage; Success depends largely upon health, II. Bibliography.

"The book is one that might well be included in every library—home, church, or school—where boys either browse or borrow books. Many lads, however, will wish it were less textbook and more 'whodunit' in style." R. H. Everett

+ Am J Pub Health 39:1589 D '49 270w
Booklist 45:321 My 15 '49

"A book that should be in High School libraries, recreational centers, public libraries."

+ Kirkus 17:210 Ap 15 '49 160w

"Fresh material includes sensible advice about drinking, smoking, petting, and a new straightforward chapter on sex, all on the high school level, while the discussion about education, jobs, and marriage brings the boy to adulthood. Valuable twenty-page revised bibliography." Siri Andrews

+ Library J 74:897 Je 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 70:443 D 31 '49 50w

"The author of A Boy Grows up shows himself a master at presenting a boy's life as an adventure and at giving sound counsel as each new experience is met. This is the second edition, in which he has completely revised the earlier works, directing more of his attention to the young man rather than the boy... Secondary schools will find this book an excellent instrument in character training. A bibliography which covers many specific phases of allied interest to boys' problems is included and should be a great aid to the wide awake counselor." M. D. Fetherolf

+ Social Studies 40:374 D '49 500w

"The new edition has grown with the boy, and chapters have been added to discuss matters which were not in the teen-age cosmos before the war. . . There is nothing to make even the strictest parents have the slightest hesitation, and even the most 'progressive' parents will find that Mr. McKown has done a good job. The book is well written and organized, and there are a number of cheerful illustrations by Roberta Paflin." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 190w

MACKWORTH, MRS CECILY, ed. Mirror for French poetry, 1840-1940; French poems with translations by English poets. 230p $3.25 Transatlantic

841.08 French poetry—Collections [A48-3831]

"Anthology of French verse and translations by English poets. It represents most of France's well-known poets of the past hundred years, as well as some of the less great who seldom cross linguistic frontiers." (N Y Times)

MACKWORTH, CECILY—Continued
The selections begin with Baudelaire and include Alfred Jarry, Max Jacob, Léon-Paul Fargue, Jules Supervielle, and Paul Eluard.

"Fully cognizant of the difficulties of her venture, Cecily Mackworth has presented the result with the humility and sense of frustration which all honest translators and editors of verse must inevitably feel as they tread upon 'the no-man's land between sense and intellect which is the domain of poetry.' Her anthology should prove valuable to lovers of poetry in America as well as England. Revealing something of the ethereal, escapist atmosphere of the symbolists, the sensuous spontaneity of the surrealists, and a glimpse of the transcendental world of the Catholic poets, it reflects the triptych of modern French poetry." Anna Balakian
+ N Y Times p4 Ja 9 '49 1000w

"Miss Mackworth's scheme of having poets translate poets is a worthy one, and her desire to bring a diversity of French poets to the notice of English-speaking readers is admirable. But translating poetry is a hard job, even for poets, and a good many of the renderings are rather warped. Three American translators have somehow slipped in: Karl Shapiro, Dwight Macdonald, and Joseph Shipley."
New Yorker 25:114 My 7 '49 100w

MACLAURIN, WILLIAM RUPERT. Invention and innovation in the radio industry; with the technical assistance of R. Joyce Harman; with a foreword by Karl T. Compton. 304p il $6 Macmillan
621.384 Radio 49-8314

"This is a volume in a series of studies of innovation made by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It traces the work of the scientific pioneers of radio, the growth of large companies, patent litigation, industrial research on radio and television, and government." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:103 N '49
School & Society 69:237 Mr 26 '49 40w

"This basic analysis of the radio industry successfully interprets a highly technical subject to a large economic and industrial group outside that industry. It also makes some contribution to an organized and systematic theory of economic development."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:215 Je '49 300w

MCLEAN, JOSEPH ERIGINA, ed. Public service and university education. 252p $3.75 Princeton univ. press
351.1 Civil service 49-8014

"The need for more adequate training of personnel for top administrative positions in government service is examined by a group of U.S. contributors representing government, teaching, and business experience. Both U.S. and British practice are cited to demonstrate weaknesses of the present U.S. training and ways in which it can be improved." Booklist

"One who will take the time to look through the first essay will surely wish to examine the remaining fourteen with care. He will find his efforts well rewarded, for the essayists almost uniformly deal with an important subject with intelligence and insight." R. C. Martin
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:586 Je '49 650w

"The book is required reading for those who teach public administration; it should be read by all those concerned with the education of leaders for a society of growing public responsibilities." R. A. Walker
+ Ann Am Acad 264:158 Jl '49 550w
Booklist 45:256 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by J. S. Morgan
Canadian Forum 29:68 Je '49 180w

"The broad area of agreement and disagreement reflected in these essays is significant for all citizens in and out of government who realize that public service characterized by vigor and vitality is essential if man and his civilization are to survive. The reviewer may add that many of the problems discussed in this volume on public service apply in the areas of private government as well as public government. . . Those who are interested in these problems will find much of value in this extremely useful book on public service and university education." C. E. Merriam
+ Christian Century 66:270 Mr 2 '49 750w
Foreign Affairs 28:159 O '49 10w
School & Society 69:118 F 12 '49 40w

Reviewed by F. S. Miller
Survey 85:561 O '49 600w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:202 Je '49 300w

Reviewed by J. W. Gardner
Yale R n s 38:742 summer '49 900w

MCLEAN, RUARI. George Cruikshank, his life and work as a book illustrator. (English masters of black-and-white ser) 100p il $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy
741.91 Cruikshank, George. Drawings. Illustration of books [48-20178]

Critical and biographical sketch of the English artist George Cruikshank, whose long life covered the years 1792-1878. The book contains fifty-four pages of reproductions of his drawings, and a selected list of books illustrated by him.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:199 F 1 '49 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 26 '48 110w
New Yorker 24:94 F 19 '49 40w

"Adequately to compress into a volume of this size the prodigious range and vitality of such a giant was obviously an impossible task. Moreover, something is inevitably lost when etchings of such subtlety and complexity are reproduced by line blocks (although these are excellent, and inevitable, given modern conditions of publishing, in a work so modestly priced), nor can it be said that Mr. McLean's text quite measures up to the stature of his subject. Nevertheless, Art and Technics have performed a very real service in drawing the attention of a wide public to this great national figure, and it is to be hoped that they will so far succeed in their purpose as to render practicable the production of that exhaustive work the absence of which makes so shameful a gap in the existing library of British art." Osbert Lancaster
Spec 180:530 Ap 30 '48 400w

"This queer, vain, unbalanced and immensely prolific artist is still capable of inspiring extravagant enthusiasm, and Mr. McLean's study is done with something of Cruikshank's gusto, and also with something of his slap-dash looseness. It is disconcerting to find the rise of the 'joke drawing' at the beginning of the nineteenth century even remotely linked with an 'increase in atheism and free-thinking which may have increased the need for other aids than religion to make life more endurable.' But the author deals vividly with his subject's relations with Hone in the years before the Reform Act, and later with Ainsworth and Dickens."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Ap 10 '48 420w

MACMAHON, BRYAN. Lion-tamer, and other stories. 224p $2.75 Dutton
49-7611

Twenty-two short stories by an Irish poet and dramatist, who has now embarked on fiction. The background for all the stories is the Irish village.

Booklist 45:225 Mr 1 '49

"It might not be a bad side bet to wager that a handful of Bryan MacMahon's stories will still be alive in anthologies of the future when the Saroyans have done with Saroyaning and the Capotes are all Kaput. In point of sober fact this new young writer from Listowel in County Kerry may, when all the returns are in, finally be reckoned among the major short story talents of our century." C. A. Brady

+ Cath World 169:152 My '49 500w

Reviewed by William Peden
Chicago Sun F 23 '49 450w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 24 '49 850w

"A fine and beautiful book. The smell and the light and the lilt of life in an Irish village are in it. The man who put them there has drawn richly and wisely on the great bank of Say. With this, his first book, he enters the company of the finest Irish writers of our day." M. H. Ley
+ Commonweal 49:497 F 25 '49 800w

"In this lyrical, and occasionally mystical collection of Irish short stories, Mr. MacMahon shows himself to be an excellent writer of incidents, rather than of short stories. . . The stories are creative, intelligent, beautiful, and even exciting."
+ — Kirkus 16:631 D 1 '48 160w

"Not all the stories measure up to the initial The Lion Tamer, but all show distinct freshness and vitality, sensitivity and poetic quality. A few are unforgettable—The Ring, The Holy Kiss, The Breadmaker." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 74:312 F 15 '49 100w

"Most of the twenty-two stories have the attractive character of something told by word of mouth, with the additional charm of Irish turns of speech." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 13 '48 60w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 120:26 F 7 '49 350w

"A fine crop of stories. He sees his characters so completely and tells their stories so compellingly and with such compression that he does for the Irish countryside what James Joyce did for the city in 'Dubliners.' In fact, MacMahon's fine perspective on a Irish place and its people at times succeeds in giving universality to the particular and the parochial." Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 6 '49 550w

"Each year for several years this small island [Ireland] has produced at least one superior new voice. Of such voices the purest, the richest to reach these shores in a long time, is that of Bryan MacMahon, who lives in a Kerry village near the mouth of the river Shannon. . . Mr. MacMahon's stories are superior not only because of the richness of imagination he brings to them and because he creates a language and a world all his own, but because he is able to convey through moments in the lives of simple Irish people values that are universal, that transcend geography and time, and concern men and women wherever they may live." James Stern
+ N Y Times p7 F 6 '49 700w

New Yorker 25:94 F 26 '49 80w

"Probably the greatest charm of the stories lies in the fact that they are told intimately, as though by word of mouth. The art of story-telling has surely undergone a renascence with the publication of this fine collection." P. A. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 10 '49 350w

"With 'The Lion-Tamer' Bryan MacMahon takes immediate place in the top echelon of contemporary Ireland's short-story writers. Sean O'Faolain, Frank O'Connor, and Michael McLaverty must move over at once for the man from Kerry. The newcomer's art is perhaps more self-conscious than theirs, but his fishermen, farmers, and townsfolk—yes, and his evil old mothers-in-law—are true Adams of Irish earth. There is an exhilarating, almost intoxicating, quality to some of his landscapes and a touch of madness to a few of his denouements." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 F 5 '49 1000w

"In The Good Dead in the Green Hills; Gentlemen, This is Armageddon; Sing, Milo, Sing; and The Ring, Mr. MacMahon can touch us poignantly. Many of the rest of the stories are no more than bright anecdotes, and in some of them Mr. MacMahon strains his descriptive powers in an effort towards originality. . . His talent is considerable, and if he does not ill-treat it, he may one day give us a new vision of that darling city." Olivia Manning
+ — Spec 181:282 Ag 27 '48 270w

"The pieces in The Lion-Tamer have an Irish background, and they share the atmosphere of a sentimental Irish ballad. No doubt they are authentically Irish, although they appear rather self-consciously so. The stories themselves are neat, and told with the minimum of blarney; they will naturally appeal strongly to those who enjoy reading about Ireland, but their attraction lies more in their regional nature than in originality or great intrinsic merit."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p453 Ag 14 '48 70w

Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:576 spring '49 200w

MCMANAWAY, JAMES GILMER, and others, eds. Joseph Quincy Adams memorial studies. 808p il $10 Folger Shakespeare lib, 201 E. Capitol st, Washington 3, D.C.

820.9 Adams, Joseph Quincy. Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation. English literature—History and criticism 48-10467

Essays written in tribute to the late Dr. Joseph Quincy Adams. "More than fifty scholars—colleagues, students, former Folger fellows and specialists in this country and elsewhere—have honored Dr. Adams in a literary memorial. Not unnaturally, a good many of the essays are about Shakespeare, either about such technical matters as the punctuation of the sonnets or the 'copy' for the second quarto of 'Othello' or the nature of Shakespeare's ideal man. . . The non-Shakespearian essays have their own variety, whether it is a note on the minor Elizabethan translator and chemist John Hester, the bibliographical history of Robert Parsons' essay on atheism or a discussion of the intricacies of the old style/new style in the reckoning of dates." (N Y Times)

"These essays in Elizabethan and seventeenth-century English literature . . . constitute an extremely interesting cross-section of contemporary literary scholarship. The book has no other principle of unity, nor would any other principle be appropriate: as a Festschrift, it at once honors the dead scholar and reminds us, by its very impersonality, that the life of scholarship stops for no man." Milton Crane
+ Library Q 19:217 Jl '49 1300w

"Apart from individual excellencies, the book has a virtue as a whole. In its entirety it offers a good summary of the scope and nature of Shakespearean scholarship today, and embedded in the footnotes and peripheral references is a formidable bibliography. Possessing wit, grace and great knowledge, the essays are a handsome tribute to the work of the man who did so much for the work of others." Thomas Lask
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 10 '49 450w

"A volume of this sort is necessarily marked by diversity of both content and quality. Taken as a whole, however, it may be pronounced a valuable contribution to our knowledge of a period that Dr. Adams loved intensely and served well."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:416 D '48 280w

MCMEEKIN, MRS ISABEL (MCLENNAN). First book of horses; pictures by Pers Crowell. 45p $1.50 Watts, F.

636.1 Horses—Juvenile literature Agr49-456

"A large amount and variety of information about horses has been crowded into this short introductory book—different breeds, characteristics, uses, care and training, history. There are also a glossary of terms used by horsemen,

MCMEEKIN, ISABEL—Continued
a picture identifying parts of the body, and a final page of miscellaneous facts." Booklist

Booklist 46:104 N 15 '49

"It's most unusual and interesting feature is a double page spread giving a glossary of horse terms and a numbered picture of a horse, which gives the correct names for the parts of the body." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 13 '49 60w

"Every line of it will hold appeal, and the really eager small reader will demand more."
+ Kirkus 17:470 S 1 '49 140w

"Splendid little book." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 74:1761 N 15 '49 50w

"This is another 'must' for the library of horse fans." R. A. Gordon
+ N Y Times p58 N 20 '49 50w

"For reducing the complex to the simplest to understand, this book, as well as its companions, is almost unexcelled. It will save parents a lot of whys."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 13 '49 80w

Wis Lib Bul p10 N '49

MCMEEKIN, MRS ISABEL (MCLENNAN). Kentucky Derby winner; il. by Corinne Dillon. 272p $2.50 McKay
Horses—Legends and stories 49-8758

A true story of Aristides, the first Kentucky Derby winner. For grades 4-7.

Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49

"A particularly good horse story. . . Its excitement and sparkle do not come from the race track, however, but from the earthy quality of daily work on a 420 acre stock farm." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun Jl 23 '49 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

"Mrs. McMeekin brings into the story some real characters associated with horse racing at the time. She writes in colloquial language, which adds a strong local flavor to the fine story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:288 Jl '49 120w

"Good combination, a horse story and a good one and a true one."
+ Kirkus 17:109 Mr 1 '49 220w

"Author has successfully given young readers, 9-12, not only a horse story, based on fact, with details of raising and training, but also the color and flavor of life on a Kentucky farm in the 1870s. Excellent illustrations by Corinne Dillon round out a book which will have genuine appeal." Margaret Miller
+ Library J 74:895 Je 1 '49 80w

"Altogether, an unusual horse book. The style is delightful, alive, yet leisurely, sensitive, and completely Louisville." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Je 19 '49 270w

"In addition to as good a horse story as one could wish for, Mrs. McMeekin has written an excellent regional and period piece, peopling it with entertaining characters, both real and fictional. Especially for the 9-to-14-year-olds." G. C. Castor
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 10 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:182 D 3 '49 80w

"A large part of [the book's] charm lies in the two human characters, little Jack Spratt and his grandfather, Big Jack the trainer, and in the atmosphere of the Bluegrass Country and its people. It would be hard to find a better horse story than this one, which is history as well as fiction." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 90w

MCNAIR, SIR ARNOLD DUNCAN. Dr Johnson and the law. 115p $2 Cambridge
B or 92 Johnson, Samuel 49-9115

An anthology in which the editor has gathered together the recorded links between Dr Samuel Johnson and lawyers, or the study of law. Contents: His legal friends and contemporaries; His legal reading and library; His views on professional ethics, habits and prospects; His arguments and other legal activities: Scots law; His arguments and other legal activities: English law; His comments on legal matters; Why he did not become qualified to practice. Index.

"The author of this book is not only one of of the most distinguished lawyers of our day, but he is also a judge of the highest eminence. He may be well assured that Johnson would have approved the use he has made of his leisure, for 'he has turned over half a library to make one book' and has enriched it with the fruits of his experience and his gifts of understanding and judgment." Norman Birkett
+ Spec 182:90 Ja 21 '49 900w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p58 Ja 22 '49 600w

MCNAUGHTON, MILDRED. White fountain. 280p $3 Doubleday
49-8389

A New York girl of Dutch descent, met a South African in London during the war. After the war she goes to South Africa to marry Pieter. But an unexplained restlessness keeps Pieter away from home, and in time Katryna discovers a reluctance toward marriage in herself. After a disastrous fire in which Pieter's mistress dies, Kathryna marries Pieter's brother Jan.

Booklist 45:314 My 15 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 240w

"Backgrounded in the details of the farm life, begun in 1670, in the local scenery and colors, this provides solid reading for soberer feminine tastes."
+ Kirkus 17:92 F 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Margaret Hubbard
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 15 '49 270w

"If the plot is contrived, the color is lushly synthetic. The Western Province of South Africa is indeed a gem of scenery, but it is sometimes hard to recognize under the weight of Miss McNaughton's adjectival prose. Nor do her many spelling errors in Afrikaans names and phrases help to lend verisimilitude. The tolerant reader may excuse all of these except one: the author's glaring habit of calling her Africaners 'Afrikanders,' which is the name given to a breed of indigenous, hump-backed cattle." John Barkham
+ — N Y Times p18 Ap 17 '49 280w

"Miss McNaughton imbues life on an African farm with a richness that makes for readability. If her sense of color fails to please, her sense of the sinister surely will hold attention." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 Je 4 '49 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p693 O 28 '49 240w

MACNEICE, LOUIS. Holes in the sky; poems, 1944-47. 61p $2.50 Random house 821 49-7145

This new book by the Irish poet contains verse written during the years 1944 to 1947.

Booklist 45:207 F 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '49

"He is still one of the better English poets in the Auden genre, if not the equal of that master, but this volume would have been improved by some elimination. Not a popular volume, market chiefly among his fans."
Kirkus 16:590 N 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 Je 29 '48 40w

"Louis MacNeice's Holes in the Sky has the same old style, middling-neat, observant and facile." Robert Fitzgerald
New Repub 121:18 Ag 8 '49 50w

"Louis MacNeice has a somber, ironic view of modern life, of its tragi-comedies and futilities and, above all, of the sadness that underlies all modern attempts to recapture, in memories of youth or by sudden emotions when listening to a street-singer or watching a landscape, a sense of significance in daily living. . . Sometimes his restrained matter-of-factness is overdone, and the poems remain mere dead statement. . . He is at his best when he keeps his imagery precise and subdued." David Daiches
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 23 '49 380w

"The qualities for which one most admired MacNeice are but faintly perceptible in these new poems; and while there is enough here to raise the book to a level well above the most contemporary average, comparison with the early work results chiefly in disappointment. The best of this collection are the landscapes and evocations of childhood." Dudley Fitts
— + N Y Times p16 F 13 '49 600w

"[MacNeice] has moments of wit and charm, but he is much more diluted by influence than before; his long poem 'The Stygian Banks' is plainly later-Eliot-and-water." Louise Bogan
New Yorker 25:110 Mr 26 '49 50w

"The present volume has a few dimly attractive poems, The Streets of Laredo, Hiatus and The Corner Seat, but these are poems that fall into the classification of 'magazine verse'. . . The Stygian Banks, the longest poem in the new book, is difficult to read, not because it is obscure, but because it is toneless and mediocre. In MacNeice's verse, a potential of good poetry seems half-concealed, and I suspect that to reveal it, he must take the rough and independent road taken by another Irish poet, Robert Graves." Horace Gregory
Poetry 74:301 Ag '49 1000w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by W. V. O'Connor
Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ja 29 '49 550w

Time 53:94 Ja 17 '49 380w

"The times have changed, but Mr. MacNeice has not changed with them . . . something has happened, however, to Mr. MacNeice's style, a certain uncertainty has come over it. . . Here and there instead of the old quick flip of the cards there is fumble and reshuffle. The effective use of a colloquial style depends on a feeling of certainty about one's audience; that they pick up a point quickly, do not need things to be underlined, Mr. MacNeice no longer feels that certainty."
Times [London] Lit Sup p315 Je 5 '48 1300w

MCNELLIS, MARGARET (ROCHE) (MRS CLYDE NEWHOUSE), and BOSCOWITZ, HUBIE. Party games; il. by Donald McKay. 201p $1.95 Prentice-Hall

793 Games 49-50016

Contains a collection of party games invented or used by Hollywood and Broadway celebrities. Instructions are given in simple, detailed form, designed to help host or hostess to make an adult or teen-aged party a success.

Booklist 46:143 D 15 '49

"Several in this collection would be suitable for children's parties, for which there never seems to be an adequate supply, and the equipment for all is simple."
+ Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 90w

MCNICKLE, D'ARCY. They came here first; the epic of the American Indian. (Peoples of America ser) 325p il $3.75 Lippincott

970.1 Indians of North America 49-9944

"History of the American Indian, from his immigration to North America through Alaska from Asia, thousands of years ago, to his subjection and almost complete extinction under the white man's domination. Includes descriptions of the many Indian cultures—languages, laws and ways of living—and an understanding explanation of the feelings of hatred and friendship that existed between white and Indian civilizations." (Library J) Bibliography in Acknowledgments. Index.

"Understanding appreciation without dramatization."
Booklist 46:11 S 1 '49

"A scholarly and informative addition to the 'Peoples of America' series." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:1098 Ag '49 100w

" 'They Came Here First' is a highly readable book, learned but never dull, packed with intriguing bits of information, original in conception. It is the most successful treatment thus far of a romantic and important aspect of America's past and present." Clyde Kluckhohn
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 N 13 '49 650w

"The publisher claims that this work tells 'the whole dramatic story of the American Indian in the New World.' That is a large order for 325 pages of 'sensitive dramatic prose;' and it would be better if such extraneous comments had not been made since they detract from the book. There are occasional passages of diluted Steinbeckian prose, but not too many, and the story told is not the whole story, but primarily that of the broader aspects of the Indian problem and the changing status of Indian legislation." J. W. H.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 23 '49 370w

"Mr. McNickle has covered a tremendous story with surprising comprehensiveness and point. His apparatus provides extensive notes, including bibliographical data, acknowledgments, and an index." Stanley Vestal
+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 O 15 '49 320w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman
Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 360w

"The book is comprehensive, readable, and informative. It is well styled 'The Epic of the American Indian.' " Paul Bestor
+ Survey 85:695 D '49 750w

MCPHARLIN, PAUL. Puppet theatre in America; a history; with a list of puppeteers, 1524-1948. 506p il $6 Harper

791.5 Marionettes. Theater—U.S. 49-8939

A history of the puppet theater in America, from the time of the early Spanish puppeteers in Mexico to the present. Contains a long annotated list of puppeteers in America from 1524 to 1948. Index.

Booklist 45:351 Je 15 '49

"Enormously readable as well as being an invaluable reference tool. . . Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 70w

"The compilation of this book has been a labor of both scholarship and love, a long and exciting chase through ancient play bills, yellow newspapers, church records and legal sources. . . This beautifully made volume remains as a legacy. Paul McPharlin had checked the last illustration in the week before his death. To his wife we owe the careful list of puppeteers and their repertories through nearly four centuries, an astonishing list of professionals and amateurs, each bringing gifts; and the admirable index." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 31 '49 1350w

Reviewed by Burr Tillstrom
N Y Times p5 Ag 7 '49 700w

MCPHEDRAN, MRS MARIE. Golden North. 192p $2.50 Macmillan

49-7934

Realistic story of a boy's prospecting trip in the far north of Canada. For ages twelve to sixteen.

Booklist 45:299 My 1 '49

"A coldly exciting report of mining and prospecting in Manitoba. If some of the mines described are fictitious, the setting and the life bear every mark of on-the-spot authenticity." M. B. King

MCPHEDRAN, MARIE—Continued
Chicago Sun Jl 23 '49 150w

"Boys, and girls too, who are fond of treasure hunts or exploration will find this story of present-day prospecting in Manitoba an absorbing narrative." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:294 Jl '49 120w

"Grand reading, with lots of accurate geological data thrown in."
+ Kirkus 17:151 Mr 15 '49 100w

"Well-written, red-blooded adventure story. . . Excellent book for regional material and life in outposts of the frozen North. Recommended for all junior and senior high school libraries." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:669 Ap 15 '49 80w

"The style is straight reporting with no female flourishes. As you proceed you gather respect for this woman's insight into the rarities of men in this hazardous business." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 8 '49 90w

"There is considerable to be learned about ore-bearing rocks and the manner of staking claims in the wilderness, as well as glimpses of wild life and nature. But they are only glimpses; that is the book's weakness." M. P. Allen
N Y Times p30 Je 19 '49 180w

MCREYNOLDS, BOB. Sleepy to the rescue; photographic il. by Roy Davenport. 62p $1.50 Viking

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-10693

Photographic-picture story book of two dogs and their adventures in pursuit of hamburger. Told in the first person by Sleepy, the brown-and-white bird dog, who has been to school and considers himself a gentleman.

"Remarkably fine photographs. . . The pictures fill the whole of each page, opposite the text, and give the book distinction which any animal lover will appreciate. The story will interest the picture-book age." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:525 N '49 90w

+ Kirkus 17:424 Ag 15 '49 100w

"Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 74:1761 N 15 '49 40w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 13 '49 100w

MCSORLEY, EDWARD. Young McDermott. 293p $3 Harper
49-10745

